iqita and lar The Magazine of Close-up Magic

The Digital Pabular

and

The Pabular Magazine

are © Martin Breese, London 2002 and should not be reproduced in any way without permission in writing.

THE DIGITAL PABULAR

Introduced by Martin Breese

The first issue of Pabular Magazine appeared in September 1974 and I was a subscriber from the first issue to the very last. It is probably the finest magazine of British close up magic that has ever been published and is a true reflection of a very great era in British magic. The list of contributors includes some of the greatest names in magic.

Nick Bolton was the publisher and the editors were Fred Robinson, Walt Lees and Steven Tucker. Eric Mason — my close friend — was the art editor and his outstanding graphic designs enhanced the brilliant tricks and ideas and thoughts that appeared on every page. A few months ago I was able to purchase the copyright to the magazine from Nick Bolton and I have decided, with his approval, to reproduce the magazine in this digital form. To all those who made this wonderful magazine possible, I extend my warmest thanks.

Ian Keeble, whom I have known for many years, compiled a comprehensive index for Pabular and this, with his kind permission, has been reproduced here.

The introduction is also by Ian Keable and it very accurately sums up the contribution made by Pabular to the world of close up magic.

Martin Breese, London January 2002

PABULAR MAGAZINE

Ian Keable

The indexing of Pabular did not arise out of any altruistic or financial considerations: it purely arose because many times I had attempted to find something in my own Pabulars which I vaguely recalled but could not place. Eventually I got so frustrated that I sat down and indexed the entire magazine — the result of which you now have in front of you.

It may be of interest to mention one or two points about Pabular that those who have picked up copies over the years might be unaware. Pabular was the brain child of three people — Fred Robinson, the first and longest serving editor; Eric Mason, the illustrator and Nick Bolton who ran all the administrative side, including the printing and publishing.

Fred Robinson came to writing on magic very late in his life and rather to his own surprise found himself to be a gifted writer. In London he was always the first port of call for all overseas magicians: to those who did not know him, attempting to witness his legendary dealing; to those who did, just to hear him chat and tell his, oft-repeated, stories.

The strength of contributions to Pabular rested entirely with Fred Robinson: he had the kudos and the reputation to draw out the best from the best in the world. However it is noteworthy how very much a British magazine Pabular was. The vast majority of contributors came from these lands and confirmed Fred's belief that the British tended to underestimate their own skills and innovation when it came to close-up magic. Certainly contributions from the likes of Alex Elmsley, Roy Walton, Jack Avis, Peter Kane and Gordon Bruce, to name just a few, would seem to confirm this.

If Fred had a fault as an editor it was to create "magazine heroes" — a fault, it must be said, that the majority of magic magazines tend to make. Mind you, Fred Robinson chose his heroes carefully: Fred Kaps, Ricky Jay and Juan Tamariz were three of his favourites whilst John Ramsay, the great Scottish magician, was beyond all objective criticism.

Fred was in essence an extremely modest man. However he was especially proud of two particular pieces that he wrote in Pabular: one was his write-up of Tamariz's Oil and Water (Volume 4, Number 3, Page 484); the other his appreciation of Fred Kaps in one of his Oasis columns (Volume 6, Number 4, Page 830). The latter he always insisted should be read in conjunction with one of Kaps' own rare pieces of writing which was reprinted in Pabular (Professional Views On Doing Professional Magic For Laymen — Volume 1, Number 7, Page 82).

If the content of the magazine lay with Fred Robinson, the look of the magazine was undoubtedly that of Eric Mason. Eric Mason was one of the few genuine artists, as opposed to illustrators, that have turned their attention to the insular world of magic magazines. From the distinctive logo, through to the generous spacing and onto the free and easy drawings, Pabular looked like no other magic magazine before it.

Eric himself made many contributions to the magazine of his own unique tricks and sleights - ones it must be said that very few other magicians could possibly get away with. Not because they were technically particularly difficult but because they were so imbued with his own misdirection and flair that they were almost impossible to imitate.

Unlike Fred Robinson, who on his own admission was no great close-up performer, Eric Mason most certainly was: he was the supreme amateur, in that he only performed for the love of it, rarely for the money. In the Marlborough Arms, a pub around the corner of the old Magic Circle at Chenies Mews and the unofficial "office" of Pabular, Eric Mason would regularly weave his magic every Monday night.

Maybe memory plays its own tricks but watching Eric Mason perform his vanishing pack of cards under a wallet, a glass penetrating the closed fingers of a spectator's hands (Moniker — Volume 3, Number 2, Page 313) or his colour changing packet tricks that seemed to go on and on until the spectator just could not believe that any more changes could take place (The Problem Is... — Volume 4, Number 10, Page 585 followed by Beau Ideal — Volume 4, Number 12, Page 606), I have never felt more uplifted as a magical spectator. All that, and his charming and winning smile too — it makes the close-up workers of today seem like pygmies in comparison.

It was not just Eric Mason who tried out his Pabular contributions in the Marlborough Arms. Many other contributors demonstrated their own creations within its crowded walls: in particular I recall Barry Richardson had people gasping with disbelief at his magnetised pencil (Volume 4, Number 4, Page 504); Tommy Wonder achieving something which was totally beyond explanation with his torn and restored cigarette (Volume 7, Number 4, Page 1018); and Kevin Davie analysing to the ninth degree the theory of misdirection with the top change (The Lollipop Trick — Volume 6, Number 4, Page 835).

Fred Robinson always saw Pabular as a magazine of practical close-up magic that could and would be performed: certainly whilst he was Editor, that is precisely what it was. There is no doubt that with the replacement of Fred Robinson by firstly Walt Lees and then Stephen Tucker, the magazine did gradually lose its distinctive style. Fred, I suspect, stepped down partly because of age and partly because he felt he had said everything that he had to say. He had kept it going for over 5 volumes (66 issues — he stood down in Volume 6, Number 6). Walt Lees was editor for 17 issues before handing over to Stephen Tucker (Walt said his farewell in Volume 7, Number 12 — an issue which he credited to Stephen). I must here express a personal interest as I mentioned to Walt, on hearing of Stephen Tucker's appointment, that I might have wanted to become the Editor. Walt replied that I should have asked! I was that close to becoming Pabular editor. Walt has always been a literate man and this he put to good use in his short reign as Editor. His editorials and some of his articles still bear re-reading. I have always in particular liked his creation of the "magically sophisticated layperson" (Iconoclasms No. 3 — Volume 5, Number 9, Page 736).

By the time Walt had handed over to Stephen Tucker the magazine was on its last legs: it still managed to keep going for a further 10 "British" issues but the magazine had lost direction and, more importantly, its heart. Contributions were clearly less forthcoming as demonstrated by the inclusion of tricks and letters that were found in the back files of Walt Lees and Fred Robinson (ones that had perhaps originally been "passed over" for publication).

It was in New York that the final two issues of Volume 8 were published, still under the editorship of Stephen Tucker — these came out in 1989 and 1990.

Many purchasers of this index may be slightly surprised at hearing of the existence of these final two issues. Certainly paid-up subscribers to the magazine (of which I was one) never received copies of them — I managed to track down my copies with the kind assistance of Keith Bennett. I have included them in my index for the sake of completeness but as they are of a slightly smaller size and of a different texture to the other Pabulars, they cannot really be considered to be part of the true Pabular.

Taking it even more up to date, in 1992 there was published Volume 9 Number 1 — an issue devoted to George Schindler, written by him and with illustrations by Delvin. The logo and format of the magazine remains the same. However without the drawings of Eric Mason, the Pat Page column and a British editor, it is Pabular only in name: in any event my index makes no reference to Volume 9.

I would like to finish by thanking Shiv Duggal who painstakingly checked my index correcting errors and omissions. Any remaining mistakes are, of course, entirely mine. I would be grateful if any reader would point them out to me.

Ian Keable, September 1997

THE PABULAR INDEX

by Ian Keable

© Copyright Ian Keable and Opus Magazine, September 1977

EXPLANATION OF PABULAR INDEX

The Pabular index has been divided into two main sections, which can be categorised as Trick and Non-Trick indexes.

TRICK

All Tricks are under two indexes:

- 1 Name Index: The contributors are listed alphabetically starting with Alker, Doug and finishing with Zavis, William. The title of each trick is stated and then the category (see below) in which it has been placed. Within each name, the tricks are listed in order of sequence of Pabular. Where there is more than one contributor to a trick, both have been listed. In all my references, I have just referred to the Volume (which is strictly the Volume and Number) and Page and not the date. The first Pabular was dated September 1974 and kept going in monthly succession until the end of Volume 4 (August 1978). For the first issue of Volume 5, the date jumped to January 1979 to catch up on the backlog. By the end of Volume 6 (December 1980) the magazine was once again appearing long after its cover date. From the start of Volume 7, dates were abandoned on the cover of the magazine.
- 2 Category Index: The category listing is a subjective one drawn up by the compiler. It goes from Alarm Clock through, rather neatly, to Watch. Sub-categories have been provided for Card Sleights (abbreviated to CS), Card Tricks (CT), Coins and Mentalism (M). For some tricks, where it was considered necessary (with the exception of card effects see the next paragraph), the trick is listed under more than one category. Within the category index a very brief description of the trick has been given to provide a feel for the effect described. Each has been cross referenced to the name of whoever contributed the trick.

By far the greatest problem lay in the categorisation of card tricks. I hope my sub-categories, although somewhat arbitrary and subjective, do make broad sense. For many card tricks there was inevitably an overlap between one effect and another (for instance an Oil and Water trick can also be a Packet trick). What I have tried to do is list the trick under the principal effect.

NON-TRICK

This index covers all non-trick items in Pabular.

1. General Articles: These have been listed alphabetically by the author of the article. The title of the article and a brief description of what it contains has been included.

- 2. Book And Lecture Note Reviews: These have been listed- alphabetically by the author of the book or lecture note. No reference has been made to the name of the reviewer, because in the majority of the cases he was not mentioned. It can be taken that normally the issue's editor was the reviewer.
- 3. Lecture And Convention Reviews: These took place from time to time sometimes within the Editorials or Oasis and Focus columns. These have been listed alphabetically by the reviewer, together with what event it relates to.
- 4. Focus and Oasis: These were effectively Fred Robinson's editorials. For this index the broad subject headings have been stated.
- 5. Editorials WaltLess/Stephen Tucker: Again the broad subject headings have been listed.
- 6. Happenings O'Bie O'Brien: This was a short lived, irregular column written from America.
- 7. Prints From Bob Read Collection: These are copies of 12 prints, in two series, belonging to Bob Read. For those who love spotting these things two of the prints are the same!
- 8. The Page Boy Speaks Patrick Page: This was the only regular column throughout the life of Pabular lasting, with one exception, from Volume 1 No. 1 through to Volume 8 No. 10.

THE PABULAR CONTENTS

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Galloway, Andy	Pegasus Coin	Trick - Coin: Across	1	1	1
Robinson, Fred	On 38th IBM	Focus article	1	1	3
Walton, Roy	The Witch Doctors	Trick - CT: Vanishing	1	1	3
Faro, Tony	Spectator Magician	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	1	1	5
Read, Bob	Bob's Business	Trick - Handkerchief	1	1	5
Kane, Peter	Slow Motion Ring Release	Trick - Ring, Finger	1	1	6
Mason, Eric	Striker	Trick - Match, Wooden	1	1	7
Robinson, Fred	Perfect Faro Shuffle	Trick - CS: False Shuffle	1	1	8
Richardson, Barrie	678	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction, Wallet	1	1	10
Robinson, Fred	Mike Skinner; Close-Up in magazines	Focus article	1	1	11
Page, Patrick	Close-up magicians in the US	The Page Boy Speaks article	1	1	11
Marlo, Ed	Dribble Coincidence	Trick - CT: Matching	1	2	13
Page, Patrick	Johnny Paul	The Page Boy Speaks article	1	2	16
Robinson, Fred	Icebreaker	Trick - Cigarette	1	2	16
Danson, Ted	Give Me A Ring	Trick - Envelope, M: Just Chance, Ring, Finger	1	2	17
Carlisle, Stanton	Colour Psychology	Trick - Envelope, M: Just Chance	1	2	18
Read, Bob	Biting The Glass	Trick - Coin: Gag And Betcha, Glass	1	2	19
Read, Bob	Business For Card In Wallet	Trick - CT: Wallet, Bank Note	1	3	25
Magini	Improved Travelling Coin	Trick - Coin: Across, Glass	1	3	27
Elmsley, Alex	One At A Time Collectors	Trick - CT: Collectors	1	3	28
Marlo, Ed	Dribble Concept Continued Splitting The Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	1	3	29
Setterington, Arthur	Disc-O	Trick - Bottle Top	1	3	30
Page, Patrick	Comment on Tony Shiels article; close-up for money	The Page Boy Speaks article	1	3	32
Robinson, Fred	Spectator Magician Plus	Trick - CT: Matching	1	3	33
Robinson, Fred	David Berglas' reward for Uri Geller type effect	Focus article	1	3	34
Read, Bob	Bob's Business	Trick - Coin: Gag And Betcha	1	4	37
Ostin, Bob	Vampire	Trick - M: Living And Dead	1	4	39
Walton, Roy	Obsolete Prediction	Trick - CT: Prediction	1	4	40
Zavis, William	Up Down And Around	Trick - CT: Ambitious	1	4	42
Monaghan, Frank	The Flea	Trick - Sight Gag	1	4	44
Page, Patrick	Tips for Domino trick	The Page Boy Speaks article	1	4	45
Lees, Walt	Cul-A-Separation	Trick - CT: Separation	1	4	46
Lewis, Trevor	Simplicity	Trick - CT: Prediction	1	4	47
Robinson, Fred	Book reviews; Cy Endfield at Magic Circle	Focus article	1	4	48
Page, Pat	10 Thoughts On Close-Up	Book and lecture note reviews	1	4	48
Read, Bob	Thanks To Pepys	Book and lecture note reviews	1	4	48
Shiels, Tony 'Doc'	Entertaining With ESP	Book and lecture note reviews	1	4	48
Anon	Focus	Trick - Cigarette	1	4	49
Anon	Focus	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	1	4	49
Anon	Focus	Trick - Drink Betcha, Puzzles	1	4	50
Brooke, Ken	Focus	Trick - Coin: Puzzle	1	4	50

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Faro, Tony	Focus	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	1	4	50
Anon	Focus	Trick - Drink Betcha	1	4	51
Read, Bob	Bob's Business	Trick - Coin: Gag And Betcha, Calculator	1	4	51
Berglas, David	Ad Infinitum	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	1	5	53
Page, Patrick	Performing at restaurant	The Page Boy Speaks article	1	5	55
Avis, Jack	A Spirit Detection	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	1	5	56
Hamilton, Bob	Bent Upon Deception	Trick - Key, M: Moving And Bending	1	5	58
Haxton, Francis	Paired Choice	Trick - CT: Matching	1	5	60
Bertram, Ross	Coins Thru Table	Trick - Coin: Through	1	5	62
Robinson, Fred	Fred Kaps Lecture	Focus article	1	5	63
Kane, Peter	Focus	Trick - Bank Note	1	5	63
Dawson, Trevor	Goldfinger	Trick - Pencil, Ring, Finger	1	6	65
Dribeck, Bob	On Witch Doctors	Trick - CT: Vanishing	1	6	66
Page, Patrick	Indian street entertainer	The Page Boy Speaks article	1	6	67
Ray, Geoff	Double Exchange	Trick - Coin: Across	1	6	68
Lewis, Trevor	A Las	Trick - CT: Packet	1	6	69
Lees, Walt	My Blue Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	1	6	70
Read, Bob	Impromptu Sight Bits Business	Trick - Sight Gag	1	6	72
Zavis, William	Kings Over Queens	Trick - CT: Ambitious	1	6	73
Dribeck, Bob	Slow Motion Ring Release	Trick - Ring, Finger	1	6	75
Fechter, Eddie	Magician Nitely	Book and lecture note reviews	1	6	75
Robinson, Fred	Book Review of Magician Nitely	Focus article	1	6	75
May, Leslie	Focus	Trick - M: Book And Newspaper	1	6	75
Ostin, Bob	Focus	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	1	6	75
Blake, George	Focus	Trick - M: Living And Dead, Coin: Puzzle	1	6	76
Cassidy, Mike	Flight Four	Trick - Coin: Across, Glass	1	7	77
Walton, Roy	Tearaway	Trick - CT: Tom	1	7	78
Zavis, William	Kings Over Queens II	Trick - CT: Ambitious	1	7	80
Read, Bob	Business For Roll Of Notes	Trick - Bank Note	1	7	81
Page, Patrick	On being a magician	The Page Boy Speaks article	1	7	84
Sanderson, George P	Colour Psychology	Trick - Envelope, M: Just Chance	1	7	85
Antonioli, Dr Brum	Focus	Trick - Calculator	1	7	87
Byrne, Bob	Focus	Trick - M: Living And Dead	1	7	87
Robinson, Fred	Kaps Coin In Bottle; Indian Street entertainers	Focus article	1	7	87
Ostin, Bob	Focus	Trick - M: Living And Dead	1	7	87
Flip (See also Hallema)	Bewildering Cards	Trick - CT: Packet	1	8	89
Read, Bob	Box Clever	Trick - CT: Other	1	8	91
Robinson, Fred	Ambitious Riser	Trick - CT: Rising Card	1	8	92
Scudiery, Mark	Faro Felon	Trick - CT: Sandwich	1	8	94
Setterington, Arthur	Chop Coin	Trick - Bank Note, Coin: Vanish	1	8	94
Hamilton, Bob	Extra	Trick - CT: Four Ace	1	8	95
Page, Patrick	On Johnny Hart and Jerry Bergman; De Bieve & Co (1)	The Page Boy Speaks article	1	8	96

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Walton, Roy	Carousel	Trick - CT: Transposition	1	8	97
Zavis, William	Gone Sandwich	Trick - CT: Sandwich	1	8	98
Ascanio	Book Of Knives	Book and lecture note reviews	1	8	99
Robinson, Fred	Coin spinning; Book Review; Uri Geller, On the radio	Focus article	1	8	99
Fox, Kevin	We'll Ring You	Trick - Coin And Card, Dice	1	9	101
Walton, Roy	Earthbound	Trick - CT: Separation	1	9	103
Page, Patrick	For My Next Trick: Daniels & Seabrooke; Kahn & Kahn (2)	The Page Boy Speaks article	1	9	104
Colgan, Des	Diary Dice-Card	Trick - CT: Prediction, Dice	1	9	105
Robinson, Fred	Edge Spinners	Trick - Coin: Flourish	1	9	106
Robinson, Fred	Smash And Grab	Trick - Match, Box	1	9	106
Austin, Michael	My Blue Aces Again	Trick - CT: Four Ace	1	9	108
Baxter, Ian	Supertransportation	Trick - CT: Transposition	1	9	109
Ostin, Bob	Fan Hide Move	Trick - CS: Control	1	9	110
Ostin, Bob	Tickets Please	Trick - Ticket	1	9	110
Robinson, Fred	24th SAMS; Gaming Board	Focus article	1	9	111
Robinson, Fred	Focus	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	1	9	111
Wright, David A	Elmsley Out Sexed	Trick - CT: Packet	1	10	113
Govan, Barry	The Bending Key	Trick - Key, M: Moving And Bending	1	10	115
Lewis, Trevor	High Jacked	Trick - CT: Packet	1	10	116
Page, Patrick	Daniels & Kaps on Nixon; Terri Rogers & Cassidy on close-up; mentalist story; Sydney Lee (3)	The Page Boy Speaks article	1	10	117
Mason, Eric	Arise Comrades	Trick - CT: Rising Card	1	10	118
Hamilton, Bob	Soft Spot	Trick - Coin: Through, Glass	1	10	120
Read, Bob	Bob's Business - Noes Galore	Trick - Sight Gag	1	10	122
Fox, Kevin	Focus	Trick - Coin And Card, Dice	1	10	123
Robinson, Fred	Alex Elmsley lecture; Books out on Ross & Carlyle	Focus article	1	10	123
Scudiery, Mark	Focus	Trick - CT: Sandwich	1	10	123
Biro, Pete	Glittering	Trick - Ring, Finger	I	11	125
Richardson, Barrie	Impromptu Mental Divination	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	1	11	128
Page, Patrick	Magicians use of -i; AI Flosso; Circus tricks (4)	The Page Boy Speaks article	1	11	130
Robinson, Fred	Blind Date	Trick - Coin: Prediction	1	11	131
Ray, Geoff	Lap Flick	Trick - CS: Palming	1	11	132
Lees, Walt	Crocodile Tears	Trick - CT: Other	1	11	133
Wye, Phil	Obsolete Encore	Trick - CT: Prediction	1	11	134
Robinson, Fred	London magic pubs; Fred Kaps	Focus article	1	11	135
Stammers, Peter	Colour Changing Knives Without A Paddle	Trick - Match, Box, Paddle	1	12	137
Weston, Mark	The Calculator Business	Trick - Calculator	1	12	140
Page, Patrick	Watching magicians; For My Next Trick; Comedy Juggling Tricks (5)	The Page Boy Speaks article	1	12	142
Goodwin, Alf	Twin Beds	Trick - Paddle	1	12	143
Govan, Barry	Variation On A Circle	Trick - Coin And Card	1	12	144
Colgan, Des	Table Top Motorway	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	1	12	145
Robinson, Fred	Magic dealers; J Randi story; Lees in Hamleys; quote	Focus article	1	12	147

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Wright, David A	Seduca Deck	Trick - CT: Other	2	1	150
Geddes, Johnnie	The Knowing Nine	Trick - CT: Discoveries	2	1	151
Govan, Barry	Match Card	Trick - CT: Vanishing, Match, Book	2	1	152
Read, Bob	Business For The Four Coin Assembly	Trick - Coin And Card	2	1	152
Page, Patrick	IBM Convention; Harold Bronhaut "hype"	The Page Boy Speaks article	2	1	153
Eckl, Ed	Madness With The Ascanio Spread	Trick - CT: Packet	2	1	154
Eckl, Ed	Alice Blue Gown	Trick - CT: Packet	2	1	155
Eckl, Ed	Xmas Calculator	Trick - CT: Packet	2	1	155
Robinson, Fred	Behavioural Bluff	Trick - CT: Prediction	2	1	156
Anon	Odd Optic	Trick - Finger	2	1	157
Duffie, Peter	A Fansee Blind Shuffle	Trick - CS: False Shuffle	2	1	158
Robinson, Fred	IBM Convention; Ostin's Vampire; Randi & Ben Martin	Focus article	2	1	159
Willmarth, Phil	The Magic Of Matt Schulien	Book and lecture note reviews	2	1	159
Avis, Jack	The Wishing Envelope	Trick - CT: Transposition, Envelope	2	2	161
Avis, Jack	The Jokers Wild	Trick - CT: Torn	2	2	163
Avis, Jack	Transposed Marlo Reverse	Trick - CT: Reversal	2	2	163
Bennett, Keith	Overhand False Shuffle	Trick - CS: False Shuffle	2	2	164
Page, Patrick	Kids shows; Albert Le Bas anecdote; Page's play; Randi	The Page Boy Speaks article	2	2	165
Wye, Phil	Blank Faces	Trick - CT: Packet	2	2	166
Read, Bob	Business For Knife Through Coat	Trick - Pickpocketing, Sight Gag, Wallet, Watch	2	2	167
Stammers, Peter	Impromptu Coin Dropper	Trick - Coin: Gimmick	2	2	167
Robinson, Fred	The Ascanio Spread	Trick - CS: False Count	2	2	168
Walton, Roy	Past Help	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	2	2	170
Robinson, Fred	IBM Southport Convention	Focus article	2	2	171
Lees, Walt	Perpetual Elevator Routine	Trick - CT: Ambitious	2	3	174
Lees, Walt	The First Elevator	Trick - CT: Ambitious	2	3	174
Lees, Walt	The Cold Elevator	Trick - CT: Ambitious	2	3	175
Lees, Walt	Triumph Plus	Trick - CT: Triumph	2	3	176
Lees, Walt	The Small Packet All Backs	Trick - CT: Packet	2	3	177
Lees, Walt	Coinjuring	Trick - Coin: Change	2	3	179
Lees, Walt	Finale	Trick - CT: Ambitious	2	3	179
Lees, Walt	The Winning Hand	Trick - Sight Gag	2	3	183
Page, Patrick	Walt Lees	The Page Boy Speaks article	2	3	183
Corinda, Tony	The Powers Of Darkness	Trick - Ring, Other	2	4	185
Etherington, Graham	Match Card 2	Trick - CT: Matching, Match, Book	2	4	189
Govan, Barry	Match Card - 2	Trick - CT: Matching, Match, Book	2	4	189
Robinson, Fred	Circulating Coins	Trick - Coin: Flourish	2	4	190
Anon	Festive Fun	Trick - Match, Box, Puzzles	2	4	192
Elmsley, Alex	Festive Fun	Trick - Coin: Puzzle	2	4	192
Anon	Festive Fun	Trick - CT: Prediction, Drink Betchas	2	4	193
Faro, Tony	Festive Fun	Trick - Coin: Puzzle, Match, Wooden	2	4	193
Bragoli, John	Collected Thoughts	Trick - CT: Prediction, M: Book And Newspaper	2	4	194
Jennings, Larry	Festive Fun	Trick - Bottle	2	4	194
Schuman, Ed	Festive Fun	Trick - Puzzle	2	4	194

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Colgan, Des	Miracle Matchstick Missile	Trick - CT: Discoveries, Match, Wooden	2	4	195
Read, Bob	Business For Knife Sharpening	Trick - Sight Gag	2	4	195
Page, Patrick	Mark Wilson; Brian Buzzing; Showboat restaurant	The Page Boy Speaks article	2	4	196
Hamilton, Bob	Think-Arise	Trick - CT: Rising Card, Handkerchief	2	4	197
Robinson, Fred	Visitors; Prince Charles at the Magic Circle; friends bad quotes	Focus article	2	4	199
Horwitz, Basil	Clairvoyant Chicanery	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	2	5	201
Dexter, Will	Cashmatch	Trick - Coin: Prediction	2	5	202
Dexter, Will	Inflation Sensation	Trick - Coin: Change	2	5	203
Page, Patrick	Working at Davenports; John Shirley; Schulian card pose	The Page Boy Speaks article	2	5	204
Lewis, Trevor	Double Riffle Control	Trick - CS: Control	2	5	205
Lewis, Trevor	Middle Diddle	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	2	5	205
Lewis, Trevor	Palm Conscious	Trick - CT. Gambling Theme	2	5	205
Lewis, Trevor	Transpo Plus	Trick - Coin: Change	2	5	205
Lewis, Trevor	Zarrow Shuffle	Trick - CS: False Shuffle	2	5	205
Lewis, Trevor	Its In The Bag	Trick - CT: Discoveries	2	5	206
Lewis, Trevor	Ladies In Waiting	Trick - CT: Triumph	2	5	206
Robinson, Fred	More For Less	Trick - CS: False Count, CT: Packet	2	5	206
May, Leslie	Spotting The Spot	Trick - CT: Discoveries, Paddle	2	5	208
Duffie, Peter	Aces With A Twist	Trick - CT: Reversal	2	5	209
Robinson, Fred	Lees, Kaps, Lorayne; South African magic; International Day	Focus article	2	5	210
Walton, Roy	The Card Shark	Trick - CT: Tom	2	6	213
Weston, Mark	Multidie Box	Trick - Dice	2	6	215
Hudson, Charles M	On Faro Felon	Trick - CS: False Shuffle, CT: Sandwich	2	6	217
Robinson, Fred	Don Alan lectures	Lecture and convention review	2	6	218
Carré, David	Face Up	Trick - CT: Reversal	2	6	219
Page, Patrick	Don Alan; lecturing in US; glass under cup problem	The Page Boy Speaks article	2	6	221
Bragoli, John	Ace In The Hole	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	2	6	222
Bragoli, John	Mental Jigsaw	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	2	6	222
Robinson, Fred	Carlyle book review; Bob Read on New Faces	Focus article	2	6	223
Galloway, Andy & Ramsay, John	Ramsay On The Thumb Tip	Trick - Thumb Tip	2	7	229
Galloway, Andy	Coin And Jam Jar Routine	Trick - Coin: Through, Glass	2	7	230
Galloway, Andy	Coin Vanish In The Air	Trick - Coin: Vanish	2	7	230
Ramsay, John	Coin And Jam Jar Routine	Trick - Coin: Through, Glass	2	7	230
Ramsay, John	Coin Vanish In The Air	Trick - Coin: Vanish	2	7	230
Galloway, Andy	The Cig Trick	Trick - Cigarette, Ticket	2	7	232
Lees, Walt	Dice-O-Metrics	Trick - Dice	2	7	232
Ramsay, John	The Cig Trick	Trick - Cigarette, Ticket	2	7	232
Ostin, Bob	Off The Handle	Trick - Cup	2	7	234
Macfadyean, Alex	Switchback	Trick - Coin: Change	2	7	235
Page, Patrick	John Ramsay	The Page Boy Speaks article	2	7	239
Setterington, Arthur	Headline Hit	Trick - M: Book And Newspaper	2	8	241

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Robinson, Fred	Up The Sleeve	Trick - CS: Palming, CT: Gambling Theme	2	8	243
Marlo, Ed	Spectator Cuts To 4 Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	2	8	244
Herron, Carl	Marksman Extraordinary	Trick - CT: Discoveries	2	8	245
Bema, Jos (Also see Wonder)	Table Workers Table	Trick - Table	2	8	246
Page, Pat	The Big Book Of Magic	Book and lecture note reviews	2	8	247
Page, Patrick	Trip to US - performing, lecturing & meeting	The Page Boy Speaks article	2	8	248
Alker, Doug	The Useless Pack	Trick - CT: Coloured Backs	2	8	249
Robinson, Fred	Blackpool Convention; US & UK magicians in pub	Focus article	2	8	251
Walton, Roy	Correction to Card Shark	Trick - CT: Tom	2	8	252
Duffie, Peter & Walton, Roy	Play It Again Sam	Trick - CT: Matching	2	9	253
Colombini, Carlos & Fabian	Transpo Ink	Trick - CT: Oil And Water	2	9	255
Haines, Bob	Four Gone Conclusion	Trick - CT: Transposition	2	9	256
Page, Patrick	Trip to US continued; on US magicians	The Page Boy Speaks article	2	9	257
Lewis, Trevor	Card Shark Too	Trick - CT: Torn	2	9	258
Robinson, Fred	Dropit	Trick - Coin: Sleight	2	9	258
Richardson, Barrie	Thoughts In Transit	Trick - Envelope, M: Cards And ESP	2	9	260
Britland, David	David Britland Writes	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	2	9	261
Riding, Joe	Mission Accomplished	Trick - CT: Separation	2	9	262
Robinson, Fred	Vernon lecture notes; Bob Read at Savoy; Doug Alker	Focus article	2	9	263
Vernon, Dai	The First California Lecture	Book and lecture note reviews	2	9	263
Richardson, Barrie	From A Mentalist's Notebook	Trick - M: Other	2	10	265
Duffie, Peter	The Go-Between	Trick - CT: Sandwich	2	10	268
Page, Patrick	Howie Schwartzman; lecturing in Italy	The Page Boy Speaks article	2	10	269
Weston, Mark	Supreme Glimpse	Trick - CS: Flourish	2	10	270
Bema, Jos (Also see Wonder)	The Pip Eating Spider	Trick - CT: Other	2	10	272
Weston, Mark	Continuous Ball Pen Production	Trick - Pen	2	10	273
Robinson, Fred	Exposure & Dealers; Jennings vs Marlo; publicity	Focus article	2	10	275
Mason, Eric	Eca Tuoba Ecaf	Trick - CT: Coloured Backs	2	11	277
Crombie, Jock	A Gag From Crombo	Trick - Match, Box	2	11	280
Carré, David	With An Okito Box	Trick - Coin: Through	2	11	281
Jennings, Larry	Stabbed Coincidence	Book and lecture note reviews	2	11	283
Stephens, Bob	Psychic Exposure	Trick - CT: Discoveries	2	11	284
Page, Patrick	Show in Italy with Slydini, Sitta and Shimada	The Page Boy Speaks article	2	11	285
Weston, Mark	The Spinners	Trick - CS: Flourish	2	11	286
Elias, Neil	At The Table	Book and lecture note reviews	2	11	287
Robinson, Fred	Robert Harbin	Focus article	2	11	287
Duffie, Peter	Card In Case Transposition	Trick - CT: Transposition	2	12	289
Duffie, Peter	Positive Card Fold	Trick - CS: Palming	2	12	290
Minch, Stephen	Ever So Sleightly - The Professional Card Technique of Martin A Nash	Book and lecture note reviews	2	12	291
Dribeck, Bob	Aenigma Variations	Trick - CT: Oil And Water	2	12	292

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Dribeck, Bob	Play It Again Sam	Trick - CT: Matching	2	12	293
Alker, Doug	Double Monte	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	2	12	294
Goodwin, Alf	The Legpull	Trick - Pulls	2	12	296
Page, Patrick	US with collector Charlie Kalish; car stolen	The Page Boy Speaks article	2	12	297
Baxter, Ian	My Cup Flippeth Over	Trick - Cup	2	12	298
Conway, Pat	Gag From Pat Conway	Trick - Thread	2	12	298
Robinson, Fred	Close-Up competitions; Marv Long & Bob Haines	Focus article	2	12	299
Walton, Roy	Inflated Ace	Trick - CT: Ambitious	3	1	303
Walton, Roy	A Martian Plot	Trick - CT: Sandwich	3	1	304
Walton, Roy	Your Very Own	Trick - CT: Separation	3	1	306
Walton, Roy	Chiefly Yours	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	3	1	307
Page, Patrick	FISM in Vienna; Hans Wittus street act; pickpocketing	The Page Boy Speaks article	3	1	308
Walton, Roy	Denary Deceit	Trick - CT: Separation	3	1	309
Walton, Roy	Ambitious Move	Trick - CS: Flourish	3	1	310
Walton, Roy	Truth And Consequence	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	3	1	311
Mason, Eric	Moniker	Trick - Glass	3	2	313
Robinson, Fred	Pabular Convention	Lecture and convention review	3	2	315
Britland, David	Through The 4th Dimension	Trick - CT: Triumph	3	2	316
Chinn, Bill	Bill Chinn Writes	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	3	2	317
Robinson, Fred	Kniphofia	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	3	2	318
Lees, Walt	Assignation	Trick - M: Mental Matching, Key	3	2	320
Robinson, Fred	IBM British Ring 1976	Lecture and convention review	3	2	321
Bilis, Bernard	Close-Up, French Style	Book and lecture note reviews	3	2	322
Page, Patrick	Expelled from IBM for exposure	The Page Boy Speaks article	3	2	323
Jennings, Larry	Coins And Handkerchief	Trick - Coin: Through, Handkerchief	3	3	325
Kuske, Steven	Double-X-Posure	Trick - CT: Transposition	3	3	328
Ray, Geoff	Close-Up Quickly	Trick - Coin: Change	3	3	329
Robinson, Fred	Parkinson TV show; Jay lecture, 10 years for Magic Studio	Focus article	3	3	330
Robinson, Fred	Double Lift Drop Switch	Trick - CS: Double Lift	3	3	332
Lewis, Trevor	LIAR	Trick - CS: Palming	3	3	333
Page, Patrick	His card problems; Bugs Bunny quote; Jubilee year	The Page Boy Speaks article	3	3	334
Goldstein, Phil	Your Choice	Trick - M: Other	3	3	335
Walton, Roy	Baker Street Re-visited	Trick - Calculator	3	4	338
Day, Arthur	Holidaze	Trick - Puzzle	3	4	339
Goldstein, Phil	Counter Revolution	Trick - CT: Separation	3	4	340
Bragoli, John	Versadeal	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	3	4	341
Heins, Jan	Firewater	Trick - Glass	3	4	343
Lauchli, Carl	Firewater	Trick - Glass	3	4	343
Shields, Frank	Lecture Notes	Book and lecture note reviews	3	4	343
Swinford, Paul	Lecture Notes	Book and lecture note reviews	3	4	343
Duffie, Peter	Twin Key-Boards	Trick - CT: Matching	3	4	344
Walton, Roy	Trigger	Book and lecture note reviews	3	4	344
Page, Patrick	IBM expulsion; Gaeton Bloom; Dominique; Ricky Jay	The Page Boy Speaks article	3	4	345

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Alker, Doug	Turncoat	Trick - CT: Four Ace	3	4	346
Gill, Robert	Magic As A Performing Art	Book and lecture note reviews	3	4	347
Robinson, Fred	Scott York Lecture	Lecture and convention review	3	4	347
Robinson, Fred	Kaps & Jay on TV; Gaeton Bloom; Tamariz; Marlo replies	Focus article	3	5	350
Alker, Doug	Three Card Buckle	Trick - CS: False Count	3	5	351
Endfield, Cy	A Cy Endfield Location	Trick - CT: Discoveries	3	5	351
Alker, Doug	Three Cards Across Extra	Trick - CT: Transposition	3	5	352
Bennett, Keith	Son Of Twisting The Aces	Trick - CT: Reversal	3	5	353
Bonville, Frank	The Little Secrets	Book and lecture note reviews	3	5	354
Hardison	Poker	Book and lecture note reviews	3	5	354
Koschitz	Manual Of Useful Information	Book and lecture note reviews	3	5	354
Page, Pat	The Page Boy Speaks	Trick - Coin: Sleight	3	5	355
Page, Patrick	Magic on TV; duplicates & copyists; a coin vanish	The Page Boy Speaks article	3	5	355
Bloom, Gaeton	OCCAMITIS	Trick - CT: Discoveries	3	5	356
Heins, Jan	Teragram	Trick - CT: Discoveries	3	5	358
Carré, David	Torn & Restored Bank Note	Trick - Bank Note	3	6	361
Carré, David	Coin Congregation	Trick - Coin And Card	3	6	363
Carré, David	Just Dice	Trick - Dice	3	6	365
Carré, David	The Card Expert	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	3	6	366
Carré, David	Impromptu Cup And Ball	Trick - Cup	3	6	370
Robinson, Fred	David Carre; Lewis Ganson; Ramsay Reunion	Focus article	3	6	371
Bruce, Gordon	Take Three	Trick - Coin: Sleight	3	7/8	373
Gilliland, John	Take Three	Trick - Coin: Sleight	3	7/8	373
Page, Pat	Take Three	Trick - Coin: Sleight	3	7/8	373
Weston, Mark	Move To Show Both Sides Of A Card Blank	Trick - CS: Flourish	3	7/8	375
Bennett, Keith	Second Variation On Twisting The Aces Revisited	Trick - CT: Reversal	3	7/8	376
Weston, Mark	Move To Show Both Sides Of A Card Blank	Trick - CT: Prediction	3	7/8	376
Hallema, Flip (See also Flip)	Transfo Transpo	Trick - CT: Packet	3	7/8	377
Weston, Mark	Club Night Twins	Trick - CT: Ambitious	3	7/8	378
Goldstein, Phil	Card Tricks For People Who Don't Do Card Tricks	Book and lecture note reviews	3	7/8	380
Goldstein, Phil	Classic Tacklers	Book and lecture note reviews	3	7/8	380
Goldstein, Phil	The Blue Book Of Mentalism	Book and lecture note reviews	3	7/8	380
Bossi, Van	Hole-Due-Chination	Trick - Coin: Through	3	7/8	381
Brahams, Anthony	Hole-Due-Chination	Trick - Coin: Through	3	7/8	381
Setterington, Arthur	Animal Magic	Trick - Handkerchief, Kettle	3	7/8	382
Robinson, Fred	Double Denial	Trick - CT: Discoveries	3	7/8	387
Baker, Roy	Yecrik	Trick - Ring, Other	3	7/8	388
Alker, Doug	One In Four	Trick - CT: Coloured Backs	3	7/8	390
Carré, David	Rosini Thimbles	Trick - Thimble	3	7/8	391
Walton, Roy	A Straight Shuffle	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	3	7/8	392
Page, Patrick	Being left out; Binarelli's wild card; Ramsay Reunion	The Page Boy Speaks article	3	7/8	394
Bloom, Gaeton	Prestidigitational Prediction	Trick - M: Book And Newspaper	3	9	397
Richardson, Barrie	Pseudo-Psychometry In A Paper Bag	Trick - M: Mental Matching	3	9	400

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Robinson, Fred	Pinto's photos; Ramsay Reunion; TV; skill against magic	Oasis article	3	9	402
Anon	The Secret Tricks Of Bending Metal Objects With Just Your Mind	Book and lecture note reviews	3	9	403
Hoffmann, Professor	Baccarat Fair & Foul	Book and lecture note reviews	3	9	403
Jennings, Larry	On Card & Coin Handling	Book and lecture note reviews	3	9	403
Hoffmann, Professor	How To Control Fair Dice	Book and lecture note reviews	3	9	404
Weston, Mark	Fancy	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	3	9	404
Glenan, Al	Over The Top	Trick - Ring, Other, Rope	3	9	405
Wye, Phil	Half & Half	Trick - M: Mental Matching	3	9	406
Allen, Vic	Helping Hand	Trick - Coin: Gag And Betcha	3	9	407
Setterington, Arthur	Diception	Trick - Dice	3	9	408
Page, Patrick	Spain lecturing; Kaps, Macmillan & Tamariz; Jack Hughes	The Page Boy Speaks article	3	9	410
Richardson, Barrie	Lock And Key Mystery	Trick - Key, M: Mental Matching	3	10	413
Carré, David	Just Changes	Trick - CT: Packet	3	10	416
Walton, Roy	USA Trail	Trick - CT: Four Ace	3	10	418
Goldstein, Phil	Taking The Plunge	Trick - CT: Rising Card	3	10	419
Sagan, Dorion	Taking The Plunge	Trick - CT: Rising Card	3	10	419
Farmer, Bob	Hamman Count	Trick - CS: False Count	3	10	420
Waters, Ray	Moniker Modified	Trick - Glass	3	10	423
Robinson, Fred	Close-Up at & Spanish conventions; Grismer, Scots	Oasis article	3	10	424
Busby, Jeff	Back To Back	Book and lecture note reviews	3	10	425
Read, Bob	Transpo Tumbler	Book and lecture note reviews	3	10	425
Page, Patrick	Holiday; Camilo & Cachadina; 150 Comedy Props; Vernon	The Page Boy Speaks article	3	10	426
Waters, Ray	The Secret Of Shhhh	Trick - CT: Discoveries, Bottle	3	11	429
Robinson, Fred	Pabular evening at the Magic Circle; Geoff Ray & Ramsay Reunion	Oasis article	3	11	431
Duffie, Peter	Cannibal Land	Trick - CT: Collectors	3	11	432
Weston, Mark	Splitz	Trick - CT: Matching	3	11	433
Goldstein, Phil	Mexican Geometry	Trick - M: Mental Matching	3	11	434
Carré, David	Hanky Panky	Trick - Coin: Change, Handkerchief	3	11	435
Hooper, Jim	Your Autograph Please	Trick - CT: Prediction	3	11	437
Alker, Doug	Oh No, Not Another Ace Trick	Trick - CT: Four Ace	3	11	438
Page, Patrick	TV Autometer, Booth using close-up; IBM & expulsion	The Page Boy Speaks article	3	11	442
Horwitz, Basil	The Third Eye	Trick - M: Mental Matching	3	12	445
Christensen, Jerry L	Pyramid Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	3	12	447
Davie, Kevin	Red-Back Surprise	Trick - CT: Separation	3	12	449
Robinson, Fred	Lorayne; Harrogate; Tamariz lecture; cards to pocket	Oasis article	3	12	451
Goldstein, Phil	Half Through	Trick - Coin: Through	3	12	452
Sagan, Dorion	Half Through	Trick - Coin: Through	3	12	452
Walton, Roy	Twice Two	Trick - CT: Prediction	3	12	454
Page, Patrick	Magical friends; David Roth, John Calvert, Jay Marshall	The Page Boy Speaks article	3	12	455
Mason, Eric	Cubism	Trick - CT: Discoveries	4	1	458
Mason, Eric	I Say Dots Impossible	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	4	1	458
Mason, Eric	On Reflection	Trick - M: Book And Newspaper	4	1	459

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Mason, Eric	Billet-Doux	Trick - Envelope, M: Cards And ESP	4	1	460
Mason, Eric	Caboodle	Trick - CS: False Count	4	1	461
Robinson, Fred	Mason; Caveney; John Ramsay book; Spanish Cartomagia	Oasis article	4	1	462
Mason, Eric	Brainwave	Trick - CT: Coloured Backs	4	1	463
Mason, Eric	Kineto	Trick - Ring, Finger	4	1	464
Mason, Eric	N.C.R.	Trick - Envelope, M: Number/Object Prediction, Wallet	4	1	465
Page, Patrick	On performing lectures; Eric Mason	The Page Boy Speaks article	4	1	468
Robinson, Fred	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette	4	2	472
Allen, Vic	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette	4	2	473
Jay, Ricky	Cards As Weapon	Book and lecture note reviews	4	2	473
Bema, Jos	Lecture Notes	Book and lecture note reviews	4	2	474
Takagi, Shigeo	Coin Assembly	Book and lecture note reviews	4	2	474
Takagi, Shigeo	One Cup Routine	Book and lecture note reviews	4	2	474
Bema, Jos (Also see Wonder)	Splitting The Money	Trick - Bank Note	4	2	475
Farmer, Bob	Jazz Pieces, Body & Soul - Pt I	Trick - CT: Transposition	4	2	476
Farmer, Bob	Jazz Pieces, Body & Soul - Pt II & III	Trick - CT: Oil And Water	4	2	477
Page, Patrick	France; Magic Man with John Wade; Ron's convention	The Page Boy Speaks article	4	2	480
Tamariz, Juan	The Oil And Water Of Tamariz	Trick - CT: Oil And Water	4	3	484
Robinson, Fred	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette	4	3	489
Craven, Tom	Pyramid Variation	Trick - CT: Four Ace	4	3	490
Heins, Jan	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette, Match, Wooden	4	3	490
Robinson, Fred	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette	4	3	490
Galloway, Andy	Ramsay Classics	Book and lecture note reviews	4	3	491
Galloway, Andy	One-Two-Three-Four Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	4	3	492
Page, Patrick	Fialho, Bro Hammon; Alain & Zena Noel; places to be bad	The Page Boy Speaks article	4	3	494
Richardson, Barrie	One In A Million	Trick - M: Book And Newspaper	4	4	498
Robinson, Fred	Barrie Richardson; mentalism & public belief	Oasis article	4	4	499
Richardson, Barrie	Memorable Memory Stunt	Trick - M: Memory	4	4	500
Richardson, Barrie	Coin In Bottle Mentalism & Molecules	Trick - Coin: Through, Bottle	4	4	501
Richardson, Barrie	Think Hot Think Cold	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	4	4	502
Richardson, Barrie	The Clean Second - Card Force Concept	Trick - CS: Forcing	4	4	503
Richardson, Barrie	The Magnetic Force	Trick - M: Moving And Bending, Pencil	4	4	504
Hird, Percy	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette	4	4	505
Richardson, Barrie	The Undisturbed Deck Prediction	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	4	4	505
Goldstein, Phil	Verbal Control	Book and lecture note reviews	4	4	506
Page, Patrick	Trendy magicians: Hart, Daniels, Marshall, Chanin; Abra	The Page Boy Speaks article	4	4	507
Walton, Roy	NOSFERATU	Trick - CT: Four Ace	4	5	510
Farmer, Bob	Cabungle	Trick - CS: False Count	4	5	511
Farmer, Bob	Jazz Pieces	Trick - CT: Transposition, CT: Oil And Water	4	5	512
Bema, Jos (Also see Wonder)	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Handkerchief	4	5	514

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Weston, Mark	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Pencil	4	5	514
Lovell, Simon	Jack Catch	Trick - CT: Sandwich	4	5	515
Chiswell, Richard	A Coin Effect	Trick - Coin: Vanish	4	5	517
Alker, Doug	Rainbow Triumph	Trick - CT: Coloured Backs	4	5	518
Robinson, Fred	Close-Up at Blackpool - conditions	Oasis article	4	5	520
Goldstein, Phil	Card In Mind	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	4	5	521
Goldstein, Phil	Scattershot	Book and lecture note reviews	4	5	521
Page, Patrick	Performing in pubs: change in entertainment	The Page Boy Speaks article	4	5	522
Kuske, Steven	OOTW	Trick - CT: Separation	4	6	526
Pargeter, Andrew	Simplified Spin Pass Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	4	6	527
Trixer, Hans E	RSVP	Trick - CT: Discoveries, Envelope	4	6	528
Various	Pentangle Review	Book and lecture note reviews	4	6	528
Merelle, Stanley	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette	4	6	530
Robinson, Fred	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette	4	6	530
Davie, Kevin	Red-Back Surprise Correction	Trick - CT: Separation	4	6	531
Robinson, Fred	Close-Up at conventions; TV magicians; magic tapes	Oasis article	4	6	531
Endfield, Cy	Tomorrows World	Trick - M: Other	4	6	532
Setterington, Arthur	Take Three Plus	Trick - Coin: Sleight	4	6	535
Page, Patrick	Pay off to pub story; Marshall; collecting photos; book	The Page Boy Speaks article	4	6	536
Goldstein, Phil	Simplified Follow The Leader	Trick - CT: Separation	4	7	540
Weston, Mark	Double Exposure	Trick - CT: Discoveries	4	7	541
Robinson, Fred	Pabular policy; failure of actors as magicians	Oasis article	4	7	542
Carré, David	One Potato, Two Potato	Trick - Cup	4	7	543
Bruce, Gordon	Bob Read Lecture	Lecture and convention review	4	7	546
Lewis, Trevor	Latest Gag	Trick - Sight Gag	4	7	547
Lovell, Simon	Riffle Two	Trick - M: Memory	4	7	547
Borra	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette	4	7	548
Page, Pat	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette	4	7	548
Page, Patrick	Mike Caldwell; sleight of hand & close- up; some tricks	The Page Boy Speaks article	4	7	550
Davie, Kevin	Copy Cat	Trick - CT: Matching	4	8	554
Allen, Vic	Eyes Down	Trick - CT: Discoveries	4	8	555
Page, Patrick	Hollywood & Mike Caldwell; Carl Beck & Ricky Dunn's act	The Page Boy Speaks article	4	8	556
Chiswell, Richard	Handywork	Trick - Coin: Change, Coin: Sleight, Match, Book	4	8	557
Goldstein, Phil	The Green Book Of Mentalism	Book and lecture note reviews	4	8	558
Goldstein, Phil	The Red Book Of Mentalism	Book and lecture note reviews	4	8	558
Davie, Kevin	Signachange	Trick - CT: Coloured Backs	4	8	559
Alker, Doug	Behaviour Bluff And Beyond	Trick - CT: Four Ace	4	8	560
Robinson, Fred	Richardson & misdirection; various magicians	Oasis article	4	8	561
McIntyre, Archie	Rip It Up	Trick - CT: Torn	4	8	562
Setterington, Arthur	Whodunnit	Trick - M: Living And Dead	4	9	568
Robinson, Fred	Thimble-O	Trick - Thimble	4	9	569
Robinson, Fred	Johnny Paul lecture; TV recordings; Fechter convention	Oasis article	4	9	570
Goldstein, Phil	Notions	Book and lecture note reviews	4	9	571

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Farmer, Bob	Twisting, Turning, Extending And Otherwise Molesting The Four Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	4	9	572
Mason, Eric	A Pound With A Bottle	Trick - Bank Note, Bottle, Coin: Through	4	9	574
Crush, Peter	Peter's Presto Pop-In	Trick - Bottle, Coin: Through	4	9	575
Robinson, Fred	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette, Handkerchief, Match, Box, Pipe	4	9	576
Allen, Vic	Tea Totaller	Trick - Sight Gag	4	9	577
Lovell, Simon	Handy Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	4	9	577
Page, Patrick	SAM; lecturing; American magicians - Roth, Fox etc	The Page Boy Speaks article	4	9	578
Setterington, Arthur	Tube Off	Trick - Elastic Band, Handkerchief	4	10	583
Robinson, Fred	Lecturing; Manchester magicians; Brahms in the US	Oasis article	4	10	584
Duvivier, Dominique	The Problem Is	Trick - CT: Packet	4	10	585
Mason, Eric	The Problem Is	Trick - CT: Packet	4	10	585
Anon	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Match, Box	4	10	588
Hamilton, Bob	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Glass	4	10	588
Anon	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Match, Box	4	10	589
Heins, Jan	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette	4	10	589
Martino	Roll Away	Trick - Coin: Vanish	4	10	589
Page, Patrick	In New York; Richiardi's act & others; 3 card tricks	The Page Boy Speaks article	4	10	590
Viswanathan, Anath	Coin Through Hand	Trick - Coin: Through	4	10	591
Goldstein, Phil	Alter-Ego	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	4	11	594
Goldstein, Phil	Cry Wolf	Trick - CT: Packet	4	11	595
Goldstein, Phil	Immediate Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	4	11	596
Goldstein, Phil	Back Gammon	Trick - CT: Packet	4	11	597
Goldstein, Phil	Negative Intruder	Trick - CT: Sandwich	4	11	597
Goldstein, Phil	A Transatlantic Lecture	Book and lecture note reviews	4	11	598
Robinson, Fred	Goldstein; Bloom's card problem; Ramsay book; Hastings	Oasis article	4	11	599
Rae, Oswald	Oasis	Trick - Watch	4	11	600
Manfred	Oasis	Trick - Puzzle	4	11	601
Robinson, Fred	Oasis	Trick - Alarm Clock	4	11	601
Page, Patrick	Vernon, Pc of Han Ping Chien; Geller, Dutch TV & Hank V	The Page Boy Speaks article	4	11	602
Breese, Martin	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Match, Box	4	11	603
Fox, Karrell	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Match, Paper	4	11	603
Robinson, Fred	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette, Match, Paper	4	11	603
Snooks, Fred	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Match, Wooden	4	11	603
Mason, Eric	Beau Ideal	Trick - CT: Packet	4	12	606
O'Brien, Obie	Introduction to column	Happenings	4	12	608
Boyce, Wally	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Match, Wooden	4	12	609
Heins, Jan	Piep-Piep - A Jan Heins Gag	Trick - Sight Gag	4	12	609
Robinson, Fred	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Kettle, Match, Wooden	4	12	609
Wentworth, Peter	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Match, Wooden	4	12	609
Robinson, Fred	Anemos restaurant; Vernon on sleights; lecture notes	Oasis article	4	12	610
Mendoza, John	The Book Of John	Book and lecture note reviews	4	12	611
Kosky, Gerald	Computer Discovery	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	4	12	612

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Dobson, Wayne	Coin Assembly	Trick - Coin And Card	4	12	613
Goldstein, Phil	Snap Turn Count	Trick - CS: False Count	4	12	614
Lovell, Simon	Atomic ESP	Trick - CT: Vanishing	4	12	614
Davie, Kevin	Ace-Stounding	Trick - CT: Four Ace	4	12	616
Page, Patrick	New Year, dishonest magicians; Doug Henning, Kaps, Jay	The Page Boy Speaks article	4	12	617
Lees, Walt	Stranger Than Fiction	Trick - CT: Tom	5	1	623
Lees, Walt	New Finish To Larry Jennings' Coins Through Handkerchief	Trick - Coin: Through, Handkerchief	5	1	624
Lees, Walt	Clean Collectors	Trick - CT: Collectors	5	1	626
Robinson, Fred	Lees; Vernon; Dingle's pass; Spoonees Coins Here's Hoo	Oasis article	5	1	628
Lees, Walt	Four Card Surprise	Trick - CT: Discoveries	5	1	629
Page, Patrick	Card convention; stage card tricks & acts; the Greats	The Page Boy Speaks article	5	1	631
Wonder, Tommy (See also Bema)	Coins Across - A Presentation	Trick - Coin: Across	5	2	634
O'Brien, Obie	NYCAN convention; Magic Castle; Mullica's Tom Foolery	Happenings	5	2	636
Lees, Walt	In Jokes	Trick - Sight Gag	5	2	637
Avis, Jack	Siva Count	Trick - CS: False Count	5	2	638
Robinson, Fred	TV magicians; Barnes winning Circle; false counts	Oasis article	5	2	638
Castillon, Gene	Spirit Count	Trick - CS: False Count	5	2	639
Forton, Piet	Triple Flip	Trick - CS: Flourish	5	2	639
Victor, Edward	Eye Count	Trick - CS: False Count	5	2	639
Boyce, Wally	The Piscatorial Peg	Trick - CT: Discoveries	5	2	640
Sargent, Dennis	Rip It Up With Unprepared Deck	Trick - CT: Torn	5	2	641
Glover, Brian	Transpo Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	5	2	642
Page, Patrick	Jay Marshall; Encyclopaedia of Impromptu Magic; tapes	The Page Boy Speaks article	5	2	644
Weston, Mark	Under My Foot	Trick - CT: Discoveries	5	3	649
Hamilton, Bob	OUCH	Trick - CT: Reversal	5	3	650
Braue, Fred	Fred Braue On False Deals	Book and lecture note reviews	5	3	651
Robinson, Fred	Presentation articles; Fred Kaps; what magicians want	Oasis article	5	3	652
Wonder, Tommy (See also Bema)	Coins Across - A Presentation	Trick - Coin: Across	5	3	652
Goldstein, Phil	Territory	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	5	3	654
Davie, Kevin	Stud	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	5	3	655
Setterington, Arthur	Thanks For The Memory	Trick - M: Memory	5	3	655
Page, Patrick	Bob Olson; FISM; making it big; Page's first act	The Page Boy Speaks article	5	3	657
Wonder, Tommy (See also Bema)	One In The Eye	Trick - Coin: Through	5	4	660
Horwitz, Basil	A Passing Thought	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	5	4	661
Robinson, Fred	Blackpool; Tamariz; Dobson lecture notes; betcha gag	Oasis article	5	4	662
Gardner, Martin	Encyclopaedia Of Impromptu Magic	Book and lecture note reviews	5	4	663
Snooks, Fred	Oasis	Trick - Coin: Gag And Betcha, Drink Betcha	5	4	663
Dobson, Wayne	Lecture Notes: More Ideas	Book and lecture note reviews	5	4	664
Heins, Jan	The Sexbomb	Trick - CT: Rising Card	5	4	664

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Dobson, Wayne	Joker Sandwich	Trick - CT: Sandwich	5	4	665
Glover, Brian	The Red Aces	Trick - CT: Sandwich	5	4	666
Goldstein, Phil	Intimate Spirit	Trick - M: Spirit Writing	5	4	667
Page, Patrick	Definition of a professional; another Pat Page	The Page Boy Speaks article	5	4	669
Bruce, Gordon	Cased	Trick - CT: Discoveries	5	5	672
Robinson, Fred	Gordon Bruce; magic ethics; Dingle's layman trick	Oasis article	5	5	673
Bruce, Gordon	Coin Assembly	Trick - Coin And Card	5	5	674
Heins, Jan	Oasis	Trick - CT: Discoveries	5	5	674
Bruce, Gordon	Matching Pairs	Trick - CT: Matching	5	5	676
Bruce, Gordon	Pocket Palm	Trick - CS: Palming	5	5	676
Brooke, Ken	Little Metal Eater	Trick - Sponge Ball, Coin: Production	5	5	677
O'Brien, Obie	Fechter's death; 9th FFFF; Mullica's 1st anniversary	Happenings	5	5	678
Corinda, Tony	Mastergimmick No. 2	Book and lecture note reviews	5	5	679
Brooke, Ken	Card In Envelope	Trick - Envelope, CS: Palming	5	5	680
Brooke, Ken	Packet Poker	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	5	5	681
Brooke, Ken	The Duplicount	Trick - CS: False Counts	5	5	682
Page, Patrick	Swiss & FISM close-up; Daniels & Nixon; Siegfried & Roy	The Page Boy Speaks article	5	5	684
Robinson, Fred	Vernon's 85th birthday - tributes; Glorpy; Kevin Davie	Oasis article	5	6	688
Glover, Brian	Oasis	Trick - CT: Sandwich	5	6	689
Walton, Roy	Card School	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	5	6	689
Lees, Walt	Irish Poker	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	5	6	690
Rovi	Book Choice	Trick - M: Book And Newspaper	5	6	691
Cyprian, Father	Hofzinser Card Problem	Book and lecture note reviews	5	6	692
Mason, Eric	The Pit-A-Patter Of A Tiny Feat	Trick - CT: Rising Card	5	6	692
Takagi, Shigeo	Coin Routine	Book and lecture note reviews	5	6	692
Avis, Jack	The Pinockle Caper	Trick - CT: Four Ace	5	6	693
Read, Bob	Handkerchief Through Glass	Trick - Glass, Handkerchief	5	6	694
Brooke, Ken	The Tired Travellers	Trick - CT: Transposition	5	6	695
Page, Pat	The Page Boy Speaks	Trick - Watch	5	6	697
Page, Patrick	Goshman; Biro; Jennings; Findlay sale; magic in films	The Page Boy Speaks article	5	6	697
Bloom, Gaeton	Hank To Egg Exposed	Trick - Egg	5	7	699
Jennings, Larry	Happenings	Trick - CT: Transposition	5	7	701
O'Brien, Obie	Meeting Robinson, Fred; Jennings card trick; FISM	Happenings	5	7	701
Goldstein, Phil	Wolf Trap	Trick - CT: Packet	5	7	702
Robinson, Fred	FISM Brussels; technical discussion; Paul Daniels show	Oasis article	5	7	703
Mason, Eric	Amason	Trick - Coin: Change	5	7	703
Walton, Roy	Oasis	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	5	7	704
Wonder, Tommy (See also Bema)	Oasis	Trick - Coin: Through	5	7	704
Tamariz, Juan	Black Days	Trick - CT: Prediction	5	7	705
Page, Patrick	Same act magicians; original performers; ripping off	The Page Boy Speaks article	5	7	709

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Robinson, Fred	Ken Brooke's Magic Place closes; Blenheim bar, Diaconis	Oasis article	5	8	712
O'Brien, Obie	FISM winners; SAMS and American magicians	Happenings	5	8	714
Richardson, Barrie	A Gestalt Revelation	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	5	8	715
Mason, Eric	Make A Note Of It	Trick - Bank Note	5	8	716
Pargeter, Andrew	Multi-Count Technique	Trick - CS: False Count	5	8	718
Fisher, John	Body Magic	Book and lecture note reviews	5	8	719
Walton, Roy	That Certain Something	Book and lecture note reviews	5	8	719
Goldstein, Phil	Synch-Cerely	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	5	8	720
Lewis, Trevor	Time Flies	Trick - Coin: Change	5	8	720
Lewis, Trevor	Time Flies	Trick - Watch	5	8	720
Charnley, Keith	Coin And Cover	Trick - Bank Note, Coin: Production, Wallet	5	8	721
Page, Patrick	IBM reinstatement; Goshman; Fogel & Colin Rose; Brooke	The Page Boy Speaks article	5	8	722
Smith, Al	Where Have All The Aces Gone	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	5	8	724
Sinclair, Brian	The Cards Across	Trick - CT: Transposition	5	9	728
Robinson, Fred	Performing to magicians not laymen; Johnny Paul lecture	Oasis article	5	9	730
Pargeter, Andrew	Multi-Count Technique	Trick - CS: False Count	5	9	731
Mason, Eric	Anything For A Change	Trick - CS: Palming	5	9	733
Duffie, Peter	Collectors Seminar	Trick - CT: Collectors	5	9	734
Goldstein, Phil	Goldstein's Gallery	Book and lecture note reviews	5	9	735
Goldstein, Phil	The Yellow Book Of Mentalism	Book and lecture note reviews	5	9	735
Johnsson, Rick	Rick Johnsson's Strike One	Book and lecture note reviews	5	9	735
Page, Patrick	1979 look back; Brooke photo; tapes; old acts original	The Page Boy Speaks article	5	9	737
Forton, Piet	Can You Do The Gypsy Thread Again	Trick - Thread	5	10	740
Robinson, Fred	Restaurant magic; Lovell and entertaining for laymen	Oasis article	5	10	742
Cyprian, Father	Door To Door Card Sharp	Book and lecture note reviews	5	10	744
Johnsson, Rick	Lecture Notes	Book and lecture note reviews	5	10	744
Shiv (See also Duggal)	Exchange Collectors	Trick - CT: Collectors	5	10	745
O'Brien, Obie	Abbots Get Together, Seabrooke; Mullica & others	Happenings	5	10	746
Clancy, Paddy	Right Angled Coin Vanish	Trick - Coin: Vanish	5	10	747
Woods, Roger	Roger Woods Writes	Trick - CT: Other	5	10	747
Richardson, Barrie	The Three Chair Enigmastion Or The Lazy Mentalist Demonstration	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	5	10	748
Lewis, Trevor	Add On Plus	Trick - CS: Double Lift	5	10	749
Lovell, Simon	Two Faced	Trick - CT: Other	5	10	750
Page, Patrick	Italian IBM; Sylvan's 3 card monte TV presentation	The Page Boy Speaks article	5	10	751
Goldstein, Phil	The Basic Twink	Trick - CT: Matching	5	11	754
Goldstein, Phil	Twink Plus	Trick - CT: Matching	5	11	755
Goldstein, Phil	Further Twink	Trick - CT: Matching	5	11	756
Goldstein, Phil	Twink Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	5	11	756
Goldstein, Phil	Two Deck Twink	Trick - CT: Matching	5	11	756
Robinson, Fred	Pabular evening; Richard Turner, Tamariz Zarrow tip	Oasis article	5	11	757
Pladek, Oscar	The Reunited Match	Trick - Match, Paper	5	11	758

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Binarelli, Tony	Galaxy Telepathy	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	5	11	759
Binarelli, Tony	Playmagic No. 1	Book and lecture note reviews	5	11	760
Long, Marv	Extra Climax Card In Wallet	Trick - CT: Wallet	5	11	761
Mason, Eric	Put And Take	Trick - CS: Palming, CT: Other	5	11	762
Page, Patrick	Dale Harney's TV show & appearing magicians including Page	The Page Boy Speaks article	5	11	764
Hamilton, Bob	For Nudists Only	Trick - CT: Coloured Backs	5	12	768
Horwitz, Basil	Lucky Joker Prediction	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	5	12	769
Weston, Mark	Spectator Unexplained (After Vernon)	Trick - CT: Prediction	5	12	770
Robinson, Fred	Close-Up competitions; standing up; Len Neil; Kaps ill	Oasis article	5	12	771
Mason, Eric	Pop	Trick - Thumb Tip	5	12	772
Setterington, Arthur	Oldfinger	Trick - CT: Discoveries, Finger	5	12	773
Goldstein, Phil	Psychia-Twist	Trick - CT: Reversal	5	12	775
Tamariz, Juan	Tamariz Ambitious Double	Trick - CT: Ambitious	5	12	776
Page, Patrick	Resting in Scotland; Pages creative process comparing Fitzkee	The Page Boy Speaks article	5	12	780
Richardson, Barrie	1-2-3 Card In Wallet	Trick - CT: Wallet	6	1	782
Wonder, Tommy (See also Bema)	Ring On Stick	Trick - Ring, Finger	6	1	784
Walton, Roy	Detective Story	Trick - CT: Packet	6	1	786
Ganson, Lewis	The Immaculate Card Magic Of Walt Lees	Book and lecture note reviews	6	1	787
Robinson, Fred	Read's Vegas notes & prints; Nut & Bolt trick solution	Oasis article	6	1	788
Robinson, Fred	Oasis	Trick - Nut And Bolt	6	1	788
Day, Arthur	A Tuppeny One	Trick - Coin: Prediction	6	1	789
Rovi	Ivor's Control	Trick - CS: Control	6	1	789
Page, Patrick	Circle Collector's Day; Val Andrew's Soo biography -lack of	The Page Boy Speaks article	6	1	790
Read, Bob	L'Escamoteur (man doing cups & balls in crowd)	Prints from the Bob Read Collection	6	1	791
Mason, Eric	Overture	Trick - CS: Palming	6	2	796
Mason, Eric	Sublimason	Trick - CT: Transposition	6	2	796
Mason, Eric	For Johann	Trick - CT: Four Aces	6	2	797
Robinson, Fred	Mentalism & Geller, astrology; artistry; summer seasons	Oasis article	6	2	798
Mason, Eric	Cul Bono?	Trick - CT: Matching	6	2	798
Weston, Mark	MW Vanishing Deck	Trick - CT: Vanishing	6	2	799
Goldstein, Phil	Ringleader	Trick - Ring, Finger	6	2	802
Smith, Al	Seconds Out	Trick - CT: Matching	6	2	803
Read, Bob	Nouveau Panthéon Du Charivari par A Grévin (Political cartoon)	Prints from the Bob Read Collection	6	2	805
Wonder, Tommy (See also Bema)	Falling Pips	Trick - CT: Ambitious	6	2	806
Page, Patrick	Young man's world - Copperfield; old timers; surviving	The Page Boy Speaks article	6	2	807
Robinson, Fred	Remembering Ramsay issue; Galloway & misdirection	Oasis article	6	3	810
Hamilton, Steven	Ferly Defragmentation Etc	Trick - CT: Torn, Envelope	6	3	811
Walton, Roy	Ferly Defragmentation Etc	Trick - CT: Torn, Envelope	6	3	812
Binarelli, Tony	Playtime 2	Book and lecture note reviews	6	3	813
Day, Sonny	Minerve	Trick - CS: Control	6	3	813

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Day, Sonny	Cutting The Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	6	3	814
Day, Sonny	Fastest Trick In The World	Trick - CT: Discoveries	6	3	814
Read, Bob	Taskspelaren: Paris (cups & balls in street)	Prints from the Bob Read Collection	6	3	815
Brooke, Ken	I-O-U	Trick - Bank Note, CT: Torn, CT: Wallet	6	3	816
Galloway, Andy	The Changeling	Trick - Coin: Change	6	3	817
Galloway, Andy	Unsuspected Extra	Trick - Coin: Vanish	6	3	817
Mcfadzean, Alex	Quadruple Inflation	Trick - Coin: Production	6	3	820
Duffie, Peter	And The Cans Came Back	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	6	3	822
Page, Patrick	SAM; Cornelius; US magicians - compared to Ramsay	The Page Boy Speaks article	6	3	823
Davie, Kevin	Gaspers Galore	Trick - CT: Prediction	6	4	826
Davie, Kevin	Sign There	Trick - CT: Transposition	6	4	826
Davie, Kevin	Highly Skilled Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	6	4	828
Davie, Kevin	Relative Rise	Trick - CT: Rising Card	6	4	829
Robinson, Fred	Kaps death; tribute & analysis of his success; funeral	Oasis article	6	4	830
Read, Bob	Aspect de la place de la Bastille un dimanche de septembre (street scene)	Prints from the Bob Read Collection	6	4	833
Davie, Kevin	Palm Steal	Trick - CS: Palming	6	4	834
Davie, Kevin	The Lollipop Trick	Trick - CT: Sucker	6	4	835
Day, Arthur	Fumdubulators	Trick - Sight Gag	6	4	836
Forton, Piet	Irish Key Ring	Trick - Key, Ring, Other	6	4	836
Robinson, Fred	Fumdubulators	Trick - Thread, Handkerchief	6	4	836
Snooks, Fred	Fumdubulators	Trick - Match, Box	6	4	836
Page, Patrick	IBM & gents card trick; Fogel & mentalism is dead	The Page Boy Speaks article	6	4	838
Wonder, Tommy (See also Bema)	Pocket Slate Routine	Trick - M: Spirit Writing	6	5	842
Kuskie, Steve	Grandma's Triple Cut	Trick - CS: Flourish	6	5	843
O'Brien, Obie	Bob Read Close-Up & lecture; Maurice Fogel lecture	Happenings	6	5	843
Walton, Roy	Outward Bound	Trick - CT: Transposition	6	5	844
Robinson, Fred	Close-Up at conventions; Pabular evening; Spanish cards	Oasis article	6	5	845
Smith, Al	Krix	Trick - CT: Reversal	6	5	846
Read, Bob	100 Dollar Glass Thru' Table	Book and lecture note reviews	6	5	847
Goldstein, Phil	Data	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	6	5	848
Takagi, Shigeo	New One Cup Routine	Book and lecture note reviews	6	5	849
Jennings, Larry	Card In Envelope Wallet	Book and lecture note reviews	6	5	850
Read, Bob	Taskspelaren. Efter P Massanis malning. (cups & balls inside)	Prints from the Bob Read Collection	6	5	851
Page, Patrick	Watching magic on TV; pet routines; Nixon compared with Daniels	The Page Boy Speaks article	6	5	852
Tamariz, Juan	It's A Pity	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	6	6	856
Robinson, Fred	Retirement from Editor; Lees appointed; using Pabular	Oasis article	6	6	859
Galloway, Andy	Diverting Card Magic	Book and lecture note reviews	6	6	860
Lees, Walt	Close-up at International Day	Lecture and convention review	6	6	861
Kuske, Steven	Sharp Sharp	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	6	6	862 rasite, Steven

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Heins, Jan	The Lady Vanishes	Trick - CT: Transposition	6	6	863
Vernon, Dai	Dai Vernon's Centrepiece	Trick - CT. Gambling Theme	6	6	863
Somerville, Neil	In Anticipation	Trick - CT: Prediction	6	6	864
Forton, Piet	Fan Club	Trick - CT: Discoveries	6	6	865
Read, Bob	Les Cosaques Pour Rire. L'Escamoteur Manquant Son Tour, Faute D'Un Compère (political cups & balls)	Prints from the Bob Read Collection	6	6	867
Page, Patrick	Compulsive thinker, notebooks on magic; Kaps notebook	The Page Boy Speaks article	6	6	868
Lees, Walt	Robinson, Fred - dealing, perfectionist; Ganson's death	Editorial article	6	7	872
Walton, Roy	End Game Plus	Trick - CT: Matching	6	7	872
Lees, Walt	Even Break	Trick - CT: Prediction	6	7	873
Richardson, Barrie	Almost Real Mindreading	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	6	7	875
Duffie, Peter	Trans Collection	Trick - CT: Collectors	6	7	876
Hamilton, Steven	Trans Collection	Trick - CT: Collectors	6	7	876
Howarth, Mo	Hat Gag	Trick - Hat, Sight Gag	6	7	878
Setterington, Arthur	Back Hander	Trick - Coin: Vanish	6	7	878
Goldstein, Phil	Amulation	Trick - Ring, Finger	6	7	879
Smith, Al	Cards On Demand	Book and lecture note reviews	6	7	881
Page, Patrick	Robinson, Fred: comparing to Nelson Downs; daughter's magic act	The Page Boy Speaks article	6	7	882
Lees, Walt	Robinson, Fred issue; Johnsson on meeting Fred	Editorial article	6	8	886
Johnsson, Rick	Yours, Mine & Ours	Trick - CT: Transposition	6	8	887
Brooke, Ken	Split Second	Trick - CS: Dealing	6	8	889
Brooke, Ken	Poker Deal	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	6	8	890
Grismer, Ray	Charts	Book and lecture note reviews	6	8	891
Grismer, Ray	HIP ESP	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	6	8	891
McDuff, Algonquin	Penatring	Trick - Ring, Finger, Rope	6	8	892
Johnsson, Rick	Rip Off	Trick - Bank Note	6	8	893
Mason, Eric	Fred Trick The Great	Trick - CT: Prediction	6	8	893
Willmarth, Phil	Biddle Kardyro Cased	Trick - CT: Transposition	6	8	894
Kuskie, Steve	Oil Colours	Trick - CT: Oil And Water	6	8	896
Diamond, Paul	2 Cassettes	Book and lecture note reviews	6	8	897
Kane. Peter	An Audio Card Session	Book and lecture note reviews	6	8	897
Page, Patrick	Bob Albo; Copperfield's and magic; abuse of tapes	The Page Boy Speaks article	6	8	898
Turpin, Dick	Turpin's Turnip	Trick - Glass, Hat, Swede	6	9	902
Lees, Walt	Blackpool convention; Crosthwaite; Bob Read; Turpin	Editorial article	6	9	906
Charnley, Keith	A Deceptive Click Pass	Trick - Coin: Sleight	6	9	907
Walton, Roy	Through The Centuries Of Time	Trick - CT: Discoveries	6	9	907
Smith, Al	Asque	Trick - CT: Sandwich	6	9	908
Johnsson, Rick	Pradl/Prudl	Trick - CS: Double Lift	6	9	910
Mason, Eric	A Peep In The Bottle	Book and lecture note reviews	6	9	911
Mason, Eric	Magnifque	Book and lecture note reviews	6	9	911
Mason, Eric	Pandora	Book and lecture note reviews	6	9	911
Pargeter, Andrew	Tenkai Cop	Trick - CS: Palming	6	9	911
Read, Bob	Musee Pour Rire (cups & balls)	Prints from the Bob Read Collection	6	9	912
Page, Patrick	Inventor of year: hard to define - idea for Circle	The Page Boy Speaks article	6	9	914

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Crosthwaite, Roger	Doing The Splits	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	6	10	918
Lees, Walt	Roger Crosthwaite	Editorial article	6	10	918
Crosthwaite, Roger	The Little Salt Man	Trick - CT: Transposition	6	10	922
Crosthwaite, Roger	Skating On Ice	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	6	10	926
Crosthwaite, Roger	Partial Brainwave	Trick - CT: Reversal	6	10	929
England, Don	Technical Knock Outs (TKOs)	Book and lecture note reviews	6	10	929
Page, Patrick	On attending magic conventions - advantages	The Page Boy Speaks article	6	10	932
Johnston, Johnny	Cointraption	Trick - Coin: Through, Sponge Ball	6	11	936
Lees, Walt	Non-card issue; negative thinking; card tricks	Editorial article	6	11	940
Lees, Walt	Cambridge Close-Up	Lecture and convention review	6	11	941
Setterington, Arthur	Sandwich Escape	Trick - Bank Note	6	11	942
Weston, Mark	Hong Kong Visible Release	Trick - Coin: Through	6	11	942
Mendoza, John	Cassettes	Book and lecture note reviews	6	11	943
Goldstein, Phil	Precoinition	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	6	11	944
Goldstein, Phil	Spectacle (Packet Trick)	Book and lecture note reviews	6	11	944
Lees, Walt	Four Professional Card Tricks	Book and lecture note reviews	6	11	944
Turpin, Dick	The Drinks Are On Me	Trick - Coin: Production, Glass, Handkerchief	6	11	946
Page, Patrick	IBM & various magicians; linking ring anecdote	The Page Boy Speaks article	6	11	948
Read, Bob	Lar Caricature (large man juggling objects)	Prints from the Bob Read Collection	6	11	949
Goldstein, Phil	Simple Oscar	Trick - CT: Packet	6	12	954
Lees, Walt	Goldstein issue; Hamilton lecture; IBM close-up	Editorial article	6	12	955
Griffiths, Owen	The Percy Press Glass Of Water Production Routine	Book and lecture note reviews	6	12	956
Kane, Peter	Tetrad One	Book and lecture note reviews	6	12	956
Malmros, Gert	Gert Malmros Presents	Book and lecture note reviews	6	12	956
Lees, Walt	The Commercial Card Magic Of Roger Crosthwaite	Book and lecture note reviews	6	12	957
Goldstein, Phil	Simple Thornton	Trick - CT: Packet	6	12	958
Goldstein, Phil	Either Aura	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	6	12	959
Goldstein, Phil	Jan-Ken-Pon	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	6	12	960
Goldstein, Phil	37th Parallel	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	6	12	962
Goldstein, Phil	Brasso Profundo	Trick - Nut And Bolt, Ring, Finger	6	12	962
Goldstein, Phil	Spirit Count	Trick - CS: False Count	6	12	963
Goldstein, Phil	Necktie Second	Trick - CS: Dealing	6	12	964
Page, Patrick	Circle close-up competition; Rex Cooper, beginners	The Page Boy Speaks article	6	12	966
Tamariz, Juan	The Tamariz Turnover	Trick - CS: Double Lift	7	1	970
Ben, David	Holy Smoke	Trick - Bank Note, Cigarette, Coin: Production	7	1	972
Lees, Walt	On magic competitions - reason for entering and use of	Editorial article	7	1	973
Lees, Walt	The Complete Walt Lees Cannibal Card Act	Book and lecture note reviews	7	1	975
Walton, Roy	The Complete Roy Walton Vol.	Book and lecture note reviews	7	1	975

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Fells, John	Three Into One Won't Go	Trick - CT: Packet	7	1	976
Boyce, Wally	Dumbo	Trick - Sight Gag	7	1	977
Hallas, Paul	Concealment	Trick - CS: Control, Coin And Card	7	1	978
Wonder, Tommy (See also Bema)	Everywhere And Nowhere	Trick - CT: Sucker	7	1	979
Page, Patrick	2 groups of magis; idea for sponge balls & dinner table	The Page Boy Speaks article	7	1	982
Bennett, Keith	Take Me To Your Leader	Trick - CT: Separation	7	2	986
Conway, Pat	The ???? In Wallet	Trick - Wallet, Sight Gag	7	2	986
Lees, Walt	PD Xmas special - glide; Spirit count; conventions	Editorial article	7	2	988
Allen, Vic	Magic Shoes	Trick - Sight Gag	7	2	989
Rovi	Simplicity Card In Wallet	Trick - CT: Wallet	7	2	989
Rovi	Double Force	Trick - CS: Forcing	7	2	990
Setterington, Arthur	Whats In A Name	Trick - CT: Discoveries	7	2	992
Horwitz, Basil	The Mental Magic Of	Book and lecture note reviews	7	2	994
Lovell, Simon	Simon Says	Book and lecture note reviews	7	2	994
Boyce, Wally	Elizabeth 2nd	Trick - CT: Matching, Envelope	7	2	995
Read, Bob	Robert Monaire Libiaite (man waving money)	Prints from the Bob Read Collection	7	2	997
Page, Patrick	Open letter to Walt Lees; close-up cases; Blackpool	The Page Boy Speaks article	7	2	998
Roxy	Surprise Follow The Leader	Trick - CT: Separation	7	3	1002
Lees, Walt	Blackpool close-up; Cornelius coin leap; Nic Picot	Editorial article	7	3	1004
Charnley, Keith	One in The Eye	Trick - Coin: Across	7	3	1005
Turpin, Dick	More Reflections Of Horace Spencer	Trick - Bank Note	7	3	1005
Hallas, Paul	Card In Calculator	Trick - CT: Discoveries, Calculator	7	3	1006
Tamariz, Juan	Mental Blockbuster	Trick - CT: Matching	7	3	1006
Page, Patrick	Things going wrong; Breese close-up with John Mendoza	The Page Boy Speaks article	7	3	1009
Crosthwaite, Roger	Exclusive Card Series No. 2 Mindboggler	Book and lecture note reviews	7	3	1010
Lees, Walt	More Professional Card Tricks	Book and lecture note reviews	7	3	1010
Schmidt, Joseph	Joseph Schmidt Writes	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	7	3	1011
Witt, Hans	Yellow Magic Pages	Book and lecture note reviews	7	3	1011
York, Scot	Coin In Cigarette Lighter	Book and lecture note reviews	7	3	1011
Goldstein, Phil	Packetrainer	Trick - CT: Packet	7	3	1012
Wonder, Tommy (See also Bema)	Torn And Restored Cigarette	Trick - Cigarette	7	4	1018
Lees, Walt	Size restriction of magazine; Argentina situation	Editorial article	7	4	1022
Gamble, Richard M	Giant Cigarette Production	Trick - Cigarette	7	4	1023
Brooke, Ken	Double Lift Techniques And Variations	Trick - CS: Double Lift	7	4	1024
Brooke, Ken	Way Out	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	7	4	1026
Andrews, Val	The Coin & Card Magic Of	Book and lecture note reviews	7	4	1027
Worsley, Bill	Back To Back	Trick - CT: Packet	7	4	1028
Page, Patrick	Acts for magicians; Al Flosso's act; tricks to yourself	The Page Boy Speaks article	7	4	1030
Richardson, Barrie	Dollar Divination	Trick - Bank Note, M: Number/Object Prediction	7	5	1034
Roxy	Transposition '71	Trick - CT: Transposition	7	5	1036

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Lees, Walt	Lees contribution to Puzzled: Pat Page's T.A.T.	Editorial article	7	5	1038
Goldstein, Phil	All For Nought	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	7	5	1040
Spencer, Horace	Smash And Grab	Trick - CT: Discoveries	7	5	1040
Land, Ian	Snap Count Lost Ace	Trick - CT: Reversal	7	5	1042
Land, Ian	Getting Lost In The Shuffle	Trick - CT: Reversal	7	5	1044
Kaufman, Richard	The Complete Works Of Derek Dingle	Book and lecture note reviews	7	5	1045
Page, Patrick	Video; thoughts on exposure; overexposure on TV	The Page Boy Speaks article	7	5	1046
Pargeter, Andrew	Card-Trek	Trick - CT: Transposition	7	6	1050
Setterington, Arthur	Thimble Finger	Trick - Thimble	7	6	1051
Lees, Walt	Missing Hastings; thoughts on reporting; Pabular night	Editorial article	7	6	1052
Kuske, Steven	Location	Trick - CS: Control	7	6	1053
Frame, Lawrence	Commercial Coin In Pack	Trick - Coin And Card	7	6	1054
Wonder, Tommy (See also Bema)	Elizabeth 3rd	Trick - CT: Matching	7	6	1055
Busby, Jeff	Mike Skinner's Intimate Magic	Book and lecture note reviews	7	6	1057
Becker, Lany	Mentalism For Magicians	Book and lecture note reviews	7	6	1058
Thompson, John	Polished Polish Prestidigitation	Book and lecture note reviews	7	6	1058
Kaufman, Richard	Richards Almanac	Book and lecture note reviews	7	6	1059
Tucker, Stephen	Spell-Binder Vol.2 No.15	Book and lecture note reviews	7	6	1059
Various	The Magic Of The Cube	Book and lecture note reviews	7	6	1059
Goldstein, Phil	Casanova	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	7	6	1060
Schwartz, Sam	Omega Count	Trick - CS: False Count	7	6	1060
Page, Patrick	Norway Convention; high standard of young: John Houdi	The Page Boy Speaks article	7	6	1061
Goldstein, Phil	Tenting Trip	Trick - CT: Transposition	7	7	1066
Mason, Eric	Newspaper Mind Reading	Trick - M: Book And Newspaper	7	7	1066
Richardson, Barrie	Newspaper Mind Reading	Trick - M: Book And Newspaper	7	7	1066
Lees, Walt	Sayings in magic; actor as magician; nothing new & gags	Editorial article	7	7	1067
Charnley, Keith	Audible (Fake) Transfer	Trick - Coin: Sleight	7	7	1069
Chesboro, Bob	Coin In Cigarette Lighter	Book and lecture note reviews	7	7	1069
Bruce, Gordon	Robinson, Fred In Glasgow	Lecture and convention review	7	7	1070
Smith, Al	Pointing The Way	Trick - CT: Sandwich	7	7	1070
Land, Ian	Proteus	Trick - CT: Four Ace	7	7	1072
Burger, Eugene	Secrets & Mysteries For The	Book and lecture note reviews	7	7	1074
Kirk, Charles	Tips On Table Hopping Close-Up Entertainer	Book and lecture note reviews	7	7	1074
Mason, Eric	A Boon For All Seasons	Book and lecture note reviews	7	7	1074
Richardson, Barrie	A Boon For All Seasons	Book and lecture note reviews	7	7	1074
Lashbrook, Ron	Double Repeat Turnover	Trick - CT: Reversal	7	7	1075
Tucker, Stephen	Spell-Binder. Special Issue	Book and lecture note reviews	7	7	1075
Gamble, Richard M	Blooming Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	7	7	1076
Page, Patrick	Convention in Ireland - Hubert Lambert	The Page Boy Speaks article	7	7	1077
Heins, Jan	Splash	Trick - CT: Discoveries	7	8	1080
Lees, Walt	Audiences; young close-uppers; Blackpool; children	Editorial article	7	8	1081
Hawkins, David	Human Error	Trick - CT: Prediction, Calculator	7	8	1082
Hallas, Paul	Repeat Bluff Sandwich	Trick - CT: Sandwich	7	8	1083

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Goodwin, Alf	The Magician's Four Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	7	8	1084
Lees, Walt	Mike Bornstein's Triumph Outdone	Book and lecture note reviews	7	8	1087
Duffie, Peter	Alternative Card Magic	Book and lecture note reviews	7	8	1088
Kaufman, Richard	The New York Magic Symposium Close-Up Collection	Book and lecture note reviews	7	8	1088
Williams, Geoffrey	Two Ring Linking Ring Routine	Book and lecture note reviews	7	8	1088
Roxy	Zig Zag Prediction	Trick - CT: Prediction, Dice, Envelope	7	8	1089
Howarth, Mo	Wallet With Dressing	Trick - CT: Wallet	7	8	1090
Page, Patrick	Favourite close-up tricks; Heba heba Al & Sugar Cube	The Page Boy Speaks article	7	8	1092
Richardson, Barrie	The Strange Key Stunt	Trick - Key, M: Moving And Bending	7	9	1096
Lees, Walt	Magical criticism; over praising; Ian Kent as compere	Editorial article	7	9	1098
Lees, Walt	Among The Great Unwashed (Close-Up At Blackpool)	Lecture and convention review	7	9	1101
Anders, John	Kaning Mercury	Trick - CT: Discoveries	7	9	1102
Jennings, Larry	A Visit With Larry Jennings (Lecture Notes)	Book and lecture note reviews	7	9	1104
Kane, Peter	Kane	Book and lecture note reviews	7	9	1104
Britland, David	Deckade	Book and lecture note reviews	7	9	1105
James, Stewart	Sefalaljia No. 2	Book and lecture note reviews	7	9	1105
Gamble, Richard M	Kicker Colour Change	Trick - CT: Coloured Backs	7	9	1106
Page, Patrick	TV stars; Brachetti in I; theatre shows; Vegas; Brooke	The Page Boy Speaks article	7	9	1109
Tucker, Stephen	Nil Separaturn Est	Trick - CT: Transposition	7	10	1114
Lees, Walt	Close-Up for children - Terry Machin & Ferry Gerats	Editorial article	7	10	1115
Weston, Mark	Repeat Burned Match	Trick - Match, Book	7	10	1116
Goldstein, Phil	Oddment	Trick - CT: Packet	7	10	1117
Johnson, Les	Micro Magic	Trick - Calculator, CT: Discoveries	7	10	1118
Lashbrook, Ron	Triangle Prediction	Trick - Dice	7	10	1120
Breese, Martin	Marked Manual Of Marked Card Magic	Book and lecture note reviews	7	10	1121
Lesley, Ted	Marked Manual Of Marked Card Magic	Book and lecture note reviews	7	10	1121
Steele, WF (Rufus)	The Last Words On Cards	Book and lecture note reviews	7	10	1121
McMillan, Jack	Sleights & Swindles	Book and lecture note reviews	7	10	1122
Thompson, Johnny	Coin In Bottle Plus	Book and lecture note reviews	7	10	1123
Frame, Lawrence	Compression	Trick - CT: Vanishing	7	10	1124
Page, Patrick	1st impressions; changing the act; Sugar Cube trick	The Page Boy Speaks article	7	10	1125
Land, Ian	Interlaced Jump	Trick - CT: Collectors	7	11	1128
Land, Ian	Second Direction	Trick - CT: Collectors	7	11	1131
Lees, Walt	Ian Land; Magic magazines; Barrie Richardson & Giobbi	Editorial article	7	11	1131
Land, Ian	A Mouthful Of Air	Trick - CT: Assembly	7	11	1133
Land, Ian	Back Palm	Trick - CT: Transposition	7	11	1135
Land, Ian	Technicolour Departure	Trick - CT: Reversal	7	11	1137
Smith, Al	Error Error	Trick - CT: Sandwich	7	11	1139
Read, Bob	Taskenspilleren (cups & balls in booth)	Prints from the Bob Read Collection	7	11	1140
Page, Patrick	Brachetti's Y (change from I) & description of show	The Page Boy Speaks article	7	11	1141

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Tucker, Stephen	Ambidextrous	Trick - CT: Tom	7	12	1144
Tucker, Stephen	Introduction - change of thinking	Editorial article	7	12	1145
Lees, Walt	Standing down as Editor, Stephen Tucker taking over	Editorial article	7	12	1145
Gamble, Richard M	A Sweet Cigarette	Trick - Cigarette	7	12	1146
Hallas, Paul	Forcing A Date With Cards	Trick - CS: Forcing	7	12	1146
Smith, Al	Fresh Sliced	Trick - CT: Triumph	7	12	1147
Alker, Doug	Ace Sandwich	Trick - CT: Four Ace	7	12	1148
Weston, Mark	Comb Vanish	Trick - Sight Gag	7	12	1148
Weston, Mark	Coin Caper	Trick - Coin: Gag And Betcha	7	12	1150
Land, Ian	Alpha Minus	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	7	12	1151
Giobbi, Roberto	A Card To Be Thought About	Trick - CT: Prediction	7	12	1152
Read, Bob	L'Escamoteur, sur le boulevard, près ie Chateau d'Eau (cups & balls in crowd)	Prints from the Bob Read Collection	7	12	1153
Page, Patrick	IBM; the Shield; Mark Raffles, Lewis & Page's Moneybag	The Page Boy Speaks article	7	12	1154
Tucker, Stephen	Nash lecture; Sweden; Lees' books; Nick Bolton	Editorial article	8	1	1158
Giobbi, Roberto	Blushing Jumper	Trick - CT: Wallet	8	1	1159
Ronnay, Magic	The New Oil & Water Routine	Trick - CT: Oil And Water	8	1	1161
Land, Ian	Technicolour Departure	Trick - CT: Reversal	8	1	1164
Charnley, Keith	Ring On Stick	Trick - Ring, Finger	8	1	1165
Tucker, Stephen	Shear Magic	Trick - Rope	8	1	1166
Cameron, Douglas	The Flip Switch	Trick - Coin: Sleight	8	1	1167
Read, Bob	Les Cosaques Pour Rire. L'Escamoteur Manquant Son Tour, Faute D'un Compere (political cups & balls)	Prints from the Bob Read Collection	8	1	1168
Page, Patrick	Reading magazines & incestuous; Lyle's Tissue Paper to Hat	The Page Boy Speaks article	8	1	1169
Goldstein, Phil	Avanture, Avanture II, Avanture III, Avanture IV	Trick - CT: Four Ace	8	2	1172
Britland, David	Cardopolis	Book and lecture note reviews	8	2	1174
Britland, David	Review Of The Martin Nash Lecture (London 1983)	Lecture and convention review	8	2	1174
Russell, Marc	Cardopolis	Book and lecture note reviews	8	2	1174
Tucker, Stephen	Britland's Cardopolis; Eric Mason	Editorial article	8	2	1174
Tucker, Stephen	Under Control	Trick - CT: Transposition	8	2	1175
Richardson, Barrie	Alphabet Mentalism	Trick - M: Mental Matching	8	2	1177
Giobbi, Roberto	The Trevor Lewis Card To Wallet	Trick - CT: Wallet	8	2	1179
Crosthwaite, Roger	Modified Master Grip	Trick - CS: Dealing	8	2	1180
Hallas, Paul	More Dangerous	Trick - CT: Discoveries	8	2	1181
Page, Patrick	Small props compared to big; importance of fooling	The Page Boy Speaks article	8	2	1182
Tucker, Stephen	In Sweden; future contributions	Editorial article	8	3	1186
Bema, Jos	Tommy Wonder Entertains	Book and lecture note reviews	8	3	1187
Specht, Henrik	One More Chance	Trick - CT: Sucker	8	3	1188
Tucker, Stephen	Spell-Binder Special 3	Book and lecture note reviews	8	3	1188
Jack, Gentleman	Pickpockeyt	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	8	3	1189
Ljunberg, Gay	Christmas Cards	Trick - CT: Packet	8	3	1189
Ljunberg, Gay	Sympathy	Trick - CT: Coloured Backs	8	3	1190
Duco, El	Fantastic Elastics	Trick - Elastic Band	8	3	1191

Tucker, Stephen Think Trick - CT: Packet 8 3 1193 Jack, Gentleman Ladies And Gentlemen Trick - CT: Packet 8 3 1193 Jack, Gentleman Ladies And Gentlemen Trick - CT: Packet 8 3 1196 Aukes, John I's Magic Book and lecture note reviews 8 4 1200 Brilland, David Tearing A Lady In Two Book and lecture note reviews 8 4 1200 Gloklstein, Phil Short Credit Trick - CT: Packet 8 4 1200 Specht, Henrik The Kangaroo Spots Trick - CT: Packet 8 4 1202 Specht, Henrik The Kangaroo Spots Trick - CT: Dacket 8 4 1202 Specht, Henrik The Kangaroo Spots Trick - CT: Dacket 8 4 1202 Specht, Henrik The Kangaroo Spots Trick - CT: Dacket 8 4 1202 Specht, Henrik The Spech Jose Speck Spec	CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Page, Patrick Car broken into & tapes stolen: turned on they weren't out they weren't	Tucker, Stephen	Think	Trick - CT: Packet	8	3	1193
Natures Natu	Jack, Gentleman	Ladies And Gentlemen	Trick - CT: Packet	8	3	1195
Aukes, John The Four Card Trick Trick - CT: Prediction 8 4 1200 Britland, David Tearing A Lady In Two Book and lecture note reviews 8 4 1200 Trucker, Stephen Top annes in magazine: book review; Britland's TER card Editorial article 8 4 1200 Book And Hernik The Kangaroo Spots Trick - CT: Packet 8 4 1202 Walton, Roy I'd Give My Right Hand Trick - CT: Discoveries 8 4 1202 Globb, Roberto The Jose Folds Up Trick - CT: Discoveries 8 4 1202 Richardson, Barrie Departure Lounge Trick - CT: Discoveries 8 4 1203 Tucker, Stephen Departure Lounge Trick - CT: Sandwich 8 4 1206 Page, Patrick Blackpool, Doboson's act; night before lectures Frick - CT: Prediction 8 5 1212 Tucker, Stephen Eric Mason ill: delays in Britland & Goldsterin stores Editorial article 8 5 1212 Tucker, Stephen Wonder, Tommy	Page, Patrick		The Page Boy Speaks article	8	3	1196
Britland, David Tearing A Lady In Two Book and lecture note reviews 8 4 1200 Tucker, Stephen Top names in magazine; book review; Britland's T-RR card Editorial article 8 4 1200 Goldstein, Phil Short Circuit Trick CT: Packet 8 4 1201 Spech, Henrik The Kangaroo Spots Trick - CT: Packet 8 4 1202 Wahlon, Roy I'd Give My Right Hand Trick - CT: Discoveries 8 4 1202 Richardson, Barrie Pocket Dictionary Book-Tests Trick - CT: Discoveries 8 4 1203 Richardson, Barrie Pocket Dictionary Book-Tests Trick - CT: Sandwich 8 4 1206 Page, Patrick Blackpoof, Dobson's act; night before lectures Be Edy Speaks article 8 4 1202 Walton, Roy The 229-224 Trick Trick - CT: Sandwich 8 5 1212 Tucker, Stephen Be Lekpool, Dobson's act; night before lectures Editorial article 8 5 1212 Walton, Roy The 299-224 Trick <td>Aukes, John</td> <td>It's Magic</td> <td>Book and lecture note reviews</td> <td>8</td> <td>4</td> <td>1200</td>	Aukes, John	It's Magic	Book and lecture note reviews	8	4	1200
Tucker, Stephen Top names in magazine: book review; Britland's T&R card Editorial article 8 4 1200 Goldstein, Phil Short Circuit Trick - CT: Packet 8 4 1201 Specht, Henrik The Kangaroo Spots Trick - CT: Dacket 8 4 1202 Walton, Roy I'd Give My Right Hand Trick - CT: Discoveries 8 4 1202 Richardson, Barrie Pocket Dictionary Book-Tests Trick - CT: Discoveries 8 4 1205 Tucker, Stephen Departure Lounge Trick - CT: Sandwich 8 4 1206 Page, Patrick Blackpool: Dobson's act; night before lectures The Page Boy Speaks article 8 2 1202 Wallon, Roy The 229-224 Trick Trick - CT: Prediction, M: Number/Object Prediction 8 5 1212 Tucker, Stephen Eric Mason ill; delays in Britland & Colon and lecture note reviews 8 5 1213 Hams, Paul Video Tape Book and lecture note reviews 8 5 1214 Bress, Bartin The Deluxe Chink Box	Aukes, John	The Four Card Trick	Trick - CT: Prediction	8	4	1200
Britland's Fike Card	Britland, David	Tearing A Lady In Two	Book and lecture note reviews	8	4	1200
Specht, Henrik The Kangaroo Spots Trick - CT: Packet 8 4 1202 Walton, Roy I'd Give My Right Hand Trick - CT: Tom 8 4 1202 Giobbi, Roberto The Joker Folds Up Trick - CT: Discoveries 8 4 1203 Richardson, Barrie Pocket Dictionary Book-Tests Trick - CT: Sundwich 8 4 1205 Tucker, Stephen Departure Lounge Trick - CT: Sundwich 8 4 1206 Page, Patrick Blackpool; Dobson's act; night before increased and process. Trick - CT: Prediction, M: Number/Object Prediction, M: Number Object Prediction, M: Number Object Prediction, M: Number Object Prediction, M: Number Object Prediction M: Number Object Prediction M: Number Object Prediction M: Number Object Prediction, M: Number Object Prediction M: Number Object Predicti	Tucker, Stephen		Editorial article	8	4	1200
Walton, Roy I'd Give My Right Hand Trick - CT: Tom 8 4 1202 Giobbi, Roberto The Joker Folds Up Trick - CT: Discoveries 8 4 1203 Richardson, Barrie Pocket Dictionary Book-Tests Trick - CT: Snadwich 8 4 1206 Page, Patrick Blackpool; Dobson's act; night before lectures Trick - CT: Snadwich 8 4 1208 Walton, Roy The 229-224 Trick Trick - CT: Prediction, M: Number/Object Prediction 8 5 1212 Tucker, Stephen Eric Mason ill; delays in Britland & Goldstein issues Goldstein issues 5 1213 Wonder, Tommy Wonder Material Book and lecture note reviews 8 5 1213 Hams, Paul Video Tape Book and lecture note reviews 8 5 1215 Sepcht, Henrik The Test Tube Child Trick - CT: Oli And Water 8 5 1215 Specht, Henrik The Test Tube Chilk Box Trick - CT: Packet 8 5 1216 Tucker, Stephen The Deluxe Chink Box Trick - CT	Goldstein, Phil	Short Circuit	Trick - CT: Packet	8	4	1201
Giobbi, Roberto The Joker Folds Up Trick - CT: Discoveries 8 4 1203 Richardson, Barrie Pocket Dictionary Book-Tests Trick - Mis Book And Newspaper 8 4 1205 Tucker, Stephen Departure Lounge Trick - CT: Sandwich 8 4 1206 Page, Patrick Blackpool; Dobson's act; night before lectures The Page Boy Speaks article 8 4 1206 Walton, Roy The 229-224 Trick Trick - CT: Prediction, M: Number/Object Prediction 8 5 1212 Wonder, Tommy Wonder Material Book and lecture note reviews 8 5 1213 Hams, Paul Video Tape Book and lecture note reviews 8 5 1215 East, Alex The Magician's Name Trick - CT: Oil And Water 8 5 1215 Besset, Henrik The Test Tube Child Trick - CT: Packet 8 5 1216 Tucker, Stephen The Deluxe Chink Box Trick - CT: Packet 8 5 1216 Tucker, Stephen The Incomplete Deck Trick - CT:	Specht, Henrik	The Kangaroo Spots	Trick - CT: Packet	8	4	1202
Richardson, Barrie Pocket Dictionary Book-Tests Trick - M: Book And Newspaper 8 4 1205 Tucker, Stephen Departure Lounge Trick - CT: Sandwich 8 4 1206 Page, Patrick Blackpool; Dobson's act; night before cluters The Page Boy Speaks article 8 5 1212 Walton, Roy The 229-224 Trick Trick - CT: Prediction, M: Number/Object Prediction 8 5 1213 Tucker, Stephen Eric Mason ill; delays in Britland & Goldstein issues Editorial article 8 5 1213 Wonder, Tommy Wonder Material Book and lecture note reviews 8 5 1214 East, Alex The Magician's Name Trick - CT: Oil And Water 8 5 1215 Spech, Henrik The Test Tube Child Trick - CT: Packet 8 5 1216 Breese, Martin The Deluxe Chink Box Trick - CDin: Through 8 5 1216 Giobbi, Roberto The Drojan Deck Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting 8 5 1220 Tucker, Stephen The In	Walton, Roy	I'd Give My Right Hand	Trick - CT: Tom	8	4	1202
Tucker, Stephen Departure Lounge Trick - CT: Sandwich 8 4 1206 Page, Patrick Blackpool; Dobson's act; night before lectures The Page Boy Speaks article 8 4 1208 Walton, Roy The 229-224 Trick Trick - CT: Prediction, M: Number/Object Prediction 8 5 1212 Tucker, Stephen Eric Mason ill; delays in Britland & Editorial article Editorial article 8 5 1213 Wonder, Tommy Wonder Material Book and lecture note reviews 8 5 1213 Hams, Paul Video Tape Book and lecture note reviews 8 5 1213 Hams, Paul Video Tape Book and lecture note reviews 8 5 1213 Beast, Alex The Magician's Name Trick - CT: Oil And Water 8 5 1213 Beast, Alex The Magician's Name Trick - CD: Packet 8 5 1216 Tucker, Stephen The Deluxe Chink Box Trick - CD: Packet 8 5 1216 Giobbi, Roberto The Incomplete Deck Trick - CT	Giobbi, Roberto	The Joker Folds Up	Trick - CT: Discoveries	8	4	1203
Page, Patrick Blackpool; Dobson's act; night before lectures The Page Boy Speaks article lectures 8 4 1208 Walton, Roy The 229-224 Trick Trick - CT: Prediction, M: Number/Object Prediction 8 5 1212 Tucker, Stephen Eric Mason ill; delays in Britland & Goldstein issues Editorial article 8 5 1213 Wonder, Tommy Wonder Material Book and lecture note reviews 8 5 1213 Hams, Paul Video Tape Book and lecture note reviews 8 5 1214 East, Alex The Magician's Name Trick - CT: Oll And Water 8 5 1215 Speecht, Henrik The Test Tube Child Trick - CT: Packet 8 5 1216 Tucker, Stephen The Deluxe Chink Box Trick - Cin: Through 8 5 1216 Tucker, Stephen The Trojan Deck Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting 8 5 1220 Page, Patrick Reading magic magazines; tricks not good; Quotation The Page Boy Speaks article 8 6 1222 Lees, Walt <td>Richardson, Barrie</td> <td>Pocket Dictionary Book-Tests</td> <td>Trick - M: Book And Newspaper</td> <td>8</td> <td>4</td> <td>1205</td>	Richardson, Barrie	Pocket Dictionary Book-Tests	Trick - M: Book And Newspaper	8	4	1205
Nation, Roy The 229-224 Trick Trick - CT: Prediction, M: Number/Object Prediction S 1212	Tucker, Stephen	Departure Lounge	Trick - CT: Sandwich	8	4	1206
Tucker, Stephen Eric Mason ill; delays in Britland & Goldstein issues Editorial article 8 5 1213 Wonder, Tommy Wonder Material Book and lecture note reviews 8 5 1213 Hams, Paul Video Tape Book and lecture note reviews 8 5 1214 East, Alex The Magician's Name Trick - CT: Oil And Water 8 5 1215 Breese, Martin The Deluxe Chink Box Trick - CT: Packet 8 5 1215 Tucker, Stephen The Deluxe Chink Box Trick - Coin: Through 8 5 1216 Tucker, Stephen The Deluxe Chink Box Trick - CT: Matching 8 5 1216 Tucker, Stephen The Incomplete Deck Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting 8 5 1220 Page, Patrick Reading magic magazines; tricks not good, Quotation Reading magic magazines; tricks not goo	Page, Patrick		The Page Boy Speaks article	8	4	1208
Wonder, Tommy Wonder Material Book and lecture note reviews 8 5 1213 Hams, Paul Video Tape Book and lecture note reviews 8 5 1214 East, Alex The Magician's Name Trick - CT: Oil And Water 8 5 1215 Specht, Henrik The Test Tube Child Trick - CT: Oil And Water 8 5 1215 Breese, Martin The Deluxe Chink Box Trick - Coin: Through 8 5 1216 Giobbi, Roberto The Deluxe Chink Box Trick - Coin: Through 8 5 1216 Giobbi, Roberto The Deluxe Chink Box Trick - CT: Matching 8 5 1216 Giobbi, Roberto The Deluxe Chink Box Trick - CT: Matching 8 5 1216 Giobbi, Roberto The Deluxe Chink Box Trick - CT: Matching 8 5 1216 Giobbi, Roberto The Deninc Defect Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting 8 5 1220 Page, Patrick Book Of Thumb Tips Book and lecture note reviews 8 6	Walton, Roy	The 229-224 Trick		8	5	1212
Hams, Paul Video Tape Book and lecture note reviews 8 5 1214 East, Alex The Magician's Name Trick - CT: Oil And Water 8 5 1215 Specht, Henrik The Test Tube Child Trick - CT: Packet 8 5 1215 Breese, Martin The Deluxe Chink Box Trick - Coin: Through 8 5 1216 Tucker, Stephen The Deluxe Chink Box Trick - Coin: Through 8 5 1216 Giobbi, Roberto The Trojan Deck Trick - CT: Matching 8 5 1210 Tucker, Stephen The Incomplete Deck Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting 8 5 1220 Page, Patrick Reading magic magazines; tricks not good; Quotation Roberto The Art Of The Grafter Book and lecture note reviews 8 6 1222 Page, Patrick Book Of Thumb Tips Book and lecture note reviews 8 6 1226 Page, Patrick Book Of Thumb Tips Book and lecture note reviews 8 6 1226 Monmoine, Pascal The Domino Effect Trick - CT: Discoveries 8 6 1228 Monmoine, Pascal Forceful Revelation Trick - CT: Oiler Speling And Counting 8 6 1228 Monmoine, Pascal The Domino Effect Trick - CT: Discoveries 8 6 1228 Monmoine, Pascal The Domino Effect Trick - CT: Discoveries 8 6 1228 Monmoine, Pascal The Domino Effect Trick - CT: Oiler Speling And Counting 8 6 1228 Monmoine, Pascal The Domino Effect Trick - CT: Discoveries 8 6 1228 Monmoine, Pascal The Domino Effect Trick - CT: Discoveries 8 6 1228 Monmoine, Pascal The Incomplete Deck Trick - CT: Other 8 6 1230 Monmoine, Pascal The Incomplete Deck Trick - CT: Other 8 6 1230 Monmoine, Pascal The Irresistible Force Trick - CT: Other 8 6 1231 Monmoine, Pascal The Irresistible Force Trick - CT: Tomp, Pen 8 6 1233 Monmoine, Pascal The Irresistible Force Trick - CT: Tomp, Pen 8 6 1233 Monmoine, Pascal Staircase Trick - CT: Ambitious 8 6 1236 Monmoine, Pascal The Irresistible Force Trick - CT: Tomp, Pen 8 6 1236 Monmoine, Pascal Staircase Trick - CT: Ambitious 8 6 1236 Monmoine, Pascal David France Trick - CT: Ambitious 8 6 1236 Monmoine, Pascal David France Trick - CT: Ambitious 8 6 1237 Monmoine, Pascal David France Trick - CT: Ambitious 8 6 1237 Monmoine, Pascal David France Trick - CT: Ambitious 8 6 1237 Monmoine, Pascal David F	Tucker, Stephen		Editorial article	8	5	1213
East, AlexThe Magician's NameTrick - CT: Oil And Water851215Specht, HenrikThe Test Tube ChildTrick - CT: Packet851215Breese, MartinThe Deluxe Chink BoxTrick - Coin: Through851216Tucker, StephenThe Deluxe Chink BoxTrick - Coin: Through851216Giobbi, RobertoThe Trojan DeckTrick - CT: Matching851219Tucker, StephenThe Incomplete DeckTrick - CT: Spelling And Counting851220Page, PatrickReading magic magazines; tricks not good; QuotationThe Page Boy Speaks article good; Quotation861226Lees, WaltThe Art Of The GrafterBook and lecture note reviews861226Page, PatrickBook Of Thumb TipsBook and lecture note reviews861226Page, PatrickTommy Cooper death; Monmoine issue; colour change caseEditorial article861226Monmoine, PascalThe Domino EffectTrick - CT: Discoveries861227Monmoine, PascalForceful RevelationTrick - CS: Forcing861228Monmoine, PascalCard Through The Table From A DistanceTrick - CT: Other861231Monmoine, PascalChameleonTrick - CT: Colured Backs861231Monmoine, PascalThe Irresistible ForceTrick - CT: Tom, Pen861233Monmoine, PascalStaircaseTrick - CT: To	Wonder, Tommy	Wonder Material	Book and lecture note reviews	8	5	1213
Specht, Henrik The Test Tube Child Trick - CT: Packet 8 5 1215 Breese, Martin The Deluxe Chink Box Trick - Coin: Through 8 5 1216 Tucker, Stephen The Deluxe Chink Box Trick - Coin: Through 8 5 1216 Giobbi, Roberto The Trojan Deck Trick - CT: Matching 8 5 1219 Tucker, Stephen The Incomplete Deck Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting 8 5 1220 Page, Patrick Reading magic magazines; tricks not good; Quotation The Page Boy Speaks article good; Quotation 8 6 1226 Lees, Walt The Art Of The Grafter Book and lecture note reviews 8 6 1226 Page, Patrick Book Of Thumb Tips Book and lecture note reviews 8 6 1226 Tucker, Stephen Tommy Cooper death; Monmoine good Trick - CT: Discoveries 8 6 1226 Monmoine, Pascal Forceful Revelation Trick - CS: Forcing 8 6 1227 Monmoine, Pascal Shattered	Hams, Paul	Video Tape	Book and lecture note reviews	8	5	1214
Breese, Martin The Deluxe Chink Box Trick - Coin: Through 8 5 1216 Tucker, Stephen The Deluxe Chink Box Trick - Coin: Through 8 5 1216 Giobbi, Roberto The Trojan Deck Trick - Coin: Through 8 5 1219 Tucker, Stephen The Incomplete Deck Trick - CT: Matching 8 5 1220 Page, Patrick Reading magic magazines; tricks not good; Quotation The Art Of The Grafter Book and lecture note reviews 8 6 1222 Lees, Walt The Art Of The Grafter Book and lecture note reviews 8 6 1226 Page, Patrick Book Of Thumb Tips Book and lecture note reviews 8 6 1226 Tucker, Stephen Tommy Cooper death; Monmoine Editorial article issue; colour change case Monmoine, Pascal The Domino Effect Trick - CT: Discoveries 8 6 1228 Monmoine, Pascal Forceful Revelation Trick - CS: Forcing 8 6 1229 Monmoine, Pascal Card Through The Table From A Distance Trick - CT: Coloured Backs 8 6 1230 Monmoine, Pascal The Irresitible Force Trick - CT: Coloured Backs 8 6 1233 Monmoine, Pascal The Irresitible Force Trick - CT: Tom, Pen 8 6 1233 Monmoine, Pascal Card In Pen Trick - CT: Tom, Pen 8 6 1233 Monmoine, Pascal The Irresitible Force Trick - CT: Tom, Pen 8 6 1233 Monmoine, Pascal Card In Pen Trick - CT: Tom, Pen 8 6 1233 Monmoine, Pascal Staircase Trick - CT: Ambitious 8 6 1234 Monmoine, Pascal And Finally Trick - CS: Control, CT: Four Ace, Thread Page, Patrick Busking in Covent Garden; Page busking; private parties Richardson, Barrie Do You Wish To Continue Trick - CT: Matching 8 7 1240	East, Alex	The Magician's Name	Trick - CT: Oil And Water	8	5	1215
Tucker, StephenThe Deluxe Chink BoxTrick - Coin: Through851216Giobbi, RobertoThe Trojan DeckTrick - CT: Matching851219Tucker, StephenThe Incomplete DeckTrick - CT: Spelling And Counting851220Page, PatrickReading magic magazines; tricks not good; QuotationThe Page Boy Speaks article851222Lees, WaltThe Art Of The GrafterBook and lecture note reviews861226Page, PatrickBook Of Thumb TipsBook and lecture note reviews861226Page, PatrickTommy Cooper death; Monmoine issue; colour change caseEditorial article861227Monmoine, PascalThe Domino EffectTrick - CT: Discoveries861227Monmoine, PascalForceful RevelationTrick - CS: Forcing861228Monmoine, PascalCard Through The Table From A DistanceTrick - CT: Other861229Monmoine, PascalChameleonTrick - CT: Other861230Monmoine, PascalThe Irresitible ForceTrick - CS: Forcing861231Monmoine, PascalChameleonTrick - CS: Forcing861233Monmoine, PascalThe Irresitible ForceTrick - CS: Forcing861233Monmoine, PascalTreadTrick - CT: Tom, Pen861234Monmoine, PascalStaircaseTrick - CT: Ambitious8612	Specht, Henrik	The Test Tube Child	Trick - CT: Packet	8	5	1215
Giobbi, RobertoThe Trojan DeckTrick - CT: Matching851219Tucker, StephenThe Incomplete DeckTrick - CT: Spelling And Counting851220Page, PatrickReading magic magazines; tricks not good; QuotationThe Page Boy Speaks article851222Lees, WaltThe Art Of The GrafterBook and lecture note reviews861226Page, PatrickBook Of Thumb TipsBook and lecture note reviews861226Tucker, StephenTommy Cooper death; Monmoine issue; colour change caseEditorial article861227Monmoine, PascalThe Domino EffectTrick - CT: Discoveries861227Monmoine, PascalForceful RevelationTrick - CS: Forcing861228Monmoine, PascalCard Through The Table From A DistanceTrick - CT: Other861230Monmoine, PascalShatteredTrick - CT: Other861230Monmoine, PascalChameleonTrick - CT: Coloured Backs861231Monmoine, PascalThe Irresistible ForceTrick - CT: Tom, Pen861234Monmoine, PascalCard In PenTrick - CT: Tom, Pen861234Monmoine, PascalI've Seen A Rubber BandTrick - CT: Ambitious861234Monmoine, PascalStaircaseTrick - CT: Ambitious861236Monmoine, PascalAnd FinallyTrick - CS: Control, CT: Four Ace, busking; pr	Breese, Martin	The Deluxe Chink Box	Trick - Coin: Through	8	5	1216
Tucker, StephenThe Incomplete DeckTrick - CT: Spelling And Counting851220Page, PatrickReading magic magazines; tricks not good; QuotationThe Page Boy Speaks article851222Lees, WaltThe Art Of The GrafterBook and lecture note reviews861226Page, PatrickBook Of Thumb TipsBook and lecture note reviews861226Tucker, StephenTommy Cooper death; Monmoine issue; colour change caseEditorial article861226Monmoine, PascalThe Domino EffectTrick - CT: Discoveries861227Monmoine, PascalForceful RevelationTrick - CS: Forcing861228Monmoine, PascalCard Through The Table From A DistanceTrick - CT: Other861229Monmoine, PascalShatteredTrick - Coin: Through, Glass861230Monmoine, PascalChameleonTrick - CT: Coloured Backs861231Monmoine, PascalThe Irresistible ForceTrick - CS: Forcing861232Monmoine, PascalCard In PenTrick - CS: Forcing861233Monmoine, PascalI've Seen A Rubber BandTrick - CT: Tom, Pen861234Monmoine, PascalStaircaseTrick - CT: Ambitious861234Monmoine, PascalAnd FinallyTrick - CS: Control, CT: Four Ace, Thread861237Page, PatrickBusking in Covent Garden; Page busking; pri	Tucker, Stephen	The Deluxe Chink Box	Trick - Coin: Through	8	5	1216
Page, PatrickReading magic magazines; tricks not good; QuotationThe Page Boy Speaks article good; Quotation851222Lees, WaltThe Art Of The GrafterBook and lecture note reviews861226Page, PatrickBook Of Thumb TipsBook and lecture note reviews861226Tucker, StephenTommy Cooper death; Monmoine issue; colour change caseEditorial article861226Monmoine, PascalThe Domino EffectTrick - CT: Discoveries861227Monmoine, PascalForceful RevelationTrick - CS: Forcing861228Monmoine, PascalCard Through The Table From A DistanceTrick - CT: Other861229Monmoine, PascalShatteredTrick - CT: Other861230Monmoine, PascalChameleonTrick - CT: Coloured Backs861231Monmoine, PascalThe Irresistible ForceTrick - CS: Forcing861232Monmoine, PascalCard In PenTrick - CS: Forcing861233Monmoine, PascalI've Seen A Rubber BandTrick - Elastic Band, Match, Wooden, Thumb Tip861235Monmoine, PascalStaircaseTrick - CT: Ambitious861235Monmoine, PascalStaircaseTrick - CT: Ambitious861235Monmoine, PascalBusking in Covent Garden; Page busking; private partiesThe Page Boy Speaks article861237Richardson, Barrie <t< td=""><td>Giobbi, Roberto</td><td>The Trojan Deck</td><td>Trick - CT: Matching</td><td>8</td><td>5</td><td>1219</td></t<>	Giobbi, Roberto	The Trojan Deck	Trick - CT: Matching	8	5	1219
Lees, WaltThe Art Of The GrafterBook and lecture note reviews861226Page, PatrickBook Of Thumb TipsBook and lecture note reviews861226Tucker, StephenTommy Cooper death; Monmoine issue; colour change caseEditorial article861226Monmoine, PascalThe Domino EffectTrick - CT: Discoveries861227Monmoine, PascalForceful RevelationTrick - CS: Forcing861228Monmoine, PascalCard Through The Table From A DistanceTrick - CT: Other861229Monmoine, PascalShatteredTrick - Coin: Through, Glass861230Monmoine, PascalChameleonTrick - CT: Coloured Backs861231Monmoine, PascalThe Irresistible ForceTrick - CS: Forcing861232Monmoine, PascalCard In PenTrick - CT: Tom, Pen861233Monmoine, PascalI've Seen A Rubber BandTrick - CT: Tom, Pen861234Monmoine, PascalStaircaseTrick - CT: Ambitious861235Monmoine, PascalStaircaseTrick - CT: Ambitious861235Monmoine, PascalBusking in Covent Garden; Page busking; private partiesThe Page Boy Speaks article861237Richardson, BarrieDo You Wish To ContinueTrick - CT: Matching871240	Tucker, Stephen	The Incomplete Deck	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	8	5	1220
Page, PatrickBook Of Thumb TipsBook and lecture note reviews861226Tucker, StephenTommy Cooper death; Monmoine issue; colour change caseEditorial article861226Monmoine, PascalThe Domino EffectTrick - CT: Discoveries861227Monmoine, PascalForceful RevelationTrick - CS: Forcing861228Monmoine, PascalCard Through The Table From A DistanceTrick - CT: Other861229Monmoine, PascalShatteredTrick - Coin: Through, Glass861230Monmoine, PascalChameleonTrick - CT: Coloured Backs861231Monmoine, PascalThe Irresistible ForceTrick - CS: Forcing861232Monmoine, PascalCard In PenTrick - CS: Forcing861233Monmoine, PascalI ve Seen A Rubber BandTrick - CT: Tom, Pen861234Monmoine, PascalStaircaseTrick - CT: Ambitious861235Monmoine, PascalAnd FinallyTrick - CS: Control, CT: Four Ace, Thread861236Page, PatrickBusking in Covent Garden; Page busking; private partiesThe Page Boy Speaks article861237Richardson, BarrieDo You Wish To ContinueTrick - CT: Matching871240	Page, Patrick		The Page Boy Speaks article	8	5	1222
Tucker, StephenTommy Cooper death; Monmoine issue; colour change caseEditorial article861226Monmoine, PascalThe Domino EffectTrick - CT: Discoveries861227Monmoine, PascalForceful RevelationTrick - CS: Forcing861228Monmoine, PascalCard Through The Table From A DistanceTrick - CT: Other861229Monmoine, PascalShatteredTrick - Coin: Through, Glass861230Monmoine, PascalChameleonTrick - CT: Coloured Backs861231Monmoine, PascalThe Irresistible ForceTrick - CS: Forcing861232Monmoine, PascalCard In PenTrick - CT: Tom, Pen861233Monmoine, PascalI've Seen A Rubber BandTrick - Elastic Band, Match, Wooden, Thumb Tip861234Monmoine, PascalStaircaseTrick - CT: Ambitious861236Monmoine, PascalAnd FinallyTrick - CS: Control, CT: Four Ace, Thread861237Page, PatrickBusking in Covent Garden; Page busking; private partiesThe Page Boy Speaks article861237Richardson, BarrieDo You Wish To ContinueTrick - CT: Matching871240	Lees, Walt	The Art Of The Grafter	Book and lecture note reviews	8	6	1226
Monmoine, Pascal The Domino Effect Trick - CT: Discoveries 8 6 1227 Monmoine, Pascal Forceful Revelation Trick - CS: Forcing 8 6 1228 Monmoine, Pascal Card Through The Table From A Distance Trick - CT: Other 8 6 1229 Monmoine, Pascal Shattered Trick - Coin: Through, Glass 8 6 1230 Monmoine, Pascal Chameleon Trick - CT: Coloured Backs 8 6 1231 Monmoine, Pascal The Irresistible Force Trick - CS: Forcing 8 6 1232 Monmoine, Pascal Card In Pen Trick - CT: Tom, Pen 8 6 1233 Monmoine, Pascal Tre Seen A Rubber Band Trick - CT: Tom, Pen 8 6 1234 Monmoine, Pascal Trick - CT: Ambitious 8 6 1234 Monmoine, Pascal Trick - CT: Ambitious 8 6 1234 Monmoine, Pascal Trick - CT: Ambitious 8 6 1235 Monmoine, Pascal Trick - CT: Ambitious 8 6 1236 Monmoine, Pascal Trick - CT: Ambitious 8 6 1236 Monmoine, Pascal Trick - CT: Coloured Backs 8 6 1236 Monmoine, Pascal Trick - CT: Tom, Pen 8 6 1234 Monmoine, Pascal Trick - CT: Tom, Pen 8 6 1234 Monmoine, Pascal Trick - CT: Ambitious 8 6 1236 Monmoine, Pascal Trick - CT: Ambitious 8 6 1236 Monmoine, Pascal Dusking in Covent Garden; Page busking; private parties Richardson, Barrie Do You Wish To Continue Trick - CT: Matching 8 7 1240	Page, Patrick	Book Of Thumb Tips	Book and lecture note reviews	8	6	1226
Monmoine, PascalForceful RevelationTrick - CS: Forcing861228Monmoine, PascalCard Through The Table From A DistanceTrick - CT: Other861229Monmoine, PascalShatteredTrick - Coin: Through, Glass861230Monmoine, PascalChameleonTrick - CT: Coloured Backs861231Monmoine, PascalThe Irresistible ForceTrick - CS: Forcing861232Monmoine, PascalCard In PenTrick - CT: Tom, Pen861233Monmoine, PascalI've Seen A Rubber BandTrick - Elastic Band, Match, Wooden, Thumb Tip861234Monmoine, PascalStaircaseTrick - CT: Ambitious861235Monmoine, PascalAnd FinallyTrick - CS: Control, CT: Four Ace, Thread861236Page, PatrickBusking in Covent Garden; Page busking; private partiesThe Page Boy Speaks article861237Richardson, BarrieDo You Wish To ContinueTrick - CT: Matching871240	Tucker, Stephen		Editorial article	8	6	1226
Monmoine, PascalCard Through The Table From A DistanceTrick - CT: Other861229Monmoine, PascalShatteredTrick - Coin: Through, Glass861230Monmoine, PascalChameleonTrick - CT: Coloured Backs861231Monmoine, PascalThe Irresistible ForceTrick - CS: Forcing861232Monmoine, PascalCard In PenTrick - CT: Tom, Pen861233Monmoine, PascalI've Seen A Rubber BandTrick - Elastic Band, Match, Wooden, Thumb Tip861234Monmoine, PascalStaircaseTrick - CT: Ambitious861235Monmoine, PascalAnd FinallyTrick - CS: Control, CT: Four Ace, Thread861236Page, PatrickBusking in Covent Garden; Page busking; private partiesThe Page Boy Speaks article busking; private parties861237Richardson, BarrieDo You Wish To ContinueTrick - CT: Matching871240	Monmoine, Pascal	The Domino Effect	Trick - CT: Discoveries	8	6	1227
Monmoine, Pascal Shattered Trick - Coin: Through, Glass 8 6 1230 Monmoine, Pascal Chameleon Trick - CT: Coloured Backs 8 6 1231 Monmoine, Pascal The Irresistible Force Trick - CS: Forcing 8 6 1232 Monmoine, Pascal Card In Pen Trick - CT: Tom, Pen 8 6 1233 Monmoine, Pascal I've Seen A Rubber Band Trick - Elastic Band, Match, Wooden, Thumb Tip Monmoine, Pascal Staircase Trick - CT: Ambitious 8 6 1235 Monmoine, Pascal And Finally Trick - CS: Control, CT: Four Ace, 8 6 1236 Page, Patrick Busking in Covent Garden; Page busking; private parties Richardson, Barrie Do You Wish To Continue Trick - CT: Matching 8 7 1240	Monmoine, Pascal	Forceful Revelation	Trick - CS: Forcing	8	6	1228
Monmoine, PascalChameleonTrick - CT: Coloured Backs861231Monmoine, PascalThe Irresistible ForceTrick - CS: Forcing861232Monmoine, PascalCard In PenTrick - CT: Tom, Pen861233Monmoine, PascalI've Seen A Rubber BandTrick - Elastic Band, Match, Wooden, Thumb Tip861234Monmoine, PascalStaircaseTrick - CT: Ambitious861235Monmoine, PascalAnd FinallyTrick - CS: Control, CT: Four Ace, Thread861236Page, PatrickBusking in Covent Garden; Page busking; private partiesThe Page Boy Speaks article861237Richardson, BarrieDo You Wish To ContinueTrick - CT: Matching871240	Monmoine, Pascal		Trick - CT: Other	8	6	1229
Monmoine, PascalThe Irresistible ForceTrick - CS: Forcing861232Monmoine, PascalCard In PenTrick - CT: Tom, Pen861233Monmoine, PascalI've Seen A Rubber BandTrick - Elastic Band, Match, Wooden, Thumb Tip861234Monmoine, PascalStaircaseTrick - CT: Ambitious861235Monmoine, PascalAnd FinallyTrick - CS: Control, CT: Four Ace, Thread861236Page, PatrickBusking in Covent Garden; Page busking; private partiesThe Page Boy Speaks article861237Richardson, BarrieDo You Wish To ContinueTrick - CT: Matching871240	Monmoine, Pascal	Shattered	Trick - Coin: Through, Glass	8	6	1230
Monmoine, PascalCard In PenTrick - CT: Tom, Pen861233Monmoine, PascalI've Seen A Rubber BandTrick - Elastic Band, Match, Wooden, Thumb Tip861234Monmoine, PascalStaircaseTrick - CT: Ambitious861235Monmoine, PascalAnd FinallyTrick - CS: Control, CT: Four Ace, Thread861236Page, PatrickBusking in Covent Garden; Page busking; private partiesThe Page Boy Speaks article861237Richardson, BarrieDo You Wish To ContinueTrick - CT: Matching871240	Monmoine, Pascal	Chameleon	Trick - CT: Coloured Backs	8	6	1231
Monmoine, PascalI've Seen A Rubber BandTrick - Elastic Band, Match, Wooden, Thumb Tip861234Monmoine, PascalStaircaseTrick - CT: Ambitious861235Monmoine, PascalAnd FinallyTrick - CS: Control, CT: Four Ace, Thread861236Page, PatrickBusking in Covent Garden; Page busking; private partiesThe Page Boy Speaks article861237Richardson, BarrieDo You Wish To ContinueTrick - CT: Matching871240	Monmoine, Pascal	The Irresistible Force	Trick - CS: Forcing	8	6	1232
Monmoine, PascalStaircaseTrick - CT: Ambitious861235Monmoine, PascalAnd FinallyTrick - CS: Control, CT: Four Ace, Thread861236Page, PatrickBusking in Covent Garden; Page busking; private partiesThe Page Boy Speaks article busking; private parties861237Richardson, BarrieDo You Wish To ContinueTrick - CT: Matching871240	Monmoine, Pascal	Card In Pen	Trick - CT: Tom, Pen	8	6	1233
Monmoine, PascalAnd FinallyTrick - CS: Control, CT: Four Ace, Thread861236Page, PatrickBusking in Covent Garden; Page busking; private partiesThe Page Boy Speaks article861237Richardson, BarrieDo You Wish To ContinueTrick - CT: Matching871240	Monmoine, Pascal	I've Seen A Rubber Band		8	6	1234
Thread Page, Patrick Busking in Covent Garden; Page busking; private parties The Page Boy Speaks article 8 6 1237 Richardson, Barrie Do You Wish To Continue Trick - CT: Matching 8 7 1240	Monmoine, Pascal	Staircase	_	8	6	1235
busking; private parties Richardson, Barrie Do You Wish To Continue Trick - CT: Matching 8 7 1240		And Finally		8	6	1236
Richardson, Barrie Do You Wish To Continue Trick - CT: Matching 8 7 1240	Page, Patrick		The Page Boy Speaks article	8	6	1237
	Richardson, Barrie	* * *	Trick - CT: Matching	8	7	1240
	Rackerbaumer, Jon	Card Puzzle Book	_	8	7	1242

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Tucker, Stephen	Pabular delays; future contributors; Lees editing Repro	Editorial article	8	7	1242
Giobbi, Roberto	For Susan	Trick - CT: Assembly	8	7	1243
Keable-Elliott, Ian	Philippe Socrate Lecture	Lecture and convention review	8	7	1245
Walton, Roy	Rainbow Road	Trick - CT: Coloured Backs	8	7	1246
Tucker, Stephen	A Devil's DozenPlus Two	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	8	7	1247
Giobbi, Roberto	1, 2, 3 & 4 Queens	Trick - CT: Transposition	8	7	1248
Palmer, Archie	Intrigue Two	Trick - CT: Packet	8	7	1248
Worsley, Bill	Intrigue Two	Trick - CT: Packet	8	7	1248
Aukes, John	Straight And Round	Trick - CT: Discoveries	8	7	1250
Aukes, John	Double Lift With One Card	Trick - CS: Double Lift	8	7	1251
Tucker, Stephen	Card-Warper	Trick - CT: Tom	8	7	1251
Page, Patrick	Watching Olympics: magic competitions; Jay at Sothebys	The Page Boy Speaks article	8	7	1253
Harris, Paul	Close-Up Seductions	Book and lecture note reviews	8	8	1256
Tucker, Stephen	Scottish contingent book review; Close-Up at IBM	Editorial article	8	8	1256
Walton, Roy	Triple Alliance	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	8	8	1256
Galloway, Andy	Vernon's Indicator	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	8	8	1258
Walton, Roy	Sum Trick	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	8	8	1259
Hamilton, Steven	Going Going Gone	Trick - CT: Vanishing	8	8	1260
Cameron, Douglas	Devil's Delight	Trick - CT: Four Ace	8	8	1261
Duggal, Shiv (See also Shiv)	Best Shot	Trick - CT: Sandwich	8	8	1263
Tucker, Stephen	Literally Spelling The Aces	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	8	8	1264
Grierson, M B	Lost Fumbulators	Trick - Envelope, Sight Gag	8	8	1265
Tucker, Stephen	I Met A Card That Wasn't There	Trick - CT: Discoveries	8	8	1266
Goodwin, Alf	The Maneaters	Trick - CT: Collectors	8	8	1267
Page, Patrick	IBM: dealers, overseas visitors, Alf Moore's death	The Page Boy Speaks article	8	8	1268
Tucker, Stephen	The Maneaters	Trick - CT: Collectors	8	8	1268
Lees, Walt	The Best Of Close-Up Magic	Book and lecture note reviews	8	9	1271
Rackerbaumer, Jon	The Card Puzzle & Other Diversions	Book and lecture note reviews	8	9	1271
Tucker, Stephen	Phil Goldstein; Ian Land's free manuscripts	Editorial article	8	9	1271
Goldstein, Phil	Tag Team	Trick - CT: Matching	8	9	1272
Goldstein, Phil	Queens And Water	Trick - CT: Oil And Water	8	9	1273
Goldstein, Phil	Stand Up And Be Counting	Trick - CT: Separation	8	9	1273
Goldstein, Phil	Greetings	Trick - CT: Packet	8	9	1275
Goldstein, Phil	Eye-Cue	Trick - M: Mental Matching	8	9	1276
Goldstein, Phil	Paper Chase	Trick - M: Living And Dead	8	9	1276
Goldstein, Phil	Brackets	Trick - CT: Packet	8	9	1277
Page, Patrick	Women in Circle; old books; importance of presentation	The Page Boy Speaks article	8	9	1279
Tucker, Stephen	Delayed issue; Harrogate; BMS dinner, Italian tour	Editorial article	8	10	1283
Carney, John	Poor Mans Card Manipulation	Trick - CT: Vanishing	8	10	1284
Duco, El	Simple Ideas In Magic No. 1	Book and lecture note reviews	8	10	1284
Harris, Ben	Beyond The Black Hole	Book and lecture note reviews	8	10	1284
Harris, Ben	Needled	Book and lecture note reviews	8	10	1284
Harris, Ben	Pen-Note-Tration	Book and lecture note reviews	8	10	1284

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Harris, Ben	Prime Hole Card	Book and lecture note reviews	8	10	1284
Tucker, Stephen	Spondulies Plus Mentalism	Trick - Coin: Prediction, M: Number/Object Prediction	8	10	1286
Richardson, Barrie	Less Is More	Trick - CT: Discoveries	8	10	1287
Ljunberg, Gay	Murder Game	Trick - M: Living And Dead	8	10	1288
Land, Ian	Quatemity	Trick - CT: Discoveries	8	10	1290
Land, Ian	One By One	Trick - CT: Reversal	8	10	1291
Duco, El	Slow Motion Penetration	Trick - Dice, Glass	8	10	1292
Land, Ian	One by One (Another One)	Trick - CT: Reversal	8	10	1292
Hallas, Paul	Mexican Spectator Change	Trick - CT: Transposition	8	10	1293
Page, Patrick	Originality; great performers - maybe Wayne Dobson	The Page Boy Speaks article	8	10	1294

THE PABULAR INDEX: TRICKS BY CATEGORY

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Robinson, Fred	Oasis	Trick - Alarm Clock	4	11	601
Kane, Peter	Focus	Trick - Bank Note	1	5	63
Read, Bob	Business For Roll Of Notes	Trick - Bank Note	1	7	81
Carré, David	Torn & Restored Bank Note	Trick - Bank Note	3	6	361
Bema, Jos (Also see Wonder)	Splitting The Money	Trick - Bank Note	4	2	475
Mason, Eric	Make A Note Of It	Trick - Bank Note	5	8	716
Johnsson, Rick	Rip Off	Trick - Bank Note	6	8	893
Setterington, Arthur	Sandwich Escape	Trick - Bank Note	6	11	942
Turpin, Dick	More Reflections Of Horace Spencer	Trick - Bank Note	7	3	1005
Mason, Eric	A Pound With A Bottle	Trick - Bank Note, Bottle, Coin: Through	4	9	574
Ben, David	Holy Smoke	Trick - Bank Note, Cigarette, Coin: Production	7	1	972
Charnley, Keith	Coin And Cover	Trick - Bank Note, Coin: Production, Wallet	5	8	721
Setterington, Arthur	Chop Coin	Trick - Bank Note, Coin: Vanish	1	8	94
Brooke, Ken	I-O-U	Trick - Bank Note, CT: Torn, CT: Wallet	6	3	816
Richardson, Barrie	Dollar Divination	Trick - Bank Note, M: Number/Object Prediction	7	5	1034
Jennings, Larry	Festive Fun	Trick - Bottle	2	4	194
Setterington, Arthur	Disc-O	Trick - Bottle Top	1	3	30
Crush, Peter	Peter's Presto Pop-In	Trick - Bottle, Coin: Through	4	9	575
Antonioli, Dr Brum	Focus	Trick - Calculator	1	7	87
Weston, Mark	The Calculator Business	Trick - Calculator	1	12	140
Walton, Roy	Baker Street Re-visited	Trick - Calculator	3	4	338
Johnson, Les	Micro Magic	Trick - Calculator, CT: Discoveries	7	10	1118
Robinson, Fred	Icebreaker	Trick - Cigarette	1	2	16
Anon	Focus	Trick - Cigarette	1	4	49
Robinson, Fred	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette	4	2	472
Allen, Vic	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette	4	2	473
Robinson, Fred	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette	4	3	489
Robinson, Fred	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette	4	3	490
Hird, Percy	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette	4	4	505
Merelle, Stanley	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette	4	6	530
Robinson, Fred	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette	4	6	530
Borra	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette	4	7	548
Page, Pat	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette	4	7	548
Heins, Jan	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette	4	10	589
Wonder, Tommy (See also Bema)	Torn And Restored Cigarette	Trick - Cigarette	7	4	1018
Gamble, Richard M	Giant Cigarette Production	Trick - Cigarette	7	4	1023
Gamble, Richard M	A Sweet Cigarette	Trick - Cigarette	7	12	1146
Robinson, Fred	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette, Handkerchief, Match, Box, Pipe	4	9	576

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Robinson, Fred	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette, Match, Paper	4	11	603
Heins, Jan	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette, Match, Wooden	4	3	490
Galloway, Andy	The Cig Trick	Trick - Cigarette, Ticket	2	7	232
Ramsay, John	The Cig Trick	Trick - Cigarette, Ticket	2	7	232
Govan, Barry	Variation On A Circle	Trick - Coin And Card	1	12	144
Read, Bob	Business For The Four Coin Assembly	Trick - Coin And Card	2	1	152
Carré, David	Coin Congregation	Trick - Coin And Card	3	6	363
Dobson, Wayne	Coin Assembly	Trick - Coin And Card	4	12	613
Bruce, Gordon	Coin Assembly	Trick - Coin And Card	5	5	674
Frame, Lawrence	Commercial Coin In Pack	Trick - Coin And Card	7	6	1054
Fox, Kevin	We'll Ring You	Trick - Coin And Card, Dice	1	9	101
Fox, Kevin	Focus	Trick - Coin And Card, Dice	1	10	123
Galloway, Andy	Pegasus Coin	Trick - Coin: Across	1	1	1
Ray, Geoff	Double Exchange	Trick - Coin: Across	1	6	68
Wonder, Tommy (See also Bema)	Coins Across - A Presentation	Trick - Coin: Across	5	2	634
Wonder, Tommy (See also Bema)	Coins Across - A Presentation	Trick - Coin: Across	5	3	652
Charnley, Keith	One in The Eye	Trick - Coin: Across	7	3	1005
Magini	Improved Travelling Coin	Trick - Coin: Across, Glass	1	3	27
Cassidy, Mike	Flight Four	Trick - Coin: Across, Glass	1	7	77
Lees, Walt	Coinjuring	Trick - Coin: Change	2	3	179
Dexter, Will	Inflation Sensation	Trick - Coin: Change	2	5	203
Lewis, Trevor	Transpo Plus	Trick - Coin: Change	2	5	205
Macfadyean, Alex	Switchback	Trick - Coin: Change	2	7	235
Ray, Geoff	Close-Up Quickly	Trick - Coin: Change	3	3	329
Mason, Eric	Amason	Trick - Coin: Change	5	7	703
Lewis, Trevor	Time Flies	Trick - Coin: Change	5	8	720
Galloway, Andy	The Changeling	Trick - Coin: Change	6	3	817
Chiswell, Richard	Handywork	Trick - Coin: Change, Coin: Sleight, Match, Book	4	8	557
Carré, David	Hanky Panky	Trick - Coin: Change, Handkerchief	3	11	435
Robinson, Fred	Edge Spinners	Trick - Coin: Flourish	1	9	106
Robinson, Fred	Circulating Coins	Trick - Coin: Flourish	2	4	190
Read, Bob	Bob's Business	Trick - Coin: Gag And Betcha	1	4	37
Allen, Vic	Helping Hand	Trick - Coin: Gag And Betcha	3	9	407
Weston, Mark	Coin Caper	Trick - Coin: Gag And Betcha	7	12	1150
Read, Bob	Bob's Business	Trick - Coin: Gag And Betcha, Calculator	1	4	51
Snooks, Fred	Oasis	Trick - Coin: Gag And Betcha, Drink Betcha	5	4	663
Read, Bob	Biting The Glass	Trick - Coin: Gag And Betcha, Glass	1	2	19
Stammers, Peter	Impromptu Coin Dropper	Trick - Coin: Gimmick	2	2	167
Robinson, Fred	Blind Date	Trick - Coin: Prediction	1	11	131
Dexter, Will	Cashmatch	Trick - Coin: Prediction	2	5	202
Day, Arthur	A Tuppeny One	Trick - Coin: Prediction	6	1	789
Tucker, Stephen	Spondulies Plus Mentalism	Trick - Coin: Prediction, M: Number/Object Prediction	8	10	1286
Mcfadzean, Alex	Quadruple Inflation	Trick - Coin: Production	6	3	820

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Turpin, Dick	The Drinks Are On Me	Trick - Coin: Production, Glass, Handkerchief	6	11	946
Brooke, Ken	Focus	Trick - Coin: Puzzle	1	4	50
Elmsley, Alex	Festive Fun	Trick - Coin: Puzzle	2	4	192
Faro, Tony	Festive Fun	Trick - Coin: Puzzle, Match, Wooden	2	4	193
Robinson, Fred	Dropit	Trick - Coin: Sleight	2	9	258
Page, Pat	The Page Boy Speaks	Trick - Coin: Sleight	3	5	355
Bruce, Gordon	Take Three	Trick - Coin: Sleight	3	7/8	373
Gilliland, John	Take Three	Trick - Coin: Sleight	3	7/8	373
Page, Pat	Take Three	Trick - Coin: Sleight	3	7/8	373
Setterington, Arthur	Take Three Plus	Trick - Coin: Sleight	4	6	535
Charnley, Keith	A Deceptive Click Pass	Trick - Coin: Sleight	6	9	907
Charnley, Keith	Audible (Fake) Transfer	Trick - Coin: Sleight	7	7	1069
Cameron, Douglas	The Flip Switch	Trick - Coin: Sleight	8	1	1167
Bertram, Ross	Coins Thru Table	Trick - Coin: Through	1	5	62
Carré, David	With An Okito Box	Trick - Coin: Through	2	11	281
Bossi, Van	Hole-Due-Chination	Trick - Coin: Through	3	7/8	381
Brahams, Anthony	Hole-Due-Chination	Trick - Coin: Through	3	7/8	381
Goldstein, Phil	Half Through	Trick - Coin: Through	3	12	452
Sagan, Dorion	Half Through	Trick - Coin: Through	3	12	452
Viswanathan, Anath	Coin Through Hand	Trick - Coin: Through	4	10	591
Wonder, Tommy (See also Bema)	One In The Eye	Trick - Coin: Through	5	4	660
Wonder, Tommy (See also Bema)	Oasis	Trick - Coin: Through	5	7	704
Weston, Mark	Hong Kong Visible Release	Trick - Coin: Through	6	11	942
Breese, Martin	The Deluxe Chink Box	Trick - Coin: Through	8	5	1216
Tucker, Stephen	The Deluxe Chink Box	Trick - Coin: Through	8	5	1216
Richardson, Barrie	Coin In Bottle Mentalism & Molecules	Trick - Coin: Through, Bottle	4	4	501
Hamilton, Bob	Soft Spot	Trick - Coin: Through, Glass	1	10	120
Galloway, Andy	Coin And Jam Jar Routine	Trick - Coin: Through, Glass	2	7	230
Ramsay, John	Coin And Jam Jar Routine	Trick - Coin: Through, Glass	2	7	230
Monmoine, Pascal	Shattered	Trick - Coin: Through, Glass	8	6	1230
Jennings, Larry	Coins And Handkerchief	Trick - Coin: Through, Handkerchief	3	3	325
Lees, Walt	New Finish To Larry Jennings' Coins Through Handkerchief	Trick - Coin: Through, Handkerchief	5	1	624
Johnston, Johnny	Cointraption	Trick - Coin: Through, Sponge Ball	6	11	936
Galloway, Andy	Coin Vanish In The Air	Trick - Coin: Vanish	2	7	230
Ramsay, John	Coin Vanish In The Air	Trick - Coin: Vanish	2	7	230
Chiswell, Richard	A Coin Effect	Trick - Coin: Vanish	4	5	517
Martino	Roll Away	Trick - Coin: Vanish	4	10	589
Clancy, Paddy	Right Angled Coin Vanish	Trick - Coin: Vanish	5	10	747
Galloway, Andy	Unsuspected Extra	Trick - Coin: Vanish	6	3	817
Setterington, Arthur	Back Hander	Trick - Coin: Vanish	6	7	878
Ostin, Bob	Fan Hide Move	Trick - CS: Control	1	9	110
Lewis, Trevor	Double Riffle Control	Trick - CS: Control	2	5	205
Rovi	Ivor's Control	Trick - CS: Control	6	1	789
Day, Sonny	Minerve	Trick - CS: Control	6	3	813
Kuske, Steven	Location	Trick - CS: Control	7	6	1053

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Hallas, Paul	Concealment	Trick - CS: Control, Coin And Card	7	1	978
Monmoine, Pascal	And Finally	Trick - CS: Control, CT: Four Ace, Thread	8	6	1236
Brooke, Ken	Split Second	Trick - CS: Dealing	6	8	889
Goldstein, Phil	Necktie Second	Trick - CS: Dealing	6	12	964
Crosthwaite, Roger	Modified Master Grip	Trick - CS: Dealing	8	2	1180
Robinson, Fred	Double Lift Drop Switch	Trick - CS: Double Lift	3	3	332
Lewis, Trevor	Add On Plus	Trick - CS: Double Lift	5	10	749
Johnsson, Rick	Pradl/Prudl	Trick - CS: Double Lift	6	9	910
Tamariz, Juan	The Tamariz Turnover	Trick - CS: Double Lift	7	1	970
Brooke, Ken	Double Lift Techniques And Variations	Trick - CS: Double Lift	7	4	1024
Aukes, John	Double Lift With One Card	Trick - CS: Double Lift	8	7	1251
Robinson, Fred	The Ascanio Spread	Trick - CS: False Count	2	2	168
Alker, Doug	Three Card Buckle	Trick - CS: False Count	3	5	351
Farmer, Bob	Hamman Count	Trick - CS: False Count	3	10	420
Mason, Eric	Caboodle	Trick - CS: False Count	4	1	461
Farmer, Bob	Cabungle	Trick - CS: False Count	4	5	511
Goldstein, Phil	Snap Turn Count	Trick - CS: False Count	4	12	614
Avis, Jack	Siva Count	Trick - CS: False Count	5	2	638
Castillon, Gene	Spirit Count	Trick - CS: False Count	5	2	639
Victor, Edward	Eye Count	Trick - CS: False Count	5	2	639
Pargeter, Andrew	Multi-Count Technique	Trick - CS: False Count	5	8	718
Pargeter, Andrew	Multi-Count Technique	Trick - CS: False Count	5	9	731
Goldstein, Phil	Spirit Count	Trick - CS: False Count	6	12	963
Schwartz, Sam	Omega Count	Trick - CS: False Count	7	6	1060
Robinson, Fred	More For Less	Trick - CS: False Count, CT: Packet	2	5	206
Brooke, Ken	The Duplicount	Trick - CS: False Counts	5	5	682
Robinson, Fred	Perfect Faro Shuffle	Trick - CS: False Shuffle	1	1	8
Duffie, Peter	A Fansee Blind Shuffle	Trick - CS: False Shuffle	2	1	158
Bennett, Keith	Overhand False Shuffle	Trick - CS: False Shuffle	2	2	164
Lewis, Trevor	Zarrow Shuffle	Trick - CS: False Shuffle	2	5	205
Hudson, Charles M	On Faro Felon	Trick - CS: False Shuffle, CT: Sandwich	2	6	217
Weston, Mark	Supreme Glimpse	Trick - CS: Flourish	2	10	270
Weston, Mark	The Spinners	Trick - CS: Flourish	2	11	286
Walton, Roy	Ambitious Move	Trick - CS: Flourish	3	1	310
Weston, Mark	Move To Show Both Sides Of A Card Blank	Trick - CS: Flourish	3	7/8	375
Forton, Piet	Triple Flip	Trick - CS: Flourish	5	2	639
Kuskie, Steve	Grandma's Triple Cut	Trick - CS: Flourish	6	5	843
Richardson, Barrie	The Clean Second - Card Force Concept	Trick - CS: Forcing	4	4	503
Rovi	Double Force	Trick - CS: Forcing	7	2	990
Hallas, Paul	Forcing A Date With Cards	Trick - CS: Forcing	7	12	1146
Monmoine, Pascal	Forceful Revelation	Trick - CS: Forcing	8	6	1228
Monmoine, Pascal	The Irresistible Force	Trick - CS: Forcing	8	6	1232
Ray, Geoff	Lap Flick	Trick - CS: Palming	1	11	132
Duffie, Peter	Positive Card Fold	Trick - CS: Palming	2	12	290
Lewis, Trevor	LIAR	Trick - CS: Palming	3	3	333
Bruce, Gordon	Pocket Palm	Trick - CS: Palming	5	5	676
Mason, Eric	Anything For A Change	Trick - CS: Palming	5	9	733

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Mason, Eric	Overture	Trick - CS: Palming	6	2	796
Davie, Kevin	Palm Steal	Trick - CS: Palming	6	4	834
Pargeter, Andrew	Tenkai Cop	Trick - CS: Palming	6	9	911
Robinson, Fred	Up The Sleeve	Trick - CS: Palming, CT: Gambling Theme	2	8	243
Mason, Eric	Put And Take	Trick - CS: Palming, CT: Other	5	11	762
Lewis, Trevor	Palm Conscious	Trick - CT. Gambling Theme	2	5	205
Vernon, Dai	Dai Vernon's Centrepiece	Trick - CT. Gambling Theme	6	6	863
Zavis, William	Up Down And Around	Trick - CT: Ambitious	1	4	42
Zavis, William	Kings Over Queens	Trick - CT: Ambitious	1	6	73
Zavis, William	Kings Over Queens II	Trick - CT: Ambitious	1	7	80
Lees, Walt	Perpetual Elevator Routine	Trick - CT: Ambitious	2	3	174
Lees, Walt	The First Elevator	Trick - CT: Ambitious	2	3	174
Lees, Walt	The Cold Elevator	Trick - CT: Ambitious	2	3	175
Lees, Walt	Finale	Trick - CT: Ambitious	2	3	179
Walton, Roy	Inflated Ace	Trick - CT: Ambitious	3	1	303
Weston, Mark	Club Night Twins	Trick - CT: Ambitious	3	7/8	378
Tamariz, Juan	Tamariz Ambitious Double	Trick - CT: Ambitious	5	12	776
Wonder, Tommy (See also Bema)	Falling Pips	Trick - CT: Ambitious	6	2	806
Monmoine, Pascal	Staircase	Trick - CT: Ambitious	8	6	1235
Land, Ian	A Mouthful Of Air	Trick - CT: Assembly	7	11	1133
Giobbi, Roberto	For Susan	Trick - CT: Assembly	8	7	1243
Elmsley, Alex	One At A Time Collectors	Trick - CT: Collectors	1	3	28
Duffie, Peter	Cannibal Land	Trick - CT: Collectors	3	11	432
Lees, Walt	Clean Collectors	Trick - CT: Collectors	5	1	626
Duffie, Peter	Collectors Seminar	Trick - CT: Collectors	5	9	734
Shiv (See also Duggal)	Exchange Collectors	Trick - CT: Collectors	5	10	745
Duffie, Peter	Trans Collection	Trick - CT: Collectors	6	7	876
Hamilton, Steven	Trans Collection	Trick - CT: Collectors	6	7	876
Land, Ian	Interlaced Jump	Trick - CT: Collectors	7	11	1128
Land, Ian	Second Direction	Trick - CT: Collectors	7	11	1131
Goodwin, Alf	The Maneaters	Trick - CT: Collectors	8	8	1267
Tucker, Stephen	The Maneaters	Trick - CT: Collectors	8	8	1268
Alker, Doug	The Useless Pack	Trick - CT: Coloured Backs	2	8	249
Mason, Eric	Eca Tuoba Ecaf	Trick - CT: Coloured Backs	2	11	277
Alker, Doug	One In Four	Trick - CT: Coloured Backs	3	7/8	390
Mason, Eric	Brainwave	Trick - CT: Coloured Backs	4	1	463
Alker, Doug	Rainbow Triumph	Trick - CT: Coloured Backs	4	5	518
Davie, Kevin	Signachange	Trick - CT: Coloured Backs	4	8	559
Hamilton, Bob	For Nudists Only	Trick - CT: Coloured Backs	5	12	768
Gamble, Richard M	Kicker Colour Change	Trick - CT: Coloured Backs	7	9	1106
Ljunberg, Gay	Sympathy	Trick - CT: Coloured Backs	8	3	1190
Monmoine, Pascal	Chameleon	Trick - CT: Coloured Backs	8	6	1231
Walton, Roy	Rainbow Road	Trick - CT: Coloured Backs	8	7	1246
Geddes, Johnnie	The Knowing Nine	Trick - CT: Discoveries	2	1	151
Lewis, Trevor	Its In The Bag	Trick - CT: Discoveries	2	5	206
Herron, Carl	Marksman Extraordinary	Trick - CT: Discoveries	2	8	245
Stephens, Bob	Psychic Exposure	Trick - CT: Discoveries	2	11	284
Endfield, Cy	A Cy Endfield Location	Trick - CT: Discoveries	3	5	351

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Bloom, Gaeton	OCCAMITIS	Trick - CT: Discoveries	3	5	356
Heins, Jan	Teragram	Trick - CT: Discoveries	3	5	358
Robinson, Fred	Double Denial	Trick - CT: Discoveries	3	7/8	387
Mason, Eric	Cubism	Trick - CT: Discoveries	4	1	458
Weston, Mark	Double Exposure	Trick - CT: Discoveries	4	7	541
Allen, Vic	Eyes Down	Trick - CT: Discoveries	4	8	555
Lees, Walt	Four Card Surprise	Trick - CT: Discoveries	5	1	629
Boyce, Wally	The Piscatorial Peg	Trick - CT: Discoveries	5	2	640
Weston, Mark	Under My Foot	Trick - CT: Discoveries	5	3	649
Bruce, Gordon	Cased	Trick - CT: Discoveries	5	5	672
Heins, Jan	Oasis	Trick - CT: Discoveries	5	5	674
Day, Sonny	Fastest Trick In The World	Trick - CT: Discoveries	6	3	814
Forton, Piet	Fan Club	Trick - CT: Discoveries	6	6	865
Walton, Roy	Through The Centuries Of Time	Trick - CT: Discoveries	6	9	907
Setterington, Arthur	Whats In A Name	Trick - CT: Discoveries	7	2	992
Spencer, Horace	Smash And Grab	Trick - CT: Discoveries	7	5	1040
Heins, Jan	Splash	Trick - CT: Discoveries	7	8	1080
Anders, John	Kaning Mercury	Trick - CT: Discoveries	7	9	1102
Hallas, Paul	More Dangerous	Trick - CT: Discoveries	8	2	1181
Giobbi, Roberto	The Joker Folds Up	Trick - CT: Discoveries	8	4	1203
Monmoine, Pascal	The Domino Effect	Trick - CT: Discoveries	8	6	1227
Aukes, John	Straight And Round	Trick - CT: Discoveries	8	7	1250
Tucker, Stephen	I Met A Card That Wasn't There	Trick - CT: Discoveries	8	8	1266
Richardson, Barrie	Less Is More	Trick - CT: Discoveries	8	10	1287
Land, Ian	Quatemity	Trick - CT: Discoveries	8	10	1290
Waters, Ray	The Secret Of Shhhh	Trick - CT: Discoveries, Bottle	3	11	429
Hallas, Paul	Card In Calculator	Trick - CT: Discoveries, Calculator	7	3	1006
Trixer, Hans E	RSVP	Trick - CT: Discoveries, Envelope	4	6	528
Setterington, Arthur	Oldfinger	Trick - CT: Discoveries, Finger	5	12	773
Colgan, Des	Miracle Matchstick Missile	Trick - CT: Discoveries, Match, Wooden	2	4	195
May, Leslie	Spotting The Spot	Trick - CT: Discoveries, Paddle	2	5	208
Marlo, Ed	Dribble Concept Continued Splitting The Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	1	3	29
Lees, Walt	My Blue Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	1	6	70
Hamilton, Bob	Extra	Trick - CT: Four Ace	1	8	95
Austin, Michael	My Blue Aces Again	Trick - CT: Four Ace	1	9	108
Marlo, Ed	Spectator Cuts To 4 Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	2	8	244
Alker, Doug	Turncoat	Trick - CT: Four Ace	3	4	346
Walton, Roy	USA Trail	Trick - CT: Four Ace	3	10	418
Alker, Doug	Oh No, Not Another Ace Trick	Trick - CT: Four Ace	3	11	438
Christensen, Jerry L	Pyramid Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	3	12	447
Craven, Tom	Pyramid Variation	Trick - CT: Four Ace	4	3	490
Galloway, Andy	One-Two-Three-Four Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	4	3	492
Walton, Roy	NOSFERATU	Trick - CT: Four Ace	4	5	510
Pargeter, Andrew	Simplified Spin Pass Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	4	6	527
Alker, Doug	Behaviour Bluff And Beyond	Trick - CT: Four Ace	4	8	560
Farmer, Bob	Twisting, Turning, Extending And Otherwise Molesting The Four Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	4	9	572
Lovell, Simon	Handy Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	4	9	577

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Goldstein, Phil	Immediate Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	4	11	596
Davie, Kevin	Ace-Stounding	Trick - CT: Four Ace	4	12	616
Glover, Brian	Transpo Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	5	2	642
Avis, Jack	The Pinockle Caper	Trick - CT: Four Ace	5	6	693
Goldstein, Phil	Twink Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	5	11	756
Day, Sonny	Cutting The Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	6	3	814
Davie, Kevin	Highly Skilled Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	6	4	828
Land, Ian	Proteus	Trick - CT: Four Ace	7	7	1072
Gamble, Richard M	Blooming Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	7	7	1076
Goodwin, Alf	The Magician's Four Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	7	8	1084
Alker, Doug	Ace Sandwich	Trick - CT: Four Ace	7	12	1148
Goldstein, Phil	Avanture, Avanture II, Avanture III, Avanture IV	Trick - CT: Four Ace	8	2	1172
Cameron, Douglas	Devil's Delight	Trick - CT: Four Ace	8	8	1261
Mason, Eric	For Johann	Trick - CT: Four Aces	6	2	797
Robinson, Fred	Focus	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	1	9	111
Lewis, Trevor	Middle Diddle	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	2	5	205
Bragoli, John	Ace In The Hole	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	2	6	222
Britland, David	David Britland Writes	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	2	9	261
Alker, Doug	Double Monte	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	2	12	294
Walton, Roy	Chiefly Yours	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	3	1	307
Robinson, Fred	Kniphofia	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	3	2	318
Bragoli, John	Versadeal	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	3	4	341
Carré, David	The Card Expert	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	3	6	366
Walton, Roy	A Straight Shuffle	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	3	7/8	392
Davie, Kevin	Stud	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	5	3	655
Brooke, Ken	Packet Poker	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	5	5	681
Lees, Walt	Irish Poker	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	5	6	690
Smith, Al	Where Have All The Aces Gone	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	5	8	724
Duffie, Peter	And The Cans Came Back	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	6	3	822
Tamariz, Juan	It's A Pity	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	6	6	856
Kuske, Steven	Sharp Sharp	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	6	6	862
Goldstein, Phil	Dai Vernon's Centrepiece	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	6	6	863
Brooke, Ken	Poker Deal	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	6	8	890
Crosthwaite, Roger	Doing The Splits	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	6	10	918
Schmidt, Joseph	Joseph Schmidt Writes	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	7	3	1011
Goldstein, Phil	Casanova	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	7		1060
Land, Ian				6 12
	Alpha Minus	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	7		1151
Marlo, Ed	Dribble Coincidence	Trick - CT: Matching	1	2	13
Robinson, Fred	Spectator Magician Plus	Trick - CT: Matching	1	3	33
Haxton, Francis	Paired Choice	Trick - CT: Matching	1	5	60
Duffie, Peter & Walton, Roy	Play It Again Sam	Trick - CT: Matching	2	9	253
Dribeck, Bob	Play It Again Sam	Trick - CT: Matching	2	12	293
Duffie, Peter	Twin Key-Boards	Trick - CT: Matching	3	4	344
Weston, Mark	Splitz	Trick - CT: Matching	3	11	433
Davie, Kevin	Copy Cat	Trick - CT: Matching	4	8	554
Bruce, Gordon	Matching Pairs	Trick - CT: Matching	5	5	676
Goldstein, Phil	The Basic Twink	Trick - CT: Matching	5	11	754
Goldstein, Phil	Twink Plus	Trick - CT: Matching	5	11	755

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Goldstein, Phil	Further Twink	Trick - CT: Matching	5	11	756
Goldstein, Phil	Two Deck Twink	Trick - CT: Matching	5	11	756
Mason, Eric	Cul Bono?	Trick - CT: Matching	6	2	798
Smith, Al	Seconds Out	Trick - CT: Matching	6	2	803
Walton, Roy	End Game Plus	Trick - CT: Matching	6	7	872
Tamariz, Juan	Mental Blockbuster	Trick - CT: Matching	7	3	1006
Wonder, Tommy (See also Bema)	Elizabeth 3rd	Trick - CT: Matching	7	6	1055
Giobbi, Roberto	The Trojan Deck	Trick - CT: Matching	8	5	1219
Richardson, Barrie	Do You Wish To Continue	Trick - CT: Matching	8	7	1240
Goldstein, Phil	Tag Team	Trick - CT: Matching	8	9	1272
Boyce, Wally	Elizabeth 2nd	Trick - CT: Matching, Envelope	7	2	995
Etherington, Graham	Match Card 2	Trick - CT: Matching, Match, Book	2	4	189
Govan, Barry	Match Card - 2	Trick - CT: Matching, Match, Book	2	4	189
Colombini, Carlos & Fabian	Transpo Ink	Trick - CT: Oil And Water	2	9	255
Dribeck, Bob	Aenigma Variations	Trick - CT: Oil And Water	2	12	292
Farmer, Bob	Jazz Pieces, Body & Soul - Pt II & III	Trick - CT: Oil And Water	4	2	477
Tamariz, Juan	The Oil And Water Of Tamariz	Trick - CT: Oil And Water	4	3	484
Kuskie, Steve	Oil Colours	Trick - CT: Oil And Water	6	8	896
Ronnay, Magic	The New Oil & Water Routine	Trick - CT: Oil And Water	8	1	1161
East, Alex	The Magician's Name	Trick - CT: Oil And Water	8	5	1215
Goldstein, Phil	Queens And Water	Trick - CT: Oil And Water	8	9	1273
Read, Bob	Box Clever	Trick - CT: Other	1	8	91
Lees, Walt	Crocodile Tears	Trick - CT: Other	1	11	133
Wright, David A	Seduca Deck	Trick - CT: Other	2	1	150
Bema, Jos (Also see Wonder)	The Pip Eating Spider	Trick - CT: Other	2	10	272
Woods, Roger	Roger Woods Writes	Trick - CT: Other	5	10	747
Lovell, Simon	Two Faced	Trick - CT: Other	5	10	750
Monmoine, Pascal	Card Through The Table From A Distance	Trick - CT: Other	8	6	1229
Lewis, Trevor	A Las	Trick - CT: Packet	1	6	69
Flip (See also Hallema)	Bewildering Cards	Trick - CT: Packet	1	8	89
Wright, David A	Elmsley Out Sexed	Trick - CT: Packet	1	10	113
Lewis, Trevor	High Jacked	Trick - CT: Packet	1	10	116
Eckl, Ed	Madness With The Ascanio Spread	Trick - CT: Packet	2	1	154
Eckl, Ed	Alice Blue Gown	Trick - CT: Packet	2	1	155
Eckl, Ed	Xmas Calculator	Trick - CT: Packet	2	1	155
Wye, Phil	Blank Faces	Trick - CT: Packet	2	2	166
Lees, Walt	The Small Packet All Backs	Trick - CT: Packet	2	3	177
Hallema, Flip (See also Flip)	Transfo Transpo	Trick - CT: Packet	3	7/8	377
Carré, David	Just Changes	Trick - CT: Packet	3	10	416
Duvivier, Dominique	The Problem Is	Trick - CT: Packet	4	10	585
Mason, Eric	The Problem Is	Trick - CT: Packet	4	10	585
Goldstein, Phil	Cry Wolf	Trick - CT: Packet	4	11	595
Goldstein, Phil	Back Gammon	Trick - CT: Packet	4	11	597
Mason, Eric	Beau Ideal	Trick - CT: Packet	4	12	606
Goldstein, Phil	Wolf Trap	Trick - CT: Packet	5	7	702

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Walton, Roy	Detective Story	Trick - CT: Packet	6	1	786
Goldstein, Phil	Simple Oscar	Trick - CT: Packet	6	12	954
Goldstein, Phil	Simple Thornton	Trick - CT: Packet	6	12	958
Fells, John	Three Into One Won't Go	Trick - CT: Packet	7	1	976
Goldstein, Phil	Packetrainer	Trick - CT: Packet	7	3	1012
Worsley, Bill	Back To Back	Trick - CT: Packet	7	4	1028
Goldstein, Phil	Oddment	Trick - CT: Packet	7	10	1117
Ljunberg, Gay	Christmas Cards	Trick - CT: Packet	8	3	1189
Tucker, Stephen	Think	Trick - CT: Packet	8	3	1193
Jack, Gentleman	Ladies And Gentlemen	Trick - CT: Packet	8	3	1195
Goldstein, Phil	Short Circuit	Trick - CT: Packet	8	4	1201
Specht, Henrik	The Kangaroo Spots	Trick - CT: Packet	8	4	1202
Specht, Henrik	The Test Tube Child	Trick - CT: Packet	8	5	1215
Palmer, Archie	Intrigue Two	Trick - CT: Packet	8	7	1248
Worsley, Bill	Intrigue Two	Trick - CT: Packet	8	7	1248
Goldstein, Phil	Greetings	Trick - CT: Packet	8	9	1275
Goldstein, Phil	Brackets	Trick - CT: Packet	8	9	1277
Walton, Roy	Obsolete Prediction	Trick - CT: Prediction	1	4	40
Lewis, Trevor	Simplicity	Trick - CT: Prediction	1	4	47
Wye, Phil	Obsolete Encore	Trick - CT: Prediction	1	11	134
Robinson, Fred	Behavioural Bluff	Trick - CT: Prediction	2	1	156
Weston, Mark	Move To Show Both Sides Of A Card Blank	Trick - CT: Prediction	3	7/8	376
Hooper, Jim	Your Autograph Please	Trick - CT: Prediction	3	11	437
Walton, Roy	Twice Two	Trick - CT: Prediction	3	12	454
Tamariz, Juan	Black Days	Trick - CT: Prediction	5	7	705
Weston, Mark	Spectator Unexplained (After Vernon)	Trick - CT: Prediction	5	12	770
Davie, Kevin	Gaspers Galore	Trick - CT: Prediction	6	4	826
Somerville, Neil	In Anticipation	Trick - CT: Prediction	6	6	864
Lees, Walt	Even Break	Trick - CT: Prediction	6	7	873
Mason, Eric	Fred Trick The Great	Trick - CT: Prediction	6	8	893
Giobbi, Roberto	A Card To Be Thought About	Trick - CT: Prediction	7	12	1152
Aukes, John	The Four Card Trick	Trick - CT: Prediction	8	4	1200
Hawkins, David	Human Error	Trick - CT: Prediction, Calculator	7	8	1082
Colgan, Des	Diary Dice-Card	Trick - CT: Prediction, Dice	1	9	105
Roxy	Zig Zag Prediction	Trick - CT: Prediction, Dice, Envelope	7	8	1089
Anon	Festive Fun	Trick - CT: Prediction, Drink Betchas	2	4	193
Bragoli, John	Collected Thoughts	Trick - CT: Prediction, M: Book And Newspaper	2	4	194
Walton, Roy	The 229-224 Trick	Trick - CT: Prediction, M: Number/Object Prediction	8	5	1212
Avis, Jack	Transposed Marlo Reverse	Trick - CT: Reversal	2	2	163
Duffie, Peter	Aces With A Twist	Trick - CT: Reversal	2	5	209
Carré, David	Face Up	Trick - CT: Reversal	2	6	219
Bennett, Keith	Son Of Twisting The Aces	Trick - CT: Reversal	3	5	353
Bennett, Keith	Second Variation On Twisting The Aces Revisited	Trick - CT: Reversal	3	7/8	376
Hamilton, Bob	OUCH	Trick - CT: Reversal	5	3	650
Goldstein, Phil	Psychia-Twist	Trick - CT: Reversal	5	12	775

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Smith, Al	Krix	Trick - CT: Reversal	6	5	846
Crosthwaite, Roger	Partial Brainwave	Trick - CT: Reversal	6	10	929
Land, Ian	Snap Count Lost Ace	Trick - CT: Reversal	7	5	1042
Land, Ian	Getting Lost In The Shuffle	Trick - CT: Reversal	7	5	1044
Lashbrook, Ron	Double Repeat Turnover	Trick - CT: Reversal	7	7	1075
Land, Ian	Technicolour Departure	Trick - CT: Reversal	7	11	1137
Land, Ian	Technicolour Departure	Trick - CT: Reversal	8	1	1164
Land, Ian	One By One	Trick - CT: Reversal	8	10	1291
Land, Ian	One by One (Another One)	Trick - CT: Reversal	8	10	1292
Robinson, Fred	Ambitious Riser	Trick - CT: Rising Card	1	8	92
Mason, Eric	Arise Comrades	Trick - CT: Rising Card	1	10	118
Goldstein, Phil	Taking The Plunge	Trick - CT: Rising Card	3	10	419
Sagan, Dorion	Taking The Plunge	Trick - CT: Rising Card	3	10	419
Heins, Jan	The Sexbomb	Trick - CT: Rising Card	5	4	664
Mason, Eric	The Pit-A-Patter Of A Tiny Feat	Trick - CT: Rising Card	5	6	692
Davie, Kevin	Relative Rise	Trick - CT: Rising Card	6	4	829
Hamilton, Bob	Think-Arise	Trick - CT: Rising Card, Handkerchief	2	4	197
Scudiery, Mark	Faro Felon	Trick - CT: Sandwich	1	8	94
Zavis, William	Gone Sandwich	Trick - CT: Sandwich	1	8	98
Scudiery, Mark	Focus	Trick - CT: Sandwich	1	10	123
Duffie, Peter	The Go-Between	Trick - CT: Sandwich	2	10	268
Walton, Roy	A Martian Plot	Trick - CT: Sandwich	3	1	304
Lovell, Simon	Jack Catch	Trick - CT: Sandwich	4	5	515
Goldstein, Phil	Negative Intruder	Trick - CT: Sandwich	4	11	597
Dobson, Wayne	Joker Sandwich	Trick - CT: Sandwich	5	4	665
Glover, Brian	The Red Aces	Trick - CT: Sandwich	5	4	666
Glover, Brian	Oasis	Trick - CT: Sandwich	5	6	689
Smith, Al	Asque	Trick - CT: Sandwich	6	9	908
Smith, Al	Pointing The Way	Trick - CT: Sandwich	7	7	1070
Hallas, Paul	Repeat Bluff Sandwich	Trick - CT: Sandwich	7	8	1083
Smith, Al	Error Error	Trick - CT: Sandwich	7	11	1139
Tucker, Stephen	Departure Lounge	Trick - CT: Sandwich	8	4	1206
Duggal, Shiv (See also Shiv)	Best Shot	Trick - CT: Sandwich	8	8	1263
Lees, Walt	Cul-A-Separation	Trick - CT: Separation	1	4	46
Walton, Roy	Earthbound	Trick - CT: Separation	1	9	103
Riding, Joe	Mission Accomplished	Trick - CT: Separation	2	9	262
Walton, Roy	Your Very Own	Trick - CT: Separation	3	1	306
Walton, Roy	Denary Deceit	Trick - CT: Separation	3	1	309
Goldstein, Phil	Counter Revolution	Trick - CT: Separation	3	4	340
Davie, Kevin	Red-Back Surprise	Trick - CT: Separation	3	12	449
Kuske, Steven	OOTW	Trick - CT: Separation	4	6	526
Davie, Kevin	Red-Back Surprise Correction	Trick - CT: Separation	4	6	531
Goldstein, Phil	Simplified Follow The Leader	Trick - CT: Separation	4	7	540
Bennett, Keith	Take Me To Your Leader	Trick - CT: Separation	7	2	986
Roxy	Surprise Follow The Leader	Trick - CT: Separation	7	3	1002
Goldstein, Phil	Stand Up And Be Counting	Trick - CT: Separation	8	9	1273
Faro, Tony	Spectator Magician	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	1	1	5
Walton, Roy	Past Help	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	2	2	170

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Walton, Roy	Truth And Consequence	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	3	1	311
Weston, Mark	Fancy	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	3	9	404
Kosky, Gerald	Computer Discovery	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	4	12	612
Walton, Roy	Card School	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	5	6	689
Walton, Roy	Oasis	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	5	7	704
Crosthwaite, Roger	Skating On Ice	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	6	10	926
Brooke, Ken	Way Out	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	7	4	1026
Tucker, Stephen	The Incomplete Deck	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	8	5	1220
Tucker, Stephen	A Devil's DozenPlus Two	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	8	7	1247
Walton, Roy	Triple Alliance	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	8	8	1256
Galloway, Andy	Vernon's Indicator	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	8	8	1258
Walton, Roy	Sum Trick	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	8	8	1259
Tucker, Stephen	Literally Spelling The Aces	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	8	8	1264
Davie, Kevin	The Lollipop Trick	Trick - CT: Sucker	6	4	835
Wonder, Tommy (See also Bema)	Everywhere And Nowhere	Trick - CT: Sucker	7	1	979
Specht, Henrik	One More Chance	Trick - CT: Sucker	8	3	1188
Walton, Roy	Tearaway	Trick - CT: Tom	1	7	78
Walton, Roy	The Card Shark	Trick - CT: Tom	2	6	213
Walton, Roy	Correction to Card Shark	Trick - CT: Tom	2	8	252
Lees, Walt	Stranger Than Fiction	Trick - CT: Tom	5	1	623
Tucker, Stephen	Ambidextrous	Trick - CT: Tom	7	12	1144
Walton, Roy	I'd Give My Right Hand	Trick - CT: Tom	8	4	1202
Tucker, Stephen	Card-Warper	Trick - CT: Tom	8	7	1251
Monmoine, Pascal	Card In Pen	Trick - CT: Tom, Pen	8	6	1233
Avis, Jack	The Jokers Wild	Trick - CT: Torn	2	2	163
Lewis, Trevor	Card Shark Too	Trick - CT: Torn	2	9	258
McIntyre, Archie	Rip It Up	Trick - CT: Torn	4	8	562
Sargent, Dennis	Rip It Up With Unprepared Deck	Trick - CT: Torn	5	2	641
Hamilton, Steven	Ferly Defragmentation Etc	Trick - CT: Torn, Envelope	6	3	811
Walton, Roy	Ferly Defragmentation Etc	Trick - CT: Torn, Envelope	6	3	812
Walton, Roy	Carousel	Trick - CT: Transposition	1	8	97
Baxter, Ian	Supertransportation	Trick - CT: Transposition	1	9	109
Haines, Bob	Four Gone Conclusion	Trick - CT: Transposition	2	9	256
Duffie, Peter	Card In Case Transposition	Trick - CT: Transposition	2	12	289
Kuske, Steven	Double-X-Posure	Trick - CT: Transposition	3	3	328
Alker, Doug	Three Cards Across Extra	Trick - CT: Transposition	3	5	352
Farmer, Bob	Jazz Pieces, Body & Soul - Pt I	Trick - CT: Transposition	4	2	476
Brooke, Ken	The Tired Travellers	Trick - CT: Transposition	5	6	695
Jennings, Larry	Happenings	Trick - CT: Transposition	5	7	701
Sinclair, Brian	The Cards Across	Trick - CT: Transposition	5	9	728
Mason, Eric	Sublimason	Trick - CT: Transposition	6	2	796
Davie, Kevin	Sign There	Trick - CT: Transposition	6	4	826
Walton, Roy	Outward Bound	Trick - CT: Transposition	6	5	844
Heins, Jan	The Lady Vanishes	Trick - CT: Transposition	6	6	863
Johnsson, Rick	Yours, Mine & Ours	Trick - CT: Transposition	6	8	887
Willmarth, Phil	Biddle Kardyro Cased	Trick - CT: Transposition	6	8	894
Crosthwaite, Roger	The Little Salt Man	Trick - CT: Transposition	6	10	922
Roxy	Transposition '71	Trick - CT: Transposition	7	5	1036
- 3			•	-

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Pargeter, Andrew	Card-Trek	Trick - CT: Transposition	7	6	1050
Goldstein, Phil	Tenting Trip	Trick - CT: Transposition	7	7	1066
Tucker, Stephen	Nil Separaturn Est	Trick - CT: Transposition	7	10	1114
Land, Ian	Back Palm	Trick - CT: Transposition	7	11	1135
Tucker, Stephen	Under Control	Trick - CT: Transposition	8	2	1175
Giobbi, Roberto	1, 2, 3 & 4 Queens	Trick - CT: Transposition	8	7	1248
Hallas, Paul	Mexican Spectator Change	Trick - CT: Transposition	8	10	1293
Farmer, Bob	Jazz Pieces	Trick - CT: Transposition, CT: Oil And Water	4	5	512
Avis, Jack	The Wishing Envelope	Trick - CT: Transposition, Envelope	2	2	161
Lees, Walt	Triumph Plus	Trick - CT: Triumph	2	3	176
Lewis, Trevor	Ladies In Waiting	Trick - CT: Triumph	2	5	206
Britland, David	Through The 4th Dimension	Trick - CT: Triumph	3	2	316
Smith, Al	Fresh Sliced	Trick - CT: Triumph	7	12	1147
Walton, Roy	The Witch Doctors	Trick - CT: Vanishing	1	1	3
Dribeck, Bob	On Witch Doctors	Trick - CT: Vanishing	1	6	66
Lovell, Simon	Atomic ESP	Trick - CT: Vanishing	4	12	614
Weston, Mark	MW Vanishing Deck	Trick - CT: Vanishing	6	2	799
Frame, Lawrence	Compression	Trick - CT: Vanishing	7	10	1124
Hamilton, Steven	Going Going Gone	Trick - CT: Vanishing	8	8	1260
Carney, John	Poor Mans Card Manipulation	Trick - CT: Vanishing	8	10	1284
Govan, Barry	Match Card	Trick - CT: Vanishing, Match, Book	2	1	152
Long, Marv	Extra Climax Card In Wallet	Trick - CT: Wallet	5	11	761
Richardson, Barrie	1-2-3 Card In Wallet	Trick - CT: Wallet	6	1	782
Rovi	Simplicity Card In Wallet	Trick - CT: Wallet	7	2	989
Howarth, Mo	Wallet With Dressing	Trick - CT: Wallet	7	8	1090
Giobbi, Roberto	Blushing Jumper	Trick - CT: Wallet	8	1	1159
Giobbi, Roberto	The Trevor Lewis Card To Wallet	Trick - CT: Wallet	8	2	1179
Read, Bob	Business For Card In Wallet	Trick - CT: Wallet, Bank Note	1	3	25
Ostin, Bob	Off The Handle	Trick - Cup	2	7	234
Baxter, Ian	My Cup Flippeth Over	Trick - Cup	2	12	298
Carré, David	Impromptu Cup And Ball	Trick - Cup	3	6	370
Carré, David	One Potato, Two Potato	Trick - Cup	4	7	543
Weston, Mark	Multidie Box	Trick - Cup Trick - Dice	2	6	215
ŕ	Dice-O-Metrics	Trick - Dice	2	7	232
Lees, Walt	Just Dice	Trick - Dice Trick - Dice	3		365
Carré, David			3	6
Setterington, Arthur	Diception	Trick - Dice		9	408
Lashbrook, Ron	Triangle Prediction	Trick - Dice	7	10	1120
Duco, El	Slow Motion Penetration	Trick - Dice, Glass	8	10	1292
Anon	Focus	Trick - Drink Betcha	1	4	51
Anon	Focus	Trick - Drink Betcha, Puzzles	1	4	50
Bloom, Gaeton	Hank To Egg Exposed	Trick - Egg	5	7	699
Duco, El	Fantastic Elastics	Trick - Elastic Band	8	3	1191
Setterington, Arthur	Tube Off	Trick - Elastic Band, Handkerchief	4	10	583
Monmoine, Pascal	I've Seen A Rubber Band	Trick - Elastic Band, Match, Wooden, Thumb Tip	8	6	1234
Brooke, Ken	Card In Envelope	Trick - Envelope, CS: Palming	5	5	680
Richardson, Barrie	Thoughts In Transit	Trick - Envelope, M: Cards And ESP	2	9	260

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Mason, Eric	Billet-Doux	Trick - Envelope, M: Cards And ESP	4	1	460
Carlisle, Stanton	Colour Psychology	Trick - Envelope, M: Just Chance	1	2	18
Sanderson, George P	Colour Psychology	Trick - Envelope, M: Just Chance	1	7	85
Danson, Ted	Give Me A Ring	Trick - Envelope, M: Just Chance, Ring, Finger	1	2	17
Mason, Eric	N.C.R.	Trick - Envelope, M: Number/Object Prediction, Wallet	4	1	465
Grierson, M B	Lost Fumbulators	Trick - Envelope, Sight Gag	8	8	1265
Anon	Odd Optic	Trick - Finger	2	1	157
Mason, Eric	Moniker	Trick - Glass	3	2	313
Heins, Jan	Firewater	Trick - Glass	3	4	343
Lauchli, Carl	Firewater	Trick - Glass	3	4	343
Waters, Ray	Moniker Modified	Trick - Glass	3	10	423
Hamilton, Bob	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Glass	4	10	588
Read, Bob	Handkerchief Through Glass	Trick - Glass, Handkerchief	5	6	694
Turpin, Dick	Turpin's Turnip	Trick - Glass, Hat, Swede	6	9	902
Read, Bob	Bob's Business	Trick - Handkerchief	1	1	5
Bema, Jos (Also see Wonder)	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Handkerchief	4	5	514
Setterington, Arthur	Animal Magic	Trick - Handkerchief, Kettle	3	7/8	382
Howarth, Mo	Hat Gag	Trick - Hat, Sight Gag	6	7	878
Robinson, Fred	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Kettle, Match, Wooden	4	12	609
Richardson, Barrie	Lock And Key Mystery	Trick - Key, M: Mental Matching	3	10	413
Hamilton, Bob	Bent Upon Deception	Trick - Key, M: Moving And Bending	1	5	58
Govan, Barry	The Bending Key	Trick - Key, M: Moving And Bending	1	10	115
Richardson, Barrie	The Strange Key Stunt	Trick - Key, M: Moving And Bending	7	9	1096
Forton, Piet	Irish Key Ring	Trick - Key, Ring, Other	6	4	836
May, Leslie	Focus	Trick - M: Book And Newspaper	1	6	75
Setterington, Arthur	Headline Hit	Trick - M: Book And Newspaper	2	8	241
Bloom, Gaeton	Prestidigitational Prediction	Trick - M: Book And Newspaper	3	9	397
Mason, Eric	On Reflection	Trick - M: Book And Newspaper	4	1	459
Richardson, Barrie	One In A Million	Trick - M: Book And Newspaper	4	4	498
Rovi	Book Choice	Trick - M: Book And Newspaper	5	6	691
Mason, Eric	Newspaper Mind Reading	Trick - M: Book And Newspaper	7	7	1066
Richardson, Barrie	Newspaper Mind Reading	Trick - M: Book And Newspaper	7	7	1066
Richardson, Barrie	Pocket Dictionary Book-Tests	Trick - M: Book And Newspaper	8	4	1205
Anon	Focus	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	1	4	49
Colgan, Des	Table Top Motorway	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	1	12	145
Horwitz, Basil	Clairvoyant Chicanery	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	2	5	201
Richardson, Barrie	Think Hot Think Cold	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	4	4	502
Richardson, Barrie	The Undisturbed Deck Prediction	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	4	4	505
Goldstein, Phil	Card In Mind	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	4	5	521
Goldstein, Phil	Territory	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	5	3	654
Horwitz, Basil	A Passing Thought	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	5	4	661
Richardson, Barrie	A Gestalt Revelation	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	5	8	715
Goldstein, Phil	Synch-Cerely	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	5	8	720
Binarelli, Tony	Galaxy Telepathy	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	5	11	759

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Horwitz, Basil	Lucky Joker Prediction	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	5	12	769
Richardson, Barrie	Almost Real Mindreading	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	6	7	875
Grismer, Ray	HIP ESP	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	6	8	891
Goldstein, Phil	Jan-Ken-Pon	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	6	12	960
Ostin, Bob	Vampire	Trick - M: Living And Dead	1	4	39
Byrne, Bob	Focus	Trick - M: Living And Dead	1	7	87
Ostin, Bob	Focus	Trick - M: Living And Dead	1	7	87
Setterington, Arthur	Whodunnit	Trick - M: Living And Dead	4	9	568
Goldstein, Phil	Paper Chase	Trick - M: Living And Dead	8	9	1276
Ljunberg, Gay	Murder Game	Trick - M: Living And Dead	8	10	1288
Blake, George	Focus	Trick - M: Living And Dead, Coin: Puzzle	1	6	76
Richardson, Barrie	Memorable Memory Stunt	Trick - M: Memory	4	4	500
Lovell, Simon	Riffle Two	Trick - M: Memory	4	7	547
Setterington, Arthur	Thanks For The Memory	Trick - M: Memory	5	3	655
Richardson, Barrie	Pseudo-Psychometry In A Paper Bag	Trick - M: Mental Matching	3	9	400
Wye, Phil	Half & Half	Trick - M: Mental Matching	3	9	406
Goldstein, Phil	Mexican Geometry	Trick - M: Mental Matching	3	11	434
Horwitz, Basil	The Third Eye	Trick - M: Mental Matching	3	12	445
Richardson, Barrie	Alphabet Mentalism	Trick - M: Mental Matching	8	2	1177
Goldstein, Phil	Eye-Cue	Trick - M: Mental Matching	8	9	1276
Lees, Walt	Assignation	Trick - M: Mental Matching, Key	3	2	320
Richardson, Barrie	The Magnetic Force	Trick - M: Moving And Bending, Pencil	4	4	504
Faro, Tony	Focus	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	1	4	50
Berglas, David	Ad Infinitum	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	1	5	53
Avis, Jack	A Spirit Detection	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	1	5	56
Ostin, Bob	Focus	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	1	6	75
Richardson, Barrie	Impromptu Mental Divination	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	1	11	128
Bragoli, John	Mental Jigsaw	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	2	6	222
Chinn, Bill	Bill Chinn Writes	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	3	2	317
Mason, Eric	I Say Dots Impossible	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	4	1	458
Goldstein, Phil	Alter-Ego	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	4	11	594
Richardson, Barrie	The Three Chair Enigmastion Or The Lazy Mentalist Demonstration	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	5	10	748
Goldstein, Phil	Data	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	6	5	848
Goldstein, Phil	Precoinition	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	6	11	944
Goldstein, Phil	Either Aura	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	6	12	959
Goldstein, Phil	37th Parallel	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	6	12	962
Goldstein, Phil	All For Nought	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	7	5	1040

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Jack, Gentleman	Pickpockeyt	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	8	3	1189
Richardson, Barrie	678	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction, Wallet	1	1	10
Richardson, Barrie	From A Mentalist's Notebook	Trick - M: Other	2	10	265
Goldstein, Phil	Your Choice	Trick - M: Other	3	3	335
Endfield, Cy	Tomorrows World	Trick - M: Other	4	6	532
Goldstein, Phil	Intimate Spirit	Trick - M: Spirit Writing	5	4	667
Wonder, Tommy (See also Bema)	Pocket Slate Routine	Trick - M: Spirit Writing	6	5	842
Weston, Mark	Repeat Burned Match	Trick - Match, Book	7	10	1116
Robinson, Fred	Smash And Grab	Trick - Match, Box	1	9	106
Crombie, Jock	A Gag From Crombo	Trick - Match, Box	2	11	280
Anon	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Match, Box	4	10	588
Anon	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Match, Box	4	10	589
Breese, Martin	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Match, Box	4	11	603
Snooks, Fred	Fumdubulators	Trick - Match, Box	6	4	836
Stammers, Peter	Colour Changing Knives Without A Paddle	Trick - Match, Box, Paddle	1	12	137
Anon	Festive Fun	Trick - Match, Box, Puzzles	2	4	192
Fox, Karrell	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Match, Paper	4	11	603
Pladek, Oscar	The Reunited Match	Trick - Match, Paper	5	11	758
Mason, Eric	Striker	Trick - Match, Wooden	1	1	7
Snooks, Fred	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Match, Wooden	4	11	603
Boyce, Wally	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Match, Wooden	4	12	609
Wentworth, Peter	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Match, Wooden	4	12	609
Robinson, Fred	Oasis	Trick - Nut And Bolt	6	1	788
Goldstein, Phil	Brasso Profundo	Trick - Nut And Bolt, Ring, Finger	6	12	962
Goodwin, Alf	Twin Beds	Trick - Paddle	1	12	143
Weston, Mark	Continuous Ball Pen Production	Trick - Pen	2	10	273
Weston, Mark	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Pencil	4	5	514
Dawson, Trevor	Goldfinger	Trick - Pencil, Ring, Finger	1	6	65
Read, Bob	Business For Knife Through Coat	Trick - Pickpocketing, Sight Gag, Wallet, Watch	2	2	167
Goodwin, Alf	The Legpull	Trick - Pulls	2	12	296
Schuman, Ed	Festive Fun	Trick - Puzzle	2	4	194
Day, Arthur	Holidaze	Trick - Puzzle	3	4	339
Manfred	Oasis	Trick - Puzzle	4	11	601
Kane, Peter	Slow Motion Ring Release	Trick - Ring, Finger	1	1	6
Dribeck, Bob	Slow Motion Ring Release	Trick - Ring, Finger	1	6	75
Biro, Pete	Glittering	Trick - Ring, Finger	I	11	125
Mason, Eric	Kineto	Trick - Ring, Finger	4	1	464
Wonder, Tommy (See also Bema)	Ring On Stick	Trick - Ring, Finger	6	1	784
Goldstein, Phil	Ringleader	Trick - Ring, Finger	6	2	802
Goldstein, Phil	Amulation	Trick - Ring, Finger	6	7	879
Charnley, Keith	Ring On Stick	Trick - Ring, Finger	8	1	1165
McDuff, Algonquin	Penatring	Trick - Ring, Finger, Rope	6	8	892
Corinda, Tony	The Powers Of Darkness	Trick - Ring, Other	2	4	185
Baker, Roy	Yecrik	Trick - Ring, Other	3	7/8	388
Glenan, Al	Over The Top	Trick - Ring, Other, Rope	3	9	405

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Tucker, Stephen	Shear Magic	Trick - Rope	8	1	1166
Monaghan, Frank	The Flea	Trick - Sight Gag	1	4	44
Read, Bob	Impromptu Sight Bits Business	Trick - Sight Gag	1	6	72
Read, Bob	Bob's Business - Noes Galore	Trick - Sight Gag	1	10	122
Lees, Walt	The Winning Hand	Trick - Sight Gag	2	3	183
Read, Bob	Business For Knife Sharpening	Trick - Sight Gag	2	4	195
Lewis, Trevor	Latest Gag	Trick - Sight Gag	4	7	547
Allen, Vic	Tea Totaller	Trick - Sight Gag	4	9	577
Heins, Jan	Piep-Piep - A Jan Heins Gag	Trick - Sight Gag	4	12	609
Lees, Walt	In Jokes	Trick - Sight Gag	5	2	637
Day, Arthur	Fumdubulators	Trick - Sight Gag	6	4	836
Boyce, Wally	Dumbo	Trick - Sight Gag	7	1	977
Allen, Vic	Magic Shoes	Trick - Sight Gag	7	2	989
Weston, Mark	Comb Vanish	Trick - Sight Gag	7	12	1148
Brooke, Ken	Little Metal Eater	Trick - Sponge Ball, Coin: Production	5	5	677
Bema, Jos (Also see Wonder)	Table Workers Table	Trick - Table	2	8	246
Carré, David	Rosini Thimbles	Trick - Thimble	3	7/8	391
Robinson, Fred	Thimble-O	Trick - Thimble	4	9	569
Setterington, Arthur	Thimble Finger	Trick - Thimble	7	6	1051
Conway, Pat	Gag From Pat Conway	Trick - Thread	2	12	298
Forton, Piet	Can You Do The Gypsy Thread Again	Trick - Thread	5	10	740
Robinson, Fred	Fumdubulators	Trick - Thread, Handkerchief	6	4	836
Galloway, Andy & Ramsay, John	Ramsay On The Thumb Tip	Trick - Thumb Tip	2	7	229
Mason, Eric	Pop	Trick - Thumb Tip	5	12	772
Ostin, Bob	Tickets Please	Trick - Ticket	1	9	110
Conway, Pat	The ???? In Wallet	Trick - Wallet, Sight Gag	7	2	986
Rae, Oswald	Oasis	Trick - Watch	4	11	600
Page, Pat	The Page Boy Speaks	Trick - Watch	5	6	697
Lewis, Trevor	Time Flies	Trick - Watch	5	8	720

THE PABULAR INDEX: NON-TRICKS BY CATEGORY

Book and lecture note reviews

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	Vol.	No.	Page
Page, Pat	10 Thoughts On Close-Up	1	4	48
Read, Bob	Thanks To Pepys	1	4	48
Shiels, Tony 'Doc'	Entertaining With ESP	1	4	48
Fechter, Eddie	Magician Nitely	1	6	75
Ascanio	Book Of Knives	1	8	99
Willmarth, Phil	The Magic Of Matt Schulien	2	1	159
Page, Pat	The Big Book Of Magic	2	8	247
Vernon, Dai	The First California Lecture	2	9	263
Jennings, Larry	Stabbed Coincidence	2	11	283
Elias, Neil	At The Table	2	11	287
Minch, Stephen	Ever So Sleightly - The Professional Card Technique of Martin A Nash	2	12	291
Bilis, Bernard	Close-Up, French Style	3	2	322
Shields, Frank	Lecture Notes	3	4	343
Swinford, Paul	Lecture Notes	3	4	343
Walton, Roy	Trigger	3	4	344
Gill, Robert	Magic As A Performing Art	3	4	347
Bonville, Frank	The Little Secrets	3	5	354
Hardison	Poker	3	5	354
Koschitz	Manual Of Useful Information	3	5	354
Goldstein, Phil	Card Tricks For People Who Don't Do Card Tricks	3	7/8	380
Goldstein, Phil	Classic Tacklers	3	7/8	380
Goldstein, Phil	The Blue Book Of Mentalism	3	7/8	380
Anon	The Secret Tricks Of Bending Metal Objects With Just Your Mind	3	9	403
Hoffmann, Professor	Baccarat Fair & Foul	3	9	403
Jennings, Larry	On Card & Coin Handling	3	9	403
Hoffmann, Professor	How To Control Fair Dice	3	9	404
Busby, Jeff	Back To Back	3	10	425
Read, Bob	Transpo Tumbler	3	10	425
Jay, Ricky	Cards As Weapon	4	2	473
Bema, Jos	Lecture Notes	4	2	474
Takagi, Shigeo	Coin Assembly	4	2	474
Takagi, Shigeo	One Cup Routine	4	2	474
Galloway, Andy	Ramsay Classics	4	3	491
Goldstein, Phil	Verbal Control	4	4	506
Goldstein, Phil	Scattershot	4	5	521
Various	Pentangle Review	4	6	528
Goldstein, Phil	The Green Book Of Mentalism	4	8	558
Goldstein, Phil	The Red Book Of Mentalism	4	8	558
Goldstein, Phil	Notions	4	9	571
Goldstein, Phil	A Transatlantic Lecture	4	11	598
Mendoza, John	The Book Of John	4	12	611

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	Vol.	No.	Page
Braue, Fred	Fred Braue On False Deals	5	3	651
Gardner, Martin	Encyclopaedia Of Impromptu Magic	5	4	663
Dobson, Wayne	Lecture Notes: More Ideas	5	4	664
Corinda, Tony	Mastergimmick No. 2	5	5	679
Cyprian, Father	Hofzinser Card Problem	5	6	692
Takagi, Shigeo	Coin Routine	5	6	692
Fisher, John	Body Magic	5	8	719
Walton, Roy	That Certain Something	5	8	719
Goldstein, Phil	Goldstein's Gallery	5	9	735
Goldstein, Phil	The Yellow Book Of Mentalism	5	9	735
Johnsson, Rick	Rick Johnsson's Strike One	5	9	735
Cyprian, Father	Door To Door Card Sharp	5	10	744
Johnsson, Rick	Lecture Notes	5	10	744
Binarelli, Tony	Playmagic No. 1	5	11	760
Ganson, Lewis	The Immaculate Card Magic Of Walt Lees	6	1	787
Binarelli, Tony	Playtime 2	6	3	813
Read, Bob	100 Dollar Glass Thru' Table	6	5	847
Takagi, Shigeo	New One Cup Routine	6	5	849
Jennings, Larry	Card In Envelope Wallet	6	5	850
Galloway, Andy	Diverting Card Magic	6	6	860
Smith, Al	Cards On Demand	6	7	881
Grismer, Ray	Charts	6	8	891
Diamond, Paul	2 Cassettes	6	8	897
Kane. Peter	An Audio Card Session	6	8	897
Mason, Eric	A Peep In The Bottle	6	9	911
Mason, Eric	Magnifque	6	9	911
Mason, Eric	Pandora	6	9	911
England, Don	Technical Knock Outs (TKOs)	6	10	929
Mendoza, John	Cassettes	6	11	943
Goldstein, Phil	Spectacle (Packet Trick)	6	11	944
Lees, Walt	Four Professional Card Tricks	6	11	944
Griffiths, Owen	The Percy Press Glass Of Water Production Routine	6	12	956
Kane, Peter	Tetrad One	6	12	956
Malmros, Gert	Gert Malmros Presents	6	12	956
Lees, Walt	The Commercial Card Magic Of Roger Crosthwaite	6	12	957
Lees, Walt	The Complete Walt Lees Cannibal Card Act	7	1	975
Walton, Roy	The Complete Roy Walton Vol.	7	1	975
Horwitz, Basil	The Mental Magic Of	7	2	994
Lovell, Simon	Simon Says	7	2	994
Crosthwaite, Roger	Exclusive Card Series No. 2 Mindboggler	7	3	1010
Lees, Walt	More Professional Card Tricks	7	3	1010
Witt, Hans	Yellow Magic Pages	7	3	1010
York, Scot	Coin In Cigarette Lighter	7	3	1011
Andrews, Val	The Coin & Card Magic Of	7	4	1011
Kaufman, Richard	The Complete Works Of Derek Dingle	7	5	1027
Busby, Jeff	Mike Skinner's Intimate Magic	7	6	1043
Busby, Jeff Becker, Lany	Mentalism For Magicians	7	6	1057
•	-	7	6	1058
Thompson, John	Polished Polish Prestidigitation Richards Almanac	7
Kaufman, Richard	AICHAIUS AIHIAHAC	1	6	1059

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	Vol.	No.	Page
Tucker, Stephen	Spell-Binder Vol.2 No.15	7	6	1059
Various	The Magic Of The Cube	7	6	1059
Chesboro, Bob	Coin In Cigarette Lighter	7	7	1069
Burger, Eugene	Secrets & Mysteries For The	7	7	1074
Kirk, Charles	Tips On Table Hopping Close-Up Entertainer	7	7	1074
Mason, Eric	A Boon For All Seasons	7	7	1074
Richardson, Barrie	A Boon For All Seasons	7	7	1074
Tucker, Stephen	Spell-Binder. Special Issue	7	7	1075
Lees, Walt	Mike Bornstein's Triumph Outdone	7	8	1087
Duffie, Peter	Alternative Card Magic	7	8	1088
Kaufman, Richard	The New York Magic Symposium Close-Up Collection	7	8	1088
Williams, Geoffrey	Two Ring Linking Ring Routine	7	8	1088
Jennings, Larry	A Visit With Larry Jennings (Lecture Notes)	7	9	1104
Kane, Peter	Kane	7	9	1104
Britland, David	Deckade	7	9	1105
James, Stewart	Sefalaljia No. 2	7	9	1105
Breese, Martin	Marked Manual Of Marked Card Magic	7	10	1121
Lesley, Ted	Marked Manual Of Marked Card Magic	7	10	1121
Steele, WF (Rufus)	The Last Words On Cards	7	10	1121
McMillan, Jack	Sleights & Swindles	7	10	1122
Thompson, Johnny	Coin In Bottle Plus	7	10	1123
Britland, David	Cardopolis	8	2	1174
Russell, Marc	Cardopolis	8	2	1174
Bema, Jos	Tommy Wonder Entertains	8	3	1187
Tucker, Stephen	Spell-Binder Special 3	8	3	1188
Aukes, John	It's Magic	8	4	1200
Britland, David	Tearing A Lady In Two	8	4	1200
Wonder, Tommy	Wonder Material	8	5	1213
Hams, Paul	Video Tape	8	5	1214
Lees, Walt	The Art Of The Grafter	8	6	1226
Page, Patrick	Book Of Thumb Tips	8	6	1226
Rackerbaumer, Jon	Card Puzzle Book	8	7	1242
Harris, Paul	Close-Up Seductions	8	8	1256
Lees, Walt	The Best Of Close-Up Magic	8	9	1271
Rackerbaumer, Jon	The Card Puzzle & Other Diversions	8	9	1271
Duco, El	Simple Ideas In Magic No. 1	8	10	1284
Harris, Ben	Beyond The Black Hole	8	10	1284
Harris, Ben	Needled	8	10	1284
Harris, Ben	Pen-Note-Tration	8	10	1284
Harris, Ben	Prime Hole Card	8	10	1284

Editorial article — Walt Lees

ARTICLE	Vol.	No.	Page
Robinson, Fred - dealing, perfectionist; Ganson's death	6	7	872
Robinson, Fred issue; Johnsson on meeting Fred	6	8	886
Blackpool convention; Crosthwaite; Bob Read; Turpin	6	9	906
Roger Crosthwaite	6	10	918
Non-card issue; negative thinking; card tricks	6	11	940
Goldstein issue; Hamilton lecture; IBM close-up	6	12	955

ARTICLE	Vol.	No.	Page
On magic competitions - reason for entering and use of	7	1	973
PD Xmas special - glide; Spirit count; conventions	7	2	988
Blackpool close-up; Cornelius coin leap; Nic Picot	7	3	1004
Size restriction of magazine; Argentina situation	7	4	1022
Lees contribution to Puzzled: Pat Page's T.A.T.	7	5	1038
Missing Hastings; thoughts on reporting; Pabular night	7	6	1052
Sayings in magic; actor as magician; nothing new & gags	7	7	1067
Audiences; young close-uppers; Blackpool; children	7	8	1081
Magical criticism; over praising; Ian Kent as compere	7	9	1098
Close-Up for children - Terry Machin & Ferry Gerats	7	10	1115
Ian Land; Magic magazines; Barrie Richardson & Giobbi	7	11	1131
Standing down as Editor, Stephen Tucker taking over	7	12	1145

Editorial article — Stephen Tucker

ARTICLE	Vol.	No.	Page
Introduction - change of thinking	7	12	1145
Nash lecture; Sweden; Lees' books; Nick Bolton	8	1	1158
Britland's Cardopolis; Eric Mason	8	2	1174
In Sweden; future contributions	8	3	1186
Top names in magazine; book review; Britland's T&R card	8	4	1200
Eric Mason ill; delays in Britland & Goldstein issues	8	5	1213
Tommy Cooper death; Monmoine issue; colour change case	8	6	1226
Pabular delays; future contributors; Lees editing Repro	8	7	1242
Scottish contingent book review; Close-Up at IBM	8	8	1256
Phil Goldstein; Ian Land's free manuscripts	8	9	1271
Delayed issue; Harrogate; BMS dinner, Italian tour	8	10	1283

Focus article — Fred Robinson

ARTICLE	Vol.	No.	Page
On 38th IBM	1	1	3
Mike Skinner; Close-Up in magazines	1	1	11
David Berglas' reward for Uri Geller type effect	1	3	34
Book reviews; Cy Endfield at Magic Circle	1	4	48
Fred Kaps Lecture	1	5	63
Book Review of Magician Nitely	1	6	75
Kaps Coin In Bottle; Indian Street entertainers	1	7	87
Coin spinning; Book Review; Uri Geller, On the radio	1	8	99
24th SAMS; Gaming Board	1	9	111
Alex Elmsley lecture; Books out on Ross & Carlyle	1	10	123
London magic pubs; Fred Kaps	1	11	135
Magic dealers; J Randi story; Lees in Hamleys; quote	1	12	147
IBM Convention; Ostin's Vampire; Randi & Ben Martin	2	1	159
IBM Southport Convention	2	2	171
Visitors; Prince Charles at the Magic Circle; friends bad quotes	2	4	199
Lees, Kaps, Lorayne; South African magic; International Day	2	5	210
Carlyle book review; Bob Read on New Faces	2	6	223
Blackpool Convention; US & UK magicians in pub	2	8	251
Vernon lecture notes; Bob Read at Savoy; Doug Alker	2	9	263

ARTICLE		Vol.	No.	Page
Exposure & Dealers; J	Jennings vs Marlo; publicity	2	10	275
Robert Harbin		2	11	287
Close-Up competition	s; Marv Long & Bob Haines	2	12	299
Parkinson TV show; J	ay lecture, 10 years for Magic Studio	3	3	330
Kaps & Jay on TV; Ga	aeton Bloom; Tamariz; Marlo replies	3	5	350
David Carre; Lewis G	anson; Ramsay Reunion	3	6	371
Happenings	— Obie O'Brien
ARTICLE		Vol.	No.	Page
Introduction to column	1	4	12	608
NYCAN convention;	Magic Castle; Mullica's Tom Foolery	5	2	636
Fechter's death; 9th F	FFF; Mullica's 1st anniversary	5	5	678
Meeting Robinson, Fr	ed; Jennings card trick; FISM	5	7	701
FISM winners; SAMS	and American magicians	5	8	714
Abbots Get Together,	Seabrooke; Mullica & others	5	10	746
Bob Read Close-Up &	e lecture; Maurice Fogel lecture	6	5	843
Lecture and	convention review
CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	Vol.	No.	Pag
Robinson, Fred	Don Alan lectures	2	6	218
Robinson, Fred	Pabular Convention	3	2	315
Robinson, Fred	IBM British Ring 1976	3	2	321
Robinson, Fred	Scott York Lecture	3	4	347
Bruce, Gordon	Bob Read Lecture	4	7	546
Lees, Walt	Close-up at International Day	6	6	861
Lees, Walt	Cambridge Close-Up	6	11	941
Bruce, Gordon	Robinson, Fred In Glasgow	7	7	1070
Lees, Walt	Among The Great Unwashed (Close-Up At Blackpool)	7	9	110
Britland, David	Review Of The Martin Nash Lecture (London 1983)	8	2	1174
Keable-Elliott, Ian	Philippe Socrate Lecture	8	7	124
Oasis article	- Fred Robinson
ARTICLE		Vol.	No.	Pag
-	y Reunion; TV; skill against magic	3	9	402
Close-Up at & Spanisl	h conventions; Grismer, Scots	3	10	424
Pabular evening at the	Magic Circle; Geoff Ray & Ramsay Reunion	3	11	431
Lorayne; Harrogate; T	amariz lecture; cards to pocket	3	12	451
Mason; Caveney; John	n Ramsay book; Spanish Cartomagia	4	1	462
Barrie Richardson; mentalism & public belief		4	4	499
Close-Up at Blackpoo	1 - conditions	4	5	520
Close-Up at convention	ons; TV magicians; magic tapes	4	6	531
Pabular policy; failure	of actors as magicians	4	7	542
Richardson & misdire	ction; various magicians	4	8	561
Johnny Paul lecture; T	'V recordings; Fechter convention	4	9	570
Lecturing; Manchester	r magicians; Brahms in the US	4	10	584
Goldstein; Bloom's ca	ard problem; Ramsay book; Hastings	4	11	599

12

610

628

 $Ane mos\ restaurant;\ Vernon\ on\ sleights;\ lecture\ notes$

Lees; Vernon; Dingle's pass; Spoonees Coins Here's Hoo

ARTICLE	Vol.	No.	Page
TV magicians; Barnes winning Circle; false counts	5	2	638
Presentation articles; Fred Kaps; what magicians want	5	3	652
Blackpool; Tamariz; Dobson lecture notes; betcha gag	5	4	662
Gordon Bruce; magic ethics; Dingle's layman trick	5	5	673
Vernon's 85th birthday - tributes; Gorpy; Kevin Davie	5	6	688
FISM Brussels; technical discussion; Paul Daniels show	5	7	703
Ken Brooke's Magic Place closes; Blenheim bar, Diaconis	5	8	712
Performing to magicians not laymen; Johnny Paul lecture	5	9	730
Restaurant magic; Lovell and entertaining for laymen	5	10	742
Pabular evening; Richard Turner, Tamariz Zarrow tip	5	11	757
Close-Up competitions; standing up; Len Neil; Kaps ill	5	12	771
Read's Vegas notes & prints; Nut & Bolt trick solution	6	1	788
Mentalism & Geller, astrology; artistry; summer seasons	6	2	798
Remembering Ramsay issue; Galloway & misdirection	6	3	810
Kaps death; tribute & analysis of his success; funeral	6	4	830
Close-Up at conventions; Pabular evening; Spanish cards	6	5	845
Retirement from Editor; Lees appointed; using Pabular	6	6	859

Prints from the Bob Read Collection

ARTICLE	Vol.	No.	Page
L'Escamoteur (man doing cups & balls in crowd)	6	1	791
Nouveau Panthéon Du Charivari par A Grévin (Political cartoon)	6	2	805
Taskspelaren: Paris (cups & balls in street)	6	3	815
Aspect de la place de la Bastille un dimanche de septembre (street scene)	6	4	833
Taskspelaren. Efter P Massanis malning. (cups & balls inside)	6	5	851
Les Cosaques Pour Rire. L'Escamoteur Manquant Son Tour, Faute D'Un Compère (political cups & balls)	6	6	867
Musee Pour Rire (cups & balls)	6	9	912
Lar Caricature (large man juggling objects)	6	11	949
Robert Monaire Libiaite (man waving money)	7	2	997
Taskenspilleren (cups & balls in booth)	7	11	1140
L'Escamoteur, sur le boulevard, près ie Chateau d'Eau (cups & balls in crowd)	7	12	1153
Les Cosaques Pour Rire. L'Escamoteur Manquant Son Tour, Faute D'un Compere (political cups & balls)	8	1	1168

The Page Boy Speaks article — Patrick Page

ARTICLE	Vol.	No.	Page
Close-up magicians in the US	1	1	11
Johnny Paul	1	2	16
Comment on Tony Shiels article; close-up for money	1	3	32
Tips for Domino trick	1	4	45
Performing at restaurant	1	5	55
Indian street entertainer	1	6	67
On being a magician	1	7	84
On Johnny Hart and Jerry Bergman; De Bieve & Co (1)	1	8	96
For My Next Trick: Daniels & Seabrooke; Kahn & Kahn (2)	1	9	104
Daniels & Kaps on Nixon; Terri Rogers & Cassidy on close-up; mentalist story; Sydney Lee (3)	1	10	117
Magicians use of -i; AI Flosso; Circus tricks (4)	1	11	130
Watching magicians; For My Next Trick; Comedy Juggling Tricks (5)	1	12	142
IBM Convention; Harold Bronhaut "hype"	2	1	153

ARTICLE	Vol.	No.	Page
Kids shows; Albert Le Bas anecdote; Page's play; Randi	2	2	165
Walt Lees	2	3	183
Mark Wilson; Brian Buzzing; Showboat restaurant	2	4	196
Working at Davenports; John Shirley; Schulian card pose	2	5	204
Don Alan; lecturing in US; glass under cup problem	2	6	221
John Ramsay	2	7	239
Trip to US - performing, lecturing & meeting	2	8	248
Trip to US continued; on US magicians	2	9	257
Howie Schwartzman; lecturing in Italy	2	10	269
Show in Italy with Slydini, Sitta and Shimada	2	11	285
US with collector Charlie Kalish; car stolen	2	12	297
FISM in Vienna; Hans Wittus street act; pickpocketing	3	1	308
Expelled from IBM for exposure	3	2	323
His card problems; Bugs Bunny quote; Jubilee year	3	3	334
IBM expulsion; Gaeton Bloom; Dominique; Ricky Jay	3	4	345
Magic on TV; duplicates & copyists; a coin vanish	3	5	355
Being left out; Binarelli's wild card; Ramsay Reunion	3	7/8	394
Spain lecturing; Kaps, Macmillan & Tamariz; Jack Hughes	3	9	410
Holiday; Camilo & Cachadina; 150 Comedy Props; Vernon	3	10	426
TV Autometer, Booth using close-up; IBM & expulsion	3	11	442
Magical friends; David Roth, John Calvert, Jay Marshall	3	12	455
On performing lectures; Eric Mason	4	1	468
France; Magic Man with John Wade; Ron's convention	4	2	480
Fialho, Bro Hammon; Alain & Zena Noel; places to be bad	4	3	494
Trendy magicians: Hart, Daniels, Marshall, Chanin; Abra	4	4	507
Performing in pubs: change in entertainment	4	5	522
Pay off to pub story; Marshall; collecting photos; book	4	6	536
Mike Caldwell; sleight of hand & close-up; some tricks	4	7	550
Hollywood & Mike Caldwell; Carl Beck & Ricky Dunn's act	4	8	556
SAM; lecturing; American magicians - Roth, Fox etc	4	9	578
In New York; Richiardi's act & others; 3 card tricks	4	10	590
Vernon, Pc of Han Ping Chien; Geller, Dutch TV & Hank V	4	11	602
New Year, dishonest magicians; Doug Henning, Kaps, Jay	4	12	617
Card convention; stage card tricks & acts; the Greats	5	1	631
Jay Marshall; Encyclopaedia of Impromptu Magic; tapes	5	2	644
Bob Olson; FISM; making it big; Page's first act	5	3	657
Definition of a professional; another Pat Page	5	4	669
Swiss & FISM close-up; Daniels & Nixon; Siegfried & Roy	5	5	684
Goshman; Biro; Jennings; Findlay sale; magic in films	5	6	697
Same act magicians; original performers; ripping off	5	7	709
IBM reinstatement; Goshman; Fogel & Colin Rose; Brooke	5	8	722
1979 look back; Brooke photo; tapes; old acts original	5	9	737
Italian IBM; Sylvan's 3 card monte TV presentation	5	10	751
Dale Harney's TV show & appearing magicians including Page	5	11	751 764
Resting in Scotland; Pages creative process comparing Fitzkee	5	12	780
Circle Collector's Day; Val Andrew's Soo biography -lack of	6	1	790
Young man's world - Copperfield; old timers; surviving	6	2	807
-			823
SAM; Cornelius; US magicians - compared to Ramsay	6	3
IBM & gents card trick; Fogel & mentalism is dead	6	4	838

ARTICLE	Vol.	No.	Page
Watching magic on TV; pet routines; Nixon compared with Daniels	6	5	852
Compulsive thinker, notebooks on magic; Kaps notebook	6	6	868
Robinson, Fred: comparing to Nelson Downs; daughter's magic act	6	7	882
Bob Albo; Copperfield's and magic; abuse of tapes	6	8	898
Inventor of year: hard to define - idea for Circle	6	9	914
On attending magic conventions - advantages	6	10	932
IBM & various magicians; linking ring anecdote	6	11	948
Circle close-up competition; Rex Cooper, beginners	6	12	966
2 groups of magis; idea for sponge balls & dinner table	7	1	982
Open letter to Walt Lees; close-up cases; Blackpool	7	2	998
Things going wrong; Breese close-up with John Mendoza	7	3	1009
Acts for magicians; Al Flosso's act; tricks to yourself	7	4	1030
Video; thoughts on exposure; overexposure on TV	7	5	1046
Norway Convention; high standard of young: John Houdi	7	6	1061
Convention in Ireland - Hubert Lambert	7	7	1077
Favourite close-up tricks; Heba heba Al & Sugar Cube	7	8	1092
TV stars; Brachetti in I; theatre shows; Vegas; Brooke	7	9	1109
1st impressions; changing the act; Sugar Cube trick	7	10	1125
Brachetti's Y (change from I) & description of show	7	11	1141
IBM; the Shield; Mark Raffles, Lewis & Page's Moneybag	7	12	1154
Reading magazines & incestuous; Lyle's Tissue Paper to Hat	8	1	1169
Small props compared to big; importance of fooling	8	2	1182
Car broken into & tapes stolen: turned out they weren't	8	3	1196
Blackpool; Dobson's act; night before lectures	8	4	1208
Reading magic magazines; tricks not good; Quotation	8	5	1222
Busking in Covent Garden; Page busking; private parties	8	6	1237
Watching Olympics: magic competitions; Jay at Sothebys	8	7	1253
IBM: dealers, overseas visitors, Alf Moore's death	8	8	1268
Women in Circle; old books; importance of presentation	8	9	1279
Originality; great performers - maybe Wayne Dobson	8	10	1294

THE PABULAR INDEX: TRICKS BY CONTRIBUTOR

Alker, Doug
The Useless Pack	Trick - CT: Coloured Backs	2	8	249
Double Monte	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	2	12	294
Turncoat	Trick - CT: Four Ace	3	4	346
Three Card Buckle	Trick - CS: False Count	3	5	351
Three Cards Across Extra	Trick - CT: Transposition	3	5	352
One In Four	Trick - CT: Coloured Backs	3	7/8	390
Oh No, Not Another Ace Trick	Trick - CT: Four Ace	3	11	438
Rainbow Triumph	Trick - CT: Coloured Backs	4	5	518
Behaviour Bluff And Beyond	Trick - CT: Four Ace	4	8	560
Ace Sandwich	Trick - CT: Four Ace	7	12	1148
Allen, Vic
Helping Hand	Trick - Coin: Gag And Betcha	3	9	407
Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette	4	2	473
Eyes Down	Trick - CT: Discoveries	4	8	555
Tea Totaller	Trick - Sight Gag	4	9	577
Magic Shoes	Trick - Sight Gag	7	2	989
Anders, John
Kaning Mercury	Trick - CT: Discoveries	7	9	1102
Anon
Focus	Trick - Cigarette	1	4	49
Focus	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	1	4	49
Focus	Trick - Drink Betcha, Puzzles	1	4	50
Focus	Trick - Drink Betcha	1	4	51
Odd Optic	Trick - Finger	2	1	157
Festive Fun	Trick - Match, Box, Puzzles	2	4	192
Festive Fun	Trick - CT: Prediction, Drink Betchas	2	4	193
Where There's Smoke	Trick - Match, Box	4	10	588
Where There's Smoke	Trick - Match, Box	4	10	589
Antonioli, Dr Brum
Focus	Trick - Calculator	1	7	87
Aukes, John
The Four Card Trick	Trick - CT: Prediction	8	4	1200
Straight And Round	Trick - CT: Discoveries	8	7	1250
Double Lift With One Card	Trick - CS: Double Lift	8	7	1251

Austin, Michael
My Blue Aces Again	Trick - CT: Four Ace	1	9	108
Avis, Jack
A Spirit Detection	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	1	5	56
The Wishing Envelope	Trick - CT: Transposition, Envelope	2	2	161
Transposed Marlo Reverse	Trick - CT: Reversal	2	2	163
The Jokers Wild	Trick - CT: Torn	2	2	163
Siva Count	Trick - CS: False Count	5	2	638
The Pinockle Caper	Trick - CT: Four Ace	5	6	693
Baker, Roy
Yecrik	Trick - Ring, Other	3	7/8	388
Baxter, lan
Supertransportation	Trick - CT: Transposition	1	9	109
My Cup Flippeth Over	Trick - Cup	2	12	298
Bema, Jos (Also see Wonder	·)
Table Workers Table	Trick - Table	2	8	246
The Pip Eating Spider	Trick - CT: Other	2	10	272
Splitting The Money	Trick - Bank Note	4	2	475
Where There's Smoke	Trick - Handkerchief	4	5	514
Ben, David
Holy Smoke	Trick - Bank Note, Cigarette, Coin: Production	7	1	972
Bennett, Keith
Overhand False Shuffle	Trick - CS: False Shuffle	2	2	164
Son Of Twisting The Aces	Trick - CT: Reversal	3	5	353
Second Variation On Twisting The Aces Revisited	Trick - CT: Reversal	3	7/8	376
Take Me To Your Leader	Trick - CT: Separation	7	2	986
Berglas, David
Ad Infinitum	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	1	5	53
Bertram, Ross
Coins Thru Table	Trick - Coin: Through	1	5	62
Binarelli, Tony
Galaxy Telepathy	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	5	11	759
Biro, Pete
Glittering	Trick - Ring, Finger	I	11	125

Blake, George
Focus	Trick - M: Living And Dead, Coin: Puzzle	1	6	76
Bloom, Gaeton
OCCAMITIS	Trick - CT: Discoveries	3	5	356
Prestidigitational Prediction	Trick - M: Book And Newspaper	3	9	397
Hank To Egg Exposed	Trick - Egg	5	7	699
Borra
Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette	4	7	548
Bossi, Van
Hole-Due-Chination	Trick - Coin: Through	3	7/8	381
Boyce, Wally
Where There's Smoke	Trick - Match, Wooden	4	12	609
The Piscatorial Peg	Trick - CT: Discoveries	5	2	640
Dumbo	Trick - Sight Gag	7	1	977
Elizabeth 2nd	Trick - CT: Matching, Envelope	7	2	995
Bragoli, John
Collected Thoughts	Trick - CT: Prediction, M: Book And Newspaper	2	4	194
Ace In The Hole	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	2	6	222
Mental Jigsaw	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	2	6	222
Versadeal	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	3	4	341
Brahams, Anthony
Hole-Due-Chination	Trick - Coin: Through	3	7/8	381
Breese, Martin
Where There's Smoke	Trick - Match, Box	4	11	603
The Deluxe Chink Box	Trick - Coin: Through	8	5	1216
Britland, David
David Britland Writes	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	2	9	261
Through The 4th Dimension	Trick - CT: Triumph	3	2	316
Brooke, Ken
Focus	Trick - Coin: Puzzle	1	4	50
Little Metal Eater	Trick - Sponge Ball, Coin: Production	5	5	677
Card In Envelope	Trick - Envelope, CS: Palming	5	5	680
Packet Poker	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	5	5	681
The Duplicount	Trick - CS: False Counts	5	5	682
The Tired Travellers	Trick - CT: Transposition	5	6	695
I-O-U	Trick - Bank Note, CT: Torn, CT: Wallet	6	3	816
Split Second	Trick - CS: Dealing	6	8	889

Poker Deal	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	6	8	890
Double Lift Techniques And Variations	Trick - CS: Double Lift	7	4	1024
Way Out	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	7	4	1026
Bruce, Gordon
Take Three	Trick - Coin: Sleight	3	7/8	373
Cased	Trick - CT: Discoveries	5	5	672
Coin Assembly	Trick - Coin And Card	5	5	674
Pocket Palm	Trick - CS: Palming	5	5	676
Matching Pairs	Trick - CT: Matching	5	5	676
Byrne, Bob
Focus	Trick - M: Living And Dead	1	7	87
Comerce Develop
Cameron, Douglas
The Flip Switch	Trick - Coin: Sleight	8	1	1167
Devil's Delight	Trick - CT: Four Ace	8	8	1261
Carlisle, Stanton
Colour Psychology	Trick - Envelope, M: Just Chance	1	2	18
Carney, John
Poor Mans Card Manipulation	Trick - CT: Vanishing	8	10	1284
Carré, David
Face Up	Trick - CT: Reversal	2	6	219
With An Okito Box	Trick - Coin: Through	2	11	281
Torn & Restored Bank Note	Trick - Bank Note	3	6	361
Coin Congregation	Trick - Coin And Card	3	6	363
Just Dice	Trick - Dice	3	6	365
The Card Expert	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	3	6	366
Impromptu Cup And Ball	Trick - Cup	3	6	370
Rosini Thimbles	Trick - Thimble	3	7/8	391
Just Changes	Trick - CT: Packet	3	10	416
Hanky Panky	Trick - Coin: Change, Handkerchief	3	11	435
One Potato, Two Potato	Trick - Cup	4	7	543
Cassidy, Mike
Flight Four	Trick - Coin: Across, Glass	1	7	77
Castillon, Gene
Spirit Count	Trick - CS: False Count	5	2	639
Charnley, Keith
Coin And Cover	Trick - Bank Note, Coin: Production, Wallet	5	8	721
A Deceptive Click Pass	Trick - Coin: Sleight	6	9	907
One in The Eye	Trick - Coin: Across	7	3	1005

Audible (Fake) Transfer Ring On Stick	Trick - Coin: Sleight Trick - Ring, Finger	7 8	7 1	1069 1165
	. 6, 6.
Chinn, Bill	THE MAN IN COLUMN TO SEC	2	2	217
Bill Chinn Writes	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	3	2	317
Chiswell, Richard
A Coin Effect	Trick - Coin: Vanish	4	5	517
Handywork	Trick - Coin: Change, Coin: Sleight, Match, Book	4	8	557
Christensen, Jerry L
Pyramid Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	3	12	447
Clancy, Paddy
Right Angled Coin Vanish	Trick - Coin: Vanish	5	10	747
Colgan, Des
Diary Dice-Card	Trick - CT: Prediction, Dice	1	9	105
Table Top Motorway	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	1	12	145
Miracle Matchstick Missile	Trick - CT: Discoveries, Match, Wooden	2	4	195
Colombini, Carlos & Fabian
Transpo Ink	Trick - CT: Oil And Water	2	9	255
Conway, Pat
Gag From Pat Conway	Trick - Thread	2	12	298
The ???? In Wallet	Trick - Wallet, Sight Gag	7	2	986
Corinda, Tony
The Powers Of Darkness	Trick - Ring, Other	2	4	185
Craven, Tom
Pyramid Variation	Trick - CT: Four Ace	4	3	490
Crombie, Jock
A Gag From Crombo	Trick - Match, Box	2	11	280
Crosthwaite, Roger
Doing The Splits	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	6	10	918
The Little Salt Man	Trick - CT: Transposition	6	10	922
Skating On Ice	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	6	10	926
Partial Brainwave Modified Master Grip	Trick - CT: Reversal Trick - CS: Dealing	6 8	10 2	929 1180
-	22. 2	Ŭ	-
Crush, Peter
Peter's Presto Pop-In	Trick - Bottle, Coin: Through	4	9	575

Danson, Ted
Give Me A Ring	Trick - Envelope, M: Just Chance, Ring, Finger	1	2	17
Davie, Kevin
Red-Back Surprise	Trick - CT: Separation	3	12	449
Red-Back Surprise Correction	Trick - CT: Separation	4	6	531
Copy Cat	Trick - CT: Matching	4	8	554
Signachange	Trick - CT: Coloured Backs	4	8	559
Ace-Stounding	Trick - CT: Four Ace	4	12	616
Stud	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	5	3	655
Gaspers Galore	Trick - CT: Prediction	6	4	826
Sign There	Trick - CT: Transposition	6	4	826
Highly Skilled Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	6	4	828
Relative Rise	Trick - CT: Rising Card	6	4	829
Palm Steal	Trick - CS: Palming	6	4	834
The Lollipop Trick	Trick - CT: Sucker	6	4	835
Dawson, Trevor
Goldfinger	Trick - Pencil, Ring, Finger	1	6	65
Day, Arthur
Holidaze	Trick - Puzzle	3	4	339
A Tuppeny One	Trick - Coin: Prediction	6	1	789
Fumdubulators	Trick - Sight Gag	6	4	836
Day, Sonny
Minerve	Trick - CS: Control	6	3	813
Fastest Trick In The World	Trick - CT: Discoveries	6	3	814
Cutting The Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	6	3	814
Dexter, Will
Cashmatch	Trick - Coin: Prediction	2	5	202
Inflation Sensation	Trick - Coin: Change	2	5	203
Dobson, Wayne
Coin Assembly	Trick - Coin And Card	4	12	613
Joker Sandwich	Trick - CT: Sandwich	5	4	665
Dribeck, Bob
On Witch Doctors	Trick - CT: Vanishing	1	6	66
Slow Motion Ring Release	Trick - Ring, Finger	1	6	75
Aenigma Variations	Trick - CT: Oil And Water	2	12	292
Play It Again Sam	Trick - CT: Matching	2	12	293
Duco, El
Fantastic Elastics	Trick - Elastic Band	8	3	1191
Slow Motion Penetration	Trick - Dice, Glass	8	10	1292

Duffie, Peter
A Fansee Blind Shuffle	Trick - CS: False Shuffle	2	1	158
Aces With A Twist	Trick - CT: Reversal	2	5	209
The Go-Between	Trick - CT: Sandwich	2	10	268
Card In Case Transposition	Trick - CT: Transposition	2	12	289
Positive Card Fold	Trick - CS: Palming	2	12	290
Twin Key-Boards	Trick - CT: Matching	3	4	344
Cannibal Land	Trick - CT: Collectors	3	11	432
Collectors Seminar	Trick - CT: Collectors	5	9	734
And The Cans Came Back	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	6	3	822
Trans Collection	Trick - CT: Collectors	6	7	876
Duffie, Peter & Walton, Roy
Play It Again Sam	Trick - CT: Matching	2	9	253
Duggal, Shiv (See also Shiv)
Best Shot	Trick - CT: Sandwich	8	8	1263
Duvivier, Dominique
The Problem Is	Trick - CT: Packet	4	10	585
East, Alex
The Magician's Name	Trick - CT: Oil And Water	8	5	1215
Eckl, Ed
Madness With The Ascanio Spread	Trick - CT: Packet	2	1	154
Alice Blue Gown	Trick - CT: Packet	2	1	155
Xmas Calculator	Trick - CT: Packet	2	1	155
Elmsley, Alex
One At A Time Collectors	Trick - CT: Collectors	1	3	28
Festive Fun	Trick - Coin: Puzzle	2	4	192
Endfield, Cy
A Cy Endfield Location	Trick - CT: Discoveries	3	5	351
Tomorrows World	Trick - M: Other	4	6	532
Etherington, Graham
Match Card 2	Trick - CT: Matching, Match, Book	2	4	189
Farmer, Bob
Hamman Count	Trick - CS: False Count	3	10	420
Jazz Pieces, Body & Soul - Pt I	Trick - CT: Transposition	4	2	476
Jazz Pieces, Body & Soul - Pt II & III	Trick - CT: Oil And Water	4	2	477
Cabungle	Trick - CS: False Count	4	5	511
Jazz Pieces	Trick - CT: Transposition, CT: Oil And Water	4	5	512

Twisting, Turning, Extending And Otherwise Molesting The Four Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	4	9	572
Faro, Tony
Spectator Magician	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	1	1	5
Focus	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	1	4	50
Festive Fun	Trick - Coin: Puzzle, Match, Wooden	2	4	193
Fells, John
Three Into One Won't Go	Trick - CT: Packet	7	1	976
Flip (See also Hallema)
Bewildering Cards	Trick - CT: Packet	1	8	89
Forton, Piet
Triple Flip	Trick - CS: Flourish	5	2	639
Can You Do The Gypsy Thread Again	Trick - Thread	5	10	740
Irish Key Ring	Trick - Key, Ring, Other	6	4	836
Fan Club	Trick - CT: Discoveries	6	6	865
Fox, Karrell
Where There's Smoke	Trick - Match, Paper	4	11	603
Fox, Kevin
We'll Ring You	Trick - Coin And Card, Dice	1	9	101
Focus	Trick - Coin And Card, Dice	1	10	123
Frame, Lawrence
Commercial Coin In Pack	Trick - Coin And Card	7	6	1054
Compression	Trick - CT: Vanishing	7	10	1124
Galloway, Andy
Pegasus Coin	Trick - Coin: Across	1	1	1
Coin And Jam Jar Routine	Trick - Coin: Through, Glass	2	7	230
Coin Vanish In The Air	Trick - Coin: Vanish	2	7	230
The Cig Trick	Trick - Cigarette, Ticket	2	7	232
One-Two-Three-Four Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	4	3	492
The Changeling	Trick - Coin: Change	6	3	817
Unsuspected Extra	Trick - Coin: Vanish	6	3	817
Vernon's Indicator	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	8	8	1258
Galloway, Andy & Ramsay,	John
Ramsay On The Thumb Tip	Trick - Thumb Tip	2	7	229
Gamble, Richard M
Giant Cigarette Production	Trick - Cigarette	7	4	1023
Blooming Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	7	7	1076

Kicker Colour Change	Trick - CT: Coloured Backs	7	9	1106
A Sweet Cigarette	Trick - Cigarette	7	12	1146
Geddes, Johnnie
The Knowing Nine	Trick - CT: Discoveries	2	1	151
Gilliland, John
Take Three	Trick - Coin: Sleight	3	7/8	373
Giobbi, Roberto
A Card To Be Thought About	Trick - CT: Prediction	7	12	1152
Blushing Jumper	Trick - CT: Wallet	8	1	1159
The Trevor Lewis Card To Wallet	Trick - CT: Wallet	8	2	1179
The Joker Folds Up	Trick - CT: Discoveries	8	4	1203
The Trojan Deck	Trick - CT: Matching	8	5	1219
For Susan	Trick - CT: Assembly	8	7	1243
1, 2, 3 & 4 Queens	Trick - CT: Transposition	8	7	1248
Glenan, Al
Over The Top	Trick - Ring, Other, Rope	3	9	405
Glover, Brian
Transpo Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	5	2	642
The Red Aces	Trick - CT: Sandwich	5	4	666
Oasis	Trick - CT: Sandwich	5	6	689
Goldstein, Phil
Your Choice	Trick - M: Other	3	3	335
Counter Revolution	Trick - CT: Separation	3	4	340
Taking The Plunge	Trick - CT: Rising Card	3	10	419
Mexican Geometry	Trick - M: Mental Matching	3	11	434
Half Through	Trick - Coin: Through	3	12	452
Card In Mind	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	4	5	521
Simplified Follow The Leader	Trick - CT: Separation	4	7	540
Alter-Ego	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	4	11	594
Cry Wolf	Trick - CT: Packet	4	11	595
Immediate Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	4	11	596
Back Gammon	Trick - CT: Packet	4	11	597
Negative Intruder	Trick - CT: Sandwich	4	11	597
Snap Turn Count	Trick - CS: False Count	4	12	614
Territory	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	5	3	654
Intimate Spirit	Trick - M: Spirit Writing	5	4	667
Wolf Trap	Trick - CT: Packet	5	7	702
Synch-Cerely	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	5	8	720
The Basic Twink	Trick - CT: Matching	5	11	754
Twink Plus	Trick - CT: Matching	5	11	755
Twink Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	5	11	756

Two Deck Twink	Trick - CT: Matching	5	11	756
Psychia-Twist	Trick - CT: Reversal	5	12	775
Ringleader	Trick - Ring, Finger	6	2	802
Data	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	6	5	848
Dai Vernon's Centrepiece	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	6	6	863
Amulation	Trick - Ring, Finger	6	7	879
Precoinition	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	6	11	944
Simple Oscar	Trick - CT: Packet	6	12	954
Simple Thornton	Trick - CT: Packet	6	12	958
Either Aura	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	6	12	959
Jan-Ken-Pon	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	6	12	960
37th Parallel	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	6	12	962
Brasso Profundo	Trick - Nut And Bolt, Ring, Finger	6	12	962
Spirit Count	Trick - CS: False Count	6	12	963
Necktie Second	Trick - CS: Dealing	6	12	964
Packetrainer	Trick - CT: Packet	7	3	1012
All For Nought	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	7	5	1040
Casanova	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	7	6	1060
Tenting Trip	Trick - CT: Transposition	7	7	1066
Oddment	Trick - CT: Packet	7	10	1117
Avanture, Avanture II, Avanture IV	Trick - CT: Four Ace	8	2	1172
Short Circuit	Trick - CT: Packet	8	4	1201
Tag Team	Trick - CT: Matching	8	9	1272
Queens And Water	Trick - CT: Oil And Water	8	9	1273
Stand Up And Be Counting	Trick - CT: Separation	8	9	1273
Greetings	Trick - CT: Packet	8	9	1275
Paper Chase	Trick - M: Living And Dead	8	9	1276
Eye-Cue	Trick - M: Mental Matching	8	9	1276
Brackets	Trick - CT: Packet	8	9	1277
Goodwin, Alf
Twin Beds	Trick - Paddle	1	12	143
The Legpull	Trick - Pulls	2	12	296
The Magician's Four Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	7	8	1084
The Maneaters	Trick - CT: Collectors	8	8	1267
O B
Govan, Barry
The Bending Key	Trick - Key, M: Moving And Bending	1	10	115
Variation On A Circle	Trick - Coin And Card	1	12	144
Match Card	Trick - CT: Vanishing, Match, Book	2	1	152
Match Card - 2	Trick - CT: Matching, Match, Book	2	4	189
Grierson, M B
Lost Fumbulators	Trick - Envelope, Sight Gag	8	8	1265
Grismer, Ray
HIP ESP	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	6	8	891

Haines, Bob
Four Gone Conclusion	Trick - CT: Transposition	2	9	256
Hallas, Paul
Concealment	Trick - CS: Control, Coin And Card	7	1	978
Card In Calculator	Trick - CT: Discoveries, Calculator	7	3	1006
Repeat Bluff Sandwich	Trick - CT: Sandwich	7	8	1083
Forcing A Date With Cards	Trick - CS: Forcing	7	12	1146
More Dangerous	Trick - CT: Discoveries	8	2	1181
Mexican Spectator Change	Trick - CT: Transposition	8	10	1293
Hallema, Flip (See also Flip)
Transfo Transpo	Trick - CT: Packet	3	7/8	377
Hamilton, Bob
Bent Upon Deception	Trick - Key, M: Moving And Bending	1	5	58
Extra	Trick - CT: Four Ace	1	8	95
Soft Spot	Trick - Coin: Through, Glass	1	10	120
Think-Arise	Trick - CT: Rising Card, Handkerchief	2	4	197
Where There's Smoke	Trick - Glass	4	10	588
OUCH	Trick - CT: Reversal	5	3	650
For Nudists Only	Trick - CT: Coloured Backs	5	12	768
Hamilton, Steven
Ferly Defragmentation Etc	Trick - CT: Torn, Envelope	6	3	811
Trans Collection	Trick - CT: Collectors	6	7	876
Going Going Gone	Trick - CT: Vanishing	8	8	1260
Hawkins, David
Human Error	Trick - CT: Prediction, Calculator	7	8	1082
Haxton, Francis
Paired Choice	Trick - CT: Matching	1	5	60
Heins, Jan
Firewater	Trick - Glass	3	4	343
Teragram	Trick - CT: Discoveries	3	5	358
Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette, Match, Wooden	4	3	490
Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette	4	10	589
Piep-Piep - A Jan Heins Gag	Trick - Sight Gag	4	12	609
The Sexbomb	Trick - CT: Rising Card	5	4	664
Oasis	Trick - CT: Discoveries	5	5	674
The Lady Vanishes	Trick - CT: Transposition	6	6	863
Splash	Trick - CT: Discoveries	7	8	1080
Herron, Carl
Marksman Extraordinary	Trick - CT: Discoveries	2	8	245

Hird, Percy
Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette	4	4	505
Hooper, Jim
Your Autograph Please	Trick - CT: Prediction	3	11	437
Horwitz, Basil
Clairvoyant Chicanery	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	2	5	201
The Third Eye	Trick - M: Mental Matching	3	12	445
A Passing Thought	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	5	4	661
Lucky Joker Prediction	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	5	12	769
Howarth, Mo
Hat Gag	Trick - Hat, Sight Gag	6	7	878
Wallet With Dressing	Trick - CT: Wallet	7	8	1090
Hudson, Charles M
On Faro Felon	Trick - CS: False Shuffle, CT: Sandwich	2	6	217
Jack, Gentleman
Pickpockeyt	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	8	3	1189
Ladies And Gentlemen	Trick - CT: Packet	8	3	1195
Jennings, Larry
Festive Fun	Trick - Bottle	2	4	194
Coins And Handkerchief	Trick - Coin: Through, Handkerchief	3	3	325
Happenings	Trick - CT: Transposition	5	7	701
Johnson, Les
Micro Magic	Trick - Calculator, CT: Discoveries	7	10	1118
Johnsson, Rick
Yours, Mine & Ours	Trick - CT: Transposition	6	8	887
Rip Off	Trick - Bank Note	6	8	893
Pradl/Prudl	Trick - CS: Double Lift	6	9	910
Johnston, Johnny
Cointraption	Trick - Coin: Through, Sponge Ball	6	11	936
Kane, Peter
Slow Motion Ring Release	Trick - Ring, Finger	1	1	6
Focus	Trick - Bank Note	1	5	63
Kosky, Gerald
Computer Discovery	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	4	12	612

Kuske, Steven
Double-X-Posure	Trick - CT: Transposition	3	3	328
OOTW	Trick - CT: Separation	4	6	526
Sharp Sharp	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	6	6	862
Location	Trick - CS: Control	7	6	1053
Kuskie, Steve
Grandma's Triple Cut	Trick - CS: Flourish	6	5	843
Oil Colours	Trick - CT: Oil And Water	6	8	896
Land, lan
Snap Count Lost Ace	Trick - CT: Reversal	7	5	1042
Getting Lost In The Shuffle	Trick - CT: Reversal	7	5	1044
Proteus	Trick - CT: Four Ace	7	7	1072
Interlaced Jump	Trick - CT: Collectors	7	11	1128
Second Direction	Trick - CT: Collectors	7	11	1131
A Mouthful Of Air	Trick - CT: Assembly	7	11	1133
Back Palm	Trick - CT: Transposition	7	11	1135
Technicolour Departure	Trick - CT: Reversal	7	11	1137
Alpha Minus	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	7	12	1151
Technicolour Departure	Trick - CT: Reversal	8	1	1164
Quatemity	Trick - CT: Discoveries	8	10	1290
One By One	Trick - CT: Reversal	8	10	1291
One by One (Another One)	Trick - CT: Reversal	8	10	1292
Lashbrook, Ron
Double Repeat Turnover	Trick - CT: Reversal	7	7	1075
Triangle Prediction	Trick - Dice	7	10	1120
Lauchli, Carl
Firewater	Trick - Glass	3	4	343
Lees, Walt
Cul-A-Separation	Trick - CT: Separation	1	4	46
My Blue Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	1	6	70
Crocodile Tears	Trick - CT: Other	1	11	133
Perpetual Elevator Routine	Trick - CT: Ambitious	2	3	174
The First Elevator	Trick - CT: Ambitious	2	3	174
The Cold Elevator	Trick - CT: Ambitious	2	3	175
Triumph Plus	Trick - CT: Triumph	2	3	176
The Small Packet All Backs	Trick - CT: Packet	2	3	177
Coinjuring	Trick - Coin: Change	2	3	179
Finale	Trick - CT: Ambitious	2	3	179
The Winning Hand	Trick - Sight Gag	2	3	183
Dice-O-Metrics	Trick - Dice	2	7	232
Assignation	Trick - M: Mental Matching, Key	3	2	320
Stranger Than Fiction	Trick - CT: Tom	5	1	623

New Finish To Larry Jennings' Coins Through Handkerchief	Trick - Coin: Through, Handkerchief	5	1	624
Clean Collectors	Trick - CT: Collectors	5	1	626
Four Card Surprise	Trick - CT: Discoveries	5	1	629
In Jokes	Trick - Sight Gag	5	2	637
Irish Poker	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	5	6	690
Even Break	Trick - CT: Prediction	6	7	873
Lewis, Trevor
Simplicity	Trick - CT: Prediction	1	4	47
A Las	Trick - CT: Packet	1	6	69
High Jacked	Trick - CT: Packet	1	10	116
Transpo Plus	Trick - Coin: Change	2	5	205
Double Riffle Control	Trick - CS: Control	2	5	205
Zarrow Shuffle	Trick - CS: False Shuffle	2	5	205
Palm Conscious	Trick - CT. Gambling Theme	2	5	205
Middle Diddle	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	2	5	205
Its In The Bag	Trick - CT: Discoveries	2	5	206
Ladies In Waiting	Trick - CT: Triumph	2	5	206
Card Shark Too	Trick - CT: Torn	2	9	258
LIAR	Trick - CS: Palming	3	3	333
Latest Gag	Trick - Sight Gag	4	7	547
Time Flies	Trick - Coin: Change	5	8	720
Time Flies	Trick - Watch	5	8	720
Add On Plus	Trick - CS: Double Lift	5	10	749
	THER - CS. DOUBLE EIII	3	10	747
Ljunberg, Gay
Christmas Cards	Trick - CT: Packet	8	3	1189
Sympathy	Trick - CT: Coloured Backs	8	3	1190
Murder Game	Trick - M: Living And Dead	8	10	1288
Long, Marv
Extra Climax Card In Wallet	Trick - CT: Wallet	5	11	761
Lovell, Simon
Jack Catch	Trick - CT: Sandwich	4	5	515
Riffle Two	Trick - M: Memory	4	7	547
Handy Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	4	9	577
Atomic ESP	Trick - CT: Vanishing	4	12	614
Two Faced	Trick - CT: Other	5	10	750
Macfadyean, Alex
Switchback	Trick - Coin: Change	2	7	235
Magini
_	Trials Cain Assess Class	1	2	27
Improved Travelling Coin	Trick - Coin: Across, Glass	1	3	27

Manfred

Oasis	Trick - Puzzle	4	11	601
Marlo, Ed
Dribble Coincidence	Trick - CT: Matching	1	2	13
Dribble Concept Continued Splitting The Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	1	3	29
Spectator Cuts To 4 Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	2	8	244
Martino
Waitino
Roll Away	Trick - Coin: Vanish	4	10	589
Mason, Eric
Striker	Trick - Match, Wooden	1	1	7
Arise Comrades	Trick - CT: Rising Card	1	10	118
Eca Tuoba Ecaf	Trick - CT: Coloured Backs	2	11	277
Moniker	Trick - Glass	3	2	313
Cubism	Trick - CT: Discoveries	4	1	458
I Say Dots Impossible	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	4	1	458
On Reflection	Trick - M: Book And Newspaper	4	1	459
Billet-Doux	Trick - Envelope, M: Cards And ESP	4	1	460
Caboodle	Trick - CS: False Count	4	1	461
Brainwave	Trick - CT: Coloured Backs	4	1	463
Kineto	Trick - Ring, Finger	4	1	464
N.C.R.	Trick - Envelope, M: Number/Object Prediction, Wallet	4	1	465
A Pound With A Bottle	Trick - Bank Note, Bottle, Coin: Through	4	9	574
The Problem Is	Trick - CT: Packet	4	10	585
Beau Ideal	Trick - CT: Packet	4	12	606
The Pit-A-Patter Of A Tiny Feat	Trick - CT: Rising Card	5	6	692
Amason	Trick - Coin: Change	5	7	703
Make A Note Of It	Trick - Bank Note	5	8	716
Anything For A Change	Trick - CS: Palming	5	9	733
Put And Take	Trick - CS: Palming, CT: Other	5	11	762
Pop	Trick - Thumb Tip	5	12	772
Overture	Trick - CS: Palming	6	2	796
Sublimason	Trick - CT: Transposition	6	2	796
For Johann	Trick - CT: Four Aces	6	2	797
Cul Bono?	Trick - CT: Matching	6	2	798
Fred Trick The Great	Trick - CT: Prediction	6	8	893
Newspaper Mind Reading	Trick - M: Book And Newspaper	7	7	1066
May, Leslie
Focus	Trick - M: Book And Newspaper	1	6	75
Spotting The Spot	Trick - CT: Discoveries, Paddle	2	5	208
McDuff, Algonquin
Penatring	Trick - Ring, Finger, Rope	6	8	892

Mcfadzean, Alex
Quadruple Inflation	Trick - Coin: Production	6	3	820
McIntyre, Archie
Rip It Up	Trick - CT: Torn	4	8	562
Merelle, Stanley
Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette	4	6	530
Monaghan, Frank
The Flea	Trick - Sight Gag	1	4	44
Monmoine, Pascal
The Domino Effect	Trick - CT: Discoveries	8	6	1227
Forceful Revelation	Trick - CS: Forcing	8	6	1228
Card Through The Table From A Distance	Trick - CT: Other	8	6	1229
Shattered	Trick - Coin: Through, Glass	8	6	1230
Chameleon	Trick - CT: Coloured Backs	8	6	1231
The Irresistible Force	Trick - CS: Forcing	8	6	1232
Card In Pen	Trick - CT: Tom, Pen	8	6	1233
I've Seen A Rubber Band	Trick - Elastic Band, Match, Wooden, Thumb Tip	8	6	1234
Staircase	Trick - CT: Ambitious	8	6	1235
And Finally	Trick - CS: Control, CT: Four Ace, Thread	8	6	1236
Ostin, Bob
Vampire	Trick - M: Living And Dead	1	4	39
Focus	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	1	6	75
Focus	Trick - M: Living And Dead	1	7	87
Fan Hide Move	Trick - CS: Control	1	9	110
Tickets Please	Trick - Ticket	1	9	110
Off The Handle	Trick - Cup	2	7	234
Page, Pat
The Page Boy Speaks	Trick - Coin: Sleight	3	5	355
Take Three	Trick - Coin: Sleight	3	7/8	373
Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette	4	7	548
The Page Boy Speaks	Trick - Watch	5	6	697
Palmer, Archie
Intrigue Two	Trick - CT: Packet	8	7	1248
Pargeter, Andrew
Simplified Spin Pass Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	4	6	527
Multi-Count Technique	Trick - CS: False Count	5	8	718
Multi-Count Technique	Trick - CS: False Count	5	9	731
Tenkai Cop	Trick - CS: Palming	6	9	911
Card-Trek	Trick - CT: Transposition	7	6	1050

Pladek, Oscar
The Reunited Match	Trick - Match, Paper	5	11	758
Rae, Oswald
Oasis	Trick - Watch	4	11	600
Ramsay, John
Coin And Jam Jar Routine	Trick - Coin: Through, Glass	2	7	230
Coin Vanish In The Air	Trick - Coin: Vanish	2	7	230
The Cig Trick	Trick - Cigarette, Ticket	2	7	232
Ray, Geoff
Double Exchange	Trick - Coin: Across	1	6	68
Lap Flick	Trick - CS: Palming	1	11	132
Close-Up Quickly	Trick - Coin: Change	3	3	329
Read, Bob
Bob's Business	Trick - Handkerchief	1	1	5
Biting The Glass	Trick - Coin: Gag And Betcha, Glass	1	2	19
Business For Card In Wallet	Trick - CT: Wallet, Bank Note	1	3	25
Bob's Business	Trick - Coin: Gag And Betcha	1	4	37
Bob's Business	Trick - Coin: Gag And Betcha, Calculator	1	4	51
Impromptu Sight Bits Business	Trick - Sight Gag	1	6	72
Business For Roll Of Notes	Trick - Bank Note	1	7	81
Box Clever	Trick - CT: Other	1	8	91
Bob's Business - Noes Galore	Trick - Sight Gag	1	10	122
Business For The Four Coin Assembly	Trick - Coin And Card	2	1	152
Business For Knife Through Coat	Trick - Pickpocketing, Sight Gag, Wallet, Watch	2	2	167
Business For Knife Sharpening	Trick - Sight Gag	2	4	195
Handkerchief Through Glass	Trick - Glass, Handkerchief	5	6	694
Richardson, Barrie
678	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction, Wallet	1	1	10
Impromptu Mental Divination	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	1	11	128
Thoughts In Transit	Trick - Envelope, M: Cards And ESP	2	9	260
From A Mentalist's Notebook	Trick - M: Other	2	10	265
Pseudo-Psychometry In A Paper Bag	Trick - M: Mental Matching	3	9	400
Lock And Key Mystery	Trick - Key, M: Mental Matching	3	10	413
One In A Million	Trick - M: Book And Newspaper	4	4	498
Memorable Memory Stunt	Trick - M: Memory	4	4	500
Coin In Bottle Mentalism & Molecules	Trick - Coin: Through, Bottle	4	4	501
Think Hot Think Cold	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	4	4	502
The Clean Second - Card Force Concept	Trick - CS: Forcing	4	4	503
The Magnetic Force	Trick - M: Moving And Bending, Pencil	4	4	504
The Undisturbed Deck Prediction	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	4	4	505
A Gestalt Revelation	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	5	8	715
The Three Chair Enigmastion Or The Lazy	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	5	10	748
Mentalist Demonstration

1-2-3 Card In Wallet	Trick - CT: Wallet	6	1	782
Almost Real Mindreading	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	6	7	875
Dollar Divination	Trick - Bank Note, M: Number/Object Prediction	7	5	1034
Newspaper Mind Reading	Trick - M: Book And Newspaper	7	7	1066
The Strange Key Stunt	Trick - Key, M: Moving And Bending	7	9	1096
Alphabet Mentalism	Trick - M: Mental Matching	8	2	1177
Pocket Dictionary Book-Tests	Trick - M: Book And Newspaper	8	4	1205
Do You Wish To Continue	Trick - CT: Matching	8	7	1240
Less Is More	Trick - CT: Discoveries	8	10	1287
Riding, Joe
Mission Accomplished	Trick - CT: Separation	2	9	262
Robinson, Fred
Perfect Faro Shuffle	Trick - CS: False Shuffle	1	1	8
Icebreaker	Trick - Cigarette	1	2	16
Spectator Magician Plus	Trick - CT: Matching	1	3	33
Ambitious Riser	Trick - CT: Rising Card	1	8	92
Edge Spinners	Trick - Coin: Flourish	1	9	106
Smash And Grab	Trick - Match, Box	1	9	106
Focus	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	1	9	111
Blind Date	Trick - Coin: Prediction	1	11	131
Behavioural Bluff	Trick - CT: Prediction	2	1	156
The Ascanio Spread	Trick - CS: False Count	2	2	168
Circulating Coins	Trick - Coin: Flourish	2	4	190
More For Less	Trick - CS: False Count, CT: Packet	2	5	206
Up The Sleeve	Trick - CS: Palming, CT: Gambling Theme	2	8	243
Dropit	Trick - Coin: Sleight	2	9	258
Kniphofia	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	3	2	318
Double Lift Drop Switch	Trick - CS: Double Lift	3	3	332
Double Denial	Trick - CT: Discoveries	3	7/8	387
Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette	4	2	472
Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette	4	3	489
Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette	4	3	490
Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette	4	6	530
Thimble-O	Trick - Thimble	4	9	569
Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette, Handkerchief, Match, Box, Pipe	4	9	576
Oasis	Trick - Alarm Clock	4	11	601
Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette, Match, Paper	4	11	603
Where There's Smoke	Trick - Kettle, Match, Wooden	4	12	609
Oasis	Trick - Nut And Bolt	6	1	788
Fumdubulators	Trick - Thread, Handkerchief	6	4	836
Ronnay, Magic
The New Oil & Water Routine	Trick - CT: Oil And Water	8	1	1161
Rovi
Book Choice	Trick - M: Book And Newspaper	5	6	691
Ivor's Control	Trick - CS: Control	6	1	789

Simplicity Card In Wallet	Trick - CT: Wallet	7	2	989
Double Force	Trick - CS: Forcing	7	2	990
Roxy
Surprise Follow The Leader	Trick - CT: Separation	7	3	1002
Transposition '71	Trick - CT: Transposition	7	5	1036
Zig Zag Prediction	Trick - CT: Prediction, Dice, Envelope	7	8	1089
Sagan, Dorion
Taking The Plunge	Trick - CT: Rising Card	3	10	419
Half Through	Trick - Coin: Through	3	12	452
Sanderson, George P
	Till F. J. M.J. Cl	1	7	0.5
Colour Psychology	Trick - Envelope, M: Just Chance	1	7	85
Sargent, Dennis
Rip It Up With Unprepared Deck	Trick - CT: Torn	5	2	641
Schmidt, Joseph
Joseph Schmidt Writes	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	7	3	1011
Schuman, Ed
Festive Fun	Trick - Puzzle	2	4	194
Schwartz, Sam
Omega Count	Trick - CS: False Count	7	6	1060
Scudiery, Mark
Faro Felon	Trick - CT: Sandwich	1	8	94
Focus	Trick - CT: Sandwich	1	10	123
Setterington, Arthur
Disc-O	Trick - Bottle Top	1	3	30
Chop Coin	Trick - Bank Note, Coin: Vanish	1	8	94
Headline Hit	Trick - M: Book And Newspaper	2	8	241
Animal Magic	Trick - Handkerchief, Kettle	3	7/8	382
Diception	Trick - Dice	3	9	408
Take Three Plus	Trick - Coin: Sleight	4	6	535
Whodunnit	Trick - M: Living And Dead	4	9	568
Tube Off	Trick - Elastic Band, Handkerchief	4	10	583
Thanks For The Memory	Trick - M: Memory	5	3 12	655
Oldfinger Back Hander	Trick - CT: Discoveries, Finger Trick - Coin: Vanish	5 6	12 7	773 878
Sandwich Escape	Trick - Bank Note	6	11	942
Whats In A Name	Trick - CT: Discoveries	7	2	992
Thimble Finger	Trick - Thimble	7	6	1051

Shiv (See also Duggal)
Exchange Collectors	Trick - CT: Collectors	5	10	745
Sinclair, Brian
The Cards Across	Trick - CT: Transposition	5	9	728
Smith, Al
Where Have All The Aces Gone	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	5	8	724
Seconds Out	Trick - CT: Matching	6	2	803
Krix	Trick - CT: Reversal	6	5	846
Asque	Trick - CT: Sandwich	6	9	908
Pointing The Way	Trick - CT: Sandwich	7	7	1070
Error Error Error	Trick - CT: Sandwich	7	11	1139
Fresh Sliced	Trick - CT: Triumph	7	12	1147
Snooks, Fred
Where There's Smoke	Trick - Match, Wooden	4	11	603
Oasis	Trick - Coin: Gag And Betcha, Drink Betcha	5	4	663
Fumdubulators	Trick - Match, Box	6	4	836
Somerville, Neil
In Anticipation	Trick - CT: Prediction	6	6	864
Specht, Henrik
One More Chance	Trick - CT: Sucker	8	3	1188
The Kangaroo Spots	Trick - CT: Packet	8	4	1202
The Test Tube Child	Trick - CT: Packet	8	5	1215
Spencer, Horace
Smash And Grab	Trick - CT: Discoveries	7	5	1040
Stammers, Peter
Colour Changing Knives Without A Paddle	Trick - Match, Box, Paddle	1	12	137
Impromptu Coin Dropper	Trick - Coin: Gimmick	2	2	167
Stephens, Bob
Psychic Exposure	Trick - CT: Discoveries	2	11	284
Tamariz, Juan
The Oil And Water Of Tamariz	Trick - CT: Oil And Water	4	3	484
Black Days	Trick - CT: Prediction	5	7	705
Tamariz Ambitious Double	Trick - CT: Ambitious	5	12	776
It's A Pity	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	6	6	856
The Tamariz Turnover	Trick - CS: Double Lift	7	1	970
Mental Blockbuster	Trick - CT: Matching	7	3	1006

Trixer, Hans E
RSVP	Trick - CT: Discoveries, Envelope	4	6	528
Tucker, Stephen
Nil Separaturn Est	Trick - CT: Transposition	7	10	1114
Ambidextrous	Trick - CT: Tom	7	12	1144
Shear Magic	Trick - Rope	8	1	1166
Under Control	Trick - CT: Transposition	8	2	1175
Think	Trick - CT: Packet	8	3	1193
Departure Lounge	Trick - CT: Sandwich	8	4	1206
The Deluxe Chink Box	Trick - Coin: Through	8	5	1216
The Incomplete Deck	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	8	5	1220
A Devil's DozenPlus Two	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	8	7	1247
Card-Warper	Trick - CT: Tom	8	7	1251
Literally Spelling The Aces	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	8	8	1264
I Met A Card That Wasn't There	Trick - CT: Discoveries	8	8	1266
The Maneaters	Trick - CT: Collectors	8	8	1268
Spondulies Plus Mentalism	Trick - Coin: Prediction, M: Number/Object Prediction	8	10	1286
Turpin, Dick
Turpin's Turnip	Trick - Glass, Hat, Swede	6	9	902
The Drinks Are On Me	Trick - Coin: Production, Glass, Handkerchief	6	11	946
More Reflections Of Horace Spencer	Trick - Bank Note	7	3	1005
Vernon, Dai
Dai Vernon's Centrepiece	Trick - CT. Gambling Theme	6	6	863
Victor, Edward
Eye Count	Trick - CS: False Count	5	2	639
Viswanathan, Anath
Coin Through Hand	Trick - Coin: Through	4	10	591
Walton, Roy
The Witch Doctors	Trick - CT: Vanishing	1	1	3
Obsolete Prediction	Trick - CT: Prediction	1	4	40
Tearaway	Trick - CT: Tom	1	7	78
Carousel	Trick - CT: Transposition	1	8	97
Earthbound	Trick - CT: Separation	1	9	103
Past Help	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	2	2	170
The Card Shark	Trick - CT: Tom	2	6	213
Correction to Card Shark	Trick - CT: Tom	2	8	252
Inflated Ace	Trick - CT: Ambitious	3	1	303
A Martian Plot	Trick - CT: Sandwich	3	1	304
Your Very Own	Trick - CT: Separation	3	1	306
		_

Trick - CT: Separation

Trick - CT: Gambling Theme

307

309

3

1 1 3

Chiefly Yours

Denary Deceit

Ambitious Move	Trick - CS: Flourish	3	1	310
Truth And Consequence	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	3	1	311
Baker Street Re-visited	Trick - Calculator	3	4	338
A Straight Shuffle	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	3	7/8	392
USA Trail	Trick - CT: Four Ace	3	10	418
Twice Two	Trick - CT: Prediction	3	12	454
NOSFERATU	Trick - CT: Four Ace	4	5	510
Card School	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	5	6	689
Oasis	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	5	7	704
Detective Story	Trick - CT: Packet	6	1	786
Ferly Defragmentation Etc	Trick - CT: Torn, Envelope	6	3	812
Outward Bound	Trick - CT: Transposition	6	5	844
End Game Plus	Trick - CT: Matching	6	7	872
Through The Centuries Of Time	Trick - CT: Discoveries	6	9	907
I'd Give My Right Hand	Trick - CT: Tom	8	4	1202
The 229-224 Trick	Trick - CT: Prediction, M: Number/Object Prediction	8	5	1212
Rainbow Road	Trick - CT: Coloured Backs	8	7	1246
Triple Alliance	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	8	8	1256
Sum Trick	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	8	8	1259
Waters, Ray
Moniker Modified	Trick - Glass	3	10	423
The Secret Of Shhhh	Trick - CT: Discoveries, Bottle	3	11	429
Wentworth, Peter
Where There's Smoke	Trick - Match, Wooden	4	12	609
Weston, Mark
The Calculator Business	Trick - Calculator	1	12	140
Multidie Box	Trick - Dice	2	6	215
Supreme Glimpse	Trick - CS: Flourish	2	10	270
Continuous Ball Pen Production	Trick - Pen	2	10	273
The Spinners	Trick - CS: Flourish	2	11	286
Move To Show Both Sides Of A Card Blank	Trick - CS: Flourish	3	7/8	375
Move To Show Both Sides Of A Card Blank	Trick - CT: Prediction	3	7/8	376
Club Night Twins	Trick - CT: Ambitious	3	7/8	378
Fancy	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	3	9	404
Splitz	Trick - CT: Matching	3	11	433
Where There's Smoke	Trick - Pencil	4	5	514
Double Exposure	Trick - CT: Discoveries	4	7	541
Under My Foot	Trick - CT: Discoveries	5	3	649
Spectator Unexplained (After Vernon)	Trick - CT: Prediction	5	12	770
MW Vanishing Deck	Trick - CT: Vanishing	6	2	799
Hong Kong Visible Release	Trick - Coin: Through	6	11	942
Repeat Burned Match	Trick - Match, Book	7	10	1116
Comb Vanish	Trick - Sight Gag	7	12	1148
Coin Caper	Trick - Coin: Gag And Betcha	7	12	1150

Willmarth, Pl	h	il
---------------	---	----	--

Biddle Kardyro Cased	Trick - CT: Transposition	6	8	894
Wonder, Tommy (See al	so Bema)
Coins Across - A Presentation	Trick - Coin: Across	5	2	634
Coins Across - A Presentation	Trick - Coin: Across	5	3	652
One In The Eye	Trick - Coin: Through	5	4	660
Oasis	Trick - Coin: Through	5	7	704
Ring On Stick	Trick - Ring, Finger	6	1	784
Falling Pips	Trick - CT: Ambitious	6	2	806
Pocket Slate Routine	Trick - M: Spirit Writing	6	5	842
Everywhere And Nowhere	Trick - CT: Sucker	7	1	979
Torn And Restored Cigarette	Trick - Cigarette	7	4	1018
Elizabeth 3rd	Trick - CT: Matching	7	6	1055
Woods, Roger
Roger Woods Writes	Trick - CT: Other	5	10	747
Worsley, Bill
Back To Back	Trick - CT: Packet	7	4	1028
Intrigue Two	Trick - CT: Packet	8	7	1248
Wright, David A
Elmsley Out Sexed	Trick - CT: Packet	1	10	113
Seduca Deck	Trick - CT: Other	2	1	150
Wye, Phil
Obsolete Encore	Trick - CT: Prediction	1	11	134
Blank Faces	Trick - CT: Packet	2	2	166
Half & Half	Trick - M: Mental Matching	3	9	406
Zavis, William
Up Down And Around	Trick - CT: Ambitious	1	4	42
Kings Over Queens	Trick - CT: Ambitious	1	6	73
Kings Over Queens II	Trick - CT: Ambitious	1	7	80
Gone Sandwich	Trick - CT: Sandwich	1	8	98

THE PABULAR INDEX: TRICKS BY CATEGORY

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Robinson, Fred	Oasis	Trick - Alarm Clock	4	11	601
Kane, Peter	Focus	Trick - Bank Note	1	5	63
Read, Bob	Business For Roll Of Notes	Trick - Bank Note	1	7	81
Carré, David	Torn & Restored Bank Note	Trick - Bank Note	3	6	361
Bema, Jos (Also see Wonder)	Splitting The Money	Trick - Bank Note	4	2	475
Mason, Eric	Make A Note Of It	Trick - Bank Note	5	8	716
Johnsson, Rick	Rip Off	Trick - Bank Note	6	8	893
Setterington, Arthur	Sandwich Escape	Trick - Bank Note	6	11	942
Turpin, Dick	More Reflections Of Horace Spencer	Trick - Bank Note	7	3	1005
Mason, Eric	A Pound With A Bottle	Trick - Bank Note, Bottle, Coin: Through	4	9	574
Ben, David	Holy Smoke	Trick - Bank Note, Cigarette, Coin: Production	7	1	972
Charnley, Keith	Coin And Cover	Trick - Bank Note, Coin: Production, Wallet	5	8	721
Setterington, Arthur	Chop Coin	Trick - Bank Note, Coin: Vanish	1	8	94
Brooke, Ken	I-O-U	Trick - Bank Note, CT: Torn, CT: Wallet	6	3	816
Richardson, Barrie	Dollar Divination	Trick - Bank Note, M: Number/Object Prediction	7	5	1034
Jennings, Larry	Festive Fun	Trick - Bottle	2	4	194
Setterington, Arthur	Disc-O	Trick - Bottle Top	1	3	30
Crush, Peter	Peter's Presto Pop-In	Trick - Bottle, Coin: Through	4	9	575
Antonioli, Dr Brum	Focus	Trick - Calculator	1	7	87
Weston, Mark	The Calculator Business	Trick - Calculator	1	12	140
Walton, Roy	Baker Street Re-visited	Trick - Calculator	3	4	338
Johnson, Les	Micro Magic	Trick - Calculator, CT: Discoveries	7	10	1118
Robinson, Fred	Icebreaker	Trick - Cigarette	1	2	16
Anon	Focus	Trick - Cigarette	1	4	49
Robinson, Fred	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette	4	2	472
Allen, Vic	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette	4	2	473
Robinson, Fred	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette	4	3	489
Robinson, Fred	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette	4	3	490
Hird, Percy	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette	4	4	505
Merelle, Stanley	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette	4	6	530
Robinson, Fred	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette	4	6	530
Borra	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette	4	7	548
Page, Pat	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette	4	7	548
Heins, Jan	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette	4	10	589
Wonder, Tommy (See also Bema)	Torn And Restored Cigarette	Trick - Cigarette	7	4	1018
Gamble, Richard M	Giant Cigarette Production	Trick - Cigarette	7	4	1023
Gamble, Richard M	A Sweet Cigarette	Trick - Cigarette	7	12	1146
Robinson, Fred	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette, Handkerchief, Match, Box, Pipe	4	9	576

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Robinson, Fred	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette, Match, Paper	4	11	603
Heins, Jan	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette, Match, Wooden	4	3	490
Galloway, Andy	The Cig Trick	Trick - Cigarette, Ticket	2	7	232
Ramsay, John	The Cig Trick	Trick - Cigarette, Ticket	2	7	232
Govan, Barry	Variation On A Circle	Trick - Coin And Card	1	12	144
Read, Bob	Business For The Four Coin Assembly	Trick - Coin And Card	2	1	152
Carré, David	Coin Congregation	Trick - Coin And Card	3	6	363
Dobson, Wayne	Coin Assembly	Trick - Coin And Card	4	12	613
Bruce, Gordon	Coin Assembly	Trick - Coin And Card	5	5	674
Frame, Lawrence	Commercial Coin In Pack	Trick - Coin And Card	7	6	1054
Fox, Kevin	We'll Ring You	Trick - Coin And Card, Dice	1	9	101
Fox, Kevin	Focus	Trick - Coin And Card, Dice	1	10	123
Galloway, Andy	Pegasus Coin	Trick - Coin: Across	1	1	1
Ray, Geoff	Double Exchange	Trick - Coin: Across	1	6	68
Wonder, Tommy (See also Bema)	Coins Across - A Presentation	Trick - Coin: Across	5	2	634
Wonder, Tommy (See also Bema)	Coins Across - A Presentation	Trick - Coin: Across	5	3	652
Charnley, Keith	One in The Eye	Trick - Coin: Across	7	3	1005
Magini	Improved Travelling Coin	Trick - Coin: Across, Glass	1	3	27
Cassidy, Mike	Flight Four	Trick - Coin: Across, Glass	1	7	77
Lees, Walt	Coinjuring	Trick - Coin: Change	2	3	179
Dexter, Will	Inflation Sensation	Trick - Coin: Change	2	5	203
Lewis, Trevor	Transpo Plus	Trick - Coin: Change	2	5	205
Macfadyean, Alex	Switchback	Trick - Coin: Change	2	7	235
Ray, Geoff	Close-Up Quickly	Trick - Coin: Change	3	3	329
Mason, Eric	Amason	Trick - Coin: Change	5	7	703
Lewis, Trevor	Time Flies	Trick - Coin: Change	5	8	720
Galloway, Andy	The Changeling	Trick - Coin: Change	6	3	817
Chiswell, Richard	Handywork	Trick - Coin: Change, Coin: Sleight, Match, Book	4	8	557
Carré, David	Hanky Panky	Trick - Coin: Change, Handkerchief	3	11	435
Robinson, Fred	Edge Spinners	Trick - Coin: Flourish	1	9	106
Robinson, Fred	Circulating Coins	Trick - Coin: Flourish	2	4	190
Read, Bob	Bob's Business	Trick - Coin: Gag And Betcha	1	4	37
Allen, Vic	Helping Hand	Trick - Coin: Gag And Betcha	3	9	407
Weston, Mark	Coin Caper	Trick - Coin: Gag And Betcha	7	12	1150
Read, Bob	Bob's Business	Trick - Coin: Gag And Betcha, Calculator	1	4	51
Snooks, Fred	Oasis	Trick - Coin: Gag And Betcha, Drink Betcha	5	4	663
Read, Bob	Biting The Glass	Trick - Coin: Gag And Betcha, Glass	1	2	19
Stammers, Peter	Impromptu Coin Dropper	Trick - Coin: Gimmick	2	2	167
Robinson, Fred	Blind Date	Trick - Coin: Prediction	1	11	131
Dexter, Will	Cashmatch	Trick - Coin: Prediction	2	5	202
Day, Arthur	A Tuppeny One	Trick - Coin: Prediction	6	1	789
Tucker, Stephen	Spondulies Plus Mentalism	Trick - Coin: Prediction, M: Number/Object Prediction	8	10	1286
Mcfadzean, Alex	Quadruple Inflation	Trick - Coin: Production	6	3	820

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Turpin, Dick	The Drinks Are On Me	Trick - Coin: Production, Glass, Handkerchief	6	11	946
Brooke, Ken	Focus	Trick - Coin: Puzzle	1	4	50
Elmsley, Alex	Festive Fun	Trick - Coin: Puzzle	2	4	192
Faro, Tony	Festive Fun	Trick - Coin: Puzzle, Match, Wooden	2	4	193
Robinson, Fred	Dropit	Trick - Coin: Sleight	2	9	258
Page, Pat	The Page Boy Speaks	Trick - Coin: Sleight	3	5	355
Bruce, Gordon	Take Three	Trick - Coin: Sleight	3	7/8	373
Gilliland, John	Take Three	Trick - Coin: Sleight	3	7/8	373
Page, Pat	Take Three	Trick - Coin: Sleight	3	7/8	373
Setterington, Arthur	Take Three Plus	Trick - Coin: Sleight	4	6	535
Charnley, Keith	A Deceptive Click Pass	Trick - Coin: Sleight	6	9	907
Charnley, Keith	Audible (Fake) Transfer	Trick - Coin: Sleight	7	7	1069
Cameron, Douglas	The Flip Switch	Trick - Coin: Sleight	8	1	1167
Bertram, Ross	Coins Thru Table	Trick - Coin: Through	1	5	62
Carré, David	With An Okito Box	Trick - Coin: Through	2	11	281
Bossi, Van	Hole-Due-Chination	Trick - Coin: Through	3	7/8	381
Brahams, Anthony	Hole-Due-Chination	Trick - Coin: Through	3	7/8	381
Goldstein, Phil	Half Through	Trick - Coin: Through	3	12	452
Sagan, Dorion	Half Through	Trick - Coin: Through	3	12	452
Viswanathan, Anath	Coin Through Hand	Trick - Coin: Through	4	10	591
Wonder, Tommy (See also Bema)	One In The Eye	Trick - Coin: Through	5	4	660
Wonder, Tommy (See also Bema)	Oasis	Trick - Coin: Through	5	7	704
Weston, Mark	Hong Kong Visible Release	Trick - Coin: Through	6	11	942
Breese, Martin	The Deluxe Chink Box	Trick - Coin: Through	8	5	1216
Tucker, Stephen	The Deluxe Chink Box	Trick - Coin: Through	8	5	1216
Richardson, Barrie	Coin In Bottle Mentalism & Molecules	Trick - Coin: Through, Bottle	4	4	501
Hamilton, Bob	Soft Spot	Trick - Coin: Through, Glass	1	10	120
Galloway, Andy	Coin And Jam Jar Routine	Trick - Coin: Through, Glass	2	7	230
Ramsay, John	Coin And Jam Jar Routine	Trick - Coin: Through, Glass	2	7	230
Monmoine, Pascal	Shattered	Trick - Coin: Through, Glass	8	6	1230
Jennings, Larry	Coins And Handkerchief	Trick - Coin: Through, Handkerchief	3	3	325
Lees, Walt	New Finish To Larry Jennings' Coins Through Handkerchief	Trick - Coin: Through, Handkerchief	5	1	624
Johnston, Johnny	Cointraption	Trick - Coin: Through, Sponge Ball	6	11	936
Galloway, Andy	Coin Vanish In The Air	Trick - Coin: Vanish	2	7	230
Ramsay, John	Coin Vanish In The Air	Trick - Coin: Vanish	2	7	230
Chiswell, Richard	A Coin Effect	Trick - Coin: Vanish	4	5	517
Martino	Roll Away	Trick - Coin: Vanish	4	10	589
Clancy, Paddy	Right Angled Coin Vanish	Trick - Coin: Vanish	5	10	747
Galloway, Andy	Unsuspected Extra	Trick - Coin: Vanish	6	3	817
Setterington, Arthur	Back Hander	Trick - Coin: Vanish	6	7	878
Ostin, Bob	Fan Hide Move	Trick - CS: Control	1	9	110
Lewis, Trevor	Double Riffle Control	Trick - CS: Control	2	5	205
Rovi	Ivor's Control	Trick - CS: Control	6	1	789
Day, Sonny	Minerve	Trick - CS: Control	6	3	813
Kuske, Steven	Location	Trick - CS: Control	7	6	1053

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Hallas, Paul	Concealment	Trick - CS: Control, Coin And Card	7	1	978
Monmoine, Pascal	And Finally	Trick - CS: Control, CT: Four Ace, Thread	8	6	1236
Brooke, Ken	Split Second	Trick - CS: Dealing	6	8	889
Goldstein, Phil	Necktie Second	Trick - CS: Dealing	6	12	964
Crosthwaite, Roger	Modified Master Grip	Trick - CS: Dealing	8	2	1180
Robinson, Fred	Double Lift Drop Switch	Trick - CS: Double Lift	3	3	332
Lewis, Trevor	Add On Plus	Trick - CS: Double Lift	5	10	749
Johnsson, Rick	Pradl/Prudl	Trick - CS: Double Lift	6	9	910
Tamariz, Juan	The Tamariz Turnover	Trick - CS: Double Lift	7	1	970
Brooke, Ken	Double Lift Techniques And Variations	Trick - CS: Double Lift	7	4	1024
Aukes, John	Double Lift With One Card	Trick - CS: Double Lift	8	7	1251
Robinson, Fred	The Ascanio Spread	Trick - CS: False Count	2	2	168
Alker, Doug	Three Card Buckle	Trick - CS: False Count	3	5	351
Farmer, Bob	Hamman Count	Trick - CS: False Count	3	10	420
Mason, Eric	Caboodle	Trick - CS: False Count	4	1	461
Farmer, Bob	Cabungle	Trick - CS: False Count	4	5	511
Goldstein, Phil	Snap Turn Count	Trick - CS: False Count	4	12	614
Avis, Jack	Siva Count	Trick - CS: False Count	5	2	638
Castillon, Gene	Spirit Count	Trick - CS: False Count	5	2	639
Victor, Edward	Eye Count	Trick - CS: False Count	5	2	639
Pargeter, Andrew	Multi-Count Technique	Trick - CS: False Count	5	8	718
Pargeter, Andrew	Multi-Count Technique	Trick - CS: False Count	5	9	731
Goldstein, Phil	Spirit Count	Trick - CS: False Count	6	12	963
Schwartz, Sam	Omega Count	Trick - CS: False Count	7	6	1060
Robinson, Fred	More For Less	Trick - CS: False Count, CT: Packet	2	5	206
Brooke, Ken	The Duplicount	Trick - CS: False Counts	5	5	682
Robinson, Fred	Perfect Faro Shuffle	Trick - CS: False Shuffle	1	1	8
Duffie, Peter	A Fansee Blind Shuffle	Trick - CS: False Shuffle	2	1	158
Bennett, Keith	Overhand False Shuffle	Trick - CS: False Shuffle	2	2	164
Lewis, Trevor	Zarrow Shuffle	Trick - CS: False Shuffle	2	5	205
Hudson, Charles M	On Faro Felon	Trick - CS: False Shuffle, CT: Sandwich	2	6	217
Weston, Mark	Supreme Glimpse	Trick - CS: Flourish	2	10	270
Weston, Mark	The Spinners	Trick - CS: Flourish	2	11	286
Walton, Roy	Ambitious Move	Trick - CS: Flourish	3	1	310
Weston, Mark	Move To Show Both Sides Of A Card Blank	Trick - CS: Flourish	3	7/8	375
Forton, Piet	Triple Flip	Trick - CS: Flourish	5	2	639
Kuskie, Steve	Grandma's Triple Cut	Trick - CS: Flourish	6	5	843
Richardson, Barrie	The Clean Second - Card Force Concept	Trick - CS: Forcing	4	4	503
Rovi	Double Force	Trick - CS: Forcing	7	2	990
Hallas, Paul	Forcing A Date With Cards	Trick - CS: Forcing	7	12	1146
Monmoine, Pascal	Forceful Revelation	Trick - CS: Forcing	8	6	1228
Monmoine, Pascal	The Irresistible Force	Trick - CS: Forcing	8	6	1232
Ray, Geoff	Lap Flick	Trick - CS: Palming	1	11	132
Duffie, Peter	Positive Card Fold	Trick - CS: Palming	2	12	290
Lewis, Trevor	LIAR	Trick - CS: Palming	3	3	333
Bruce, Gordon	Pocket Palm	Trick - CS: Palming	5	5	676
Mason, Eric	Anything For A Change	Trick - CS: Palming	5	9	733

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Mason, Eric	Overture	Trick - CS: Palming	6	2	796
Davie, Kevin	Palm Steal	Trick - CS: Palming	6	4	834
Pargeter, Andrew	Tenkai Cop	Trick - CS: Palming	6	9	911
Robinson, Fred	Up The Sleeve	Trick - CS: Palming, CT: Gambling Theme	2	8	243
Mason, Eric	Put And Take	Trick - CS: Palming, CT: Other	5	11	762
Lewis, Trevor	Palm Conscious	Trick - CT. Gambling Theme	2	5	205
Vernon, Dai	Dai Vernon's Centrepiece	Trick - CT. Gambling Theme	6	6	863
Zavis, William	Up Down And Around	Trick - CT: Ambitious	1	4	42
Zavis, William	Kings Over Queens	Trick - CT: Ambitious	1	6	73
Zavis, William	Kings Over Queens II	Trick - CT: Ambitious	1	7	80
Lees, Walt	Perpetual Elevator Routine	Trick - CT: Ambitious	2	3	174
Lees, Walt	The First Elevator	Trick - CT: Ambitious	2	3	174
Lees, Walt	The Cold Elevator	Trick - CT: Ambitious	2	3	175
Lees, Walt	Finale	Trick - CT: Ambitious	2	3	179
Walton, Roy	Inflated Ace	Trick - CT: Ambitious	3	1	303
Weston, Mark	Club Night Twins	Trick - CT: Ambitious	3	7/8	378
Tamariz, Juan	Tamariz Ambitious Double	Trick - CT: Ambitious	5	12	776
Wonder, Tommy (See also Bema)	Falling Pips	Trick - CT: Ambitious	6	2	806
Monmoine, Pascal	Staircase	Trick - CT: Ambitious	8	6	1235
Land, Ian	A Mouthful Of Air	Trick - CT: Assembly	7	11	1133
Giobbi, Roberto	For Susan	Trick - CT: Assembly	8	7	1243
Elmsley, Alex	One At A Time Collectors	Trick - CT: Collectors	1	3	28
Duffie, Peter	Cannibal Land	Trick - CT: Collectors	3	11	432
Lees, Walt	Clean Collectors	Trick - CT: Collectors	5	1	626
Duffie, Peter	Collectors Seminar	Trick - CT: Collectors	5	9	734
Shiv (See also Duggal)	Exchange Collectors	Trick - CT: Collectors	5	10	745
Duffie, Peter	Trans Collection	Trick - CT: Collectors	6	7	876
Hamilton, Steven	Trans Collection	Trick - CT: Collectors	6	7	876
Land, Ian	Interlaced Jump	Trick - CT: Collectors	7	11	1128
Land, Ian	Second Direction	Trick - CT: Collectors	7	11	1131
Goodwin, Alf	The Maneaters	Trick - CT: Collectors	8	8	1267
Tucker, Stephen	The Maneaters	Trick - CT: Collectors	8	8	1268
Alker, Doug	The Useless Pack	Trick - CT: Coloured Backs	2	8	249
Mason, Eric	Eca Tuoba Ecaf	Trick - CT: Coloured Backs	2	11	277
Alker, Doug	One In Four	Trick - CT: Coloured Backs	3	7/8	390
Mason, Eric	Brainwave	Trick - CT: Coloured Backs	4	1	463
Alker, Doug	Rainbow Triumph	Trick - CT: Coloured Backs	4	5	518
Davie, Kevin	Signachange	Trick - CT: Coloured Backs	4	8	559
Hamilton, Bob	For Nudists Only	Trick - CT: Coloured Backs	5	12	768
Gamble, Richard M	Kicker Colour Change	Trick - CT: Coloured Backs	7	9	1106
Ljunberg, Gay	Sympathy	Trick - CT: Coloured Backs	8	3	1190
Monmoine, Pascal	Chameleon	Trick - CT: Coloured Backs	8	6	1231
Walton, Roy	Rainbow Road	Trick - CT: Coloured Backs	8	7	1246
Geddes, Johnnie	The Knowing Nine	Trick - CT: Discoveries	2	1	151
Lewis, Trevor	Its In The Bag	Trick - CT: Discoveries	2	5	206
Herron, Carl	Marksman Extraordinary	Trick - CT: Discoveries	2	8	245
Stephens, Bob	Psychic Exposure	Trick - CT: Discoveries	2	11	284
Endfield, Cy	A Cy Endfield Location	Trick - CT: Discoveries	3	5	351

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Bloom, Gaeton	OCCAMITIS	Trick - CT: Discoveries	3	5	356
Heins, Jan	Teragram	Trick - CT: Discoveries	3	5	358
Robinson, Fred	Double Denial	Trick - CT: Discoveries	3	7/8	387
Mason, Eric	Cubism	Trick - CT: Discoveries	4	1	458
Weston, Mark	Double Exposure	Trick - CT: Discoveries	4	7	541
Allen, Vic	Eyes Down	Trick - CT: Discoveries	4	8	555
Lees, Walt	Four Card Surprise	Trick - CT: Discoveries	5	1	629
Boyce, Wally	The Piscatorial Peg	Trick - CT: Discoveries	5	2	640
Weston, Mark	Under My Foot	Trick - CT: Discoveries	5	3	649
Bruce, Gordon	Cased	Trick - CT: Discoveries	5	5	672
Heins, Jan	Oasis	Trick - CT: Discoveries	5	5	674
Day, Sonny	Fastest Trick In The World	Trick - CT: Discoveries	6	3	814
Forton, Piet	Fan Club	Trick - CT: Discoveries	6	6	865
Walton, Roy	Through The Centuries Of Time	Trick - CT: Discoveries	6	9	907
Setterington, Arthur	Whats In A Name	Trick - CT: Discoveries	7	2	992
Spencer, Horace	Smash And Grab	Trick - CT: Discoveries	7	5	1040
Heins, Jan	Splash	Trick - CT: Discoveries	7	8	1080
Anders, John	Kaning Mercury	Trick - CT: Discoveries	7	9	1102
Hallas, Paul	More Dangerous	Trick - CT: Discoveries	8	2	1181
Giobbi, Roberto	The Joker Folds Up	Trick - CT: Discoveries	8	4	1203
Monmoine, Pascal	The Domino Effect	Trick - CT: Discoveries	8	6	1227
Aukes, John	Straight And Round	Trick - CT: Discoveries	8	7	1250
Tucker, Stephen	I Met A Card That Wasn't There	Trick - CT: Discoveries	8	8	1266
Richardson, Barrie	Less Is More	Trick - CT: Discoveries	8	10	1287
Land, Ian	Quatemity	Trick - CT: Discoveries	8	10	1290
Waters, Ray	The Secret Of Shhhh	Trick - CT: Discoveries, Bottle	3	11	429
Hallas, Paul	Card In Calculator	Trick - CT: Discoveries, Calculator	7	3	1006
Trixer, Hans E	RSVP	Trick - CT: Discoveries, Envelope	4	6	528
Setterington, Arthur	Oldfinger	Trick - CT: Discoveries, Finger	5	12	773
Colgan, Des	Miracle Matchstick Missile	Trick - CT: Discoveries, Match, Wooden	2	4	195
May, Leslie	Spotting The Spot	Trick - CT: Discoveries, Paddle	2	5	208
Marlo, Ed	Dribble Concept Continued Splitting The Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	1	3	29
Lees, Walt	My Blue Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	1	6	70
Hamilton, Bob	Extra	Trick - CT: Four Ace	1	8	95
Austin, Michael	My Blue Aces Again	Trick - CT: Four Ace	1	9	108
Marlo, Ed	Spectator Cuts To 4 Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	2	8	244
Alker, Doug	Turncoat	Trick - CT: Four Ace	3	4	346
Walton, Roy	USA Trail	Trick - CT: Four Ace	3	10	418
Alker, Doug	Oh No, Not Another Ace Trick	Trick - CT: Four Ace	3	11	438
Christensen, Jerry L	Pyramid Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	3	12	447
Craven, Tom	Pyramid Variation	Trick - CT: Four Ace	4	3	490
Galloway, Andy	One-Two-Three-Four Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	4	3	492
Walton, Roy	NOSFERATU	Trick - CT: Four Ace	4	5	510
Pargeter, Andrew	Simplified Spin Pass Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	4	6	527
Alker, Doug	Behaviour Bluff And Beyond	Trick - CT: Four Ace	4	8	560
Farmer, Bob	Twisting, Turning, Extending And Otherwise Molesting The Four Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	4	9	572
Lovell, Simon	Handy Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	4	9	577

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Goldstein, Phil	Immediate Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	4	11	596
Davie, Kevin	Ace-Stounding	Trick - CT: Four Ace	4	12	616
Glover, Brian	Transpo Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	5	2	642
Avis, Jack	The Pinockle Caper	Trick - CT: Four Ace	5	6	693
Goldstein, Phil	Twink Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	5	11	756
Day, Sonny	Cutting The Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	6	3	814
Davie, Kevin	Highly Skilled Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	6	4	828
Land, Ian	Proteus	Trick - CT: Four Ace	7	7	1072
Gamble, Richard M	Blooming Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	7	7	1076
Goodwin, Alf	The Magician's Four Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	7	8	1084
Alker, Doug	Ace Sandwich	Trick - CT: Four Ace	7	12	1148
Goldstein, Phil	Avanture, Avanture II, Avanture III, Avanture IV	Trick - CT: Four Ace	8	2	1172
Cameron, Douglas	Devil's Delight	Trick - CT: Four Ace	8	8	1261
Mason, Eric	For Johann	Trick - CT: Four Aces	6	2	797
Robinson, Fred	Focus	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	1	9	111
Lewis, Trevor	Middle Diddle	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	2	5	205
Bragoli, John	Ace In The Hole	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	2	6	222
Britland, David	David Britland Writes	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	2	9	261
Alker, Doug	Double Monte	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	2	12	294
Walton, Roy	Chiefly Yours	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	3	1	307
Robinson, Fred	Kniphofia	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	3	2	318
Bragoli, John	Versadeal	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	3	4	341
Carré, David	The Card Expert	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	3	6	366
Walton, Roy	A Straight Shuffle	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	3	7/8	392
Davie, Kevin	Stud	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	5	3	655
Brooke, Ken	Packet Poker	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	5	5	681
Lees, Walt	Irish Poker	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	5	6	690
Smith, Al	Where Have All The Aces Gone	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	5	8	724
Duffie, Peter	And The Cans Came Back	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	6	3	822
Tamariz, Juan	It's A Pity	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	6	6	856
Kuske, Steven	Sharp Sharp	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	6	6	862
Goldstein, Phil	Dai Vernon's Centrepiece	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	6	6	863
Brooke, Ken	Poker Deal	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	6	8	890
Crosthwaite, Roger	Doing The Splits	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	6	10	918
Schmidt, Joseph	Joseph Schmidt Writes	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	7	3	1011
Goldstein, Phil	Casanova	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	7		1060
Land, Ian				6 12
	Alpha Minus	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	7		1151
Marlo, Ed	Dribble Coincidence	Trick - CT: Matching	1	2	13
Robinson, Fred	Spectator Magician Plus	Trick - CT: Matching	1	3	33
Haxton, Francis	Paired Choice	Trick - CT: Matching	1	5	60
Duffie, Peter & Walton, Roy	Play It Again Sam	Trick - CT: Matching	2	9	253
Dribeck, Bob	Play It Again Sam	Trick - CT: Matching	2	12	293
Duffie, Peter	Twin Key-Boards	Trick - CT: Matching	3	4	344
Weston, Mark	Splitz	Trick - CT: Matching	3	11	433
Davie, Kevin	Copy Cat	Trick - CT: Matching	4	8	554
Bruce, Gordon	Matching Pairs	Trick - CT: Matching	5	5	676
Goldstein, Phil	The Basic Twink	Trick - CT: Matching	5	11	754
Goldstein, Phil	Twink Plus	Trick - CT: Matching	5	11	755

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Goldstein, Phil	Further Twink	Trick - CT: Matching	5	11	756
Goldstein, Phil	Two Deck Twink	Trick - CT: Matching	5	11	756
Mason, Eric	Cul Bono?	Trick - CT: Matching	6	2	798
Smith, Al	Seconds Out	Trick - CT: Matching	6	2	803
Walton, Roy	End Game Plus	Trick - CT: Matching	6	7	872
Tamariz, Juan	Mental Blockbuster	Trick - CT: Matching	7	3	1006
Wonder, Tommy (See also Bema)	Elizabeth 3rd	Trick - CT: Matching	7	6	1055
Giobbi, Roberto	The Trojan Deck	Trick - CT: Matching	8	5	1219
Richardson, Barrie	Do You Wish To Continue	Trick - CT: Matching	8	7	1240
Goldstein, Phil	Tag Team	Trick - CT: Matching	8	9	1272
Boyce, Wally	Elizabeth 2nd	Trick - CT: Matching, Envelope	7	2	995
Etherington, Graham	Match Card 2	Trick - CT: Matching, Match, Book	2	4	189
Govan, Barry	Match Card - 2	Trick - CT: Matching, Match, Book	2	4	189
Colombini, Carlos & Fabian	Transpo Ink	Trick - CT: Oil And Water	2	9	255
Dribeck, Bob	Aenigma Variations	Trick - CT: Oil And Water	2	12	292
Farmer, Bob	Jazz Pieces, Body & Soul - Pt II & III	Trick - CT: Oil And Water	4	2	477
Tamariz, Juan	The Oil And Water Of Tamariz	Trick - CT: Oil And Water	4	3	484
Kuskie, Steve	Oil Colours	Trick - CT: Oil And Water	6	8	896
Ronnay, Magic	The New Oil & Water Routine	Trick - CT: Oil And Water	8	1	1161
East, Alex	The Magician's Name	Trick - CT: Oil And Water	8	5	1215
Goldstein, Phil	Queens And Water	Trick - CT: Oil And Water	8	9	1273
Read, Bob	Box Clever	Trick - CT: Other	1	8	91
Lees, Walt	Crocodile Tears	Trick - CT: Other	1	11	133
Wright, David A	Seduca Deck	Trick - CT: Other	2	1	150
Bema, Jos (Also see Wonder)	The Pip Eating Spider	Trick - CT: Other	2	10	272
Woods, Roger	Roger Woods Writes	Trick - CT: Other	5	10	747
Lovell, Simon	Two Faced	Trick - CT: Other	5	10	750
Monmoine, Pascal	Card Through The Table From A Distance	Trick - CT: Other	8	6	1229
Lewis, Trevor	A Las	Trick - CT: Packet	1	6	69
Flip (See also Hallema)	Bewildering Cards	Trick - CT: Packet	1	8	89
Wright, David A	Elmsley Out Sexed	Trick - CT: Packet	1	10	113
Lewis, Trevor	High Jacked	Trick - CT: Packet	1	10	116
Eckl, Ed	Madness With The Ascanio Spread	Trick - CT: Packet	2	1	154
Eckl, Ed	Alice Blue Gown	Trick - CT: Packet	2	1	155
Eckl, Ed	Xmas Calculator	Trick - CT: Packet	2	1	155
Wye, Phil	Blank Faces	Trick - CT: Packet	2	2	166
Lees, Walt	The Small Packet All Backs	Trick - CT: Packet	2	3	177
Hallema, Flip (See also Flip)	Transfo Transpo	Trick - CT: Packet	3	7/8	377
Carré, David	Just Changes	Trick - CT: Packet	3	10	416
Duvivier, Dominique	The Problem Is	Trick - CT: Packet	4	10	585
Mason, Eric	The Problem Is	Trick - CT: Packet	4	10	585
Goldstein, Phil	Cry Wolf	Trick - CT: Packet	4	11	595
Goldstein, Phil	Back Gammon	Trick - CT: Packet	4	11	597
Mason, Eric	Beau Ideal	Trick - CT: Packet	4	12	606
Goldstein, Phil	Wolf Trap	Trick - CT: Packet	5	7	702

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Walton, Roy	Detective Story	Trick - CT: Packet	6	1	786
Goldstein, Phil	Simple Oscar	Trick - CT: Packet	6	12	954
Goldstein, Phil	Simple Thornton	Trick - CT: Packet	6	12	958
Fells, John	Three Into One Won't Go	Trick - CT: Packet	7	1	976
Goldstein, Phil	Packetrainer	Trick - CT: Packet	7	3	1012
Worsley, Bill	Back To Back	Trick - CT: Packet	7	4	1028
Goldstein, Phil	Oddment	Trick - CT: Packet	7	10	1117
Ljunberg, Gay	Christmas Cards	Trick - CT: Packet	8	3	1189
Tucker, Stephen	Think	Trick - CT: Packet	8	3	1193
Jack, Gentleman	Ladies And Gentlemen	Trick - CT: Packet	8	3	1195
Goldstein, Phil	Short Circuit	Trick - CT: Packet	8	4	1201
Specht, Henrik	The Kangaroo Spots	Trick - CT: Packet	8	4	1202
Specht, Henrik	The Test Tube Child	Trick - CT: Packet	8	5	1215
Palmer, Archie	Intrigue Two	Trick - CT: Packet	8	7	1248
Worsley, Bill	Intrigue Two	Trick - CT: Packet	8	7	1248
Goldstein, Phil	Greetings	Trick - CT: Packet	8	9	1275
Goldstein, Phil	Brackets	Trick - CT: Packet	8	9	1277
Walton, Roy	Obsolete Prediction	Trick - CT: Prediction	1	4	40
Lewis, Trevor	Simplicity	Trick - CT: Prediction	1	4	47
Wye, Phil	Obsolete Encore	Trick - CT: Prediction	1	11	134
Robinson, Fred	Behavioural Bluff	Trick - CT: Prediction	2	1	156
Weston, Mark	Move To Show Both Sides Of A Card Blank	Trick - CT: Prediction	3	7/8	376
Hooper, Jim	Your Autograph Please	Trick - CT: Prediction	3	11	437
Walton, Roy	Twice Two	Trick - CT: Prediction	3	12	454
Tamariz, Juan	Black Days	Trick - CT: Prediction	5	7	705
Weston, Mark	Spectator Unexplained (After Vernon)	Trick - CT: Prediction	5	12	770
Davie, Kevin	Gaspers Galore	Trick - CT: Prediction	6	4	826
Somerville, Neil	In Anticipation	Trick - CT: Prediction	6	6	864
Lees, Walt	Even Break	Trick - CT: Prediction	6	7	873
Mason, Eric	Fred Trick The Great	Trick - CT: Prediction	6	8	893
Giobbi, Roberto	A Card To Be Thought About	Trick - CT: Prediction	7	12	1152
Aukes, John	The Four Card Trick	Trick - CT: Prediction	8	4	1200
Hawkins, David	Human Error	Trick - CT: Prediction, Calculator	7	8	1082
Colgan, Des	Diary Dice-Card	Trick - CT: Prediction, Dice	1	9	105
Roxy	Zig Zag Prediction	Trick - CT: Prediction, Dice, Envelope	7	8	1089
Anon	Festive Fun	Trick - CT: Prediction, Drink Betchas	2	4	193
Bragoli, John	Collected Thoughts	Trick - CT: Prediction, M: Book And Newspaper	2	4	194
Walton, Roy	The 229-224 Trick	Trick - CT: Prediction, M: Number/Object Prediction	8	5	1212
Avis, Jack	Transposed Marlo Reverse	Trick - CT: Reversal	2	2	163
Duffie, Peter	Aces With A Twist	Trick - CT: Reversal	2	5	209
Carré, David	Face Up	Trick - CT: Reversal	2	6	219
Bennett, Keith	Son Of Twisting The Aces	Trick - CT: Reversal	3	5	353
Bennett, Keith	Second Variation On Twisting The Aces Revisited	Trick - CT: Reversal	3	7/8	376
Hamilton, Bob	OUCH	Trick - CT: Reversal	5	3	650
Goldstein, Phil	Psychia-Twist	Trick - CT: Reversal	5	12	775

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Smith, Al	Krix	Trick - CT: Reversal	6	5	846
Crosthwaite, Roger	Partial Brainwave	Trick - CT: Reversal	6	10	929
Land, Ian	Snap Count Lost Ace	Trick - CT: Reversal	7	5	1042
Land, Ian	Getting Lost In The Shuffle	Trick - CT: Reversal	7	5	1044
Lashbrook, Ron	Double Repeat Turnover	Trick - CT: Reversal	7	7	1075
Land, Ian	Technicolour Departure	Trick - CT: Reversal	7	11	1137
Land, Ian	Technicolour Departure	Trick - CT: Reversal	8	1	1164
Land, Ian	One By One	Trick - CT: Reversal	8	10	1291
Land, Ian	One by One (Another One)	Trick - CT: Reversal	8	10	1292
Robinson, Fred	Ambitious Riser	Trick - CT: Rising Card	1	8	92
Mason, Eric	Arise Comrades	Trick - CT: Rising Card	1	10	118
Goldstein, Phil	Taking The Plunge	Trick - CT: Rising Card	3	10	419
Sagan, Dorion	Taking The Plunge	Trick - CT: Rising Card	3	10	419
Heins, Jan	The Sexbomb	Trick - CT: Rising Card	5	4	664
Mason, Eric	The Pit-A-Patter Of A Tiny Feat	Trick - CT: Rising Card	5	6	692
Davie, Kevin	Relative Rise	Trick - CT: Rising Card	6	4	829
Hamilton, Bob	Think-Arise	Trick - CT: Rising Card, Handkerchief	2	4	197
Scudiery, Mark	Faro Felon	Trick - CT: Sandwich	1	8	94
Zavis, William	Gone Sandwich	Trick - CT: Sandwich	1	8	98
Scudiery, Mark	Focus	Trick - CT: Sandwich	1	10	123
Duffie, Peter	The Go-Between	Trick - CT: Sandwich	2	10	268
Walton, Roy	A Martian Plot	Trick - CT: Sandwich	3	1	304
Lovell, Simon	Jack Catch	Trick - CT: Sandwich	4	5	515
Goldstein, Phil	Negative Intruder	Trick - CT: Sandwich	4	11	597
Dobson, Wayne	Joker Sandwich	Trick - CT: Sandwich	5	4	665
Glover, Brian	The Red Aces	Trick - CT: Sandwich	5	4	666
Glover, Brian	Oasis	Trick - CT: Sandwich	5	6	689
Smith, Al	Asque	Trick - CT: Sandwich	6	9	908
Smith, Al	Pointing The Way	Trick - CT: Sandwich	7	7	1070
Hallas, Paul	Repeat Bluff Sandwich	Trick - CT: Sandwich	7	8	1083
Smith, Al	Error Error	Trick - CT: Sandwich	7	11	1139
Tucker, Stephen	Departure Lounge	Trick - CT: Sandwich	8	4	1206
Duggal, Shiv (See also Shiv)	Best Shot	Trick - CT: Sandwich	8	8	1263
Lees, Walt	Cul-A-Separation	Trick - CT: Separation	1	4	46
Walton, Roy	Earthbound	Trick - CT: Separation	1	9	103
Riding, Joe	Mission Accomplished	Trick - CT: Separation	2	9	262
Walton, Roy	Your Very Own	Trick - CT: Separation	3	1	306
Walton, Roy	Denary Deceit	Trick - CT: Separation	3	1	309
Goldstein, Phil	Counter Revolution	Trick - CT: Separation	3	4	340
Davie, Kevin	Red-Back Surprise	Trick - CT: Separation	3	12	449
Kuske, Steven	OOTW	Trick - CT: Separation	4	6	526
Davie, Kevin	Red-Back Surprise Correction	Trick - CT: Separation	4	6	531
Goldstein, Phil	Simplified Follow The Leader	Trick - CT: Separation	4	7	540
Bennett, Keith	Take Me To Your Leader	Trick - CT: Separation	7	2	986
Roxy	Surprise Follow The Leader	Trick - CT: Separation	7	3	1002
Goldstein, Phil	Stand Up And Be Counting	Trick - CT: Separation	8	9	1273
Faro, Tony	Spectator Magician	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	1	1	5
Walton, Roy	Past Help	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	2	2	170

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Walton, Roy	Truth And Consequence	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	3	1	311
Weston, Mark	Fancy	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	3	9	404
Kosky, Gerald	Computer Discovery	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	4	12	612
Walton, Roy	Card School	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	5	6	689
Walton, Roy	Oasis	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	5	7	704
Crosthwaite, Roger	Skating On Ice	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	6	10	926
Brooke, Ken	Way Out	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	7	4	1026
Tucker, Stephen	The Incomplete Deck	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	8	5	1220
Tucker, Stephen	A Devil's DozenPlus Two	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	8	7	1247
Walton, Roy	Triple Alliance	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	8	8	1256
Galloway, Andy	Vernon's Indicator	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	8	8	1258
Walton, Roy	Sum Trick	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	8	8	1259
Tucker, Stephen	Literally Spelling The Aces	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	8	8	1264
Davie, Kevin	The Lollipop Trick	Trick - CT: Sucker	6	4	835
Wonder, Tommy (See also Bema)	Everywhere And Nowhere	Trick - CT: Sucker	7	1	979
Specht, Henrik	One More Chance	Trick - CT: Sucker	8	3	1188
Walton, Roy	Tearaway	Trick - CT: Tom	1	7	78
Walton, Roy	The Card Shark	Trick - CT: Tom	2	6	213
Walton, Roy	Correction to Card Shark	Trick - CT: Tom	2	8	252
Lees, Walt	Stranger Than Fiction	Trick - CT: Tom	5	1	623
Tucker, Stephen	Ambidextrous	Trick - CT: Tom	7	12	1144
Walton, Roy	I'd Give My Right Hand	Trick - CT: Tom	8	4	1202
Tucker, Stephen	Card-Warper	Trick - CT: Tom	8	7	1251
Monmoine, Pascal	Card In Pen	Trick - CT: Tom, Pen	8	6	1233
Avis, Jack	The Jokers Wild	Trick - CT: Torn	2	2	163
Lewis, Trevor	Card Shark Too	Trick - CT: Torn	2	9	258
McIntyre, Archie	Rip It Up	Trick - CT: Torn	4	8	562
Sargent, Dennis	Rip It Up With Unprepared Deck	Trick - CT: Torn	5	2	641
Hamilton, Steven	Ferly Defragmentation Etc	Trick - CT: Torn, Envelope	6	3	811
Walton, Roy	Ferly Defragmentation Etc	Trick - CT: Torn, Envelope	6	3	812
Walton, Roy	Carousel	Trick - CT: Transposition	1	8	97
Baxter, Ian	Supertransportation	Trick - CT: Transposition	1	9	109
Haines, Bob	Four Gone Conclusion	Trick - CT: Transposition	2	9	256
Duffie, Peter	Card In Case Transposition	Trick - CT: Transposition	2	12	289
Kuske, Steven	Double-X-Posure	Trick - CT: Transposition	3	3	328
Alker, Doug	Three Cards Across Extra	Trick - CT: Transposition	3	5	352
Farmer, Bob	Jazz Pieces, Body & Soul - Pt I	Trick - CT: Transposition	4	2	476
Brooke, Ken	The Tired Travellers	Trick - CT: Transposition	5	6	695
Jennings, Larry	Happenings	Trick - CT: Transposition	5	7	701
Sinclair, Brian	The Cards Across	Trick - CT: Transposition	5	9	728
Mason, Eric	Sublimason	Trick - CT: Transposition	6	2	796
Davie, Kevin	Sign There	Trick - CT: Transposition	6	4	826
Walton, Roy	Outward Bound	Trick - CT: Transposition	6	5	844
Heins, Jan	The Lady Vanishes	Trick - CT: Transposition	6	6	863
Johnsson, Rick	Yours, Mine & Ours	Trick - CT: Transposition	6	8	887
Willmarth, Phil	Biddle Kardyro Cased	Trick - CT: Transposition	6	8	894
Crosthwaite, Roger	The Little Salt Man	Trick - CT: Transposition	6	10	922
Roxy	Transposition '71	Trick - CT: Transposition	7	5	1036
- 3			•	-

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Pargeter, Andrew	Card-Trek	Trick - CT: Transposition	7	6	1050
Goldstein, Phil	Tenting Trip	Trick - CT: Transposition	7	7	1066
Tucker, Stephen	Nil Separaturn Est	Trick - CT: Transposition	7	10	1114
Land, Ian	Back Palm	Trick - CT: Transposition	7	11	1135
Tucker, Stephen	Under Control	Trick - CT: Transposition	8	2	1175
Giobbi, Roberto	1, 2, 3 & 4 Queens	Trick - CT: Transposition	8	7	1248
Hallas, Paul	Mexican Spectator Change	Trick - CT: Transposition	8	10	1293
Farmer, Bob	Jazz Pieces	Trick - CT: Transposition, CT: Oil And Water	4	5	512
Avis, Jack	The Wishing Envelope	Trick - CT: Transposition, Envelope	2	2	161
Lees, Walt	Triumph Plus	Trick - CT: Triumph	2	3	176
Lewis, Trevor	Ladies In Waiting	Trick - CT: Triumph	2	5	206
Britland, David	Through The 4th Dimension	Trick - CT: Triumph	3	2	316
Smith, Al	Fresh Sliced	Trick - CT: Triumph	7	12	1147
Walton, Roy	The Witch Doctors	Trick - CT: Vanishing	1	1	3
Dribeck, Bob	On Witch Doctors	Trick - CT: Vanishing	1	6	66
Lovell, Simon	Atomic ESP	Trick - CT: Vanishing	4	12	614
Weston, Mark	MW Vanishing Deck	Trick - CT: Vanishing	6	2	799
Frame, Lawrence	Compression	Trick - CT: Vanishing	7	10	1124
Hamilton, Steven	Going Going Gone	Trick - CT: Vanishing	8	8	1260
Carney, John	Poor Mans Card Manipulation	Trick - CT: Vanishing	8	10	1284
Govan, Barry	Match Card	Trick - CT: Vanishing, Match, Book	2	1	152
Long, Marv	Extra Climax Card In Wallet	Trick - CT: Wallet	5	11	761
Richardson, Barrie	1-2-3 Card In Wallet	Trick - CT: Wallet	6	1	782
Rovi	Simplicity Card In Wallet	Trick - CT: Wallet	7	2	989
Howarth, Mo	Wallet With Dressing	Trick - CT: Wallet	7	8	1090
Giobbi, Roberto	Blushing Jumper	Trick - CT: Wallet	8	1	1159
Giobbi, Roberto	The Trevor Lewis Card To Wallet	Trick - CT: Wallet	8	2	1179
Read, Bob	Business For Card In Wallet	Trick - CT: Wallet, Bank Note	1	3	25
Ostin, Bob	Off The Handle	Trick - Cup	2	7	234
Baxter, Ian	My Cup Flippeth Over	Trick - Cup	2	12	298
Carré, David	Impromptu Cup And Ball	Trick - Cup	3	6	370
Carré, David	One Potato, Two Potato	Trick - Cup	4	7	543
Weston, Mark	Multidie Box	Trick - Cup Trick - Dice	2	6	215
ŕ	Dice-O-Metrics	Trick - Dice	2	7	232
Lees, Walt	Just Dice	Trick - Dice Trick - Dice	3		365
Carré, David			3	6
Setterington, Arthur	Diception	Trick - Dice		9	408
Lashbrook, Ron	Triangle Prediction	Trick - Dice	7	10	1120
Duco, El	Slow Motion Penetration	Trick - Dice, Glass	8	10	1292
Anon	Focus	Trick - Drink Betcha	1	4	51
Anon	Focus	Trick - Drink Betcha, Puzzles	1	4	50
Bloom, Gaeton	Hank To Egg Exposed	Trick - Egg	5	7	699
Duco, El	Fantastic Elastics	Trick - Elastic Band	8	3	1191
Setterington, Arthur	Tube Off	Trick - Elastic Band, Handkerchief	4	10	583
Monmoine, Pascal	I've Seen A Rubber Band	Trick - Elastic Band, Match, Wooden, Thumb Tip	8	6	1234
Brooke, Ken	Card In Envelope	Trick - Envelope, CS: Palming	5	5	680
Richardson, Barrie	Thoughts In Transit	Trick - Envelope, M: Cards And ESP	2	9	260

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Mason, Eric	Billet-Doux	Trick - Envelope, M: Cards And ESP	4	1	460
Carlisle, Stanton	Colour Psychology	Trick - Envelope, M: Just Chance	1	2	18
Sanderson, George P	Colour Psychology	Trick - Envelope, M: Just Chance	1	7	85
Danson, Ted	Give Me A Ring	Trick - Envelope, M: Just Chance, Ring, Finger	1	2	17
Mason, Eric	N.C.R.	Trick - Envelope, M: Number/Object Prediction, Wallet	4	1	465
Grierson, M B	Lost Fumbulators	Trick - Envelope, Sight Gag	8	8	1265
Anon	Odd Optic	Trick - Finger	2	1	157
Mason, Eric	Moniker	Trick - Glass	3	2	313
Heins, Jan	Firewater	Trick - Glass	3	4	343
Lauchli, Carl	Firewater	Trick - Glass	3	4	343
Waters, Ray	Moniker Modified	Trick - Glass	3	10	423
Hamilton, Bob	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Glass	4	10	588
Read, Bob	Handkerchief Through Glass	Trick - Glass, Handkerchief	5	6	694
Turpin, Dick	Turpin's Turnip	Trick - Glass, Hat, Swede	6	9	902
Read, Bob	Bob's Business	Trick - Handkerchief	1	1	5
Bema, Jos (Also see Wonder)	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Handkerchief	4	5	514
Setterington, Arthur	Animal Magic	Trick - Handkerchief, Kettle	3	7/8	382
Howarth, Mo	Hat Gag	Trick - Hat, Sight Gag	6	7	878
Robinson, Fred	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Kettle, Match, Wooden	4	12	609
Richardson, Barrie	Lock And Key Mystery	Trick - Key, M: Mental Matching	3	10	413
Hamilton, Bob	Bent Upon Deception	Trick - Key, M: Moving And Bending	1	5	58
Govan, Barry	The Bending Key	Trick - Key, M: Moving And Bending	1	10	115
Richardson, Barrie	The Strange Key Stunt	Trick - Key, M: Moving And Bending	7	9	1096
Forton, Piet	Irish Key Ring	Trick - Key, Ring, Other	6	4	836
May, Leslie	Focus	Trick - M: Book And Newspaper	1	6	75
Setterington, Arthur	Headline Hit	Trick - M: Book And Newspaper	2	8	241
Bloom, Gaeton	Prestidigitational Prediction	Trick - M: Book And Newspaper	3	9	397
Mason, Eric	On Reflection	Trick - M: Book And Newspaper	4	1	459
Richardson, Barrie	One In A Million	Trick - M: Book And Newspaper	4	4	498
Rovi	Book Choice	Trick - M: Book And Newspaper	5	6	691
Mason, Eric	Newspaper Mind Reading	Trick - M: Book And Newspaper	7	7	1066
Richardson, Barrie	Newspaper Mind Reading	Trick - M: Book And Newspaper	7	7	1066
Richardson, Barrie	Pocket Dictionary Book-Tests	Trick - M: Book And Newspaper	8	4	1205
Anon	Focus	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	1	4	49
Colgan, Des	Table Top Motorway	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	1	12	145
Horwitz, Basil	Clairvoyant Chicanery	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	2	5	201
Richardson, Barrie	Think Hot Think Cold	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	4	4	502
Richardson, Barrie	The Undisturbed Deck Prediction	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	4	4	505
Goldstein, Phil	Card In Mind	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	4	5	521
Goldstein, Phil	Territory	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	5	3	654
Horwitz, Basil	A Passing Thought	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	5	4	661
Richardson, Barrie	A Gestalt Revelation	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	5	8	715
Goldstein, Phil	Synch-Cerely	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	5	8	720
Binarelli, Tony	Galaxy Telepathy	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	5	11	759

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Horwitz, Basil	Lucky Joker Prediction	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	5	12	769
Richardson, Barrie	Almost Real Mindreading	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	6	7	875
Grismer, Ray	HIP ESP	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	6	8	891
Goldstein, Phil	Jan-Ken-Pon	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	6	12	960
Ostin, Bob	Vampire	Trick - M: Living And Dead	1	4	39
Byrne, Bob	Focus	Trick - M: Living And Dead	1	7	87
Ostin, Bob	Focus	Trick - M: Living And Dead	1	7	87
Setterington, Arthur	Whodunnit	Trick - M: Living And Dead	4	9	568
Goldstein, Phil	Paper Chase	Trick - M: Living And Dead	8	9	1276
Ljunberg, Gay	Murder Game	Trick - M: Living And Dead	8	10	1288
Blake, George	Focus	Trick - M: Living And Dead, Coin: Puzzle	1	6	76
Richardson, Barrie	Memorable Memory Stunt	Trick - M: Memory	4	4	500
Lovell, Simon	Riffle Two	Trick - M: Memory	4	7	547
Setterington, Arthur	Thanks For The Memory	Trick - M: Memory	5	3	655
Richardson, Barrie	Pseudo-Psychometry In A Paper Bag	Trick - M: Mental Matching	3	9	400
Wye, Phil	Half & Half	Trick - M: Mental Matching	3	9	406
Goldstein, Phil	Mexican Geometry	Trick - M: Mental Matching	3	11	434
Horwitz, Basil	The Third Eye	Trick - M: Mental Matching	3	12	445
Richardson, Barrie	Alphabet Mentalism	Trick - M: Mental Matching	8	2	1177
Goldstein, Phil	Eye-Cue	Trick - M: Mental Matching	8	9	1276
Lees, Walt	Assignation	Trick - M: Mental Matching, Key	3	2	320
Richardson, Barrie	The Magnetic Force	Trick - M: Moving And Bending, Pencil	4	4	504
Faro, Tony	Focus	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	1	4	50
Berglas, David	Ad Infinitum	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	1	5	53
Avis, Jack	A Spirit Detection	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	1	5	56
Ostin, Bob	Focus	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	1	6	75
Richardson, Barrie	Impromptu Mental Divination	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	1	11	128
Bragoli, John	Mental Jigsaw	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	2	6	222
Chinn, Bill	Bill Chinn Writes	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	3	2	317
Mason, Eric	I Say Dots Impossible	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	4	1	458
Goldstein, Phil	Alter-Ego	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	4	11	594
Richardson, Barrie	The Three Chair Enigmastion Or The Lazy Mentalist Demonstration	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	5	10	748
Goldstein, Phil	Data	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	6	5	848
Goldstein, Phil	Precoinition	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	6	11	944
Goldstein, Phil	Either Aura	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	6	12	959
Goldstein, Phil	37th Parallel	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	6	12	962
Goldstein, Phil	All For Nought	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	7	5	1040

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Jack, Gentleman	Pickpockeyt	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	8	3	1189
Richardson, Barrie	678	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction, Wallet	1	1	10
Richardson, Barrie	From A Mentalist's Notebook	Trick - M: Other	2	10	265
Goldstein, Phil	Your Choice	Trick - M: Other	3	3	335
Endfield, Cy	Tomorrows World	Trick - M: Other	4	6	532
Goldstein, Phil	Intimate Spirit	Trick - M: Spirit Writing	5	4	667
Wonder, Tommy (See also Bema)	Pocket Slate Routine	Trick - M: Spirit Writing	6	5	842
Weston, Mark	Repeat Burned Match	Trick - Match, Book	7	10	1116
Robinson, Fred	Smash And Grab	Trick - Match, Box	1	9	106
Crombie, Jock	A Gag From Crombo	Trick - Match, Box	2	11	280
Anon	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Match, Box	4	10	588
Anon	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Match, Box	4	10	589
Breese, Martin	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Match, Box	4	11	603
Snooks, Fred	Fumdubulators	Trick - Match, Box	6	4	836
Stammers, Peter	Colour Changing Knives Without A Paddle	Trick - Match, Box, Paddle	1	12	137
Anon	Festive Fun	Trick - Match, Box, Puzzles	2	4	192
Fox, Karrell	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Match, Paper	4	11	603
Pladek, Oscar	The Reunited Match	Trick - Match, Paper	5	11	758
Mason, Eric	Striker	Trick - Match, Wooden	1	1	7
Snooks, Fred	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Match, Wooden	4	11	603
Boyce, Wally	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Match, Wooden	4	12	609
Wentworth, Peter	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Match, Wooden	4	12	609
Robinson, Fred	Oasis	Trick - Nut And Bolt	6	1	788
Goldstein, Phil	Brasso Profundo	Trick - Nut And Bolt, Ring, Finger	6	12	962
Goodwin, Alf	Twin Beds	Trick - Paddle	1	12	143
Weston, Mark	Continuous Ball Pen Production	Trick - Pen	2	10	273
Weston, Mark	Where There's Smoke	Trick - Pencil	4	5	514
Dawson, Trevor	Goldfinger	Trick - Pencil, Ring, Finger	1	6	65
Read, Bob	Business For Knife Through Coat	Trick - Pickpocketing, Sight Gag, Wallet, Watch	2	2	167
Goodwin, Alf	The Legpull	Trick - Pulls	2	12	296
Schuman, Ed	Festive Fun	Trick - Puzzle	2	4	194
Day, Arthur	Holidaze	Trick - Puzzle	3	4	339
Manfred	Oasis	Trick - Puzzle	4	11	601
Kane, Peter	Slow Motion Ring Release	Trick - Ring, Finger	1	1	6
Dribeck, Bob	Slow Motion Ring Release	Trick - Ring, Finger	1	6	75
Biro, Pete	Glittering	Trick - Ring, Finger	I	11	125
Mason, Eric	Kineto	Trick - Ring, Finger	4	1	464
Wonder, Tommy (See also Bema)	Ring On Stick	Trick - Ring, Finger	6	1	784
Goldstein, Phil	Ringleader	Trick - Ring, Finger	6	2	802
Goldstein, Phil	Amulation	Trick - Ring, Finger	6	7	879
Charnley, Keith	Ring On Stick	Trick - Ring, Finger	8	1	1165
McDuff, Algonquin	Penatring	Trick - Ring, Finger, Rope	6	8	892
Corinda, Tony	The Powers Of Darkness	Trick - Ring, Other	2	4	185
Baker, Roy	Yecrik	Trick - Ring, Other	3	7/8	388
Glenan, Al	Over The Top	Trick - Ring, Other, Rope	3	9	405

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	CATEGORY	Vol.	No.	Page
Tucker, Stephen	Shear Magic	Trick - Rope	8	1	1166
Monaghan, Frank	The Flea	Trick - Sight Gag	1	4	44
Read, Bob	Impromptu Sight Bits Business	Trick - Sight Gag	1	6	72
Read, Bob	Bob's Business - Noes Galore	Trick - Sight Gag	1	10	122
Lees, Walt	The Winning Hand	Trick - Sight Gag	2	3	183
Read, Bob	Business For Knife Sharpening	Trick - Sight Gag	2	4	195
Lewis, Trevor	Latest Gag	Trick - Sight Gag	4	7	547
Allen, Vic	Tea Totaller	Trick - Sight Gag	4	9	577
Heins, Jan	Piep-Piep - A Jan Heins Gag	Trick - Sight Gag	4	12	609
Lees, Walt	In Jokes	Trick - Sight Gag	5	2	637
Day, Arthur	Fumdubulators	Trick - Sight Gag	6	4	836
Boyce, Wally	Dumbo	Trick - Sight Gag	7	1	977
Allen, Vic	Magic Shoes	Trick - Sight Gag	7	2	989
Weston, Mark	Comb Vanish	Trick - Sight Gag	7	12	1148
Brooke, Ken	Little Metal Eater	Trick - Sponge Ball, Coin: Production	5	5	677
Bema, Jos (Also see Wonder)	Table Workers Table	Trick - Table	2	8	246
Carré, David	Rosini Thimbles	Trick - Thimble	3	7/8	391
Robinson, Fred	Thimble-O	Trick - Thimble	4	9	569
Setterington, Arthur	Thimble Finger	Trick - Thimble	7	6	1051
Conway, Pat	Gag From Pat Conway	Trick - Thread	2	12	298
Forton, Piet	Can You Do The Gypsy Thread Again	Trick - Thread	5	10	740
Robinson, Fred	Fumdubulators	Trick - Thread, Handkerchief	6	4	836
Galloway, Andy & Ramsay, John	Ramsay On The Thumb Tip	Trick - Thumb Tip	2	7	229
Mason, Eric	Pop	Trick - Thumb Tip	5	12	772
Ostin, Bob	Tickets Please	Trick - Ticket	1	9	110
Conway, Pat	The ???? In Wallet	Trick - Wallet, Sight Gag	7	2	986
Rae, Oswald	Oasis	Trick - Watch	4	11	600
Page, Pat	The Page Boy Speaks	Trick - Watch	5	6	697
Lewis, Trevor	Time Flies	Trick - Watch	5	8	720

THE PABULAR INDEX: NON-TRICKS BY CATEGORY

Book and lecture note reviews

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	Vol.	No.	Page
Page, Pat	10 Thoughts On Close-Up	1	4	48
Read, Bob	Thanks To Pepys	1	4	48
Shiels, Tony 'Doc'	Entertaining With ESP	1	4	48
Fechter, Eddie	Magician Nitely	1	6	75
Ascanio	Book Of Knives	1	8	99
Willmarth, Phil	The Magic Of Matt Schulien	2	1	159
Page, Pat	The Big Book Of Magic	2	8	247
Vernon, Dai	The First California Lecture	2	9	263
Jennings, Larry	Stabbed Coincidence	2	11	283
Elias, Neil	At The Table	2	11	287
Minch, Stephen	Ever So Sleightly - The Professional Card Technique of Martin A Nash	2	12	291
Bilis, Bernard	Close-Up, French Style	3	2	322
Shields, Frank	Lecture Notes	3	4	343
Swinford, Paul	Lecture Notes	3	4	343
Walton, Roy	Trigger	3	4	344
Gill, Robert	Magic As A Performing Art	3	4	347
Bonville, Frank	The Little Secrets	3	5	354
Hardison	Poker	3	5	354
Koschitz	Manual Of Useful Information	3	5	354
Goldstein, Phil	Card Tricks For People Who Don't Do Card Tricks	3	7/8	380
Goldstein, Phil	Classic Tacklers	3	7/8	380
Goldstein, Phil	The Blue Book Of Mentalism	3	7/8	380
Anon	The Secret Tricks Of Bending Metal Objects With Just Your Mind	3	9	403
Hoffmann, Professor	Baccarat Fair & Foul	3	9	403
Jennings, Larry	On Card & Coin Handling	3	9	403
Hoffmann, Professor	How To Control Fair Dice	3	9	404
Busby, Jeff	Back To Back	3	10	425
Read, Bob	Transpo Tumbler	3	10	425
Jay, Ricky	Cards As Weapon	4	2	473
Bema, Jos	Lecture Notes	4	2	474
Takagi, Shigeo	Coin Assembly	4	2	474
Takagi, Shigeo	One Cup Routine	4	2	474
Galloway, Andy	Ramsay Classics	4	3	491
Goldstein, Phil	Verbal Control	4	4	506
Goldstein, Phil	Scattershot	4	5	521
Various	Pentangle Review	4	6	528
Goldstein, Phil	The Green Book Of Mentalism	4	8	558
Goldstein, Phil	The Red Book Of Mentalism	4	8	558
Goldstein, Phil	Notions	4	9	571
Goldstein, Phil	A Transatlantic Lecture	4	11	598
Mendoza, John	The Book Of John	4	12	611

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	Vol.	No.	Page
Braue, Fred	Fred Braue On False Deals	5	3	651
Gardner, Martin	Encyclopaedia Of Impromptu Magic	5	4	663
Dobson, Wayne	Lecture Notes: More Ideas	5	4	664
Corinda, Tony	Mastergimmick No. 2	5	5	679
Cyprian, Father	Hofzinser Card Problem	5	6	692
Takagi, Shigeo	Coin Routine	5	6	692
Fisher, John	Body Magic	5	8	719
Walton, Roy	That Certain Something	5	8	719
Goldstein, Phil	Goldstein's Gallery	5	9	735
Goldstein, Phil	The Yellow Book Of Mentalism	5	9	735
Johnsson, Rick	Rick Johnsson's Strike One	5	9	735
Cyprian, Father	Door To Door Card Sharp	5	10	744
Johnsson, Rick	Lecture Notes	5	10	744
Binarelli, Tony	Playmagic No. 1	5	11	760
Ganson, Lewis	The Immaculate Card Magic Of Walt Lees	6	1	787
Binarelli, Tony	Playtime 2	6	3	813
Read, Bob	100 Dollar Glass Thru' Table	6	5	847
Takagi, Shigeo	New One Cup Routine	6	5	849
Jennings, Larry	Card In Envelope Wallet	6	5	850
Galloway, Andy	Diverting Card Magic	6	6	860
Smith, Al	Cards On Demand	6	7	881
Grismer, Ray	Charts	6	8	891
Diamond, Paul	2 Cassettes	6	8	897
Kane. Peter	An Audio Card Session	6	8	897
Mason, Eric	A Peep In The Bottle	6	9	911
Mason, Eric	Magnifque	6	9	911
Mason, Eric	Pandora	6	9	911
England, Don	Technical Knock Outs (TKOs)	6	10	929
Mendoza, John	Cassettes	6	11	943
Goldstein, Phil	Spectacle (Packet Trick)	6	11	944
Lees, Walt	Four Professional Card Tricks	6	11	944
Griffiths, Owen	The Percy Press Glass Of Water Production Routine	6	12	956
Kane, Peter	Tetrad One	6	12	956
Malmros, Gert	Gert Malmros Presents	6	12	956
Lees, Walt	The Commercial Card Magic Of Roger Crosthwaite	6	12	957
Lees, Walt	The Complete Walt Lees Cannibal Card Act	7	1	975
Walton, Roy	The Complete Roy Walton Vol.	7	1	975
Horwitz, Basil	The Mental Magic Of	7	2	994
Lovell, Simon	Simon Says	7	2	994
Crosthwaite, Roger	Exclusive Card Series No. 2 Mindboggler	7	3	1010
Lees, Walt	More Professional Card Tricks	7	3	1010
Witt, Hans	Yellow Magic Pages	7	3	1010
York, Scot	Coin In Cigarette Lighter	7	3	1011
Andrews, Val	The Coin & Card Magic Of	7	4	1011
Kaufman, Richard	The Complete Works Of Derek Dingle	7	5	1027
Busby, Jeff	Mike Skinner's Intimate Magic	7	6	1043
Busby, Jeff Becker, Lany	Mentalism For Magicians	7	6	1057
•		7	6	1058
Thompson, John	Polished Polish Prestidigitation Richards Almanac	7
Kaufman, Richard	AICHAIUS AIHIAHAC	1	6	1059

CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	Vol.	No.	Page
Tucker, Stephen	Spell-Binder Vol.2 No.15	7	6	1059
Various	The Magic Of The Cube	7	6	1059
Chesboro, Bob	Coin In Cigarette Lighter	7	7	1069
Burger, Eugene	Secrets & Mysteries For The	7	7	1074
Kirk, Charles	Tips On Table Hopping Close-Up Entertainer	7	7	1074
Mason, Eric	A Boon For All Seasons	7	7	1074
Richardson, Barrie	A Boon For All Seasons	7	7	1074
Tucker, Stephen	Spell-Binder. Special Issue	7	7	1075
Lees, Walt	Mike Bornstein's Triumph Outdone	7	8	1087
Duffie, Peter	Alternative Card Magic	7	8	1088
Kaufman, Richard	The New York Magic Symposium Close-Up Collection	7	8	1088
Williams, Geoffrey	Two Ring Linking Ring Routine	7	8	1088
Jennings, Larry	A Visit With Larry Jennings (Lecture Notes)	7	9	1104
Kane, Peter	Kane	7	9	1104
Britland, David	Deckade	7	9	1105
James, Stewart	Sefalaljia No. 2	7	9	1105
Breese, Martin	Marked Manual Of Marked Card Magic	7	10	1121
Lesley, Ted	Marked Manual Of Marked Card Magic	7	10	1121
Steele, WF (Rufus)	The Last Words On Cards	7	10	1121
McMillan, Jack	Sleights & Swindles	7	10	1122
Thompson, Johnny	Coin In Bottle Plus	7	10	1123
Britland, David	Cardopolis	8	2	1174
Russell, Marc	Cardopolis	8	2	1174
Bema, Jos	Tommy Wonder Entertains	8	3	1187
Tucker, Stephen	Spell-Binder Special 3	8	3	1188
Aukes, John	It's Magic	8	4	1200
Britland, David	Tearing A Lady In Two	8	4	1200
Wonder, Tommy	Wonder Material	8	5	1213
Hams, Paul	Video Tape	8	5	1214
Lees, Walt	The Art Of The Grafter	8	6	1226
Page, Patrick	Book Of Thumb Tips	8	6	1226
Rackerbaumer, Jon	Card Puzzle Book	8	7	1242
Harris, Paul	Close-Up Seductions	8	8	1256
Lees, Walt	The Best Of Close-Up Magic	8	9	1271
Rackerbaumer, Jon	The Card Puzzle & Other Diversions	8	9	1271
Duco, El	Simple Ideas In Magic No. 1	8	10	1284
Harris, Ben	Beyond The Black Hole	8	10	1284
Harris, Ben	Needled	8	10	1284
Harris, Ben	Pen-Note-Tration	8	10	1284
Harris, Ben	Prime Hole Card	8	10	1284

Editorial article — Walt Lees

ARTICLE	Vol.	No.	Page
Robinson, Fred - dealing, perfectionist; Ganson's death	6	7	872
Robinson, Fred issue; Johnsson on meeting Fred	6	8	886
Blackpool convention; Crosthwaite; Bob Read; Turpin	6	9	906
Roger Crosthwaite	6	10	918
Non-card issue; negative thinking; card tricks	6	11	940
Goldstein issue; Hamilton lecture; IBM close-up	6	12	955

ARTICLE	Vol.	No.	Page
On magic competitions - reason for entering and use of	7	1	973
PD Xmas special - glide; Spirit count; conventions	7	2	988
Blackpool close-up; Cornelius coin leap; Nic Picot	7	3	1004
Size restriction of magazine; Argentina situation	7	4	1022
Lees contribution to Puzzled: Pat Page's T.A.T.	7	5	1038
Missing Hastings; thoughts on reporting; Pabular night	7	6	1052
Sayings in magic; actor as magician; nothing new & gags	7	7	1067
Audiences; young close-uppers; Blackpool; children	7	8	1081
Magical criticism; over praising; Ian Kent as compere	7	9	1098
Close-Up for children - Terry Machin & Ferry Gerats	7	10	1115
Ian Land; Magic magazines; Barrie Richardson & Giobbi	7	11	1131
Standing down as Editor, Stephen Tucker taking over	7	12	1145

Editorial article — Stephen Tucker

ARTICLE	Vol.	No.	Page
Introduction - change of thinking	7	12	1145
Nash lecture; Sweden; Lees' books; Nick Bolton	8	1	1158
Britland's Cardopolis; Eric Mason	8	2	1174
In Sweden; future contributions	8	3	1186
Top names in magazine; book review; Britland's T&R card	8	4	1200
Eric Mason ill; delays in Britland & Goldstein issues	8	5	1213
Tommy Cooper death; Monmoine issue; colour change case	8	6	1226
Pabular delays; future contributors; Lees editing Repro	8	7	1242
Scottish contingent book review; Close-Up at IBM	8	8	1256
Phil Goldstein; Ian Land's free manuscripts	8	9	1271
Delayed issue; Harrogate; BMS dinner, Italian tour	8	10	1283

Focus article — Fred Robinson

ARTICLE	Vol.	No.	Page
On 38th IBM	1	1	3
Mike Skinner; Close-Up in magazines	1	1	11
David Berglas' reward for Uri Geller type effect	1	3	34
Book reviews; Cy Endfield at Magic Circle	1	4	48
Fred Kaps Lecture	1	5	63
Book Review of Magician Nitely	1	6	75
Kaps Coin In Bottle; Indian Street entertainers	1	7	87
Coin spinning; Book Review; Uri Geller, On the radio	1	8	99
24th SAMS; Gaming Board	1	9	111
Alex Elmsley lecture; Books out on Ross & Carlyle	1	10	123
London magic pubs; Fred Kaps	1	11	135
Magic dealers; J Randi story; Lees in Hamleys; quote	1	12	147
IBM Convention; Ostin's Vampire; Randi & Ben Martin	2	1	159
IBM Southport Convention	2	2	171
Visitors; Prince Charles at the Magic Circle; friends bad quotes	2	4	199
Lees, Kaps, Lorayne; South African magic; International Day	2	5	210
Carlyle book review; Bob Read on New Faces	2	6	223
Blackpool Convention; US & UK magicians in pub	2	8	251
Vernon lecture notes; Bob Read at Savoy; Doug Alker	2	9	263

ARTICLE		Vol.	No.	Page
Exposure & Dealers; J	Jennings vs Marlo; publicity	2	10	275
Robert Harbin		2	11	287
Close-Up competition	s; Marv Long & Bob Haines	2	12	299
Parkinson TV show; J	ay lecture, 10 years for Magic Studio	3	3	330
Kaps & Jay on TV; Ga	aeton Bloom; Tamariz; Marlo replies	3	5	350
David Carre; Lewis G	anson; Ramsay Reunion	3	6	371
Happenings	— Obie O'Brien
ARTICLE		Vol.	No.	Page
Introduction to column	1	4	12	608
NYCAN convention;	Magic Castle; Mullica's Tom Foolery	5	2	636
Fechter's death; 9th F	FFF; Mullica's 1st anniversary	5	5	678
Meeting Robinson, Fr	ed; Jennings card trick; FISM	5	7	701
FISM winners; SAMS	and American magicians	5	8	714
Abbots Get Together,	Seabrooke; Mullica & others	5	10	746
Bob Read Close-Up &	e lecture; Maurice Fogel lecture	6	5	843
Lecture and	convention review
CONTRIBUTOR	ARTICLE	Vol.	No.	Pag
Robinson, Fred	Don Alan lectures	2	6	218
Robinson, Fred	Pabular Convention	3	2	315
Robinson, Fred	IBM British Ring 1976	3	2	321
Robinson, Fred	Scott York Lecture	3	4	347
Bruce, Gordon	Bob Read Lecture	4	7	546
Lees, Walt	Close-up at International Day	6	6	861
Lees, Walt	Cambridge Close-Up	6	11	941
Bruce, Gordon	Robinson, Fred In Glasgow	7	7	1070
Lees, Walt	Among The Great Unwashed (Close-Up At Blackpool)	7	9	110
Britland, David	Review Of The Martin Nash Lecture (London 1983)	8	2	1174
Keable-Elliott, Ian	Philippe Socrate Lecture	8	7	124
Oasis article	- Fred Robinson
ARTICLE		Vol.	No.	Pag
-	y Reunion; TV; skill against magic	3	9	402
Close-Up at & Spanisl	h conventions; Grismer, Scots	3	10	424
Pabular evening at the	Magic Circle; Geoff Ray & Ramsay Reunion	3	11	431
Lorayne; Harrogate; T	amariz lecture; cards to pocket	3	12	451
Mason; Caveney; John	n Ramsay book; Spanish Cartomagia	4	1	462
Barrie Richardson; mentalism & public belief		4	4	499
Close-Up at Blackpoo	1 - conditions	4	5	520
Close-Up at convention	ons; TV magicians; magic tapes	4	6	531
Pabular policy; failure	of actors as magicians	4	7	542
Richardson & misdire	ction; various magicians	4	8	561
Johnny Paul lecture; T	'V recordings; Fechter convention	4	9	570
Lecturing; Manchester	r magicians; Brahms in the US	4	10	584
Goldstein; Bloom's ca	ard problem; Ramsay book; Hastings	4	11	599

12

610

628

 $Anemos\ restaurant;\ Vernon\ on\ sleights;\ lecture\ notes$

Lees; Vernon; Dingle's pass; Spoonees Coins Here's Hoo

ARTICLE	Vol.	No.	Page
TV magicians; Barnes winning Circle; false counts	5	2	638
Presentation articles; Fred Kaps; what magicians want	5	3	652
Blackpool; Tamariz; Dobson lecture notes; betcha gag	5	4	662
Gordon Bruce; magic ethics; Dingle's layman trick	5	5	673
Vernon's 85th birthday - tributes; Gorpy; Kevin Davie	5	6	688
FISM Brussels; technical discussion; Paul Daniels show	5	7	703
Ken Brooke's Magic Place closes; Blenheim bar, Diaconis	5	8	712
Performing to magicians not laymen; Johnny Paul lecture	5	9	730
Restaurant magic; Lovell and entertaining for laymen	5	10	742
Pabular evening; Richard Turner, Tamariz Zarrow tip	5	11	757
Close-Up competitions; standing up; Len Neil; Kaps ill	5	12	771
Read's Vegas notes & prints; Nut & Bolt trick solution	6	1	788
Mentalism & Geller, astrology; artistry; summer seasons	6	2	798
Remembering Ramsay issue; Galloway & misdirection	6	3	810
Kaps death; tribute & analysis of his success; funeral	6	4	830
Close-Up at conventions; Pabular evening; Spanish cards	6	5	845
Retirement from Editor; Lees appointed; using Pabular	6	6	859

Prints from the Bob Read Collection

ARTICLE	Vol.	No.	Page
L'Escamoteur (man doing cups & balls in crowd)	6	1	791
Nouveau Panthéon Du Charivari par A Grévin (Political cartoon)	6	2	805
Taskspelaren: Paris (cups & balls in street)	6	3	815
Aspect de la place de la Bastille un dimanche de septembre (street scene)	6	4	833
Taskspelaren. Efter P Massanis malning. (cups & balls inside)		5	851
Les Cosaques Pour Rire. L'Escamoteur Manquant Son Tour, Faute D'Un Compère (political cups & balls)		6	867
Musee Pour Rire (cups & balls)		9	912
Lar Caricature (large man juggling objects)		11	949
Robert Monaire Libiaite (man waving money)		2	997
Taskenspilleren (cups & balls in booth)	7	11	1140
L'Escamoteur, sur le boulevard, près ie Chateau d'Eau (cups & balls in crowd)		12	1153
Les Cosaques Pour Rire. L'Escamoteur Manquant Son Tour, Faute D'un Compere (political cups & balls)		1	1168

The Page Boy Speaks article — Patrick Page

ARTICLE	Vol.	No.	Page
Close-up magicians in the US	1	1	11
Johnny Paul	1	2	16
Comment on Tony Shiels article; close-up for money	1	3	32
Tips for Domino trick	1	4	45
Performing at restaurant	1	5	55
Indian street entertainer	1	6	67
On being a magician	1	7	84
On Johnny Hart and Jerry Bergman; De Bieve & Co (1)	1	8	96
For My Next Trick: Daniels & Seabrooke; Kahn & Kahn (2)	1	9	104
Daniels & Kaps on Nixon; Terri Rogers & Cassidy on close-up; mentalist story; Sydney Lee (3)	1	10	117
Magicians use of -i; AI Flosso; Circus tricks (4)	1	11	130
Watching magicians; For My Next Trick; Comedy Juggling Tricks (5)	1	12	142
IBM Convention; Harold Bronhaut "hype"	2	1	153

ARTICLE	Vol.	No.	Page
Kids shows; Albert Le Bas anecdote; Page's play; Randi	2	2	165
Walt Lees	2	3	183
Mark Wilson; Brian Buzzing; Showboat restaurant	2	4	196
Working at Davenports; John Shirley; Schulian card pose	2	5	204
Don Alan; lecturing in US; glass under cup problem	2	6	221
John Ramsay	2	7	239
Trip to US - performing, lecturing & meeting	2	8	248
Trip to US continued; on US magicians	2	9	257
Howie Schwartzman; lecturing in Italy	2	10	269
Show in Italy with Slydini, Sitta and Shimada	2	11	285
US with collector Charlie Kalish; car stolen	2	12	297
FISM in Vienna; Hans Wittus street act; pickpocketing	3	1	308
Expelled from IBM for exposure	3	2	323
His card problems; Bugs Bunny quote; Jubilee year	3	3	334
IBM expulsion; Gaeton Bloom; Dominique; Ricky Jay	3	4	345
Magic on TV; duplicates & copyists; a coin vanish	3	5	355
Being left out; Binarelli's wild card; Ramsay Reunion	3	7/8	394
Spain lecturing; Kaps, Macmillan & Tamariz; Jack Hughes	3	9	410
Holiday; Camilo & Cachadina; 150 Comedy Props; Vernon	3	10	426
TV Autometer, Booth using close-up; IBM & expulsion	3	11	442
Magical friends; David Roth, John Calvert, Jay Marshall	3	12	455
On performing lectures; Eric Mason	4	1	468
France; Magic Man with John Wade; Ron's convention	4	2	480
Fialho, Bro Hammon; Alain & Zena Noel; places to be bad	4	3	494
Trendy magicians: Hart, Daniels, Marshall, Chanin; Abra	4	4	507
Performing in pubs: change in entertainment	4	5	522
Pay off to pub story; Marshall; collecting photos; book	4	6	536
Mike Caldwell; sleight of hand & close-up; some tricks	4	7	550
Hollywood & Mike Caldwell; Carl Beck & Ricky Dunn's act	4	8	556
SAM; lecturing; American magicians - Roth, Fox etc	4	9	578
In New York; Richiardi's act & others; 3 card tricks	4	10	590
Vernon, Pc of Han Ping Chien; Geller, Dutch TV & Hank V	4	11	602
New Year, dishonest magicians; Doug Henning, Kaps, Jay	4	12	617
Card convention; stage card tricks & acts; the Greats	5	1	631
Jay Marshall; Encyclopaedia of Impromptu Magic; tapes	5	2	644
Bob Olson; FISM; making it big; Page's first act	5	3	657
Definition of a professional; another Pat Page	5	4	669
Swiss & FISM close-up; Daniels & Nixon; Siegfried & Roy	5	5	684
Goshman; Biro; Jennings; Findlay sale; magic in films	5	6	697
Same act magicians; original performers; ripping off	5	7	709
IBM reinstatement; Goshman; Fogel & Colin Rose; Brooke	5	8	722
1979 look back; Brooke photo; tapes; old acts original	5	9	737
Italian IBM; Sylvan's 3 card monte TV presentation	5	10	751
Dale Harney's TV show & appearing magicians including Page	5	11	751 764
Resting in Scotland; Pages creative process comparing Fitzkee	5	12	780
Circle Collector's Day; Val Andrew's Soo biography -lack of	6	1	790
Young man's world - Copperfield; old timers; surviving	6	2	807
-			823
SAM; Cornelius; US magicians - compared to Ramsay	6	3
IBM & gents card trick; Fogel & mentalism is dead	6	4	838

ARTICLE	Vol.	No.	Page
Watching magic on TV; pet routines; Nixon compared with Daniels	6	5	852
Compulsive thinker, notebooks on magic; Kaps notebook	6	6	868
Robinson, Fred: comparing to Nelson Downs; daughter's magic act	6	7	882
Bob Albo; Copperfield's and magic; abuse of tapes	6	8	898
Inventor of year: hard to define - idea for Circle	6	9	914
On attending magic conventions - advantages	6	10	932
IBM & various magicians; linking ring anecdote	6	11	948
Circle close-up competition; Rex Cooper, beginners	6	12	966
2 groups of magis; idea for sponge balls & dinner table	7	1	982
Open letter to Walt Lees; close-up cases; Blackpool	7	2	998
Things going wrong; Breese close-up with John Mendoza	7	3	1009
Acts for magicians; Al Flosso's act; tricks to yourself	7	4	1030
Video; thoughts on exposure; overexposure on TV	7	5	1046
Norway Convention; high standard of young: John Houdi	7	6	1061
Convention in Ireland - Hubert Lambert	7	7	1077
Favourite close-up tricks; Heba heba Al & Sugar Cube	7	8	1092
TV stars; Brachetti in I; theatre shows; Vegas; Brooke	7	9	1109
1st impressions; changing the act; Sugar Cube trick	7	10	1125
Brachetti's Y (change from I) & description of show	7	11	1141
IBM; the Shield; Mark Raffles, Lewis & Page's Moneybag	7	12	1154
Reading magazines & incestuous; Lyle's Tissue Paper to Hat	8	1	1169
Small props compared to big; importance of fooling	8	2	1182
Car broken into & tapes stolen: turned out they weren't	8	3	1196
Blackpool; Dobson's act; night before lectures	8	4	1208
Reading magic magazines; tricks not good; Quotation	8	5	1222
Busking in Covent Garden; Page busking; private parties	8	6	1237
Watching Olympics: magic competitions; Jay at Sothebys	8	7	1253
IBM: dealers, overseas visitors, Alf Moore's death	8	8	1268
Women in Circle; old books; importance of presentation	8	9	1279
Originality; great performers - maybe Wayne Dobson	8	10	1294

THE PABULAR INDEX: TRICKS BY CONTRIBUTOR

Alker, Doug
The Useless Pack	Trick - CT: Coloured Backs	2	8	249
Double Monte	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	2	12	294
Turncoat	Trick - CT: Four Ace	3	4	346
Three Card Buckle	Trick - CS: False Count	3	5	351
Three Cards Across Extra	Trick - CT: Transposition	3	5	352
One In Four	Trick - CT: Coloured Backs	3	7/8	390
Oh No, Not Another Ace Trick	Trick - CT: Four Ace	3	11	438
Rainbow Triumph	Trick - CT: Coloured Backs	4	5	518
Behaviour Bluff And Beyond	Trick - CT: Four Ace	4	8	560
Ace Sandwich	Trick - CT: Four Ace	7	12	1148
Allen, Vic
Helping Hand	Trick - Coin: Gag And Betcha	3	9	407
Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette	4	2	473
Eyes Down	Trick - CT: Discoveries	4	8	555
Tea Totaller	Trick - Sight Gag	4	9	577
Magic Shoes	Trick - Sight Gag	7	2	989
Anders, John
Kaning Mercury	Trick - CT: Discoveries	7	9	1102
Anon
Focus	Trick - Cigarette	1	4	49
Focus	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	1	4	49
Focus	Trick - Drink Betcha, Puzzles	1	4	50
Focus	Trick - Drink Betcha	1	4	51
Odd Optic	Trick - Finger	2	1	157
Festive Fun	Trick - Match, Box, Puzzles	2	4	192
Festive Fun	Trick - CT: Prediction, Drink Betchas	2	4	193
Where There's Smoke	Trick - Match, Box	4	10	588
Where There's Smoke	Trick - Match, Box	4	10	589
Antonioli, Dr Brum
Focus	Trick - Calculator	1	7	87
Aukes, John
The Four Card Trick	Trick - CT: Prediction	8	4	1200
Straight And Round	Trick - CT: Discoveries	8	7	1250
Double Lift With One Card	Trick - CS: Double Lift	8	7	1251

Austin, Michael
My Blue Aces Again	Trick - CT: Four Ace	1	9	108
Avis, Jack
A Spirit Detection	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	1	5	56
The Wishing Envelope	Trick - CT: Transposition, Envelope	2	2	161
Transposed Marlo Reverse	Trick - CT: Reversal	2	2	163
The Jokers Wild	Trick - CT: Torn	2	2	163
Siva Count	Trick - CS: False Count	5	2	638
The Pinockle Caper	Trick - CT: Four Ace	5	6	693
Baker, Roy
Yecrik	Trick - Ring, Other	3	7/8	388
Baxter, lan
Supertransportation	Trick - CT: Transposition	1	9	109
My Cup Flippeth Over	Trick - Cup	2	12	298
Bema, Jos (Also see Wonder	·)
Table Workers Table	Trick - Table	2	8	246
The Pip Eating Spider	Trick - CT: Other	2	10	272
Splitting The Money	Trick - Bank Note	4	2	475
Where There's Smoke	Trick - Handkerchief	4	5	514
Ben, David
Holy Smoke	Trick - Bank Note, Cigarette, Coin: Production	7	1	972
Bennett, Keith
Overhand False Shuffle	Trick - CS: False Shuffle	2	2	164
Son Of Twisting The Aces	Trick - CT: Reversal	3	5	353
Second Variation On Twisting The Aces Revisited	Trick - CT: Reversal	3	7/8	376
Take Me To Your Leader	Trick - CT: Separation	7	2	986
Berglas, David
Ad Infinitum	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	1	5	53
Bertram, Ross
Coins Thru Table	Trick - Coin: Through	1	5	62
Binarelli, Tony
Galaxy Telepathy	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	5	11	759
Biro, Pete
Glittering	Trick - Ring, Finger	I	11	125

Blake, George
Focus	Trick - M: Living And Dead, Coin: Puzzle	1	6	76
Bloom, Gaeton
OCCAMITIS	Trick - CT: Discoveries	3	5	356
Prestidigitational Prediction	Trick - M: Book And Newspaper	3	9	397
Hank To Egg Exposed	Trick - Egg	5	7	699
Borra
Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette	4	7	548
Bossi, Van
Hole-Due-Chination	Trick - Coin: Through	3	7/8	381
Boyce, Wally
Where There's Smoke	Trick - Match, Wooden	4	12	609
The Piscatorial Peg	Trick - CT: Discoveries	5	2	640
Dumbo	Trick - Sight Gag	7	1	977
Elizabeth 2nd	Trick - CT: Matching, Envelope	7	2	995
Bragoli, John
Collected Thoughts	Trick - CT: Prediction, M: Book And Newspaper	2	4	194
Ace In The Hole	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	2	6	222
Mental Jigsaw	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	2	6	222
Versadeal	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	3	4	341
Brahams, Anthony
Hole-Due-Chination	Trick - Coin: Through	3	7/8	381
Breese, Martin
Where There's Smoke	Trick - Match, Box	4	11	603
The Deluxe Chink Box	Trick - Coin: Through	8	5	1216
Britland, David
David Britland Writes	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	2	9	261
Through The 4th Dimension	Trick - CT: Triumph	3	2	316
Brooke, Ken
Focus	Trick - Coin: Puzzle	1	4	50
Little Metal Eater	Trick - Sponge Ball, Coin: Production	5	5	677
Card In Envelope	Trick - Envelope, CS: Palming	5	5	680
Packet Poker	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	5	5	681
The Duplicount	Trick - CS: False Counts	5	5	682
The Tired Travellers	Trick - CT: Transposition	5	6	695
I-O-U	Trick - Bank Note, CT: Torn, CT: Wallet	6	3	816
Split Second	Trick - CS: Dealing	6	8	889

Poker Deal	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	6	8	890
Double Lift Techniques And Variations	Trick - CS: Double Lift	7	4	1024
Way Out	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	7	4	1026
Bruce, Gordon
Take Three	Trick - Coin: Sleight	3	7/8	373
Cased	Trick - CT: Discoveries	5	5	672
Coin Assembly	Trick - Coin And Card	5	5	674
Pocket Palm	Trick - CS: Palming	5	5	676
Matching Pairs	Trick - CT: Matching	5	5	676
Byrne, Bob
Focus	Trick - M: Living And Dead	1	7	87
Comerce Develop
Cameron, Douglas
The Flip Switch	Trick - Coin: Sleight	8	1	1167
Devil's Delight	Trick - CT: Four Ace	8	8	1261
Carlisle, Stanton
Colour Psychology	Trick - Envelope, M: Just Chance	1	2	18
Carney, John
Poor Mans Card Manipulation	Trick - CT: Vanishing	8	10	1284
Carré, David
Face Up	Trick - CT: Reversal	2	6	219
With An Okito Box	Trick - Coin: Through	2	11	281
Torn & Restored Bank Note	Trick - Bank Note	3	6	361
Coin Congregation	Trick - Coin And Card	3	6	363
Just Dice	Trick - Dice	3	6	365
The Card Expert	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	3	6	366
Impromptu Cup And Ball	Trick - Cup	3	6	370
Rosini Thimbles	Trick - Thimble	3	7/8	391
Just Changes	Trick - CT: Packet	3	10	416
Hanky Panky	Trick - Coin: Change, Handkerchief	3	11	435
One Potato, Two Potato	Trick - Cup	4	7	543
Cassidy, Mike
Flight Four	Trick - Coin: Across, Glass	1	7	77
Castillon, Gene
Spirit Count	Trick - CS: False Count	5	2	639
Charnley, Keith
Coin And Cover	Trick - Bank Note, Coin: Production, Wallet	5	8	721
A Deceptive Click Pass	Trick - Coin: Sleight	6	9	907
One in The Eye	Trick - Coin: Across	7	3	1005

Audible (Fake) Transfer Ring On Stick	Trick - Coin: Sleight Trick - Ring, Finger	7 8	7 1	1069 1165
	. 6, 6.
Chinn, Bill	THE MAN IN COLUMN TO SEC	2	2	217
Bill Chinn Writes	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	3	2	317
Chiswell, Richard
A Coin Effect	Trick - Coin: Vanish	4	5	517
Handywork	Trick - Coin: Change, Coin: Sleight, Match, Book	4	8	557
Christensen, Jerry L
Pyramid Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	3	12	447
Clancy, Paddy
Right Angled Coin Vanish	Trick - Coin: Vanish	5	10	747
Colgan, Des
Diary Dice-Card	Trick - CT: Prediction, Dice	1	9	105
Table Top Motorway	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	1	12	145
Miracle Matchstick Missile	Trick - CT: Discoveries, Match, Wooden	2	4	195
Colombini, Carlos & Fabian
Transpo Ink	Trick - CT: Oil And Water	2	9	255
Conway, Pat
Gag From Pat Conway	Trick - Thread	2	12	298
The ???? In Wallet	Trick - Wallet, Sight Gag	7	2	986
Corinda, Tony
The Powers Of Darkness	Trick - Ring, Other	2	4	185
Craven, Tom
Pyramid Variation	Trick - CT: Four Ace	4	3	490
Crombie, Jock
A Gag From Crombo	Trick - Match, Box	2	11	280
Crosthwaite, Roger
Doing The Splits	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	6	10	918
The Little Salt Man	Trick - CT: Transposition	6	10	922
Skating On Ice	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	6	10	926
Partial Brainwave Modified Master Grip	Trick - CT: Reversal Trick - CS: Dealing	6 8	10 2	929 1180
-	22. 2	Ŭ	-
Crush, Peter
Peter's Presto Pop-In	Trick - Bottle, Coin: Through	4	9	575

Danson, Ted
Give Me A Ring	Trick - Envelope, M: Just Chance, Ring, Finger	1	2	17
Davie, Kevin
Red-Back Surprise	Trick - CT: Separation	3	12	449
Red-Back Surprise Correction	Trick - CT: Separation	4	6	531
Copy Cat	Trick - CT: Matching	4	8	554
Signachange	Trick - CT: Coloured Backs	4	8	559
Ace-Stounding	Trick - CT: Four Ace	4	12	616
Stud	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	5	3	655
Gaspers Galore	Trick - CT: Prediction	6	4	826
Sign There	Trick - CT: Transposition	6	4	826
Highly Skilled Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	6	4	828
Relative Rise	Trick - CT: Rising Card	6	4	829
Palm Steal	Trick - CS: Palming	6	4	834
The Lollipop Trick	Trick - CT: Sucker	6	4	835
Dawson, Trevor
Goldfinger	Trick - Pencil, Ring, Finger	1	6	65
Day, Arthur
Holidaze	Trick - Puzzle	3	4	339
A Tuppeny One	Trick - Coin: Prediction	6	1	789
Fumdubulators	Trick - Sight Gag	6	4	836
Day, Sonny
Minerve	Trick - CS: Control	6	3	813
Fastest Trick In The World	Trick - CT: Discoveries	6	3	814
Cutting The Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	6	3	814
Dexter, Will
Cashmatch	Trick - Coin: Prediction	2	5	202
Inflation Sensation	Trick - Coin: Change	2	5	203
Dobson, Wayne
Coin Assembly	Trick - Coin And Card	4	12	613
Joker Sandwich	Trick - CT: Sandwich	5	4	665
Dribeck, Bob
On Witch Doctors	Trick - CT: Vanishing	1	6	66
Slow Motion Ring Release	Trick - Ring, Finger	1	6	75
Aenigma Variations	Trick - CT: Oil And Water	2	12	292
Play It Again Sam	Trick - CT: Matching	2	12	293
Duco, El
Fantastic Elastics	Trick - Elastic Band	8	3	1191
Slow Motion Penetration	Trick - Dice, Glass	8	10	1292

Duffie, Peter
A Fansee Blind Shuffle	Trick - CS: False Shuffle	2	1	158
Aces With A Twist	Trick - CT: Reversal	2	5	209
The Go-Between	Trick - CT: Sandwich	2	10	268
Card In Case Transposition	Trick - CT: Transposition	2	12	289
Positive Card Fold	Trick - CS: Palming	2	12	290
Twin Key-Boards	Trick - CT: Matching	3	4	344
Cannibal Land	Trick - CT: Collectors	3	11	432
Collectors Seminar	Trick - CT: Collectors	5	9	734
And The Cans Came Back	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	6	3	822
Trans Collection	Trick - CT: Collectors	6	7	876
Duffie, Peter & Walton, Roy
Play It Again Sam	Trick - CT: Matching	2	9	253
Duggal, Shiv (See also Shiv)
Best Shot	Trick - CT: Sandwich	8	8	1263
Duvivier, Dominique
The Problem Is	Trick - CT: Packet	4	10	585
East, Alex
The Magician's Name	Trick - CT: Oil And Water	8	5	1215
Eckl, Ed
Madness With The Ascanio Spread	Trick - CT: Packet	2	1	154
Alice Blue Gown	Trick - CT: Packet	2	1	155
Xmas Calculator	Trick - CT: Packet	2	1	155
Elmsley, Alex
One At A Time Collectors	Trick - CT: Collectors	1	3	28
Festive Fun	Trick - Coin: Puzzle	2	4	192
Endfield, Cy
A Cy Endfield Location	Trick - CT: Discoveries	3	5	351
Tomorrows World	Trick - M: Other	4	6	532
Etherington, Graham
Match Card 2	Trick - CT: Matching, Match, Book	2	4	189
Farmer, Bob
Hamman Count	Trick - CS: False Count	3	10	420
Jazz Pieces, Body & Soul - Pt I	Trick - CT: Transposition	4	2	476
Jazz Pieces, Body & Soul - Pt II & III	Trick - CT: Oil And Water	4	2	477
Cabungle	Trick - CS: False Count	4	5	511
Jazz Pieces	Trick - CT: Transposition, CT: Oil And Water	4	5	512

Twisting, Turning, Extending And Otherwise Molesting The Four Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	4	9	572
Faro, Tony
Spectator Magician	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	1	1	5
Focus	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	1	4	50
Festive Fun	Trick - Coin: Puzzle, Match, Wooden	2	4	193
Fells, John
Three Into One Won't Go	Trick - CT: Packet	7	1	976
Flip (See also Hallema)
Bewildering Cards	Trick - CT: Packet	1	8	89
Forton, Piet
Triple Flip	Trick - CS: Flourish	5	2	639
Can You Do The Gypsy Thread Again	Trick - Thread	5	10	740
Irish Key Ring	Trick - Key, Ring, Other	6	4	836
Fan Club	Trick - CT: Discoveries	6	6	865
Fox, Karrell
Where There's Smoke	Trick - Match, Paper	4	11	603
Fox, Kevin
We'll Ring You	Trick - Coin And Card, Dice	1	9	101
Focus	Trick - Coin And Card, Dice	1	10	123
Frame, Lawrence
Commercial Coin In Pack	Trick - Coin And Card	7	6	1054
Compression	Trick - CT: Vanishing	7	10	1124
Galloway, Andy
Pegasus Coin	Trick - Coin: Across	1	1	1
Coin And Jam Jar Routine	Trick - Coin: Through, Glass	2	7	230
Coin Vanish In The Air	Trick - Coin: Vanish	2	7	230
The Cig Trick	Trick - Cigarette, Ticket	2	7	232
One-Two-Three-Four Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	4	3	492
The Changeling	Trick - Coin: Change	6	3	817
Unsuspected Extra	Trick - Coin: Vanish	6	3	817
Vernon's Indicator	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	8	8	1258
Galloway, Andy & Ramsay,	John
Ramsay On The Thumb Tip	Trick - Thumb Tip	2	7	229
Gamble, Richard M
Giant Cigarette Production	Trick - Cigarette	7	4	1023
Blooming Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	7	7	1076

Kicker Colour Change	Trick - CT: Coloured Backs	7	9	1106
A Sweet Cigarette	Trick - Cigarette	7	12	1146
Geddes, Johnnie
The Knowing Nine	Trick - CT: Discoveries	2	1	151
Gilliland, John
Take Three	Trick - Coin: Sleight	3	7/8	373
Giobbi, Roberto
A Card To Be Thought About	Trick - CT: Prediction	7	12	1152
Blushing Jumper	Trick - CT: Wallet	8	1	1159
The Trevor Lewis Card To Wallet	Trick - CT: Wallet	8	2	1179
The Joker Folds Up	Trick - CT: Discoveries	8	4	1203
The Trojan Deck	Trick - CT: Matching	8	5	1219
For Susan	Trick - CT: Assembly	8	7	1243
1, 2, 3 & 4 Queens	Trick - CT: Transposition	8	7	1248
Glenan, Al
Over The Top	Trick - Ring, Other, Rope	3	9	405
Glover, Brian
Transpo Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	5	2	642
The Red Aces	Trick - CT: Sandwich	5	4	666
Oasis	Trick - CT: Sandwich	5	6	689
Goldstein, Phil
Your Choice	Trick - M: Other	3	3	335
Counter Revolution	Trick - CT: Separation	3	4	340
Taking The Plunge	Trick - CT: Rising Card	3	10	419
Mexican Geometry	Trick - M: Mental Matching	3	11	434
Half Through	Trick - Coin: Through	3	12	452
Card In Mind	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	4	5	521
Simplified Follow The Leader	Trick - CT: Separation	4	7	540
Alter-Ego	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	4	11	594
Cry Wolf	Trick - CT: Packet	4	11	595
Immediate Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	4	11	596
Back Gammon	Trick - CT: Packet	4	11	597
Negative Intruder	Trick - CT: Sandwich	4	11	597
Snap Turn Count	Trick - CS: False Count	4	12	614
Territory	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	5	3	654
Intimate Spirit	Trick - M: Spirit Writing	5	4	667
Wolf Trap	Trick - CT: Packet	5	7	702
Synch-Cerely	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	5	8	720
The Basic Twink	Trick - CT: Matching	5	11	754
Twink Plus	Trick - CT: Matching	5	11	755
Twink Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	5	11	756

Two Deck Twink	Trick - CT: Matching	5	11	756
Psychia-Twist	Trick - CT: Reversal	5	12	775
Ringleader	Trick - Ring, Finger	6	2	802
Data	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	6	5	848
Dai Vernon's Centrepiece	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	6	6	863
Amulation	Trick - Ring, Finger	6	7	879
Precoinition	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	6	11	944
Simple Oscar	Trick - CT: Packet	6	12	954
Simple Thornton	Trick - CT: Packet	6	12	958
Either Aura	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	6	12	959
Jan-Ken-Pon	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	6	12	960
37th Parallel	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	6	12	962
Brasso Profundo	Trick - Nut And Bolt, Ring, Finger	6	12	962
Spirit Count	Trick - CS: False Count	6	12	963
Necktie Second	Trick - CS: Dealing	6	12	964
Packetrainer	Trick - CT: Packet	7	3	1012
All For Nought	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	7	5	1040
Casanova	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	7	6	1060
Tenting Trip	Trick - CT: Transposition	7	7	1066
Oddment	Trick - CT: Packet	7	10	1117
Avanture, Avanture II, Avanture IV	Trick - CT: Four Ace	8	2	1172
Short Circuit	Trick - CT: Packet	8	4	1201
Tag Team	Trick - CT: Matching	8	9	1272
Queens And Water	Trick - CT: Oil And Water	8	9	1273
Stand Up And Be Counting	Trick - CT: Separation	8	9	1273
Greetings	Trick - CT: Packet	8	9	1275
Paper Chase	Trick - M: Living And Dead	8	9	1276
Eye-Cue	Trick - M: Mental Matching	8	9	1276
Brackets	Trick - CT: Packet	8	9	1277
Goodwin, Alf
Twin Beds	Trick - Paddle	1	12	143
The Legpull	Trick - Pulls	2	12	296
The Magician's Four Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	7	8	1084
The Maneaters	Trick - CT: Collectors	8	8	1267
Govan, Barry
The Bending Key	Trick - Key, M: Moving And Bending	1	10	115
Variation On A Circle	Trick - Coin And Card	1	12	144
Match Card	Trick - CT: Vanishing, Match, Book	2	1	152
Match Card - 2	Trick - CT: Matching, Match, Book	2	4	189
Grierson, M B
Lost Fumbulators	Trick - Envelope, Sight Gag	8	8	1265
Grismer, Ray
HIP ESP	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	6	8	891

Haines, Bob
Four Gone Conclusion	Trick - CT: Transposition	2	9	256
Hallas, Paul
Concealment	Trick - CS: Control, Coin And Card	7	1	978
Card In Calculator	Trick - CT: Discoveries, Calculator	7	3	1006
Repeat Bluff Sandwich	Trick - CT: Sandwich	7	8	1083
Forcing A Date With Cards	Trick - CS: Forcing	7	12	1146
More Dangerous	Trick - CT: Discoveries	8	2	1181
Mexican Spectator Change	Trick - CT: Transposition	8	10	1293
Hallema, Flip (See also Flip)
Transfo Transpo	Trick - CT: Packet	3	7/8	377
Hamilton, Bob
Bent Upon Deception	Trick - Key, M: Moving And Bending	1	5	58
Extra	Trick - CT: Four Ace	1	8	95
Soft Spot	Trick - Coin: Through, Glass	1	10	120
Think-Arise	Trick - CT: Rising Card, Handkerchief	2	4	197
Where There's Smoke	Trick - Glass	4	10	588
OUCH	Trick - CT: Reversal	5	3	650
For Nudists Only	Trick - CT: Coloured Backs	5	12	768
Hamilton, Steven
Ferly Defragmentation Etc	Trick - CT: Torn, Envelope	6	3	811
Trans Collection	Trick - CT: Collectors	6	7	876
Going Going Gone	Trick - CT: Vanishing	8	8	1260
Hawkins, David
Human Error	Trick - CT: Prediction, Calculator	7	8	1082
Haxton, Francis
Paired Choice	Trick - CT: Matching	1	5	60
Heins, Jan
Firewater	Trick - Glass	3	4	343
Teragram	Trick - CT: Discoveries	3	5	358
Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette, Match, Wooden	4	3	490
Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette	4	10	589
Piep-Piep - A Jan Heins Gag	Trick - Sight Gag	4	12	609
The Sexbomb	Trick - CT: Rising Card	5	4	664
Oasis	Trick - CT: Discoveries	5	5	674
The Lady Vanishes	Trick - CT: Transposition	6	6	863
Splash	Trick - CT: Discoveries	7	8	1080
Herron, Carl
Marksman Extraordinary	Trick - CT: Discoveries	2	8	245

Hird, Percy
Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette	4	4	505
Hooper, Jim
Your Autograph Please	Trick - CT: Prediction	3	11	437
Horwitz, Basil
Clairvoyant Chicanery	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	2	5	201
The Third Eye	Trick - M: Mental Matching	3	12	445
A Passing Thought	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	5	4	661
Lucky Joker Prediction	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	5	12	769
Howarth, Mo
Hat Gag	Trick - Hat, Sight Gag	6	7	878
Wallet With Dressing	Trick - CT: Wallet	7	8	1090
Hudson, Charles M
On Faro Felon	Trick - CS: False Shuffle, CT: Sandwich	2	6	217
Jack, Gentleman
Pickpockeyt	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	8	3	1189
Ladies And Gentlemen	Trick - CT: Packet	8	3	1195
Jennings, Larry
Festive Fun	Trick - Bottle	2	4	194
Coins And Handkerchief	Trick - Coin: Through, Handkerchief	3	3	325
Happenings	Trick - CT: Transposition	5	7	701
Johnson, Les
Micro Magic	Trick - Calculator, CT: Discoveries	7	10	1118
Johnsson, Rick
Yours, Mine & Ours	Trick - CT: Transposition	6	8	887
Rip Off	Trick - Bank Note	6	8	893
Pradl/Prudl	Trick - CS: Double Lift	6	9	910
Johnston, Johnny
Cointraption	Trick - Coin: Through, Sponge Ball	6	11	936
Kane, Peter
Slow Motion Ring Release	Trick - Ring, Finger	1	1	6
Focus	Trick - Bank Note	1	5	63
Kosky, Gerald
Computer Discovery	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	4	12	612

Kuske, Steven
Double-X-Posure	Trick - CT: Transposition	3	3	328
OOTW	Trick - CT: Separation	4	6	526
Sharp Sharp	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	6	6	862
Location	Trick - CS: Control	7	6	1053
Kuskie, Steve
Grandma's Triple Cut	Trick - CS: Flourish	6	5	843
Oil Colours	Trick - CT: Oil And Water	6	8	896
Land, lan
Snap Count Lost Ace	Trick - CT: Reversal	7	5	1042
Getting Lost In The Shuffle	Trick - CT: Reversal	7	5	1044
Proteus	Trick - CT: Four Ace	7	7	1072
Interlaced Jump	Trick - CT: Collectors	7	11	1128
Second Direction	Trick - CT: Collectors	7	11	1131
A Mouthful Of Air	Trick - CT: Assembly	7	11	1133
Back Palm	Trick - CT: Transposition	7	11	1135
Technicolour Departure	Trick - CT: Reversal	7	11	1137
Alpha Minus	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	7	12	1151
Technicolour Departure	Trick - CT: Reversal	8	1	1164
Quaterity	Trick - CT: Discoveries	8	10	1290
One By One	Trick - CT: Reversal	8	10	1291
One by One (Another One)	Trick - CT: Reversal	8	10	1292
Lashbrook, Ron
Double Repeat Turnover	Trick - CT: Reversal	7	7	1075
Triangle Prediction	Trick - Dice	7	10	1120
Lauchli, Carl
Firewater	Trick - Glass	3	4	343
Lees, Walt
Cul-A-Separation	Trick - CT: Separation	1	4	46
My Blue Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	1	6	70
Crocodile Tears	Trick - CT: Other	1	11	133
Perpetual Elevator Routine	Trick - CT: Ambitious	2	3	174
The First Elevator	Trick - CT: Ambitious	2	3	174
The Cold Elevator	Trick - CT: Ambitious	2	3	175
Triumph Plus	Trick - CT: Triumph	2	3	176
The Small Packet All Backs	Trick - CT: Packet	2	3	177
Coinjuring	Trick - Coin: Change	2	3	179
Finale	Trick - CT: Ambitious	2	3	179
The Winning Hand	Trick - Sight Gag	2	3	183
Dice-O-Metrics	Trick - Dice	2	7	232
Assignation	Trick - M: Mental Matching, Key	3	2	320
Stranger Than Fiction	Trick - CT: Tom	5	1	623

New Finish To Larry Jennings' Coins Through Handkerchief	Trick - Coin: Through, Handkerchief	5	1	624
Clean Collectors	Trick - CT: Collectors	5	1	626
Four Card Surprise	Trick - CT: Discoveries	5	1	629
In Jokes	Trick - Sight Gag	5	2	637
Irish Poker	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	5	6	690
Even Break	Trick - CT: Prediction	6	7	873
Lewis, Trevor
Simplicity	Trick - CT: Prediction	1	4	47
A Las	Trick - CT: Packet	1	6	69
High Jacked	Trick - CT: Packet	1	10	116
Transpo Plus	Trick - Coin: Change	2	5	205
Double Riffle Control	Trick - CS: Control	2	5	205
Zarrow Shuffle	Trick - CS: False Shuffle	2	5	205
Palm Conscious	Trick - CT. Gambling Theme	2	5	205
Middle Diddle	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	2	5	205
Its In The Bag	Trick - CT: Discoveries	2	5	206
Ladies In Waiting	Trick - CT: Triumph	2	5	206
Card Shark Too	Trick - CT: Torn	2	9	258
LIAR	Trick - CS: Palming	3	3	333
Latest Gag	Trick - Sight Gag	4	7	547
Time Flies	Trick - Coin: Change	5	8	720
Time Flies	Trick - Watch	5	8	720
Add On Plus	Trick - CS: Double Lift	5	10	749
Ljunberg, Gay
	The state of the s	0	2	1100
Christmas Cards	Trick - CT: Packet	8	3	1189
Sympathy	Trick - CT: Coloured Backs	8	3	1190
Murder Game	Trick - M: Living And Dead	8	10	1288
Long, Marv
Extra Climax Card In Wallet	Trick - CT: Wallet	5	11	761
Lovell, Simon
Jack Catch	Trick - CT: Sandwich	4	5	515
Riffle Two	Trick - M: Memory	4	7	547
Handy Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	4	9	577
Atomic ESP	Trick - CT: Vanishing	4	12	614
Two Faced	Trick - CT: Other	5	10	750
Macfadyean, Alex
Switchback	Trick - Coin: Change	2	7	235
Magini
Improved Travelling Coin	Trick - Coin: Across, Glass	1	3	27
	,			-

Manfred

Oasis	Trick - Puzzle	4	11	601
Marlo, Ed
Dribble Coincidence	Trick - CT: Matching	1	2	13
Dribble Concept Continued Splitting The Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	1	3	29
Spectator Cuts To 4 Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	2	8	244
Martino
Waitino
Roll Away	Trick - Coin: Vanish	4	10	589
Mason, Eric
Striker	Trick - Match, Wooden	1	1	7
Arise Comrades	Trick - CT: Rising Card	1	10	118
Eca Tuoba Ecaf	Trick - CT: Coloured Backs	2	11	277
Moniker	Trick - Glass	3	2	313
Cubism	Trick - CT: Discoveries	4	1	458
I Say Dots Impossible	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	4	1	458
On Reflection	Trick - M: Book And Newspaper	4	1	459
Billet-Doux	Trick - Envelope, M: Cards And ESP	4	1	460
Caboodle	Trick - CS: False Count	4	1	461
Brainwave	Trick - CT: Coloured Backs	4	1	463
Kineto	Trick - Ring, Finger	4	1	464
N.C.R.	Trick - Envelope, M: Number/Object Prediction, Wallet	4	1	465
A Pound With A Bottle	Trick - Bank Note, Bottle, Coin: Through	4	9	574
The Problem Is	Trick - CT: Packet	4	10	585
Beau Ideal	Trick - CT: Packet	4	12	606
The Pit-A-Patter Of A Tiny Feat	Trick - CT: Rising Card	5	6	692
Amason	Trick - Coin: Change	5	7	703
Make A Note Of It	Trick - Bank Note	5	8	716
Anything For A Change	Trick - CS: Palming	5	9	733
Put And Take	Trick - CS: Palming, CT: Other	5	11	762
Pop	Trick - Thumb Tip	5	12	772
Overture	Trick - CS: Palming	6	2	796
Sublimason	Trick - CT: Transposition	6	2	796
For Johann	Trick - CT: Four Aces	6	2	797
Cul Bono?	Trick - CT: Matching	6	2	798
Fred Trick The Great	Trick - CT: Prediction	6	8	893
Newspaper Mind Reading	Trick - M: Book And Newspaper	7	7	1066
May, Leslie
Focus	Trick - M: Book And Newspaper	1	6	75
Spotting The Spot	Trick - CT: Discoveries, Paddle	2	5	208
McDuff, Algonquin
Penatring	Trick - Ring, Finger, Rope	6	8	892

Mcfadzean, Alex
Quadruple Inflation	Trick - Coin: Production	6	3	820
McIntyre, Archie
Rip It Up	Trick - CT: Torn	4	8	562
Merelle, Stanley
Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette	4	6	530
Monaghan, Frank
The Flea	Trick - Sight Gag	1	4	44
Monmoine, Pascal
The Domino Effect	Trick - CT: Discoveries	8	6	1227
Forceful Revelation	Trick - CS: Forcing	8	6	1228
Card Through The Table From A Distance	Trick - CT: Other	8	6	1229
Shattered	Trick - Coin: Through, Glass	8	6	1230
Chameleon	Trick - CT: Coloured Backs	8	6	1231
The Irresistible Force	Trick - CS: Forcing	8	6	1232
Card In Pen	Trick - CT: Tom, Pen	8	6	1233
I've Seen A Rubber Band	Trick - Elastic Band, Match, Wooden, Thumb Tip	8	6	1234
Staircase	Trick - CT: Ambitious	8	6	1235
And Finally	Trick - CS: Control, CT: Four Ace, Thread	8	6	1236
Ostin, Bob
Vampire	Trick - M: Living And Dead	1	4	39
Focus	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	1	6	75
Focus	Trick - M: Living And Dead	1	7	87
Fan Hide Move	Trick - CS: Control	1	9	110
Tickets Please	Trick - Ticket	1	9	110
Off The Handle	Trick - Cup	2	7	234
Page, Pat
The Page Boy Speaks	Trick - Coin: Sleight	3	5	355
Take Three	Trick - Coin: Sleight	3	7/8	373
Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette	4	7	548
The Page Boy Speaks	Trick - Watch	5	6	697
Palmer, Archie
Intrigue Two	Trick - CT: Packet	8	7	1248
Pargeter, Andrew
Simplified Spin Pass Aces	Trick - CT: Four Ace	4	6	527
Multi-Count Technique	Trick - CS: False Count	5	8	718
Multi-Count Technique	Trick - CS: False Count	5	9	731
Tenkai Cop	Trick - CS: Palming	6	9	911
Card-Trek	Trick - CT: Transposition	7	6	1050

Pladek, Oscar
The Reunited Match	Trick - Match, Paper	5	11	758
Rae, Oswald
Oasis	Trick - Watch	4	11	600
Oasis	THER - Water	4	11	000
Ramsay, John
Coin And Jam Jar Routine	Trick - Coin: Through, Glass	2	7	230
Coin Vanish In The Air	Trick - Coin: Vanish	2	7	230
The Cig Trick	Trick - Cigarette, Ticket	2	7	232
Ray, Geoff
Double Exchange	Trick - Coin: Across	1	6	68
Lap Flick	Trick - CS: Palming	1	11	132
Close-Up Quickly	Trick - Coin: Change	3	3	329
Read, Bob
Bob's Business	Trick - Handkerchief	1	1	5
Biting The Glass	Trick - Coin: Gag And Betcha, Glass	1	2	19
Business For Card In Wallet	Trick - CT: Wallet, Bank Note	1	3	25
Bob's Business	Trick - Coin: Gag And Betcha	1	4	37
Bob's Business	Trick - Coin: Gag And Betcha, Calculator	1	4	51
Impromptu Sight Bits Business	Trick - Sight Gag	1	6	72
Business For Roll Of Notes	Trick - Bank Note	1	7	81
Box Clever	Trick - CT: Other	1	8	91
Bob's Business - Noes Galore	Trick - Sight Gag	1	10	122
Business For The Four Coin Assembly	Trick - Coin And Card	2	1	152
Business For Knife Through Coat	Trick - Pickpocketing, Sight Gag, Wallet, Watch	2	2	167
Business For Knife Sharpening	Trick - Sight Gag	2	4	195
Handkerchief Through Glass	Trick - Glass, Handkerchief	5	6	694
Richardson, Barrie
678	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction, Wallet	1	1	10
Impromptu Mental Divination	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	1	11	128
Thoughts In Transit	Trick - Envelope, M: Cards And ESP	2	9	260
From A Mentalist's Notebook	Trick - M: Other	2	10	265
Pseudo-Psychometry In A Paper Bag	Trick - M: Mental Matching	3	9	400
Lock And Key Mystery	Trick - Key, M: Mental Matching	3	10	413
One In A Million	Trick - M: Book And Newspaper	4	4	498
Memorable Memory Stunt	Trick - M: Memory	4	4	500
Coin In Bottle Mentalism & Molecules	Trick - Coin: Through, Bottle	4	4	501
Think Hot Think Cold	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	4	4	502
The Clean Second - Card Force Concept	Trick - CS: Forcing	4	4	503
The Magnetic Force	Trick - M: Moving And Bending, Pencil	4	4	504
The Undisturbed Deck Prediction	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	4	4	505
A Gestalt Revelation	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	5	8	715
The Three Chair Enigmastion Or The Lazy	Trick - M: Number/Object Prediction	5	10	748
Mentalist Demonstration	•

1-2-3 Card In Wallet	Trick - CT: Wallet	6	1	782
Almost Real Mindreading	Trick - M: Cards And ESP	6	7	875
Dollar Divination	Trick - Bank Note, M: Number/Object Prediction	7	5	1034
Newspaper Mind Reading	Trick - M: Book And Newspaper	7	7	1066
The Strange Key Stunt	Trick - Key, M: Moving And Bending	7	9	1096
Alphabet Mentalism	Trick - M: Mental Matching	8	2	1177
Pocket Dictionary Book-Tests	Trick - M: Book And Newspaper	8	4	1205
Do You Wish To Continue	Trick - CT: Matching	8	7	1240
Less Is More	Trick - CT: Discoveries	8	10	1287
Riding, Joe
Mission Accomplished	Trick - CT: Separation	2	9	262
Robinson, Fred
Perfect Faro Shuffle	Trick - CS: False Shuffle	1	1	8
Icebreaker	Trick - Cigarette	1	2	16
Spectator Magician Plus	Trick - CT: Matching	1	3	33
Ambitious Riser	Trick - CT: Rising Card	1	8	92
Edge Spinners	Trick - Coin: Flourish	1	9	106
Smash And Grab	Trick - Match, Box	1	9	106
Focus	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	1	9	111
Blind Date	Trick - Coin: Prediction	1	11	131
Behavioural Bluff	Trick - CT: Prediction	2	1	156
The Ascanio Spread	Trick - CS: False Count	2	2	168
Circulating Coins	Trick - Coin: Flourish	2	4	190
More For Less	Trick - CS: False Count, CT: Packet	2	5	206
Up The Sleeve	Trick - CS: Palming, CT: Gambling Theme	2	8	243
Dropit	Trick - Coin: Sleight	2	9	258
Kniphofia	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	3	2	318
Double Lift Drop Switch	Trick - CS: Double Lift	3	3	332
Double Denial	Trick - CT: Discoveries	3	7/8	387
Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette	4	2	472
Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette	4	3	489
Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette	4	3	490
Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette	4	6	530
Thimble-O	Trick - Thimble	4	9	569
Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette, Handkerchief, Match, Box, Pipe	4	9	576
Oasis	Trick - Alarm Clock	4	11	601
Where There's Smoke	Trick - Cigarette, Match, Paper	4	11	603
Where There's Smoke	Trick - Kettle, Match, Wooden	4	12	609
Oasis	Trick - Nut And Bolt	6	1	788
Fumdubulators	Trick - Thread, Handkerchief	6	4	836
Ronnay, Magic
The New Oil & Water Routine	Trick - CT: Oil And Water	8	1	1161
Rovi
Book Choice	Trick - M: Book And Newspaper	5	6	691
Ivor's Control	Trick - CS: Control	6	1	789

Simplicity Card In Wallet	Trick - CT: Wallet	7	2	989
Double Force	Trick - CS: Forcing	7	2	990
Roxy
Surprise Follow The Leader	Trick - CT: Separation	7	3	1002
Transposition '71	Trick - CT: Transposition	7	5	1036
Zig Zag Prediction	Trick - CT: Prediction, Dice, Envelope	7	8	1089
Sagan, Dorion
Taking The Plunge	Trick - CT: Rising Card	3	10	419
Half Through	Trick - Coin: Through	3	12	452
Sanderson, George P
_	Til E I MILG	4	7	0.5
Colour Psychology	Trick - Envelope, M: Just Chance	1	7	85
Sargent, Dennis
Rip It Up With Unprepared Deck	Trick - CT: Torn	5	2	641
Schmidt, Joseph
Joseph Schmidt Writes	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	7	3	1011
Schuman, Ed
Festive Fun	Trick - Puzzle	2	4	194
Schwartz, Sam
Omega Count	Trick - CS: False Count	7	6	1060
Scudiery, Mark
Faro Felon	Trick - CT: Sandwich	1	8	94
Focus	Trick - CT: Sandwich	1	10	123
Setterington, Arthur
Disc-O	Trick - Bottle Top	1	3	30
Chop Coin	Trick - Bank Note, Coin: Vanish	1	8	94
Headline Hit	Trick - M: Book And Newspaper	2	8	241
Animal Magic	Trick - Handkerchief, Kettle	3	7/8	382
Diception	Trick - Dice	3	9	408
Take Three Plus	Trick - Coin: Sleight	4	6	535
Whodunnit	Trick - M: Living And Dead	4	9	568
Tube Off	Trick - Elastic Band, Handkerchief	4	10	583
Thanks For The Memory	Trick - M: Memory	5	3	655
Oldfinger Back Hander	Trick - CT: Discoveries, Finger Trick - Coin: Vanish	5 6	12 7	773 878
Sandwich Escape	Trick - Coin: Vanish Trick - Bank Note	6	11	878 942
Whats In A Name	Trick - CT: Discoveries	7	2	992
Thimble Finger	Trick - Thimble	7	6	1051
			-

Shiv (See also Duggal)
Exchange Collectors	Trick - CT: Collectors	5	10	745
Sinclair, Brian
The Cards Across	Trick - CT: Transposition	5	9	728
Smith, Al
Where Have All The Aces Gone	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	5	8	724
Seconds Out	Trick - CT: Matching	6	2	803
Krix	Trick - CT: Reversal	6	5	846
Asque	Trick - CT: Sandwich	6	9	908
Pointing The Way	Trick - CT: Sandwich	7	7	1070
Error Error Error	Trick - CT: Sandwich	7	11	1139
Fresh Sliced	Trick - CT: Triumph	7	12	1147
Snooks, Fred
Where There's Smoke	Trick - Match, Wooden	4	11	603
Oasis	Trick - Coin: Gag And Betcha, Drink Betcha	5	4	663
Fumdubulators	Trick - Match, Box	6	4	836
Somerville, Neil
In Anticipation	Trick - CT: Prediction	6	6	864
Specht, Henrik
One More Chance	Trick - CT: Sucker	8	3	1188
The Kangaroo Spots	Trick - CT: Packet	8	4	1202
The Test Tube Child	Trick - CT: Packet	8	5	1215
Spencer, Horace
Smash And Grab	Trick - CT: Discoveries	7	5	1040
Stammers, Peter
Colour Changing Knives Without A Paddle	Trick - Match, Box, Paddle	1	12	137
Impromptu Coin Dropper	Trick - Coin: Gimmick	2	2	167
Stephens, Bob
Psychic Exposure	Trick - CT: Discoveries	2	11	284
Tamariz, Juan
The Oil And Water Of Tamariz	Trick - CT: Oil And Water	4	3	484
Black Days	Trick - CT: Prediction	5	7	705
Tamariz Ambitious Double	Trick - CT: Ambitious	5	12	776
It's A Pity	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	6	6	856
The Tamariz Turnover	Trick - CS: Double Lift	7	1	970
Mental Blockbuster	Trick - CT: Matching	7	3	1006

Trixer, Hans E
RSVP	Trick - CT: Discoveries, Envelope	4	6	528
Tucker, Stephen
Nil Separaturn Est	Trick - CT: Transposition	7	10	1114
Ambidextrous	Trick - CT: Tom	7	12	1144
Shear Magic	Trick - Rope	8	1	1166
Under Control	Trick - CT: Transposition	8	2	1175
Think	Trick - CT: Packet	8	3	1193
Departure Lounge	Trick - CT: Sandwich	8	4	1206
The Deluxe Chink Box	Trick - Coin: Through	8	5	1216
The Incomplete Deck	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	8	5	1220
A Devil's DozenPlus Two	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	8	7	1247
Card-Warper	Trick - CT: Tom	8	7	1251
Literally Spelling The Aces	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	8	8	1264
I Met A Card That Wasn't There	Trick - CT: Discoveries	8	8	1266
The Maneaters	Trick - CT: Collectors	8	8	1268
Spondulies Plus Mentalism	Trick - Coin: Prediction, M: Number/Object Prediction	8	10	1286
Turpin, Dick
Turpin's Turnip	Trick - Glass, Hat, Swede	6	9	902
The Drinks Are On Me	Trick - Coin: Production, Glass, Handkerchief	6	11	946
More Reflections Of Horace Spencer	Trick - Bank Note	7	3	1005
Vernon, Dai
Dai Vernon's Centrepiece	Trick - CT. Gambling Theme	6	6	863
Victor, Edward
Eye Count	Trick - CS: False Count	5	2	639
Viswanathan, Anath
Coin Through Hand	Trick - Coin: Through	4	10	591
Walton, Roy
The Witch Doctors	Trick - CT: Vanishing	1	1	3
Obsolete Prediction	Trick - CT: Prediction	1	4	40
Tearaway	Trick - CT: Tom	1	7	78
Carousel	Trick - CT: Transposition	1	8	97
Earthbound	Trick - CT: Separation	1	9	103
Past Help	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	2	2	170
The Card Shark	Trick - CT: Tom	2	6	213
Correction to Card Shark	Trick - CT: Tom	2	8	252
Inflated Ace	Trick - CT: Ambitious	3	1	303
A Martian Plot	Trick - CT: Sandwich	3	1	304
Your Very Own	Trick - CT: Separation	3	1	306

Trick - CT: Separation

Trick - CT: Gambling Theme

307

309

3

1 1 3

Chiefly Yours

Denary Deceit

Ambitious Move	Trick - CS: Flourish	3	1	310
Truth And Consequence	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	3	1	311
Baker Street Re-visited	Trick - Calculator	3	4	338
A Straight Shuffle	Trick - CT: Gambling Theme	3	7/8	392
USA Trail	Trick - CT: Four Ace	3	10	418
Twice Two	Trick - CT: Prediction	3	12	454
NOSFERATU	Trick - CT: Four Ace	4	5	510
Card School	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	5	6	689
Oasis	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	5	7	704
Detective Story	Trick - CT: Packet	6	1	786
Ferly Defragmentation Etc	Trick - CT: Torn, Envelope	6	3	812
Outward Bound	Trick - CT: Transposition	6	5	844
End Game Plus	Trick - CT: Matching	6	7	872
Through The Centuries Of Time	Trick - CT: Discoveries	6	9	907
I'd Give My Right Hand	Trick - CT: Tom	8	4	1202
The 229-224 Trick	Trick - CT: Prediction, M: Number/Object Prediction	8	5	1212
Rainbow Road	Trick - CT: Coloured Backs	8	7	1246
Triple Alliance	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	8	8	1256
Sum Trick	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	8	8	1259
Waters, Ray
Moniker Modified	Trick - Glass	3	10	423
The Secret Of Shhhh	Trick - CT: Discoveries, Bottle	3	11	429
Wentworth, Peter
Where There's Smoke	Trick - Match, Wooden	4	12	609
Weston, Mark
The Calculator Business	Trick - Calculator	1	12	140
Multidie Box	Trick - Dice	2	6	215
Supreme Glimpse	Trick - CS: Flourish	2	10	270
Continuous Ball Pen Production	Trick - Pen	2	10	273
The Spinners	Trick - CS: Flourish	2	11	286
Move To Show Both Sides Of A Card Blank	Trick - CS: Flourish	3	7/8	375
Move To Show Both Sides Of A Card Blank	Trick - CT: Prediction	3	7/8	376
Club Night Twins	Trick - CT: Ambitious	3	7/8	378
Fancy	Trick - CT: Spelling And Counting	3	9	404
Splitz	Trick - CT: Matching	3	11	433
Where There's Smoke	Trick - Pencil	4	5	514
Double Exposure	Trick - CT: Discoveries	4	7	541
Under My Foot	Trick - CT: Discoveries	5	3	649
Spectator Unexplained (After Vernon)	Trick - CT: Prediction	5	12	770
MW Vanishing Deck	Trick - CT: Vanishing	6	2	799
Hong Kong Visible Release	Trick - Coin: Through	6	11	942
Repeat Burned Match	Trick - Match, Book	7	10	1116
Comb Vanish	Trick - Sight Gag	7	12	1148
Coin Caper	Trick - Coin: Gag And Betcha	7	12	1150

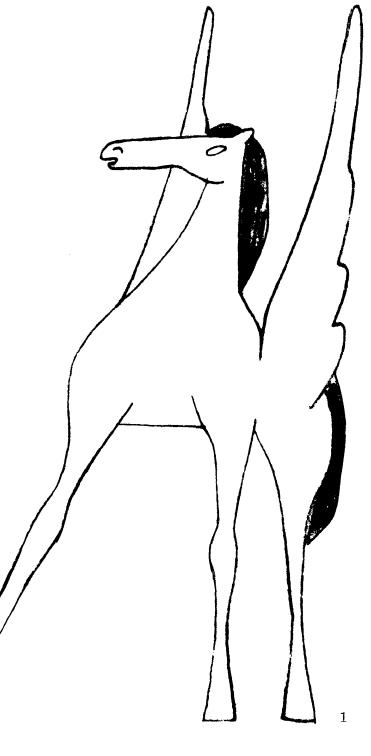

Willmarth, P	h	i	ı
--------------	---	---	---

Biddle Kardyro Cased	Trick - CT: Transposition	6	8	894
Wonder, Tommy (See al	so Bema)
Coins Across - A Presentation	Trick - Coin: Across	5	2	634
Coins Across - A Presentation	Trick - Coin: Across	5	3	652
One In The Eye	Trick - Coin: Through	5	4	660
Oasis	Trick - Coin: Through	5	7	704
Ring On Stick	Trick - Ring, Finger	6	1	784
Falling Pips	Trick - CT: Ambitious	6	2	806
Pocket Slate Routine	Trick - M: Spirit Writing	6	5	842
Everywhere And Nowhere	Trick - CT: Sucker	7	1	979
Torn And Restored Cigarette	Trick - Cigarette	7	4	1018
Elizabeth 3rd	Trick - CT: Matching	7	6	1055
Woods, Roger
Roger Woods Writes	Trick - CT: Other	5	10	747
Worsley, Bill
Back To Back	Trick - CT: Packet	7	4	1028
Intrigue Two	Trick - CT: Packet	8	7	1248
Wright, David A
Elmsley Out Sexed	Trick - CT: Packet	1	10	113
Seduca Deck	Trick - CT: Other	2	1	150
Wye, Phil
Obsolete Encore	Trick - CT: Prediction	1	11	134
Blank Faces	Trick - CT: Packet	2	2	166
Half & Half	Trick - M: Mental Matching	3	9	406
Zavis, William
Up Down And Around	Trick - CT: Ambitious	1	4	42
Kings Over Queens	Trick - CT: Ambitious	1	6	73
Kings Over Queens II	Trick - CT: Ambitious	1	7	80
Gone Sandwich	Trick - CT: Sandwich	1	8	98

The Magazine of Close-up Magic

Vol.1 Nº1 Sept.1974

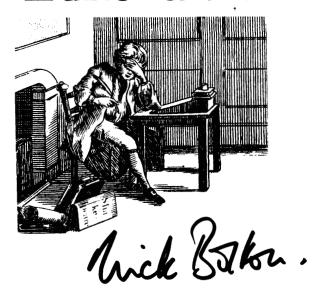

PEGASUS COIN

andrew galloway

This effect requires two coins, one copper, and one silver. A coin is shown in each hand, the silver on the left and the copper on the right. The latter lies at the base of the middle fingers in readiness for finger palming.

- (1) Place the silver coin between the lips, and at the same time turn the right hand so that the fingers are pointing leftwards.
- (2) The left hand now apparently picks up the copper coin from the right. The fingers cover the front edge of the coin towards the spectators, and the thumb at the back edge towards you. The left hand then moves away apparently holding the coin at its fingertips, at the same time the right turns with its back to the spectators concealing the coin in the finger palm position.
- (3) Close the left hand and remove the silver coin from the lips with right thumb and forefinger. Display the coin for a second, then put the right hand behind your back. Once there, turn the hand palm up and bend the thumb and forefinger inwards positioning the silver coin directly above the copper.
- (4) Look at the closed left hand and lower it as if to make a throw upwards.

Editorial....

Starting Pabular has been like pushing a snow-ball down a hill. Some time ago I gave the push and Pabular began to roll; the help and goodwill of very many magicians has kept it moving and, like the snowball, it has become bigger and better as it goes along.

I want to thank all those people who have given help and encouragement—it has meant a great deal. Space does not allow me to name them all here and I hope they will understand. Three people I will mention, however, because in a way they are Pabular.

Firstly, Fred Robinson has taken on the job of Technical Editor with such enthusiasm that I could not have stopped him even if I had wanted to. Apart from being one of the world's top card men Fred knows Magic and Magicians and is universally liked and respected. He has opened doors for Pabular that might otherwise have remained closed.

The layout and design are from the mind of Eric Mason. He is a fine Close-up performer and along the way has invented and become known for the 'Boon' thumb-writer. He is a full-time artist and I think the magazine you will now be reading shows his talents.

Thirdly, Tony Faro, the magical live-wire. As well as talking, performing, eating and drinking magic (probably sleeping it as well, but I don't know), his incredible collection of books, playing cards and prints must be one of the best there is. He has literally let us reach into his magical chests and pull out curiosities from Magic's past.

About Pabular itself I would prefer to say very little (though I could say much). Read the pages that follow and I think you will see what the magazine is about. It has developed itself—in pubs, Chinese restaurants, the Magic Circle

Club Room and on the telephone. It has managed to stir up our enthusiasm and it has been great fun. When we started someone said "You need three months' material in hand." We have much more (thanks to the contributors who have also been caught up in Pabular's web). Someone else said, "You need the names to write for you."

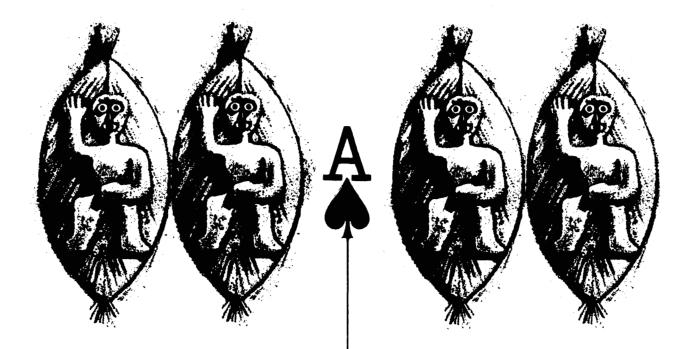

We have the names. I hope you like what they have written and we have produced.

THE PEGASUS COIN

Now look up towards the ceiling, pause, then raise the left hand to its former position.

Look at the left hand again, lower it and for the last time look up at the ceiling. Now make the throw with the left hand opening it and letting the spectators see it empty. But you continue to gaze at the ceiling as if wondering where the coin has gone.

(5) The right thumb and forefinger now release the silver coin allowing it to drop onto the copper with a loud clink. When you hear this, look at the audience, and as silently as possible flip over the coins bringing the copper to the top. All that remains to do is bring the hand from behind the back and show the coins to the spectators.

THE WITCH-DOCTORS Roy Walton

EFFECT:-

The performer tells a story of an explorer who meets a gang of witchdoctors and expresses doubts about their powers. They demonstrate the error of his view-point by shrinking him to a fraction of his original size.

ROUTINE AND PRESENTATION OUTLINE:-

You will need a miniature card about oneeighth the size of a normal one. It should be a spot card and it is preferable that the back matches the pack you are using. An easy way to make the card is to stick a section from the Joker on to the back of the miniature card, and then trim it carefully so that the edges line up exactly. The missing white borders can then be added to the back of the miniature card by using a ruler as a guide and scraping the back design off with a razor blade along the four edges. The card should be kept in your pocket until ready to present the effect, choosing a pocket from which the right hand can easily obtain the small card when required.

When ready to present the effect the right hand secretly obtains the miniature card and grips it between the ends of the second and third fingers, the fingers being curled in towards, and actually touching the palm of the hand. The right hand third finger is against the face of the card. (1)

The main pack is now spread face up between the hands as you look for the duplicate of the miniature card (in my case the Ace of Spades, so I will use this as an example from now on). When you find the AS cut the pack and slip it to the top of the pack and then reassemble the pack in its original order and proceed to locate the four kings and place them one by one as you find them on top of the pack. Throughout the spreading and locating action the second, third and fourth fingers are kept curled in towards the palm. Only the first finger and thumb of the right hand take any active part in the spreading and locating. The pack is turned face down and the order of the cards will be the four kings followed by the AS.

Spread the top five cards and flip them face up as a group on top of the face down pack which is held in the left hand. As they fall onto the pack take a left hand little finger break below them. Again only the right thumb and first finger assist in the action. Square up the cards in the left hand, maintaining the break.

At this stage you start to expand on your patter theme and explain that the AS will represent the explorer and the Kings the four witchdoctors. Bring the right hand over the pack and place the first finger on the far short end of the face up cards and the thumb on the near one. Move the block of cards above the break to the right gripped between the thumb and forefinger but retain the AS in position above the main pack by a light pressure on its face with the left thumb. As the AS falls onto the pack, retake the left little finger break below it. Bring the right hand with its cards back over the pack until it is squarely above the AS. Grip the AS between the right thumb and forefinger but keep it flush with the cards above it at the far short end. A small break is taken above it at the near short end. The left thumb rests lightly on the face king and as the right hand moves its group of cards to the right, including the AS, the king is retained on top of the main pack and a break taken below it with the left little finger.

THE WITCH-DOCTORS

The right hand moves back over the pack with its cards and the left thumb again draws the face king off and onto the main pack, but this time the AS is loaded back onto the pack, under cover of the king being retained. The remaining two kings in the right hand are drawn off in the same action as already described. Thus in showing the AS and four kings you have secretly rearranged their order to read K,K,K, AS,K, from the face. A break is held below the group of five cards with the left little finger.

In line with the preceding actions you have explained that the four Kings represent the four witchdoctors.

Bring the right hand over the pack with the same grip as before and lift up the complete group of cards above the break very slightly at the near short end with the right thumb. Let two bottom cards drop off the thumb and lift the cards above them away from the pack and place them carefully squared, face up on the table. Do not rush this action, remember it should look as if you are lifting up the four kings by breaking them off the pack with the right thumb.

Point to the AS, which is still face up on the pack and say "Remember the AS represents the explorer." Turn the AS face down, really turning two cards as one, an action aided by the left little finger break.

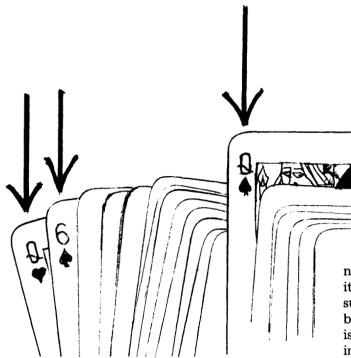

Push the top card of the pack slightly with the left thumb and take it into the right hand at the same time extend the right second and third fingers loading the miniature card beneath it. Place the card face down on the table with the small card secretly hidden under it. Place the main pack aside well out of the way so that an uncluttered appearance is presented for the climax of the trick.

Pick up the packet of kings, turn them face down and use the Alex Elmsley Ghost Count to show that there are apparently four cards. Say, "Remember the Kings represent the witchdoctors."

Place the Kings face down on top of the AS (actually a king) the cards being carefully squared. Continue your story about the explorer doubting the powers of the witchdoctors and challenging them to give a demonstration.

Take the cards from the packet one by one from the top and place them in a face up line on the table as shown — the size of the AS will come as a surprise to the audience.

Finally, say that the explorer looked around and said, "Well, you may be able to make yourselves into giants, but you can't do anything to ME."

SPECTATOR JUAGICIAN

tony faro

BOB'S BUSINESS

for the handkerchief rabbit

Bob Read

This is an addition to the 'rabbit' described in Bert Allerton's book.

Prior to making the rabbit over the right hand, cop a handful of Maltesers (round chocolate sweets) or similar sweets in the left hand.

Make 'Percy' the rabbit, and explain that Percy loves lettuce — the green stuff. Whereupon the 'rabbit' nuzzles into the left outer breast pocket and emerges with a £1 note — the 'green stuff'.

The rabbit eats the note and you pause for applause. Shake the handkerchief out over the left hand, as though trying to retrieve the note. Remove the handkerchief keeping the note in its folds, and expose the Maltesers, or chocolate raisins on the left hand muttering "the dirty little ".

Card effects in which the performer does not handle the cards are comparatively rare. This item from the lecture notes of Tony Faro is superior to most as it can be performed with a borrowed pack, requires no set-up, no counting is involved, and there are no complicated instructions for the spectator to follow.

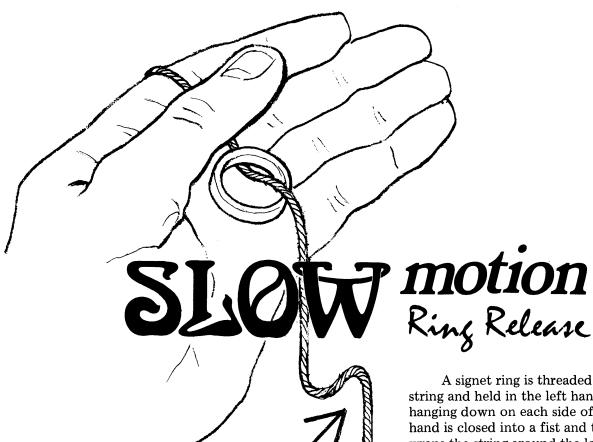

An ideal occasion on which to perform this effect is when you are asked to 'show a trick'. You reply to this request by suggesting that someone shows you one. Hand the pack to a spectator telling him that you will instruct him what to do. He is told to shuffle the pack and fan them out faces towards you. Taking one place it face down on the table, saying he will eventually discover its name in an unusual manner.

The card you take is determined by the first two cards on the left of the fanned out pack. Assuming they are the Queen of Hearts and the Six of Spades you would take the Queen of Spades.

This card is put face down on the table not allowing the spectator to see its face. How you decide which card to take will become clear as the explanation continues.

He is now told to deal the cards singly from the top of the pack face down into a single pile, and to stop dealing whenever he wishes. When he stops dealing request him to put the undealt cards aside, and to make two piles of the others by dealing them singly, again face down. The last card dealt will be the Queen of Hearts and the top card of the other heap will be the Six of Spades.

Inform him that he is now able to find out the name of the card you selected. Ask him to turn the top card of either pile face up. Supposing he turns over the Queen of Hearts tell him he now knows the Value of the card, and if he turns over the top card of the other heap he will also know its suit. When both cards are face up, point to the Queen saying, "If this card is a Queen and this card is a spade (pointing to 6S) what is the name of the card I chose?" When he names the card and not before, turn your card face up. It is preferable that he, and not you actually names the card.

A signet ring is threaded onto a piece of string and held in the left hand with the string hanging down on each side of the hand. The hand is closed into a fist and the right hand wraps the string around the left fist, finally giving both ends of the string to a spectator to hold. The right hand now makes a pass over the left which opens and the ring falls free.

The only requirements are a piece of string about thirty-six inches long and a signet ring or something similar, the heavier the better. The ring is secretly removed from the string and returned to the left fist in the following manner:-

- (1) The left hand is palm up. The string lies across the hand with about sixteen inches hanging down on each side. The ring is threaded on the string and lies on the palm.
- (2) Close the left hand into a fist and bring it to the front of the chest. The right hand now comes under the left fist in a cupped position and grips the string just below the left little finger between the tip of the thumb and the side of the index finger at the point where it joins the palm. Simultaneously the ring is allowed to fall into the cupped fingers of the right hand. The position is now as shown in the illustration.
- (3) The right hand now moves forward under and around the back of the left fist collecting the other end at a point about three inches from the left thumb and then continues to wind both ends round the left fist. The ring is held in the loosely cupped right hand until it finally comes free of the string when it is allowed to drop into the left fist via the thumb opening.
- (4) The two ends are now handed to a spectator, and a magic pass is made over the left fist, which then opens allowing the ring to fall free.

NOTES:- The steal of the ring is akin to the Drop Vanish as done with a coin, but in this case it is an easy move as there is a logical reason for the right hand to encircle the left. The wrap around move also provides good cover for returning the ring to the left fist in a natural manner. As the title suggests all the moves should be made SLOWLY to obtain the maximum effect.

peter kane

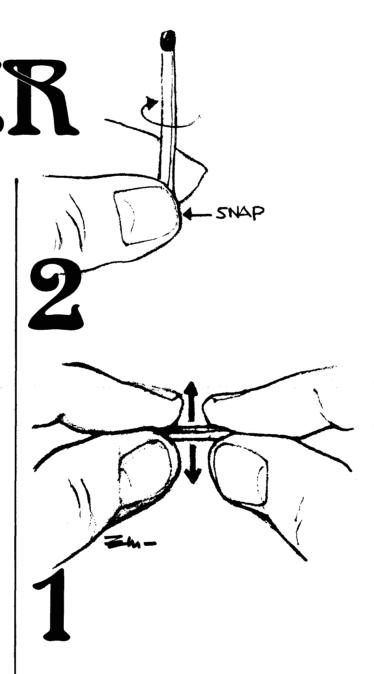

eric mason XTX 7

You will need three boxes of matches. These will give you one box of faked matches if you follow the procedure and preparation. You will be lucky to get more than 15 to 20 perfect fakes from one box of matches.

To make a fake hold the match as in (1) keeping a firm hold with both sets of fingers break the match both ways without parting the fingers keeping the match pressured together. You will hear it snap (if you do not hear a clear snap throw the match away and start again with another one). Break the match in the direction of the arrows, both ways, parting the fingers carefully—if you can see where you have broken it, throw it away. You will notice that some matches either bend or split. Discard these. The match must be broken cleanly; a break made this way will still be held together by its other two sides and will be invisible.

So what do we do with it? The GELLER FELLA is a natural. Talk about how you have found out that friction applied to wood warms it up enough to enable you to interfere with its resonance by giving its timbre (!) a shock wave. Roll the match between the finger and thumb a few times (2) then gently snap the bottom of the match a few times with the nail of the second finger. IT WILL SLOWLY BREAK IN HALF!

Keep a box full with you at all times together with a box of ordinary matches. You could gimmic a box to house fakes and genuines but I haven't troubled. One last thing — you can allow someone to 'do as I do' at the same time and they will match what you do with complete safety.

The PERFECT Fato Shuffle

Not only is the perfect faro shuffle one of the most difficult sleights to do, it is not easy to explain the reason for the varying degrees of success experienced during practice.

There are those who never seem to 'get off the ground', and others who become reasonably proficient but cannot guarantee a perfect faro shuffle. Being unable to discover the cause of these failures they discontinue their efforts. This article is an endeavour to explain the reasons for their lack of success, and to describe a method that enables the objective to be achieved every time.

Using unsuitable cards is the first possible, and probably most frequent reason why British cardmen fail to master the sleight. Aristoc, Tally-ho, Bicycle and Fox Lake brands, all manufactured in the U.S. will give the required results. The last mentioned can usually be obtained from the shops and railway bookstalls of W.H.Smith and Son under the name 'Delesi'.

Another cause of failure could be the condition of the cards. New cards do not 'mesh' readily and require a certain amount of handling to smooth and round off the edges. Cards in poor condition are useless, even cards that are clean in appearance but do not 'square up' easily should be discarded.

Finally, the pack, and both halves when divided, must be kept PERFECTLY SQUARE from the start and during the action until the shuffle is completed. Failure to observe this rule is the direct cause of 'breaks' appearing in the side of one, or both halves, of the pack during the action. They are a sure sign of impending failure. Occasionally it may be possible to rectify this by 'easing out' the interlaced cards and re-weaving them. Any success achieved by this action is purely fortuitous and therefore pointless. The problem will not occur if the cards are held firmly and kept perfectly square. The manner in which the cards are held during various positional changes in the method now to be described make this possible.

With a known card at the twenty-sixth position acting as a key to indicate the centre, square the pack and open it bookwise at the estimated centre about a quarter of an inch (1). Check if the card exposed at the opening is the key, if not, the thumb on the larger portion, this is ascertained by comparison, releases cards singly until the key card is reached. The thumb on the smaller portion collects the released cards, adding them to its packet. At no time during this adjustment must the thumbs relax their hold on the cards, except those released.

With the opening now at the centre, the right hand slides its half forward to the position shown in (2) where it is held with the left hand enabling the right hand to take up a new position as in (3).

It is now the turn of the right hand to hold both halves allowing the left to move to the position as in (4) with the thumb parallel along the side of its half, the corners, not visible in the illustration, fitting snugly at the base of the left thumb and the little finger.

The two halves are now moved apart and the half held in the right hand is tapped a few times on the end of the other half as in (5), varying the point of contact with each tap. This action ensures that the ends are square. Tapping the ends can be phased out gradually as the ability to keep the cards square increases.

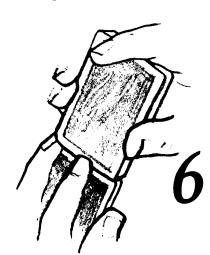

Bring the two halves together with the near corner of the top card of the right hand half making contact with the near corner of the left hand half between the top and second cards

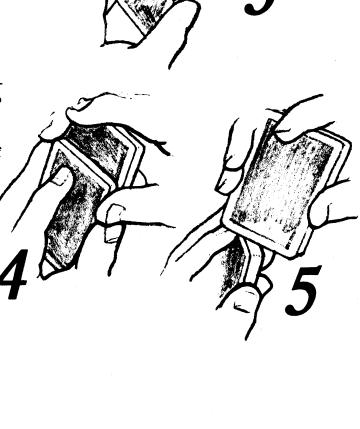

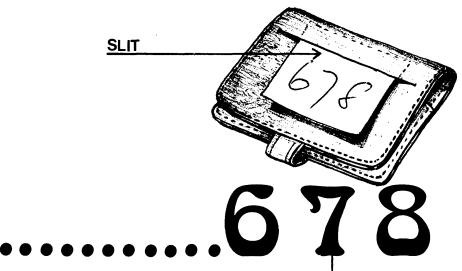

(6) in readiness for an 'out' faro. The left forefinger pressing on the backs of both halves acts as a guide for this action. If the cards are lined up accurately and the following actions carried out simultaneously the cards will start to mesh.

The right hand lightly presses the ends of the two halves together and makes an almost imperceptable lateral movement, during which, the left second finger presses lightly on the outer corner. Immediately the first few cards begin to mesh stop the inward pressure, but continue to bring the remaining cards of both halves into contact when they will continue to interlace completing the perfect faro shuffle. All the pressures during these actions are minimal. The use of force or excessive lateral movements in an attempt to encourage the cards to start interlacing is a major cause of failure as both tend to push the cards 'out of square'.

Having fulfilled the objects of this article there remains only one piece of advice to give if you wish to master the perfect faro shuffle—get weaving.

EFFECT:-

The magician mentalist pulls out his wallet, flips through his bills and asks some person sitting across the room from him to please remove from his wallet a note of any denomination. The performer during this interim has closed his wallet and placed it casually on the table.

"Will you please read the last three digits of the serial number on your note." A number such as 678 is called out, and a puzzled look appears on the face of the mentalist, "You won't believe this, but I had a strange day-dream — a sort of premonition a few weeks ago. I saw you sitting just where you are now holding a £5 note, and I could see quite clearly the last three digits. You know what I did? I scribbled these three digits on the back of a card, and didn't think of it until a moment ago when I opened my wallet and felt as if I had been in this very same place before. You have had a similar experience, haven't you? Will you help me to find the card?" Saying this the performer opens his wallet, reaches in and pulls out all the cards, letters, receipts etc. and throws them haphazardly on the table. The spectator turns over several cards and examines several slips and finally finds a card in the middle of the pile which has the three numbers written on it -678. The performer shakes head and comments that experiences like this happen to him frequently and he has no explanation for it.

barrie richardson

.THE METHOD:-

I have been doing this trick with several variations for six years. The presentation and method explained here seems to be the most direct. You will require a nail writer and a wallet. I use a hip pocket wallet, however, the breast pocket type works even better. The wallet is slit with a razor (see illustration). The card which is to be discovered in the pile of cards is pushed halfway through the slit from the inside. The slit should not be much wider than the card. You will find the wallet makes an excellent base for nail-writing.

The writing takes place right after you hear the number. You lean forward with the wallet in your left hand, the the exposed card next to the body as you say, "You won't believe this, but . . ." The person not knowing what is about to happen and since you are looking him right in the eyes he will never catch you writing. The wallet is casually placed on the table and you continue with the story.

The writing need not be too neat. This is covered by the patter. I suggest you use a nail writer that leaves a dark pencil mark. Personally I use a small pencil stub glued to a metal band. The 'Boon' type also leaves a dark line.

The wallet should be flipped open casually and the contents removed in an unhurried manner. You are not doing a TRICK but ACTING out a story. The card is easily pulled back into the wallet as the contents are being removed, and just as easily mixed with them as they are spread on the table, Instead of using a blank card it is a good ruse to use a train ticket, hat check or anything similar which may normally be found in a wallet.

There it is. Nothing particularly new in principle, but the presentation may appeal to performers who enjoy acting.

Mike Skinner, winner of the Magic Castle Close-up Performer of the Year award visited our shores recently breaking his journey en route for the Monte Carlo Convention. He lectured to some of us at Ken Brookes Magic Place and gave us two hours of practical magic, supert'y performed. We don't have enough space to list all the effects — even if we could remember them — but one plum stands out: Edward Victor's Eleven Card Trick. We had not seen it performed before. If you entertain laymen with cards this one is a winner. Among the card sleights a flourish-type false count aroused considerable interest. To sum up: a good evening by a very talented performer.

NEVER FORGOTTEN . . .

It is appropriate that the first issue of Pabular starts with an acknowledgement to the man who gave so much pleasure to lovers of Close-up magic for so many years: Johnny Ramsay. The first trick in this issue, 'The Pegasus Coin' by Andrew Galloway, is a simple coin vanish — but it contains a valuable lesson on how to vanish something MAGICALLY. Andrew, a friend of the late J.R. and author of 'The Ramsay Legend', is perhaps the only person who fully understands the great man's magic. All Johnny Ramsay's effects have been published but we will be saying more about his methods in a future issue.

THANK YOU PETER KANE . . .

AND BAYARD GRIMSHAW

Peter Kane's 'Slow Motion Ring Release' first appeared in the IBM British Ring Budget, May 1965. Thanks to Bayard Grimshaw for giving permission for it to appear in our pages.

THE MAGAZINES - CLOSE-UP

We especially liked 'The Spectator Peek Force' by Jack Avis in the New Pentagram. In the June issue of the same magazine are two action palms by the same author. Close-uppers reading a recent Genii should not have missed a neat use for the perfect faro in which odd things happen to a name stamped on the side of the pack. For the coin man a couple of copper silver effects — one by Way Wong and the other by Barry Price. The latter also contributes a startling production of an ash tray or dinner plate when seated at a table.

IN PRINT SOON . . .

"Entertaining with ESP" by Tony 'Doc' Shiels should be out in November — and if we know him at all (and we do) it should be good. His approach to mental magic is different from that of the average performer — you will be finding out some of the reasons why when Pabular number two drops through your letter box.

And so what about next month? Ed Marlo gives us a fine routine called 'Dribble Coincidence' and Ted Danson has a new method for doing a just chance type routine. There is also a neat mental routine by Stanton Carlisle and an article by Tony 'Doc' Shiels that should set you thinking. Plus quite a lot more but we don't want to give it all away - just enough to tempt you. While we are talking about 'Pabular' (and why not?) we'd like to hear from YOU. If you like what we are doing write and tell us - we'll love it. If you don't like it let us know and please give us any helpful suggestions you may have. Letters are coming in already wishing us luck and we really appreciate them — perhaps next month we'll bring out some of the things they say.

The Page boy speaks....

REFLECTIONS IN A BLOODSHOT EYE

The above heading is no joke. If I may steal a line from Bob Orben, I now have, after a short visit to the USA, patriotic eyes, they're Blue, with Red Whites. The S.A.M. Convention in Boston was a four (or five ???) day affair, twentyfour hours a day. The great thing about Boston was that everyone seemed to be there, Vernon, Slydini, Kaps, Thompson, Neilson etc. etc. Goshman, Bongo, Salisse, Flosso, etc. etc.

In terms of close up, the most interesting was David Roth and Del Ray, mainly because I hadn't seen either of them before. Roth does things with coins which are just that little bit different. Don't ask me to describe what he did, several items are linked together in such a way as to defy a clean cut description afterwards, and come to think of it, I'm not too sure that that's a good thing. Suffice to say, he works very well, clean as a whistle, is on the way to becoming very original and will fool the pants off you.

The Pageboy Speaks

Del Ray is a different proposition. A pro of many years standing, he knows exactly what he's doing, and why. Apart from being an excellent cardman Del has a number of novelties which really have to be seen to be believed. A tiny bird which answers questions etc., a mouse which finds selected cards and obeys his commands and last but not least a pair of dice which will do ANYTHING. You throw them and whatever two numbers you ask for will turn up.

From Boston, a quick dash to New York to catch the MAGIC SHOW starring Doug Henning. This is a must for every magic nut. No close up, but you have just GOT TO SEE IT.

On to Los Angeles and of course, the Magic Castle. The two gentlemen performing in the Close Up Gallery were Jules Leniere (I hope the spelling is right) who performed the Flying Eagles a transposition coin effect and a couple of card items. Very competent and very direct. The other close up man was Danny Rouser, to whom I award top marks for one of the most unusual card effects I've ever seen. After several attempts to find a selected card, each one more humourous than its predeccesor, he eventually produces a goldfish bowl, with a live goldfish swimming around in it and the selected card standing upright in the centre of the bowl.

While in Hollywood I stayed with a very good friend of mine, Mrs Nancy Caldwell, with whom I am secretly in love. Nancy has a husband, one Mike Caldwell, who doesn't do close up, because he has never been able to get close up to anyone. Mike suggested we take a trip to Las Vegas for a couple of days, which proves he'll do anything to get me away from Nancy. Las Vegas, it's all you have read about it, and more. We saw several shows with magicians, but as this is Pabular, we'll stick to the close up men. I saw two. Daniele, a barman in the Desert Inn. French, tall, handsome, charming, impeccably dressed, in fact, the guy looks like a film star. He did two tricks for me, a Jack Avis dice routine called (I think) POKER POT, and a version of Kaps' Floating Cork using a seahorse and actually has it dance on the spectator's hand.

I'll remember Las Vegas for a long long time.

P.S. I haven't mentioned Johnny Paul. We'll save it for next time.

PATRICK PAGE

First Time Advertised - "CLIPSATION"

A completely new effect for the Close-up performer, using a brand new principle.

EFFECT: A paper clip is shown (Jumbo Size for greater visibility) and the performer explains that it has been endowed with the strange powers of the Phoenix Bird. The clip is pulled completely out of shape so that it becomes just a piece of twisted metal.

Continuing the story of its Phoenix like characteristics, the twisted piece of metal is dropped into an empty envelope which is then sealed.

The envelope is set alight and whilst still burning, dropped onto an empty ashtray.

When it has burned away, the performer pushes away the ashes and lying within them is the paperclip EXACTLY AS IT WAS BEFORE BEING TWISTED OUT OF SHAPE.

NOTE THE FOLLOWING STRONG FEATURES \cdot There is no switch of paper clip \cdot Envelope is unprepared \cdot No skill needed — read the instructions and do the trick \cdot Everything can be examined.

CLIPSATION IS A SENSATION that you cannot afford to miss!

Price £2.00

US $6.00

L DAVENPORT & CO 51 Gt Russell St. London WC1. 01-405 8524

Old and unusual magic wands required by collector.

Peter Batkin, 79 Wembley Park Drive, Wembley, Middx.

Magical apparatus made to order. Fred Snook, Dartington House, Senior Street, London W2.

Thanks to Pepys, a fifteen minute act with props found in any home or pub. The tricks include the production of a full bottle of wine from a handkerchief. Complete with patter (over 100 one liners) 60 pages, 50 photos. Just a few left. Direct from Bob Read, 32 Regal Way, Kenton. Middx. £2.50 post free.

Magic books by post, 21 Ravenhill Road, Lower Knowle, Bristol BS3 5BN. Lists 10p refundable

NOTE TO MICKY HADES

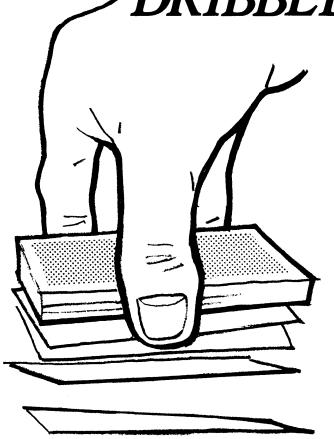

Micky H we ain't forgot, we're printing now upon your Spot. All the things you want to say we'll put in here another day.

Ge Magazine of Close-up Magic

Vol.1 №2 Oct.1974

DRIBBLE COINCIDENCE

edwârd marlo EFFECT:-

Taking two decks, which have been shuffled and cut, the cardician holds one in each hand, from above by the ends, about a foot or more above the table. He dribbles the cards onto the table as he requests a spectator to call "Stop." Turning the portions he has remaining in his hands the face card of each is the same. This same procedure is then repeated with two selected cards, one from each deck, with spectator calling "Stop" when the face cards of each remaining portion are shown to be the selections. For the climax it seems the performer has missed. However, on turning over the top cards of each tabled half it is found they match in suit and value.

The above effect came about years ago when strictly by chance it happened to work. For awhile, that is, the way I did it, taking a chance I would be lucky. More often it just didn't happen, therefore I started placing mate cards at duplicate positions in each deck, then using an estimated dribble hoped it would come out the same at each point. Again, while the percentage of success increased, it did not work out much too often. Then crimps were tried and while this worked out on one deck at a time it did not assure this for both decks at the same time which is what makes the effect strong. Later, short cards and long cards were experimented with and here again it was only a sometime thing. Finally, I hit upon a solution that made the effect work every time, thus making it practical to the point that a routine was formed to get the most out of the effect, and at the same time indirectly prove, to a layman or a magician, that what you performed was not just chance, or luck. The secret is a thick card, or two cards rubber cemented together. Make two such cards, one from each deck, making sure that the face of each is identical. For example the 7S can be the face card of each thick card. Naturally you will make one for a Red deck and one for a Blue deck. In order to have all the values you will of course, cement jokers on to the backs of the 7S cards. You will find that the thick cards can be anywhere in either deck, yet by letting them riffle off the bottom (here both right and left first fingers press down onto the top of each deck as left and right second finger tips and thumbs in the usual springing action let cards escape from between the fingers and thumbs which hold the ends of each deck) you will encounter a sudden stop as the thick cards fall off the bottom onto the tabled portions. It will make no difference if the positions of these thick cards differ from each other. Practise so that you will get a fairly soft stop as compared to a sudden 'plop' sound. This will mostly be how much downward pressure you exert with the curled first fingers on top of each deck. Once you get the feel you can then set-up for the following routine:-

- 1. Set up each deck, from face to top, with a 10C at the face of each deck. Second from the face or bottom are the thick cards. In this example both showing a 7C. This is a simple and easy set-up to make during the course of other effects in which you may be using the thick card as a locator.
- 2. Riffle shuffle each deck keeping the two bottom cards of each intact. If you prefer an Overhand Shuffle, merely hold back, with the left fingers, the bottom few cards as you go into

- the shuffle. With both decks tabled ask a spectator to cut the deck and complete the cut. Try to get him to cut about half or less so that the thick cards become more or less centralized at least on this phase of the effect.
- 3. Pick up one deck in each hand from above by the ends. Dribble off onto the table each deck as you say, "When I do this I want you to call 'stop'." By this time both decks should have been completely dribbled off since this first time it actually is dribbled not sprung. This ensures no 'stopping points' as you pass the thick cards. It also gives you a sense just where each thick card lies.
- 4. Square each deck again taking them as before in order that spectator may call 'stop' as you dribble the decks onto the table. This time, however, you RIFFLE off or sort of spring the cards of each deck as they fall onto the table. There is little in the way of timing as you will find the spectator will say "Stop" fairly soon since he doesn't want you to run out of cards. In fact, if he stalls and you have passed your thick card, then just let all the remaining cards riffle off, practically dropping them onto the table. Look at him and say, "One more time." Resquare each deck and get set to riffle off the cards as before. This time he is sure to stop you just as the thick card falls onto the table and the riffle off just stops automatically.
- 5. At this point I have debated whether it is better to turn both hands and disclose the face of each card at the same time, or to first turn one hand palm up, call attention to the card stopped at, then turn the other hand to show the coincidence. Try it both ways, then use the way that gets the best reaction for you.

- 6. You have concluded the first phase. The cards from your hands are placed face down onto the dribbled cards. Next square up each deck and table it in front of yourself for a riffle shuffle. Lightly riffle upwards with either right or left thumb until you feel the thick card go past. Cut off the cards above the thick card to either left or right and riffle shuffle leaving the thick card on top. Repeat with the other deck. Thus you have a thick card on top of each deck.
- 7. You will now go into the second phase dealing with selected cards. You must get the selections controlled so they go on top of the thick cards. There are many ways to do this and here is only one way. Cut each deck so the thick cards go into the centre of the decks. Pick up one deck and spread it between both hands as you request a card to be selected. After it is removed you continue spreading the cards until the left fingertips and thumb can feel the thick card. Break the deck at this point, holding a SPREAD of cards in each hand rather than two squared halves, so that the selection goes BELOW the thick card. Square up and place this deck aside for the moment. Repeat the above selection and return with the other deck.
- 8. You have a thick card ABOVE each selection. Pick up the deck with the first selection. Table it in front of yourself for a tabled riffle shuffle. Locate the thick card, as already explained in Step 6, then riffle shuffle leaving the thick card and selection on top. Pick up the deck and in an Overhand Shuffle run off the thick card, and the selection followed by shuffling off the rest of the deck. The thick card is now on the bottom with the selected card ABOVE it. Table the deck and have spectator cut it completing the cut. Repeat the same control sequence with the other deck. The thick cards are now in the centre of the deck and above them each selection.
- 9. Here repeat the dribble procedure as in the first phase, except in this case, since one spectator may cut shallow, and the other deeper, you may find that the packets remaining in your selection may differ greatly from each other. Point this up by calling attention to this fact. Somehow it makes an impression and adds to the mystery. Eventually disclose the first spectator's card and then the second spectator's card. Dribble off the cards onto their respective halves. The thick cards are somewhere in the deck and you are all set for the third phase.

- 10. Try and get a spectator who Overhand Shuffles a deck. In this case you can hand him a deck telling him to freely shuffle. Take the deck and merely table it. Repeat with the other deck. In the event you may be apprehensive about this part, then you Overhand Shuffle. Make it clear you are not controlling any card or cards but do not say this. In fact, if you do an Overhand Shuffle, then hand it to a spectator saying, "Here, you shuffle it in case you don't trust me." Chances are he will Overhand Shuffle. If he starts to table it quickly say, "No, shuffle it." At the same time indicating with your hands an Overhand Shuffle. As a rule they will follow suit as most card men know.
- 11. Take a deck in the left hand and lightly riffle upwards with your right thumb to ascertain the position of the thick card. It it's fairly near the centre leave it there. If not, give a casual cut to centralize it. Repeat with the other deck. All that remains is to go through the dribble procedure as already detailed. This time, when both hands are turned over the chances are that you will not have a coincidence, if you do, stop right there. (This can happen if you managed to get mates above each thick card and take a chance that the cards will remain together during the spectator's Overhand Shuffle.) In this case you say, "No, not here, but here," as place the cards in hand aside and turn the top cards of each tabled portion to reveal the coincidence. The routine is now ended, but your use of the thick card need not since it makes an excellent locator.

The Page boy speaks

Well now, where were we? Yes, Johnny Paul. Like most British readers of magical magazines I had preconceived ideas and notions of Johnny Paul. I had read in the now defunct Sphinx Magazine an article, complete with photographs, describing his beginnings in the magic game, his years behind a bar in Chicago, the gags, the stunts, the zany ideas he would come up with to please the paying customers, but nothing I had read or heard about this man prepared me for my first and so far, only, meeting with Mr. Paul. A big man, (to me, everyone is big) a handsome man, white hair, pink complexion, steel-rimmed spectacles, and a charming (and disarming) personality.

There I was, stuffing coins into the mouth of a one armed bandit in the Showboat, Las Vegas, when Mike Caldwell (that's the one who doesn't do close up, but has a wife I'd like to) walks in from another room and tells me there's someone he'd like me to meet. As I followed his footsteps with visions of Vegas showgirls going through my mind, I suddenly come face to face with this man who looked like a successful business man. How right I was. He knows his business better than anyone I know. "Meet Johnny Paul", says Mike.

After a few pleasantries, he asked if he could borrow a bill and at that moment I realised that Mike had set me up. For those of you who have never read a description of Johnny Paul's bill trick, may I say that he does practically everything it's possible to do with a bill. He tears it up, he restores it, it gets bigger, it gets smaller, it stretches, it jumps off the floor, the only thing that didn't happen was that President Jackson's picture didn't produce a dove, and if it had, I wouldn't have been surprised one little bit. After the bill trick, cards. The only way to describe Johnny Paul doing card tricks is to say. incredible skill and unbelievable misdirection. When you watch a man like this and try to describe it later you suddenly realise just how limited your vocabulary is. (I know that YOU realised it after you read my last article). He doesn't actually do tricks, they happen. He will top change at the drop of a hat, steal a card thirty seconds after you think he has it, then discover that he didn't, but has, when you know he couldn't have.

Let me explain it like this. After kicking a deck of cards around for ten minutes or so, he had me select a card, replace it, after which he leaned the deck against a glass, and the card rose out of the deck. I KNOW it was a Devano deck and I KNOW I had shuffled the deck previously, therefore I KNOW he must have switched the deck on me, but I swear to God that when I saw that card rise all I could say to myself was WHEN?????? That's Johnny Paul.

I have now run out of space, but before I do, may I mention that the British Ring IBM Convention has just finished. No doubt you will read all about it elsewhere in this offcolour, sorry, offwhite publication but I wonder if mention will be made of a trick which I didn't see anyone perform but consider to be one of the highlights of the Convention, wherein a picture of a selected appears on a photograph on a Magic Club membership card, plus plus, plus. It's a good, good, good, good.

When you are ready to perform and nobody except you knows it you have two options. One is to wait and see if you are asked to do something; the other is to take the initiative and lead into it yourself. Bearing in mind we're not all Slydinis or Vernons the former choice can sometimes take quite a while . . . So what you need is an icebreaker

Which is what it says — something to break the ice in company and make it possible for you to lead into your magic and bamboozle the pants off them. Here is a good one from Pabular's Fred Robinson who works it to perfection. Cunningly steer the conversation to the subject of predicting the future, saying that you can sometimes predict human behaviour. As you speak take out a packet of tipped cigarettes, and putting one cigarette on the table you write a prediction on one side of the pack not allowing anyone to see what you write. Place it face down on the middle of the table, or bar, mentioning that you feel you have written about something soon to happen. Pick up the single cigarette and feel about in your pocket for matches or a lighter, which you fail to find. Catch the eye of someone who smokes and ask for a light. When he is ready you put the wrong end of the tipped cigarette between your lips keeping your eyes off it as you do so. Lean towards the proffered flame as if to light up. At this point someone is sure to point out your absent-mindedness.

Say nothing, but reach over and turn over the cigarette packet to show your prediction of two words: "I KNOW".

ted danson GIVE ME A RING...

"There is a destiny that shapes our ends"
— or so the Poet tells — but is it Fate, Luck or just Chance? An interesting question to which we'll try and find an answer. Three envelopes each containing a treasury note, only one of which is genuine. Two are counterfeit notes — play money. "Madam, Sir, given a choice which will it be — fate, luck or chance — the decision is yours etc. . .etc. . ." When opened the envelopes chosen by two members of the audience are found to contain imitation banknotes, whereas that of the magician contains the genuine one.

The plot will be familiar to you, not so I hope the method! Three envelopes each containing an imitation banknote are sealed to within an inch of their right-hand corners (to facilitate opening) and are boldly marked FATE, LUCK, and CHANCE respectively on the address sides. The genuine note, assuming pound or dollar size, is folded once lengthwise and then concertina pleated to fit snugly underneath a loose-fitting finger ring worn on the third finger of the left hand. Experiment will determine the size of ring to be used, remembering that it has still to be worn after the note is removed. In practice you will find the note is adequately concealed by the natural curl of the fingers, thus permitting a considerable freedom of handling, allowing the envelopes to be spread fan-wise at the fingertips and freely passed from hand to hand during the course of your patter.

Immediately before opening, the magician's envelope is held at about the centre and wedged between the note and underside of finger. To reveal note, thumb of right hand tears open flap and in one continuous movement second finger is inserted inside envelope, whilst first finger and thumb move down the outside grasping the note (see illustration) and immediately it is clear of the ring, fingers and thumbs of both hands start to unfold it, using the cover provided by the partially crumpled envelope to prevent the audience seeing the note in its tightly folded state. When fully opened, note is displayed at the fingertips, and the envelope casually tossed to one side.

Here we offer a close-up effect which can be presented equally well by the magical entertainer or the mentalist.

The effect, briefly described, is that four pay envelopes are exhibited and placed on the table. Each is already sealed and the only noticeable difference between them is a coloured paper-gummed seal affixed to each, and each is of a different colour.

Three spectators who sit around a table with the performer are given the choice of the numbers 1, 2, 3 or 4. They may each choose a different number but the one remaining will be the performer's. There is no force.

Once the spectators have made their final choice of their numbers, having been given the opportunity to change their minds in the time-honoured manner, the performer shows four cards bearing the numbers 1, 2, 3 and 4 respectively. The number which has been chosen by each spectator is laid before him, and the remaining card of whatever number is placed in front of the performer.

Each spectator in turn, (say, clock-wise around the table) is asked to turn his card over and on the reverse is a coloured seal identical with one of the envelopes. He takes the envelope with the same coloured seal that his number card duplicates. All three have an envelope and open them in turn to find, as one possible denouement, 'Hard Luck' messages. Finally, the performer's envelope is opened, either by the performer or a spectator, and is found to contain a five pound note.

Alternatively, a chosen card turns up in the performer's envelope. We have no doubt that the reader will find sundry other uses for this 'non-force' force.

The 'mechanics' are simple as no sleight of hand or clever moves of any kind are required.

You will require a number of different coloured gummed stickers, four envelopes, and sixteen blank faced playing cards. On the envelopes different coloured stickers are attached, say red, blue, yellow and green. In one of the envelopes put the 'fiver', it could be anyone, but we will assume it is the one with the green sticker attached. Consolation messages are inserted in the other three, and all four are sealed.

Divide the playing cards into four sets of four, numbering each set with a single digit one to four on the blank face. Coloured stickers similar to those used on the envelopes are stuck on the backs of the playing cards as follows:-

- Set 1: No.1 Green No.2 Red No.3 Yellow — No.4 Blue
- Set 2: No.1 Red No. 2 Green No.3 Yellow — No.4 Blue
- Set 3: No.1 Red No.2 Yellow No.3 Green — No.4 Blue
- Set 4: No.1 Red No.2 Yellow No.3 Blue — No.4 Green

Sets 1 and 2 go into the inside right jacket pocket divided by a piece of post-card larger than the cards to prevent a mix-up. Sets 3 and 4 go into the inner left jacket are similarly kept apart.

It goes without saying that whatever number the performer is left with after the spectators have made their choice he removes the corresponding set number from his pocket, e.g. if they have chosen No's 1, 2 and 4 he removes his No.2 set.

By placement as we have indicated, this is an almost instantaneous action and gives no reason for suspicion.

As in all effects of this nature, the 'talk' IS the effect. It is therefore up to the reader to interpret his 'timing' to either indicate that the cards were in evidence beforehand or to deliberately state, 'I have some numbered cards in my pocket' and take them out quite openly. This is a matter for personal decision the outcome being the same in any case.

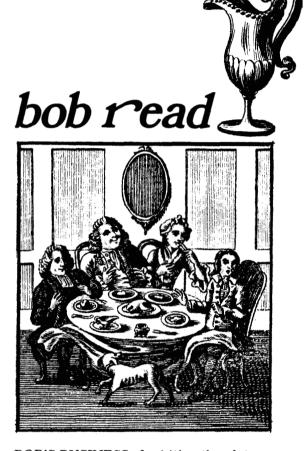

Quite obviously, by preparing the colours on the backs of the numbered cards in the manner suggested and then taking the correct set, no memory work as such is called for. It also follows that no matter what colour stickers appear on the backs of the spectators numbered cards, the performer must of course, triumph.

We would suggest the 'patter line' be along the lines of colour-psychology, hence the title, and the performer can stress, at his option, to have placed the colours on both especially for this entertainment due to some 'premonition' or whatever that indicated to him the need to place the fiver in the yellow envelope and to fix its twin to the numbered card . . . thus indicating that he knew in advance which number he would be left with.

If the reader really wishes to come on strong by doing exactly the same thing he can claim, should he wish, that this meant he knew which THREE NUMBERS WOULD BE CHOSEN.

Having never had any problems arising from performing this effect as described, I see no real reason to alter it, but depending on the number of pockets available, one can place set one and two in the right and left jacket pockets, and sets three and four in the trouser pockets.

Purists may feel that the sets should be kept in small photographic wallets or even pay envelopes so that they seem to be a set carried for a particular purpose. If the idea interests the reader, he may choose for himself. No Force.

BOB'S BUSINESS for biting the plate

Remember the old gag with the coin under the plate? It's snapped against the plate as you pretend to take a bite.

Well, the variation is to do the same thing with a glass of beer.

The coin is clipped to the side of the glass with the right second and third fingers. It is held away from the glass with the forefinger, and when released it snaps against the side of the glass. This sounds exactly as though you have bitten a piece from the edge of the glass.

This is startling enough, but an addition that really makes the stunt is this.

Have a few ice cubes in the beer to start with. Cop a mouthful of these before you pull the stunt, click the coin, and when all eyes are focussed on the glass, which is now at your mouth, slowly remove the slivers of 'glass' (really ice) from your lips.

This is an old stunt buried in a magazine — I can't recall which, and published I seem to remember before 1920.

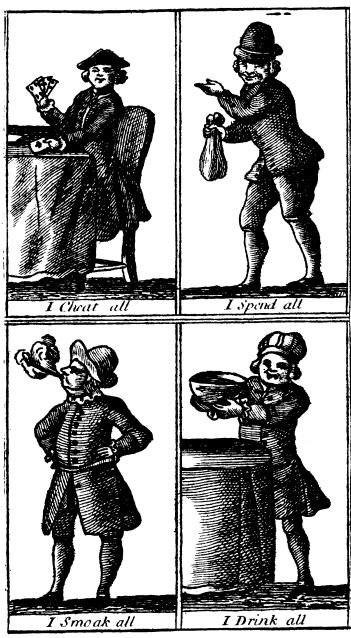

tony 'Doc' Shiels THE CASE FOR GOZENAGE

'What strange things are brought to passe by naturall magicke' (Reginald Scot).

I am an unforgivably wicked man, in the eyes of many 'magicians', because I am far too fond of magic. The exploits of someone like, say, Uri Geller are, to me, far more entertaining and enjoyable than the embarrassing posturings of the average 'Great Bummo' and his peachy-poodles or dayglo-dyed doves. When it come to books, I would regard something like 'SUPER-NATURE', by Lyall Watson, as being worth at least a dozen publications of the 'FARO SHUFFLES ARE GOOD FOR YOU' kind . . . and Blatty's 'THE EXORCIST' is, in my opinion, vastly superior to any piece of literature, so far written, which features magic-as-illusion.

Because I am so fond of magic, I like people to believe in it, to respect it, even to be slightly frightened by it; so I tend towards mentalism rather than 'straight' conjuring . . . and applaud, with affection, the crazy, defensive morality of someone like Madame Moyer, in the 'Memoirs' of Dan Mannix, when she says: 'Those debunkers who claim all mind readers are lazy crooks ought to see the time we've spent steaming open envelopes, listening in for hours on party lines, and digging in garbage heaps for old letters.' Conversely, I would offer a loud raspberry and the sign of the horns to such selfrighteous witch-hunters as James Randi and William Rauscher who consider it 'ethical' (for a few pieces of silver) to shout from the rooftops that mentalists are fakes and liars.

People should be given their money'sworth, and a person is more likely to be satisfied by something in which he or she has a certain amount of faith . . . especially if the thing is personalized. Because of this, a fairground fortune-teller would appear to give better value, in terms of pure mystical enjoyment, than the ubiquitous feather-flower merchant. However, most of our magical 'brotherhood' would put cold-readers and working 'seers' in the same pigeon-hole as pickpockets and highwaymen. The reason being that most 'magicians' are, basically, anti-magic.

Magic is the art of producing surprising effects, either (according to my dictionary) 'by means of the occult powers of nature, or by the application of natural causes, whose operation is secret'. Given a quick reading, that appears like a pair of separate and essentially different definitions; the first applying solely to the fairytale wizard-figure, and the second to the show. biz trickster. But the word, 'occult', means 'secret', and 'nature' means that which is natural; so we have a single definition of magic, with just one all-important meaning: the art of producing surprising effects by secret means. To hell with 'method', 'effect' is everything. That particular homily has been repeated time and again, over the years, by some of the wisest men in the business . . . Ted Annemann, Bruce Elliott, Al Koran, and many more. Perhaps repetition has blunted its power in the minds of many 'magicians'. This would seem to be so, because, even though it contains the true essence of magical philosophy, its message is constantly and boringly ignored.

A magical effect is surprising because it plays havoc with the average spectator's ideas of what is logically possible. In much the same way that recent scientific discoveries have dealt a body-blow to Newtonian physics, magic knocks the stuffing out of 'safe' normality. The 'performer' who is constantly reassuring his audience that 'it's only a simple trick', whilst insulting everyones intelligence with his boringly 'fun-packed' grotesquery, should be stripped of the title, 'magician', and re-named 'Twit', or something similar but stronger. Personally, I think that most of the characters who call themselves magicians are light-years away from the real thing.

Because I have this terrible liking for magic, any list of my favourite modern wonder-workers would include such assorted names as Ray Harryhausen, Herbie Brennan, Paul Huson, Georges Franju, Israel Regardie, Immanuel Velikovsky . . . and others of their kind; names which mean little or nothing to most dedicated take-a-cardsters.

I love the idea of a mysterious mountain being made out of a mundane mole-hill, and I sincerely believe that the little old lady who sees signs and portents in the damp tea-leaves at the bottom of her cup is a more magical personality than the dinner-suited, amateur 'entertainer', with his gaudy props and gag-book patter. The old lady is an authentic part of the age-old thaumaturgical tradition, but the fellow with the conjuring tricks is just another third-rate 'turn'.

If you want to understand the true nature of the magician, study the tarot card that bears his name. He is Mercury . . . Hermes and huckster in one . . . Arlecchino . . . mountebank and magus . . . manipulating the cups and balls in a way that demands more than mere sleight of hand. He is the master of surprises, the archetypal cozener and spirit of pure sorcery . . . the MAGICIAN.

On the 38th Annual IBM Convention

For Close-up magicians the convention began when they reached Hastings and stepped out of their cars or trains (for many it probably began even before that.) In a hotel bedroom, bar, pub or in the street it doesn't matter: the action begins.

Pabular was there and through a haze of cigarette smoke and alcohol at the Queens Hotel we saw some really good Close-up magic. Gala show headliner John Calvert showed he could hold his own with the best at close-up too, doing superb sleeving whilst stealing a spectator's wristwatch. Beautifully done, leaving the helper absolutely clue-less. It's good to have the big names mixing with the rest and it was obvious that both he and us enjoyed it. Whenever the Dutch boys are around there's something new. Bob Driebeck took our photo with a lot of funny business that we can't describe for space reasons. Tony (Anverdis' assistant) showed a two pack effect in which he and spectator pushed a card each out of their cards and they matched. Then he did it again. And then again, with Tony pushing his card out first. This caused a lot of head scratching. We think a pack switch must have been there somewhere but it was a wonderfully clean routine with a knock-out effect. He also showed a 'prediction' with a 1 inch die and box - whichever way you put the die in the box it lifts out with a predicted number on top (- not the one you put in!). No moves, no hurry, no switch and you can examine everything. Frans Biemans suspended a light bulb in a handkerchief which lit up over a chosen card and only went out when the invisible wire was 'cut'.Peter Kane stretched a Queen of Clubs placed crossways between two other cards. David Wright has been reading Sex and the Single Magician' and has devised a couple of effects which he has given to Pabular — if we can get them past the censor. Ken Hawes has not been the same since he saw Andy Galloway perform some time ago and has analysed some of the reasons why Ramsay was successful. If he comes on like this he will really have something of value for both himself and us who enjoy being deceived. Bob Ostin is good company and is full of ideas (often about tricks we are doing).

We've probably left some good names outwe're writing immediately after the event and future thoughts may remind us of some important things we saw. We'll leave the last mention to Frank Giles who had a beatiful method of performing the Coins through Table - without a table! He does it on any board or menu card standing up, surrounded. Great.

CLOSE-UP COMPETITION

The Close-up Competition was watched by a full house - showing how popular this branch of magic has become. The standard in general was good and those there will not have been disappointed. Competition winner was Christopher Payne with a smooth flowing act with plenty of variation in both effect and method. Very good. Jean Fiahlo came second with the most novel act of the competition (and dare we say it - of the whole convention.) 4 discs placed at each corner of the table move around without effort on the part of the performer. Finally they still do it despite one being nailed to the table! It brought the house down. Third was Dave Carre with smooth routines requiring above average skill. The apparent ease with which he did them made his act a real pleasure to watch. Also taking part were Phil Wye, Mike Cassidy and Mike Gancia - the latter unfortunately exceeding his time at one table and spoiling his chances. Francis Haxton, Peter Scarlett and Tony Shelley filled in (if that is the expression to use) and helped make this event one of the best of the Convention. We congratulate Don Lees and his helpers.

From the dealers at the Convention came so many close-up items that we'll have to mention just a few that stood out to us. RAR Magic have Will Dexter's Ultimate Prediction Wallet again - it was previously unobtainable. Davenports showed 'Clipsation': the method is as intriguing as the effect - or are they both the same? Kovari is selling Bruno's Needle Trick - a clean method worth considering if you want to do this trick. Ken Brooke told us his new version of the Wild Card (from Hans Trixer) had sold out (and we are not surprised - with KB behind a good trick it must sell!) Of course there was more - but space in this column seems to be decreasing in size as we write.

To sum up: a really good Convention.

Reaction to Pabular

Space is our enemy: we haven't room to give details of comments about Pabular. They are a mixed bag — happily mostly good. We've been told we'll take our place amongst the aristocrats of magical publications (which we liked reading) and a brief revue in 'Abra' implies we are typescript sheets (which we are not and didn't like reading). One final point: Pabular No1 has sold out and we are having to reprint — there has therefore had to be a short delay for some subscribers. Please accept our apologies.

Old and unusual magic wands required by collector.

Peter Batkin, 79 Wembley Park Drive, Wembley, Middx.

Magical apparatus made to order. Fred Snook, 47 Dartington House, Senior Street, London W2.

Thanks to Pepys, a fifteen minute act with props found in any home or pub. The tricks include the production of a full bottle of wine from a handkerchief. Complete with patter (over 100 one liners) 60 pages, 50 photos. Just a few left. Direct from Bob Read, 32 Regal Way, Kenton. Middx. £2.50 post free.

Magic books by post, 21 Ravenhill Road, Lower Knowle, Bristol BS3 5BN. Lists 10p refundable.

Close-up kit from Hollywood's Magic Castle includes Houdini Tumblers postpaid, $5 (two pounds). Stan Blumenthal, 14608 Greenleaf, Sherman Oaks, California 91403.

MAGIC INIT INIT

THE INTERNATIONAL MAGAZINE

Now in its 3rd year.

MAKE SURE EACH ISSUE IS SENT TO YOU REGULARLY. SEND TODAY ONLY £1.50 ($4.00) FOR ONE YEAR (SIX) ISSUES SENT POST FREE TO ANYWHERE IN THE WORLD.

32, glossy pages in each issue THE INTERNATIONAL MAGIC STUDIO,

(RON MACMILLAN)

89 CLERKENWELL ROAD,
HOLBORN, LONDON E.C.1.

CASCADE

First Time Advertised

This is an extremely strong close-up item with cards, that has been widely acclaimed by all magicians to whom it has been demonstrated.

Briefly, the effect is that four cards keep magically turning face up and face down and then one of them jumps from your pocket back into the packet. These preliminaries are followed by a shock climax in which

EACH OF THE FOUR CARDS CHANGES TO A COMPLETELY DIFFERENT FORM!

Not too difficult to do and the cards can be examined by the audience as they are unfaked.

If you liked CARDWARP you will love CASCADE

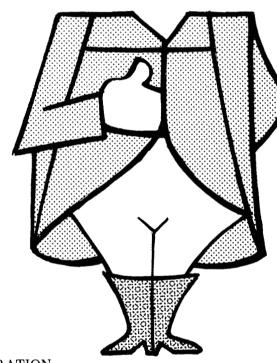

Price 50p

USA $2.00

L DAVENPORT & CO 51 Gt Russell St. London WC1. 01 405 8524

Pabular is published after the second week in every month and is printed by Instance Printers, Paddock Wood, Kent, England. Subscriptions may be obtained direct from the publishers, Pabular, P.O. Box 180, London SE12 8JJ or through many magic dealers. Price 50 pence per copy (or US $ 1.25) postage included. Editorial or content copy should be sent to Fred Robinson, 1 Crescent Court, 24 Crescent Road, New Barnet, Herts, England. Advertising rates sent on request — smalls 3 pence per word (US 10 cents). Dealer enquiries welcomed. Reproductions of old prints and historical magical items by kind permission of Tony Faro.

THE BUSINESS FOR THE CARD IN WATTET

bob read

In-jog the next card and shuffle off a further quarter of the pack and throw the balance on top. Cut to the in-jog which brings the chosen card to the top and the £1 note to the middle. As you do this, say "To exhibition of juggling 30p" - "I want you to cut the cards, anywhere, about half will do." Grip the cards firmly so as not to show the break and casually showing the right hand empty. Take the cards with the right hand and place them on the table in front of the spectator. Do not let go of them until he is about to cut the cards. Time this so that when you release the pressure the cards will automatically rise slightly creating a break at the note. "To audience participation 32p - that makes 90p, Oh yes, value added tax 10p - there you are — it's worth a quid." Time this so that the £1 note is exposed by the spectator just as you finish the line.

PREPARATION

A £1 note folded and secretly inserted three-quarters of the way down the pack. The usual wallet is in the inside jacket pocket.

PRESENTATION

The patter story I use is self-explanatory. "You've heard of these magic shops where it's possible to buy tricks — sawing a lady in half £50, sawing your mother-in-law in half £500. Have you wondered how they arrive at the value of magic spells? Well, I've just been sold a trick that is worth a quid — so they told me — and the invoice was made out like this — " Have a card selected and ask spectator to look at and remember it, quote "To eyesight and memory test 28p" Shuffle off a quarter of the cards into the left hand and have the chosen card replaced.

THE BUSINESS FOR CARD IN WALLET

"And there's the quid." All eyes will be on the £1 note, extend your left hand to receive the top half of the cards from the spectator. Say "I'll bet you've cut to your card — obviously there's a pound on it." Take the cards from the left hand with the right hand, palming the top card in left hand in the process. Place the cards on the table and pick up the note. The left hand meanwhile goes to the inside pocket ostensibly to remove the wallet to allow you to put the note away. Naturally you take the opportunity to load the card in the wallet through the slit you've previously cut in the back. From here it's all plain sailing, start to put the note away as the spectator turns over the card cut at, which is the wrong one. Remove his card from the zippered portion of the wallet.

There are several strong points to this routine — the patter line is engaging, the hands are demonstrably empty, and the cards leave the performers hands for the spectator to cut. The spectator actually hands you the packet of cards with the chosen card on top, and the misdirection for the palm is exceedingly strong.

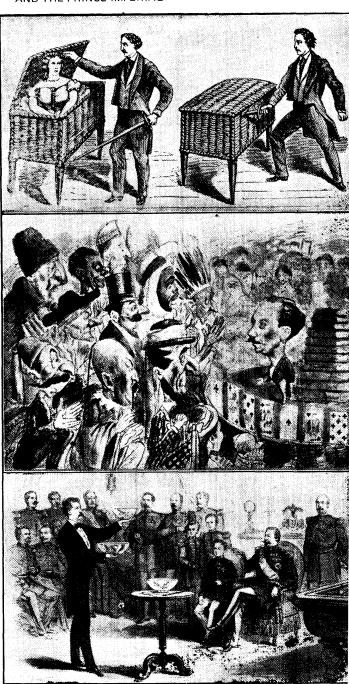

Incidentally, for magicians I have a wallet with two slits, the lower one having a zip fast-ener. After the trick is finished I turn over the wallet, the left fingers covering the usable slit, point out that the strong feature of the trick is that even the slit on the back of the wallet is zip fastened.

Editor's Note

It is of course obvious who first performed the Card in Wallet. Students of history will instantly recognise the pose on page 25 as being that of none other than Napoleon. It is clear that he adopted this attitude for reasons other than simply keeping his hands warm.

Modestly, Pabular refrains from taking credit for this revelation.

- 1. COLONEL STODARE
- 2. CAZENEUVE
- 3. NICOLAY PERFORMING BEFORE NAPOLEON III
 AND THE PRINCE IMPERIAL

Effect:- A marked, borrowed coin is wrapped in a piece of paper and given to a spectator to hold. A pocket handkerchief, which may be borrowed, is rolled up and placed in a glass. The performer now tears up the paper packet. The coin has vanished. With an obviously empty hand the performer slowly pulls the handkerchief from the glass, and the coin is heard to fall therein. It is tipped onto the hand of its owner who verifies it as his own marked coin.

Method:- Yes, it is our old friend the coin fold, but with a difference. As the borrowed coin is being marked a duplicate coin is secretly introduced underneath the paper which is held in the left hand, thumb on top and fingers beneath. The marked coin is now placed on the paper directly over the duplicate beneath. The coin is now wrapped in the paper in the usual 'coin fold' manner, taking care not to expose the duplicate. The marked coin is allowed to slip out of the paper packet into the right hand, and the paper given to someone to hold. They will feel the duplicate coin and thus think they have the borrowed one.

Now, with the coin finger palmed, the performer takes the handkerchief with the left hand and shakes it out, holding it by one corner. The right hand now approaches and slides the thumb and fingers down the hem on one side. from the corner held in the left hand, to the adjacent corner. At this point the handkerchief is displayed with the coin held against the corner and concealed by the fingers of the right hand. The left hand lets go, leaving the handkerchief hanging from the fingers and thumb of the right hand. It is then loosely rolled around the right hand fingers, which are then removed leaving the coin in the folds of the handkerchief, which is taken by the left hand and placed in the glass.

The paper is next taken from the spectator and the coin is stolen from the reverse end of the first steal. (This will be obvious on handling).

The paper is burnt or torn up, and the handkerchief is slowly pulled from the glass, releasing the coin, which is tipped out onto the spectators hand.

The nice part of this effect is that the spectator feels the coin until the last moment, and a duplicate is, or should not be suspected.

Although I have used the word 'glass', a glass of the stemmed variety (Goblet) looks best.

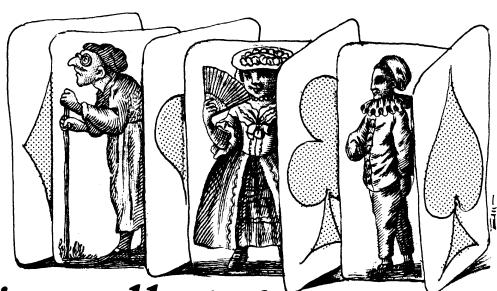

These details and correct dressing of an effect make for entertainment.

The above was originally described in The Magic Circular, Vol.49 No.548 and appears here with the kind permission of its Editor.

Since then Magini has devised an alternative ending which he considers superior. The glass is dispensed with and the borrowed coin is discovered in a knot tied in the centre of a borrowed handkerchief.

Proceed exactly as explained above until the point is reached where you're holding the handkerchief by the adjacent corners and the borrowed coin is finger palmed in the right hand. Retaining the hold on these corners flick the bottom edge of the handkerchief over the top edge forming a kind of tube. A single knot is tied in the centre of the handkerchief, and during this action the coin is allowed to slide down to the centre and is automatically trapped within the knot.

The knotted handkerchief is handed to the spectator in exchange for the coin in the paper, which is destroyed as in the previous version. The spectator now unties the knot and discovers his coin which seconds before he handed to you folded in the paper.

alex elmsley

One at a time collectors

Three chosen cards appear, one at a time, reversed among the four aces.

Although this trick was suggested to me by Roy Walton's 'Collectors', the effect is rather different. Perhaps you could use it if asked to repeat the true 'Collectors'.

ROUTINE

Take the four aces out of the pack and place them to one side.

Ask the spectators to choose the three cards. Have the cards returned and bring them to the top (e.g. using the Hindu Shuffle Control, Royal Road to Card Magic chapter XV). Let us suppose that the three cards are on top in reverse order, the third spectator's card being uppermost.

Spread the pack saying, "Your cards are somewhere here. To find them I need the help of the aces." Square the pack into dealing position in your left hand, taking a left little-finger break under the three top cards as you do so. Pick up the aces and display them face-up, using both hands. Roughly square the aces, secretly adding the three face-down chosen cards beneath. Hold the combined packet for a moment in your right hand as you place the rest of the pack aside with your left, and square the packet (still with the aces face-up) into the left hand.

Now count the aces from the left hand to the right, reversing their order and naming the aces. The first three are taken singly and fairly—the last is taken with the three chosen cards concealed beneath it. Then turn the whole packet over and put it back in your left hand with the aces face-down. Take the top two cards in your right fingers and flash their faces as you say, "the aces will find your cards", and replace them face down under the others.

The cards in your left hand should now be, from the top: face-down ace, three face-up chosen cards, three face-down aces.

With your right thumb at the inner end raise the top three cards of the packet and get a left little-finger break beneath them. Do this as you turn to the third spectator and ask him to name his card.

When he names it, you show it face up among the aces by counting the cards from left to right as five. Take all three above the break as one, on top take the face-up card so that it projects forward about half its length, followed by another (single) face-down card level with the first, but jogged to the left about half its width. At this, pause to display the face-up card. The thickness of hidden cards is well concealed.

Turn the two cards remaining in your left hand face up for a moment to flash their faces. Then apparently put these two cards face-down under the others, but in fact, buckle the lowest card of those in your right hand with your right fingers, and place the two cards from your left hand between the buckled card and the rest.

Square the packet, and now ask the first spectator to name his card. Reveal it by again counting from left to right, reversing the order and showing six cards. The count is fair except that the last two are taken as one. Jog the face-up cards forward when counting, to display them better.

Square, and ask the remaining (second) spectator to name his card. This time just fan all seven cards out fairly and the spectator's card shows. Turn the fan over to emphasise that the chosen cards are interleaved among the aces. Conclude by laying the fan on your table with all the chosen cards showing.

DRIBBLE CONCEPT CONTINUED

edward marlo

"SPLITTING THE ACES"

EFFECT:-

1. Two shuffled decks are dribbled onto the table as spectator calls 'stop'. It is found that at the face of each deck are two Red Aces and the top two cards of the tabled portions are Black Aces. A total of eight Aces.

FIRST METHOD:-

My original method was to use two thick Aces of Clubs, one in each deck. The set-up was $AS-Thick\ AC-AH-AD$. from the bottom. up. This was duplicated in the other deck. Riffle shuffle above the set-up. The spectator cuts decks and completes the cut.

2. Pick up each deck and do the dribble procedure. Eventually disclose two Red Aces at face of each of packet and two Black Aces on top of each tabled portion.

SECOND METHOD:-

- 1. Eventually decided it would be better if the eight disclosed Aces could be used in any follow effect. This meant that the four Aces had to be regular cards. The problem was solved by using a thick double-back card.
- 2. The set-up at the bottom of each deck is, AS AC double-backed thick card AH AD. Retain set-up at bottom during shuffles and have spectator cut the decks.
- 3. Do the dribble procedure. This time do not show the cards in the hands. Instead place these portions face down on the table. Pick up one of the tabled packets. Square it and hold in the left hand as for dealing. Thumb over two cards, the thick double backer and one Ace, at the same time also pushing third card far enough for left little fingertip to obtain a break beneath it at lower right corner.

- 4. Having displayed two face down cards you apparently turn them face up onto the packet. Actually as you square the two cards, against the packet, the card above the break is also taken and three cards turned over. Since the top card was a thick double-back card only two regular single Black Aces will be thumbed off. Repeat identical procedure with the other tabled half. Conclude by turning the two packets, which have the Red Ace at the face, face up, then merely spread the face cards of each packet to reveal the Red Aces. End by saying, "This is what is known as Splitting the Aces."
- 5. Since the Aces are ungimmicked they can be used for other effects. Using a thick double-back card in each deck as above, you can have two selections made from each deck making sure that you have the selections returned one on each side of the thick card. It is now a simple matter to use the same splitting procedure as with the Aces, except here you will be "Splitting the Selections". If you do not want to use a double backed thick card, you can, of course, use a thick card with a face, but you will have to force each thick card on two spectators using any riffle force technique in which the card is not handled by the spectator. The other two selections of course, can be free ones which should be controlled on top of the thick cards. From here proceed to split the selections.

Three standard close-up effects have been trimmed to make a slick, smooth running routine, requiring some white bottle tops, referred to as 'discs', and a Chinese coin.

DISC-0 arthur setterington

PRESENTATION:-

"I have a Chinese magician friend, whose favourite mystery is one using two white discs." (Two discs are placed on a close-up mat, one at the lower left corner, and the other at the upper right corner.)

"He covers the discs with his hands, but when he removes his right hand, the disc has disappeared. When he takes his left hand away, there are two discs." (The hands are removed showing the disc has travelled to the opposite corner.)

"Not content, he repeats the process."
(The right disc is replaced and the same procedure carried out, but this time the two discs appear under the right hand.)

"Not only does he cause the discs to travel through space, but through solids." (The discs are placed on the centre of the close-up mat, one on top of the other. The right hand covers the discs. The left hand goes under the table. The right hand presses lightly on the discs, and when it is removed, only one disc is left on the mat. The other is produced from under the table with the left hand.)

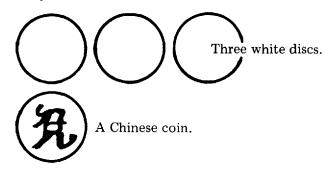

"He goes one step further." (The disc is taken in the right and placed under the table. The left hand covers the other disc. When the left hand is removed the disc has vanished. The right hand appears from under the table holding both discs.)

"My friend then places the two discs in his left hand, and says, 'Two discs in my left hand. I take one away, what have I left?' I say, 'One white disc, that's logic.' He says, 'No. Two white discs, that's magic.' (The left hand is curled into a fist, and the two discs are inserted by pushing them between the curled thumb and forefinger.

One is removed, and placed in the pocket. The left hand is opened revealing the two discs.)

"Again he places the discs into his left hand, and then asks the same question. 'Two discs in my left hand. I take one away. What have I left?' Remembering what occurred the first time, I say, 'Two white discs.' to which he replies, 'No, one Chinese yen.' (The discs are placed in the left hand, and one is taken away and placed in the pocket. When the left hand is opened, the discs have disappeared, and in their place is a Chinese coin.)

REQUIREMENTS:-

PREPARATION:-

The Chinese coin is in the right jacket pocket. One of the discs is concealed in the left hand. It is held at the base of the hand. The disc can be easily gripped by a slight contraction of the hand, without the hand being held unnaturally.

WORKING:-

The two discs are placed in position on the close-up mat, and covered with the hands. The right hand presses on the disc, and grips it at the base of the hand. The disc in the left hand is released, and left alongside the other disc. The hands are removed to show the transposition.

The discs are put in their original positions, and covered with the hands. The left hand grips the disc, and the right releases the concealed disc. The hands are removed and the left hand disc is seen to have travelled to join the other disc.

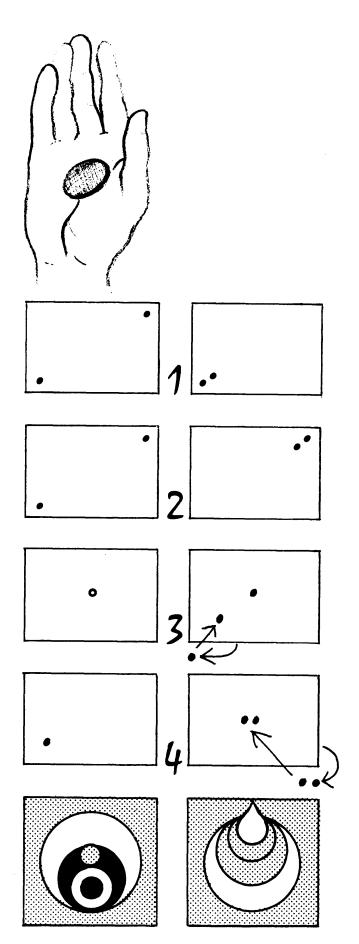

One disc is placed on the other in the centre of the close-up mat. The left hand, holding the third disc goes under the table, and the right covers the discs on the table. When it is removed, there is only one disc on the table. (The right again grips the other disc.) The left hand comes into view holding the concealed disc, which is placed on the mat.

The right hand, holding the hidden disc, picks up the disc just produced, and holds it under the table. The left hand covers the remaining disc, and grips it, so that when the hand is removed, there is nothing on the mat. The right hand now brings the two discs from under the table.

They are placed one at a time into the left hand, as explained in the presentation. One disc is placed in the right jacket pocket, and at the same time the Chinese coin is obtained and concealed in the hand. The left hand is opened to reveal the two discs.

The discs are placed on the table, and picked up one at a time and apparently placed in the left hand. Actually one disc is picked up, and the right thumb enters the interior of the cap. As it is about to enter the hand it is brought into view very quickly with the words, "Oh yes, it really goes in." The performer has drawn attention to the disc, because he has during the action thrown the Chinese coin into the left hand. The 'jerky' movement of withdrawing the disc affords a natural cover.

The disc is replaced in the hand, but under cover of the right fingers, the thumb draws back the disc into the right hand, which immediately picks up the remaining disc. It is placed in the left hand where it 'clicks' against the coin. It is then placed in the right jacket pocket, where both discs are left, and all that remains is to show the Chinese coin in place of the two discs.

The Page boy speaks....

Let's start off this week with one or two complaints. In the last issue of Pabular, reference was made to the lack of space. Several readers have said to me 'there's nothing-else but space in Pabular' and looking through it again they may well be right—there seems to be enough blank space in the magazine to cut it up and satisfy a fair-sized public convenience in Charing Cross Station. It is most frustrating to be reading articles in which you suddenly become interested, to find the editor saying 'I'm sorry we can't explain all of what took place because space * forbids'.

Why doesn't he cut out a lot of the illustrations — particularly those used in the article by Tony 'Doc' Shiels — The Case for Cozenage? Although come to think of it I think I would rather look at the illustrations than read all he has set forth in print. It is many years since I have read such an article. This is the sort of thing that crops up once every so often in all magic magazines, when a guy goes overboard for fortune-tellers, escapologists, sword swallowers, market grafters, charlatans and thieves they have a certain glamour for a certain type of person. Tony says that magicians put mentalists and such-like performers in the same brackets as pickpockets and highwaymen; he is quite wrong. Dr. Giovanni and the late Vic Perry were pickpockets, and they were also great entertainers, amusing and amazing their audiences by their skill and audacity. Al Koran, Maurice Fogel, David Berglas, the Piddingtons, and many others have all held the respect of most magicians throughout the world. They have performed for two reasons, perhaps three: money, entertainment purposes, and perhaps to flatter their own egos. But they could not be called crooks - they were honest tradesmen plying their wares. Now we come to the little old lady who invites the housewives in for a 'cuppa tea' plus 50 pence in return for which she will pretend to foretell the future. She is nothing but a con-artist. He quotes Madame Moyer as saying 'Those debunkers who claim all mindreaders are lazy crooks ought to see the time we've spent steaming open envelopes. listening in for hours on party-lines, and digging in the garbage heaps for old letters'. Ugh. What some people will do to make a dollar.

Tony is perhaps correct, and I agree with him, in one instance only in his article and that is that people should be given their money's worth. We obviously disagree on the methods.

Change of subject. One thing is probably missing in the battery of the modern magician's armoury. New magic effects. Just how long is it since you actually saw a new effect? A completely brand-new different effect? A few years ago Alex Elmsley produced the 'Elmsley Count' or the 'Ghost Count'. Since then there have been a thousand variations on this theme — the sleight has been used for countless oil and water routines, dirty deal routines, you name it every one's played with it. This was a new method which resulted in quite a number of new effects. Is it possible that someone can give us a new effect that will produce a new method? I know that the method isn't really all that important and as the old fashioned magicians will say 'it is the effect that counts' but if a method such as the Elmsley Count comes along and is responsible for so many different effects, perhaps it is about time someone invented a new method.

One other thing interests me, and that is the experience of performers in doing close-up Magic. I probably perform a standard act as often as most people throughout the year but very rarely do I ever perform Close-up Magic for money. At parties and such-like I will no doubt do the odd card trick or something similar but I'm not sure of the conditions or what to expect when one is being paid to perform Close-up Magic. By this I don't mean that I have never performed Close-up Magic for money, I have, but not on very many occasions. And some. times I came up against one or two problems that at the time appeared almost insurmountable.

Perhaps one or two of our readers who have more experience in the close-up field than I have can tell us the kind of problems they come up against and how they overcome them. I am at this point talking about performing and not the selling of the act to a prospective agent or booker. What I am interested in is the performing of Close-up Magic for money. An American visitor to these shores, one Ben Martin from Chicago, who performs Close-up Magic professionally, made a point to me that Close-up Magic in the United States seemed to blossom faster when the places to perform standard magic acts in had disappeared. If this is so, let's hope that it doesn't happen here. It seems to me that there should be room for both. The 'hospitality room' seems to be something that is much more prevalent in the USA than in this country. It appears that many professional magicians work in those places, whether it is a trade show, bank or anything else. Come on you Close-up Pro's — tell us! Where do you work and what do you do? Not the effects because we can probably guess these if we know you. But we would be very interested to hear anything about the performance of Close-up Magic in this country for

^{*} Unfortunately space does not allow me to comment — Nick Bolton

SPECTATOR-MAGICIAN PLUS

This is a routine of three effects in which the spectator takes the part of an expert card magician. It was inspired by, and is an extension of, the SPECTATOR-MAGICIAN, by Tony Faro.

Magicians who place the emphasis on entertainment will see the possibilities in this direction. The degree of success achieved depends mainly on the performer's ability to persuade the spectator to act the part of the 'expert', and how well the situations which arise are exploited. That there are no new 'miracles' in the routine is not important, and therefore requires no apology. Its merit is in the novelty of the theme and entertainment potential.

Arrange the pack with the QH on top, the 6S second, the QS in the fifth position, and the remainder of the pack in alternating colours red, black, red, black throughout.

Commence by asking someone if they would like to become an expert card magician. Having secured a volunteer seat him at the table and hand him the pack, saying "The first thing a real expert does is to allow someone to shuffle the cards," making sure it is you who does the shuffling. It is a false one which does not destroy the arrangement. Hand back the pack to the 'expert' asking him to fan them out face down for you to choose one.

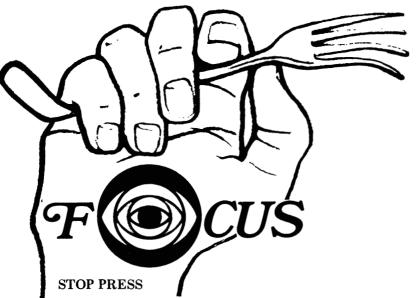

You appear to be undecided when making the choice, suggesting that maybe he is trying to make you take a particular card. Finally you take the QS which is fifth from the top and place it face down on the table, taking unnecessary care that he does not see the face of the card. To what extent you carry out this playacting will be determined by the reactions and behaviour of the volunteer. Continue as in the SPECTATOR-MAGICIAN until the two cards are face up on the piles. Point to the QH saying "Of course, you know by this card that the one I selected is a queen." If he has entered into the spirit of the game he will say "Yes." You continue "And this card the 6S tells you it is a spade." Thus encouraged he will be able to name the QS as the card you selected. Turn the QS over and congratulate him on his expertise.

You ask the 'expert' to get someone else to help with his next trick. This again provides a situation for fun, by getting your volunteer to shake hands with his assistant, thanking him for coming to help etc. How far you go with this business is entirely a matter for judgement depending largely on how your assistant reacts to your suggestions and the atmosphere in which you are performing.

When they are both seated hand the 'expert' the packet of cards not used in the previous trick, these are in the red, black, red, black order, and tell him to deal them into two piles one for his assistant and one for himself. This completed, they are both told to shuffle their cards taking care they do not see the faces of each others cards. This prevents anyone from seeing that one has all red cards and the other all blacks. You now set up markers for 'Out of this World' using cards from those used in the previous trick. The 'expert' deals his cards onto these markers. Further markers are set up and the assistant deals his cards onto these. The cards are now turned over showing they have succeeded in matching the markers. You, of course, turn over the 'wrong' pile. The 'expert' now dismisses his assistant and you suggest he tries a spot of mindreading. The cards are gathered up and you instruct him to fan them out faces towards you for you to think of one. You now ask him to look at the cards and remove the one he feels you are 'thinking' of and place it face down on the table, without you seeing its face. Name the card you 'thought' of, say AS. The tabled card is turned face up and seen to be the AS. The secret is simple, the pack is marked, and you name the card he takes from the pack.

No apology is offered for using marked cards. The ends justify the means, the end being the entertainment of the audience with a novel theme in which one of their members becomes a magician.

British readers will know some of the background to this article: that press and TV coverage has been given to the fact that David Berglas has offered £5000 to any person able to produce a 'Geller-type' phenomenon that withstands investigation by both scientists and himself under test conditions, and that this is now being widely publicized by the Daily and Sunday Express. This is the first time that David Berglas has spoken to the Magical Press about this and in this article he explains the offer and some of the events leading up to it — Editor.

I have received numerous reports over and over again, some of these first-hand, some second, third and even fourth-hand, that there are people here in Great Britain. Holland, Sweden and many other countries where Uri Geller has made TV and personal appearances, who can duplicate his incredible feats of affecting metal objects. Knives, forks, spoons and keys have been said to be affected merely by concentration or by rubbing gently with two fingers. Many of these reports assure me that the object actually continues to bend even after it has been replaced on a table or, even more fascinating, that the bending took place without any actual finger contact. All of these phenomena have been reported under "strictly scientific test conditions" or to having been observed in well-known laboratories including The Stanford Research Institute in the States and here in London by Professor John Hastead of Birkbeck College, University of London and especially by Professor John Taylor of King's College. Both these eminently respected and acknowledged professors stood up at a Press Conference at the Savoy Hotel given by Uri Geller on 30th October and spoke out on behalf of 'science' to testify that not only had they conducted the above mentioned test with Uri Geller himself but also with a number of children who are still being investigated. Prof. Taylor has since shown me some staggering and very impressive evidence of these tests. About a year ago the popular, but serious-minded, magazine "The New Scientist" asked experimental psychologist, Dr Christopher Evans, well-known to millions of TV viewers, to form a panel of experts in various fields to investigate the Geller phenomena which were playing havoc with all known scientific laws and causing head-line making news all over the world. Clearly this had to be investigated fully in the interest of science. Dr Evans, with whom I had cooperated on various projects previously viously was already aware from me that skilled magicians would be able to bamboozle any TV interviewer, journalist or even scientist with methods known only to a select few.

In fact, he later stated "that one master magician would be more qualified to detect fraud in any test than an Albert Hall full of scientists". So we formed the New Scientist Panel, At that time we already had a personally written letter from Uri Geller agreeing to be tested, but he was not aware that I was part of the Panel. Incidentally, the Panel was very surprised that I wanted no conditions to be set for Geller's test at all. In particular Bernard Dixon, Editor of the New Scientist, and Joe Hamlon the writer of the article (both physicists), disagreed with me. I said at the time that if I made conditions Geller would not turn up. In the end conditions were made and he did not come. I am sure that if they had listened to me and said he could have come along on his own conditions we could have still detected any fraud, (and he would have continued with the research). But the other way we lost him.

After it became known that I was on the Panel various delays and excuses arrived at the New Scientist's office from the Geller camp. Finally, they point-blank refused to have him tested because there would be a professional magician on the Panel. (Incidentally, during the Press Conference that I referred to just now, he mentioned this professional magician a number of times little realising that I was sitting in the audience in heavy disguise!)

To this date, although I have met and talked to Uri Geller he has constantly refused to perform or be tested by magicians whom he calls negative influences to his powers. Far from being a disbeliever or a 'negative influence' I am desperately interested in anyone who can demonstrate any or all of these subjects in which I deal as an entertainer to succeed. It is vitally important to find the truth and as so far no one has demonstrated in front of me I have decided to pay a reward of £5000 (a large amount of money for myself), to the first person who can demonstrate any or all of the following effects purely by some unknown or inexplicable methods i.e. mind or super-natural power. Preference will be given to more advance tests such as merely looking at the object without touching but failing any of these more spectacular effects I will be satisfied and will pay out if the metal object merely becomes pliable, bent, moves or breaks even whilst held lightly by thumb and forefinger of one hand and rubbed gently with the other hand as demonstrated by Geller.

Any applied physical force, conscious or unconscious by the "operator" will, of course, disqualify. The various categories, in order of preference but not conditional will be as follows:

1) an examined metal bar, piece of cutlery or key moves slightly without being touched.

2) same as (1) but bends instead of moves.

3) Bends whilst touching. 4) Breaks etc.

This is a genuine offer made to help

This is a genuine offer made to help Finally Settle a World-Wide Controversy once and for all but, of course, has certain simple conditions attached. It will be necessary to safe-guard that the winner will be available for some research, and this point will be made to each person who wishes to participate, and will be a condition of receiving the money.

I am fully aware that many people feel that they could only achieve success with these strange powers under their own conditions and not always "at will". In order to find the answer I will try to make the conditions as simple and convenient as possible for each person. Of course, the best place would be a room (say in a Hotel), Hall or even Science Laboratory with independent observors and cameras present. Failing this I will, with perhaps one other observor, attend any place convenient and mutually agreeable. Should any further tests be necessary these will be discussed and agreed with the parties involved.

£5,000

ottery.

Mrs. June Henry is running out of cuttery.

Her 11-year-old son, Mark, keeps using it to practise his keeps using it to practise his latest hobby—metal bending.

His flabbergasted mother His flabbergasted mother explained: "I have now a collection of distorted cuttery. There's no trick — Mark's powers are quite uncanny."

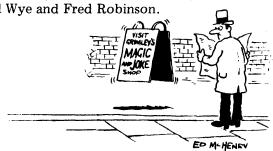

Young Mark has been bending things since he saw Urick Geller on a Blue Peter tele-Geller on a Blue Peter tele-Geller on a Blue Pater wision programme last year. "I rubbed a spoon, and "I rubbed a spoon, and my amazement, it just ben my amazement have failure," he said.

Now Mark, of Rennie Stre Burnley, Lancs, has taken the £5,000 offer by "Man of Mystery" David Berglas to see Whether has mystical whether bally teamed up discover whether Euress to supernatural" possesses the Man of child possesses the aroused enormous allready among Daily Express interest be on their way to the scores he or their way to the scores he or their way to the scores he or their way to the scores he of the mindbender will receive for the may be will receive into their so towards he other so towards he on stipulation. So from every this is to ensure that only the money will go charity," he may be made applicant. All the money will go

On November 2nd the Magic Circle gave an evening of Magic, open to members and guests. It was a great evening and we left feeling that we had seen more good magic in a short four hours than we will see for a long time. Close-uppers had their own part of the evening and those watching were more than lucky to be there. Alex Elmsley showed his tremendous routine 'Dazzle' which really does what it says: the back designs of five cards change and change and change and change and the climax is a knockout. This is a beautiful effect that will appear in the book he is now writing. (You may have to be patient, because he has been several years writing it. All we can say is that it will be worth waiting for.) Mike O'Brian registered very strongly with Pricking the Garter, Find the Lady etc., and really made his mark, especially with the lay people present. Ken Hawes performed with sponge balls and money items. He prefers performing to lay audiences which probably explains why a lady guest found his act better than anything else she saw that evening. Unfortunately we did not see Bob Read at our table — but we did catch a glimpse of him packing what seemed to be half the contents of a butcher's shop into a carrier bag! It was left to Eric 'Boon' Mason to present what we considered the high-spot of the evening (the fact that he is Pabular's Art Editor has nothing to do with this opinion!) Assisted by eight people from the audience he succeeded in levitating a large table, and then made it travel round the Magic Circle Club Room at an alarming rate. The strength of this effect was considerable — ask any of the visitors brought to the show by Tony Faro! Eric was introduced by John Calvert who performed close-up — not during the show, but in the Wimpey Bar after the evening had 'finished'. (If you think you can sleeve, watch HIM!)

Close-up magicians within striking distance of London should keep Sunday 15th December free. Ron MacMillan has arranged another 'International Stars of Magic' day at the Empire Rooms, Tottenham Court Road. This is always a good day for anyone interested in Magic and of course Pabular readers will especially be interested in the Close-up sessions. We don't think they will be disappointed — performers appearing will be Alex Almsley, David Carre, Pat Conway, Walt Lees, Bob Read, Bob Swadling, Phil Wye and Fred Robinson.

Wanted: The Card Magic of Le Paul. State price and condition. Alex Elmsley, 6 Smith Terrace, Chelsea, London SW3.

Magic books by post, 21 Ravenhill Road, Lower Knowle, Bristol BS3 5BN. Lists 10p refundable.

Old and unusual magic wands required by collector.

Peter Batkin, 79 Wembley Park Drive, Wembley, Middx.

Magical apparatus made to order. Fred Snook, 47 Dartington House, Senior Street, London W2.

Thanks to Pepys, a fifteen minute act with props found in any home or pub. The tricks include the production of a full bottle of wine from a handkerchief. Complete with patter (over 100 one liners) 60 pages, 50 photos. Just a few left. Direct from Bob Read, 32 Regal Way, Kenton, Middx. £2.50 post free.

WANTED

Pentagram Vol. II No.4
Gen Vol. 24 No.4
Jonson, Mr. Smith's Guide to Sleight of Hand Warlock (Ed), Come a Little Closer
Baron (Ed), My Favourite Close-up Trick
Trixer, Conjuring Trix
Farelli, Convincing Coin Magic
Farelli, Coin and Cylinder
Howorth, Winners All

Reply Airmail to D. Hardy, 424 North Lake Ave., Pasedena, California 91101.

NEXT MONTH

Christmas is with us and Pabular will be living up to the occasion. Roy Walton, Bill Zavis, Bob Read, Bob Ostin have given us some really first class material. There is also a lot more, including four extra pages of ideas, tricks and stunts that are particularly suited to this time of year. We think you will like it — we have really enjoyed putting it all together!

TEN THOUGHTS ON CLOSE-UP by patrick page

NO MIRACLES, BUT TEN THOUGHTS ON THE CLOSE-UP THEME. SOME NEW, SOME OLD, ALL PRACTICAL.

NOT FOR THE BEGINNER AS IT IS ASSUMED THAT YOU WILL KNOW MOST OF THE SLEIGHTS REQUIRED. SEVEN PAGES OF TYPESCRIPT ONLY — BUT IT IS THE EIGHTH PAGE (PATRICK, THAT IS) THAT REALLY COUNTS.

PRICE 80p USA S3.00 inc Airmail
L DAVENPORT & CO
51 Gt Russell St. London WC1. 01 405 8524

MAGIC INFO

THE INTERNATIONAL MAGAZINE

Now in its 3rd year.

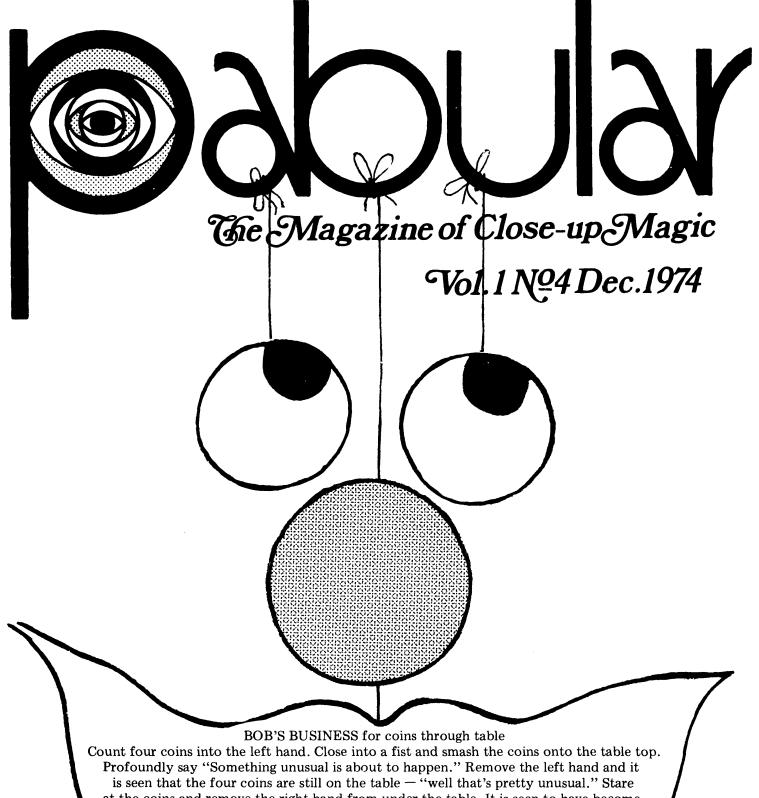

MAKE SURE EACH ISSUE IS SENT TO YOU REGULARLY. SEND TODAY ONLY £1.50 ($4.00) FOR ONE YEAR (SIX) ISSUES SENT POST FREE TO ANYWHERE IN THE WORLD.

32, glossy pages in each issue THE INTERNATIONAL MAGIC STUDIO.

(RON MACMILLAN)

89 CLERKENWELL ROAD,
HOLBORN, LONDON E.C.I.

Pabular is published after the second week in every month and is printed by Instance Printers, Paddock Wood, Kent, England. Subscriptions may be obtained direct from the publishers, Pabular, P.O. Box 180, London SE12 8JJ or through many magic dealers. Price 50 pence per copy (or US $ 1.25) postage included. Editorial or content copy should be sent to Fred Robinson, 1 Crescent Court, 24 Crescent Road, New Barnet, Herts, England. Advertising rates sent on request — smalls 3 pence per word (US 10 cents). Dealer enquiries welcomed. Reproductions of old prints and historical magical items by kind permission of Tony Faro.

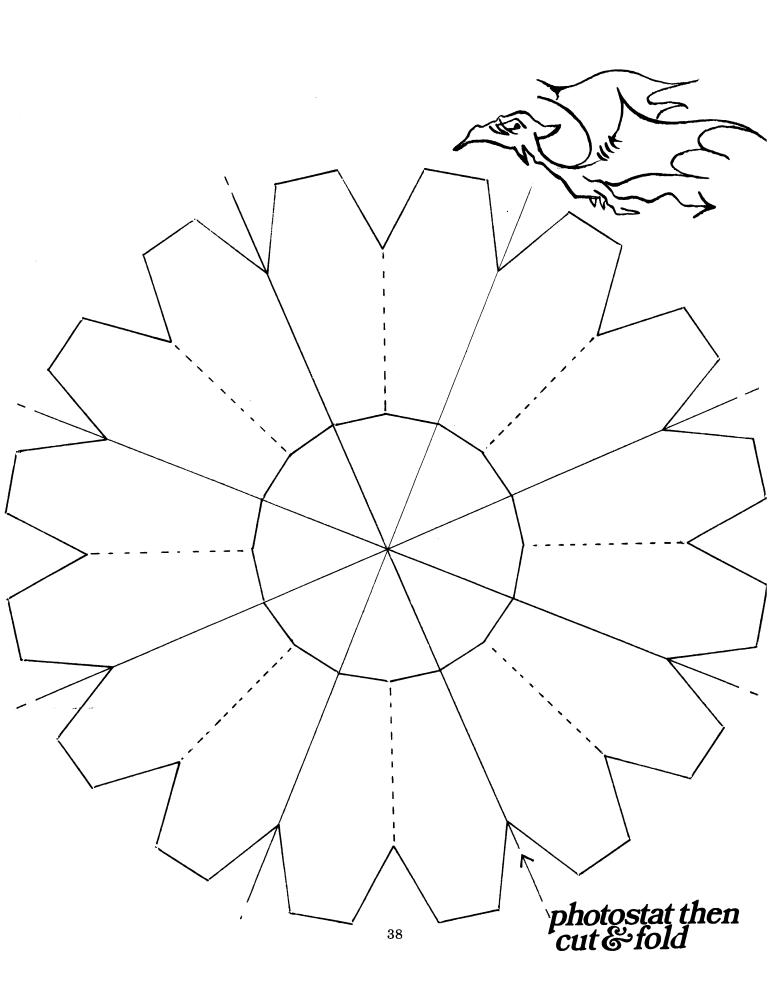

Count four coins into the left hand. Close into a fist and smash the coins onto the table top Profoundly say "Something unusual is about to happen." Remove the left hand and it is seen that the four coins are still on the table — "well that's pretty unusual." Stare at the coins and remove the right hand from under the table. It is seen to have become horribly grotesque, with long nails and is covered in warts and hair. Oblivious to this dreadful transformation for a few seconds, you slowly look down and do the TV commercial "Doctor. I've been using Dermasil for four weeks and I no longer get sores, cracks or abrasions between the fingers, the only trouble is I can't do this trick when there's a full moon."

The how:

Prior to the commencement of the trick, you have lapped a monster hairy rubber hand available at the joke shops. The right hand is inserted in this whilst you talk about the coins in the left hand. Believe me, it will get more reaction than your normal 'coins through' routine!

Bob Read

bob ostin

VAMPIRE

a method for a living & dead test

A spectator is handed a number of small white cards and is instructed to write the word "Vampire" on any one of them and to fold the card in half so that the "Vampire" is hidden. This being done the card is stapled together so that it cannot be opened. The remainder of the cards are now also folded and stapled, and they are then thoroughly mixed so that no-one knows where the Vampire lies. All this has been done whilst the performer's back is turned. The performer now states that one of the staples will have been driven through the Vampire's heart and that he can tell which card conceals the Vampire by listening to the scream (Nasty isn't it!). Each card is taken in turn and listened to, one is retained - and on being opened is found to be the Vampire.

METHOD - and notes for further development.

The first staple in the stapler is marked! Just a small dot made with a felt tip pen. I bought a pocket stapler of the type which can be opened to expose the staples without having to take them out of the machine. It is then a simple matter to mark a staple, and be sure that it's the first one. In presenting the effect as described I do not look for any marks when I pick the first slip up, all the emphasis is on the "listening", but whilst I'm listening to the one I picked up, I'm looking at the balance on the table. If I don't see the Vampire I know I'm listening to it. If I do see it I stop looking and remember its location. As far as possible I try to give the impression that I'm not looking at all.

This idea is capable of much further development. For instance, it does not have to be the first staple which is marked. More than one staple can be marked in sequence, so that the order in which slips or envelopes were stapled could be divined, or how about the first staple being attracted by a magnet, whilst all the rest are not? Is this possible? Perhaps other readers will make something from the bones of the Vampire!

Final thought - If you are worried about the stapler jamming on the first staple. Mark the first three. If it still jams, buy a new stapler. The effect is worth it.

OBSOTETE PREDICTION

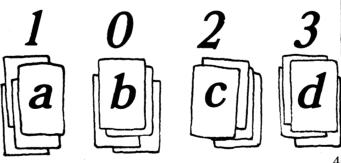

EFFECT:

Four packets of four cards each are placed in a face down line on the table, and the performer explains that each of these packets is in a unique order. A further packet of four cards is removed from the main pack, the performer remarking that this packet will act as a prediction. A spectator makes a free choice of one of the four packets, and the colour order of the cards in this packet are found to coincide exactly with the prediction packet. The remaining three packets are shown to be in completely different orders. The effect can also be done with E.S.P. cards to give the effect a mental flavour (whatever mental tastes like) and a note regarding this variation will be included in the working details.

WORKING AND PRESENTATION OUTLINE:

Four groups of four cards each are removed from the main pack and are placed face down on the table at positions A - B - C - D and the colour order of each group reading from face to back must be the same as shewn in the diagram below. Suits are not considered, just colours.

The easiest way to get the cards into the correct colour order without mental strain is to think of the A position as 1, the B position as 0, the C as 2, and the D as 3, in other words 1-2-3 from left to right excluding the heap in position B. As you remove each group of four cards from the pack arrange them all in B-B-R-R order from face to back. When you place the group at position A, cut one card from back to face before placing it in position. Place the group in position B without any adjustment (0 in your remembered sequence). Place the heap at position C after cutting two cards from back to face, and the final one at D after cutting three cards from back to face.

No secret is made of the fact that you are arranging each group in a particular order as you place them down, as this is what you are supposed to be doing, and is covered in your patter about each group being in a unique sequence.

Finally, remove a fifth group of cards from the pack, again in B B R R order from face to back. Hold this group in a face down fan in the left hand, mentioning that it represents a prediction. Discard the remainder of the pack.

From now on in the effect you must remember the heaps as 1 0 2 3 reading from left to right. This is exactly the same code used to get them into the correct colour sequence at the earlier stage of the effect.

Ask a spectator to carefully consider the four face down packets and then turn anyone he wishes face up. As he reaches for his choice you note whether it is 1 0 2 or 3 and depending on which one, take a little finger break under this quantity of cards in the prediction group held in the left hand. The right hand comes up to this group and squares up the slight spread i.e. If the third heap from the left is chosen you would get a break under two cards, if the second heap no cards. This heap is given the designation 0, because this is the one normally chosen, and therefore in the majority of cases, no move at all need be made. As the chosen heap is turned face up by the spectator and displayed on the table you make some remark about the colour order of his choice and carry out the classic two handed pass with the prediction group at the break (if you have one). It is important that the pass is timed correctly — Just as the spectator turns his choice face up and you verbally call attention to the colour order. Correct timing gives adequate misdirection

10y^ walton

The right hand places the prediction heap just below the spectators choice, still face down.

Each of the other heaps are turned face up one by one and attention drawn to the fact that each is a unique colour order. After these have been displayed, gather them up and replace on the main pack. This leaves only your prediction heap face up to reveal that it is in exactly the same colour order as his chosen one.

E.S.P. VERSION:

Needed are twenty E.S.P. cards with any four ESP symbols repeated throughout the stack, i.e. square, cross, circle, wavy lines and so on.

Proceeding exactly the same way as the card version, getting the four tabled groups into the correct order by cutting 1, 0, 2, or 3 cards from top to face as you place each one down. Continue following the description already given for playing cards, and you will end with your prediction heap being in exactly the same symbol order as the chosen one.

"He's picked a great time to be taken ill!"

UP DOWN & AROUND

EFFECT:

Four black cards penetrate, reverse themselves among and change places with a number of red cards.

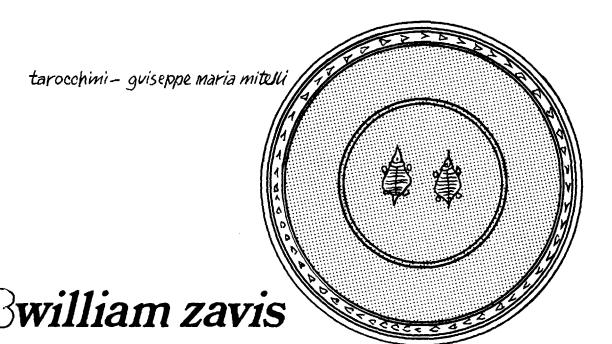

METHOD:

Openly remove the Ace, Deuce, Trey and Four of Spades, plus six middle value red cards from the deck. With the packet face up, arrange them with the Spades (in order, Ace on top) at the face of the packet, followed by the red cards. Do not call attention to how many red cards you have.

- 2. Spread the cards face up, displaying them and calling attention to the A-4 of Spades. Hold the last two red cards together as one so that only five reds are shown. Point out that five red cards are used, but do not call attention to their values. Square up the packet, getting a break with your left little finger under the first red card following the blacks. Packet is still face up.
- 3. Lift all the cards above the break with the right hand. At the same time, the left hand turns palm down and places its packet, face down, on the table. Spread the cards in your hand, showing the A-4 of Spades again and emphasising their order. Hold the last two cards together as one to conceal the extra card behind the 4S.
- 4. Square the packet and turn it face down. Deal the top three cards on to the table face down, reversing their order. Holding the last two as one, turn them face up, flashing the face of the AS, then drop them face down on top of the red packet.
- 5. Immediately pick up the red packet and turn it face up. Say that in a moment you are going to put the AS on the bottom of the packet and make it pass, one card at a time, back to the top again. As you say this, spread the packet face up, holding the last two cards as one, to show five red cards followed by the AS. Then square up the packet, turn it face down and take it in the left hand.

- 6. Remove the top card and apparently place it on the bottom of the packet. Actually, buckle the real bottom card slightly with your left forefinger, opening a break at the inner right corner of the packet, and insert the top card into the break.
- 7. Snap your fingers, whistle Dixie or do whatever you like to work the magic. Flash the face of the packet to show that the Ace is no longer there. Turn over the top card to reveal the Ace. Deal it off on to the table. As you point out that the Ace leaves no trace of the way it came, spread the cards face down between your hands, holding the last two together as one, to show five cards. With the cards still spread, take the top three in the right hand, retaining the bottom two (actually three) in the left, and turn your hands over showing five red faces. Then turn the cards face down again, replace the right hand cards on top of the left and square the packet.

- Work the magic, then double lift and turnover the apparent top card of the packet. It will be red. The Deuce has apparently vanished. Leave the card(s) reversed and turn the whole packet over to show the 2S on the face. Deal it off on to the table with the AS.
- 10. With the packet still face up in your left hand, spread the cards, thumbing them over to your right hand which takes them. Do a buckle count on the fourth card. This will leave a single face down card in your left hand. Flip it face up and add it to the back of the cards in your left hand, showing five red faces. As you display them, take off the two top cards in your right hand, retaining three (actually four) in the left. In squaring the packet up again, replace the right hand cards underneath those in the left hand. Turn the packet face down and replace it in the left hand, getting a little finger break under the top card.
- 11. Remove the next card from the face down packet on the table, miscalling it the Three of Spades. Put it on top of the packet. Say that the 3S does not penetrate the cards in either direction, it has a different sort of talent. Cut the two cards above the break to the bottom, apparently cutting the 3S into the middle of the packet.
- 12. Spread the face down packet between your hands, holding the last two cards together as one. The 3S will show up reversed in the third position. With the cards still spread, take the top three in the right hand, retaining the bottom three (actually four) in the left. Turn both hands over, showing the faces of the red cards and the back of the 3S. Everything appears as it should. The 3S has apparently turned over in the middle. Turn the cards face down again and drop the 3S on to the table with the Ace and Deuce. Replace the right hand cards on those in the left and square up the packet.

- 13. You have now one card, believed to be the four of spades left face down on the table. Ask a spectator to hold out his hand. Deal the two top cards from the packet in your hand on to his hand, turning the cards face up. They are both red cards, of course. Pick up the presumed 4S from the table, miscalling it as such, and drop it face down on top of the cards in the spectators hand. Deal the next two red cards face up on top of it. Ask the spectator to cover them with his other hand.
- 14. If the spectator has any doubts in his mind you now dispel them by turning the last two cards - held together as one, of course - face up, showing what appears to be a single red card. Hold it face up in the right hand at the inner edge, thumb on top and first two fingers underneath. Stick the card(s) into your outer breast pocket (turning it back outwards as you do so) but do not push it all the way in, leave it sticking out for about half its length. Or so it appears to the spectators. Actually your thumb pushes the face card down into the pocket, leaving the back card protruding.
- 15. Work the magic one last time. Withdraw the visible card from your pocket and show that it is now the 4S. Spectator will find that he now holds five red cards between his hands.

1850 Jazaniah Ford

Your friends are sitting round a table enjoying themselves. Then you arrive. You discover an unguarded chair and as you sit down you notice that all conversation has stopped. People are looking at you sheepishly. It is obvious that they have run out of amusing anecdotes and that now they expect you to do something; so you pluck a flea from behind your neighbour's ear. You crush it between your thumb-nails and drop it on a sheet of paper lying on your knees. Immediately the poor besotted creature comes to life darting in an erratic demented fashion all over the paper while you do your best to catch it. In the meantime your neighbour acquires a complexion which indicates a heart condition and he explains, that this is what happens when you leave your coat in the cloakroom of a magical society.

Of course you finish up by assuring everyone that it was all a joke and that the tiny piece of animated dark stuff was just a bit of plastic. Your friends will be so amused that they will all go to the bar and buy each other drinks thereby tactfully giving you the opportunity to set up your next trick while their backs are turned.

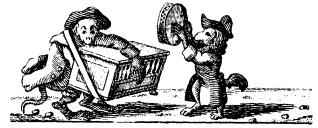

To do the flea routine you will first have to take off your trousers and sit on a nice warm chair. Cross your legs so that the left knee is over the right knee. Do this with care to avoid a painful accident. Take a fairly long piece of broad surgical tape, to the centre of which a flat circular magnet (about the size of a shilling) has been fastened with another smaller piece of the same tape, and stick it onto your left leg so that the magnet now lies on the highest point of your leg near your knee.

You will also require a small length of dark brown plastic magnet from which, using your thumb-nail, you can gouge out a tiny piece about the size of a flea. Leave it adhering to the larger piece of plastic magnet in your pocket. The only other thing you need is a fairly firm sheet of paper. You are now ready to perform but before you do, it will be necessary to put your trousers on again, otherwise your gimmick might be noticed.

When you are in company seated as before with your legs crossed and the paper on your lap, you pretend to take the flea from behind your victims ear. After crushing it take the edge of the paper with your left hand and hold it above and resting on the magnet attached to your leg. With your right hand drop the flea onto the paper directly over the magnet. Now, by a combination of slight movements of your legs and of the paper in your left hand the flea will appear to dart about the paper in a quite realistic way. To disguise these movements your right hand should hover above the flea as if you are trying to catch it.

This is sufficiently amusing to be well worth including in your repertoire in case you get a booking to appear at an entomologist's convention or at a doss-house Christmas party.

I am sure that you will be glad that I have finished, because I know you will all be itching to try it. So good luck to you!

The Page boy speaks....

Merry Yuletide to one and all. This is the time of the year when we pull Christmas crackers, roast chestnuts, do all sorts of things — silly things, funny things, things that make us happy, things that amuse our children. Have you ever wondered how many of these customs began? For instance, not many people realise that the well known old English custom of roasting chestnuts dates from the time that Santa Claus climbed down the chimney and discovered the fire was still going.

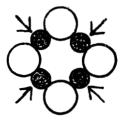

No doubt on some of the other pages you will find tricks, stunts and jokes that have been put in this magazine to enable you to amuse your friends and relations over Christmas. I wish you luck. But, whilst we're on the subject I recently had a conversation with Trevor Lewis, a Welshman, (but this we don't actually hold against him; he is really a nice guy, and I like his wife too). Trevor mentioned an effect that I think would perhaps be suitable for the Christmas period and he generously gave me permission to incluse it. I'm not going to describe the whole thing in detail but just give the general idea. You require a set of dominoes, and the effect is that they are mixed up face down, someone picks one up, looks at it and mixes them around again, all this while you are out of the room or with your back turned. When you come back or turn around you say 'that was the one you selected.' The method is very simple and utilises a principle that has been used before. Each of the dominoes has one of the spots covered with luminous paint. As long as the faces are kept face down away from the light the luminous paint will not be affected, but, as soon as one is turned up the face absorbs the light and when replaced face down on the table, and mixed around, there will be one spot that will be glowing like a beacon when looked at.

Now, there are one or two snags with this - and if you recall I said this was just an idea from Trevor — and thinking a little more about it perhaps a better way would be to use a set of dominoes that children have in which all the spots are of different colours. Reds. vellows. blues and greens etc. Now, if one of the spots (the white one) was painted with luminous paint no one would notice anything wrong. Back to the beginning. If all the dominoes are in their cardboard box (face upwards of course) the top layer can have normal faces, also the one underneath, but the bottom layer has one spot on each domino treated. The spectator sees the domino staring up at him, and as you talk you lift them out one or two at a time and then eventually turn the box over, dumping the remaining ones in a sort of stack on the table. All you do is remove the bottom layer (which will now be the top layer) and push them forward onto the table and ask someone to mix those ones up while you turn your back. You direct them to pick one up, remember it and show it to their friends who are sitting around (this gives you a little time, and the domino plenty of time to absorb the light). From then on work it out yourself. Thanks Trevor.

The newspapers have once again been featuring Uri Geller who has recently been in this country. (In fact he may still be here.) One of the big time disc jockeys jumped on the band wagon and invited Mr Geller to come along to the studio and select 12 of his favourite records. I was rather disappointed in the chat that went on between the playing of the records. Uri Geller was asked maybe 25–30 questions about how he did his things and he evaded practically all of them with bland statements about this power that he had, — and that everyone had, — but that only he had been able fully to realise it.

With one exception I didn't like his choice of records either.

Patrick Page

walt lees

CULL-A-SEPARATION

A borrowed pack is freely shuffled by a spectator. Two members of the audience each chose a card — one red, one black. These cards are inserted into the pack at different points. Instantly all the red cards gather round the red and the blacks around the black one.

This effect is just one of the many practical applications of a novel system of colour separation. Many others will suggest themselves once the system has been understood. So before explaining the detailed working of the above effect, here is a description of the basic system.

It is a way of secretly separating the red cards from the blacks, under cover of apparently removing a small number of cards (say the four aces) from a shuffled pack.

When handed the pack, quickly spread the cards towards yourself and locate an ace. Cut it to the top of the pack and square the cards.

The right hand takes the pack face up, in the Biddle position and the left commences to thumb off the cards one by one. State that you are looking for the aces.

The first card that the left hand takes (assume it i. a black one) is allowed to fall into the left palm. If the second card is also black it is allowed to fall on top of the first. Continue in this way until you come to a red one. When one appears on the face of the right hand packet take it with the left hand, but hold a break between it and the black cards below. If the following card is black, take it with the left hand, at the same time "biddling" the red card to the rear of the right hand packet. If, however the next card is also red, allow it to fall on top of the first red one and continue in this way until the next black shows up. When this happens, "biddle" the entire block of reds as the left hand thumbs off the black. It is just as easy to "biddle" a small packet of cards as to "biddle" a single one. So continue in this manner, stealing off the reds, until you come to an ace. As soon as you do, pull it off with the left thumb and toss it onto the table.

When you reach the fourth ace, drop all of the cards in the right hand onto those in the left and toss the ace down. The position will now be, that all the red cards are together in one half of the pack and all the blacks in the other. The whole operation should take about half a minute to complete.

To help attain the maximum speed with the system, the following points should be born in mind.

- 1) Always watch the right hand. In this way you will see the cards the instant they appear and can get ready to "biddle" or not as required.
- 2) Get used to working to a set pattern. For example, if you always make sure that the face card of the pack is black, before you start, then you will always be "Biddling" reds. You will soon develop the habit of stealing reds the instant they appear, without having to think about what you are doing.
- 3) Do not let the right hand move at all.
- 4) Maintain a relaxed manner and keep talking. Remember that as far as the audience are concerned, no actual trick is taking place when you are doing the move, so nobody is paying close attention to you. Do not try to hide anything, just plough in and do it.

Now to return to the original effect, described at the outset. Just one application of the system.

Take a shuffled pack, containing a joker. As soon as you are handed the pack, locate the joker and cut it to the top.

Hold the pack face up in the Biddle position and begin to go through the cards, secretly separating the colours. As you do so, request a spectator to call stop. When he does so, have him remove the card he stops you on. Next request a second spectator to stop you too, but on a card of the opposite colour. Continue separating the colours as you go. When he calls stop, have him remove his card. After he has done so, state that you need the joker and carry on until it shows up.

As soon as the joker appears, drop all the cards in the right hand onto those in the left, but hold a little finger break between the two halves.

Insert the joker face down into the face up pack at the point where you are holding the break. Push the joker right in and release the break.

Have the spectator holding the red card, insert it reversed into the red half of the pack and the spectator holding the black, put it reversed among the blacks.

Do a couple of Zarrow or Shank shuffles, retaining the order of the pack, then ribbon spread it face down across the table. Break the pack into two halves at the joker and flip each half face up. The red card has attracted all the reds and the black card all the blacks.

Post Script

The use of the Biddle move for culling is by no means new. The Biddle move for colour separation in a small packet is described by Bruce Elliott in one of his books. The idea of applying the principle to a full pack came after reading Harry Lorayne's "The Great Divide".

EFFECT:-

Performer shows Ace to Five of Spades and invites the ever suffering spectator to think of one and name his choice. The card is removed from the fan and placed face up on the table. The remaining four cards are shown to be blue backed and the selection is shown to be the only red backed card.

REQUIRED:-

Ace, two, five of SPADES (Blue backed). Three and four of spades (red backed).

METHOD:-

If the Spectator thinks of the 3 or 4
Remove selection from fan, square cards and turn them face down. Emsley Count showing four blue backed cards.

If Spectator thinks of the Ace, Two or Five Remove selection from fan and arrange cards so that the two red backed cards are at the bottom (cards are face up). Pull off the top two cards (Hindu Shuffle) flashing the red back of the bottom card. The remaining two red backed cards can be shown fairly on both sides. Although the effect has been illustrated with Ace to Five of Spades, the method can be adopted to other five card versions for example, Dai Vernon's Five card mental force.

John Calvert informs us that he will be appearing at the Collegiate Theatre, Jan 7th to 11th. This is the week following the Magic Circle Christmas show at the same theatre. John has been a good friend to magicians during his stay here and the many who have enjoyed his hospitality on 'The Magic Castle' can return the compliment by taking their friends to see his excellent show.

BOOK REVIEW:

FRED ROBINSON

THANKS TO PEPYS Bob Read £2.50

Anyone seeking a routine of practical magic entertaining to magicians and laymen alike, which can be performed under any conditions with a minimum of preparation this book will fulfil their requirements. Having seen the author perform many times at lectures, conventions, in restaurants and bars using this material your reviewer is in a position to guarantee the effectiveness and practicality of the entire contents. There are no pipe dreams or padding, and the preparation prior to performance is minimal. Neither is it necessary to pick a spot in which to perform. Just wade in wherever you are standing.

The value of the book is in the choice of suitable effects and the accompanying bits of business gags, and one-liners. Ten tricks described are:- The penetration of a handker-chief through the handle of a beer mug, Coins across, vanish of four coins from a handkerchief and their subsequent appearance, the production of a bottle of wine, knife through coat, all backs, and the hats and corks. The bottle of wine production is undoubtedly the highspot and the reader who adds this to his repertoire will have an item worth considerably more than the cost of the book.

Everything has been made easy for the reader working on the effects — the moves and description being on the left hand page and the patter, which includes over one hundred one-liners, on the opposite page and in line with the moves it accompanies. There are fifty photographs bound into the book plus a duplicate loose set, an arrangement making it possible to have the description, patter, and illustrations in view at the same time.

If you are one of the many who have felt the need for an entertaining impromptu magic act and have not got around to it this may be the book for which you have been waiting. TEN THOUGHTS ON CLOSE-UP Patrick Page (L.Davenport & Co.) 80p. 3 dollars US inc airmail

When someone with the practical experience of Pat Page decides to release some of his thoughts on tricks one can be assured that the material is of value and the seven pages of typescript giving ten of his 'thoughts' on different effects will enable most purchasers with some experience to add to or improve on one or more effects in their close-up repertoire.

There is a climax to Vernon's SPELL-BOUND, a novel production of a single coin, a new effect in which a cigarette lighter passes through the table, a switch of several coins with the aid of a purse and a sponge ball move. For the Cardman a very good double under-cut a variation on Larry Jenning's OPEN TRAVEL-LERS, a four ace and colour change combined, and an unexpected appearance of a previously selected card. Over the years we have seen all the above effects performed and can recommend it to performers of close-up tricks who have some facility with basic sleights.

ENTERTAINING WITH ESP Tony 'Doc' Shiels (David & Charles) £2.95

This book on sale to the general public is for the enthusiastic amateur who wishes to entertain his family and friends. To this end some thirty effects are explained. There are in addition seven pages on presentation and a small bibliography of books and magazines on mental magic. Inevitably there are exposures of magical principles and these include forcing, one ahead, mnemonics, and contact mindreading. No mention is made of the swami gimmick, centre tear or impression methods.

The actual effects are of an elementary nature and it is unlikely that any non-magician will connect the secrets contained in this book with the effects being performed by mentalists of the calibre of David Berglas, Maurice Fogel, Kreskin etc. In fact, the unsophisticated will probably conclude that they do possess paranormal powers.

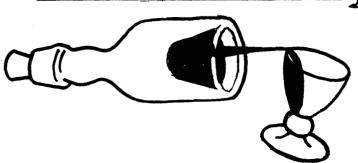

The knowledgeable magician will not find much in the way of secrets that he does not already know, but the chapter of Presentation may quite well prove to be of value.

The reader who has no prior knowledge of the methods used by mentalists will be unable to separate fact from fiction. He is informed that the hoary old sex-dector, and the ability to find a hidden thimble by contact mindreading is evidence of genuine PSI. Furthermore the author claims to have bent coins and thimbles without touching them, and without a shade of hocus-pocus. We look forward to the time when some young reader of this book achieves a high rate of success in finding the hidden thimble, and becomes the subject of intensive tests by some eminent (?) professor, (and the author of this book is the recipient of the £5000 currently being offered by David Berglas).

THE MAGIC CIRCLE

At the closed meeting Monday 18th November Cy Endfield entertained with card magic and chat. We learned that Jay Bedsworth who never divulged his methods was the inventor of the Plunger Aces. Cv saw him perform this effect, worked out the method, and Dai Vernon, unaware that it was known only to 3 people published a further idea on it and the trick thus became the property of us all. Remarking that the aces were the cards mostly used in tricks requiring four cards, he had four other cards selected and marked, which vanished one at a time and appeared on the top of the tabled pack. Finally they changed to the aces. He used a new Elmsley count, which in deference to Alex who is using it in one of his effects he did not explain. (Maybe it will be in the long awaited book). Once asked by the 'Professor' what he did when handed a pack and asked to do a trick, and aware that this gentleman did not ask idle questions, he worked on it and showed us the results. A different handling on the Biddle move, some observations on the Bluff Pass were among the many other tips given. A good and instructive evening for the card workers.

Nine members of the Magic Circle competed in the close-up competition on November 25th. This was won by Christopher Pratt with a smooth flowing act performed with effortless ease. Dave Carre was second with effects requiring above average technical skill in a confident manner which can only be achieved by a performer who is completely master of the sleights involved. David Beckley and Ken Hawes shared the third place.

Christmas is coming and the next pages are Pabular's contribution to the festive period. If you are crazy on sleights and but we hope you will find some fun for yourself and, what is perhaps more important, some things that will help you give entertainment to others. They aren't difficult and they can be learned quickly. If you do magic we are sure you can build them into something worthwhile. So put on your Christmas hat and try some of the following — some are new, some are old — and we don't know where they all came from (— but it doesn't matter does it?)

If any 10 and 20 sized packets of Players cigarettes are handy (The drawer type not flip-top) take one of the large 20 packs and remove the cigarettes and the 'slide part' that holds them. The question: How many 10 packets will go into the larger pack? The answer is shown below — open out the larger one into a ring: 3 packs of ten will go inside.

Here is a real mystery on the "medium leaves the room" theme. We'll call it "The Mysterious Walking Stick'. (It can be any object that can be seen to point in one direction.)

A pack of cards is spread out on the table, haphazardly, face down. The medium leaves the room, doors are closed, secrecy prevails. Anyone turns up any card, showing it to all. Taking a walking stick the magician's assistant lays it across the cards on the table. The medium is told to come in, (no words need be spoken at all) and then looks at the stick and the cards. After a suitable dramatic pause "Six of Diamonds" is announced — and of course it is correct. Out he goes and again it is repeated. Each time he is right, no words are ever spoken and even if you are a magician you will have trouble working this one out.

Imagine a clock face on the table, with twelve o'clock against a definite position. Ace to Queen are the hours at which the point of the stick points. The suit is shown by the assistant having his hand in left or right jacket or trousers pockets (4 options using CHSD code) If a King is turned up the assistant keeps the pocket code for suits but has his jacket buttoned and the stick is ignored. For the follow-up the the imaginary clock-face is moved round through 90° and so on.

Back to the Medium leaving the room idea here is a clever one from Tony Faro. Without the 'medium' being present the name of any town or place in the world is mentioned. When he or she comes back in the straight man starts to rattle off name after name of places and towns in any order as fast as he can (or as slowly, it really doesn't matter). Right in the middle of this verbal stream the medium suddenly announces the name of the town initially chosen. The whole thing can be repeated as often as you like and the secret probably will remain unfathomed.

How? Again it's easy but clever: the town or place mentioned before the chosen one contains in its spelling a part of the body i.e. Bournemouth, Ruislip, Footscray, Liverpool.

Here is a quick riddle from Ken Brooke — take 10 single 1p coins and spread them out behind the other coins. Say "If I put all these coins on top of one another which is the lowest value coin in front of you that will have its diameter equal to the height of the pile? (We won't give you the answer — try it and surprise yourself).

Here is another good one when young children are present and it is ideal to do when you are all seated round the table. Pick up any small object, turn to the person on your left and say "Wong How was a Chinaman. He had two eyes, a nose, a mouth. Pass it on!" The recipient has to do exactly the same thing to the person on his or her left. The riddle is to repeat exactly the actions of the performer, words and all. Most people will not be able to do this because they are concentrating on the words. The secret is simply to pass on the object with the left hand. Normally this won't be done because the article will be taken with the right hand and then the person is involved with the words

While still at the bar, and after you have enjoyed the free drink earned from the last feat follow on with this one. It will win you another drink and make Christmas a happy event (At least for you) It requires some initial capital expenditure — enough to buy 3 pints of beer and 3 whiskies.

Place the 3 pints of beer in a row on the bar, and opposite them the 3 whiskies. Say "I'll bet you that I can drink the 3 beers before you are able to finish the 3 whiskies. I only ask that you do not touch any of my beer mugs whilst I drink." When your financier has agreed to this, set the scene for the start of the race.

At the word 'go' immediately grab your pint. Drink it very quickly indeed (you may wish to use half pints for this one!) and as soon as you have finished it place it upside down over his last glass of whisky! He cannot finish his drink without touching your glass. (It is sometimes advisable to depart fairly quickly after you have done this trick).

Keeping with the 'medium and assistant' idea here is an intriguing effect from Tony Faro which we will call "The Hand Resteth." With the Medium blindfolded (or out of the room, or both) the 'straight man' touches or points to any one person present, without speaking. To perform the effect he then holds his hand above different people, saying each time "The Hand Resteth." He says nothing more, and each time he says it in the same way. When the chosen person is underneath his hand he says "On whom does the hand rest?" Immediately the medium names the person. (It doesn't even have to be a person. Tony says it has been done with a pet budgerigar and a dog who happened to be looking on at the time!)

The secret is very good and so simple! It is the last person (or animal!) to talk or make a sound before the Medium leaves the room or is told to concentrate again. Knowing this the partner only has to touch or point to the appropriate person and can proceed to say his lines as described. (You can see now how the budgerigar and dog got in on the act!)

When the time is ripe he repeats the line 'On whom does the hand rest?" The Medium, of course, is able to give out the correct name.

Ken Brooke gave us this puzzle too, again with coins — any denomination will do but you'll need two sets of 4 coins with one lot being worth twice as much as the other set.

(e.g. 4x1p and 4x2p). Lay them out as in (1)

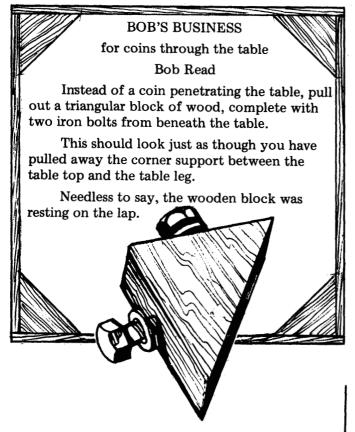

Like this each side is worth 4 pence. The problem? In 4 moves make a square with the sides being 5 pence in value instead of 4. A move is described as moving one coin in a line without touching another, (and of course you can't take any away). The answer is at the foot of page 45. (Foreign readers please note — you can work this how you like provided the coins in one set are twice the value of those coins in the second set).

Next time you are in a bar, try this one. It works, and you can win a drink from it (—and isn't that a good recommendation?) Ask for a full, unopened bottle of brandy and place it in front of you on the bar saying, "I'll bet you that I can drink a measure of brandy from this bottle without uncorking or unsealing it."

When your audience gives up you prove you can do just what you said. How? Look at the bottom of page 49!

Bob Read has pointed out an idea with a pocket calculator that appeared, we believe, in Time Magazine. We think it is too good to pass by and give you below the details and a brief story idea given to us by Bob:-

Crossing the desert by camel some oil sheikhs met at their rendezvous to hold a meeting about how much they should charge for their oil in the coming year. They entered their tent, leaving their camels outside. ("you know what a camel is — a horse designed by a committee.") Over their bowls of sheeps' eyes they discussed the proposed price of a barrel of oil. One said:

"We'll charge 142 dollars a barrel" (press up 142 on your calculator).

Another quickly intervened:

"Not enough — we've got to allow for inflation. It's got to be at least 154 dollars!" (Add on 154 to the total 142 already recorded thus giving you a figure of 142154)

Another interrupted:

"What about the poor countries in South America? They can't afford much — and in any case they only pay us in coffee beans."

So they decided to charge them 69 dollars. (Notch up 69 onto the 6 digits already recorded, thus now giving you 14215469.)

A fourth Sheikh has his say:

"Look, this isn't going to last for ever. We've got to make money while the going's still good. Let's increase the price by 5 times just to be sure!" (Multiply the total showing by 5 — totalling 71077345.)

They all seemed to agree on this and sat back to think about their profits.

Finally one of them said:

"This really seems a lot of money. Where are all the profits going to go?"

(Turn your calculator upside-down and you'll have the answer!)

Editorial....

Pabular number 4 already and time has really flown. It only seems a week ago that we were launching our first issue, wondering what would happen and whether it would be accepted.

It has. In a few weeks we have gained a larger readership than we had expected; Pabular is now read in more than 20 countries. From Norway, Australia, Japan and America magicians have written to us. We want to thank you for being one of them and supporting us.

Within a few months we will be producing the first of several special issues. The first will be a tribute to the late Johnny Ramsay. So many have never seen him and know him as a legend. Those who did watch him will never forget it and will understand why he has a place amongst the greatest of all close-up magicians.

As soon as we can have them, we want more pages — we certainly don't lack good material to fill them. Of course this depends on several things, not least our readership, but a larger Pabular may not be too far away.

Perhaps within these extra pages we will introduce more advertising; not so much that Pabular becomes dependant on it because that is not our policy, but because advertisements, particularly in magic, show what is happening and give ideas even if you never buy anything.

For the moment we have probably said enough. One thing we know we will do, because we believe in it, is to make Pabular the best magazine we can.

NICK BOLTON

FRED KAPS is in this year's TMAGIC CIRCLE SHOW

28th December-4th January

(except 29th & 31st Dec)

That ought to be enough to attract Pabular readers yet there's also JAY MARSHALL, DICK ZIMMERMAN, PIERRE BRAHMA, AL CARTHY and other superb acts

ALL Magicians should SEE THIS GREAT SHOW

Collegiate Theatre, Gordon Street, London, W.C.1. Tel. 01-387 9629 (Before December 28th book through George Farrow, C/305 Clapham Road, London, SW9/01-274 6393)

THE INTERNATIONAL MAGAZINE

Now in its 3rd year.

MAKE SURE EACH ISSUE IS SENT TO YOU REGULARLY. SEND TODAY ONLY £1.50 ($4.00) FOR ONE YEAR (SIX) ISSUES SENT POST FREE TO ANYWHERE IN THE WORLD.

32, glossy pages in each issue THE INTERNATIONAL MAGIC STUDIO.
(RON MACMILLAN)

89 CLERKENWELL ROAD, HOLBORN, LONDON E.C.1.

Magical apparatus made to order. Fred Snook, 47 Dartington House, Senior Street, London W2.

Thanks to Pepys, a fifteen minute act with props found in any home or pub. The tricks include the production of a full bottle of wine from a handkerchief. Complete with patter (over 100 one liners) 60 pages, 50 photos. Just Way, Kenton, Middx. £2.50 post free.

Magic books by post, 21 Ravenhill Road, Lower Knowle, Bristol BS3 5BN. Lists 10p refundable.

Wanted: The Card Magic of Le Paul.
State price and condition.
Alex Elmsley, 6 Smith Terrace,
Chelsea, London SW3.

TEN THOUGHTS ON CLOSE-UP by patrick page

NO MIRACLES, BUT TEN THOUGHTS ON THE CLOSE-UP THEME. SOME NEW, SOME OLD, ALL PRACTICAL.

NOT FOR THE BEGINNER AS IT IS ASSUMED THAT YOU WILL KNOW MOST OF THE SLEIGHTS REQUIRED. SEVEN PAGES OF TYPESCRIPT ONLY — BUT IT IS THE EIGHTH PAGE (PATRICK, THAT IS) THAT REALLY COUNTS.

PRICE 80p USA S3.00 inc Airmail

L DAVENPORT & CO

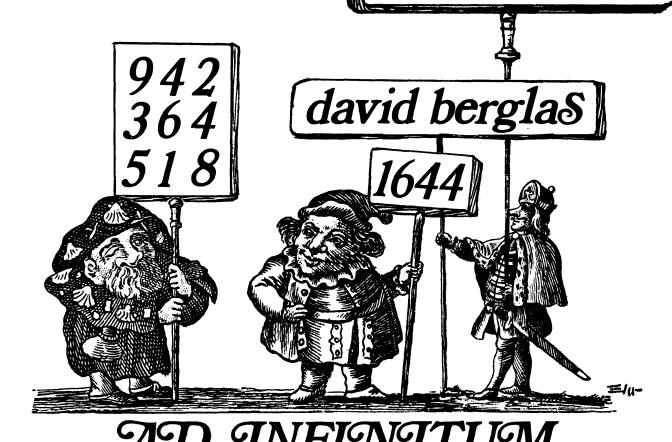

51 Gt Russell St. London WC1. 01 405 8524

Pabular is published after the second week in every month and is printed by Instance Printers, Paddock Wood, Kent, England. Subscriptions may be obtained direct from the publishers, Pabular, P.O. Box 180, London SE12 8JJ or through many magic dealers. Price 50 pence per copy (or US $ 1.25) postage included. Editorial or content copy should be sent to Fred Robinson, 1 Crescent Court, 24 Crescent Road, New Barnet, Herts, England. Advertising rates sent on request — smalls 3 pence per word (US 10 cents). Dealer enquiries welcomed. Reproductions of old prints and historical magical items by kind permission of Tony Faro.

The Magazine of Close-up Magic

Vol.1 №5 JAN.1975

This is a prediction effect with numbers that can be performed close-up or to a large because you could this figures and had added that can be performed close-up or to a large audience. It requires no preparation and is comparatively easy to perform. You will only need a sheet of paper and a pen, or blackboard and chalk.

Effect:-

You ask any spectator for a 3 figure number and write it down so that it is clearly seen by everyone. A second and third person give two more 3 figure numbers which are written underneath the first.

"If I said that I could predict the total of these 3 numbers you would not be amazed because you could think that I was quick at figures and had added them up as you chose them.

"But if we take all these figures and I ask you to completely rearrange them you must agree that no-one could know the total they will make."

Nevertheless, you do make a prediction, leaving it unseen with a spectator. The audience themselves now rearrange the figures, making three entirely different numbers. Despite the fairness and freedom of choice, the new total obtained is shown to have been accurately predicted.

Method:-

Although this is not difficult it is necessary to think carefully. (So that you may follow this explanation easily we will use the numbers in our illustration).

As you write the first three figure number down you mentally add up the sum of its figures and add two zeros:

e.g.
$$9 + 4 + 2 = 15 + 2$$
 zeros, giving 1500.

You repeat this with the second number chosen but adding only one zero:

e.g.
$$3 + 6 + 4 = 13 + 1$$
 zero, giving 130.

The last number's digits are added and no zero is added:

e.g.
$$5+1+8=14$$

You now add these 'secret' numbers together:

1500

130

14

1644 = Total

This is your prediction number which is written and given to a spectator. (Although done is your head the addition of these 3 numbers is not difficult because they are added up as you go along).

You now have to have the numbers rearranged and this is done as follows:

Have any person choose any digit from the first row (9 in our example) and record this as being the first figure of a new number. Have a second person choose any figure from the second line (4). A third person chooses from the third line (8). This now gives you the first number: 948. (As you add up the digits cross them off your original rows so that each is only used once).

Repeat this procedure to obtain the second new number (461) and finally the third (235) (which in fact selects itself from the only figures left). These total 1644, your prediction.

To repeat the effect use new numbers that have just been selected and work exactly the same formula. To check that you understand the system, the new prediction would be calculated as follows: 2100 (2 zeros)

110 (1 zero)

10

2220 = New prediction

(Although this has been described as a separate operation the preparation for the follow-up prediction is actually done as the first part of the trick is being performed. In this way the prediction is made apparently without stalling. This helps make the effect very impressive especially if further repeats are done).

$$942 = 1500$$

$$364 = 130$$

$$518 = \frac{14}{1644}$$

$$948 = 2100$$

$$461 = 110$$

$$235 = 10$$

$$1644 = 2220$$

$$812$$

$$445$$

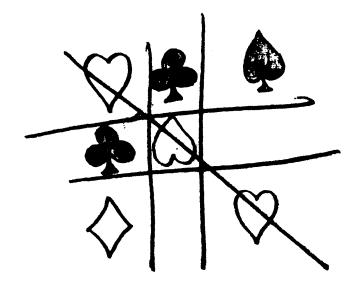

$$963$$

$$2220$$
And so on. Ad infinitum.

Editors' Note

This is the first trick that David Berglas has contributed to any magazine since 1952 and we are very pleased that Pabular is publishing it. The idea for this effect developed from a recent discussion with James Randi.

David makes the point that the effect does not necessarily have to be a prediction: once the principle is understood it could be used for a book test or an effect with cards etc. The reader can choose.

The Page boy speaks....

No doubt by the time you read this the Christmas period will be nothing more than a pleasant memory for most of you. By now you will have read and reread all those books you have told your wives, sweethearts and children to buy you for Christmas. And all the latest miracles you have been reading about in the magazines and earmarking, I hope that you were suitably surprised when they were handed to you. I was lucky myself because I happen to be both a Circus Nut and a Punch and Judy Idiot. From New York Al Flosso sent me a book about American Circus that I had found impossible to obtain and that I think has been out of print. On looking through it there is a picture of a small group outside a circus. And lo and behold, right bang in the middle is a very young Al Flosso.

Surprisingly, Al never mentioned the fact that his photograph was there. Friend Jim Dodding, a drama teacher residing in London but who has recently been to the US and Canada, surprised me with a nineteenth century print of a figure of Punch and Harlequin in the forms of marionettes. Of course they were intended for cutting out, pasting on cardboard and stringing. Needless to say they look much nicer as they are and will one day be suitably framed.

You may remember that in a recent issue of Pabular I was asking about Close-up Performers — where they work and what they do etc. Within a few days of this going into print I had a phone call from a friend asking me to go along to a shindig in a restaurant in Oxford Street, pretend that I was a Western-type gambler, and do a few tricks. Naturally the Pageboy jumped at this opportunity (the fact that he was to be paid for it may have had something to do with it). Eventually I rolled up and the place was decorated like a Western saloon with 'Wanted' posters on the wall etc., etc. Some of the guests turned up in cowboy hats and similar gear but most didn't. The guy who booked me to do the show (believe it or not he lives in London and is an Honory Sheriff of some county in Texas) was in charge of the entertainments. We had a rope spinning act in Western garb and a girl dancer who was similarly dressed and kept firing a gun and frightening everyone. My brief was to wander around doing tricks when I felt like it. The room should perhaps have held about 120 comfortably, but in fact there were probably 250 there. There were very few tables; most of the people were standing around drinking and there was some idiot with a two-headed machine he called a 'disco' who kept pumping out loud music all evening. For the record I wore dress trousers and a fancy brilliant green and black brocade waist-coat and a very tall 'foil' hat which someone thought looked like western gambler's hat. I felt like an idiot but surprisingly everyone was suitably impressed.

Midway through the evening there was a little bit of a floor show in which the Sheriff MC did a few gags, the rope spinner spun his ropes, the girl dancer frightened everyone and the boy-wonder did his miracles. The area in which we worked was about the size of a postage stamp and the show went accordingly. Enough said. For those of you who may be interested, the most effective trick from an audience reaction point of view was most definitely the Sponge Balls.

The trick that made them think I really could handle a deck of cards was the Ambitious Card (more or less the Vernon routine with perhaps a couple of other things sneaked in somewhere). What really shook them was a straightforward colour change using a Hofzinzer top change as described by Cy Endfield in the Gen many years ago. Fortunately, due to the situation, I only needed to do a couple of tricks to the one or two people I happened to have collared. (Surprisingly this wasn't very difficult because eventually they were following me around and pulling me over to their friends. I felt like a real star).

A little later in the evening when I felt that the people there had seen most of the tricks I was doing (in fact I was wrong because new guests were arriving all evening) I thought I would change one or two tricks. From my little suitcase hidden in a corner I took out Devano's rising cards, some coins and a silk etc., and rejoined the melee. An interesting thing occurred when I did Devano's cards: two people offered to buy "the trick". This surprised me until I realized that all evening I had been told how skilful I was, and that somehow they now realized that a card rising out of a deck had nothing to do with me. It had to be a gadget or a gimmick of some sort — "a trick". This shook me and after performing it perhaps three or four times I hid it back in the case.

I discussed this with Fred Kaps and he thought that if I had done several other tricks with the same deck and then gone into the rising cards it may have helped because they would not have suspected a trick deck.

He may well be right but it still worries me.

Patrick Page

In "Greater Magic" John Hilliard devote's a little more than twelve pages of the "Old Wine In New Bottles" chapter to the effect he calls The Miracle Divination. Many others, E.Joseph, G.Blake, J.G.Thompson and T.Sellers to name but a few, have also published their thoughts on this effect.

As with most routines based on mathematical principles the main difficulty is in finding a presentation which will hold the interest of the spectators up to the climax.

The following is a presentation which has been found of value, and perhaps some of "PABULAR'S" readers will be tempted to give the routine a trial run.

First we will detail the routine and props used in the close-up or pocket trick version, and then suggest how to dress the routine and give it a little more eye appeal.

The patter presentation is based on the holiday traveller's attempt to bring back that little extra duty free item over and above his allowance, and his fear that the customs officer using his psychological skills will be able to detect his little secret. You offer to demonstrate how these skills could be put to use and ask for the help of three spectators to act as amateur smugglers. Each assistant selects an envelope which contains a card on which is typed certain information.

Here are the three cards

IF YOU HAVE VISITED ITALY take the WHISKY FRANCE take the VERMOUTH HOLLAND take the WHISKY

IF YOU HAVE VISITED FRANCE take the VERMOUTH HOLLAND take the GIN ITALY take the SHERRY

IF YOU HAVE VISITED HOLLAND take the BRANDY FRANCE take the BRANDY ITALY take the SHERRY

The cards are not numbered as shown, but the performer must be able to distinguish each envelope. A secret mark on each envelope to denote 1, 2 and 3 is all that is needed. The card shown as number one goes into the envelope with the secret marking for one, and cards two and three go into their correct envelopes.

When the envelopes are chosen note the number of the envelope and in your mind asign this number to the person who selected it. A number of cards are next removed from another envelope and these cards are spread out on a table. Retain the envelope in your hand.

iack avis

A SPIRIT DETECTION

The cards you place on the table are marked as follows:-

ITALY	FRANCE	HOLLAND	GIN
WHISKY	VERMOUTH	SHERRY	BRANDY

After you have turned your back, ask the spectator who you know holds the number one envelope to go to the table and select one of the three countries, FRANCE, HOLLAND or ITALY.

When he has made the selection ask him to remove the card he will find inside his envelope and follow the instructions given. He is then to put the three cards he is now holding back into the envelope and then return to his seat.

Call on spectator number two to follow the same procedure and then have spectator number three make his selection.

When all assistants are seated return to the table and pick up the two remaining cards and place them into the envelope you are still holding. You of course note which two items have been left. At this point it must be explained that on the back of the envelope you are holding you have penciled in the following information.

Key	1	2	3
BRANDY	ITALY	FRANCE	HOLLAND
GIN	SHERRY	VERMOUTH	WHISKY
BRANDY	ITALY	HOLLAND	FRANCE
WHISKY	SHERRY	GIN	VERMOUTH
GIN	HOLLAND	FRANCE	ITALY
SHERRY	FRANDY	VERMOUTH	WHISKY
SHERRY	FRANCE	HOLLAND	ITALY
VERMOUTH	BRANDY	GIN	WHISKY
GIN	HOLLAND	ITALY	FRANCE
WHISKY	BRANDY	SHERRY	VERMOUTH
GIN	FRANCE	ITALY	HOLLAND
VERMOUTH	FRANDY	SHERRY	WHISKY

To make use of this chart, look down the Key column and locate the pair of items you have returned to the envelope.

Having found these, move to the right, the pair in the First column belong to spectator one, the next pair to spectator two and the last pair to spectator number three.

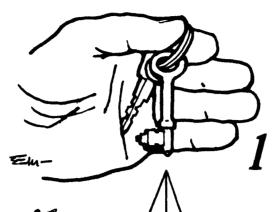

This information you now reveal in as entertaining a manner as possible, you will find plenty of scope to play act this part to the hilt.

The props for this pocket version may be as simple as a few pieces of white card with the names typewritten in, or a nice looking set may be made up with "Lettra" dry type.

Mention was made of presenting this routine during a more formal show. The three envelopes used by the spectators remain the same, but in place of the printed cards used to denote the places and objects substitute three coloured travel folders, obtainable from any travel agent, and use five of the miniature bottles of spirits obtainable at most wine stores.

The KEY chart is written on the back of a clip-board, and clipped to the front of the board you have a mock customs declaration form. Each assistant is asked to read the declaration and of course you have ample time to read off what information you require. When the routine is finished give each assistant a miniature bottle of spirit as a memento of his first and, we hope, last attempt at smuggling.

bob hamilton | BENT UPON DECEPTION...

The David Berglas article has prompted me to write up a method for bending borrowed keys which I came upon almost by accident.

As I'm sure you know it is so often possible to improvise an effect when performing close-up magic that has an astounding impact on the spectators. The working conditions and atmosphere providing the cover and misdirection to enable you to make the critical move that makes the impromptu miracle possible. After the event it is very difficult to define precisely the method because of the numerous variables involved. What I'm trying to say is that what follows is a principle which can be used when the conditions are right.

As so often happens in this 'Geller age', talk at the club or pub gets around to his (I almost put a capital H!) special powers. Knowing that I dabble in the magical arts I was asked if I could perform a 'bending' effect. In typical Geller style I stated that I could, but not necessarily just when I wanted to — the powers were not completely in my control, however I would be prepared to try!

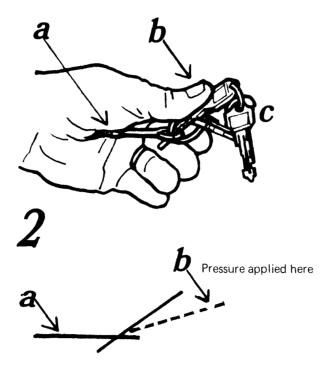

I asked the assembled group if they had a bunch of keys, to throw them on the table. (Plenty of scope here for bawdy humour e.g. "Is this how wife swapping really began!!").

Taking up a couple of bunches of the keys, I noticed that one of them had a household 'back door' type key on. See Fig. 1. As I toyed with the keys (maintaining an incessant flow of Gellerisms) I managed to position the end of a Yale 'front door' type key into the opening of the 'back door' key. See Fig. 2. All this was done under cover of the curled fingers of course. I now had a simple lever system, all I had to do now was to put pressure on key B, end of key

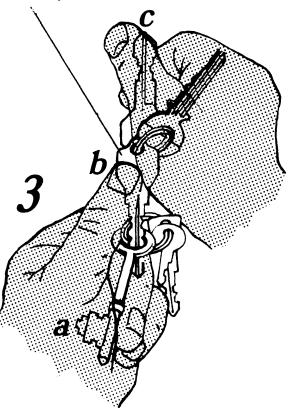

A was 'locked' under the ball of the thumb. Whilst examining one of the other keys, C, I applied pressure to the end of key B by using the heel of this hand. See Fig. 3. It's difficult to describe this exactly and, of course, there must be sufficient misdirection to cover the application of pressure. The sort of remark I made was — "By the way sometimes the key actually breaks — so I hope this isn't the key to a chastity belt!"

I think that if you play around with the lever system described you'll come to get the idea. There has to be some movement of the hands in order to hide the pressure.

End of A 'locked under ball of thumb

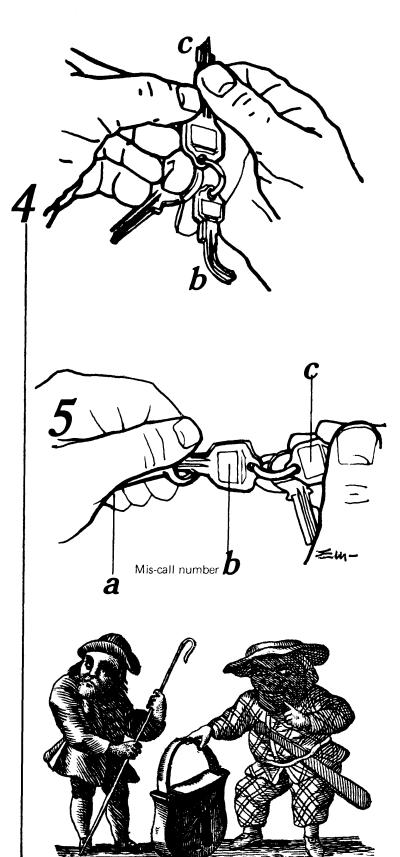

Pressure on end of 'B' applied with heel of hand as thumb and fingers rub key C

After bending the key (it was still concealed by curled fingers) I began gently rubbing key C, after a few seconds I remarked that I wasn't having much luck with that key. I pulled the bunch of keys from the hand, Fig. 4, making sure that the bent key was well covered and asked who the keys belonged to. I then dumped the keys into the hand of the owner asking him/her to hold them in a closed fist. With suitable patter about the power being sometimes generated by the owner of the keys, I placed left hand above and right hand below their closed hand and asked the person to close his eyes and think "BEND". I clicked my fingers and asked him to examine his keys — I acted very surprised, a la Geller saying, "Look, look one has bent".

The above is a sketchy outline of the method I have used many times now and have found I could put in other bits and pieces. E.g. when rubbing the key C I would call out the number of the key B, the one being bent, asking them to remember the number, this miscalling can only be used when the keys are similar i.e. B & C. When the bending is finished and the keys dumped into the spectators hand the impact of the named key being bent gives the effect added punch (see Fig. 5).

PAIRED CHOICE

As an effect this is not original, being another coincidence effect. However this method may appeal to many performers since there is no noting of any positions or counting to special numbers, or indeed looking at the face of any cards. The method is extremely straight forward and does not call for any intricate moves so loved by some card workers. You will of course need to practice but it is not difficult.

EFFECT:

A deck of cards may be thoroughly shuffled and handed to the performer, who then spreads for a card to be selected, noted, and returned to the deck. The cards are squared and cut, following which the performer asks another spectator to either give him a number, to which he will count for a second selection, or he can call stop as the performer counts the cards from the top of the deck. Once again the second card is noted and the counted off cards replaced on top, the deck cut and handed to a spectator to deal into two piles.

Following this the performer removes a card simultaneously from the top of each packet and turns it over, dealing the cards side by side on the table, face up. The spectators who selected the cards are asked to call stop when they see their cards. In fact they both call stop at the same time, showing that their selected cards turned up at the same position in each packet.

METHOD:

There is no preparation, so if you wish the cards may be shuffled at the beginning of the effect. On receiving the cards back the performer commences to run them from left to right, requesting a spectator to remove and note any card he wishes, and return it to the deck. When he has done this it is necessary to bring the chosen card to the top of the deck. The performer may have his own favourite way of doing this, but if not then an easy way is to hold a break above the returned card when replacing the top half, and double cutting the cards bringing the chosen one to the top. Now with no further moves the performer requests another spectator to give him any number and that he will count down to that number which will become the second chosen card. On being given the number the performer pushes the first card into his right hand, followed by the next card which goes under the first and so on until the number given has been reached. After the second card has been pushed off, under the first and chosen card, the deck can be slowly raised as you continue counting until the cards are facing the audience. As you push the card off at the number given by the second spectator, the first chosen card is pushed back onto the deck (see postscript). When the card at the chosen number has been noted, replace the counted cards back on top of the pack and square the cards.

Now if the number given was an even one, you do nothing further. On the other hand if it was an odd number you double undercut one card to the bottom of the deck.

The cards are now handed to a spectator to deal into two heaps, the cards being dealt alternatively to each heap.

The performer now removes a card at a time from the top of each heap, turning the cards face up and asking the spectators to call stop when they see their cards. Of course he is stopped by both at the same time.

NOTE:

It is better when turning the cards face up to expose one slightly in advance of the other. Performed in this manner when the first selected card is seen and the spectator calls stop, the card from the other packet can be turned over slowly to point the coincidence more effectively.

POSTSCRIPT:

This move I have used in many of my published effects, so the reader may be familiar with it. I first saw it in Brian MacCarthy's Slow Sleights, but it goes back to Stanyons Magic 1907. I also gave a description of the move in the Pentagram Vol. 1, No. 7 which involved a double lift not required in this effect. It will be readily seen that if the move is handled smoothly a spectator can stop you at any time during the count instead of asking for a number.

The Doc brief....

Pat Page . . . a word in your shell-like ears, if I may . . .

So, the old lady who charges 50p for a tea-cup 'reading' is nothing but a con-artist? And the likes of Al Koran, Vic Perry, Maurice Fogel, the Piddingtons etc are 'honest tradesmen plying their wares', respected by magicians throughout the world? I'm sorry, Pat, but I cannot see the logic of your argument. It seems to contain a grossly unfair double-standard and, apart from that, your statement about magicians' 'respect' is open to question as the mentalists named above have all been involved in what many magicians seem to regard as con-artistry.

Al Koran's name has been used as the 'author' of more than one ghosted book of pseudo psychic 'self-improvement' of the kind which makes our magician friends see red. Vic Perry is on record as having said and done things which caused magicians to shriek with horror and accuse Vic of being (I quote) 'a cheat, a phoney, and a disgrace to the profession'. Maurice 'Fortune Formula' Fogel was in the centre of a storm of controversy, twenty five years ago, about the 'ethics' of fooling the great British public. Fogel's arch enemy, at the time, was Arthur Helliwell, of 'The People' (famous for its high moral standards) who, shortly afterwards, started sniping at the Piddingtons. The Australian telepaths were constantly attacked by magicians, including big wheels in the Circle, who took exception to the fact that so many 'innocents' seemed to believe in the Piddingtons as genuine mind-readers. Now the same old story is happening all over again with magicians moaning about Uri Geller . . . who is, I'm sure, well pleased with the resulting publicity.

My article was certainly not concerned with praising thieves. Read it again, Pat, and you'll find that the main point was magical effect... and my personal liking for authentic mystery and showmanship.

I hope I'll be forgiven if I keep the arguments simmering by leaving you with a few assorted quotes from some of the top names in the business

'Learn the art of cold reading and you can forget all the rest'. (Bill Larsen Snr.)

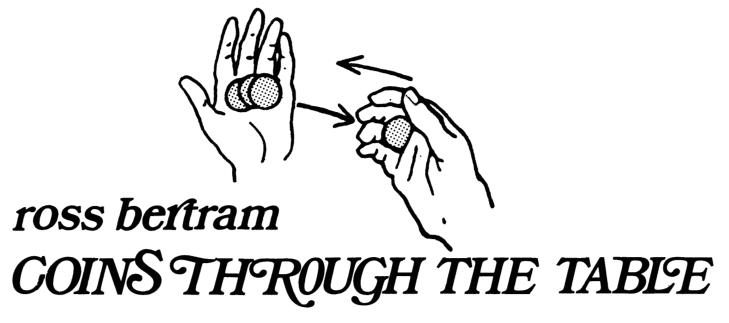

'Dai Vernon is possibly the finest mechanic of all times. Ed Marlo is extremely clever and works well for magical audiences. But neither is a showman'. (Vic Perry.)

'There are dozens of young men in London who can run rings around me with flourishes and sleights . . . but I get the engagements'. (Charles Bertram)

'The public doesn't want to learn that their heroes have feet of clay. Audiences want magicians to do magic, not tricks'. (Bascom Jones Jr.)

'This thing is impossible, yet you stand there and you do it! You are so confident, it's obvious you must have some power that the ordinary human being lacks. I don't think that is overstating the case'. (Al Koran)

'The sole purpose is to make people think that they are witnessing the impossible. That's magic'. (Dunninger)

EFFECT:

Four coins are taken in the left hand, and four in the right. The right hand is placed under the table, and the coins in the left hand pass through the table and join those in the right hand.

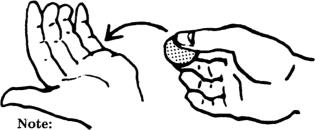

INSTRUCTIONS:

Lay the coins on the table in two vertical rows of four each. Pick up the first coin in the left-hand row, holding it between the right thumb and fingertips. Hold the left hand palm up, the fingers flat and fingertips almost touching the edge of the table. Throw the coin into the left hand, the hands swinging towards each other during the action. Count "One". The coin rests at the base of the left fingers as in the finger-palm position. Throw the second coin and third coin similarly, counting "Two" and "Three". Pick up the fourth one and hold it with the greater portion of the coin resting on the right fingers. As you start the same swinging motion as before, with the right thumb draw the coin back into finger-palm position. Apparently toss the coin into the left hand, but actually retain it in the right and throw the three coins in the left hand back into the right catching them in the finger-palm position. Count "Four".

With the right hand, which has the four coins finger-palmed, casually reach for the first of the four coins in the right hand row. Pick it between the thumb and the first and second fingertips, counting, "One". Turn the hand with the palm up to display the coin, the four palmed coins being concealed by the curved fingers. Place the first coin on the second, pick up the two and place them on top of the third; then pick up the three and place them on top of the last coin. Count "Two", "Three", and "Four" as you assemble the coins. Tilt the group of four coins on its side and hold it between the thumb and the first and second fingers. Draw the coins up into the hand, on top of the finger-palmed group of four, and hold the eight coins as one stack. Clench the right hand and turn it with fingers up. You may, if you wish, open it briefly again to allow the audience to get a quick flash of the coins.

Place the right hand underneath the table, and the left fist on top of the table, over the right hand. With the right thumb lift up three or four coins and allow them to fall back on the remaining coins with a click representing the audible passage of one coin through the table top. Move the hands to another position, and apparently pass another coin through the table. Do this twice more, then open the left hand and show it empty. Bring the right hand from under the table and slowly open it. Cascade the eight coins onto the table.

This sleight can be utilized for the complete vanish of several coins as a dramatic conclusion to some other effect. Have a miniature wand or magic talisman of some kind in the right coat or trousers pocket. After, apparently toss all the coins, one at a time, into the left hand, place the right hand with its finger-palmed coins into the pocket and bring out the talisman, leaving the coins behind. Rub the left hand with the talisman, and show that the coins have disappeared.

We will soon be publishing an issue dedicated to the late Johnny Ramsay — probably in April. If any readers have relevant information, anecdotes, photographs or perhaps even a trick by him we would like to know about it. Please send any contributions to Fred Robinson (address on back page).

Those who have watched Bob Read perform his Cups and Balls routine will welcome the news that it has now been published. Based on the Vernon routine it uses one standard cup, a mug with a handle, and a paper cup. In addition to standard moves the tip of a wand vanishes, appears under a cup, is screwed back on the wand, appears at the other end and finally returns to its proper place. The final production is 'meat and 2 veg' during which a wrist watch disintegrates. There are many other 'bits of business', over 20 good patter lines and 83 photographs. As in 'Thanks to Pepys' the moves and patter are in line on opposing pages. It is entitled 'The Penultimate Cups and Balls.'

From Peter Kane comes a good tip for anyone performing a routine that requires two bank notes to have the same number and has difficulty in making the necessary erasures clearly.

Obtain two notes with exactly the same numbers except for the last digits. These should be 4 and 1.

To change the 4 into 1:

Cover the upright and the right hand side of the 4 with a piece of selotape (self adhesive transparent tape). Leave the left hand side of the number uncovered. Erase the uncovered portion with a razor blade. Remove the tape and repeat the operation with the right-hand side. Careful use of the tape will provide a perfect fake.

Fred Kaps Lecture

This lecture on Sunday 29th of January was probably the high-spot of the close-up magician's year: a wonderful and rewarding three hours.

Fred Kaps mystified, entertained and explained many of the items from his professional repertoire to a score or more lovers of close-up magic. The lecture was held at Vic Pinto's studio off Farringdon Road, London, and all who were present surely benefited.

He talked about misdirection and his ideas on presentation to lay audiences. Of the tricks performed the following were of special interest: a silver coin and a copper coin held at the fingertips of each hand transpose, change to two copper, then become two silver. Remarking that we may suspect that more than two coins were used, Fred agrees and two coins fall from each hand. Each of the four is Chinese, with a square hole in the middle and the original coins are no longer there! We offer no solution. A selected card vanishes from the pack and is discovered with two jokers that are on the other side of the table and were removed earlier on. Most of us can control a card and palm it, but what kind of magic is used to add it to the jokers unseen by a room-full of magicians intent on seeing how it was done? Such is the power of misdirection in the hands of a master.

We also saw Edward Victor's Eleven Card Trick performed with dollar bills, "Hornswoggled" (originally published in Hugard's Magic Monthly), two versions of a trick in which a signed card appears in a small box, and much more.

We ran out of superlatives for this occasion. Ken Brooke, who arranged the lecture, introduced Fred Kaps as the best all-round magician in the world and surely there are very few who would question this.

Fred Kaps has kindly allowed Pabular to print part of his lecture notes entitled "Professional Views on doing Professional Magic for Laymen" and to anyone who respects their craft this is valuable guidance. We are indebted to Jay Marshall for permission to publish this in the near future.

Vic Pinto, incidentally, has a trick that Pat Page regarded as being the high-spot of the Hastings IBM Convention (see Pabular No.2). It requires your presence and Vic's camera to produce and if you are interested he will be at the Blackpool Convention on Sunday 23rd February (as will Pabular).

A Final Thought:

Next time you feel like criticizing a magician imagine that you are going to perform next.

Wanted: The Ramsay Legend, Johnny Ramsay's routine with the Cups and Balls, Cylinder and Coins, Triple Restoration. State price and condition. Also required: any books or data relating to cheating at gambling, card sharping etc.

Fred Robinson, 1 Crescent Court, 24 Crescent Road, New Barnet, Herts.

Magic books by post, 21 Ravenhill Road, Lower Knowle, Bristol BS3 5BN. Lists 10p refundable.

Magical apparatus made to order. Fred Snook, 47 Dartington House, Senior Street, London W2.

Thanks to Pepys, a fifteen minute act with props found in any home or pub. The tricks include the production of a full bottle of wine from a handkerchief. Complete with patter (over 100 one liners) 60 pages, 50 photos. Just a few left. Direct from Bob Read, 32 Regal Way, Kenton, Middx. £2.50 post free. (USA $8.00 inc. Airmail)

Thanks to all readers who have sent us comments and suggestions about the magazine with their subscription renewals. They are all useful and are being noted — though we can't promise to put them all into practice because quite a few cancel each other out!

Those who have asked us for back numbers and have been disappointed please note that later in the year we will be reprinting out of print issues and advertising them through Pabular. (To do this at the present time is too early as we cannot yet measure demand).

Renewals

We would appreciate hearing from those who intend to renew their subs but have not yet done so. This will greatly help us with our mailing list which we want to transfer to an automatic addressing system as soon as possible.

MAGIC INITION

THE INTERNATIONAL MAGAZINE

Now in its 3rd year.

MAKE SURE EACH ISSUE IS SENT TO YOU REGULARLY. SEND TODAY ONLY £1.50 ($4.00) FOR ONE YEAR (SIX) ISSUES SENT POST FREE TO ANYWHERE IN THE WORLD.

32, glossy pages in each issue THE INTERNATIONAL MAGIC STUDIO.

(RON MACMILLAN)

89 CLERKENWELL ROAD,
HOLBORN, LONDON E.C.1.

"50 YEARS LATER"

A brand new book of varied and PRACTICAL magic, produced by the 'Scottish Conjurers Association' to celebrate their half centenary.

This book contains 72 pages — is fully illustrated — and explains 25 tricks — plus an introduction and history of this famous Society.

There is magic for all tastes with some fine cabaret and close-up items. The contributors include J.B. Finlay, Eddie Dawes, Lewis Ganson, Frederica and many others. In addition there is a PREVIOUSLY UNPUBLISHED ITEM BY JOHN RAMSAY.

In 1945 the 'Scottish Conjurers Association' produced their only previous book — this quickly sold out and has now become a collectors item. We anticipate that this new book will follow in the steps of its predecessor.

ADD '50 YEARS LATER' TO YOUR LIBRARY NOW

PRICE £1.50

USA $5.00

L DAVENPORT & CO 51 Gt Russell St. London WC1. 01 405 8524

Pabular is published after the second week in every month and is printed by Instance Printers, Paddock Wood, Kent, England. Subscriptions may be obtained direct from the publishers, Pabular, P.O. Box 180, London SE12 8JJ or through many magic dealers. Price 50 pence per copy (or US $ 1.25) surface post included. Air Mail extra 12 pence (US $ 0.30) per copy or £1.45 (US $ 3.60) per year. Editorial or content copy should be sent to Fred Robinson, 1 Crescent Court, 24 Crescent Road, New Barnet, Herts, England. Advertising rates sent on request—smalls 3 pence per word (US 10 cents). Dealer enquiries welcomed. Reproductions of old prints and historical magical items by kind permission of Tony Faro.

Ge Magazine of Close-up Magic
Vol. 1 №6 FEB.1975

EFFECT:-

A gold finger ring, a silver paper tube and a pencil are shown. The ring openly penetrates the tube and pencil in an unexpected and amusing way, the pencil vanishes and is produced from the performer's inside pocket, or wherever else he may choose. If wished, everything may be examined before and after the effect.

trevor dawson

WORKING:-

You require a normal full length pencil, a gold ring, and beforehand you make from a piece of silver coated decorative paper, a tube slightly greater in diameter than the pencil and 34" longer.

You also require a ball point pen cap which will fit snugly onto the end of the pencil. To the cap is fixed a length of weakish elastic to make a pull. The elastic is anchored well down the right sleeve with a view to vanishing the pencil up the left sleeve. I prefer an elastic pull to a non-stretch wrist-to-wrist pull because of the greater freedom of action permitted and less need to do the trick at or near the beginning of your performance. The pull is then set up with the cap tucked back down the watch strap on your left wrist. Credit for the biro cap vanish belongs, I believe, to Cecil Tebbitt.

This trick is an ideal follow-on to the Ring off Pencil. You may wish to refer to Dai Vernon's routine in the Stars of Magic, or a recently published routine by Oscar Weigle in Pallbearers, June 1972, deserves your attention.

At the end of your previous effect, or whilst the ring is being examined after the Ring off Pencil effect, you secure the pull cap from the watch strap with the kind of offhand mannerism people have when they are moving their watch and strap slightly. The right-hand leaves the cap in the left finger palm. Your right hand picks up the pencil and places it casually at the left finger tips. Deliberately as you talk your right first finger pushes the pencil slightly into the left fist and unbeknown to your audience securely into the cap. You may think this is rather obvious, but if you play around for a few minutes with a pencil in your hands you will soon find that at some point that you end up pushing the pencil into the fist.

Trevor Dawson

Your right hand now displays the silver tube - through which your audience look so appreciative! You drop the tube over the pencil, which the left hand now holds semi-vertical. You point the tube and pencil at the audience if necessary for a moment so that they can see the pencil in the tube. The left hand now moves the tube and pencil horizontal and the right hand twists the right end of the tube as though closing off the end. Whilst this is happening you release your left hand hold on the pull and the pencil goes up your left sleeve. Once the pencil has gone and the right hand end of the tube has been twisted, your right hand grasps the twisted end and the left fingers twist the left end of the tube.

Holding the tube horizontal at the left end, your right hand picks up the ring and places it onto the centre of the tube. You now ask a spectator to hold both ends of the tube and ring. He believes of course he is holding the tube with the pencil inside it. You explain that you are going to remove the ring visually. You do this by either tearing the tube in half at the centre, or preferably, and this comes with a greater surprise, by cutting it with a pair of scissors, causing the ring to drop off in a totally unexpected manner. Once it has registered that the pencil has vanished, you produce a duplicate from your inside coat pocket, or if your pull is so arranged you can produce the vanished pencil, apparently from your left inside coat pocket, but in reality from a point by your left armpit if the pull has been fixed to stop at this point.

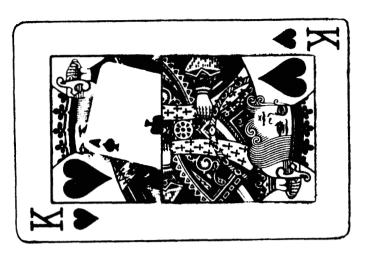

bob driebeek on the 'Witchdoctors'

Flying back home I started reading your wonderful new magazine. Quite a collection of very useful material!

The plot of Roy Walton's "Witch Doctors" especially appealed to me. The final punch-line of the explorer "You may be able to change yourselves into giants but you can't do any harm to me" gives the clever effect a very amusing climax.

Since I'm no clever manipulator I found difficulty keeping the small card concealed in the right hand and handling the cards with thumb and index-finger only in an unsuspected way — so I developed the following ruse:-

I prepared one of the Kings as sample enclosed. Look at the card. You will notice a small pocket which in short distance is quite invisible. Pull yellow strip of cardboard into view. You will see now the small card (Ace of Spades). By the way, Eddy Burke of Magic-Tricks sells transfers to prepare the card. The cardboard-strip is to keep the pocket open when not in use! If you put the small card in the pocket it slides easily out if you turn the card with open end of pocket downwards.

Load small card in pocket (face to the front) and perform the Walton-routine (the order of the 5 cards is from face to back: Ace of Spades, prepared King and the 3 other Kings.

After putting the supposed "Explorer" (Ace of Spades) face down on the table, "Ghost"-count the 3 unprepared Kings and lay them face down on the supposed Ace of Spades (in reality the faked King — open end of pocket towards the audience!)

Turn the packet vertically with the backs towards your audience and knock them on the table as to square them. The small card slides out and must be covered neatly with the four Kings.

You are now ready for the climax!

Another suggestion is this:-

I have a close-up table with a magnet in the top.

I now have a small card made, cut out from enclosed metal label (using my wife's scissors!!!). (A split card with a piece of razorblade between will do as well).

For the finish you don't have to square the packet of 5 (?) cards by knocking at the table. Just place them on top of the concealed magnet and push the 4 Kings forward towards the audience. The small card remains on the very same spot. To spectators you only push the 4 Kings off the diminished Ace of Clubs.

It works perfectly!!

The Page boy speaks....

First of all a couple of omissions from the last article. I mentioned a gentleman who was an honorary sheriff of a county in Texas. Well, the other day I showed him the article and he was most annoyed to be described as an 'honorary' sheriff; apparently he is the genuine article. His name is Danny Arnold and incidentally he does the odd magic trick for kids shows.

Secondly, in mentioning my Christmas presents, (and you'll have to forgive me for harping on the subject but they did please me) I forgot to say that the staff (?) of this magazine clubbed together their hard-earned cash to purchase the Boy Wonder a book called '100 Years of Circus Posters.' It's beautiful, I love it. I love you all staff.

Two or three years ago, a friend of mine, Michael Vine who is a professional magician, told me he had seen an Indian street magician performing in the West End of London. During the last couple of years or so I have heard about this guy several times. It appears he occasionally just turns up.

Until a few weeks ago I had never been able to catch him, then I spotted him in the Charing Cross Road not more than fifty or sixty yards away from a bunch of guys working the Three Card Monte. He was elderly, perhaps 65 or 70, and he apparently did three tricks (though I only saw him do two). Firstly the Miser's Dream using a beat-up old tin can, and some very dilapidated old coins. He was at great pains to explain to the crowd who had gathered around that the coins were not real money. He kept remarking they were Indian Coins, they were Magic Coins, they were specially for magic, they were not real money, you couldn't spend them etc. No doubt this was to impress those watching that he didn't have much money and that he was only using theatrical props. The second trick was the Cups and Balls, using three ice-cream cartons. This actually was performed on the pavement (side-walk to you Americans) in a squatting position which is a little difficult to describe. Imagine him with both feet soles and heels planted firmly on the ground with his two arms forward between his legs doing the trick just in front of him. It was interesting in that he used only three moves that I could catch. To vanish a ball it was apparently placed in the other hand but actually retained in the classic palm position, rather than the finger palm as used by most Western magicians. He also did a steal from one of the cups clipping the ball between two fingers, and the third and remaining was loading the ball under the cup straight from the classic palm position. This was a little odd in that most Indian magicians use a cup with a little knob on the top that when held between the fingers positions the cup perfectly for loads from the palm. He did not use this type of cup. but the inverted ice-cream cartons, and he clipped the top (or bottom) of the cup between his first and little finger. In raising it up off the pavement he tilted it backwards so that the ball could be loaded when replacing it. He didn't, unlike most modern performers, finish with a production or load at the end. He merely did several moves and passes and then apparently replaced the ball in his pockets making them re-appear under the cups as his finale. The effect on the spectators for both tricks was very very good. He knew how to handle them very well indeed. The Miser's Dream enabled him to get lots and lots of laughs. He gathered coins from here, there and everywhere — spectators hats, pockets (maybe he lifted other things out of the pockets — I wouldn't be in the least bit surprised!)

He also had the most beaten-up deck of cards I have ever seen in my life but he did no tricks with them and so what he does with them will have to remain a mystery until another time. Maybe he did them before I arrived.

After the Cups and Balls he made a collection. I don't know what he made but I would think he would be better off learning the three card-trick and joining the boys further up the street. I'm sure they made a little more than he did.

On the subject of street entertainers, there was a programme on TV devoted to London both old and new. In a trip around the City the cameras took us to Tower Hill. This is a patch of ground situated more or less outside the famous Tower of London. For centuries this has been a favourite pitch for street entertainers, and on this occasion we had the pleasure of watching two performers, one of whom was an escapologist. The latter was placed in a mail bag and chained up with a couple of swords stuck through. Needless to say he got out in time for his partner and he to take a collection. Let's hope the cameramen chipped in because it was well worth it. It looks as though there may well be a resurgence of interest in street entertainers in London because currently there appear to bea lot of them. There are performers with trained budgerigars, or musicians wandering all over the place. Who knows — we might get more of them who do magic tricks.

Bye.

Patrick Page

Four silver coins are twice magically transposed with four copper coins above the table.

The routine which is original with me contains no unnatural moves and was used in my act when winning the close-up trophy at the I.B.M. Convention held in Hastings 1970. It contains a multiple switch which is original with me.

It requires a small leather bag which has a ring attached by a small leather chain. Four copper coins (old pennies), and four silver coins (ten pence pieces) are placed in the bag and the ring is put over the opening. Four extra ten pence pieces (silver) are put into the neck of the bag above the ring and held by a clip. The clip is fastened inside the jacket near the pocket on the left side. (1)

ACTION

Take the bag by the top from the clip with the right hand. Hold the bottom of the bag with the left hand and tip the bag into the right allowing the four silver coins to fall into the right hand where they are finger-palmed. The first finger and thumb ease the ring off the bag allowing the coins inside to fall onto the table.

The left hand places the bag into the left pocket and the right, which must remain relaxed, places the coins in two rows about eighteen inches apart, the copper on the left and the silver more central than to the right. (2)

With the first finger and thumb pick up the four copper with your right hand one at a time. First the nearest, laying it on the next, then pick up these two and place them on the third, then these on the last picking up all four.

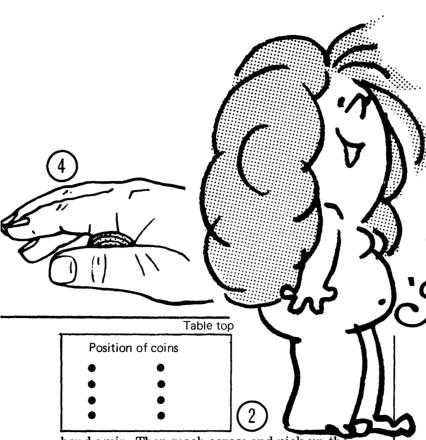

The four coins are now apparently thrown into the left hand. Actually they are thumb-palmed in the right hand and it is the four silver which are allowed to fall from the finger-palm into the left hand.

During the throwing action and as the right hand moves backwards the right thumb releases its hold on the coins and the index finger curls inwards. (3) As the backwards movement ends and the forward action of the throw towards the left hand begins, the momentum will make the copper coins fall automatically into the grip of the thumb-palm position.

At the end of the throw the right hand fingers must be kept open to shield the silver coins until the left hand closes over them. The right hand then swings towards the body from the elbow and rests on the table with the fingers in a straightened relaxed position (4). Say "Four copper". Pause and say, "No you weren't watching close enough. There are four silver in my left hand". Slam down the coins dragging them in as straight a line as you can towards you. Do not show your left hand empty but let it be seen there is nothing palmed by keeping the hand relaxed with thumb upwards.

Now slam down the copper coins that are in your right hand taking care not to dislodge the four silver that are held in the thumb-palm. Again do the dragging action with your right hand towards your body leaving the coins in a straightish line.

After a very slight pause say, "I'll do that again, watch", pick up the copper coins again as before, do the same thumb-palm switch a second time, throwing the silver into the left hand again. Then reach across and pick up the silver coins that are on the table, repeat the throwing motion and switch the positons of the coins ready to show the exchange.

Say, "Remember four copper" raise your left fist, "And four silver" raise your right fist, shake your head and say "No the four copper are now in my right" with this, slam down the copper coins, again watch that you do not strike too hard and dislodge the thumb-palmed coins. Again drag them towards you in a straightish line and swing your right arm from the elbow towards the body to rest in a position so that the thumb-palmed coins can be dropped into the lap, as you say, "And the four silver are in my left" slamming these on the table let the thumb-palmed silver coins in your right fall simultaneously into the lap. Properly timed the sound of the coins falling into the lap will be drowned by noise of the other coins being slammed onto the table.

That concludes the silver-copper double transposition with both hands empty and the coins on the table. To clean up lean back naturally letting the hands fall onto the lap and pick up the lapped coins with the right hand, and lean forward again, picking up the coins with the right hand and place them in the inside pocket. The throw covering the switch should not be a large movement, just a little toss. If done naturally and casually the sleight will be unsuspected and undetectable.

EFFECT:-

Spectator gives Magician a small number. From a shuffled pack cards are dealt face down on to the table to the stated number. This selected card is set aside. Pack is shuffled and the above repeated on three occasions. The four cards are turned face up and are shown as an odd collection of numbers. Performer states that this is the telephone number of the local nurses t*íevor lewis*

A LAS

home and whether spectator agrees with him or not inquires "How do you know?" Performer verifies the truth of his statement by showing that the four cards are now four queens.

PREPARATION:-

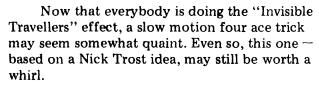

The effect depends on a four card switch and for this four Queens are face up at the bottom of the deck. Directly above the Queens is an indifferent card face up followed by another indifferent card face down.

Other switches may of course be used such as the Multiple Change described on page 263 of Harry Lorayne's Close Up Card Magic or some of the Marlo switches.

METHOD:-

With the pack set up as above ask spectator for a small number and deal off the cards to this number, place this card aside. Shuffle the top few cards as though setting them up in a certain order and repeat. Do this four times in all acting out the moves as though thinking out some complicated formula. The better the acting, the more will be the let down when the four cards are shown as most spectators will imagine that they will be the four aces. Let the spectator turn the four cards face up, this gives you the opportunity to cut the bottom six cards to the top. Hold a little finger break below these six cards and when the four cards that represent the telephone number are handed to you and placed on top of the pack, on the spoken line "How do you know?" perform a ten card turn over and slowly deal off the four queens face down. You then verify your statement by turning over the cards and showing the four queens. Showing the queen of spades you say "I think this one fancies you 'cause she's looking at you."

'my blue ac-es'

The effect is of the aces passing one at a time and being shown to arrive separately in the last pile, using blue backed aces and red backed indifferent cards.

Most of the moves are variations of the Elmsley count, which is too well known to require describing here. Anything else used has been described in the text.

SET UP

Required are two packs of cards with different coloured backs, say red and blue.

Take the blue pack first and remove the four aces. Put the ace of spades on top of the pack (out of the way). Next take the AS from the red pack and put it with the blue ones. These are now distributed throughout the blue pack, with the red backed AS second ace down from the face. Now, when you come to spread the pack to remove the aces, the AS will be the second one you come to.

Next take the red pack. To the face of this, add three blue backed spot cards. Remove the red backed duplicates of these cards together with the three remaining aces and place them all on top of the pack — out of the way.

Return both packs to their cases and you are set to go.

PERFORMANCE

Introduce the red pack first. Fan it quickly to show the backs — taking care not to expose the extra blue cards on the bottom.

Take the pack face up in the left hand, secretly obtaining a little finger break below the third card down from the face. Tell the audience that you need twelve cards. With the left thumb push off the top card and take it into the right hand, counting it as number one. Push off the next two cards as one — this is easy and certain because of the break held below them. Count this card(s) as number two and take it in the right hand below the first one. In other words do not reverse the order. Push off the next card, counting it as number three and take it below the others. Continue in this way until you reach a total of twelve. You will now be holding thirteen cards in your right hand, the top three having blue backs.

These cards are placed face up on the table, while the rest of the pack is laid aside, face down.

Pick up the blue pack and fan it to show the the backs, Take care not to flash the red backed ace, which should be near the front.

Turn the pack face up and remove the four aces, one at a time. Drop them face up onto the packet of cards on the table as you do so. Because of the order in which the aces were arranged, the second one will have a red back, so take care not to expose it. On the other hand, you should make sure that the audience catch a glimpse of the backs of the other three.

Pick up the packet of cards from the table. It should consist, (from face to rear) of two blue backed aces—red backed AS—one blue backed ace—three blue backed spot cards—ten red backed cards. Spread the cards face upwards, showing that there are only four aces used (a point not so far mentioned). At the same time, get a break with the left little finger, below the three blue backed indifferent cards, separating them and the aces from the red backed ones. Square up the packet, keeping this break.

The right hand now lifts all the cards above the break clear of the left, which immediately flips the remaining ones face down. Without a pause the right hand turns its cards also face down and drops them back on top of those in the left. The left little finger keeps a break between the two packets, whilst the right hand deals the four top blue backed cards onto the table in a face down row. The last one dealt will be an ace. The other three are indifferent cards. This whole sequence should be carried out fairly rapidly and in a casual manner; as though simply re-affirming that the aces have different coloured backs and laying them out.

Cut the cards above the break in the left hand to the bottom of the packet and hold them there, whilst you give the cards a few more cuts. This again should be done in a manner that suggests that you are casually emphasising the difference in colour. At the finish you should have the three aces at the bottom of the packet, with the two blue ones on the very bottom and the red backed AS above them.

Adjust this packet of thirteen cards in the left hand, to the Elmsley count position — obviously it would not be possible to do the count with all of those cards, but it is essential that all the different counts look alike.

With the right hand thumb off three cards singly, reversing their order. Square them up and drop them on the first indifferent card on the table. Put three cards on each of the other two supposed aces in a similar manner.

You are left holding four cards in the Elmsley position. These must be counted as three and only two of them must be seen in the process.

To do this, draw off the top card of the packet as in the Elmsley count. As the right hand returns to take the second card, the first one is retaken by the left as in the count, whilst the left thumb pushes all the other cards in a block into the right hand. Finally the last card is taken on top of these. This boils down to a slight variation on a standard move, usually used to show two cards as three.

This block of four cards is squared neatly and placed on top of the real ace on the table. This packet is then placed a slight distance apart from the other three.

THE FIRST ACE PASSES ACROSS

Pick up one of the indifferent card packets from the table. Without showing the face of the blue backed card, insert it into the packet so that it is second from bottom. Square up the packet, snap it with the forefinger of the right hand and then perform the Elmsley count, showing four red backed cards. Turn the packet face up and deal the cards onto the table from right to left — letting it be plainly seen that there are only four cards and none of them are aces. The one on the extreme right will have the blue back. Pick up the ace pile ie the one which already has all the aces in it. Thumb off the top three cards into the right hand, without reversing their order. They will consist of two red backs and one blue. Remaining in the left hand will be two cards with blue backs, held squared as one. Momentarily turn the left hand back up, showing the face of this card(s) to be an ace. Take it (them) face down on top of the three in the right hand. Square up the packet and return it to the table.

THE SECOND ACE PASSES

Pick up one of the indifferent packets and vanish the ace as before. Deal the four cards face up on top of those already face up on the table, making sure that the blue cards go into the same pile.

Take up the ace pile in the Elmsley count position. The right hand thumbs off the first two cards, which will both have blue backs, reversing their order. The left thumb pushes off the next two cards as one, on top of these and the last card, which is blue backed is placed on top. You appear to have three blue cards and one red one. Square up the packet and turn it face up in the left hand. With the help of the right hand, spread the cards keeping the bottom two together as one. This will show three aces and one indifferent card. Lift off the first ace and use it to gesture towards the other two. Replace it on the bottom of the face up packet. Square up the cards and return them face down on the table.

THE THIRD ACE PASSES

The vanish is exactly as for the other two aces. Once more the four cards are dealt face up on top of the others, keeping all the blue backs in the same pile.

This time, when you pack up the ace pile, you perform the Elmsley count, keeping an extra card hidden. The right hand draws off the top card which is retaken by the left on the count of two, simultaneously the left thumb pushes off a block of three cards, instead of the usual two. Continue counting the last two cards and you will seem to have all blue backs. Turn the packet face up. The AS should be the face card. Keeping this ace and the indifferent card below it in perfect alignment, spread out the aces on the bottom of the packet.

MY BLUE ACES Walt Lees

Draw off the aces one at a time into the right hand, reversing their order. The AS and the indifferent card below it are kept together as one card.

At this point the routine is over as far as the audience are concerned. However there is still the problem of:—

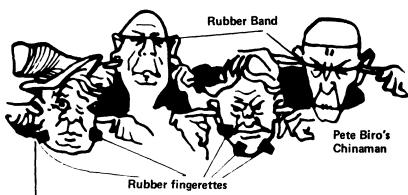

TIDYING UP

Drop the four (five) cards in the ace pile, face up onto the left hand pile of indifferent cards. Pick up the whole packet and drop it onto the adjoining one. Pick up all of these cards and drop them onto the next pile. At the same time the right hand picks up the extreme right (blue backed) pile and drops it face up on top of the lot. Without pausing turn the whole packet face down and quickly thumb off all the red backed cards, dropping them onto the red pack. Drop the blue cards onto the blue pack and cut them in and you are left completely clean.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The whole routine was inspired by Nick Trost's "Four Red Backed Aces" described in "Card Problems". My only real contribution being to make the aces go one at a time.

"Doc - you got anything for warts?"

bob read

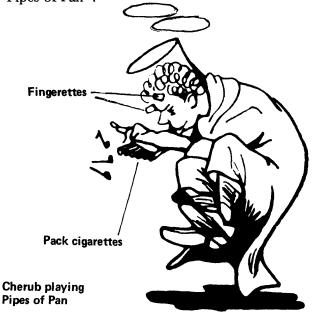

IMPROMPTU SIGHT BITS BUSINESS

Pete Biro, that funny man from Oakland, showed me a Chinese gag. It consists of stretching a rubber band around the head so that the eyelids are compressed — sticking the hands in opposite sleeves and shuffling around chanting "Ah so".

Well, even Pete hasn't seen this next bit. Cop a couple of the fingerettes, (the type used by cashiers and magicians practising the card spin), squeeze out the air, and attach them by suction to the side of your face — with the line "Doctor, have you anything for warts?"

Which reminds me of the man who walked into a chemists and said "Have you anything for loss of voice?" and the chemist said "Good morning sir, can I help you?"

The same fingerettes, plus a cigarette packet can be used for a quick impression of the "Pipes of Pan".

The four Queens are placed in different parts of the deck. One at a time, in the order chosen by a spectator, the four Kings are rubbed on the top of the deck. Each King draws to the top the Queen of the corresponding suit.

As an optional additional effect, the Kings are then placed face up in different parts of the face down deck. The performer passes his hand across the top of the deck and a King appears face up on top. This is repeated for each of the remaining Kings.

NGS OVER QUEENS

METHOD I

- With the deck face up, run through the cards, upjogging each Queen for half its length and tossing the Kings onto the table face up. Square up the deck and withdraw the Queens. Arrange them in bridge order -QC, QD, QH. QS - from face to back and hold them fanned, face up, in the right hand. The deck is held face up in the left.
- With the left thumb, riffle down about half way and hold an opening at the outer left corner of the deck at that point. Insert the Queen of Spades into the opening for about half its length. Riffle down a little further and insert the QH. Repeat for the QD and QC. Push the Queens into the deck and control them to the bottom, using either a multiple shift or a diagonal palm shift.
- Turn the deck face down, thus bringing the Queens to the top. Take the top card in your right hand and, using it as a pointer, indicate the four Kings on the table and ask the spectator to name one. Be careful not to flash the face of the pointer card.
- At this point the procedure varies slightly according to the spectator's choice. If he names the King of Clubs, replace the pointer card on top of the deck and give the cards a casual false cut in the hands. Then place the KC face up on top of the deck. If any other King is named, use the pointer card to scoop up the chosen King and deposit it face up on top of the deck, then drop the pointer card — face down, of course - on the table, as if you had no further use for it.
- Rub the face up King against the top of the deck, then remove it and stick it, still face

- up, into the middle of the deck, letting it protrude from the outer end for about half its length.
- If the chosen King was the KC you have only to turn the top card face up and show that the King has apparently attracted the QC to the top. Then flip it face down again and leave it on top of the deck. If the chosen King was the KD the procedure is the same since you will have left the pointer card - the QC — on the table and the QD will now be on top of the deck. If it was the KH, do a double lift and turnover; if the KS, a triple lift and turnover. In all cases, the card(s) is turned face down again after being displayed and left on top of the deck.
- Note: The multiple lift technique that I find very suitable in this routine is the one I described in the July 1968 issue of The Gen (p.49) under the title, The Flip Double Lift and Turnover. Briefly, the left thumb riffles off one card. The right hand comes over the deck so the right forefinger can engage the card at its outer left corner. As the right hand covers the front end of the deck, however, the left thumb quickly riffles off a second - or a second and a third — card and the right forefinger engages them both (or all three, as the case may be). The forefinger is then drawn across the front edge of the deck until it reaches the outer right corner. This raises the whole front end of the top card(s) and heightens the impression of there being only one. The card(s) is then grasped at the outer right corner between the right thumb on top and first two fingers underneath and turned face up on top of the deck. I prefer to have a hit technique to turn it back face down again. If using this handling of the multiple lift with the Queens, then of course the Kings should be picked up in the same way after being rubbed on top of the deck. The left thumb then riffles down in the deck and holds an opening for the King in question to be inserted.

- 8. At all events, one Queen has been attracted to the top and displayed, then turned face down again. The corresponding King is stuck face up into the outer end of the deck. If this was the King of Spades, you now pick up the pointer card from the table, use it to indicate the remaining Kings and ask the spectator to name a second one. Before he can do so, however, return the pointer card to the top of the deck.
- 9. If the first King chosen was any of the other three, however, proceed as follows: Pick up the pointer card, use it as an indicator and have a second King named. If this choice is the KC, return the pointer to the top of the deck. If it is any of the others, leave the pointer card on the table. The chosen King is picked or scooped up and placed face up on top of the deck. The same rubbing procedure is performed, then the King is placed into the middle of the deck along with the first one (at a different spot, though). The top card is turned over or a multiple lift performed according to the choice to display the corresponding Queen.
- 10. The same procedure is repeated for each of the remaining Kings. The principle to bear in mind is simply this: Once the KS has been chosen and the QS has been shown on top (via a triple lift) the pointer card should be returned to the top of the deck. The only reason for indulging in the stratagem of removing it is to obviate the need for a quadruple lift to display the QS, since that much edge thickness is difficult to conceal. Conversely, whenever the KC is chosen, the pointer card must be returned to the top of the deck if it is not there already. The ideal situation is for the KS to be chosen first, and to enhance the chances of that happening I place it third from the spectator's left in the line of Kings on the table. Note also that if you do not intend to use the added effect about to be described, the Kings can be returned to the table or, even better, inserted face down into the deck and lost, instead of being inserted face up and left protruding.
- 11. Assuming you do wish to perform the added effect, you now have the four Kings outjogged face up at different points in the deck. These must be pushed into the deck and controlled to the top with one face down card above them. Without going into great detail, I - control them first to the bottom, keeping a break above them, release one card onto them, then cut the packet to the top.

- 12. You now perform the colour change which is described by Erdnase as the first method under his section of two-handed Transformations (p.151 of most editions). Vernon also describes this change on p.49 of Inner Secrets of Card Magic. You can also find it described in detail, with a minor variation that makes for smoother handling, in the trick, "It's Up His Sleeve", in my book, Divers Deceits. It has the effect of transposing the top and second cards, thus causing a face up King to suddenly appear on top of the deck. The contrast between the face up King and the face down deck is especially striking. Toss the King onto the table and rapidly repeat the move three times to bring the other Kings to the top. I do this as a quick cod explanation of how the first part of the trick was done, showing that the face up cards can be brought to the top of the deck without even using any other cards to attract them.

Now you see her, now you don't! Old crone or Edwardian maiden?

Book Review

When someone with a lifetime of performing experience decides to publish his effects and bits of business the results are almost certain to be of value. This proved to be the case when Eddie Fechter allowed Jerry Mentzer to publish his material entitled 'MAGICIAN NITELY' the book contains effects that Fechter has been using to entertain his guests in the bar of his hotel for many years and are therefore of particular value to close-up performers.

Card tricks predominate and include Card on the Ceiling, Brainwave, a couple of Ace effects, Slip cut, Jog control, Throw change, Bluff pass and a particularly valuable chapter on Peeks and one outstanding item in which a spectator finds he is sitting on a thought-of card. Non-card effects include torn and restored cigarette and a practical Coins Across which can be performed either standing or seated.

There are some fifteen effects plus many sleights in the 148 pages and it is adequately illustrated with photographs. For the close-up performer requiring practical, entertaining material this book is recommended.

As this is now our sixth issue it's not surprising that we have had quite a bit of correspondence about the tricks so far published. As this is often comprised of ideas or different slants we thought it made sense to run some of them together in this column.

Bob Ostin has a different version of "Ad Infinitum" by David Berglas and writes:

I've worked out a method which I believe is faster, easier, and also enables the thing to be extended to five, six or more figures with comparative ease.

Here it is — instead of adding noughts, start with the bottom row and add them across from left to right putting down the final digit as the unit figure in the prediction total and carrying the balance up to the second row from the bottom which is added likewise, the last digit thus being the "tens" figure in the prediction total. And so on up to the top of the sum. Here is an example using four figures:-

Row (4) 9837 Row (3) 4291 Prediction Row (2) 8673 (28) 8 6 1 Row (1) 5268 Row:- (4) 3 2 1

Add the 5, 2, 6 and 8 which equal 21. Put down the 1 and carry the 2. So, you now add row (2) which is 2 (that was carried) plus 3, 7, 6 and 8, and now equals 26. Put down the 6 and again carry 2—Into row (3) where 2 is added to 1, 9, 2 and 4, and this time equalling 18. The 8 is put down and the 1 is carried to the top row which is added and equals 28 which is put down as the first two figures in the prediction.

One final point, I think it advisable to delete the figures completed from the original 'sum' as they are re-arranged by the spectator making it impossible for them to check.

A couple of days after receiving the above a letter describing a similar way of arriving at the "Prediction" was received from Bob Driebeek who pointed out that it was only necessary to give the sum a quarter turn in an anti-clockwise direction and a simple addition was all that was necessary.

Peter Kane's Slow Motion Ring Release (No.1) also came in for the Driebeek treatment. In fact he has made a new trick of it. In addition to the string and ring you will require a long pencil or small wand to be in the outside left breast pocket. Proceed as in the Kane effect to the point when the ring secretly drops into the right hand. Instead of dropping the ring back into the left fist request a spectator to hold both ends of the string, the right hand with ring hidden takes the wand or pencil from the pocket secretly sliding the ring over the end. During this action a spectator on the right is requested to hold the ends of the wand. On opening the left hand the ring is seen to have vanished and the right drags over the ring causing it to spin on the wand showing the transposition.

Something we didn't know about issue 2 is that it has a built-in trick. Leslie May spotted it and came up with the following:

I find that the issue (No.2) has a 'built-in trick' as follows:

Tear a sheet of paper into small pieces and number each with a page No. from Pabular 2. i.e. 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24. (twelve in all) turn them face down, mix, and lay out in a row in pairs, ENSURING THAT Nos. 16 and 19 are paired. Eliminate all other pairs by conjuror's choice method. Tell assisting spectator to take remaining two (16 and 19) and to pick up either. He is then to turn to page in question — glance over it quickly and concentrate on anything that stood out or struck him in any way. Do a bit of thought-reading, get the impression of 'cold', small quantities of something cold etc., etc., and finally announce you get impression that he noted (either consciously or subconsciously) something to do with small pieces of ICE.

Providing the force of the correct pair has been carried out you can't go wrong as on page 16 the most noticeable item is ICEBREAKER, and on page 19 the penultimate paragraph deals with SLIVERS OF ICE!

George Blake has sent us another solution for one of the Ken Brooke coin puzzles in the Christmas issue:-

Being a puzzle fiend, I naturally tagged on to Ken Brooke's coin puzzles and regarding the 4-1p and 4-2p puzzle and without looking at Page 45 (honest) I solved it. But I was wrong, AND YET I WAS RIGHT! You see, instead of pushing the 4-1p's between the 2's, I pulled the four 2's out to form a larger square, so, there are two ways to solve the puzzle. If you like a follow-up to this puzzle here it is:-

Replace the coins as they were originally and then invite the victim to move four coins and still leave a square the value of which shows 6p on all sides. Simply pick up each 1p and place it on top of a 2p, that's all.

About "Vampire" in the same issue:-

I liked Bob Ostin's "Vampire", but unfortunately all my Bambi staples are coppered, and a felt-tip pen mark wouldn't show. So, I took a sharp pointed knife and scraped away some of the copper coating and although it isn't as plain to be seen as an ink mark (which could be an advantage) it can be seen by gently tipping the papers to catch the light.

Blackpool Convention

We will be there somewhere — probably with a table tucked away amongst the dealers. Please meet us if you don't know us already — and if you do, come anyway. (We may have the early back numbers reprinted by then if you are one of those without them).

Anyone reading Pabular's last issue could be forgiven for thinking we had gone into the crystal-ball business. Publishing on about January 20th we somehow managed to describe the Fred Kaps lecture 9 days before it took place! Of course it was a mis-print — the lecture date was December 29th.

Wanted: The Ramsay Legend, Johnny Ramsay's routine with the Cups and Balls, Cylinder and Coins, Triple Restoration. State price and condition. Also required: any books or data relating to cheating at gambling, card sharping etc.

Fred Robinson, 1 Crescent Court, 24 Crescent Road, New Barnet, Herts.

MAGIC INIFO

THE INTERNATIONAL MAGAZINE

Now in its 3rd year.

MAKE SURE EACH ISSUE IS SENT TO YOU REGULARLY. SEND TODAY ONLY £1.50 ($4.00) FOR ONE YEAR (SIX) ISSUES SENT POST FREE TO ANYWHERE IN THE WORLD.

32, glossy pages in each issue THE INTERNATIONAL MAGIC STUDIO.

(RON MACMILLAN)

89 CLERKENWELL ROAD,
HOLBORN, LONDON E.C.I.

dice

Red with white spots, razor edge — perfect for dice stacking.

PRICE 50p each

USA $1.50 inc Airmail

DIVERSIONS WITH DICE (TREBORIX)

If you want to learn dice stacking this is THE book. Fully illustrated in great detail.

PRICE 55p

USA $1.50 inc Airmail

thumbtips

The BEST — they look just like the real thing — none better.

PRICE 65p each

USA $2.00 inc Airmail

davenport

L DAVENPORT & CO 51 Gt Russell St. London WC1.

01 405 8524

Pabular is published after the second week in every month and is printed by Instance Printers, Paddock Wood, Kent, England. Subscriptions may be obtained direct from the publishers, Pabular, P.O. Box 180, London SE12 8JJ or through many magic dealers. Price 50 pence per copy (or US $ 1.25) surface post included. Air Mail extra 12 pence (US $ 0.30) per copy or £1.45 (US $ 3.60) per year. Editorial or content copy should be sent to Fred Robinson, 1 Crescent Court, 24 Crescent Road, New Barnet, Herts, England. Advertising rates sent on request—smalls 3 pence per word (US 10 cents). Dealer enquiries welcomed. Reproductions of old prints and historical magical items by kind permission of Tony Faro.

FLIGHT FOUR mike cassidy

EFFECT:

Four coins pass one at a time from the left hand in a glass held in the right hand.

REQUIREMENTS:

A glass and four coins, preferably silver, with a loose fitting shell and the ability to palm one coin.

ARRANGEMENT:

The routine is performed standing with the table on your right. The glass and four coins, one of which is covered with a shell, are on the table.

METHOD:

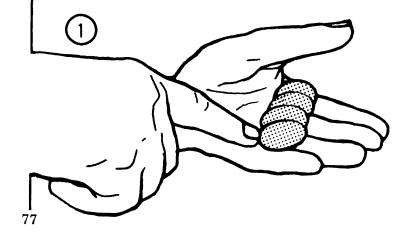

With the right hand pick up a coin holding it by the edge between the thumb and fingers and place it on the open left hand, which is held at an angle allowing the audience to see the coin. Repeat with the second and third coin. Pick up the coin and shell as a unit and display with shell facing the audience. The shell is placed on the left hand with the three coins and during the action let the nested coin fall onto the right second, third and fourth fingers in the finger palm position. As the three coins and shell are placed on the left hand it should be kept open, with palm in view the whole time. The coin in the right hand is now classic palmed and the index extended and used to adjust the coins into an overlapping line with the shell on top (Fig one).

The left hand fingers now close over the coins and shell forming a fist, and turns back uppermost. The second coin next to the shell nests into the shell during this action. The right hand now picks up the glass with the tips of the fingers and thumb round the rim (Fig 2).

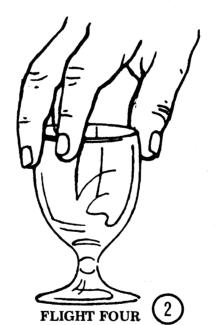

The left hand now makes a little throwing gesture towards the glass and the right hand releases its palmed coin, which falls into the glass.

The glass is now placed on the table and the left hand is opened to show only three coins.

The three coins (one covered with shell) are taken singly with the right hand and counted onto the table.

Continue to pass the second and third coins using the same procedure. When the third coin has passed and the left hand opens to disclose the fourth coin (actually coin and shell), do not count it onto the table, but display it in right fingers allowing the coin to fall into the finger palm position as before and place the shell onto the open left hand, which close over it and turns over.

The coin in the right hand is palmed and the glass picked up from the table as previously. The left hand makes the throwing gesture and the fourth and last coin falls from the palm into the glass. Give the glass a shake causing the coins to jingle in the glass and tip them into the left hand which open to receive them, taking care not to expose the shell.

Drop the coins with shell back into the glass and take your bow.

This method of performing the Coins to Glass is clean, convincing and not too difficult and has been used regularly by me in professional engagements and at magical gatherings during the past couple of years.

I have found that in trying to find new approaches to give card tricks the maximum impact, a successful method is to do something to the cards themselves that does not fall within the spectators normal understanding of the way cards should be handled. Here, I am not referring to the trick itself, but rather to an incidental action that links up the effect being performed. The trick that follows is an example of this idea.

PREPARATION:

Take any card from the pack and carefully tear a neat index corner quarter from it. Make sure that you make the tear as neat as possible and that the piece you remove is about one quarter of the card. Seal the corner in a small envelope and place it in your pocket. You will be left with the remainder of the card as in (1). Place this on the face of the pack and put into the case and you are all set.

HANDLING AND PRESENTATION:

Remove the pack from its case keeping the faces of the cards away from the audience. Position the pack in the left hand face down with the torn out corner at the left hand inner corner. Give the cards a casual overhand shuffle, retaining the face card in position by pressure with the left finger-tips. Replace the cards in the left hand position. Note that this starting position to the trick can be easily obtained after you have done a couple of other tricks. The missing corner acts as an excellent locator - you simply riffle the left inner corner upwards with the right thumb until you feel a jump, and then lift the torn card from the top of the lower half to the face of the upper half with the thumb-tip, finally giving the pack a single cut at this point bringing the torn card to the face.

Remove the envelope from the pocket and hand it to a spectator saying "This contains something valuable and if you can play a simple game successfully the contents will be yours." Ask him to put the envelope into his pocket for the moment.

Bring the right hand over the face down pack from above, fingers at the outer end-thumb at the inner end, the thumb being positioned near the right inner corner. Lift the pack away from the left hand for a moment. With the left hand finger-tips draw the apparent face card about half an inch out of the left side of the pack. Actually, it is the card above the torn face card that is side-jogged because you positioned your left finger-tips at the left inner corner, where the corner of the torn face card is missing. Hold the pack in this position for a moment with the card side-jogged (illustration 2)

Say "For this game we will use the face card of the pack." Place your left thumb on the long edge of the jogged card and the left fingers on the fingers extended and together on the face of the torn card covering the missing section. Keeping both hands in position, twist the pack upwards so that its face is towards the spectators. As you do this the left thumb pushes the jogged card square with the pack. The left hand now moves the torn card to the left away from the pack, its fingers covering the missing portion. The right hand now places the remainder of the pack aside, it no longer being required. As you do this say "The value of the card is not really important in this game." This three-quarter card is now torn into quarters as if it was a whole card. This is done convincingly using the following handling:

Twist the left hand slightly, so that the cards are in a horizontal position but still facing the audience. Bring the right hand to the card, fingers on the thumb at the rear and tear the card neatly in half. You are of course only really tearing half a card because of the missing corner. Twist the hands away from each other, the right hand moving clockwise and the left counter clockwise until the two sections line up along the centre torn edges. Bring the hands together and place the left hand section on the face of the right hand one, so that it lines up approximately with the left hand end of the larger section. Now tear neatly down the centre to form quarters. Really you are only tearing through a single thickness of card but the illusion is perfect, the fingers giving adequate cover for the tearing action. Place the single quarter in the right hand on the face of the two in the right hand and hold all three in a neatly squared condition, between the fingers and thumb of the left hand.

Remove the top quarter with the right hand and show its face to the spectators saying "An index corner." Turn it face down and replace it below the others neatly squared. Take the next top quarter and show it saying "A nonindex corner." Turn it face down and replace beneath as before. Repeat the action saying "A non-index corner" and finally "An index corner." You have apparently shown all four sections of the torn card.

Ask the spectator with the envelope to hold his hand palm up. Place the torn pieces on his hand the request him to cup his other hand over them and shake the pieces up to mix them. Say "The idea of the game is for me to say go, and for you to re-assemble the pieces face up on the table rather like a jig-saw within thirty seconds. I should point out that up to now no-one has succeeded in doing it. If you are successful you will receive the valuable contents of the envelope I gave you earlier."

Say "Go." And the spectator will try very hard to assemble in time, but he will be surprised to find that a corner has vanished. Say, "That's why nobody has done it before, but you can have the contents of the envelope anyway." When he opens it and finds the missing corner say "I told you the contents were valuable."

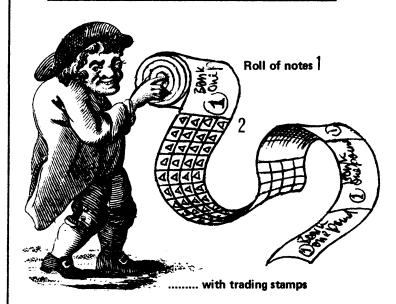

This makes use of some handling borrowed from Derek Dingle's "Royal Collectors".

- 1. As in the first method, remove the Kings from the deck and toss them on the table while upjogging the Queens. Then arrange the Queens in bridge order CDHS insert them into the deck both Queens and deck held face up and control them to the bottom. Turn the deck face down, which brings the QC to the top.
- 2. Pick up the Kings with the right hand. As you do so, get a break under the top card of the deck with your left little finger. Holding the Kings face up and using both hands, arrange them in the following order from face to back: KD, KS, KH, KC. Square the face up packet against the left thumb, stealing the top card of the deck beneath it as you do so.
- 3. Hold the packet in the right hand in the usual Biddle grip thumb at the inner end near the right corner, second finger at the outer end, first fingertip resting on top. Most of the face of the top King is visible. As you explain that in a moment you are going to ask one of the spectators to name one of the Kings, carry the packet away from the deck in a casual gesture. At the same time, get a left little finger break under the new top card of the deck.
- 4. As if to better display the Kings for the spectator to make his choice, the right hand brings the packet back to the left. The left thumb peels off the top King onto the top of the deck but overlapping it to the right for about half its width. The right hand returns again to pick up this King—the King of Diamonds—underneath its packet. What actually happens is that the packet is slid under the ball of the left thumb until all but about half an inch or so—the index and a bit more—of the KD is covered. The packet is square with the KD, not fanned.
- 5. The left thumb holds the KD and the packet in place for a moment so that the right hand can readjust its grip, retaking the packet (and the KD under it) near its outer and inner left corners. The packet is now moved to the left until the KD is square with the top card of the deck (under which you are still holding a break,

- remember). The left thumb then peels off the next King the King of Spades. Simultaneously the right hand steals the top card of the deck underneath the KD and moves back to the right;
- 6. The right hand returns to the deck and picks off the KS underneath the KD and sidejogged to the left of it. The left thumb reaches across and peels off the KH onto the top of the deck and the right hand moves away to the right. From the audience's point of view you are now displaying a spread of three Kings—clubs, diamonds, spades from face to back—in your right hand, holding them from above, Biddlefashion. The KH is displayed on top of the deck in your left hand. Actually, you have stolen the QC face down under the KC and the QD face down under the KD. The QH and the QS are still on top of the deck beneath the face up KH.
- 7. As you offer the Kings for the spectator to name one, push the KH part way off the deck, also pushing the top face down card a little way off beneath it. Then pull both cards back square on the deck, getting a little finger break beneath them.
- 8. The procedure now begins to vary according to which King the spectator names. The easiest case is the KH. You merely release your break, rub the face of the King with your left thumb, then deal it off onto the table. Using the spread of cards in your right hand, flip the top card face up. It is the QH. Deal it onto the table with the King.
- 9. If the KD is named, slip the KS back on top of the deck, then the KD (and the card hidden beneath it) on top of that. Retain the little finger break under the QH throughout this and the following moves. Rub the face of the KD with your thumb, deal it onto the table, then use the QC in your right hand to flip the face down card that has appeared on top of the deck face up. It is the QD. Deal it onto the table with the King. Retake the KS in the right hand, under the KC (and the card hidden beneath it) and side-jogged to the left.

- 10. If the KS is named, bring the spread of three cards in your right hand over the deck and pick up the KH (and the card beneath it) under the KD and side-jogged to the left of it. At the same time, the left thumb reaches across and draws the KS onto the top of the deck as the right hand moves back to the right. Rub the face of the KS with your left thumb, deal it onto the table, then use the spread to flip the top card face up. It will be the QS, which you deal down beside the King. Retain the spread of cards in the right hand.
- The most difficult case to handle is if the spectator names the KC. It is not very likely that he will, since this card is on the end of the line and mostly hidden by the back of your right hand. If the KC is named as the first selection, however, you can use the following handling: Drop your break under the QH and with your left thumb riffle down about half way into the deck and hold an opening at that point. Being careful not to let the cards separate and reveal the hidden face down Queens, insert the spread into the opening and pull it around so that the cards, still spread, are protruding from the outer right hand corner of the deck. They should be stuck far enough in to be securely gripped, however. Remove the KC (and the card hidden beneath it) with the right hand and place it on top of the deck. Then retake the rest of the spread with the right hand in the Biddle grip and pull it out of the deck. You can now go through the rubbing business, deal the KC onto the table and use the spread to flip the QC face up on top of the deck. Deal it down with the King and also regain your little finger break under the second card from the top of the deck.
- 12. I will not detail the handling for all of the subsequent choices. If you try this out you will quickly see which of the techniques described above you will need to use in any given case. The main points to remember after the first King and Queen have been dealt with are these: If the KS is named before you have dealt with the King and Queen of Hearts, you will need to use the handling described in step 10 above; once the King and Queen of Hearts are out of the way you don't need to hold any more breaks with the left little finger (unless the KH is the first choice and the KC the second, in which case you will have to hold a temporary break under the QD while you deal with the King and Queen of Clubs, so that you can remove it cleanly again under the KD). You won't need to use the special handling given in step 11 unless the KC is the first selection. Any other time it is selected you merely put all the cards on top of the deck — similar to the handling in step 9 above - and hold a break beneath them if necessary.

13. This reads much more complicated than it is in practice. Once you try it out with cards in hand you quickly see which handling you need in any given case, and once you get through the first choice of two the remainder is quite easy. The main points to watch are to keep the hidden cards carefully aligned with the Kings covering them, and to keep the spread in the right hand angled slightly downwards so the spectators cannot see the edges too well, since back to back cards do have a tendency to separate at the edges.

BUSINESS FOR THE ROLL OF NOTES Bob Read

It was, I believe, Bert Allerton, who made much use of the roll of treasury notes stuck together end on end. He used to invite a spectator to keep all he could cut off — with a pair of no-cut scissors.

I've had a deal of laughs with the notes, and tell of the value of money decreasing so rapidly the banks are distributing it in its most usable form. Hold up the roll and the inference is obvious (1). "Of course", you continue, "the idea may be slow to catch on so as an incentive with every £20 you receive a sheet of Green Shield stamps" (2).

By the way, did you hear about the man appearing in court for sticking trading stamps on his insurance card? Judge gave him five years — and a nice little electric kettle.

PROFESSIONAL VIEWS ON DOING PROFESSIONAL MAGIC FOR THE LAYMAN

I am a professional and I am concerned with professionalism in magic.

I believe there are two kinds of magic:

- 1. The magic of the magic club, in which members fool one another or show tricks to one another, and there is nothing much at stake. Some excellent magic has been developed through these channels, and I am anxious to see it continue. I enjoy taking part in magic club magic, but when I do, I will probably do things I would never do in a professional act.
- 2. The magic of the paid engagement, in which you are doing magic for the public, for money, and your entire reputation is at stake or at least, being built-up.

The magic of the magic club, good though it may be, is still amateur, and if you think that way, it will be reflected in what you do. If you plan to be a professional, you must start thinking and doing magic as a pro, and every aspect of your magic must fit professional standards.

Nobody pays any attention how you get in front of the crowd when you are doing magic club magic. Professionally, however, being on stage is a trade, an art, that must be studied, starting with the point where you walk on stage. The professional studies his props and tables—he is careful to avoid overcrowding or conditions where anything could mar the performance. Every table and prop is in the same relative position each time it is used—the professional doesn't want to think about tables and props when he is performing. He is too busy being a pro. He wants attention on HIM, not on his surroundings.

Amateurs get very involved in methods, which is right, at their stage of the study of magic. But later, methods, having been learned, must be put in a lesser position to make room for accent on effects. Methods are important.

but when you are a professional, effect is more important. Start by studying all the methods for your tricks to find the best one for the effect you want, and then concentrate on that. Make sure the effects are the best you can find — a professional must be using the best effects he knows.

Think about that in your own magic life — what are the best effects YOU do?

In the amateur field, it's easy to be the life of the party — tell a joke, sing a song, do a little trick. Lots of amateur magicians, getting the applause of their friends, let it go to their heads. It doesn't really mean they are ready for the stage because they are the life of the party. It isn't easy to be a professional. A good working magician doesn't get that way by accident — it isn't luck alone! Study the professional and see why he is successful. Get to a point in your magic life where you aren't too lost in appreciation of slights — start spending more time on effect.

Good professional magic is never involved — most really successful methods are SIMPLE. Think how some of our best and most popular effects are produced: a shell fits over a ball — a metal ring has a cut in it, etc.

Many tricks have the same finish — a large ball, a giant cigar, giant cards, large die, etc. A SIMPLE idea, but proved to be very successful and therefore continued to be kept in use in magic.

Think "simple" for best results in professional tricks.

In selecting tricks — consider that to the layman, four coins, four balls, four cigarettes, four thimbles — are all the same effect! If your professional act is to be really professional you must avoid too much of the "same effect", even though different objects are used.

Think of magic as an art. For instance, I can buy a piano, I know exactly how a piano works, but I cannot play it until I have studied, practiced, polished and perfected my music. So it is with magic.

About YOU. Perhaps one of the most common faults of magicians is trying to be somebody else. You see many lecturers, for example, but take and absorb from them only the knowledge of methods and effects. Don't try to copy their talk, personality, peculiarities, etc. Be yourself. Anybody copying Slydini, for example, can only be a second rate Slydini. How much better to be a first-rate YOURSELF. There is no way to copy fine performers with success.

Your own personality and character enter into your professionalism. Behave like a man—not like a boy showing off his toys. The "challenge", where you practically dare the audience to find out how you do it, has no place in professional magic. Just because you own and "have" all this stuff isn't going to impress the public. What are you going to do with it to make yourself an entertainer, and to entertain them?

Whatever character you select (or finally arrive at after study) — stay in it. That is how reputations are built. Think of all the famous pros you know, and remember how, from performance to performance, they are still in character. They created it, and they stay with it. This is important.

Along the same line of thought, if you select to be a Chinese magician, don't you use tricks that no Chinese would know about, or have, or use - for instance, a top hat, a cane, etc. If you are going to work in a business suit, stay away from the Oriental effects. You can carry on this analysis by going over your tricks and making these comparisons for yourself. There is one 'out' — you can get out of character without marring the performance if you have a GOOD EXCUSE for it. A man in a tail suit could produce a Chinese umbrella — wrong by most standards — but corrected by the fact that he explains how he became a magician — he was shipwrecked on a Chinese Island, etc., etc., — the story covers it up and makes it possible.

Remember that you can't give excuses like that in a silent act!

A professional knows his work so well he doesn't have to be thinking about it all the time. He can devote his time to winning over his audience and being a professional entertainer. For instance, when palming (actually hiding) an object, forget about it! You should not be conscious of the fact that you have an object palmed. It is easier to hide an object than to actually palm it, and a pro finds it best to do things the simple, easiest way, even when it comes to sleights.

A pro always has an 'out'. After many years in the business, you see me doing the same tricks over and over again. Almost nothing can happen or go wrong any more, because I think everything has happened already — but if something did, I make it a point to have an 'out'. If I never have to use it — Good!

Amateurs always like to have and do something NEW. They need this because they are still learning their magic. Professionals don't worry about something new — the audience doesn't know new tricks from old tricks, and you can't be a pro by continually changing and adding to an act. I find I have thrown away much more than I have ever used — sometimes a fine move, a great trick or routine has to be dispensed with for the sake of continuity or effect of the whole. This is professional thinking and it has to be done eventually if you are going to make a professional act out of all the magic knowledge you have accumulated.

I will be glad to welcome you to the professional ranks whenever you are ready. Best wishes!

FRED KAPS

First of all, let me say thank you to some of the people who have taken the trouble to drop me a line regarding anything I may have said in the past in these pages. Note that I have said SOME, not all, and by that I mean those of you have been complimentary. I have no intention of replying directly to anyone but will eventually get round to mentioning most of them here. To be truthful, I don't even write to my dear old mother in Scotland and she is much more interesting than some nut in Crimping by the Sea who wants to know how Kreskin does his miracles.

Come to think of it, I wonder how many mothers actually know how their offspring really make their bread? Mine knows I'm in the magic business, and apart from a very few TV appearances, and one kid show in a public park in Scotland years and years ago, she has absolutely no idea of the mental anguish her youngest of seven has had to go through before drunks, callgirls, pimps, gangsters, and I've even worked a few clubs where they specialize in catering for men who look like girls, and before you get the wrong idea, I must point out, very quickly, that I don't always get those kinds of audiences. Once in a while I actually get the chance to meet real people. Hold on a minute, do you think maybe I'm wrong and the people I have been describing ARE the real people and all the others are the product of a decadent civilization?

Do you want to know why I have brought the subject up? (That's English for the benefit of foreigners) — I'll tell you. Looking back over the years, I think of the many occupations I have followed, including a little more than two years in the Royal Navy, and I suddenly realise that the magic buffs I have met are probably the nicest group of all. Is there a reason for this? Yes, there is. Will you explain? Alright I will.

If you work on a building site, or in a factory, or drive a truck for a living, or are president of a large banking concern, consultant engineer in a peanut butter factory or whatever, the chances are that the majority of the people you are going to meet in your lifetime are going to be involved in the same line as you are. The chances of a counter clerk in a department store meeting the president of a large company socially. are pretty remote. But not if he is a magician, and especially not if he is a good one. Go to any magic convention practically anywhere in the world and you will see them sit down and swap moves together as if they had been friends all their lives. Now, I have a question to ask. Why is it that this rule applies more to close up magicians than stage magicians? This rule is not one hundred percent accurate but it is pretty close to being a fact that closeuppers are more closeup than the others, and despite what many of them may say or think, they spread their secrets around more openly than the others.

The Page boy speaks....

To get back to my original point (I think I had one) I think the reason for the magic men being the nicest group I have had the pleasure of operating with is that they come from all walks of life, and I can think of no other group who can match this. There are stamp collectors who are dustmen who will never ever get the opportunity to see the millionaires collection, but in the magic game, there are very few doors closed to anyone. In the old West the colt was the great equaliser, today, an interest in magic will do exactly the same thing for you on another level.

Everything I've said so far could have been said before (and probably was) but my reason for saying it again was simply to state the fact that I'm glad I'm in the magic business one way or another and I'm very happy to have made your aquaintance.

You have given a very small Scottish boy the opportunity to crawl halfway round the face of this earth (I stole that phrase from Goshman) and meet people and see places that he never dreamed existed. He has opened his eyes wide in wonderment at how some people live. I like you.

Patrick Page

Pssssssss. It's possible that most of you will know that I am associated with a magic shop. Wellillll, in the course of rooting around in the cellar I cam across some old note-books of the late Lewis Davenport. In one of them were some notes he had made about magical performances he had seen. He had made a list of the effects that were performed by other professional performers of the period, which was in the early nineteen hundreds.

Some of the descriptions are a bit sketchy but I think they might be important to someone, and that being the case, I intend to include a description of one act in each issue for the next formonths under the heading of

From the notebooks of Lewis Davenport

STARTING NEXT MONTH

George P. Sanderson on Colour Psychology

On first reading I must admit I was not impressed with the effect under the above title by Stanton Carlisle in the second issue of "Pabular". However a few days later I read it through again and realised that its simplicity of plot and apparent absence of any force could make it a strong item of mental magic, subject of course to suitable presentation. The one feature I did not like was that the key cards associating numbers with colours were taken from the pocket only after the audience's selection of numbers was known. To me, and no doubt some others would think like me, this was a weak feature. However my interest was aroused and I set the old brain box to work to see if I could overcome this weakness. The result. having now been audience tested with gratifying success, may induce others who passed it by to try out Stanton Carlisle's excellent effect.

The plot remains the same but the routine is slightly changed as follows. FIVE identical sealed envelopes are introduced and four of these are placed separately on the table. Retaining the fifth envelope in his hand the performer states that this contains four cards each bearing a number 1 to 4 inclusive. Three members of the audience are invited to choose one of the cards by number. This done, the performer without any hesitation slits open the envelope, withdraws the four cards and lays them out face upward on the table. It is now seen that the number on each card is set in a background of different colours - Green, Yellow, Red and Blue. Patter along the theme of Colour Psychology follows and it is pointed out that by the use of the number cards three members of the audience have each chosen a colour without being influenced by personal colour preference (which at least provides a more or less plausible reason for the intervention of the numbers). The one colour not chosen by any one of them will be the performer's.

The four sealed envelopes lying on the table are now turned over to reveal, for the first time, that each has a coloured sticker on what has thus far been its underside and these colours correspond with those on the number cards. Each person takes the envelope bearing the sticker of his/her chosen colour, opens it and reads his consolation message. A fourth person is invited to open the envelope left for the performer and removes the £5 note!

METHOD:-

Three envelopes are prepared by inserting appropriate consolation messages, sealing the flaps and sticking discs coloured respectively Red, Yellow and Blue like seals across the edge of the flaps. The fourth envelope is similarly treated but this receives the £5 note and bears the Green sticker (this can of course be any colour but I am sticking to the arrangement of colours established by Stanton Carlisle). The fifth envelope has six cards inside it and is sealed down but has no colour sticker. The first four envelopes are placed sticker side down on the table without the colours being disclosed.

The six cards which go into the fifth envelope are double sided and each side of each card has a coloured panel with a number printed in the colour panel (or, if preferred, it can have a circle or square of colour with a number above or below on the white ground). Either way it associates one colour with a particular number. Two of the cards are cut slightly longer than the other four (between 1/16" and 1/8"). The colours (indicated by initial letters) and associated numbers and the order of the cards are given in the following table:-

	Card	Short Card 2	Card	Long Card 4	Short Card 5	Short Card 6
Side 1	Y2	G1	R3	B4	G2	Y1
Side 2	G3	B4	R1	Y2	В3	G4

It will simplify re-assembling the cards correctly after use to put a small pencil dot in one corner of Side 1 on each card. Assemble the cards in the above order 1 to 6 and with Side 1 facing you in every case. The packet is then placed in the envelope with Sides 1 facing the flap and Sides 2 facing the address side. Seal the envelope and note that this is important for when it is slit open the cards inside will then be equally well concealed whichever side faces the audience.

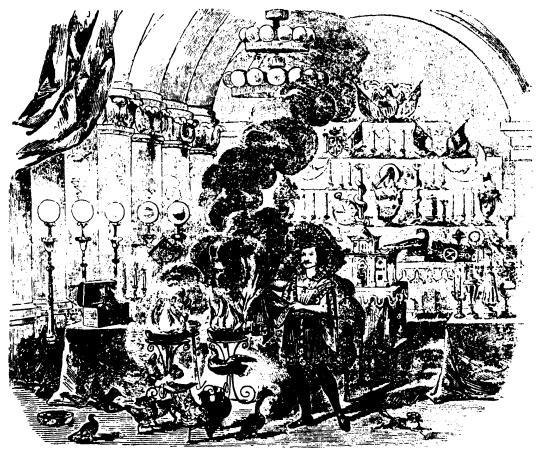

Before the members of the audience are asked to choose their numbers the performer is already holding the envelope (and nothing else) in his hand and has already told them that it contains four cards each bearing a number. When their selection has been made he knows which number remains for him and he now has to slit the envelope open and withdraw the four cards which will associate the colour Green with that number. This must be done quickly, cleanly and without any fumbling or peeking in order to convey the impression that only the four cards were in the envelope whereas in fact two cards are to remain therein. The arrangement given and the use of the long cards makes this sure fire and easy to accomplish.

The audience must not know that there are other designs on the reverse sides of the cards and they must therefore be withdrawn from the envelope with the required sides facing the audience. If Green is to be associated with 1 or 2 the flap side must face the audience and the address side must face them if it is to be associated with 3 or 4. If 1 is required the four cards to be withdrawn are the two long centre cards together with the two on the flap side and if 2 is required the two long cards are withdrawn with the two shorts on the address side. If 3 is to be Green the two long cards together with the two shorts on the flap side are required and for 4 the two longs with the two shorts on the address side. It is very simple to remember and any combination can be withdrawn without any fumbling and without looking due to the fact that the arrangement has been designed so that the two centre long cards are always needed and it is quite easy to bring these out with either the two shorts in front or the two shorts behind, leaving the other two cards in the envelope. There is no reason at all for the audience to handle these cards and whilst they are busy opening their envelopes the cards should be quietly gathered up and slipped into your pocket or close-up case.

If one prefers, as I do, to use larger cards and "court" style envelopes instead of the wage packet type, the two centre cards should be wider than the other four instead of longer. Finally a tip on withdrawing the cards: it is best for the tip of the right forefinger to enter the envelope first to locate the edges of the long cards and separate them from the two shorts which are not to be withdrawn whilst the thumb goes outside the two required shorts. Whether the shorts infront or behind are required the hand position must be the natural one for the circumstances. This is easily assured by the following simple means. The envelope should be held in the left hand and to the left of the body. If you want the shorts from behind hold the envelope vertically with the opening at the top. If however you want the shorts from the front tilt the envelope to an angle of about 45 degrees so that the opening is pointing leftward away from you. Thanks to Stanton Carlisle for an interesting effect and I hope that he and other readers will like this modification.

We have just heard that Ken Brooke has received an award from the Magic Castle as a tribute to his services to Magic. At the time of writing we know no more. He is certainly worthy of an award and we congratulate him.

We are continuing to gather material for our 'Tribute to Johnny Ramsay' issue but still have space for anything of interest connected with this great close-up performer. Originally we intended to publish in April but we have now decided to produce it later in the year: we want it to be good and do not want to hurry things too much. We intend to post this issue from Johnny Ramsay's home town which should make it of special interest to collectors. Thanks to Bob Read who gave us this idea.

From Bob Ostin further thoughts on his Vampire Living and Dead Test in the Christmas issue: He writes:-

I make a little 'nick' in the staple with a penknife and this can easily be felt afterwards with the ball of the thumb making it possible to present the effect completely sightless.

It may also be possible to cut notches in the chopper blade of the stapler which would correspond with little blobs of Araldite (or something similar) placed on the appropriate staple or staples.

I have tried the knife marking idea but have not as yet experimented with Araldite.

Bob Byrne from California has also sent us an idea for Vampire — he simply shortens the ends of the first staple of the stack. (This can be done without dislodging it). When used this staple can of course be distinguished because the gap between the closed ends of the staple is larger than the others.

SHELLOIL

The pocket calculator gag in the December issue has come up for comment; Dr Brum Antonioli from Zurich asked us if we knew that ESSOOIL (7100553) could also be shown (we didn't). This type of stunt has certainly been doing the rounds and we know that different themes have been appearing in other magazines. New slants on this will be welcome — we'll be happy to pass them on in Focus should they come along.

Bob Ostin has written to us on another topic — the Pageboy's article on the Indian performer in last month's issue. He was, he says, reminded of the hours spent about twenty years ago watching a young Indian on the blitzed sites in Liverpool. He also did the Cups and Balls and the Miser's Dream and had a very clever bit where he placed a small ball in his fist, made a whistling sound, and a bird's head popped out!

Fred Lowe, who lived in Liverpool at that time eventually talked him into explaining how he did it. It was really quite simple. He had cut off a real birds head and having removed the inside, turned the skin back over the beak so that when briefly looked at it resembled the crude balls he was using. Once in the fist a poke with the finger turned the head the right way round again and the beak and feathers appeared most effectively out of the hand. (Some trick!)

Bob wonders if that was the same man seen by Pat Page.

Fred Kaps, recently in London for the Magic Circle Show, showed the following effect that is both intriguing and unusual. Asking if we had seen the 'Coin through Bottle' effect he placed a small coin into a borrowed beer bottle and started to shake from side to side. After about 30 seconds there was a sudden 'plop' and the coin was seen to have made a hole in the bottle and be lying on the floor. (British readers will have difficulty with this trick because no UK coin will go into a beer bottle in the first place: the one used was Dutch).

Dick Koornwinder was there and said that if a nail was placed in a bottle, a similar movement would cause the bottom to fall out of the bottle. Where do we go from there? Any comments from readers would be welcome.

Nearly every Monday of the year is club night at the Magic Circle and the number of these meetings devoted to some aspect of Closeup Magic continues to increase.

On September 1st Pabular will be responsible for providing an evening and any of our readers wishing to participate will be welcome. Just drop us a line.

Final Thought

We leave you this month with an extract from the British lecture notes of Fred Kaps and we print it here with the permission of Ken Brooke and Frank Farrow:

'The greatest strength of a performer doing Close-up at a private party is his behaviour as a person.'

CA THE

The outstanding magic of the world's finest all round magical artist

FRED KAPS Some two years ago we marketed 'THE THREE CARD TRICK WITH FOUR CARDS'. It was routined by Fred Kaps and became a classic the world over - From this idea Martin Lewis of The United States devised 'The Sidewalk Shuffle' - Later Ben Martin routined the trick and we sold his version during the late months of 1974.

> A special set of cards have been prepared by us. Each of the four cards is 10½" x 6" they have been specially treated for

THE FRED KAPS ROUTINE AND HANDLING OF THE SIDEWALK SHUFFLE'

We consider this to be the finest display card routine available today. Can be performed under all working conditions. Requires no sleight of hand. Close up, cabaret or stage we guarantee you the magical thrills of a lifetime.

Outfit complete with cards. Full instructions for working and presentation written in the world famous 'Ken Brooke' style. Illustrated with 16 top class line drawings by the art editor of this magazine. This outfit is exclusive to us and cannot be obtained elsewhere. We do not wholesale to anyone.

England £3.25

Europe £3.55

USA Air mail $12.50

YOUR MONEY REFUNDED IF NOT 100% DELIGHTED KEN BROOKE'S MAGIC PLACE - 145 WARDOUR STREET LONDON, W.1. - ENGLAND

There's no place like it! Ask the professionals!

THE WRITINGS OF ROY WALTON

The Devil's Playthings £1.35 US $4.00 inc. Airmail Cardboard Charades £1.35 US $4.00 Tale Twisters £0.55 US $2.00 Card Script £1.10 U$ $4.00

L DAVENPORT & CO 51 Gt Russell St. London WC1. 01 405 8524

THE INTERNATIONAL MAGAZINE

Now in its 3rd year.

MAKE SURE EACH ISSUE IS SENT TO YOU REGULARLY. SEND TODAY ONLY £1.50 ($4.00) FOR ONE YEAR (SIX) ISSUES SENT POST FREE TO ANYWHERE IN THE WORLD.

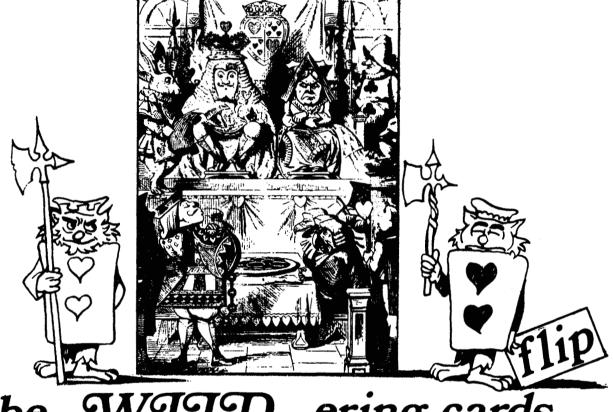

32, glossy pages in each issue THE INTERNATIONAL MAGIC STUDIO.

(RON MACMILLAN)

89 CLERKENWELL ROAD, HOLBORN, LONDON E.C.I.

Pabular is published after the second week in every month and is printed by Instance Printers, Paddock Wood, Kent, England. Subscriptions may be obtained direct from the publishers, Pabular, P.O. Box 180, London SE12 8JJ or through many magic dealers. Price 50 pence per copy (or US $ 1.25) surface post included. Air Mail extra 12 pence (US $ 0.30) per copy or £1.45 (US $ 3.60) per year. Editorial or content copy should be sent to Fred Robinson, 1 Crescent Court, 24 Crescent Road, New Barnet, Herts, England. Advertising ratios sent on request smalls 3 pence per word (US 10 cents). Dealer enquiries welcomed. Reproductions of old prints and historical magical items by kind permission of Tony Faro.

Ge Magazine of Close-up Magic
Vol.1 №8 APR 1975

be—WIID—ering cards...

Most wild card routines are nice to do for magicians, but too drawn out for a genuine party-audience: too much repetition of the same move, slow tempo and no climax, while the trick cries for being performed in crescendo.

Forgetting for a moment that one of the cards in the packet seems to be wild, the plot of changing the faces of a whole bunch of all the same cards into replica's of another card, is great, because of the impression of abundance it leaves on the spectators, when the cards are scattered over the table.

It would be not so difficult, to change just one packet of all the same cards for another of same cards, but this would not be a very elegant solution: too direct.

Using the standard wild-card set would be good, but the principle of the fake cards and set-up involved is too good to give it another 'funny-cardtrick' treat.

In my opinion you should create a reason for doing this routine at all, provide a logical solution why you use a packet of all the same cards, and then build several little effects into an applause-getting climax to finish your close-up cardmagic demonstration psychologically strong.

Be-WILD-ering cards!

In my routine I do not introduce one card being wild: I think because the joker is already the wild card in many card games, this is the card that should be used in the normal routine, but as I already have many tricks proving the joker is wild, I do not use this theme here.

Several well known magicians who have seen my routine, have praised it, and my lay-audience — who are the criterion — love it.

My theme is this:

Near the end of a series of card tricks, the performer remarks: "It's strange, but every time I do these tricks, there seems to have developed in some persons a strange affection for one card. Maybe because they have seen all the cards many times by then, it is a matter of psycho-cybernetic deduction, I do not know how, but it works. Now Sir, you too I think have this paranormal affection, this deck has been shuffled, please say 'Stop' anywhere you like.' Spectator chooses a card (say the King of Clubs), which is shown to everybody except the magician, and put back into the deck. Next the magician produces a packet of 9 cards, which he claims, were taken from decks he had used for previous demonstrations of this phenomenon, and which he will use to prove his proposition to be right, but the 9 cards are, although identical with each other, not so with the chosen card. That's a mistake and therefore the magician proposes to do something else. In dealing them, front and back of the nine cards are shown, four of them are dealt face-down with a request to two spectators to place one hand over each card, and four cards are dealt face up in a pile in front of the performer. One card remains. Say "All these cards are the eight of Hearts."

Performer picks up deck and asks "Which card did you actually take?" and at the same time the spectator answers, the remaining eight of Hearts changes into the chosen King of Clubs. First surprise. This card is put on top of the face-up 8h-pile and these cards instantly change into the kc, except the last 8h, which is shown front and back and put face down centre table. Surprise 2.

Spectators are asked to turn over their cards: they have changed into the King of Clubs. Surprise 3. And for the knock-out, the reluctant remaining eight of Hearts too has been changed into the King of Clubs, when turned over! Surprise 4!

The whole routine has tempo, audience participation, sucker, and effects that build into a wallop and, what's most important, lets them applaud!

METHOD:

You need a standard wild-card set, but the last, 'wild' card replaced by a regular duplicate of the eight 'other' cards. In our example the cards would be: four double-facers consisting of the eight hearts/king clubs, four duplicate regular king of clubs, one regular eight of hearts. Their order from the face would be: 8h/kc, -kc, -8h/kc, -kc, -8h/kc, -kc, -8h/kc, -kc, -8h/kc, -kc, -8h/kc, -kc, -8h/kc, from which the last 8h was taken. Topcard of the deck should be King of Clubs. Put the nine cards in a neat envelope or folder, to keep them clean, although it does not matter when they look a little bit used.

Shuffle the deck, retaining kc on top. Take deck in left hand, riffle with left thumb, until told to stop. Cut at that point, push top card of lower half on top of upper half, put top half back in place, double lift showing kc to everybody except yourself. Place card back into pack in waiting left hand, draw off top card of top packet with left thumb onto lower half, but let it protrude one inch, top half on top of lower half and let somebody push in 'chosen card, (chosen card remains on top). Deck tabled face-down.

Introduce the packet of nine cards face down and turn over and show face: 8h cards in glide-position. With right thumb separate first and second card and push forward as one card, so people see next 8h turn down, glide, and take protruding card (kc) away. Face down in front of spectator, who puts hand over it . . . show packet face up, deal 'next' card face up by pulling it towards yourself, and the next 8h becomes visible. Turnover, glide, kc is placed face down to be covered by other hand of spectator. Same procedure for second spectator, until two cards are left, and turned face-up. The bottom, face up (regular) card is drawn away by the right fingers, the remaining fake 8h put on top of the face up pile.

Pick up deck with left hand, hand palm up, deck face down, left thumb along left long side. Put 8h-face up on top saying "It's a pity, I've tried. We have to do something else to regain our reputation. What's the name then of the card you freely chose and put back into the deck?"

During this the 8h is turned over, double lift made and turned over at the exact moment spectator calls out: King of Clubs. Now the two cards should protrude one inch diagonally to the right, so you can take the right outer corner(s) with right thumb and first finger. Slide the two cards as one towards the tips of your left fingers. Turn your left hand over. Now two things happen at the same time. Your right fingers put the King of Clubs onto the face-up 8h pile, while the tips of the left fingers pull the 8h back onto the deck, which is tabled. Pick up face-up pile with right fingers, place in left hand and square. The right thumb now should be at the left inner corner, right second finger at right outer corner, right first finger slightly curled over centre outer short side. Take the cards away and up, at the same time turning the cards over with help of the first finger, which is possible due to the axis thumb/ second finger. Put the cards back into left hand. "Did you see it happen?" No one has, because this turnover is invisible if well done, and the face of kc is still showing. "It happened, look!" Right thumb and second finger are at right inner and outer corner, while left thumb pulls off the kings into left hand, retaining a break under last king, when last, face down card shows. This card is put on top of pile, top cards turned over as one, and 8h shows up. Packet closed and fanned out, showing four kings and the eight.

"Sorry for the eight, but kc is your card isn't it? Not bad for a start." Saying this, the cards are closed again, double lift and turnover of top cards, showing back of top card, supposedly eight, and is put face down at centre table. The remaining four kings spread out face up in front of you.

"So, your card is the kc! Please turn over your cards." The two spectators turn over their cards, and much to their surprise, they find them also to be kings of clubs now! Quickly take the cards from them and add them to your own spread. "Oh, by the way, your card wasn't the King of Clubs by accident, was it? It is unbelievable, but some people seem to have a strange attraction for that card, as I told you before." Turn the last card over, showing kc. Not bad for an end — this will stop the show—and so it does!

As they applaud scoop all the kings with this last one, and put them back in the envelope. Don't forget to put one of the regular kings in to the deck again, later on.

Of course, if it suits your personality, you could go on and act like mad, producing all Kings of Clubs out of all your pockets, "Some people have a stange affection for the King of Clubs!"

BOX CLEVER

EFFECT:

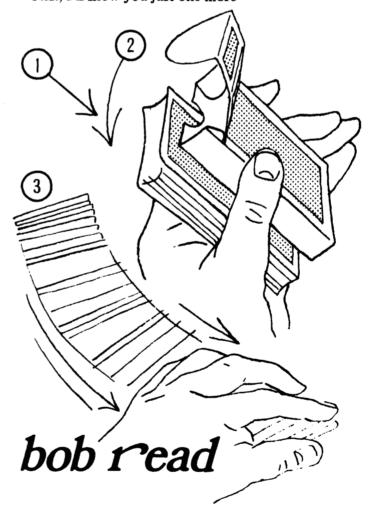

Performer finishes routine, places cards in card case but immediately the cards are seen to be still in the hand and ready for use.

Finish your penultimate trick and gather the cards together. Square up and carry out the usual motions of tapping the pack square on the table with the right hand. Left hand picks up card case and the cards are slid between the case and the left palm. As the cards are supposedly slid into the box, the left hand turns over in an anticlockwise direction and finishes with the back of the hand parallel to the table (2).

The flap of the case is then closed and right hand lifts the case and deposits it to the right Keep your attention on the right hand and the case.

As this happens the left hand turns towards the body, hiding the cards, and stretches forward. Ribbon spread the pack on the table toward you (3).

Move into your last trick with the phrase "O.K., I'll show you just one more"

91

This method of causing a card to rise from the centre of an ordinary pack is completely impromptu and can be performed entirely surrounded. It has formed part of my Ambitious Card Routine for many years, hence the title.

The card to rise is pushed halfway into the outer end of the pack and brought to the bottom using the multiple shift move. Hindu shuffle until about half the pack remains in the right hand. These are dropped onto those in the left hand making a step at the inner end. The right hand now squares up the pack with the thumb at the inner and the fingers at the outer end, creating a break at the step. The card to rise is immediately above the break. Any moves made to reach this position can be used, but I have found that the above has a 'flow' and can be performed in a casual manner with hardly a look at the pack.

fred tobinson AMBITIOUS RISER

The tip of the left little finger-tip is now inserted into the break on the right side of the pack near the inner right corner, and presses on the face of the card above, pushing it to the right, causing its corner to project about one-eighth of an inch proud of the pack. The tip of the little finger now moves to the corner of the projecting card (Fig one). The right hand now bevels the pack diagonally outward and to the right, the little finger still remaining on the corner of the card. The left thumb now moves from its position across the middle of the pack to a position nearer the outer end of the pack (Fig two). In the interest of clarity the right hand has been omitted from both illustrations.

The right hand is now removed from the pack which is now changed from the horizontal position to an upright one in readiness for the card to rise. The right hand is now closed into a fist with the index finger extended. This finger is placed beneath and in contact with the bottom of the pack (Fig three).

The left hand relaxes its grip on the pack letting it rest on the extended index finger. To cause the card to rise move the index finger back and forth with a sideways motion, causing the pack to 'rock'; at the same time the left little finger closes up gradually to the third finger, carrying with it the card resting on its tip. During this action the pack loses its bevel, becoming more or less squared.

It is possible to raise the card until about a third of its length extends above the pack, before the little finger closes up to third finger (Fig four).

The card can be caused to rise still further by allowing the third finger-tip to take over from the little finger-tip and continuing the rocking movement. It is necessary to pause in the action for the changeover to take place and during this pause the left thumb presses on the back of the pack to prevent the jogged card going flush with the pack and the little finger losing contact with the corner.

During the rocking movement and as the card is rising, the pack should be held well away from the body and moved round in a semi-circle allowing the spectators to view the pack from all sides.

After some practice it will be found that the extent to which the card is jogged can be reduced until the corner is barely proud of the side making the method used undectable.

The WONDERFUL PIG of KNOWLEDGE.

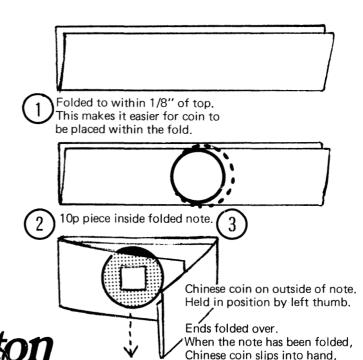

EFFECT:

A Chinese coin, and a 10p piece, are wrapped in a five pound note which is secured with a small bulldog clip. The clipped note is placed onto a chopstick.

Holding the chopstick at the both ends, the performer asks a spectator to name a coin. Assuming that the spectator selects the Chinese coin, the performer twists the chopstick, causing the note to revolve.

The spectator is asked to remove the note; when it is unwrapped he discovers that the Chinese coin, the one he selected, has disappeared leaving only the 10p piece.

CHOP-COIN arthur setterings which goes to pocket for clip and leaves coin in pocket.

REQUIREMENTS:

A Chinese coin

A 10p piece

A chopstick

A Five pound Note

A small bulldog clip.

WORKING:

A five pound note is folded in half lengthways. Actually, it is better if the bottom edge is creased a about an eighth of an inch below the top edge, so that the coin can be easily inserted (Fig.1).

The 10p piece is placed in the folded note and apparently the Chinese coin is placed with it (Figs 2 & 3). In fact, the Chinese coin is placed immediately behind the 10p piece, outside the note (Fig.3), and is held in position by the left thumb. The ends of the note are folded over (Fig.4), and the Chinese coin is allowed to slip into the hand, which feels in the pocket for the bulldog clip.

The clip is taken, and the coin left in the pocket. The top of the note is clipped, and the clip is slipped onto the chopstick, which is held at either end (Fig.5).

The spectator is asked to name one of the coins. If the Chinese coin is named, the performer claims that he will cause that coin to disappear. If the 10p piece is named, the performer says that he will cause the selected coin to remain in the note, and cause the Chinese coin, which the spectator rejected, to disappear.

1. Remove both black kings and place them face up on the table.

Clipped note on chopstick.

2. Out faro and push the cards together for about an inch as if about to make a giant fan.

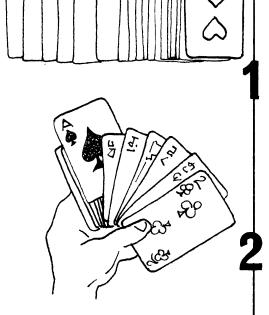

3. Place the deck in left hand faces towards the spectators and riffle the upper end of the pack with the right hand asking spectator to call stop at any time and remember the card.

4. As the spectator is noting the card, the break may easily be extended to the lower packet and held with the left little finger in the usual peek control fashion.

mark scudiery

- 5. Strip out the upper half which contains the selection and drop them face down onto the table. Cut the half in the left hand at the break and drop them on the tabled half. The selected card will now be twenty fifth in the fifty card pack.
- 6. False shuffle. I do a couple of Zarrow shuffles, but any false shuffle will suffice.
- 7. Have the spectator pick up the black kings and place them face up on top of the pack, cut, and complete the cut.
- 8. You must now give the pack one perfect Faro shuffle. However, the type of faro, out or in, depends on where the kings lie in the pack. Since they are face up it is easy to tell at a glance whether they are in the top or bottom half. If they are in the top half then you must our faro. If they are in the bottom half then you must in faro. If they appear to be dead centre have the spectator cut again and proceed as above.
- 9. Ribbon spread the pack face down on the table. The face up kings will have card between them which will be the selection.

NOTES: The out faro is step two must be perfect. The patter which is rather lengthy has been omitted revolves around two detectives apprehending a criminal. Performed without hesitation the effect is startling. I hope that the readers of Pabular will have as much fun with it as I have had.

EXTRA bob hamilton

ADDITIONAL CLIMAX for VERNONS 'CUTTING THE ACES'

This is my extra climax when performing the 'Cutting the Aces' routine (Stars of Magic — Series 2 No.2). As you know the effect is that the Aces are distributed throughout the pack. Magician shows how he can cut to each Ace and does so with three - however an indifferent card turns up instead of the fourth Ace. (This is where my finish comes in). Cards are dealt off corresponding to the value of the indifferent card, which is a five, four cards are dealt and the fifth turned to reveal the last Ace. Saying 'You may just think that was pure chance..... but what are the odds against these cards..... (turn over the first card it's a King of same suit as the Ace) making..... (turn over second card, the Queen) a Royal..... (turn over third card, the Jack) Flush?..... (turn over fourth card, the ten)!

Nothing earth shattering but the effect really looks impressive to the spectators.

SET-UP:

In looking for the Aces get the 5,K,Q,J,10 of Spades to the top of the pack and an indifferent card on top of all — see diag.1. Aces placed face up on table as found.

PRESENTATION:

- 1. False shuffle pack retaining top stock. Cut pack into four face up piles, top stock in pile to your left.
- 2. Pick up left hand pile, fan and insert Ace of Spades to the right of the ten of spades. Take care not to expose set-up—this can be done by inserting the Ace as shown in diag.2—which effectively masks set-up and, although not essential, the fan can be shown to spectators.
- 3. Square up fan and continue with routine as described in the Stars of Magic until all Aces are 'lost'.
- 4. Cut to the AD, AC, AH as described.
- 5. Saying "I never fail to find the AS that's why I leave it till last", cut the cards and reveal the 5S. Express dismay then say that the five is really an indicator and deal off top four cards (th K,Q,J,10 of S) face down and slowly turn over the AS. Place the 5S into pack.
- 6. Now using the patter theme above turn over the face down cards slowly and deliberately to complete the Royal Flush.

The Page boy speaks....

A friend of mine suggested to me that when I wrote the column last month I must have been drunk. This is extremely unlikely as I happen to be a non drinker, one of those completely teetotal people who go through life getting their kicks without alcohol. What he may have meant, in fact did mean, was that I was perhaps a little maudling. This month things are going to be different — and I'll tell you why. I have stopped smoking — something that some of you will know has been a life-time habit with me. In the last couple of weeks or so there have been two TV programmes shown here in England (I think there are more to come) about the horrors of smoking. Well, seeing them didn't actually put me off, but they reminded me that it was about time I stopped. Now this lead me into thinking what would happen if they showed a TV programme of all or some, of the bad magic acts we have seen on TV in recent years. Would they have any effect, and if it did who would it affect? The viewing public who would make up their minds there and then, like I did about smoking, never to watch another magic act again? Or, would it convince magicians there are certain things they must not do or say when performing in public? Which of the two do you think would be affected — the public or the magicians themselves?

Personally, I don't think it would affect the magicians one little bit. They would probably go on doing the same old tricks (just as I do) making the same mistakes over and over and over again year in year out for all time. Why should this be so? What is it about magicians that makes them think that they really know what is right and wrong about the performing arts? Why is it that they will sit in the magic clubs and discuss show business (?) and describe what is right or wrong or should be done and yet put practically any one of them on a public platform and say do 10 minutes and what you will witness will be a travesty.

We have been rather fortunate in London recently with the quality of the public performers we have been having here. Johnny Hart has just finished rather a long run with the Danny La Rue show at the Prince of Wales Theatre. This act is a very fine example of what is good and acceptable in this type of production. It is fast and flashy with good music, a pleasant personality, lots of skill demonstrated, with the occasional surprise and several cute bits dependant upon the fact that audiences think budgerigars (parakeets to the Americans) are cute in themselves. We have Jerry Bergman at Showboat Restaurant for quite some time now, and what is more, he is being held over for the next production and as each one runs for 6 months Jerry will have been appearing for over a full year.

Jerry has always been one of my favourite magicians. He opens with a fast moving pantomime bit that lasts for about nine minutes, during which balls appear from his mouth he does a comedy rope trick, he does the multiplying golf-balls and several other small sized but extremely funny bits. At the climax to his nine minutes he makes a false exit, comes back and starts to talk and does perhaps another 6 or 7 minutes with the aid of two gentlemen from the audience. Lots and lots of laughs with a minimum of verbal jokes. Thus, although it must be close to 25 years ago that I first saw him, he is still doing more or less the same act. with minor variations, according to whether he is working on a large stage or a small cabaret. And I still think he is one of my favourite magicians.

Every amateur or semi-professional magician should go and watch some of these acts and learn. These are the guys who are making a living out of our hobby. They don't know all of the answers, but they do know most of them.

Now, why is it that the amateurs and the semi-professionals (jeez — I wish I had a cigarette) don't seem to know the difference between a smooth act and a crooked one? (Did you know that Robert Harbin is a non-smoker but he does a cigarette routine in his act?)

What, for instance, do you think the average professional will think of this advertisement that appeared in a newspaper within the last week or so. Roy Walton spotted it and passed it on to me. Listen:

"Magician/Ventriloquist. Decorations and sweets supplied. All round entertainment. £2.00 per hour. Tel. etc etc."

I am almost ashamed to mention that it actually appeared in a Scottish newspaper.

I have to leave you now as I am off to the shops to buy a newspaper. And some cigarettes. And maybe some food. And some cigarettes......

Patrick Page

FROM THE NOTEBOOK OF LEWIS DAVENPORT

DE BIERE & CO., TIVOLI, LONDON Mar 12 – 1904

1 Bird Then Two Vanished In Cage / 1 Ball To 3 Then Vanished / Watch Passes / Rice Bowls And Fish /-Thumb Tie And Hoops / (Fan Illusion Went Wrong) / Egg Bag / Flyto Illusion / Paper Tearing / Chinese Illusion / Clock Dial

CAROUSEL Toy walton

The effect of this trick is more or less a transposition—it is based on an effect in the book 'Scarne on Card Tricks' called 'Perplexity', said to be a favourite of George Delaney.

HANDLING DETAILS:

Run through the pack and remove the Queens, placing them in a neatly squared pile, face up on the table. Position them so that they are well forward on the table top. Also remove the two black aces and place them face up on the table away from the Queens. Hold the remainder of the pack face down in the left hand.

Place one of the black aces face up on top of the pack and then Slip Cut it to the centre by drawing the upper half of the pack to the right with the right hand and keeping the ace in position by light pressure with the left thumb. Continue moving the upper half of the pack to the right until it is completely held by the right hand and the ace has dropped on top of the lower section. Get a left little finger break below the ace and replace the right hand section back onto the main pack.

Place the remaining black ace face up on top of the pack and repeat the procedure described in the previous paragraph, taking all the cards above the break when you cut the ace to the centre.

From the audiences viewpoint the black aces have been cut face up into the main pack but really they are both together at the centre, and you have a left little finger break below them.

The Slip Cuts do not have to be skilfully executed in fact they can be done quite slowly.

Conclude with a classic Erdnase cut, by placing all of the cards above the break onto the table, then about half of those remaining in the left hand on top of these, and the final section on top of all, a single three section running cut. Pick up the complete pack and hold it squared in the left hand. The aces are secretly face up at the bottom.

Move both hands towards the Queens, the right hand a little in advance of the left and spread the Queens out using the fingertips of both hands, until they are all separated in a casual face up display. To do this the left hand will have to turn inwards at the wrist until the palm of the hand is towards the table and the pack is automatically turned over. As you spread the Queens say "Would you please select one of these Queens." Whilst the choice is being made, place the pack quietly on the table with the left hand. The pack still appears to be face down but really only the top two aces are face down.

Take the chosen Queen and place it face down on top of the face down pack. Pick up the pack and hold it 'face down' in the left hand.

Pick up the remaining three Queens from the table and place them face up below the face down pack. Point out that the selected Queen is at the top and the remaining ones face up at the bottom.

Say "remember the three Queens face the remainder of the pack", and as you say this, twist the left hand inwards so that the fingers are now uppermost and the thumb is nearest the floor. Now take the pack into the right hand with the thumb on top and the fingers nearest the floor and repeat the twisting action with the right hand this time, so that the fingers come to the top and the thumb faces the floor. Take the pack into the left hand once more and repeat the twisting action already described and then finally, twist again with the right hand. The pack has been revolved four times and ends up the same way as it started. There is no need to mentally count four as you revolve it — just make sure it ends in the right hand with the fingers uppermost and the thumb nearest the floor. The twisting procedure is a quick one and only takes a second or so, and is carried out in time with the patter line mentioned at the beginning of this paragraph.

Place the pack into the left hand and with the left thumb push over the top three cards until the face up one shows below them. Casually take the top two face down cards into the right hand for a moment, and then take the remaining face down card on top of them. Replace the three face down cards on top of the face up pack, but outjog them for about one inch.

State that you will now cut the three reversed Queens into the centre of the pack and do this by pulling out about half of the cards from the face of the pack with the right hand and dropping this block on top of the face down 'Queens' to sandwich them in the centre. Square the pack and place it face down on the table.

Tap the pack a couple of times for effect, and mutter your favourite magic spell. Slowly turn the top three cards of the pack face up one by one and place them in an overlapping spread on the table, revealing the three Queens.

Now spread the remainder of the pack in a face up down spread to reveal the chosen Queen face up at the centre with the aces trapping it on either side.

Two like cards are inserted face down into one half of the deck which is held face up. A card is then selected and returned to the centre of the other, face down half. The face up packet is placed on top of the packet containing the selected card. The two like cards vanish from it and reappear on either side of the selection.

METHOD

1. Deck face up in left hand. Start to spread the cards in search of two like cards — say, the two red Aces. Injog second card from face of deck, then continue spreading until first red Ace appears. Place it on face of deck, even with william zavis

A nitpick over "Sandwich to Go" by Jerard Hartman in his book, Means and Ends other cards. Continue spreading until second red Ace is reached. Place it on face of deck — i.e. on top of first red Ace — but injogged for about half its length. Square cards maintaining injogs.

GONE SANDWICH

- 2. Right hand comes over deck, thumb at inner end of injogged Ace, fingers at outer end of deck, in order to pick up Aces and turn them face down. In actuality, right thumb pushes in on jogged Ace until it hits lower injog (the original second card from face of deck). Thumb continues to push in but also lifts up so that when all cards are squared on face of deck right thumb is holding an open break, apparently below the two red Aces but actually below four cards.
- 3. Right fingers now move backwards to inner edge of cards. Packet above break 4 cards is gripped between fingers above and right thumb below at inner left corner. Right hand draws packet back off rear end of deck, then moves forward again, turning the packet face down and replacing it on top of face up deck. (NOTE: This method of handling is both very clean and open and also keeps extra thickness of packet concealed as it is being turned over.)
- 4. Without pause, right forefinger presses on back of top card and draws it inwards about an inch. Right thumb then contacts inner edge of card. At same time, right third finger presses on back of exposed second card. Top and second cards are slid forward together until right thumb hits inner end of deck.
- 5. Right hand now changes grip in order to lift top two cards off of deck. Right thumb moves to outer right corner of top card. Right forefinger goes under cards and presses upwards against thumbtip near outer right corner of deck. As right thumb and forefinger grip the two cards and lifts them slightly, left hand turns

- palm down, bringing deck backs up and concealing reversed cards now at bottom. Right hand continues to hold its two cards—apparently the two red Aces—face down as the left hand carries the rest of the deck to the table.
- 6. Left thumb riffles up about half way and lower half of deck thus separated is dropped, back upwards, on table. Left hand then turns over again, bringing its half face up.
- 7. The two cards in right hand are placed, still face down, on top of face up packet in left hand and squared. Left little finger catches break beneath them. Double undercut packet, apparently losing the face down cards in the centre but actually bringing them to the bottom. Place packet on table, still face up.
- 8. Pick up face down half and spread it between hands, inviting spectator to point to a card. Be careful not to flash reversed cards on bottom. Split the spread so that the spectator's card is on top of the portion in the left hand. Roughly square up portion in right hand and thumb off selected card onto top of right hand packet, but overlapping as much as possible off the outer left corner and held in place by the right thumb on the inner right corner of the card. Raise right hand so spectators can see face of card. At same time left hand squares its packet.
- 9. Lower right hand again so cards are backs upward. Right hand moves toward left in order to slip the selected card underneath the left hand packet. Buckle bottom card of left hand packet with left forefinger so that a gap is created above it at the inner right corner of the packet. Slip selected card into this gap, then immediately release the buckle and, in continuation of same movement, slip rest of right hand packet beneath bottom card of left hand packet. Make sure spectators see right hand packet going in below selected card. Whole action should look as if selected card is simply being returned to centre of packet. Square up packet and place on table.
- 10. Pick up face up packet and place cleanly on top of face down packet, making it obvious that you aren't doing anything sneaky in the process. Tap top of deck or carry out whatever other nonsense you like to work the magic.
- 11. Spread face up cards. The two reversed cards have vanished. Spread face down portion. The two red Aces appear face up with a face down card between them. Turn over to reveal the selected card.

Sometime ago Ken Hawes told us of a barman who could roll a coin the full length of a long bar and cause it to return by putting a reverse spin on the coin. We mentioned this to Ken Brooke who demonstrated the method and told us that he had used it regularly as a flourish in his Coins through the Table routine. Some weeks later we saw Jack Avis cause a coin to spin on the table using a method we had not seen before. Subsequently we introduced the subject of coin-spinning during a session with Jack Avis, Alex Elmsley, Pat Page and others, and we produced between us a dozen or so different bits of 'coin-spinning' business. That none of the group claimed to know every item shown gave us the idea of running a series of articles using objects in everyday use to produce effects i.e. bending a pencil, breaking a pencil with a pound note, swallowing a knife, etc. These are of course well known, but there are embellishments to items even as familair as these. and access to a comprehensive list would, we are sure, be welcomed by readers of this magazine. We would be happy to include anything of this. nature you care to send along — they need not necessarily be magical in effect.

M. White writes from Aughton, Lancs:-

I have found an excellent way of storing and indexing PABULAR is by the simple means of a 'Boots A4 Slide Binder'. These are sold in 40p packets of 10 and as each slide holds 6 issues this is a very cheap means of storage. An investment of a few pence on two pieces of card and a few minutes making an index transforms the Pabulars from magazines to a very useful book.

(In fact we are looking into the possibility of a Pabular Binder (or Box) to hold 12 issues and will let readers know about this as soon as we have any definite information. We want to find something that holds the magazine neatly, without punching holes or 'pinching'. — Ed)

Anytime you have a few minutes to spare and if playing about with words interests you see how many words containing at least four letters you can make out of the word CONJURES. Plurals and proper nouns are not allowed, and no letter may be used more than once in any one word. Maybe a list so obtained, (and there are over forty possibilities) could be used in a mental effect, added interest being obtained by explaining the source of the list.

We predict a revival in the once popular colour changing penknives with some confidence, as the 'BOOK OF KNIVES' has now been translated into American. The author, Ascanio, is already well known for the 'spread' and is a close up performer of some distinction. In addition to his own material routines by Fred Kaps and Lewis Ganson are included in this worthwhile contribution to the literature of close up magic (Look out soon for a fine article on Knives by Peter Stammer in a future issue).

Any Pabular reader who drives and has recently visited a Total Service Station might take time to look around in the accessory shop. We have found a range of key rings (made in Canada) with a leather-backed metal 'tag' that comes in a variety of versions—the best so far discovered being a rabbit. There are about 20 different subjects and anyone with a magicorientated mind must find possibilities here.

Uri Geller is back in the news.

The colour supplements of the Sunday Observer for the 6th and 13th of April contained extracts from 'SUPERMINDS' by John Taylor, distinguished physicist and professor of mathematics.

He suggests that the inability of Sir William Crookes, Sir Oliver Lodge, Lord Rayleigh and other great scientists to explain ESP in scientific terms was due to their wishful attitude towards spiritualism. Could it be that Professor John Taylor and other researchers into these 'phenomena' have a too wishful attitude towards ESP?

We await the results of the researches that David Berglas outlined in Pabular to bring us back to earth.

During the past few weeks your Technical Editor has been the guest on a London Broadcasting radio phone-in programme and has made appearances on TV programmes 'Pebble Mill at One' and 'Lunch Hour'. His gambling expertise and card sharping knowledge have also been featured in two half page articles in the Sunday People. Pabular readers will be interested to know that Fred Robinson is sprightly, silver haired and has twinkling eyes. He also could have been a millionaire — but chose instead to take the honest path and become, amongst other things, our Technical Editor.

We leave you this month with something we remember reading many years ago and have searched for it since with no success.

It concerns a magical hobbyist visiting a professional just prior to his performance for which he had tickets. He asked the pro. what he regarded as the piece de resistance of his act. To which the pro. replied 'What would you like it to be?'

\rightarrow Look — A gem from the jungle

Visible, almost unbelievable close up effects with cards are indeed hard to find. This establishment is notes for both the quality and the impact of the tricks we sell. Here, adding to our 'money back guarantee' range, is a 'magical pearl'.

The effect can be dismissed in very few words......

TEN BLUE BACKED JOKERS VISIBLY CHANGE TO RED BACKED CARDS!

We introduced this fine routine of Hans Trixer's at the I.B.M. Convention, it sold out within a few hours of opening. (See 'Pabular' No.2).

Strange as it may sound, no particular skill or sleight of hand is required Each change is different from the previous one. Often, they change in the spectator's hands.

A four page, well printed instruction tells you what to do, when to do it, what to say and, when to say it. Beautiful art work by Sid Lorraine makes it all enjoyable to learn and puts a magical masterpiece within the reach of all with a genuine interest.

Supplied complete in neat carrying wallet, Satisfaction is included in the price.

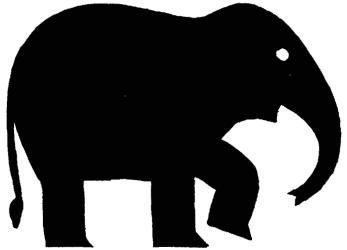

England £1.25

Europe £1.40

USA Air mail $5.00

In Town? We can teach you to perform the above really well in 30 minutes. Ring 01-734 9240 for terms and appointment.

YOUR MONEY REFUNDED IF NOT 100% DELIGHTED
KEN BROOKE'S MAGIC PLACE - 145 WARDOUR STREET
- LONDON, W.1. - ENGLAND

THE JUMBO CARD SWITCH (Terri Rogers)

A simple stand in which a Jumbo card is displayed is all that is required to perform the most unbelievable switch of a Jumbo card you will ever see.

No skill, no sleights, no funny moves, just place the card into the stand and the dirty work is done. No covering, can be performed in full view at close quarters, without moving your lips.

Price £5.65

USA Airmail $18.00

L DAVENPORT & CO 51 Gt Russell St. London WC1. 01 405 8524

MAGIC INIFO

THE INTERNATIONAL MAGAZINE

Now in its 3rd year.

MAKE SURE EACH ISSUE IS SENT TO YOU REGULARLY. SEND TODAY ONLY £1.50 ($4.00) FOR ONE YEAR (SIX) ISSUES SENT POST FREE TO ANYWHERE IN THE WORLD.

32, glossy pages in each issue THE INTERNATIONAL MAGIC STUDIO.

(RON MACMILLAN)

89 CLERKENWELL ROAD, HOLBORN, LONDON E.C.I.

Pabular is published after the second week in every month and is printed by Instance Printers, Paddock Wood, Kent, England. Subscriptions may be obtained direct from the publishers, Pabular, P.O. Box 180, London SE12 8JJ or through many magic dealers. Price 50 pence per copy (or US $ 1.25) surface post included. Air Mail extra 12 pence (US $ 0.30) per copy or £1.45 (US $ 3.60) per year. Editorial or content copy should be sent to Fred Robinson, 1 Crescent Court, 24 Crescent Road, New Barnet, Herts, England. Advertising rates sent on request—smalls 3 pence per word (US 10 cents). Dealer enquiries welcomed. Reproductions of old prints and historical magical items by kind permission of Tony Faro.

SOUD IN

The Magazine of Close-up Magic

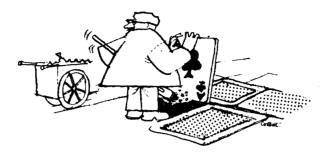

WE'LL RING YOU.... kevin fox

The performer chats about seeing an advertisement for a croupier at the (localise) casino. He tells what happened when being interviewed for the position. Asked what he knew about cards and dice illustrates by taking a pack of cards from his pocket and removes the cards from the case, and from the same case tips out a die. Holding the pack face up he cuts to the Ace of Spades which is seen to have a blue back as it is placed face down on the table. Spreading the pack face down on the table the backs are seen to be red.

Remarking that the Ace of Spades is a money card a silver dollar is found underneath it. Subsequently the back of the Ace changes to red thus matching the rest of the pack, the die suddenly disappears, and finally the coin vanishes.

Besides the cards the routine requires a dollar and a die as large as possible that will go into the card case. The latter has a square hole in it large enough for the die to pass comfortably (see fig. one).

WE'LL RING YOU

Kevin Fox

To prepare arrange the pack with the Ace of Spades on top of the face down red backed pack and a duplicate blue backed Ace of Spades second from the bottom. The pack so arranged is put into the case so that the back of the top card is visible through the hole. With the coin, die and pack in the left outer jacket pocket, you are ready to start the routine.

Commence by taking the pack out of the pocket with the die concealed beneath it in the left hand. With the right hand open the case and let the pack slip out into this hand and put them on the table taking care not to expose the colour of the backs. As this is being done position the die at the hole in the case and feed it into the case, and after a pause let it fall onto the table, As you replace the case in the pocket the left hand brings out the coin, finger palmed.

Pick up the pack from the table and riffle shuffle retaining the two aces of spades in position and taking care not to flash the backs of the cards or the coin. Square up the pack and position them in the right hand in readiness for the slip cut. Slip cut into the left hand, the cards falling therein concealing the finger palmed coin. The slip cut is explained on page 30 of 'The Stars of Magic' series and it gives the impression that with a throwing action to the left the right hand releases the bottom half of the pack. In actual fact it is the top half that is released with the exception of the top card which is retained in the right hand with the bottom half of the pack. The position now is that the left hand holds the half pack with the Ace of Spades at the face and a coin concealed underneath, and the right hand holds the remainder of the pack.

The left thumb now pushes the exposed ace to the right, and the right positions its cards under the edge and flips it over showing it to be a blue backed card. Remember this is the first time that the back of any card has been seen.

Again push the ace to the right and put the right hand packet square on top of the cards in the left hand leaving the face down Ace side jogged to the right.

The right hand now removes protruding Ace at the same time stealing the finger palmed coin from the left hand keeping the coin concealed beneath the card place both on the table. During this action do not alter the position of the left hand on the pack but grip more frimly with the thumb and first finger and release the pressure of the other fingers to facilitate the steal which is made with the right middle finger which goes under the card and between the third and little finger of the left hand.

Mentioning that the Ace of Spades is a money card spread the pack face down on the table showing the backs to be red as distinct from the face down Ace of Spades which has a blue back. Gather up the pack and square up and take a break under the top card (red backed Ace of Spades). Pick up the blue backed Ace exposing the coin, which holds their attention as you put the card on top of the pack which is in the left hand. You now have the duplicate Aces on top of the pack with a little finger break beneath them. The right hand now turns over the coin, simultaneously the left hand turns over and pushes the second ace (the red backer) face up on to the table with the left finger tips. The right hand now picks up the tabled Ace and taps the dice with it and turns it over showing it has changed to red backed card.

With the left hand pick up the die and hold it it in front of you about eight or ten inches from the edge of the table. Bring the card in front of the die holding it from the audience and let it lean on the die (Fig. 2) at the same time left hand releases its hold on the die and moves a few inches to the left and remains there giving cover for the next move, which is the vanish of the die and is executed as follows:

With the right hand strike the card at the point indicated by the arrow in Fig. 2, which will cause the die to shoot into the lap. Lift up the card showing the die has vanished. Clean up by returning the cards to the pocket and picking up the coin, make it disappear — that's it — you started with nothing on the table and finish with nothing on the table.

The patter theme I use is based on "Do you know about cards Mr. Fox? No — Well what about dice", and finishes with "I think we had better forget about dice and the cards, and the job". These last lines are said in unison with the die vanish, putting away the cards and the disappearance of the coin.

My thanks are due to Peter Kane who gave me the idea of having a hole in the card case to produce the die.

TARTHBOUND 10y walton

This is a small packet offshoot of the 'Out of this World' effect using just ten cards. Several conjurers have already given us condensed versions of the Paul Curry classic, two notable versions being by Jacob Daley and Alex Elmsley.

In the version that follows a classic sleight is used to achieve the desired result and its use may seem a little bold to the reader but upon trial it will be found comparatively easy to do, with adequate mis-direction built into the routine. Other technical approaches will suggest themselves, the first one to come to mind, being the use of a pull down technique, but for me the following version has become my favourite.

PROCEDURE AND PRESENTATION OUTLINE

Run through the pack and remove five red cards and then five black cards. Place the remainder of the pack aside as it is not used in the effect.

Say that you will mix the group of cards up so that no one is aware of their order. Do this by placing the cards below the table, or if not seated at a table, behind your back. Move your hands as if mixing the cards up but really just thumb off the top five cards and palm them in the right hand.

Bring out the cards remaining in the left hand, carefully squared and face down. Hold them so that the back of the top card is towards the spectators. The five cards being held in the left hand are all of the same colour.

Use the right hand fingertips and thumb to transfer cards from top to bottom of the left hand packet, one by one, inviting a spectator to call stop on any card he wishes. Move the cards from top to bottom fairly slowly and pause for a moment with each card in the right hand, before placing it on the bottom of the left hand group. Try to replace the card as neatly as possible below the other ones if it is not selected.

Continue to transfer cards from top to bottom until three cards have been designated by the spectator. As he chooses each one, drop it face down on the table to form a small pile.

You now have only two cards remaining in the left hand and you still have to transfer cards from top to bottom for a final one to be selected, and it is therefore essential that the two cards are absolutely square between each transfer. To ensure this, as you place the card in the right hand below the one remaining in the left, jog it forward slightly and then use the left forefinger to push it square with the other card. Repeat this procedure for each transfer until the spectator stops you on a card. Drop this on top of the three already on the table to form a face down heap of four cards. The timing of the next stage is important.

Request the spectator who selected the four cards to lift them up from the table, still keeping them face down. As he lifts the cards up and attention is drawn to his movement, bring your right hand above the single card in the left hand. so that the upper short end of the palmed cards lines up with the upper short end of the left hand card. In a continuous action, add the palmed cards to the one below them and move the right hand thumb to the centre of the back of the top card so that the complete group of six cards is now gripped between the right thumb on the back and the right fingers on the face. The right hand curves outwards around the outer short end of the packet to facilitate this action. The right hand now completes the action by turning the packet face up and depositing it in the left hand. It is turned face up by pulling the outer short end up, then towards you, and then down. The complete palm addition is a fast smooth action and appears as if you have simply turned the face down packet, face up into the left hand.

Press the thumb and fingers of the left hand together slightly to bend the cards along their length, and thus straighten out any curvature left in the palmed cards that have been added.

Thumb off the face card of the left hand group and drop it still face up on top of the four face down cards on the table.

Twist the left hand over so that the cards are now back uppermost and then slide out the face card with the right hand, turn it face up, and continued holding it in the right hand. Drop the four face down cards from the left hand on the table and then the face up one from the right, on top of them. They should be positioned a small distance away from the other pile of five cards.

Talk about the face up cards influencing the ones above them and then turn the spectators chosen cards face up one by one to show they are all of the same colour. Repeat this procedure with the other group.

Well, the David Nixon Show is back on our T.V. screens again. The format is much the same as before, a pleasant mixture of show-business personalities, a few effects by David, usually including one largish illusion type effect, and one guest magician. I suppose that by now, pratically every performer in the country has appeared on this show which still remains one of the best showcases for a magic act.

The Page boy speaks....

Why, (the man says) is he talking about T.V. magic series? O.K. I'll tell you. There is to be a new series on T.V. soon based on magic. No, that isn't quite right. It isn't based on magic, it is using magic acts in a way in which they have never been used before. For the last two or three years, we have had a series called The Comedians. This is a show in which they use a number of comedians in an oddball way. They stand them up in front of an audience with a camera on them and let them go for thirty minutes or so. They may tape several comedians one after the other in this fashion. As far as the comedian is concerned, that's it. The tapes are now put into the hands of an editor (who must be a genius) who chops them around so that the final product is perhaps ten comedians rattling out one joke after the other, giving the impression that there is more than one comedian appearing at the same time. Another similar show is Who Do You Do? which consists of nearly every impressionist in the country doing his party pieces for the

FROM THE NOTEBOOK OF LEWIS DAVENPORT

KAHN & KAHN

PARAGON - MARCH 16, 190?

Van. Stick and produced from Pocket.

Flag in between Handkerchief (probably 20th century — P.P.)

Handkerchiefs Paper Tube
Flower from Cone.
1 Ball to 4. Ball Box.
Troublewit.
Handkerchiefs Under Plate.
Paper, Bouquet Ribbons

Fan of Flags & 4 Flags on Staffs.

benefit of the editor. Now then, both of the shows we have just mentioned have been winners in a big way, and both of them have thrown up several performers who have since become household names because of those very programmes.

Would you believe that they are about to do the same thing with magicians? At least that's what looks as if it is about to happen. The pilot programme has been done and was apparently successful, but there appears to be a conspiracy of secrety about it. It seems that the show is definitely going to appear and is slotted for six weeks, initially. It has been announced in the national press accompanied by a photograph of a beautiful girl with a big bust, (or wat it a big girl with a beautiful bust) who is going to be a regular on the show. No date has been announced, no names have been mentioned but the grapevine says, mid July, Terry Seabrooke and Paul Daniels.

Terry is one of our funniest magic acts who has been due for a break (I hope it's his neck) for quite some time. Unlike many so-called comedy magicians, Terry is actually funny in himself and doesn't depend entirely on his material. He will shortly be taking off for the United States to appear at the IBM Convention at Little Rock, so giving our U.S. friends an opportunity long denied them.

Paul Daniels is quite a different kettle of fish. I remember Paul appearing at an IBM Convention many years ago in the Shield Competition (I think) doing a double act with his wife in which they performed in unison, Billiard Balls, Card Fans and similar stuff to the accompaniment of Rock & Roll music, with appropriate body movements. Paul has come a long way since those days. Comedy is his forte now with a beautiful throw-away style. After an almost sensational T.V. appearance on The Wheeltappers & Shunters Club recently, something just had to break for him and this could be it. The show incidentially, is to be called "And For My Next Trick".

And now, for a change, can I tell you that there is still another T.V. magic series about to be launched. This one, under the title "Magic Circle" is to be taped in The Magic Circle Clubroom, 9—12 June and so far, they plan to tape several shows on those days and have not as yet signed up all the acts. Ray Alan is to host the show which is produced by Derrick Sherwin, and one of the masterminds in the background is Clifford Davis who tells me they are still looking for acts, so if you read this before the above-mentioned dates you can still make it. Call him. The show is planned for worldwide distribution so if you do dialect jokes forget it, they want silent visual acts.

Patrick Page

DICE-CARD des colgan

As a professional close-up performer, I am always looking for out of the ordinary effects and unusual presentations, for my act. I think that DIARY DICE-Card is such an effect as it combines two of the oldest methods of Fortune Telling, Dice and Cards, and has a real impact climax.

EFFECT:

The Performer places a Diary in full view on the table. While his back is turned, the spectator rolls two dice a couple of times to arrive at a freely selected number. He then counts off this number of cards from a shuffled deck, looks at the last card and remembers it. He then opens the Diary at the day's date and finds written in the appropriate space....."to-day you will choose the six of spades". Naturally this is the card he selected.

METHOD:

The Diary, dice and cards are unfaked; To prepare, look at and remember the card in the 21st position from the top of the deck. Write the name of this card opposite the appropriate date in the Diary. With Diary, dice and cards in your pocket, you are ready to perform.

Remove Diary from pocket and place in the centre of the table. Hand the two dice to spectator and allow him to roll them a few times. Explain that while your back is turned, you want him to roll the dice and add the numbers on the top together. Have him pick up any one of the dice, add the number on the bottom to his first total and roll this die again. The top number now showing is added to make a grand total (supposing 1 and 5 were the first numbers rolled and the 5 was picked up. Its bottom number 2 is added to the first total. The die is rolled again and a 4 comes on top. Grand Total = 1+5+2+4 = 12.)

At this point, unsuspected by the spectator, you actually know his total. All you have to do is turn back to face him after he has made his final throw ... glance at the die and add the top two numbers showing, PLUS SEVEN..... and you have his total. Subtract his total from 21 to form your key number.

Now take out the deck of cards, giving them a false-shuffle if you wish (keeping the top 21 cards in order) and demonstrate what you want him to do. Say to him "I want you to count off the number of cards that you freely selected by throwing the dice. For example, if your total is six (QUOTE THE KEY NUMBER) count off six cards, face downwards on to the table and remember the last card" You actually count off the six cards and then place them on the bottom of the deck and hand the cards to him. This automatically places the force card in the correct position for him to select.

He now counts the cards, one at a time, face downwards on to the table until he reaches his number. He looks at the last card put down. On opening the Diary, at the day's date, he finds that the prediction is correct.

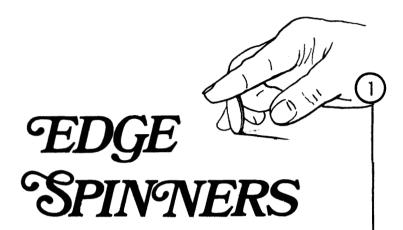

POINTS TO REMEMBER:

Place force card in the 21st position from the top.

Add 7 to the total of the two dice and subtract this number from 21 to give you the key number.

Demonstrate what you want him to do and count off the key number of cards.

I discovered some time ago, that by using Tarot Cards instead of Playing Cards, the effect was more interesting and entertaining to the audience.

Finger Flicker:-

A coin held upright on its edge with the index finger is seen to spin on its edge when the finger is raised.

(1) shows thumb pressing on second fingernail in a 'flicking' position and the coin is caused to spin by the second finger striking the coin as it snaps off the thumb. If the coin is brought into the position shown without assistance of the other hand and done casually without calling attention to what is about the happen the effect is quite puzzling.

Thumb It:-

Unlike the previous method attention is called to your hands as the position shown in (2) is adopted. The right fingertip strokes the back of the left index finger from nail to base several times, slowly at first, gradually increasing speed until it finally runs off the end of the left finger. As it does this the tip of the right thumb strikes the face of the coin near the edge and the left finger tip is raised allowing the coin to spin.

Tri-Van:-

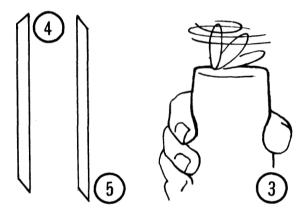

Either of the above methods can be used to cause a coin to vanish using the momentum of the spinning coin to this end. The hand makes a grab at the spinning coin the fingers hitting into the lap, up the sleeve, or under the other hand which is resting palm down on the table a few inches away.

Bottoms Up:-

A small coin is placed on the bottom of an upturned tumbler (3) and by blowing is caused to spin on its edge. This is achieved by forming the lips as when playing a flute and by blowing directing a stream of air on to the bottom of the glass just in front of the coin. When the coin starts to 'wobble' continue to blow but alter direction of stream of air off centre of the coin until it is spinning on its edge. This is a difficult feat to acquire but once mastered the coin can be kept spinning for a considerable time. The bottom of the glass being recessed prevents the coin from going over the edge.

Nicked:---

If the raised rim on the edge of a coin is nicked with a fine file it is possible to tell by sound alone with the back turned which side up the coin came to rest after being spun on its edge on a smooth surface. This difference in sound becomes noticeable just before the coin comes to rest.

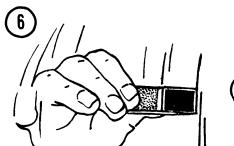

Off Balance:--

A coin spun on its edge can be made to fall the same side up every time if the edge is bevelled making the circumference of one side smaller. A coin so prepared will always fall with the larger sized circumference face up. Fig (4) shows edge view of such a coin.

A little known extension of the above principle in which a coin when spun on its edge can be made to fall either heads or tails at will is to bevel half the circumference on one side and the other half on the other side (5). Which side of the coin falls face up is determined by spinning the coin on the proper half of the edge to bring about the required result.

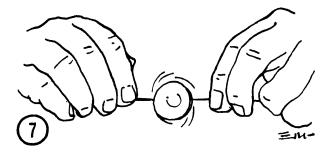

Smash and Grab:-

A small coin is spun on the table and a matchbox held as in (6) is smashed down onto the spinning coin which vanishes. If a wooden matchbox is used and the drawer is mouth down the action of bringing the box down sharply onto the revolving coin will cause it to penetrate the cover of the matchbox and end up inside, having apparently vanished. Wooden boxed being no longer freely available the following ideas may be worthy of experiment. Obtain a matchbox with a drawer which is fairly loose fitting. With the box again held as in (6) tilt the outer end of the box up allowing the drawer to slide about halfway out of the cover and in smashing the box down aim the open part of the drawer at the coin, and as the box makes contact with the table push the drawer into the cover with the heel of the hand, or laternatively, with the fingers pull the cover back over the drawer. A second idea is to have duplicate coin already in the box and kick the spinning coin into the lap with the box as it hits the table. Either of these methods could puzzle those who are conversant with the old method, especially if a small slit is made in the cover of the box used.

8→ - - 0-->---

For Two Pins:-

Pick up a coin between two pins as in (7) and blow on the face of either the upper or lower half of the face of the coin — it will revolve at a surprising speed. A coin with a milled edge is best, and if the coin is placed on a match box or something similar it will be easier than picking it up directly from the table.

Skittled:-

Place a glass on the table about a foot away from the edge and rest a coin on its edge behind the glass and challenge anyone to knock the coin over with another coin. The secret is simple, and is achieved by spinning the coin on its edge, which in addition to spinning on its axis also moves in a circle. With a little judgement the spinning coin can be made to knock the coin over. (8).

AGAIN.... michael austin

A variation of the Walt Lees version which appeared in Pabular for February.

EFFECT:

To suitable cardsharping patter four blue aces are dealt face down in a row on the table, on top of each of these four red backed cards are placed, making four five card hands for poker. In turn the aces vanish from their piles to appear one at a time in the hand at the end of the row. The climax is reached when the final hand is turned over to reveal not four but five aces to the tag line 'The cardsharper made one fatal mistake he died of a disease called five aces'.

SET-UP:

Take the four blue backed aces and the red backed ace of spades and deal with them as in the original version.

Add to the face of the red pack three blue backed spot cards. Remove the duplicates of these cards and the remaining aces and put them on top of the pack except for the ace of hearts which goes between the pack and the blue backed cards on the bottom of it. The set up of the red pack from face to back being:— three blue backed spot cards, red backed ace of hearts, the pack, the remaining aces and the duplicate spot cards.

PERFORMANCE:

Introduce the red pack, fan it to show the backs without exposing the blue backed cards on the bottom. Take the pack face up in the left hand and obtain a break below the ace of hearts, being careful not to expose the face of the ace. Tell the audience that you need sixteen cards. With the left thumb push off the top card and take it in the right hand, counting it as number one. Push off the next card counting two. Push off the next two cards as one counting three. Continue in this way until you reach sixteen (actually seventeen). Each card is taken below the previous one so that their order is not reversed. These cards are laid face up on the table and the pack is laid aside.

Pick up the blue pack and display the backs without flashing the red back of the ace of spades. Take the aces from the pack as in the original version. Pick up both the red backed packet of cards and the four aces, place the aces face up on the face of the red packet. With the cards in the left hand obtain a break between the blue backed spot cards and the ace of hearts. Take all the cards above the break in the right hand and turn both packets of cards over simultaneously making certain that you do not expose the face of the ace of hearts. Drop the cards from the right hand onto those in the left hand keeping a little finger break between them. The right hand now deals the top four blue backed cards in a row on the table the last one being an ace. Cut the cards above the break in the left hand to the bottom as in the original version.

Adjust the packet of seventeen cards in the left hand so that they may be taken by the right in the Hamman count position because this is the count that is predominate in this version. With the left hand thumb off the top four cards and place them on the first blue backed card. Repeat this for the second and third blue backed cards. Place the remaining cards from the right hand onto the remaining blue backed card (ace).

The first ace passes;

Pick up one of the indifferent packets of cards and place the blue backed card second from bottom without showing its face. Now perform the Hamman count showing five red backed cards. Turn the packet over and fan the cards to show that the ace is missing. Pick up the ace packet in the Hamman count position thumb off the top three red backed cards then the first blue backed card leaving the other two blue backed cards in the right hand, these are then placed as one on the other cards. Square the packet and return it to the table.

The second ace passes;

Pick up the next indifferent packet and vanish the ace as before.

Pick up the ace packet in the Hamman count position and with the left hand thumb off the top three blue backed cards then the first red backed card and finally the last two red backed as one. Before replacing the cards on the table cut two blue backed cards from the bottom to the top of the packet.

The third ace passes;

The vanish is exactly as for the other two aces.

Pick up the ace packet once again in the right hand and Hamman count to show four blue backed cards with a red backed card in the middle of them.

The climax;

Square the cards, turn them over and holding them in the left hand obtain a little finger break. While reciting the tag line mentioned in the description of the effect fan the five aces, the break enabling you to hide the one indifferent card behind the second ace.

Unfortunately there is no easy way to sort the red from the blue backed cards, so I suggest that the ace packet be put in the card case with the blue pack and the other cards with the red packet.

- Now using left third finger, buckle KD slightly and obtain a break which is held at outer right corner by right third finger. Break is held at this corner only.
- Left thumb now peels off AS'into left hand ala Biddle move, returns and slides of AH, (AS goes under packet during this action) then AD, in smooth counting fashion.
- Now for the crucial move. When AC is taken. three things happen at once.
- (1) Three aces already in left hand go under right hand packet, in so doing, right third finger and thumb seize these cards and square them with the KD. This is facilitated by the break, making it
- (2) Packet is thus momentarily divided in half, separated by right third finger break. Right second finger, (right first finger is on face of packet throughout), very slightly swivels top half to the left, pivoting on right thumb at inner end. (3) The AC and three kings with it go into left thumb crotch and the move completes itself as the two packets separate.

It must be clearly understood that above stages are blended into one smooth action - no hesitations, no stalling, no mechanical handling.

ian haxter

EFFECT:

Four kings shown and placed on table. Four aces also are shown and placed in a pile away from kings. A king is taken from its heap and dropped on ace pile; likewise an ace is shown and placed with other three kings. On command, the kings and aces 'follow their leaders' and change places. NO faked cards are used.

SET-UP:

From face to rear, AS, AH, AD, AC, KH, KS, KC, KD. Ace of Spades is face card and King of diamonds top card.

ROUTINE:

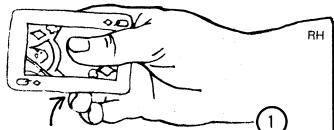

- Fan eight cards face up. Split fan taking aces in right hand, kings in left. Show backs of cards, show faces again, then place into one fan and square. Keep packet face up.
- Packet placed in dealing position in left hand. 2.
- Right second and third fingers at outer end, 3. near right corner, right thumb at inner right corner.

To spectator you are simply counting off the aces with the left hand.

- The move completed, drop right hand packet on table to your right, keeping it squared. KD is only card of 'king' packet showing.
- Turn attention to 'ace' packet and neatly flipcards face down, dealing them one at a time onto the table to your left.
- Flip AC (last card) face up on top of pile.
- 10. Now reach for the 'king' packet and repeat same process, ending by neatly flipping KD face up on top of tabled packet.
- 11. For the climax, pick up AC and openly slide it under the 'king' packet. Do the same with the KD, placing it with 'ace' packet. Snap your fingers or whatever and show kings and aces have transposed.

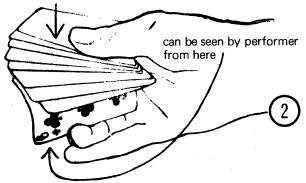

THE BLUEPRINT is Australia's own sleight of hand monthly, published by Barry Goven and Ian Baxter at Unit 2, 21 Broadmeadows Road, Tullamarine, 3043. Victoria. Subscription is $25\phi(A)$ per copy, or \$\mathbb{S}(A) 3.00 per year, post paid.

As cards are spread third finger tip pulls downwards — (side/back of finger is touching cards)

"Pulled down" card cannot be seen from here - BUT

The cards are fanned one handed and the third finger pulls down at the same time.

BOB OSTIN'S THE "FAN HIDE" MOVE

Here is a way of hiding a card when fanning a small packet of cards. For instance having used the Buckle count to show say five cards, when actually there are six. The move can follow up as a convincer before proceeding with the effect. I use it for Skullocation — fanning the cards for a last check just before they are placed in the skull's mouth.

Hold say — six cards face up in the right hand as in Fig.1. The side of the third finger by the top joint is pressed against the edge of the packet.

Now, the cards are fanned — one handed — the right first and second fingers moving to the left beneath the packet, and the thumb moving to the right above. At the same time the third finger pulls downwards, this causes the bottom card to bend downwards out of sight of the spectator — although in full view of the performer! as in Fig.2.

The main thing to remember with this move is that no conscious effort should be made to separate this bottom card — just fan the cards — pull down — and it happens of itself.

Points of interest are:-

- 1. You don't need to know how many cards are in the packet.
- 2. You can glimpse the hidden card in a natural way.
- 3. The card in its "pulled down" position could easily be slid beneath another packet, envelope, etc.
- 4. Being one handed it seems casual and beyond suspicion.

TICKETS PLEASE

My good friend Dick Simonds who died recently used to pull a very funny stunt some years ago when travelling on the buses in Liverpool. Here it is. Every time Dick bought a ticket he would roll it into a little ball and clip it between his fingers and there it would remain until he reached journeys end, when he would drop it in his overcoat pocket.

Now, eventually the pocket had quite a collection of balled up tickets, but sooner or later an inspector would get on, and it was then that the stunt was pulled.

"Tickets please" called the inspector, and Dick, looking absent minded and a little confused would reach into his pocket and produce his collection of tickets. He then fumbled amongst them and apparently selected one (it was of course the current one clipped between his fingers), this was carefully opened and handed to the inspector!

I reckon this is the sort of thing Clarke Crandall would love.

bob ostin.

110

Kattergette

Should you by any chance be cycling in Scotland and find yourself freewheeling uphill you will most certainly be on Electric Brae where the configuration of the landscape creates what is Britain's best known optical illusion.

You will also be within a few miles of Ayr, the venue of the 24th Annual Convention of the Scottish Association of Magical Societies an event which most certainly lives up to the words of President Bill McBrinn as being 'The Friendly Convention'. We were made most welcome, being introduced as representing 'PUBULAR' which is probably more descriptive of our methods of production than the existing title, which is 'food for thought'. When, following our introduction, the chairman announced that 'Bob Read will now lecture' we realised who was responsible for the twist on our title. Based on his book 'Thanks to Pepys' with some bonus items which included some of his 'Bits of Business' from 'PABULAR', he proved the practibility of his printed material. For the close-up performer, and, possible for others, this was undoubtedly the highlight of the Convention.

Readers may also be aware that Ayr is also the home town of John Ramsay who Peter Warlock described in the Souvenir Programme of the Convention as 'the greatest international close-quarter magician these islands have produced'. Andy Galloway took us on a guided tour and pointed out the little grocer's shop which Ramsay had owned and the door through which some of the 'greats' had passed to be mystified and entertained by this master of misdirection. And he showed us the cul-de-sac just round the corner where Johnny watched the buskers and learned their tricks.

He also observed that 1977 would be the anniversary of Ramsay's birth, an event that most certainly will be commemorated and what better than with a close-up convention in Ayr?

The Gaming Board for Great Britain in their annual report regret that 1974 may well be noted as 'the year of the cheat'. Properties found during police enquiries included inks for marking cards, glasses and contact lenses. It seems that amateur sharpers are appearing on the gambling scene. No mention is made in the Report that patrons of casinos are being lured from these places into hotels and other places for a 'friendly' game and taken for a ride. Maybe you think this is confined chanced to mention that a certain card player was extremely lucky and never seemed to lose. It appeared that this lucky(?) player invited some acquaintances back to his home for a few drinks after a session at the local casino and after a while a school was in progress — and the host was being the lucky player. At our suggestion our friend managed to bring away one of the aces from the pack used. It happened to be of a pattern readily obtainable and it was easily possible to see even without being compared that it had part of the pattern scratched off. In this particular case this marking was crudely done but there are methods that are extremely subtle. We have in the past been invited to examine a pack for evidence of marks and after a couple of hours failed to find any, finally admitting defeat and be shown. The method of marking used, has not, as far as we know appeared in print, and the ends of the pack could be riffled until the 'cows come home' without the pattern dancing as it does with most methods of marking cards.

Probably the most effective thing that can be done with a pack of cards before an audience of card players is to create in their minds that you have the ability to deal yourself a winning hand as and when required. Here is a simple method for showing how to win at Pontoon or Black Jack. It requires a set-up as follows. From the top, the first four cards must be any other than aces, tens, or picture cards, followed by the four aces, then sixteen comprised of face cards and tens, and then the remainder of the pack. Request someone to say how many players, five, six, seven, or eight. False shuffle retaining the stack, at the same time saying you are setting up a good hand for yourself. Deal out the cards face up into the requested number of hands and you will receive an ace and a ten or picture and being the banker will win. The stack of twenty cards can be in the bottom half and remain there undisturbed while performing a few tricks with the upper section of the pack. When ready to perform the above simply turn the pack face up and cut at four cards to the left of the aces.

First magician: 'I saw old so-and-so's show last night.'

Second magician: 'What did you think of it?'

First magician: 'Not much.' Second magician: 'What did he do?'

First magician: 'All the old stuff, die-box, egg-bag, rings etc.'

Second magician: 'Did the audience like it?'

First magician: 'Oh, yes but

It's worth a thought.

KAN'T TEAR PAPER (2"x3") 100 Blanks Plus 12 SEX GAG CARDS £2.00 ($ 5.00) 'TOM'FITZGERALD, 2814 Washington St., Wilmington, Dela. — 19802 U.S.A.

MAGIC IN FO

THE INTERNATIONAL MAGAZINE

Now in its 3rd year.

MAKE SURE EACH ISSUE IS SENT TO YOU REGULARLY. SEND TODAY ONLY £2.00 ($ 7.00) FOR ONE YEAR (SIX) ISSUES SENT POST FREE TO ANYWHERE IN THE WORLD.

32 glossy pages in each issue.

THE INTERNATIONAL MAGIC STUDIO, (RON MACMILLAN) 89 CLERKENWELL ROAD, HOLBORN, LONDON, E.C.1.

1. WILD FIRE by DEREK DINGLE	£1.55
2. MacDONALD'S $100 DOLLAR
FOUR ACE TRICK by
FRANK GARCIA	£2.20
3. OKITO BOX MAGIC by
DAVID ROTH	£1.55
4. CHINATOWN POKER by
JOE DE STEFANO	£1.55
5. PERFECT COIN ASSEMBLY
by HARVEY ROSENTHAL	£1.55
6. TECHNICOLOR CARDS by

L DAVENPORT & CO 51 Gt Russell St. London WC1. 01 405 8524

KARL FULVES

£2.20

Read what customers say

"The wallet which was recommended to me arrived today. It is the best Card To Wallet apparatus I have ever seen. Something I will use on a regular basis. Your suggestion to use it for The Ambitious Card was excellent. Enclosed is my check to cover the cost." Roland Hurley, U.S.A.

"The new wallet arrived and is simply fabulous. It makes miracles too easy. As a full time performer I need first class aparatus and like all your items, this is worth £100.00 to me." Al Dantte, Finland.

"What are the chances of getting another of the wallets you recently sent me?" Brad Holbrook, U.S.A.

"It has been doing so well for me I would like to order another one for my son who is also a full time professional magician!" Jack Pyle, U.S.A.

"I would like another two for friends!" Danny Dew, U.S.A.

"I use it as my normal wallet. Hand picked magic!" Fred Robinson, G.B.

Top quality black seal grain leather

Do you object to paying for apparatus of the highest class? Fred Kaps was here and performed the card in wallet — he did it again and again — and again in one continuous routine — Each time, the freely selected card was found in the zipper compartment of his wallet. Those present looked for all the usual weaknesses and found — NOTHING!

The actual gimmick is based on a little known idea, perfected by the world's leading artiste of our time. We have not sold millions, gentlemen, for this apparatus is of very high class. We only get a few each month.

If you can palm a card really well you will delight in this apparatus. If you cannot palm cards we will send you a very fine Barry Stevenson method which we failed to sell under its original title — 'The Incredible Signature'

We do not supply any cards as any can be used in the classical version. You need certain special cards for the Stevenson trick, they can be had from us or from most dealers in all parts of the world.

This apparatus is sold to you on our usual money back guarantee. Wallet is black seal grain leather with gold metal corners.

Satisfaction is included in the price!

England £15.00

U.S.A. $42.00 Air mailed home.

Europe £15.50

CATALOGUE - PRICE LIST & SHORT LISTS for 50n.p. $3.00 air mail to U.S.A.

Your money refunded if not delighted at -

KEN BROOKE'S MAGIC PLACE — 145, WARDOUR STREET — LONDON, W.1. — ENGLAND
Open 9 — 5.30, Saturdays until 1 p.m.

Pabular is published after the second week in every month and is printed by Instance Printers, Paddock Wood, Kent, England. Subscriptions may be obtained direct from the publishers, Pabular, P.O. Box 180, London SE12 8JJ or through many magic dealers. Price 50 pence per copy (or US $1.25) surface post included. Air Mail extra 12 pence (US $0.30) per copy or £1.45 (US $3.60) per year. Editorial or content copy should be sent to Fred Robinson, 1 Crescent Court, 24 Crescent Road, New Barnet, Herts, England. Advertising rates sent on request—smalls 3 pence per word (US 10 cents). Dealer enquiries welcomed. Reproductions of old prints and historical magical items by kind permission of Tony Faro.

This trick is based on the original "Elmsley Four Card Trick" by Alex Elmsley, put out as a dealer item by John Henley. The handling of the cards is almost the same but the climax is different. The trick is particularly aimed at attractive young ladies in the audience for obvious reasons.

REQUIREMENTS:

1. 4 blank faced red black cards. On front of one card print SEX and on the reverse print

I DON'T GET

IT EITHER (see Fig.1)

using Letraset or Patterson Blick Magic Letters sheets 3 & 4. Black letters show up better on red cards than on blue. If blue cards are used the patter should be adjusted.

2. A young lady to act as spectator.

PREPARATION:

All cards face down. SEX card is third from top.

- 1. Fan cards slightly face down (not too far, otherwise printing will be exposed) (see Fig.2) Patter:—"These are my mind reading cards".
- 2. Elmsley count the cards face down (sending the SEX card to the bottom).

"They are red because your mind is about to be read."

- 3. Thumb 2 top cards off with left thumb into right hand. Flash their faces to audience and replace them UNDER cards in left hand. Say "They are blank".
- 4. Turn cards face up and Elmsley count showing blank faces. "— like my mind is most of the time particularly when I've had a few (to drink)!"
- 5. Continue patter:— "Think of any even number between 5 and 7. Concentrate hard on that number. Think about it!"

 Now Elmsley count face up revealing SEX card as third card which ends up below face card.

"You're thinking about it tonight!"

david a wright

ELMSLEY OUT-SEXED

David A. Wright

6. Point out location of SEX card.

"This is a sort of aptitude test — Where is the printed card?"

Wait for reply and close up cards and turn them face down. Ask again "Where is the printed card now?" Make sure they know it is third card down or second from bottom.

7. "I'll reverse their order."

Elmsley count face down sending SEX card to the bottom.

Ask "Where is it now?"

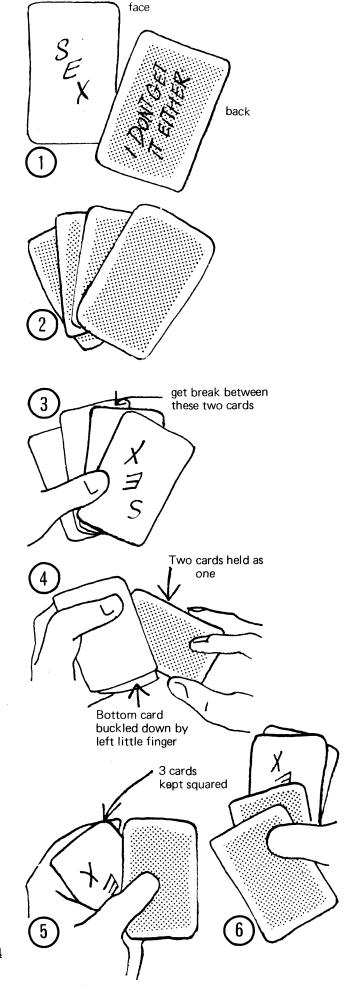

They should reply "Second from the top".

- 8. Turn cards face up to reveal the SEX card on the face. "Look the SEX card is on the bottom."
- 9. Spread cards and get break under second card from face (see Fig.3). Close fan.

Double lift and hold two cards as one face down—thus apparently the SEX card has a normal back.

Say "I'll make it easier to follow, I'll reverse the printed card".

- 10. Buckle bottom card in left hand and slide two cards in right hand as one into break. (see Fig.4).
- 11. Turn packet in left hand face down.
- 12. Thumb top face down card to side to reveal SEX card face up. Replace top card (See Fig.5). "Look the printed card is second one down."
- 13. Close cards and Elmsley count face down, injogging last two cards counted so that SEX card is revealed face up.
- "I'll reverse the order so that the second card is now one—two—three cards down."
- 14. Close up the cards and ask "Where is the face up card?"
- 15. They say "third from the top"
 Say "Correct" as you Elmsley count. This time the third card appears to have changed to a blank.
 Outjog it. (SEX card is concealed.)
- 16. Pull out out-jogged blank card, turn it face down and place it under the packet.
- 17. Elmsley count face down cards (all cards appear face down).
- "You're having difficulty following the printed card."
- 18. Elmsley count again, this time SEX card appears face up. Pull it out of fan and place it on top. Fan cards.
- "You shouldn't have had any difficulty because one, it's face up and the three others are face down".

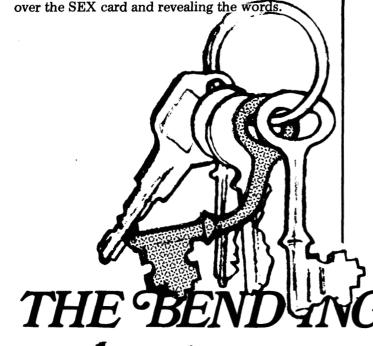

Turn the three face down cards face up and say "and secondly, the others have no printing on the faces."

Ask the spectator "DO YOU GET IT?"

19. If she replies NO say "THAT'S MY TROUBLE. I DON'T GET IT EITHER" turning over the SEX card and pointing to the words as you say them.

If she answers YES say "I MEAN'T THE TRICK NOT THAT. I DON'T GET IT EITHER" turning

A stunt that will still cause a lot of talk amongst laymen is the key-bending demonstration a la Uri Geller. This version uses the performer's own keys.

EFFECT:-

Performer shows a bunch of keys on a keyring. One key is examined by a spectator. After this performer rubs key and shows it has bent considerably. Keys and ring can be examined.

SET UP:-

Have a key-ring with about five keys on it. On this ring are two duplicate keys of which one is bent. Have the bent key at one end of the other rings and the straight one at the other.

PERFORMING:-

1. When about to perform secretly slip the straight key off the key-ring and into the finger-palm position of left hand. Point of key should point to first finger.

- 2. Take the bunch of keys from the pocket, and holding them by the ring, jingle the keys. The bent one will not be noticed.
- 3. Now in one action let keys flop into left hand, points towards left-first fingers at the same time left hand comes up with fingerpalmed key. All that happens is that the bunch of keys cover the single key. Now IMMEDIATELY grasp all keys with right hand, thumb on top and first finger underneath and lift them to eye level. Situation should be that the bent key is facing you, then the bunch of keys, then the straight key. Straight key is facing audience.
- 4. With the right finger acting as a fulcrum left hand comes over and fans all keys slowly to the left. (Like a reverse card fan).
- 5. Most of the keys will still show slightly, but make certain that the bent one is hidden now behind right hand.
- 6. Audience now think that the straight key is on the ring but in reality it is loose but held to the other keys by the right fingers.
- 7. Right hand now slowly shows audience the straight key side on so they see that it is a normal key.
- 8. Now bring left hand up back to audience, fingers cover key for a fraction of a second and during this action right thumb levers the bent key up and first finger and thumb take hold of it at the bend. (About half the key is visible but the fingers covers the bend at this time).
- 9. Immediately lift left hand holding the key up and to the left of the body. The straight key is allowed to drop into fingerpalm position of right hand, which falls to the side as left hand rises.
- 10. All attention is on the key in left hand.
- 11. Now pretend to bend left hand key, while doing this, pocket straight key.
- 12. Bring bent key into view and give ring and keys to audience to examine.

NOTES:-

A good idea is to have all the keys on the key-ring made of brass except the two keys which are used in the trick. This prevents a spectator thinking on the lines of a switch etc.

Also make sure that the bent key has rather a severe bend in it. From 30 to 45 degrees at least. Also have the keys used made of hard material otherwise spectators may try and bend it back into shape.

THE FAKIR OF OOLU.

HIGH-JACKED

SET UP:-

- 1 Blank Face Card
- 2 Jack of Spades
- 3 Queen of Diamonds
- 4 King of Diamonds
- 5 Joker
- 6 Ten of Diamonds

THE STORY:-

Now once upon a time there was this plane (show the blank card) which was about to be hijacked (show Jack of Spades) by this one-eyed coalman (one-eyed Spade) who said "If I don't get a bag of diamonds by the time the sand goes out of this modern timer (show hour glass in Jack of Spades hand) I'll (raise both cards to mouth) blow up this plane. (Place both cards face up on table).

Now the pilot of this plane was an old chap whose only experience was flying choppers. (Double lift showing King of Diamonds and indicate axe in his hand). He said "Either you stop this nonsense or I'll turn round and fly home. (Double turn over and place the Queen of Diamonds on to the tabled cards).

The hijacker repeated his threat "Either I get a bag of diamonds or I'll (raise cards to mouth) yes, that's right, blow up the plane. They looked here and there (double cut top card — King of Diamonds to bottom) and finally found some diamonds. (Double lift showing ten of diamonds) and under cover (turn cards face down and put top card (Joker) on to tabled cards) smuggled them aboard — on to plane. The hijacker fled (keep hand on the blank card and blow the other three cards across table) but when he inspected his ransom all he found was some Joker with a Bag of diamonds (show Joker and Queen) and they lived happily ever after.

trevor lewis

The Page boy speaks....

Well, what do you know? After mentioning Paul Daniels last month I sit down to watch The David Nixon Show on TV and who should pop up on the screen as his guest but P.D. And surprise, surprise he was performing a Patrick Page routine, namely the card in wallet. And he almost performed it as well as I used to — the main difference being that he got more laughs. I think the technicians turned up the volume. It was either that or as I sat there and watched him I imagined the laughter was getting louder and louder, and I thought I'd grow to hate him. No that's not quite correct. The laughs did get louder and I do hate him.

The guest spot on the same show was filled last week by Fred Kaps who made two appearances — one close-up and one stand-up with two spectators in which he performed an excellent version of Edward Victor's Eleven Card Trick, the last part of which fooled me badly.

Dionne Warwick, the US Pop Singer (?) has been doing a short tour of England doing onenighters with a supporting bill that included Miss Terri Rogers, well known ventriloquist with a liking for performing close-up magic. But my question is 'Why is it that the vents seem to have succeeded where the magic acts have failed?' Only rarely does one see a magic act on the same bill as a big international star and when one does it is usually an imported act. Is it that the clubs in this country demand time from their acts that does not lend itself to polishing up that sharp 10 or 12 minutes? Everyone these days, from comics to jugglers, break their necks to fit audience participation into their routine and the reason is always the same: TIME. The clubs are insisting on a minimum of 25 minutes for each of their acts and the average speciality act cannot cope with this length of time. Result? No first class, fast 'Speciality' (or as our American friends would have it 'Flash') acts.

There used to be a night club here called the Embassy and it existed for very many years right in the heart of London, and it used to use magic acts regularly. It closed down about a year ago and then re-opened recently, calling itself the 'Time and Place' and for the first time in many years around the London area they had a magician to do close-up work at the tables, namely one Mike Cassidy. Mike left a couple of weeks ago to spend five months in the Channel Islands entertaining the Tax Dodgers. This week the Time and Place closed down. It seems that this was neither the time nor the place for Michael Cassidy and his timing was excellent because he moved out just in time — if he'd stayed on for another week or two he'd have been out of work just like all the other magicians — and sitting at home watching the ventriloquists making a lot of money on television.

FROM THE NOTEBOOK OF LEWIS DAVENPORT

SYDNEY LEE

BEDFORD MUSIC HALL, LONDON - MARCH 9, 1904

Tambourine and Two Rabbits

One Egg Passes

Pack of Card Passes

Five Card Passes

Coffee and Cups

Duck Pan

Card Throwing

Want to hear something funny? A gentleman whose name unfortunately escapes me does a mind-reading act which uses very little other than perhaps a nail-writer, a pencil, a pad and a few envelopes. He arrives in a nice car, dresses well and walks in with nothing and does his act. And usually, when he comes, the client at first gets a little worried because she doesn't see any equipment and she expects performers to have something — and of course he doesn't have anything. So recently he has been arriving with a small expensive executive type brief-case which he places on the floor as he meets the client and has a chat. Eventually he goes on and does his act as normal, (leaving the case exactly where it is). finishes, picks the case up, collects his fee and leaves.

The case is empty. I think that's funny and I hope you do. Until next time — Goodbye!

Patrick Page

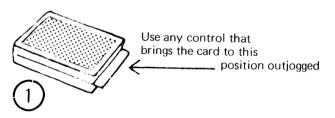

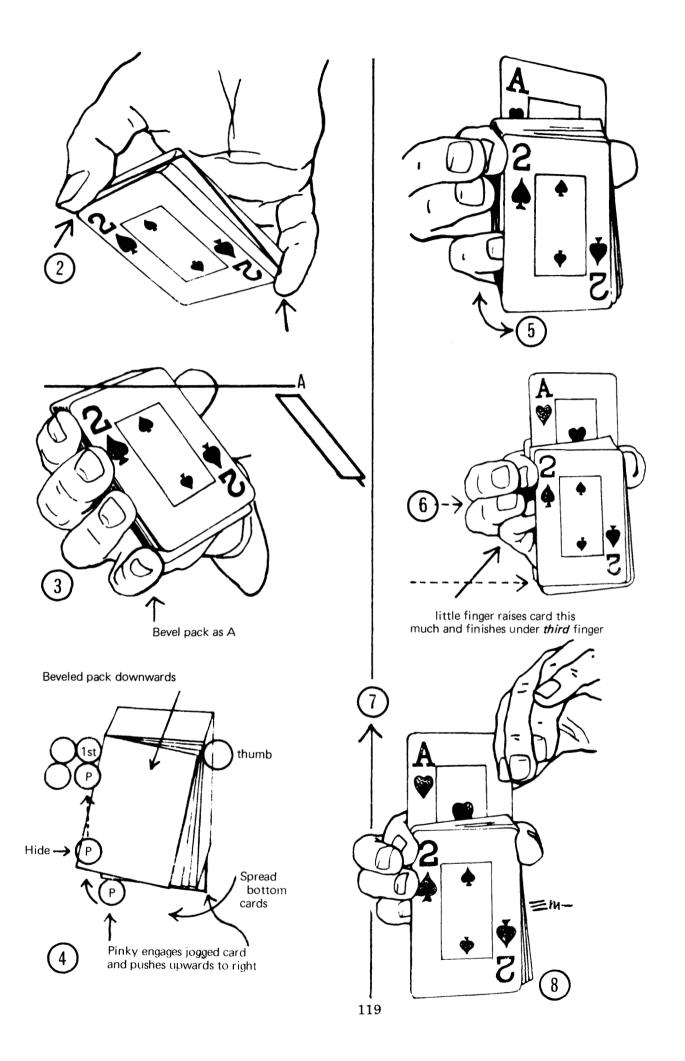

This rise of a card from the centre of a pack was stimulated whilst watching Fred Robinson 'work' through a few 'moons' — it can be presented as an effect in itself or like Fred's included in or perhaps ending a sequence to an ambitious card routine — perform the All Round Square up move by Larry Jennings, page 155 Dai Vernon's 'Ultimate Card Secrets' — or a move that leaves the selected card outjogged as illustration (1) about the centre position in the pack. If you get into the habit of having the little finger and thumb locating and holding the selected card on the diagonal as (2) there will be a greater freedom in handling the 'all Round' Square up move before the final jog.

Bevel the cards also as in A(3) using both hands if necessary, then hold with the right hand only as in (3) the right first finger opposite the thumb, the back of the pack facing the right hand palm — the little finger ready to control the chosen card at the base of the pack. Allowing the Bevel to remain slightly spread the bottom two or three cards to the left (the pack also spreads slightly at the bottom) (4) the tip of the little finger (pinky) of the right hand can now be almost hidden behind the face bottom card (in our example the 2 Spades) (5). If you now lower the little finger and stretch it downwards so that it engages the jogged (4) and (5) selected card it moves it to the right long edge of the pack without losing contact. You will find that by pushing upwards you can cause the jogged card to rise out of the pack under cover of the 2 of Spades (5). Illustration (6) shows how much the little finger rises up the side of the pack. The rise looks a normal vertical one because the angle of the face card of the pack is in the same plane as the rising card (See (7)) — it only remains for the left hand to continue taking the rising card out of the pack at the same speed and tempo (8) to complete the illusion that the card rises completely out of the pack.

As always with this sort of effect a gentle but greater movement of the hands and body in performance will serve to render invisible the actual mechanics of the move and display the effect to better advantage.

Inspired by Dai Vernon's KANGAROO COINS and more recently Bob Read's COINS ACROSS, I have devised a coins through the table effect that can be performed standing at a table. The method may be original, however, I'm quite aware that the overall effect owes much to the work of many other performers.

HOW IT LOOKS:-

Four borrowed coins penetrate a table (also borrowed), one at a time, into a glass (yes, this can be borrowed as well).

WHAT YOU'LL NEED WHICH THEY SEE:-

Table, glass and four coins.

WHAT THEY DON'T SEE:-

A blob of BLU-TACK (the new kind of adhesive made by Bostik Ltd) and a coin to match the four coins you have borrowed.

TO GET READY:-

Prior to performing this minor miracle press the blob of Blu-Tack under the edge of the table nearest you. Stick the fifth coin to the adhesive — secretly. (Fig 1).

bob hamilton

THE GET SET:-

Stimulate interest by asking a few provocative questions like, "How do you treat atomic warts?""What do molecules drink?" Before you get any smart answers say that you will demonstrate the answer to the second problem. Ask for the loan of four coins of the same denomination as the coin under the table edge, and collect them in the glass. Explain to any interested onlookers that molecules drink whisky (or whatever you are drinking at the time). Dip your finger in the drink and draw a circle on the table top. Tell the spectators that all the molecules within the circle of whisky are rushing towards the liquid and to prove this you will show that this area is now softer than the rest of the table. At this stage you have the glass containing the four coins in the left hand.

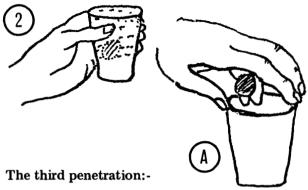

THE GO:-

The first penetration:-

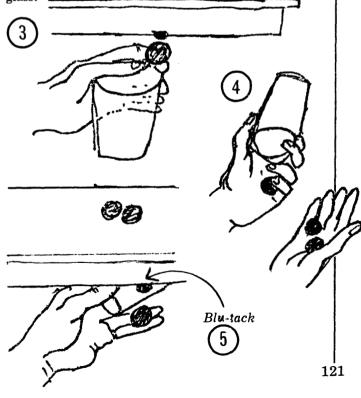

Pour the coins from the glass into the right hand, the coins travel across the fingers of the left hand and the last coin is retained in the left finger palm position. Close the right fingers over the three coins, raise the right fist and say "Four coins.....watch." The left hand, with the coin positioned on the third and fourth fingers, moves the glass under the table and the glass is allowed to pivot to the position shown in Fig 2a. The finger palmed coin is directly over the centre of the glass. Lower the right fist to the table and feel for the 'soft spot', bang coins onto table opening fingers as you do so. Pause for just a fraction of a second and then release coin from left fingers - it's heard to fall. Spread the three coins on the table and withdraw glass from under table. Jingle the coin in glass and then pour it into right hand and display.

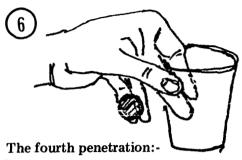

The second penetration:-

Drop the coin into the glass. Pick up the three coins from table in right hand, getting one into the thumb palm position as hand is closed. Left hand holding glass as shown in Fig 3 moves under the table and picks up the coin held on the adhesive between the first finger and thumb as shown. It is important that you do not look for the coin — concentrate your attention on the right fist as it once again feels for the soft spot. The left hand has now reached a position below the table directly beneath the soft spot. Slap right hand onto table retaining one coin in thumb palm — release coin from left thumb and first finger. Remove right hand to show the two coins on the table, taking care not to expose the thumb palmed coin, withdraw glass from under the table and jingle the two coins. Pour the coins from the glass, across the left fingers, retain one in the finger palm as the other joins the coin already in the right hand Fig 4.

This next sequence enables you to 'openly' show that only four coins are used. The position at this stage is that two coins are on the table, two coins are in right hand and one coin is finger palmed in left hand which also holds the glass. Don't drop the coins from the right hand into the glass, instead close hand into a fist. Move the left hand under the table and by turning the hand push the finger palmed coin onto the adhesive Fig 5. Right fist is feeling for the soft spot. 'Suddenly' remember that there should be two coins in the glass - bring left hand from under the table and without over-doing it show that it contains only the glass. Drop the two coins from the right hand singly into the glass, then pick up the two coins from the table positioning one in the thumb palm as fingers are closed. The left hand goes under table stealing coin from adhesive as it goes. Slap right hand onto table taking care that the single coin doesn't clink against thumb palmed coin. Release coin from left hand into glass. Lift right hand to expose just one coin on the table as left hand appears from under table with three coins in the glass.

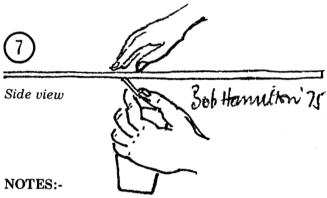

There are two methods of achieving the last penetration which will leave you 'clean'. I'll give an outline of both, you can probably devise other ways of reaching this objective.

Tip the three coins from the glass into the right hand to join the one there and retain one coin in left finger palm. Display the coins and then drop them singly into the glass. Pick up the single coin in right hand as left hand takes glass under table - on the way the coin in finger palm is deposited on the adhesive. This is more easily done by changing the grip on the glass as in Fig 6, the glass is held by first finger inside and second finger outside - this enables third and fourth fingers to push coin onto the blob. Say, "No. Let's try it the other way round...... Let's see if this coin will pass up through the soft spot." Bring the glass from under the table and place it on the soft spot and move the right hand with coin under the table. Bang the coin on the underside of the table, look puzzled bang it again — withdraw the right hand, look at the coin and mutter something about it being a 'one-way' coin. Pretend to try again but when the right hand is under the table raise the left foot and lower the right hand to allow you to drop the coin into the left shoe (or trouser cuff). This is done smoothly and quickly, once the coin has been deposited bang the right fingertips on the underside of the table. Look disappointed as you say, "Ah well! Back to the drawing board", and take the glass in the left hand and place under table, stealing coin from the Blu-tack as it goes. At the same time the right hand comes above the table as if holding coin, keep back of the hand towards spectators, and apparently places coin on soft spot. Coin in left hand is placed against underside of table (quietly) as in Fig 7. Lower arched right hand and simultaneously allow coin to slip off left thumb. Coin is heard to hit table (apparently the 'coin' in the right hand), pause for a second then allow coin to drop into glass. Slowly remove right hand from table and rotate it to palm up position as left hand brings glass into view. Jingle coins in glass then tip triumphantly onto table.

NOTE:-

Remove blob of Blu-tack as soon as conveniently possible.

This method is possibly simpler and more effective, try them both and use whatever suits you best. Tip the three coins from the glass into right hand, retaining one coin in finger palm as the other two join the coin already in right hand. Display and then drop the three coins singly into the glass. Move the glass onto soft spot as right hand picks up single coin. Using same patter theme as in 1 above, move right hand under table but deposit coin on adhesive as it goes. Apparently bang coin on underside of table, actually right finger tips, after failing to get coin to pass up through table place under table, coin still in left finger palm. Right hand is moved to surface of table as if holding coin and immediately slaps fingers down, left hand drops coin from finger palm into glass. Turn right hand palm up as glass is brought from under table to display coins. Pour onto table — climax. Remove coin and adhesive at opportune moment.

Perform the effect at a fairly quick pace, but pause sufficiently for spectators to notice that at various points in the routine 'only' four coins are used.

Have found that the routine can be performed equally as well with half-inch dice and a dice cup. Fits nicely into a dice routine.

"It's about that Bob Read trick I read in Pabular No. 4 Doc"

BOB'S BUSINESS

NOSES GALORE

In "Thanks to Pepys" I described a bottle production from a handkerchief using the appearance of 4 coins as misdirection.

This is a comedy build-up to the same trick. Perform the haunted handkerchief — the one with the make believe hair. George Blake has a good routine in More Master Magic.

Finish the routine by opening the hand-kerchief over the left hand, drop a coin into it from the nose (coin concealed throughout in Right palm). Pick up coin and place in Right pocket. Cop a nest of 2 plastic noses and say "I'll do that again." Pretend to squeeze another coin from your nose and leave plastic noses stuck on it. Look up — audience will notice the addition. Say "This isn't my real nose" remove outer plastic nose — "This is my real nose" point to remaining plastic proboscis. Under cover of laugh cop the bottle as described.

bob read

Use line — "Well you'd have a nose like mine if you drink like I do."

Prepare to meet thy BOON!

The wonderful thumbwriter that HAS to be the best — still the greatest little gimmick in the world — 20 years continuous sales can't be wrong! Simple, invisible. NOT a nailwriter. £1.00 or US $2.50 inc. Air Mail. Eric Mason, 39 Dennis Park Crescent, London SW20 8QH, England.

KAN'T TEAR PAPER (2"x3") 100 Blanks Plus 12 SEX GAG CARDS £2.00 ($5.00) 'TOM' FITZGERALD, 2814 Washington St., Wilmington, Dela. 19802 U.S.A.

"Penultimate Cups and Balls"

A Comedy presentation for a classic routine. 80 photographs. Obtainable only from Bob Read, 32 Regal Way, Kenton, Middlesex, England. £ 3.00 $10.00 Airmailed U.S.A.

News come that The Magic Club, Preston is in the process of planning a Special close-up session towards the end of the year. This is welcome news indeed for magicians whose interest lies in the close-up field. Proposed registration fee round about £15 which includes a night in a first class hotel, three meals on the Sunday plus lectures, competitions and performances by top performers from Europe and the United States as well as U.K. specialists. Cannot be bad, Pabular will be there.

Some time ago we decided not to report happenings in magical societies as they were not of general interest to the majority of our readers. We have to make an exception. A lecture given by ALEX ELMSLEY at the Pentacle Club and the Zodiac Magical Society was repeated at the Magic Circle in June 2nd cannot be allowed to pass without comment as it encompasses the finest straight card act we have ever witnessed. Commencing with a talk on Presentation and Misdirection lasting some twenty minutes the lecturer gave us his thoughts on these important subjects and then proceeded to prove his theories in a practical manner by performing a beautifully conceived card act full of originality, and faultlessly presented. Working seated at a card table, using only a pack of cards, a birthday book and a penknife, a helper found the name of his chosen card written at the side of his birth date. Stabbing the pack with the blade of the penknife two selected cards were found. Five previously chosen cards were found using a variety of methods. A gambling routine followed, with an interesting story. Four cards then changed their back patterns several times finally turning into Jokers. We are not absolutely sure what happened next but a visual recap took place in which all the cards involved in the previous effects were produced to be climaxed by the entire pack changing, every card have a different back design.

What followed was a catestrophe. A beautiful illusion was destroyed as Alex generously explained every detail of this superb act and we shall never again be able to sit back and just marvel. We shall always be conscious of the nuts and bolts and regret that we were present at the expose. Maybe others think differently and argue that we were given something on which to build greater magic. Our only hope is that we are around to see it. It could be quite something.

Seriously, we wonder if the time has arrived when magic has become too cheap and someone with inventiveness and performing ability should decide to keep his secrets secret and fool magicians and let them stay fooled. Maybe somewhere there is another John Ramsay. We hope so.

Many of the older generation will remember FAUCETT ROSS, a modest, retiring gentleman who accompanied 'Professor' Dai Vernon on his first visit to Britain. Last year Ross Bertram arranged a 'do' in his honour which captured the headlines in his local press, and sent us the cuttings which reported his life of magic and that he had written a book. MAGIC with FAUCETT has now been published and contains some Vernon material and a section on card magic.

We also hear that a book by Francis Carlyle is near publication, and will be handled by Ken Brooke in this country. Very little of this performers material has appeared in print. Put this among your list of 'MUSTS'.

We regret the following error which occurred in Mark Scudiery's 'Faro Felon' in the April issue. "Step 5 should read 'Strip out the upper half which contains the selection and drop them face down on top of the cards in the left hand. Now cut at the break and the selection will be the 25th card in the fifty card deck." Kevin Fox also writes that a mistake occurred in 'We'll Ring You' in the May issue. The third sentence in the third paragraph on page 102 should read, "Slip cut onto the table and put the packet in the right hand into the left covering the coin. Pick up the tabled packet with the right hand, fingers at the outer end and thumb at the inner end. The left thumb now pulls the exposed Ace of Spades off the right hand packet onto the packet held in the left hand." End of correction. Disregard the remainder of this paragraph except the description of the slip cup. We promise to be more careful in the future.

A little something to think about until next month. The billing matter advertised "Professor X. One hour of magic and entertainment". Having been booked and completed his turn of one hour, the chairman announced that the Professor would now give his entertainment. Remembered from a very old Sphinx.

Your Editors are taking a holiday and will be publishing the July issue a few weeks late. We intend to produce this and the August Pabulars at the same time (though as separate issues) and mail them together towards the end of August.

TOP PHOTOGRAPHER 'VIC PINTO' CREATES TWO BEAUTIFUL GLAMOUR SHOTS OF A PROFESSIONAL MODEL. BOTH IN TREMENDOUS LIVING COLOUR!

the pinto'shöwgirl

HELD BEFORE A MIRROR A REVERSE IMAGE OF THE SHOWGIRL REVEALS MORE CHARMS and — THE SELECTED CARD!

This is the brainchild of professional photographer and friend 'Vic Pinto'. Known in the commercial field throughout the world and a magical nut if ever I met one. Few men would go to the trouble and expense to produce a quality product of this nature unless he was (almost) out of his mind!

'Pinto' built a special set in his studio, employed a beautiful model and with his creative genius turned out 'The Pinto Showgirl' — Small, exclusive apparatus which we guarantee will create havoc with the boys in the bar.

Routined by 'Ken Brooke' here, briefly, is what happens - - -

From a small wallet you remove a playing card which has been permanently sealed in a plastic container. The face of this card is not shown.

Spectator is handed a pack of cards and is asked to deal them face down, one at a time and stop dealing whenever he wishes. That card is turned face upwards. The sealed package is turned over and, believe it or not, the spectator finds a duplicate of the selected card right inside the package!

Saying this is not the trick he intended to show, the performer explains that he was rehearsing his 'big show' the previous night and his assistant picked up one of the large cards he uses and at that very moment he had a premonition that the very card she was holding would be selected tonight. So saying, the magician removes a beautifully coloured photograph of a showgirl holding a large playing card, back towards the camera — The magician states that the card is a duplicate of the card spectator stopped the deal at a few moments ago ---

SOLD TO YOU ON A MONEY BACK GUARANTEE, OBTAINABLE ONLY FROM --'KEN BROOKE'S MAGIC PLACE', 145 WARDOUR STREET, LONDON W.1. ENGLAND

U.S.A. $7.50 AIR MAILED HOME

ENGLAND £2.50

EUROPE £2.75

EXCLUSIVE GLAMOUR MAGIC

books from davenport

"THE COMPLETE GAMESTER"

Or instructions how to play at all manner of unusual and most gentle games, viz. Cards, Dice, Cockfighting, Riding, Racing, Billiards, Bowls and Chess.

Originally published in 1674, this is a facsimile of the original publication. In addition we supply two decks of cards showing the events of the Popish Plot of 1678 and the Glorious Revolution of 1688. All of which have been taken in facsimile from the library of Mr. Samuel Pepys.

Price, Book plus 2 Decks of Cards £2.50 +p&p 25p US $7.00 including postage.

L DAVENPORT & CO 51 Gt Russell St. London WC1. 01 405 8524

THE INTERNATIONAL MAGAZINE

Now in its 3rd year.

MAKE SURE EACH ISSUE IS SENT TO YOU REGULARLY. SEND TODAY ONLY £2.00 ($ 7.00) FOR ONE YEAR (SIX) ISSUES SENT POST FREE TO ANYWHERE IN THE WORLD.

32 glossy pages in each issue.

THE INTERNATIONAL MAGIC STUDIO, (RON MACMILLAN) 89 CLERKENWELL ROAD, HOLBORN, LONDON, E.C.1.

Pabular is published after the second week in every month and is printed by Instance Printers, Paddock Wood, Kent, England. Editor Nick Bolton, Technical Editor Fred Robinson, Art Editor Eric Mason. Subscriptions may be obtained direct from the publishers, Pabular, PO Box 180, London SE12 8JJ, England or through many magic dealers. Price 50 pence per copy (US $1.25) surface post included. Air Mail extra depending on country and subject to UK rates. Editorial or content copy should be sent to Fred Robinson, 1 Crescent Court, 24 Crescent Road, New Barnet, Herts, England. Advertising rates sent on request — smalls 3 pence per word (US 10 cents). Dealer enquiries welcomed. Reproduction of old prints and historical magical items by kind permission of Tony Faro.

Glitter inside falls to floor at finish!

GIITTERING pete biro

PABULAR:

Typographically, Artistically — etc. second to none! Therefore I feel that a particular item that I have discovered and feature should be contributed to those that support and produce such a fine publication.

EFFECT:

A borrowed ring is destroyed(!) and makes a visible (BAFFLING) re-appearance in a burst of flame. NOTE: I have performed this effect many times, both for magical and lay audiences, and the climax never fails to bring "oh's and ah's" — and there is room for comedy situation bits too.

At the moment the GRINDA RING is the best vanish (destruction) of the ring particularly for platform work. You are left with a ground up mess of gold glitter. I'll leave it to individual tastes as to the gags you do or do not use when you borrow the ring. Anyway..... what you are left with is the box in hand, full of the glitter and the ring finger-palmed. You now pick up or take from pocket a 4-inch square of flash paper..... I comment on buying sheets of this paper in 1000 lots..... or sometimes just borrow the paper from the nearest W.C. Hand spectator the paper tell him (or her) to hold flat on hand and you dump out the glitter onto the paper. Set box aside and ask spectator to twist up the package like a piece of candy..... and while said person is doing same you reach into pocket (or pick up) (there's a lot here for you to decide for yourself) a special little wire holder - mine is made from a "pointer" gotten from a stationery store (like a car radio antenae) with a bent wire hook on the end. (See sketch.) As you extend the pointer you load the ring onto the handle end (hidden in your fingers.... and the sound of the pointer being extended covers any sound of ring hitting the handle end as you load it). Ask spectator if there is anything in the package - other than the ground up "gold" and at today's prices you're ahead of what the ring must have cost!

GLITTERING Pete Biro

Have spectator hook the package onto the end of the pointer.... it will slip under the hook and if you followed the sketch will stay in place. With your free hand, bring out a lighter and proclaim that the "precious metal has a memory... and a bit of heat applied will cause the pieces to RE-FORM back into their original condition..... A ROCK..... no YOUR RING..... with the stone in place!" Needless to say the flame gets too close and ignites the flash paper..... and at that precise moment you let the ring slide down the pointer and it will stop at the hook. It will appear as if materialized at the end of the pointer. The flash of flame will provide perfect misdirection. A bit of handling time will show you you can "toss" the ring out and it will move to the hook faster. Believe me this is real magic!

If you do not want to use the GRINDA RING prop..... perhaps a Mortar and Pestle? Or you can make a ring out of a FLASH PAPER BILL (NOTE) and have it change to a real ring? You can do sleight of hand crushing ring at the table and dropping the glitter dust a la Slydini. Do anything you want but do it.

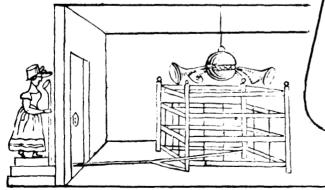

Yours, Pete Biro esq "The Sidewalk Shuffler... featuring the Leicester Switch!"

One of Magic(k)'s most interesting characters Tony 'Doc' Shiels is a man of many parts. Apart from working the Cups and Balls and being a 'Punch and Judy man' he performs and is involved with the 'Dog and Dragon', a pub and restaurant in Cornwall. Most of our readers will certainly know about him already. The beer mat reproduced below is of more than passing interest.

If any readers know of similar publicity examples we would like to hear from them. (Editor)

The Cups and Balls, in my opinion, is the most marvellous piece of close-up conjuring ever conceived. It is not merely a trick, but a whole programme of tricks, a complete magic show in miniature.

That doesn't sound like a mentalist's opinion, does it? Maybe not, but mindreaders are two-faced devils and, as I scribble these words, the sun is shining and I'll soon be on the road, packing a set of cups and a Punch and Judy show, to play my summer role around the country fairs. I use the Cups and Balls as a crowd-puller, it is perfect for the purpose and never fails to attract an eager audience.

Punch showmen and their 'bottlers' (the men who drum up a crowd and collect the money) have employed the cups for hundreds of years. The word, 'bottler', is, in fact, derived from the French, 'bateleur', a trickster or sleight-of-hand man, an expert at Le Jeu des Goblets. It could hardly be an accident that Britain's king of Punch professors, Percy Press, is a dab hand with the Cups and Balls.

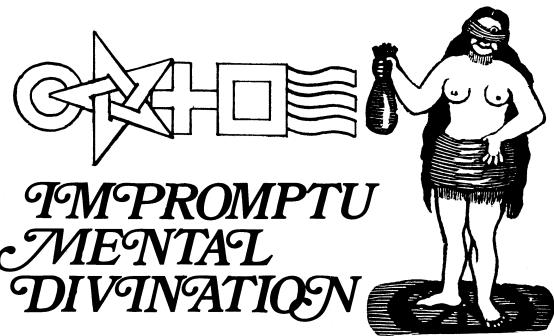

tony Tooc' Shiels

"A magician giving out his bills, and boasting of his mighty performances, went down in the way of his calling, as other tradesmen do, to Bristol Fair, and there he did wonders."

(Daniel Defoe)

Last year, my sons, my wife and I took part in the great Bankside Festival of Punch and Judy, at the Globe Playhouse site near Southwark Bridge. I did the old routine there, as it happens, and spied Patrick Page, eyeing me critically from the back of the 'hedge'. On the day after the festival, I found myself in Davenports, chatting to Pat about the Cups and Balls. I mentioned that I had always wanted a set of heavy Burtini cups but that I thought the chances of obtaining such a thing, these days, were very slim. The Page boy, bless him, reminded me that nothing is impossible and promised to prove it. Within a few weeks, I received a parcel, containing — naturally — a beautiful set of Burtini cups. Patrick may disagree with almost everything I say on the subject of magic and mentalism, but he can't be all bad!

The very first cups I ever owned were an antique set, fashioned from soldered tin, which I bought from the late Charles Fitness, who used to run a magic shop, not far from Blackpool's Central Station. That would be about twenty five years ago — a quarter of a century — good grief! I have no idea where those ancient, rather battered cups are now, but it would be nice to think that somebody, somewhere, is using them as they should be used, to make magic.

The performer requests the assistance of five persons to each collect five different small objects which are readily available in the room or in their pockets or handbags, and place them in a single heap on the table.

From the twenty-five objects, coin, cigarette, pen, wallet etc., each person selects at random five which he either holds or makes into a separate pile on the table. The mentalist then requests each one to think of one of their five objects, and to repeat the name of their choice silently three times to help them to develop a clear mental image of it.

The performer now explains the significance of the five E.S.P. symbols — circle, cross, three wavy lines, square, and five pointed star, and how they are used to test people's ability to read minds.

Cupping his hands in a fashion which will allow him to hold the items as they are placed in his hands the performer continues, saying, "I now hold a circle in my hands. Please visualise the circle, and as I come to you place one of the objects you are holding into my hands. It may, or may not be, the one you have mentally selected. Try not to give any physical clues." One object is collected from each person and all five placed on the table.

"I now hold a cross in my hands. Please visualise it and place an object in my hands." The five objects are added to the heap on the table. The process is continued with the wavy lines, square, and star in that order, at the conclusion of which, all the objects will be in a single heap on the table. During the collection the helpers are requested to remember the imaginary symbol being held when they put their mentally selected object into the cupped hands.

Reminding the participants that they must now have a clear mental picture of both the object they are thinking of, and the E.S.P. symbol associated with it, the performer asks the first person if he has any idea what symbol the person next to him is thinking. He doesn't. "Relax now — guess." No.1 says "Square." You smile, and with a knowing look at No.2 ask him, "What symbol were you thinking of? "Star" he replies. You nod knowingly and state, "Someone else is thinking of a star — who is it?" No.4 is.

"Let's try again — No.3 what symbol is No.1 thinking about?" "Wavy lines" he replies. "Yes" says No.1. "Anyone else on that path?" enquires the mentalist. "No."

The performer requests No.3 to visualise his symbol inviting the rest of the group to try to receive a mental picture of No.3's symbol. He asks No.5 to guess. No.5 says "Square." No.3 says "Right." Performer now asks No.5 if he said 'Square because it matches his own symbol. No.5 replies, "No, it just came into my mind."

The above is just an illustration of the type of discussion that takes place. The performer could use a thumb-writer and 'divine' one or two symbols. He can also ignore one or two persons and work with a smaller group. The description may sound dull. It is not. There is plenty of audience participation and scope for entertainment when the group are 'reading one anothers' minds'.

You are now able to perform what appears to be 'real mindreading' and reveal each one of the specific objects which are 'locked in the minds' of the participants.

Each revelation should be different. No.4 may stand over the table as you pass a pencil over the objects it 'taps' down on the one mentally selected. No.3 may hold your left ĺ

		No.1	No.2	No.3	No.4	No.5
	CIRCLE (0)	1 pencil	2 charm	3 keys	4 spoon	5 ribbon
	CROSS (5)	6 mirror	7 stamps	8 photo	9 ring	10 £1 note
	WAVY LINES (10)	11 wallet	12 card	13 pipe	14 coin	15 cigarette
	SQUARE (15)	16 letter	17 pen	18 gum	19 fork	20 button
	STAR (20)	21 match	22 diary	2 3 pin	24 hanky	25 sugar lump j

ILLUSTRATIVE CHART

hand and No.2 your right. They in turn find each others objects by reverse muscle reading.

You may find No.1's object by standing over the table with your eyes shut, and dramatically feel the objects and finally hold his high over your head.

The last object may be revealed by asking No.5 to draw a sketch of the object in his mind, and you with back turned draw the same object on a piece of paper.

There is considerable opportunity for show-manship and dramatisation.

The only requirements are the ability to memorise twenty-five objects using one of the mnemonic systems such as Nikola's which can be found in Ency. of Card Tricks (Holden), and committing to memory the values given to the E.S.P. symbols as follows:-

WORKING:-

The twenty-five objects are memorised in the order collected in the cupped hands. The participants, who are always addressed as No.1, No.2 etc., must be approached in the same order when collecting each set of five objects.

When all the objects are collected and in your memory bank, proceed with the symbol guessing game, which can be a light-hearted affair or a 'serious' test of your helpers mindreading potential. Whichever style you decide to adopt the object is the same — to ascertain which symbol each one has connected with his mentally selected object.

Once in possession of this information you find the object thought of by adding the participants number to the value of his symbol. For example No.2's symbol was a STAR which has a value of 20, therefore the object mentally selected by No.2 is the twenty-second in your memory bank. Supposing this object to be a diary, a mental picture is formed of No.2 writing in a huge diary. No.4 whose symbol was also a STAR, 4 plus 20 = 24, the twenty-fourth object being a handkerchief No.4 could be envisaged mopping his brow.

These mental pictures are formed immediately each participants symbol is known, and easily recalled when required to read his mind.

You need not go into the divination immediately all five mental pictures of your participants with their mentally selected objects have been made. You could do some other stunt and use the divination as a finale. It would also reduce the very remote possibility of any spectator connecting the symbol guessing game with your own mindreading.

The chart clarifies how the system works. The first vertical row shows the symbols with their values in brackets. Reading Horizontally gives the objects collected when carrying each imaginary sumbol.

Reading downwards from each participants number on the top line shows the five objects he placed into your cupped hands when making the collection. It becomes evident that once you know the symbol he has connected with his object you can ascertain the one he is thinking of by cross reference.

The Page boy speaks....

And the man with the empty suitcase has a name, Martini, from Teeside, which for the benefit of either the ignorant, or foreign readers. (they're both the same anyway) is in the North of England. Which brings me to a point. Why is it that in this day and age magicians still persist in adding that i to the end of their name. The last man who probably made any impact with the public who used this gimmick was Houdini and he could have called himself The Great Piece Missing and still registered just as strongly. The ballet dancers were guilty of just the same offence when they adopted Russian sounding names, or the Opera singers when they pretended to be Italian, but both of those groups discarded those crutches as being unnecessary a long time ago.

One of the problems of using this crutch (I like the word) is that there are probably twenty magicians all over the country called Ronald who call themselves Ronaldo. They must need the psychological support of their crutch. Maybe their crutch needs support too, and before anyone writes in (why should I bother, they never do) and reminds me that there was a man called Cardini who didn't do too badly, may I point out that he lived in what is now another age and what's more he did a little more than add that i to his name. He changed it completely and adopted a name which partially described his act, and what's more, he was a one off. Or, to put it another way, if any of these guys (I'm talking about the crutch lovers now) can come up with an act that compares with the gentleman in question I will give them my personal permission to call themselves the Great i. Unless you are going to do an out and out comedy presentation, all of those names have got to be bad, (except Martini).

Just had a note from Pete Biro of San Francisco this morning to tell me that Al Flosso will probably be in England in the fall (that's Autumn in the U.S. of A.) Also received a note from Al Flosso to tell me that he will probably be in England in the fall. Al lives in New York and Pete lives in San Fran and next year they are going to do a mental telepathy act together describing the things that the Pageboy likes to hear. I have seen Flosso's act several times at different magicians conventions, and once, I had the great pleasure of watching him perform for a lay audience. It was at the Carlyle Hotel in New 130

York in 1969 and what I didn't realise then but know now is that I was priviledged to see Al perform a number of effects which he never performs at magical functions. Most American magicians have seen him perform the Egg Bag, Miser's Dream, Hat Production etc the act which runs around eighteen minutes or thereabouts. I saw him do nearly an hour, and the little man killed them stone dead, all of the time. No long waits while nothing was happening. Action action action, the most enjoyable show I've seen since the first time I saw Sammy Davis Jr live.

FROM THE NOTEBOOK OF LEWIS DAVENPORT

TRICKS SUITABLE FOR USE IN CIRCUS

Japanese Rice Bowls

Firebowl

Vanishing Glass of Water

Flag between two handkerchiefs, rope, ring and coat

Dove pan

Two chairs from one

Four eggs four glasses on tray

Table lifting

Vanishing wand

Had a note (another one?) from Frances Marshall of Magic Inc, Chicago, this is the woman and magic company who supports Jay Marshall in his old age. Now Jay is someone who really needs support ever since he did the Magic Circles Festival of Magic show last Xmas and Ali Bongo pulled his (Jay's) trouser's off with a piece of string every show for a week. Fran tells me that she may let Jay off the piece of string this September to fly to England for our annual I.B.M. Convention, buy some more books, steal some more gags, study a few of the English Cru.....no, if we are going to do a paragraph about Fran we have to keep it clean (have I been dirty? NO carry on). Fran also asked me to mention that Walter Gysden (I know I have spelt his name wrong) their shop manager, will be in England for our convention and is still hoping to pick up a few lectures around the London area. So come on fella's, Fran is doing you a favour by letting Jay come over, do one for Walter.

'bye

The Great Patsi

BEIND DATE

EFFECT:-

By sense of touch alone the performer is able to discover the dates on borrowed coins which he has never seen.

PREPARATION:-

Note and remember the date of a tenpence piece and place it in the right jacket pocket. An opaque handkerchief in the left side jacket pocket is the only other requirement.

WORKING:-

Ask anyone in the group who has loose change in their pocket if they can find by sense of touch a tenpence piece and then bring it out of the pocket in their closed fist. On no account must anyone see the coin. Remarking that you need a handkerchief both hands go to the pockets, the right bringing out the coin finger palmed and the left the handkerchief. Drape the handkerchief over the spectators fist which holds the coin and request him to push the coin to his finger tips. Another spectator is asked to take both the coin and handkerchief by gripping the coin through the cloth. You now ask the person who loaned the coin if he had any difficulty in finding the tenpence by sense of touch. Whatever the reply invite him to place his hand under the handkerchief and see if he can tell the date of the coin by merely touching it with the finger tips. He will of course have to admit failure to do so.

You now impress on him the impossibility of the feat and offer to bet him £1 that you can. Remarking that the tips of the forefinger and thumb have to be perfectly dry rub the digits of right hand (which has tenpence piece finger palmed) on the left sleeve. The left hand takes a corner of the handkerchief moving it aside ostensibly to allow the right hand to more easily reach the coin held by the spectator and 'feel' the date. When the hand is beneath the handkerchief and out of sight bring the finger palmed coin up between the thumb and finger tips and place it on the coin held by the spectator and move the fingers so that both coins are held by your fingers and thumb. Care must be taken to prevent the coins from 'talking' or the spectator feeling the extra coin. The left hand has retained its hold on the corner of the handkercheif the whole time, and continues so to do.

The moves are not difficult and any fumbling will be covered, the audience believing that the movements are due to the efforts of the performer in finding the date. Indeed the patter should convey that you are having difficulty in finding it.

You now say to the spectator who loaned the coin, "Will you bet me £1 I can't tell you the date?" Whether or not he accepts your bet is immaterial. You tell him the current day's date! This is the moment you have been leading up to. The person holding the coin believing the whole thing to be a gag will automatically release his hold on the coin and when this happens you say with some urgency, "Please do not leave go of the coin." The timing of this remark is of great importance and should be said immediately the performer feels the spectators grip relax so that there is only a split second when the spectator is not holding the coin, or rather coins, because in that time the coins are switched by simply pulling down the borrowed coin with the fingers and pushing your own coin up with the thumb, and it is this latter that the spectator is finally holding. The right hand now comes from beneath the handkerchief and as it does so it drops the coin on the fingers of the left hand which is still holding a corner of the handkerchief, and as this is happening you remark, "That's the joke, now for the magic." You now give any of the spectators the opportunity to bet with you taking your wallet from the inside pocket with the left hand leaving the coin behind as you do so. How you play the betting business is a matter for each individual: personally I pretend to get serious for a moment at this time but do not actually take anyone's bet. You now know the date of the coin under the handkerchief so play it for all your worth, finally announcing the date on the coin, if you have not forgotten it.

There may be those in a magical audience who suspect that you have somehow switched coins. The following extensions to the effect have caused some puzzlement to those gentry.

Request anyone to remove a twopence piece from their pocket and put it in under the handkerchief in the same manner as was the tenpence piece. Do not play this too heavy as someone may be aware that all twopence pieces are of the same date 1971.

There is considerable scope for entertainment in the above routine and amongst magicians, and with a confederate the following has been used to advantage.

After the date on the tenpence has been divulged replace the coin under the handkerchief and ask the spectator who has been holding the coin and handkerchief to test his sense of touch and ask if he can feel the date. Move from him to the owner of the coin requesting that he tries also. Not only can he not feel the date, he cannot feel the coin because it has vanished. It is scarcely necessary to mention that it was left with the previous spectator. Old as this wheeze is several have been caught who should know better.

TAP FIICK

Another idea uses a confederate in a rather subtle manner and is conditional upon the light not being good and the person not having first-rate eyesight.

It is often possible to spot such a person during the first two 'tests' and as a climax request him to take any coin at all from his pocket. Do the 'business' and announce the date on the coin. When the person has difficulty in checking the date you say, "Let Jim have a look." Jim has a look and verifies that you are correct!

A word of warning to close. The person holding the coin in the first test must not be the owner of the coin. He will not let go.

fred robinson

BACK NUMBERS

We have had many letters asking about back numbers of Pabular and on many occasions, especially with the early issues, we could not help because they were out of print. At last we have had them reprinted and, at present have a limited number of each month available. Anyone who has written for them already should be receiving them — others are asked to let us know the issues they need and we will be happy to help.

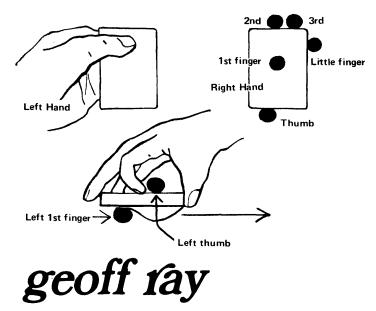

This is an original sleight that I have been using for a number of years. Its use is for lapping a card with the pack held naturally over the table. All that appears to happen is that the pack is riffled with the right thumb.

When sitting at a table in a relaxed position, resting forearms on the table pack held with both hands, card to be lapped is on the bottom having been taken there by the method you prefer.

The pack rests in both hands as follows. The right hand thumb is on the short end at the centre. The first finger is curled with the nail resting on the top card. The second and third fingers hold the short end, away from you. The left hand thumb slides down the top left hand side of the top card as the first finger, underneath, engages the outer end of the bottom card. The second, third and little fingers are held together.

Now the first finger and thumb apply a squeezing pressure and slide hand towards the body, until the bottom card is buckled as in the illustration. When you are ready to release the card just riffle the end of the pack with the right thumb, and the card with practice will shoot between your arms to your lap. You can lean forward after the release of the card, to hide it.

The sleight is not difficult, and can be done (in a fashion) straight away. A tip for cleaner shooting of the card is to roll the first finger, this being done by turning the right hand little finger towards the table top. This action causes less contact with the card and therefore there is less drag.

Britain's, the well known toy manufacturers, make a miniature crocodile with a spring loaded mouth, capable of holding two or three playing cards. It was coming across one of these that inspired the following.

Required are:-

- 1) Toy Crocodile.
- 2) Toy Roman gladiator (these are also made by Britain's).
- A pack of cards containing one with a blank face.

The crocodile is in your pocket or case. The gladiator is held concealed in the left hand and hidden by the pack, which is face up in a dealing position. Held in this way, the gladiator is concealed from all angles. The top (back) card of the pack is the blank face.

Spread the cards and locate two red kings and a black queen. Explain that these represent three explorers in the jungle. Toss them on the table, then turn the pack face down, tilting the hand to keep the gladiator out of sight.

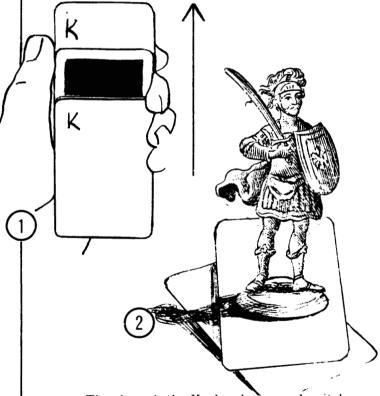

With the pack now face down, obtain a little finger break below the top (blank) card, with the left hand, while the right picks up the three cards. With the three cards held face up, place the queen between the kings and square them on top of the pack. Lift them off, picking up the blank at the same time.

Hold the packet of cards in the right hand, from above with the fingers at the outer end and the thumb at the inner (Biddle grip). Explain that two gentlemen and one lady explorer were travelling up the Amazon. When they camped for the night, the gentlemen turned away from the lady while they slept.

So saying, draw the first king onto the pack, face up, with the left thumb. It should project over the front of the pack for about one third of its length. Next draw off the queen, turning it face down and placing it flush with the pack. Finally place the last two cards, squared as one on top, so that they project for about a third of their length to the rear. This is the position for the well known Kosky change (Fig 1).

The right thumb pushes the top king and the card concealed below it, in the direction of the arrow in Fig 1, until it lines up with the bottom king. The right hand then changes its grip, and takes the three projecting cards by the outer end and pulls them clear of the pack, leaving the queen behind on top.

The above is the Kosky change and switches the queen for the blank faced card. The three cards are spread slightly once they are clear of the pack. Put them on the table, but retain the pack in the left hand to hide the gladiator. Continue the saga of the explorers, by relating how during the night a crocodile crept into the tent and carried them off. At this point introduce the crocodile and clip the three cards in its mouth.

Explain that the crocodile found the first man too tough, so he let him go. Remove the first king and put it in the left hand face up on top of the face down pack, but overlapping for about half its length at the front. Say that the second man was also released, for the same reason. Remove the second king and put it on top of the first, but overlapping to the right. Without saying anything, casually remove the pack and put it down. The gladiator is now hidden beneath the two kings. Continue with the story by saying that the lady was eaten. Here pick up the crocodile and turn it over, revealing that the card in its mouth is now blank.

Say that the gentlemen were angry with the crocodile for eating the lady, and the lady was not very pleased either, but the crocodile did not mind as he had scrounged a free meal. Or in the words of the poet — here you recite:-

The gentlemen were mad he ate her,
The lady she was sad he ate her,
But the crocodile was glad 'e ate 'er (make this sound like 'gladiator).

Quickly seize the cards and the gladiator in the right hand, turn them over at the same time standing the gladiator upright (Fig 2).

Time this so that the figure is revealed on the last line of the poem.

As an afterthought: If you cannot obtain a toy crocodile that will hold cards in its mouth, a comic one can be made out of a suitably painted clothes peg.

WATT IEES

OBSOLETE' ENÇORE phil wye

I demonstrated this for the 'Pabular' backroom boys, who liked it, so here it is.

Playing around with Roy Walton's "Obsolete Prediction", (see Pabular No.4), I came across a method for repeating this effect. By the way, when performing rhe original, I ask a spectator to place a coin on any heap (using any sort of unusual coin for this purpose) which can be referred to as a lucky coin. We shall assume that you have performed the original effect as explained by Roy Walton. You then patter along the lines that assisting spectator may think that everybody chooses that particular pile, so you will do it again, but slightly differently. (This gives you your excuse for repeating the effect). State that you will rearrange all the piles in a different order. You do so. All you have to do is ensure that all the piles are in Black-Red-Red-Black order. You then adjust the prediction pile to Red-Black-Black-Red order (the exact opposite so far as colours are concerned). You then tell the spectator that all the piles are in the same order this time, except for one pile. You say that his job is to place the coin on the odd pile. Put your prediction pile within his reach. Say you won't touch your prediction pile this time (making a virtue out of a necessity) and ask him to turn the prediction pile face up. Pick up the chosen pile, holding a break under the two top cards, and make the pass in turning this pile face up. The net result is that prediction pile and chosen pile now match, and remaining piles are shown to be as you stated at the beginning in opposite colour order.

In a world fast losing individuality there is one tradition that shows no sign of waning—the British Pub. For magicians visiting London there is one Pub that is unique; it is called 'The Marlborough Arms' and is at Torrington Place just off Tottenham Road near Goodge Street Tube Station.

Every Monday evening Magic Circle members drift into the Blenheim Bar before, during or after their meeting. Laymen find it a curious and uncanny place to be; introduce yourself as a Magician and you will be welcomed at once. In this bar Close-up Magic is performed, talked about and sometimes created. At the drop of a hat Bob Read will produce a bottle of wine and then do a trick with the hat or anything else that happens to be around. You may see Devano with his famous matchbox effect, Pat Conway with something new or Alex Elmsley with his latest miracle. You could watch Frank Monaghan place a coin on his wrist and make it jump 6 or more inches in the air.

Here Derek Dingle was 'held over' after closing-time to entertain friends of 'Mine Host'. Here also, Ricky Jay performed a routine needing a perfect Faro Shuffle and was asked if he could guarantee it every time. "No, but I can get it when I want it."

Many others will be there too, making this ordinary pub extraordinary: there is always something new or something to talk about. Perhaps, if you look through the beer-glasses, packs of cards and cigarette smoke you will see three men huddled in a corner over sheets of paper, one idly performing a riffle pass, another saying that they should try and have a 'proper meeting'. It will be your Editors, planning another issue of this magazine, and they will be delighted to meet you — especially if you are a proof reader.........

There are, of course, other pubs. In one of them last New Year's Eve, we were present when Fred Kaps was asked by the Landlord to 'do some tricks'. Fred agreed and without fuss or preparation sat down at the nearest table and proceeded to entertain a roomful of people who had, moments before, been quite happy to entertain themselves. Behind this fifteen or so minutes we saw the experience of thousands of performances, hours of rehearsal and intelligent practice that enabled him to gain and hold the attention of comparative strangers who had no idea what to expect and no special interest in magic tricks. Of the many lessons to be learned probably the most important was that the necessary authority to hold an audience cannot be achieved unless you and your magic command respect.

Another pub in which the period between opening and closing times seems shorter than others, is one in which we occasionally meet Walt Lees. Misdirection, presentation, communication, the merits of Zarrow and Shank Shuffles and other subjects of global importance are discussed. In between all this he usually fools us with a routine that we have previously shown. Magic Circle members were recently treated to a lecture in which Walt showed his flair for evolving routines — some of which will be seen in Pabular. Another who sometimes joins in is Dave Carre who impressed Circle members with far from self-working close-up effects.

There is a barman here who does one trick only, a story effect with a stacked deck. He cannot understand why it still worked one night after someone had shuffled the pack.

Sweet are the uses of the Zarrow Shuffle.

Prepare to meet thy BOON!

The wonderful thumbwriter that HAS to be the best — still the greatest little gimmick in the world — 20 years continuous sales can't be wrong! Simple, invisible. NOT a nailwriter. £1.00 or US $2.50 inc. Air Mail. Eric Mason, 39 Dennis Park Crescent, London SW20 8QH, England.

KAN'T TEAR PAPER (2"x3") 100 Blanks Plus 12 SEX GAG CARDS £2.00 ($5.00) 'TOM' FITZGERALD, 2814 Washington St., Wilmington, Dela. 19802 U.S.A.

MAGIC IN FU

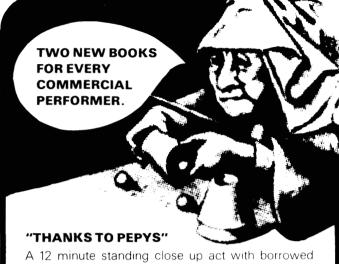

THE INTERNATIONAL MAGAZINE

Now in its 3rd year.

MAKE SURE EACH ISSUE IS SENT TO YOU REGULARLY. SEND TODAY ONLY £2.00 ($7.00) FOR ONE YEAR (SIX) ISSUES SENT POST FREE TO ANYWHERE IN THE WORLD.

32 glossy pages in each issue.

THE INTERNATIONAL MAGIC STUDIO, (RON MACMILLAN)
89 CLERKENWELL ROAD, HOLBORN, LONDON, E.C.1.

A 12 minute standing close up act with borrowed props. 60 pages – 50 photographs – spiral bound. Available – Lloyd Jones – Ken Brooke – Bob Read. S8 Airmailed U.S.A.

"PENULTIMATE CUPS & BALLS"

A comedy presentation for a classic routine. 80 Photographs. Limited Edition. Available only from Bob Read. S10 Airmailed U.S.A.

SAVE $2 if mailed together. SEND $16 ONLY TO Bob Read, 32 Regal Way, Kenton, Middlesex, England.

*A very funny, self working card trick, links with your watch to create

Beyond that all we will tell you is this — the principle is as old as the hills. It was shown to us by that amusing Dutch Award Winner, Dick Koornwinder. We sold out following one demonstration at a recent one day convention. It is sold on our usual money back guarantee.

Warning — If you are the serious type of performer 'CLOCKAUDACIOUS' will be useless to you. Please refrain from buying it. This is for those who enjoy bringing joy to the faces of the customers.

ENGLAND £1.75 * U.S.A. $6.50 AIR MAILED HOME * EUROPE £2.00

SOLD TO YOU ON A MONEY BACK GUARANTEE. OBTAINABLE ONLY FROM —
'KEN BROOKE'S MAGIC PLACE, 145, WARDOUR STREET, LONDON, W1. ENGLAND

Pabular is published after the second week in every month and is printed by Instance Printers, Paddock Wood, Kent, England. Editor Nick Bolton, Technical Editor Fred Robinson, Art Editor Eric Mason. Subscriptions may be obtained direct from the publishers, Pabular, PO Box 180, London SE12 8JJ, England or through many magic dealers. Price 50 pence per copy (US $1.25) surface post included. Air Mail extra depending on country and subject to UK rates. Editorial or content copy should be sent to Fred Robinson, 1 Crescent Court, 24 Crescent Road, New Barnet, Herts, England. Advertising rates sent on request — smalls 3 pence per word (US 10 cents). Dealer enquiries welcomed. Reproduction of old prints and historical magical items by kind permission of Tony Faro.

Colour Changing Knives Without a Paddle!

First of all I will tell you the requirements and then break down the moves. You will need four small penknives, the type that are found on key fobs, and are 1.7/8" long, and four "BRYMAY" Matchbox Trays. I have found this particular matchbox tray's inside measurement is the same length as the knives and the depth which is important is 5/8".

To fake the knives I use a sellotape product called "Trendymend" this is self-adhesive cloth tape which has the required grip as you'll see. You lay a piece of tape exactly over the original colour, however about 1/32" shows over the sides of the knife so I suggest you paint this part with black or silver. Having done one side with one colour you do the aother side with another colour. At the end you have four knives each knife using two colours. For example if you have four colours i.e. Red, Yellow, Green and Blue the first knife would be Red/Yellow, 2nd knife Yellow/Green, 3rd Green/Blue and the last knife Blue/Red.

The moves I have given names to and the first two are almost automatic. The others are well within the capability of most magicians.

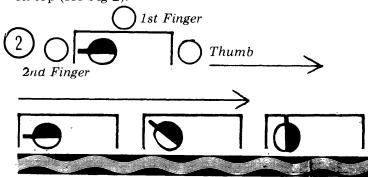

TIP

This is a move when tipping a knife out of a tray the same side is always seen giving the impression the knife is the same colour both sides.

This move is more or less self-working, however, there are a few things to remember. The knife must lay in the tray to one side with the blade touching the tray long side. Now grasp the other long side at the top with the right hand thumb and first finger, lift slightly but keeping the bottom edge of the other side (knife side) on the table. At this point place your second finger underneath the tray and push the tray until it's completely tipped over, releasing your thumb and first finger as you start pushing. This push must be steady, not rushed and at all times the long side where the knife lies must stay in contact with the table (see Fig 1).

ROCK

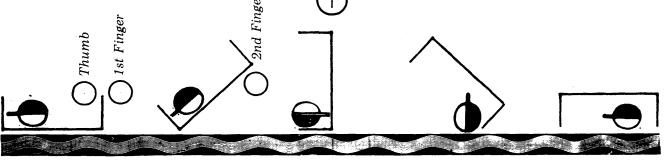

This is a move so that the top colour of the knife can be changed while it is underneath the matchbox tray. Again it's self-operating but you must remember a few points. When the knife is under the tray you just push the tray to one side, however, it can only be pushed one way. The push must be made so that the side which the blade is nearest meets it. What happens is as soon as the side touches the blade the knife begins to lift and in doing so turns over. The movement must continue until sufficient space has been allowed for the roll to be complete. The handling is not all that important, however I have found that pushing it with one finger the tray tends to bob up and down so I suggest that you place the thumb on one long side and the second finger on the other side with the first finger resting lightly on top (see Fig 2).

SINGLE HAND CHANGE

This is a move where one appears to show both sides of the knife casually. You lay the knife across the fingers of the left hand between the base and first joint. The blade toward the wrist.

You cover the knife with a tray and then place the thumb on the top inside edge and push forward enough to turn the knife over. Once the knife has turned you carry on pushing at the same time turning the wrist inwards. By now you will find that the second finger has already slipped into the tray at the beginning of the wrist turn to secure the knife. The movement is finished by putting the tray on the table, knife visible (see Fig 3).

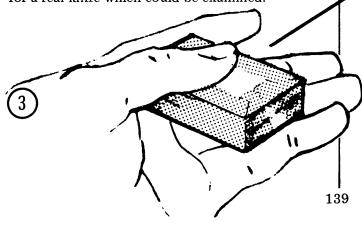

This move is important to establish as you will see. All you do is pick up the tray and also the knife while it's still inside the tray. That is by holding the tray with the thumb at one end and the 2nd finger at the other with the knife inbetween.

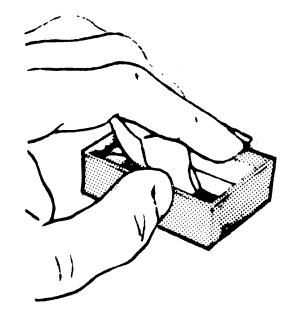

The reason to establish this action is that it offers to either hide or enhance other moves. For example if you complete the "Rock" move you can use the "Pick Up" to show the original colour by turning it over and showing the undernéath. Thus the colour change will appear when you want it to. You should also use this "Pick Up" when you place the knife on your hand ready to do the single hand change. Having established this move it now can be used to change a knife for another.

You secretly have a knife in your left hand (red face up and yellow underneath) and on the table you have a knife under a matchbox tray (red face up and blue underneath). You take hold of the tray and knife using the "Pick Up" method and with the right hand move it towards the left, which at the moment is slightly curled holding the other knife. As the two hands meet the left hand opens and the tray in the right hand covers the knife in the left hand, and releases its hold. At this moment you have a tray in the left hand covering two knives. Your right hand returns to the left and grasps the tray in the "Pick Up" fashion but this time it is holding the other knife. As the right hand moves away the left drops curling the fingers to conceal the knife left in there. The right hand places the knife and tray onto the table and you are now in a position to do a further colour change. This method also is useful for changing a fake knife for a real knife which could be examined.

TRAPEZIUS

If you have pain here try passing the cards up the other sleeve.

DELTOIDS

Exaggerated performance of the Riffle-pass throws too much strain on these muscles. Result is more aches and a transparent routine.

LONGISSIMUS DORSI

Protects spinal column against ill effects of trying to appear relaxed when carrying heavy loads.

ERECTOR SPINAE

Helps to protect spinal column. An ache or stiffness here tells you that your pull harness is much too tight.

QUADRICEPS (FRONT)

Bruises here indicate excessive use of lapping techniques with heavy objects.

HAMSTRINGS

You'll have trouble here if you perform unduly complicated spirit-seance routines.

GASTROCNEMII

If pain occurs here this probably means you are a short magician trying to be a taller one (wear high heels instead to eliminate problem)

ANATOMY OF A MAGICIAN
(With apologies to Renault Cars Advertising Dept.)

THE CALCULATOR BUSINESS

mark westoη

When using machines for entertainment as a close-up interlude, I begin with the introduction, introducing the calculator to the spectator. I then follow this with a couple of gags (calculated to get them in the right mood) using the machine and then offer perhaps a mathematical type of quick puzzle, and finally a nice baffling effect to leave them wondering. The idea is not to overdo the calculations or tend to repeat oneself too much, by careful handling one can evolve a nice little routine entertaining and pleasing to the spectator.

THE INTRODUCTION:-

The spectator should be positioned where he can see the letters appear and read the figures as words during the introduction. First place the calculator before the spectator with the window nearest him. Let me say at this stage that correct presentation is very important. I use calculators every day and one becomes accustomed to drumming the fingers over the keys — casually causing numbers to flash up and down in the window — this is the type of casual presentation to be aimed at during the introduction to give the impression of the figures appearing in a casual uncalculating manner — this enhances the presentation considerably.

With the calculator in position, drum the fingers over the keys as you say "Let me introduce you to my electronic friend — his name's LES" (during the drumming hit the cleared button then 537 fast to print "LES" in the window for spectator to see) then continue to spectator "Say hello to LES" at the same time clear calculator and hit DECIMAL 7734 = 0.7734 to read HELLO. Continue the drumming with the fingers on the keys, as you continue the patter "Les is a kindly little soul" here your fingers clear and hit 3705 = SOLE, then continue "and where there's a soul we must have a heel." Hit 7334 = HEEL. Should you decide to break off here with the preliminaries, just go straight into the finish with your puzzle or trick, but if you wish to proceed a little further, continue as follows:-

"Les is very versatile, he plays a nice game of whist when he is alone" - hit Decimal 705 = 0.705 = SOLO. "Solo whist, and he has written a few songs in his time." Here you hit 171714 and say "Hi-Lili" "Hi-Lili" (clear quickly) then hit Decimal 714 = 0.714 = HILO as you say "HILO HILO" (this is good for laughs). On my larger machine it is possible to get twelve digits in the calculator window and therefore the HI-LILI can be placed into the machine twice thus reading "Hi-Lili, Hi-Lili". Continue "Les usually does a good deal more than this but he has been ill — (Hit 771 - ILL) lately, and the other day he was in a terrible state" (hit decimal 140 = 0.140) point to calculator as you say "OHIO", "that's a terrible state if ever there was one."

Continue to spectator "I hope you don't think this is all a little silly?" (Hit 17715 — SILLI) "so I'll get Les to do a couple of tricks for you."

This concludes the introduction, the foregoing can be shortened at will to suit each individual style etc. — now to the QUICK PUZZLE.

THE PUZZLE

BASIC PRINCIPLE:-

Have spectator facing machine. Place 55 into machine, ask spectator to "ADD TWO NUMBERS TO 55 and MAKE IT LESS." Method is to hit 3 and 7 to place 5537 into the machine window. When machine is turned around 5537 reads LESS. Now we understand the method, here is a presentation dressing for this effect.

PUZZLE DRESSING:-

"A man's income = £55 per week, and he is contented with this." (Hit 55 into machine) "He wins £37,000 on the pools and the interest from this brings him a steady income of £5,537 per year." (Hit 37 to register 5537 in machine

An old dog learns new tricks

I WAS fascinated by pack of "miracle" tr playing demoncards strated to me by salesman Walt Lees at a preview of Christmas toys — ristmas — at Hamyes Christmas ley's the toy shop. Regent Street who Guess purchased one of the first None other t packs? than our wizard Harold Wilson.

window) "However, after a few weeks he finds that he is financially poorer than before he won the pools, do you know the reason?" Turn machine around as you say "Well, 5537 is LESS."

The climax of the routine is not a new idea, and is an item I have used with all types of calculating machines for as long as I can remember, in fact it is the best effect I have seen with the machines.

THE BAFFLER

The magician places numbers 12345679 into the machine in that order, he asks the spectator to pick any number appearing in the window, a number is chosen, magician performs a quick calculation on the keys, and EVERY NUMBER IN THE WINDOW BECOMES THE CHOSEN NUMBER for example if the chosen number is 9 — the calculator window reads 999999999. This is a real shaker, on a machine the effect is quite instantaneous and surprising to the spectator.

METHOD:-

As I stated earlier this is not a new idea, but I haven't seen it used except by myself for some thirty five years in magic. The numbers placed in the machine are 12345679 — omitting the number 8, now whatever number is chosen by spectator — mentally multiply this number by 9, in our example 9 would be chosen and mentally multiplied by 9 = 81, now the numbers in the calculator window are multiplied by 81 — the resultant answer being 999999999. If the chosen number is 6, then $6 \times 9 = 54$ (mental calculation) 12345679 now actually multiplied by 54 in the machine = 666666666 which is the spectator's chosen number.

The summary of the above is as follows:-

12345679 into machine window Spectator calls any of the above numbers i.e. 6

Mentally multiply $6 \times 9 = 54$ Multiply 12345679×54 on machine = 666666666

This procedure is adopted for any of the numbers. Continue to hide the multiplying number from spectator as you perform the calculation.

If you carry a pocket calculator with you most of the time, you can have a lot of fun with this routine, I hope you like it and may all your calculations be 17715 (SILLI) 111111111

This column is about to be written at high speed and for several reasons. First, your Editor, the Godfather, has been screaming down the 'phone about me being responsible for holding everything up. (I never knew I was that important.) Second I have only just realised that two issues are being published simultaneously. And third, twenty four hours from now I will be on my summer holidays and travelling north to Heaven (Scotland). I describe it as Heaven not because there is a resemblance (there isn't) it's just that for a couple of weeks I will be able to do nothing and THAT my friends is Heaven to me. To be able to have a long lie in bed, not to worry about shaving, or have to get to the shop on time (which I never do) to serve some snotty nosed kid with an Evaporated Milk Jug or to smile pleasantly when someone tells me about his new routine with the Change Bag "they really love it" he says when in fact he really means "I really love ME."

I'll be able to dodge the ramblings of Bobby Bernard on a Saturday morning and I won't have to listen to Fred Robinson convince me that this time he really has found a way of doing the Faro Shuffle EVERYtime..... Yes, for a couple of weeks I am going to miss all of those things because I'm a Magic Nut, a real down to earth Magic Nut.

I was reminded of this a few nights ago whilst watching a rather mediocre magic act in the company of the aforementioned Bobby Bernard, Val Andrews and Harry Stanley. Bobby passed some remark about 'What were all the Magicians doing here tonight' (it was a non magical event) and I replied that they were naturally there to see the magician. Val turned and said "I remember the time when you would travel anywhere to see a magic act Bobby." To which we all added agreement "In fact, you've come here tonight to see one." And he was right, we had.

FROM THE NOTEBOOK OF LEWIS DAVENPORT

GOOD COMEDY JUGGLING TRICKS

Three Apples, eat one while Juggling.
Three Pots one with Paste in, on Head.
Balancing Cigarette on Nose.
Feather in Tube, Stick in Wig.
Watering Pot to Water Flowers Produced.
Spots off Dog.

Change of subject. I remember at one convention seeing an act in a competition that was dreadful (the act not the competition). At the conclusion of the act, which started on a low note and built up to a lower one, someone said

The Page boy speaks....

"What kind of an act was that?" A voice in the dark replied "That was an act of God." I confess that the voice in the dark was mine and the line was that of Jay Marshall's late agent Mark Leddy. But it was particularly apt at that moment. There is a sequel to that happening because in the following year the same act appeared in the competition and won a prize and if anything it was worse than the year before. Which proved that God does have mercy sometimes on someone but dear God, next time pick someone who isn't guilty of cruelty to spectators. Roll on Scotland please.

Remember me mentioning a new TV show 'For My Next Trick' which was to feature magicians. Well, it has actually happened. Terry Seabrook, Paul Daniels, John Wade and a mime act in the Marcel Marceau mould are the regulars with several other magic acts making guest appearances. Sorry, there is also a resident female vocalist with a beautiful pair of lungs (we can see most of them) who also stooges for the resident team of Magus. There have been three shows so far and I have seen the first two. Somehow they have not quite hit their stride vet. Daniels and Seabrook are performing their tried and tested material which we all KNOW to be good. Unfortunately they are at the mercy of the Editor and the general census of opinion is that he is doing a less than perfect job. Terry did his show-stopping burnt and restored note routine, but we had to watch it in 3 or maybe 4 segments, with a guest magician popping up doing HIS act between them. Paul Daniels is suffering from the same problem there is a lack of continuity about the whole procedure. I did hear that the third show was a little better and so perhaps they will get it really swinging. If they don't it will be the fault of the T.V. company involved and not the performers themselves. And if you think of it it seems a tragedy that almost the only way a performer can get into the really big money in this country at least is through Television - and by doing so he places his reputation perhaps his livelihood in someone else's hands. And further it is just possible that that someone is getting his big break at that moment and probably doesn't know that if he blows it he blows half a dozen good pro workers with him.

I must mention that John Wade comes across strong on the programme. He does practically nothing and does it very well indeed and looks like the father-figure he is. Let's face it he's old enough to fit the part.

Scotland, here I come.

Patrick Page

Should be revived — an oldie but a goodie.

TWIN BEDS

Three paddles are shown, one 'blank' on both sides is placed aside. A second is shown to have a picture of 'Fred' on 'both' sides, actually a drawing of a pillow with a ginger headed mans face upon it. The third a similar pinkish pillow with a dark haired girls face upon it.

The reverse of 'Freds' paddle only has a duplicate empty pillow. The reverse of 'Nellys' bears a pillow with both heads, his and hers, facing each other. The third has a pillow with three crying babes heads.

You use the paddles as the patter suggests. A bit too blue for all audiences perhaps but at the right time and at the right place a very rewarding chuckle.

The trick was shown to me by Harry Baron in 19?? (it couldn't have been that long ago), the patter came a little later and is by yours truly.

A story of a boy called Fred Who bought himself a brand new bed. Fred's girl friend who's called Virginia Nell Also had a bed as well.

Virginia Nell now made so bold To tell Fred that her bed was cold. So Fred went round to try it out But didn't wait for Nell to get out.

Virginia Nell began to wriggle Then pretty soon she started to giggle "Ooh Fred" said Nell "I can feel something bumpy, It's round and soft and rather lumpy."

my

"It must be a broken spring" said Fred And started groping around in the bed "I've found it" said Fred and gave it a press "Ooh Fred" said Nell you've got hold of

"I like it" said Fred, then "Nell, don't you see, The lumps you are feeling Are belonging to me."

Nell said to Fred "You remember I told You a while ago that my bed was so cold" Fred said to Nelly "What utter rot In fact I find it too darned hot."

So Fred jumped out of bed and got such a fright, HE Found that sweet Nell wasn't wearing a nightie

He gave such a jump — he was in his own

And thought he must have been dreaming instead.

Now it's happened again
And I'm sorry to say
I can't seem to get Nell and Freddie away
(Ah — I've managed it.)

Now things like this can lead to bad habits And soon Fred and Nell were acting like rabbits

A single bed can lead to trouble.....
Especially when it's used as a double.
And Nell said one day "Fred I'm feeling quite funny,

I fancy strange things — and just look at my tummy!"

So Freddie and Nell got rapidly wed And thoughtfully provided another bed. The vicar said "Virginia Nell, do you take this man to be......"

"Hold it" said Fred "she's now just Nelly to me."

This little tale sometimes causes some laughter

But with magic you see there's a happy hereafter

The end of my story, (show blank paddle) I'm glad to relate Ended with happiness (cover with hand) IN TRIPLICATE (reveal the kids)

barry govan

Using round cards, the black and red aces are placed face to face with each other. When the top aces are lifted, two coins are seen to appear between the aces. The aces are replaced and then lifted again revealing another two coins for the climax.

-VARIATIONS ON A CIRCLE

THE BASIC MOVE:

Before going into the trick itself, I will describe the basic move on which the trick depends.

This is a method of loading the coins whilst showing the round cards to audience.

- 1. Have two coins palmed in right hand (classic palm) and two aces from a round pack face down on table at least two inches apart.
- 2. Left hand picks up left hand side ace and shows its face to audience, thumb behind and fingers in front.
- 3. As this is being done, right hand releases a coin from palm position so that it falls on the curved fingers. Right hand now reaches for tabled card thumb on top, and by lifting edge of card with right first finger from the front, the finger palmed coin slides underneath the card.
- 4. Holding coin with third finger, 1st and 2nd fingers now go on top of face down card and thumb now goes behind the card.
- 5. This automatically brings the card in a face down position to audience view. Now lift up card level to other card in left hand. Thumb is holding coin from behind. (Cards are now vertical to floor).
- 6. Revolve left hand card face down to audience view, briefly place on right hand card and secretly transfer coin from right hand card to left hand card using left thumb.
- 7. As soon as this is done, revolve right hand card face to audience. Now place this card behind the left hand card (cards will be face to face) and clip all two cards and coin with thumb behind and fingers in front and place the lot on the table. The coin is now secretly between the two cards.

SET-UP:

- (a) Have ready any set of 4 cards from a round deck. (I use aces.)
- (b) Two coins palmed in each hand. (Classic palm position.)

WORKING:

- 1. Place the 4 aces face down on the table in a square. (Have them apart.)
- 2. Have red aces in front and black aces behind and do basic move with the black ones first, then the basic move with the red ones.
- 3. Lift top card of left hand packet with right thumb and second finger.
- 4. As this is being done, release a palmed coin to finger palm position and under misdirection of the revealed coin, immediately place the card from the right hand onto the coin that was in finger palm position.
- 5. With right hand, pick up the revealed coin and drop it in front of the card, (the tabled card that is) at the same time drop card (and coin) from the left hand onto the face up ace. The sound of the forward dropped coin will cover the sound of the other coin dropping. Repeat with other two aces.
- 6. After first surprise has registered, lift up cards to reveal coins for climax.

NOTES:

Regular cards could be used but the sleights fit the round cards better.

If you want to you can use one coin from each hand for the first production and one from each hand for the second. Just do the sleight with the opposite hand.

144

TABLE TOP-MOTORWAY

EFFECT:-

The spectator takes an imaginary trip in a motor car and commits and imaginary traffic offence. A prediction in the form of an endorsement on a Driving Licence is shown and proves to be absolutely correct.

PREPARATION:-

This unusual close-up effect takes a little time to make up but it is well worth the trouble. Once made up it is always ready to be worked at a moments notice.

Take ten blank cards and type or print the following message on the first two cards:-

'You have parked your car on a traffic warden's foot.'

Then type or print on the remaining eight cards as follows:-

CARD No.3 'You have been stopped for exceeding the speed limit — while going in reverse.'

CARD No.4 'Your car has stalled in the middle of a level crossing.'

CARD No.5 'Your rear lights are not working — because the back of the car has fallen off.'

CARD No.6 'You are being breathalised, and while blowing into the bag it disintegrated.'

CARD No.7 'You have knocked down a lollipop man — on a pedestrian crossing.'

CARD No.8 'You drove in the wrong direction up a one-way street — in reverse.'

CARD No.9 'You have strangled yourself — with a seat belt.'

CARD No.10 'You have hit an animal that has escaped from the Zoo — on a Zebra crossing.

Arrange these ten cards so that the two cards with the traffic warden messages occupy the seventh and ninth positions in the packet when it is held face down. Place the packet of cards in the wallet.

Make up a driving licence as illustrated below:-

FRONT

This licence permits the holder to take part in the table top motorway test..... provided he is not of sound mind nor nervous disposition.

BY ORDER

BACK

ENDORSEMENT

Because of illegal parking and extreme cruelty to a traffic warden.

Place this card in the other side of your wallet with the Driving Licence side showing.

LAFAYETTE. PAUL VALADON. AIMÉE DÉSIREE.

des colgan

TO PERFORM:-

Explain that driving a car nowadays is a risky business and that the most unusual things can happen. Take out the ten cards and illustrate some of the possible things that can happen to your volunteer by showing him the first five or six cards (without disturbing the order). Next show him the Driving Licence and explain that he must have one before facing the perils of the road.

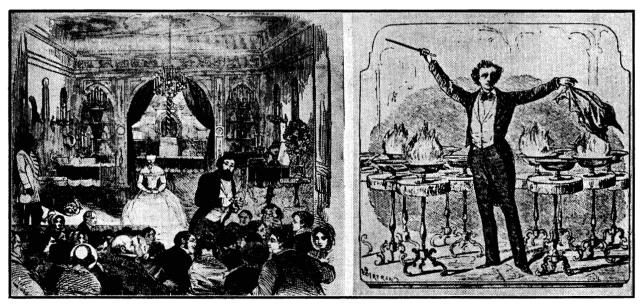

Say to him, "If I were to ask you for a number between one and ten, would you choose a high number i.e. between six and ten, or a low number i.e. between one and five."

If he chooses a high number (7, 8 or 9) count the cards face down onto the table, one at a time until you reach his number. A Traffic Warden card will either be this card or the next one, so you place the correct card face down in front of him. Now show the cards before and after his selection emphasising that the cards are different.

If he should choose a low number (2, 3 or 4) show that you have ten cards by counting them face down onto the table. This reverses the order of the cards and brings the 'Traffic Warden' cards into the second and fourth positions. Continue as for a high number placing the correct card face down in front of him. Ask him to turn over the card he selected and read out what has happened to him. Take out the Driving Licence and show him the endorsement which correctly predicted the card he would choose.

ROBIN IN SECOND SIGHT.

HAMILTON PRESENTING THE FIRE BOWLS.

We are now one year old and it is a suitable time to thank all those who have so readily helped us by giving some of their pet effects for publication. In particular we thank those who gave us their contributions in the months prior to our publishing date allowing us to build up a 'bank' of effects that made it possible to go ahead with confidence.

To the little fellow who every month casually chats into a mike and produces 'The Page Boy Speaks' and to Bob Read for 'Bob's Business' as a regular feature throughout the year, an extra special thank you.

And we are most grateful to Tony Faro who helps with each issue by allowing us to select from his collection of prints and drawings.

But perhaps most important of all, thanks to our readers who have encouraged us by simply subscribing to Pabular; without you none of it would be happening at all.

Another regular feature is the back page of dealer adverts. We are grateful to them not only for the support in placing their ads but also for displaying Pabular prominently in their premises when we feel they could quite easily have shown more profitable items. They helped us at the start when we most needed it and we appreciate it very much.

Still with the dealers, do magicians realise the value they receive from them? Free advice which if heeded can save you pounds by stopping you waste money on unsuitable items for your needs or ability. In what other business is professional advice given so freely or such pains taken to give customers satisfaction? When, under the name of progress, your favourite magic shop has done its last vanishing trick and is no longer there and you are wheeling your trolley round a magical supermarket not knowing what you want, where to look - or what it does or how it works - don't ask the blonde at the till. She will only be there to take your money and she won't be interested in how you 'tore 'em up' or your latest method for the vanishing cuff-links (by sleight of hand). To those who think that magic is expensive now - stop and think of the thought and work involved; think of what you get and realize that the dealer too, like you, has to make a living.

We believe that most of the dealers (in this country at least) will be appreciated only when it is 'later than you think'.

Many years back readers of the Sphinx were told who had called at their offices during the preceding month and sometimes it made fascinating reading. Not having an office does not prevent us from meeting visiting magicians and one of the most recently met was Randi who is quite a live wire. He has a fund of gags and heaps of experiences to relate.

Better known as an escapologist he has now turned his attentions to the para-normal, demonstrating his powers to gullible professors of which their seems to be an unending supply. He told us of an occasion when one of them conducted a test in which he gave a number of paper clips to boys to take home and bend "paranormally". Naturally boys being boys, the clips arrived back in various shapes. This was accepted as proof of supernatural forces because the professor could identify the clips as the ones he gave out!

Cyril Faranoff from South Africa called in on his way home after conventioneering in America to collect his back numbers of Pabular and leave us a present. Thanks. Ed Eckl from New Jersey came across and won a £5 prize at Alf Moore's crazy night at the Magic Circle and immediately went back home to write out a trick for us. Perhaps we will someday take him up on his promise to take us to Eddie Fechters Saloon where Eddie has allowed him to perform before ordinary people who have come to see magic (An opportunity that does not often present itself to British Magicians). Alex Elmsley left for the U.S. towards the end of July for a seven week holiday which will include a few lectures and audiences of about twenty five or less. We predict they will be truly DAZZLED.

The 'world's largest toy shop' is Hamleys of Regent Street, London and in a preview of new toys Walt Lees performed there close-up for reporters of about a dozen papers and periodicals. One of the people who bought a 'Miracle Pack' was our Prime Minister Harold Wilson. (There must be room for political comment here but we'll let it pass!) — see our cartoon on this on another page. It is always interesting to see what tricks are being performed by people whose job is Magic and here is Walt's List: A joker routine, Cannibal Cards, Spellbound, Coins Across, Dice Routine, Colour Changing Knives, All Backs and the Collectors.

We have just received the Tony Shiels issue of INVOCATION and readers of Pabular No. 2 will have an idea of what to expect. If you did not read this our final thought this month is taken from this magazine and we are printing it in return for the free plug just given.

"Showmen like Uri Geller... Peter Hurkos... are in my opinion worth 10 Kreskins — and one Kreskin is worth 100 finger-flinging amateur hocus-pocus twits any day of the week."

Hmm.....

DUCO'S DICE A FANTASTIC ROUTINE WITH JUMBO-DICE AND CARDS $12.00

Now the spectator puts BOTH dice in their covers and places them on the table. HE CHOOSES one of them. Six cards with coloured spots are shown and given to the spectator to shuffle.

You take the chosen cover and put it on one of the cards. The spectator lifts the cover, and, turning the card, finds that the spots on both DIE AND CARD MATCH!!!

He then spreads them out on the table.

EFFECT 1.

Two dice with covers. The spectator chooses one. He puts it in its cover in such a way so he doesn't know which side is up. You do the same with the other die. Both are placed on the table. The spectator lifts the covers, THE SPOTS ON BOTH DICE CORRESPONDS!

BILL STICKLAND SAYS:

"EL DUCO has cleverly employed an old principal of Magic to produce two exellent Mental Effects. The method and the attractive props can readily be adapted to many routines.

I recommend the effect to close-up magicians particularly those favouring mental effects or dice tricks."

EL DUCO'S MAGIC

Lergöksgatan 18 S - 214 79 Malmö Sweden

MAGIC INFO

THE INTERNATIONAL MAGAZINE

Now in its 3rd year.

MAKE SURE EACH ISSUE IS SENT TO YOU REGULARLY. SEND TODAY ONLY £2.00 ($ 7.00) FOR ONE YEAR (SIX) ISSUES SENT POST FREE TO ANYWHERE IN THE WORLD.

32 glossy pages in each issue.

THE INTERNATIONAL MAGIC STUDIO, (RON MACMILLAN)
89 CLERKENWELL ROAD, HOLBORN, LONDON, E.C.1.

ESOTERIC*

A visible card trick which, basically, is very old indeed. The late Al Baker and many other famous magicians have had their own versions. We consider and many other famous magicians have had their own versions. We consider and many other famous magicians have had their own versions. The REASON WE SELL from Jon's the most practical of them all — THAT'S THE REASON WE SELL for your money 'ESOTERIC' is not appreciate the content of the second selection of the second selection.

IT!

If you expect a cart load of apparatus for your money 'ESOTERIC' is not for you. If you want a 15 minute act, save your money. 'ESOTERIC' is a two minute, visible stunt with audience participation that will mystify, amuse and entertain. No sleight of hand required. Providing you have the interest to read and follow a simple instruction and presentation sheet you can start enjoying your purchase within a few minutes of receipt.

"HAS EVERY MAGICIAN IN NEW YORK DOING SOMERSAULTS!"

Bob McAlister of Matromedia T.V. New York City wrote those words the following letter arrived from the same city —

"We gave Tony Stydis: —

"We gave Tony Slydini a Testimonial Dinner on Thursday night just because he deserved it. I was on one side of the room with 'ESOTERIC' and Goldberg of New York City.)

ENGLAND £3.00  U.S.A. $10.00 AIR MAILED HOME  EUROPE £3.50

SOLD TO YOU ON A MONEY BACK GUARANTEE. OBTAINABLE ONLY FROM —
'KEN BROOKE'S MAGIC PLACE', 145 WARDOUR STREET, LONDON W1. ENGLAND

Ge Magazine of Close-up Magic Vol. 2Nº1 Sept. 1975

SEDUCA DECK TRICK

This was inspired by the article 'A Name Revelation with faro shuffles' by Dr Ewer in Charles Miller's Magicana in Genii Vol. No.11 Nov. '73, and subsequent letters in Genii, namely Jim Hoy's letter in Intermission Vol.28 No.2 Feb. '74.

EFFECT:-

Whilst talking to his girl-friend the magician causes messages to appear on the sides and ends of the pack by shuffling it.

PREPARATION:-

Take a new deck and set it up in Si Stebbins order AC, 4H, 7S, 10D, 4C etc from the top down.

Print with a purple pen on one narrow end with letters sloping to the right the following:-

HELLO BEAUTIFUL YOU'RE CUTE

Now deal the deck into two face-up piles side by side. Now place both printed ends together and faro the packets together keeping the AC on top and the JD on the bottom. If you examine the deck now, the message appears on both ends, but only on alternate cards. Go over the letters on both ends with your purple pen so that the printing will be the same even if some cards are turned end for end.

Cut at the JH and out faro (keeping the AC on top and JD on the bottom). Cut at the JS and out faro again keeping the same two cards top and bottom. The purple printing on both ends becomes a jumbled message. Now, taking a green pen, print with letters sloping left on the narrow ends the following:-

DO YOU BELIEVE IN MAGIC

and on the long side print in blue

'YOU AND I COULD MAKE REAL MAGIC TOGETHER'

david a wright

Deal deck into four face-up piles. Faro the two green printed ends into each other maintaining the AC on top. Thus the green printing will appear on both ends and the blue printing on both long sides.

Go over both green and blue printing again. Cut at the 6D and out faro keeping the AC on top. Cut at the 2D and out faro again. Now print the following in red on the long sides:-

YOUR PLACE OR MINE

Deal into two face-up piles and turn one pile round and faro so that one red printed side intermeshes with the non-red printed side so that the printing will appear on both long sides of the deck. Go over red printing with red pen on both sides. Out faro again twice. With the deck face-down it will be in the following order:-

CLUBS - A, K, Q down to 2.

HEARTS - 4, 3, 2, A, K down to 5.

SPADES - 7 down to A, K down to 8.

DIAMONDS - 10 down to 2, A, K, Q, J.

PRESENTATION:-

With the deck assembled in suits as above and spread out showing to the young lady you are entertaining that is just a normal deck of cards. Patter about it a 'magic deck' and that you are a 'magician' as you cut at the 5H and out faro, and cut at the 8S and again out faro and show the young lady the message 'HELLO BEAUTIFUL YOU'RE CUTE' which appears printed in purple on both ends of the deck. Continue chatting her up as you cut the JH and out faro, then at the JS and out faro. Reveal the new message which has now appeared on the ends of the deck printed in green 'DO YOU BELIEVE IN MAGIC'. Whatever she replies show her the long side of the pack on which 'YOU AND I COULD MAKE REAL MAGIC TOGETHER' printed in blue ink. Keep pattering and cut at the 6D and out faro, and then cut at the 2D and out faro and show her the words 'YOUR PLACE OR MINE' printed on the long sides of the deck in red. From here on, put your cards away and play it by ear. Good luck! NOTE:-

The perfect faro shuffle is described in PABULAR No.1, Vol.1.

johnnie geddes

THE KNOWING NINE

Some copie is his magazine 'ROUTINE' long since disco is hed, it must be a collectors item now, with the remark "If there is any item you would like for PABULAR you're welcome." We chose 'The Knowing Nine' as it seemed out of the normal run of the mill card effects currently popular with added advantages of requiring no special conditions, no difficult sleights, and required only a pack of cards which could be a borrowed one.

Anyone is given the pack to shuffle and asked to remove any card from the pack and without looking at it to place it in his outside jacket pocket. He is then asked to hand the pack to another spectator who is requested to do likewise. Regaining possession of the pack you explain that the curse of Scotland is of course, the nine of diamonds and it is also a very knowing card and this is the reason for calling it the 'Knowing Nine'. Take the nine of diamonds from the pack and place it for a moment in the pocket containing the chosen cards of each spectator in turn, finally returning it to the top of the pack. You now name the cards selected. Both spectators remove the cards from their pockets and the 'Knowing Nine' has proved its worth.

The method is very simple. After both cards have been chosen and placed into the pockets of the spectators take back the pack and look for the nine of diamonds. When you find it note the card beneath it and remember it, say the four of clubs and bring out both cards as one. Show nine of diamonds with the four of clubs behind it as one card and put it (them) into the first spectator's pocket. Leave behind the four of clubs and bring out the card he actually selected in front of the nine of diamonds, keeping both cards square.

Remember this card, say the five of hearts. Still holding the two cards as one put them into the pocket of the second spectator leaving behind the five of hearts and bringing out the originally selected card in front of the nine of diamonds as one card and return them to the top of the pack. You now name the cards selected and turn the nine of diamonds face up and THANK HIM.

The original article did not say what procedure to adopt in the event of the nine of diamonds being one of the selected cards. It could of course be secretly removed at the outset and added again when receiving back the cards after the selections have been made. To keep the trick in the 'no skill' category any one could be omitted from the patter theme until it has been ascertained that the nine of diamonds had not been removed. If it had been chosen any of the nines could be used instead.

bob read

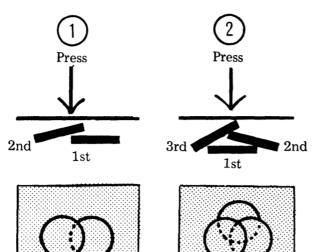

THE BUSINESS FOR THE FOUR COIN ASSEMBLY

barı'y govan MATCH CARD

First of all have you noticed how the addition of sound effects adds an entirely new-dimension to tricks. For instance, the sliding die box, biting a plate etc.

Passing the last coin through the table is enhanced by the sound of the fourth coin being knocked against the underside of the table with the right hand as the left hand supposedly performs this action on the table top. The refinement on this is, I believe, attributable to Mr Dai Vernon and consists of scraping the "coin" along the table top—really beneath the table—before allowing it to click flat on the table.

In the four coin assembly beneath a playing or post card, a coin can be "pressed" through the card audibly by stacking the second coin on the first, and pressing it off with some force (Fig.1). If working on a mat or soft surface, stack the third on the second and first, and third coin is allowed to snap against the first coin (Fig.2). In both diagrams the loaded coin is shown as X and, of course, has nothing to do with the sound effect.

SET UP

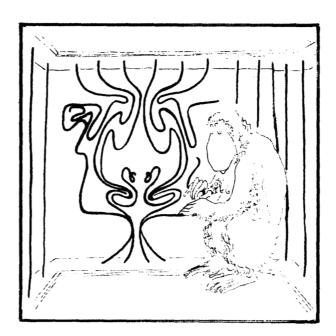

Conceal a miniature card between the two layers of matches in a booklet of matches.

TO PERFORM

- 1. Show the booklet of matches both sides. Also inside. (The mini card is not seen because it is in the middle of the matches. There are generally four layers to a book, so two layers conceal the card each side).
- 2. Give booklet to spectator to hold.
- 3. Force duplicate card from normal sized deck and replace.
- 4. Patter about techniques of making things smaller, e.g. Shrunken heads.
- 5. Vanish card in deck by any method. (You could just palm it off if you want to).
- 6. Take booklet from spectator and cleanly withdraw the mini card from between the matches. Do not let spectators see that it comes out of the middle of the layers of matches.

NOTE

If you are working on a close-up pad, climax this routine by using Dai Vernons Jumbo Card Climax from his book 'Inner Secrets of Card Magic'.

Well, well and another IBM Convention bites the dust, although in this instance it might be better to say it took a nose-dive into the mud in view of the weather. If I may steal a line or two from an Old Time Wizard no longer with us "Never before in the field (and 'field' is the right word) of Magic has it rained so much on so few in such a short space of time."

English weather is a joke in most other countries of the world, but for those visitors from abroad who were attending our Convention it was no joke, it was a tragedy. One of them asked me "How can you stay in a country like this when the weather is so unpredictable?" As his command of English was somewhat limited I refrained from mentioning that we did have other advantages like.......well.....eryes, I've got it — I live here. That must be an advantage to someone — and the first one who writes in and says it's an advantage to those who live abroad will be condemned to live forever in Southport with a leaky umbrella.

The Page boy speaks.

Weather aside it was a good Convention with several interesting happenings, one of which was the fact that the dealers were housed in a marquee (tent, to you foreigners). Can you imagine it, in that weather? Two of the dealers went home without unpacking and the majority refused to appear on the Dealers' Demonstration Show as a protest. To be fair to the Convention Committee the dealers did know they were to be under canvas and it was unfortunate that the weather made it a little more unpleasant than it would have been otherwise. As I was involved in this protest I will close the matter there, apart from mentioning the fact that the Committee bent over backwards to improve conditions by arranging for heating and a snack bar to be provided as soon as possible. To them I say 'Thank you'. Subject closed.

What else? — yes, for the very first time at an English Convention we had a Russian magician appearing and he was good, very good. Obviously a cabaret act, he was appearing on a large stage in a very large theatre. Dove productions, milk vanish with a sucker reproduction, cigarette and billiard ball manipulations were performed in classic style. He was a pro and looked it and to my shame, although I have met him several times in the past I can't remember his name, other than that his Christian name (do Russians have Christian names?) was Igor. If you read this, Igor, sorry.

In the Close-up field Peter Kane was there, and very able too, with a new book on cards.

Alex Elmsley was there, attending a Convention for the first time for several years (I think) and had everyone Dazzled. Roy Walton wasn't there but was well represented by a new book on cards and one new small packet card trick. The Close-up Competition was cancelled because of lack of entrants and Bob Ostin from Liverpool stood in with a lecture.

'Flip' from Holland was there. He annoys me. He shows you a trick, fools you badly, then shows you how it is done, knowing full well that you will not be able to do it because it requires a certain knack that you will never acquire if you live to be old and bald. He was great.

Jay Marshall was there talking to his hand, and brought with him Walter Gydesen, the Magic Incorporated Store Manager who talked on the subject of collecting. Thank you Fran.

Philip Fiahlo from Monte Carlo was there and performed Close-up late one evening. He performed an effect which was probably the hit of the Convention. I am not going to describe it to you because I think it would be unfair to describe this beautiful effect in print. It's something you must see and is called the 'Vanishing Pebble' (his own words). Try if you can to find out what it is.

Harold Bronhaut wasn't there. Who? Harold Bronhaut of course. You hadn't heard of him? Frankly, neither had I, but at this very moment I am sitting with a newspaper cutting in front of me. It's from the Daily Mail, April 7th 1975. It contains an article on the said Harold Bronhaut. It seems that Harold is a magical inventor, in New York City and according to this article he has taken the trouble to patent a magic trick. It's a new trick wallet. Listen to this as a trick description — quoted from the newspaper: "....a black wallet in which you slide a card on which you have written a telephone number or the name of a person. The mind reader holds the wallet and tells you what you wrote."

Harold says that no-one could make a similar wallet without the research equipment that he has as it incorporates a sophisticated electronic device. Harold also mentions that he started experimenting in magic when he was 6 years old. His first trick was to take the flame of a candle in his hands place it in his mouth and swallow it. "Then I would take the flame out of my mouth and put it back on the candle where it would continue to burn merrily."

Would you like to read that again. He did that when he was six years of age?

Will someone from New York please help?

I was there. Anyone want to buy a suit that has shrunk so much that it won't even fit me?

Patrick Page

ed eckl

MADNESS WITH THE ASCANIO SPREAD

as ascertained by ed eckl

I learned the Ascanio Spread about fourth or fifth hand. It meant nothing to me until I came up with some reasons for really learning it — reasons like the patter stories to follow. The routines are nice because they're little quickies which demonstrate a certain skill or flair, which evoke some amazement and get some laughs, and which are always ready, one of which can be done with cards from a borrowed deck.

Both use the same setup, the same moves in the same order, and the same finish. So you can't get mixed up because of varying methods. Therefore, only one explanation need be given, because the patter stories and their relation to the moves are self-explanatory.

Holding the packet of five cards face-up, the following designations will be used. The bottom face-up card will be (A). Next to the bottom will be (B). The face-down card in the middle of the packet will be designated as (X). Second card from the face is (C), and the face card is (D). All cards are face-up except for the middle card at the start of the routines.

down. Now the double card goes on the top, and when the spread is made this time, (D) will turn over. Now that all of the cards have been shown to turn face-down one at a time, place the double card back on top of the packet, and turn the cards all face-down. At the same time, move the bottom card (now face-down) to the top of the face-down packet. Spread the cards showing them all face-down. Replace the double card second from the bottom, and once again spread the cards. You will now have three face-down cards and one face-up card, which is the kicker in the routine. To reset, simply turn the packet face-up, and move (C) back to its original starting place second from the face.

"Alice Blue Gown" is my favourite, but even though the patter is very clear, I often wonder if the onlooker really understands what is happening. The kicker always got a great laugh, though. The more popular is the "Calculator". It is easy to follow, is very logical, has a "failure", and finally ends up the way it should. It comes highly recommended.

NOTE:-

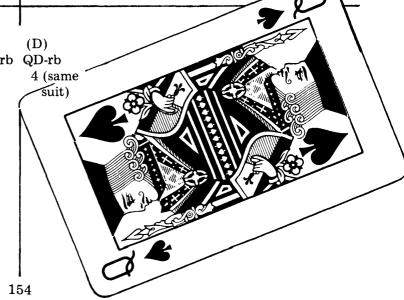

Whenever the spread is made in the following routines, an * will appear.

ROUTINE

"Alice Blue Gown" QS-rb QC-rb JD-bb QH-rb "Calculator" 3 2 10 A

(rb = red backed; bb = blue backed)

Bring out the cards in the face-up position, and spread the cards, showing four face-up cards. Replace the double card second from the bottom, and spread the cards again. Effectively, the first card, (C), has turned face down. Again replace the double card second from the bottom, repeat the spread, and the second card, (B), has turned over. (C) is now face-up again. This time replace the double card on the bottom of the packet, and do the spread. (A) will now be face-

"A XMAS CALCULATOR"

"The girls in my place of employment.... that's modern technicaleze for workhouse.... gave me a calculator for Xmas. Lovely thought. And befitting my own personality, it was a simple calculator.In fact, it would only add.And at that, it would only add four numbers: * one....two....three....and four.Now, you know how a calculator works, don't you?In order to use the numbers, you have to enter them into the works. First we enter the one. *And you can see the one has been entered....it's gone!Next we enter the two. *Then the three. *And finally the four. *Now, to get the final answer, we merely turn the calculator over and look at the display board. *Oops!I think I inadvertently pushed the clear button. But, fortunately, this calculator has a memory system, and there in the memory, we find the answer *ten.And thanks to those calculating females in my office, I can be a perfect little addersnakes alive!"

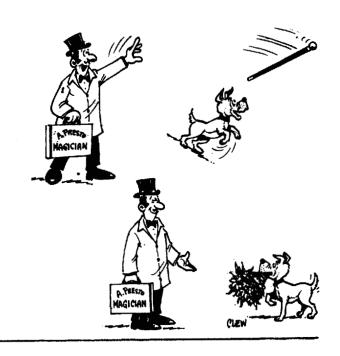

"ALICE BLUE GOWN"

This routine, apart from the others, requires a special card, but it is easy to prepare. Cut out the picture rectangle from a Jack, and roughen the back slightly with sandpaper. Roughen the picture area of a Queen of the same suit, and glue the Jack onto the Queen. When dry, this card is now known as a QUACK....or, better, a Jack in Drag! This card should have a blue back.

"This is my version of the television show. You've seen the show, haven't you?Oh, TO TELL THE TRUTH. Is there another?I do this just a bit differently, because instead of using only three girls, I use four....the four queens. *

Now, as in the show, the four girls get up and have their say. The first little gal, the Queen of Hearts, stands up and says 'My name is Alice Blue Gown,' and she turns around and shows you she is. * The next little gal, the Queen of Clubs, also stands up and says, 'My name is Alice Blue Gown,' and likewise she turns around, and you can see her blue dress. * The third little gal is the one from the farm....you can tell her because she's usually carrying around a spade. She says, 'My name is Alice Blue Gown,' and she turns around to show off her blue dress. * The last little gal is the little debutante, the gal with all the money, the jewels, the diamonds. She says, 'My name is Alice Blue Gown,' and she turns around for you to see her blue dress. *Now the object is for you to guess who is the real Alice Blue Gown. No matter who you'd say, you'd probably be wrong, because you see all the gals were redheads. *The real Alice Blue Gown? Well, we'll never know, but there was a sort of weirdo hiding under the table *and he can best be described as a Jack in Drag!"

Jest Magic

as perpetrated by ed eckl

fred tobinson BEHAVIOURAL BLUFF

EFFECT:-

The performer shuffles the pack and deals five cards face-down onto the table in a single heap. Picking up the cards he looks at the faces and replaces them face-down onto the table. He now writes the name of one of the five cards on a piece of paper informing the spectators what he is doing but not allowing them to see what has been written. The paper is then folded and given to someone to hold. Four of the cards are eliminated by the spectators, and the person holding the paper is requested to open it and read out what is written. The card is turned face-up and the prediction is seen to be correct.

METHOD:-

Five duplicate cards are needed and these are on the top of the pack at the commencement of the trick. Jokers from discarded packs will do nicely.

Begin by shuffling the cards face towards the audience retaining the duplicates in position at the top of the pack. On no account mention that they are all different, they can see that, so why raise any doubts in their minds which may lead them to think otherwise. Deal the five duplicates face-down onto the table into a single pile and put the pack on the table nearby. Pick up the five cards, glance through them and replace them onto the table and spread them out. Write their name on a piece of paper, fold it up to conceal what you have written and give it to a spectator to hold. Obviously care must be taken to prevent anyone seeing what you have written and that the cards on the table are duplicates.

A spectator is now invited to eliminate a card by pointing to it and the pack is dropped onto it. A second card is eliminated in a similar manner and the pack together with the first duplicate is picked and dropped onto this second choice. Continue in the same manner until only one card remains.

You are now holding the pack which has four of the duplicates on the bottom and these are brought to the middle of the pack by doing the two-handed pass, (who said it was obsolete) or, if you are seated at the table allow them to fall from the bottom of the pack on to the lap; you can pick them off the floor later.

The pack is now turned face-up and the first four dealt onto the table with the remark that "Any of these could have been the one face-down on the table." You now request that the paper be opened and read and the tabled card turned face-up.

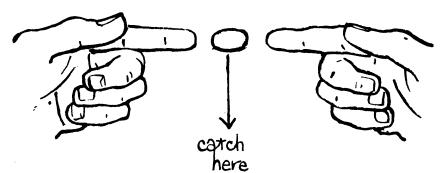

As this is being done there is ample time to gather up the four face-down cards, add them to the pack, put them in the jacket pocket and come out with another pack which is minus the card on the table.

The time is also psychologically right, the pack has served its purpose and is no longer of importance, and the attention of the audience is focused on the paper being unfolded and read and the card being turned face-up.

PRESENTATION:-

As the cards are being shuffled the performer chats about psychologists and that there are among them a number who believe there is no such thing as a free will, and that the decisions made by humans are determined by heredity, environment etc., and if this is so it should be possible to a limited extent to influence them to make certain choices by setting up conditions and making suggestions that would cause them ultimately to come to a decision that was predictable. Continue by saying that there must be some truth in it otherwise the millions of pounds spent on advertising every day is being completely wasted. Invite them to take part in an experiment to decide once and for all whether such a thing is possible and proceed as explained in the method until the point is reached where a spectator is holding the paper and you are about to have the four cards eliminated.

This is the stage where the trick is lifted out of the puzzle stage and made into entertainment by involving the spectators in the action. Invite one of the group to assist you informing him that you will cause him to eliminate one of the cards that will help to make the experiment a success. Commence by asking him what sign of the Zodiac he was born under. whether he is left or right handed or ambidextrous, if he is one of a pair of twins; as you receive answers to these questions alter the positions of cards. Suddenly ask him to place one hand on any of the five cards. This card is eliminated in a similar manner using different people and using different questions which you can easily invent. How this is played is dependent on your own particular style or inclination. If you like having fun the spectator involvement gives plenty of scope in the questions you ask or even the actions you request them to perform, such as describing a spiral staircase with the left index finger before bringing it down on one of the cards. If the idea appeals to you it would be best to invent your own crazy business. Alternatively, it is possible to adopt a more serious manner and play it for real. If you do, make it your only item. To include it in a routine of card tricks it will be taken as just another card trick. Do with it what you will.

ODD OPTIC

(an Icebreaker)

To take ones harp to a party and not be asked to play does not only apply to harpists. At least it is hardly possible to get a harp into a room without anyone seeing it, but a close-up magician can have a pocket full of material without the company being aware of it. This is where the 'Icebreaker' is useful to get started, and once away you can follow with one or two of your favourite effects without having to openly ask if they would like to see a trick, always a dodgy business as someone might say "No", particularly if they have on a previous occasion been trapped into having to watch a seemingly non-stop succession of tricks completely lacking in entertainment value and from which they have been unable to escape. Even if you are not that type of performer an 'Icebreaker' should be used with discretion and only when you feel that the mood of the company is such that your efforts would be appreciated.

Place the tips of the index fingers together and bring them to within a couple of inches of the bridge of the nose and gradually move them apart. If at the same time the eyes are focused at some object beyond them a small sausage shaped object will appear between them. This is well known, but an added bit of fun can be obtained by getting someone to try it and when they say they can see the 'sausage' make a grab at it and produce an imitation sausage or a piece of plasticine as near skin colour as possible and shaped similar to the shape they see.

Instead of the index fingers this variation uses a couple of cork tipped cigarettes. The spectator brings these up to the same position as the fingers, with the cork tips of the cigarette touching. The cigarettes are separated as were the fingers, and instead of the 'sausage' a cork tip will appear. You make a grab and take this tip from between the cigarettes, of course it is one you had clipped between the first and second fingers. — End of 'Icebreaker'.

Having broken the ice you now go into the old three pellet routine wherein you have three pellets of paper in the left hand and one is removed and placed into the pocket only to return to the left hand, only in this case the cork tips are used, the one produced and two which you break off the cigarettes. The fourth one required has been concealed in the left hand from the start. You are now away and the question remains when to stop. The late Nate Liepsig ceased immediately he noticed one of the ladies was not paying attention and is probably an idea most of us could adopt with advantage.

p. duffie

A FANSEE BUIND SHUFFLE

This shuffle, although rather flourishy, results in a Zarrow shuffle in the hands.

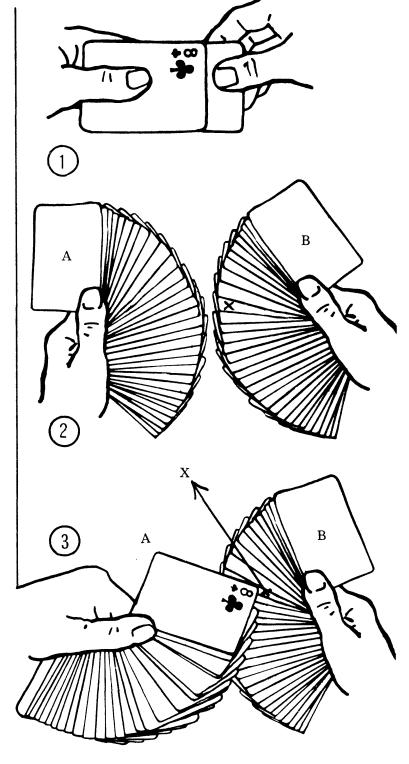

METHOD:-

Hold the pack face-down from above with the right hand in position for the Hindu shuffle. The face of the pack should be tilted towards you. The left hand approaches as per the Hindu shuffle and pulls out a block of about 26 cards from the centre of the pack, but as you pull this block out glimpse and remember the card which lies immediately above it. This glimpse can be made owing to the tilt of the pack. The block drops into dealing position in the left hand. The right hand section is now placed facedown onto the left hand section and a little finger break kept between the two half packs. Now with the right hand push the upper half, those above the break, forward for about one inch, then turn the left hand completely over so that it is palm down. Now adjust the fingers to the position shown in Figure One then separate the hands and make a one hand fan in each (Figure Two). Spot your key card which should be near the centre of the right hand Fan - B. The key card is marked 'X' in Figure Two. Fan A is now inserted into (Figure Three). As this is being done, twist the cards around a bit so that the pack ends up in an unsquared mess! Neatness would spoil it at this point. All that's left to do now is to square up the pack, with slight exaggeration.

NOTE:-

For a Red/Black shuffle no key card is needed. Do the shuffle as described without a key. Fan A is then simply inserted into Fan B at the colour division. Keep the faces towards you.

Roy Walton suggested that the centre pull-out could be eliminated in the same way as in the Zarrow shuffle, by shuffling twice. This will be apparent to those who know the Zarrow shuffle.

The Magic Circle winter programme began on Monday evening, 1st September, with members being entertained by about a dozen performers who kept up a non-stop performance of close-up magic at five tables. It was arranged by PABULAR and proved to be a popular event and drew a larger than usual crowd. Our thanks to those who performed and provided such a high standard of magic. The only criticism we heard was that there were too many card tricks, which probably came from those whose preference is for other types of magic.

On this occasion those taking part were told to perform whatever tricks they wished and it can only be assumed there is a greater interest in card magic generally, or that a larger variety of effects are possible with cards than other objects. It may well be that the time is fast approaching when those who watch close-up magic will lose a certain amount of interest unless the proportion of card tricks is reduced in similar future events. The indications are that performers with a non-card act will be in greater demand at conventions and other events than those who have an act using cards only. It may also be that such an act will have an edge in competitions.

Speaking of these, news comes that the I.B.M. (British Ring) Competition will not take place because they have only one entrant, and that BOB OSTIN will be filling the gap with a lecture. It was Bob's 'Vampire', a method for a 'living and dead test', that created more comment and correspondence than any other article that appeared in Vol. 1. Only recently that veteran inventor of many practical effects, GEORGE BLAKE, reminded us that he was willing to purchase reprints of the 'coffins' accompanying this trick. Please let us know if you are likewise interested.

Prepare to meet thy BOON!

The wonderful thumbwriter that HAS to be the best — still the greatest little gimmick in the world — 20 years continuous sales can't be wrong! Simple, invisible. NOT a nailwriter. £1.00 or US $2.50 inc. Air Mail. Eric Mason, 39 Dennis Park Crescent, London SW20 8QH, England.

KAN'T TEAR PAPER (2"x3") 100 Blanks Plus 12 SEX GAG CARDS £2.00 ($5.00) 'TOM' FITZGERALD, 2814 Washington St., Wilmington, Dela. 19802 U.S.A.

Professional magician, magical salesman, author, inventor, producer of magical acts, mug collector and regular contributor to our favourite magical magazine PATRICK PAGE has written a play. It will open at the MERCURY THEATRE on 9th October. Avid theatre goer JAY MARSHALL is in town again and must have heard about it. Perhaps it is time to suggest to Jay that our favourite close-up magic book 'THE MAGIC OF MATT SCHULIEN' is due for a reprint. This book is essential reading for anyone aspiring to entertain non magicians, containing as it does enough material to last one a lifetime plus advice on the right approach to this kind of work and invaluable tips on misdirection. It is eye to eye contact with the audience that is necessary when working close-up if the misdirection is to be effective - and which also establishes a rapport with the spectators which can be maintained throughout the trick.

This continuous visual communication with the audience is almost impossible if the performer's mind is occupied with complicated moves which require that his eyes be focussed on the objects he is using, making them more important than the people he is supposed to be entertaining. That both he and the audience were having fun was the aim of MATT SCHULIEN when performing magic for his patrons.

RANDI made another flying visit to make a TV film which will be seen sometime in the middle of October. He disappeared again before we had a chance to get the details, but understand it is an exposure of URI GELLER who has now extended his activities beyond the bending of spoons and keys. Our attitude towards these claims of para-normal powers remains unchanged. Anything goes providing no-one gets hurt.

Recently we spent some pleasant evenings with BEN 'Side Shuffle' MARTIN who has been shuffling the side-walks of London. Ben's interest in magic is entirely professional and it must never be forgotten that it is the professionals who set the standards for us to whom magic is a hobby. He told of an instance when he overheard the comments of some magicians as they were leaving a lecture given by one of the world's top magicians. They were complaining that only a few tricks had been explained, completely missing the really important part of the lecture. Part of the lecture in question can be found on pages 82 and 83; Vol. 1 of this magazine.

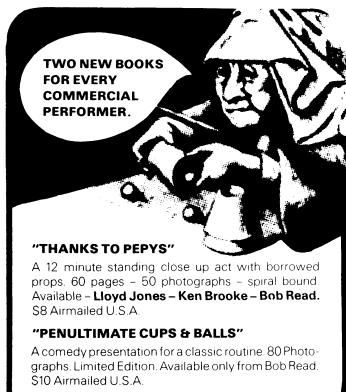

THE INTERNATIONAL MAGAZINE

Now in its 3rd year.

MAKE SURE EACH ISSUE IS SENT TO YOU REGULARLY, SEND TODAY ONLY £2.00 ($ 7.00) FOR ONE YEAR (SIX) ISSUES SENT POST FREE TO ANYWHERE IN THE WORLD.

32 glossy pages in each issue.

THE INTERNATIONAL MAGIC STUDIO, (RON MACMILLAN) 89 CLERKENWELL ROAD, HOLBORN, LONDON, E.C.1.

SAVE $2 if mailed together. SEND $16 ONLY TO Bob Read, 32 Regal Way, Kenton, Middlesex, England

Visible levitation at its very best!

We think it true to state that the professional from whom we purchased this Great magic from

We think it true to state that the professional from whom we purchased th truly wonderful effect knows more about practical levitation than any other performer alive today. Finn Jon makes a living by combining levitation, showmanship and good music. His 'Silver Stick' won two major awards at convention. manship and good music. His 'Silver Stick' won two major awards at conventions in Scandinavia. THE SILVER STICK A 14" stick of silver rises from a box. Floats in mid-air - Remains suspended whilst performer passes a hoop back and forth and all around it - Finally, it floats back into the box! Impossible to describe all the combinations possible. Finn Jon describes what to do, when, and how to do it. 28 line drawings posed by Finn during an actual performance will, together with the apparatus, provide hours of magical delight both in practice and performance. THE SILVER STICK Has given me the kind of pleasure that make magic what it is. Listening to records one evening, I got carried away with the James Last arrangement of Beethoven's 'Moonlight Sonata'. From that moment on the combination of a beautiful melody and a fine trick have given pleasure to hundreds. Reporting in Abra 1498, Donald Bevan had this to say -"It was at Ken Brooke's stand that I could not get near so I stood back and watched Ken's masterly dem of Finn Jon's 'Silver Stick' O.K., so you know how it's done, but from where I stood it looked a miracle!" Genuine interest and a little handling practice are all you require. No sleight of hand required. Supplied boxed with fine instruction plus 28 line drawings of Finn in action. No hoop is supplied as any can be used. Price: Subject to change without notice ENGLAND £5.25 - EUROPE £5.75 - U.S.A. (Air) $15.00 KEN BROOKE'S MAGIC PLACE 145 WARDOUR STREET LONDON. W.1. ENGLAND

Pabular is published after the second week in every month and is printed by Instance Printers, Paddock Wood, Kent, England. Editor Nick Bolton, Technical Editor Fred Robinson, Art Editor Eric Mason. Subscriptions may be obtained direct from the publishers, Pabular, PO Box 180, London SE12 8JJ, England or through many magic dealers. Price 50 pence per copy (US $1.25) surface post included. Air Mail extra depending on country and subject to UK rates. Editorial or content copy should be sent to Fred Robinson, 1 Crescent Court, 24 Crescent Road, New Barnet, Herts, England. Advertising rates sent on request - smalls 3 pence per word (US 10 cents). Dealer enquiries welcomed. Reproduction of old prints and historical magical items by kind permission of Tony Faro.

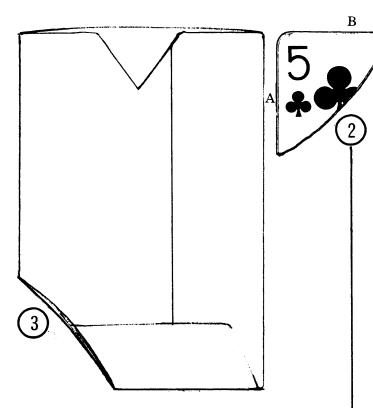

During 1959 Frank Garcia marketed a routine which made use of an old fake in a new way. I was intrigued by Garcia's use of the fake plus a special envelope and I developed a number of routines using the Garcia envelope idea. For the record these routines are dated in my notebook May 1959.

To try out these routines you will have to make up the corner fake and prepare an envelope.

Take a playing card and cut off one index corner to the shape shown by the dotted lines in Fig 1.

Place the cut off corner over the other index and with a pencil trace the curved edge. Now cut off this second index but cut INSIDE the pencil line, and use this corner as the back of the fake.

jack avis

THE WISHING ENVELOPE by Jack Avis

With sellotape join the two corners together from the inside to form a little pocket which is closed at sides A and B and open at the curved edge, see Fig 2.

The envelope should be of the end opening type and just large enough to hold the type of playing cards you will be using. To prepare the envelope, cut off the flap and then cut a small "V" out of one of the upper edges. Next place the corner fake in line with the lower left corner of the envelope and trace the curved edge with a pencil. Now cut away this corner but be sure to cut about a sixteenth inside the pencil line. If you don't cut under the line the fake will fall out of the hole. A few trials will show you what is required for trouble-free working. Fig 3 will give you an idea of what the envelope will look like. Before describing a few routines using this outfit perhaps an explanation of the basic move with the fake and envelope will help.

The fake corner which we will assume is the Five of Clubs, is placed face down into the envelope in the position shown by the arrows in fig 4.

A playing card is taken and without showing its face slide it into the envelope making sure of course that the fake is loaded onto the lower left corner.

Push the card down to the bottom of the envelope and the back of the fake will be seen through the cut-out corner.

If the envelope is turned over the spectators will accept the card revealed as the card just inserted into the envelope.

To bring about the change, turn the envelope so that the card is again back up and then push the exposed corner back into the envelope causing the card to emerge from the open end. With the left fingers and thumb grip the fake through the envelope while the right hand removes the protruding card.

Turn the card face up to reveal the change. Of course, there would be little value in changing a card as described but, with the presentations to be detailed I think you will more than hold the interest of that unsuspecting group of laymen you have your eyes on.

The Wishing Envelope

As you are now clear on the handling of the fake and envelope I will detail the actions required for three routines.

Have the envelope with fake loaded on your table.

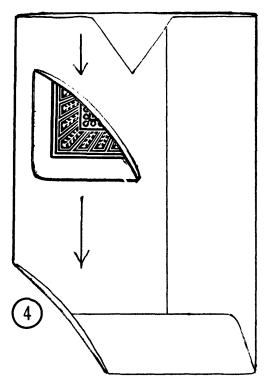

Take your deck of cards and have two cards selected. One selection is a free choice, but the other card is forced and it must match your fake. In our routines we will assume the Five of Clubs. Both cards are returned to the deck and the free choice is controlled to the top of the deck.

Retain the deck in your left hand as you pick up the envelope with your right hand and say "This represents my Wishing Well". Replace the envelope onto the table.

Say "At this moment I wish to find out which two cards have been chosen, so I take any card, this one on top of the deck will do."

Double lift the two top cards, show and replace on top of the deck. Enquire if the card shown is one of the selected cards, it is not. Place the deck onto the table and with the right hand pick off the top card. With the left hand pick up the envelope, and then insert the card pushing it with the fake down to the bottom.

Say "To have my wish come true I have only to offer the Wishing Well a piece of silver." Hold the envelope in your right hand and with your left hand remove a large silver coin from your pocket. Tap the silver coin on the exposed corner of the card, and then ask the spectator who took the force card to name his card, he says "The Five of Clubs." Turn the envelope over and reveal the exposed corner. You appear to have changed a card into the first selection. Turn the envelope face down again and say "This time I wish this Five of Clubs to change into the second selection." Tap the exposed corner once again with the silver coin but, this time you steal away beneath the coin the corner fake. Ask for the name of the second selection, turn the envelope over to reveal the change. Put the coin into your pocket, pull the card out of the envelope and place both card and envelope onto the table. Both items are clean and one of your spectators will most likely pick up either the card or the envelope to examine them.

The Jokers Wild

The set-up for this routine is the same as for "The Wishing Envelope" but also on the table with the envelope you must place a pair of nail scissors.

Remove from the deck the JOKER and the Five of Clubs. Display these two cards and make sure the spectators are aware of the cards you are using. Turn the two cards face down and mix them up a little so that the spectators lose track of which card is which. You, however, must keep track of the JOKER. Place the two cards face down onto your close-up pad.

Ask a spectator to point to one of the two cards. If the JOKER is indicated pick it up, glance at its face and say "Oh, I was hoping you would select the JOKER, but never mind I'll use the Five of Clubs as it's your choice."

If the Five of Clubs is chosen, push it to one side, pick up the JOKER and use the above patter line.

Insert the card you are holding into the envelope and then turn the envelope face up so that the Five of Clubs shows at the corner. Turn the envelope face down again, pick up the scissors and cut the envelope into quarters.

Arrange the four sections on your working surface with all inside edges touching. Say "A simple wave of the hand and the card and envelope become restored."

Look at the spectators and at the same time with your left hand pick up the lower left hand section. Look down at the quarter section you are holding and appear to be dismayed to find the restoration has not happened. Bring the left fingers up to conceal the index corner and with the right fingers remove the card from inside the envelope and place it face down onto the close-up pad.

Be careful not to expose the face of any section you place down. With the right hand pick up the lower right section, place it on top of the envelope section held in the left hand, the fake is now concealed. Remove the second section of card and place it with the first section on the pad.

Repeat these actions with the other two sections, and then dispose of the envelope.

At this point the spectators believe you have cut the Five of Clubs into quarters and failed to restore it.

Make some comment about the damaged Five of Clubs spoiling your deck of cards, and that you knew you should have used the JOKER.

Pick up the complete card which the spectators believe to be the JOKER, wave it over the quarter sections and then snap the whole card face up. The spectators should be surprised to see the Five of Clubs spring into view. Pause, and then flip the four quarters face up revealing the JOKER.

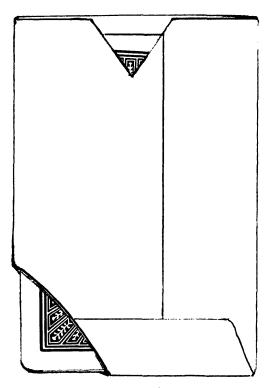

Transposed Marlo Reverse

For this routine set the fake and envelope as for the first two effects but when placing the envelope onto the table turn it face up so that the fake is face up and in the right side of the envelope. You also need to have the Five of Clubs on top of the deck.

Take the deck and have a card selected and returned. Control the card to the top of the deck leaving the Five of Clubs second from the top.

Triple lift to show selected card is not on top of the deck. Replace the card/s and explain you will cause the chosen card to move through the deck and become the top card.

Riffle the side of the deck and then double lift and display the Five of Clubs saying "Here we are, the chosen card, the Five of Clubs."

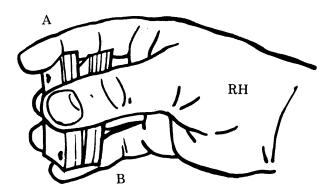

Without pause to prevent the spectator from telling you you have the wrong card, carry on with your patter as you replace the card/s on top of the deck and place the deck onto your pad. Pick up the envelope with your left hand and take off the top card of the deck with your right hand. Your patter continues "Now here is a little oddity, I'll use your Five of Clubs to demonstrate."

Insert the card you are holding into the envelope and fake but do not push the card all the way into the envelope, pause as you ask the spectator to note his card is face down, but as it's pushed into the envelope it turns face up. Suit the action to the words and the Five of Clubs will appear in the cut out of the envelope. After a pause pull the card out of the envelope and it will appear to have reversed again as it comes into view.

Look at the spectator and say "That was an oddity wasn't it?" At this point you will be told you have got the wrong card. Look up at the spectator and say "Oh well, we all make mistakes, what was your card?" The spectator tells you the name of his selection, repeat the name of his card, pause, and say "You mean this one?" snapping the card face up.

To avoid starting with the envelope already cut to shape, if you mark off the corner to be cut out and then load in the fake you can pick up the envelope when you are ready to do one of the routines and cut it to shape. This gives the impression that the envelope is empty and quite ordinary.

keith bennett

An overhand false shuffle retaining the whole pack in the same order

This shuffle creates an optical illusion of a build-up of cards by running progressively larger blocks of cards into the left hand and is best done slowly but at a steady rhythm without appearing to pay much attention to the cards.

Hold the pack in the right hand between the thumb and first finger in the position shown by packet A in the diagram. The long edge of the pack should be horizontal. Run about five or six cards into the left hand as one block as though executing the normal overhand shuffle. Bring the pack over the front of the cards in the left hand and clip the block of cards between the base of the right second finger and the right thumb while at the same time with the left thumb running a slightly larger block off the top of the pack into the left hand. As the right hand is now raised it appears that a second block has been run onto those already in the left hand. In reality all that remains there is the new block of cards and those originally there are now held in the left hand (packet B).

Now repeat this sequence of actions bringing the right hand over the new block of cards in the left hand and clipping the block underneath packet B. Carry them away in the right hand and at the same time run a further block into the left hand: this block should be slightly larger than the previous block. The shuffle continues by moving the block in the left hand to underneath packet B in the right hand and by transferring progressively larger blocks of cards from the top of the pack (A) into the left hand and from there to underneath packet B. Carry on until the Pack (A) is exhausted; then simply drop packet B (by now nearly the whole pack) on top of the cards in the left hand.

The pack is now back in its original order.

Can it be described as rough justice to have almost everything in the act go wrong when the most important item in the act has been lifted from another performer's routine? It happened in the IBM Shield Competition at Southport. Does this happen with other types of acts? We all know that since time immemorial performers of all types have lifted gags, little bits of business, snippets of routines from other performer's acts but I have never been able to understand the mentality of a person who will lift the feature item from another person's act. When a performer becomes so established that everyone associates one single item with him, and him alone, how is it that he can be praised by other magicians when he does a good job with it? Maybe some day I'll understand.

The Page boy speaks....

I don't often do kids shows, and when I do it is usually around the Christmas period. The reason for this is that I was put off performing for children some years ago when I was at a childrens' party at a private house, for perhaps a dozen or so children. These days I'll perform gladly for 50, 100 or perhaps 1,000 kids at a factory Christmas Party etc. but no longer small house parties if I can help it. However, recently I was pressed into doing one by an agent who gives me enough work to allow him to lean on me very hard to do a job, and I did this one. And in case you are wondering why I bring this up its X is a question of improvisation. I was sitting on a chair surrounded by perhaps a dozen children having an average age of perhaps 3 or 4 and this just isn't my meat. At the climax to the egg-bag routine I reached into the bag and produced the egg and as I did this one child said "Can you bring anything else out of the bag?" Well as I had placed the egg into my pocket I had felt my pocket watch — so as I came straight out with this, reached into the bag and produced it. Afterwards I passed the watch around for a few minutes and they listened to it ticking. Perhaps that is not a good example of improvisation — but it did kill a few badly needed minutes for me and I know how many because the watch was staring me in the face.

Let me tell you of another situation involving the late Albert Le Bas the Irish wizard who was a favourite magician for me and many others. He was travelling in a train in a carriage holding perhaps 6 or 8 people, one of whom was a child. In the course of the journey to help keep her occupied Albert showed her one or two simple magic effects. At one stage the child suddenly piped up "If you're a magician can you make the train go backwards?"

OK, so you are magicians, how would you improvise your way out of that one? Because, believe it or not Albert Le Bas made that train travel in the opposite direction and it took him no more than 30 seconds to do it. Read that again, digest it, then try and figure out, if you can, how he made that train go backwards on the command of a child.

Have you figured it out? You are probably sitting there with baited breath saying how the heck did he do it? OK, answer coming up now. After explaining to the child that to do such a magnificent magic trick he would have to cast a spell, he said he needed her help and asked for her assistance in this. The child agreed, so Albert blind-folded her with his handkerchief and had her turn round four or five times. And during all of this he had everyone in the carriage change their seats and move their suitcases from one side to another — and when that child opened her eyes and looked out of that window that train was going in the opposite direction.

This story was told to me by one of Albert's friends and it is a great pity that it wasn't printed when he was still alive so that we could have shown our appreciation to him verbally.

You may have noticed a tiny mention in the last issue of the fact that I had written a play. Just for the record it is called One Way Ticket to Paradise and it is being performed at the Mercury Theatre Notting Hill Gate, London until November 1st. My reason for mentioning it is that so far three critiques have appeared in print, two of which like it, and one not. It's an odd feeling to read that someone doesn't like your brain-child very much when you have sweated blood and tears to get it as right as you possibly could. It's a short play and lasts only 35 minutes.

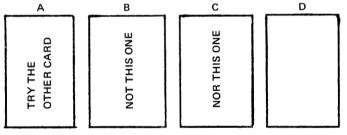

I think it's good, and my friends think so. But maybe I'm not so sure after reading the critique. If you saw it drop me a line and tell me what you thought!

James Randi the Gabby Hayes of the Magic World has been visiting our shores again recently. If he isn't careful he will soon be getting a reputation like that of Jay Marshall. We seem to have seen more of them in recent times than the rest of the American Magical population put together. My reason for mentioning Randi is that he recently appeared on British Television and did one hell of a job in which he bent keys, spoons etc. etc. in the Geller fashion. All, apparently, for real. A phone-in was arranged similar to that used for Geller, and during the show lots of people rang in to say that their clocks and watches had stopped or started etc — and then at the end of the programme Randi blew the gaff and told everyone that everything he had done had been faked. He is due to appear again on our T.V. very shortly, too late for this month's column, but we will certainly mention this next time round.

phil wye BLANK FACES

I had trouble finding a title for it. The audience reaction, or the props used; the title sums it up. This is an off-beat card novelty, using four blank cards.

The effect is that after a card has been selected (but not seen) by an obliging spectator, the magician shows four cards, blank on either side (apparently), and states that he will produce a message naming the chosen card on one of the cards. In all, three messages are produced, but they do not name the chosen card. A double blank card remains. The chosen card is then revealed as a blank card.

THE FOUR CARDS USED

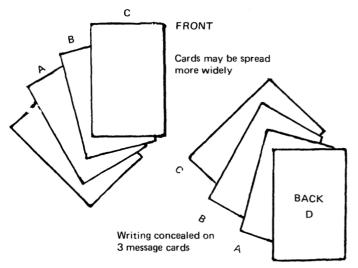

DOUBLE BLANK

You will require four cards, blank on both sides. Print on three cards, using a marker pen or Letraset, the messages: "TRY THE OTHER CARD" (A) "NOT THIS ONE" (B) and "NOR THIS ONE" (C). The messages should be printed slantwise or vertically, covering middle section of cards. The other card is left in its pristine state (D). Also have a blank face card at bottom of pack — the back need not match, as it is not seen. False shuffle, have pack cut, and put lower half on top (crossing the cut). Leave cards as they are.

The cards are arranged in A, B, C order from top, message sides towards you. Double blank (D) at face, covering writing on second card. Arrange fan so that all writing is concealed. Briefly flash fan both sides, showing as four cards, blank on both sides. Reverse cards, place in left hand. Hindu shuffle with double blank at bottom, run three cards singly, flashing bottom card each time, and show last card on both sides. Replace this card on top. Cards now lie from top in order D, A, B, C, message sides downwards.

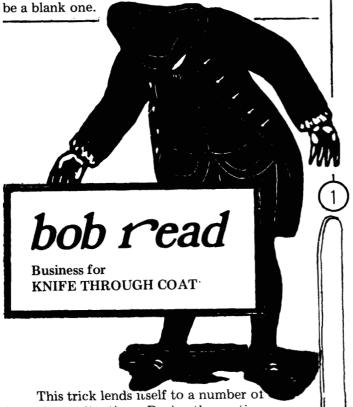

Explain that a message will appear on one card, which will name the card chosen. Hold cards in left hand, double lift top two cards with right hand. Rub on left thumb or sleeve, turn over both cards, lift off top card revealing message A. Place on table, message upwards. Repeat to disclose message B. Take the top card of the two remaining in the right hand, last (message card) remains face down in left hand. You now act as a little confused; use paddle sleight with card in left hand, meanwhile turning right hand card normally. Audience see last two cards apparently blank on both sides. At this stage, I generally scratch nose or head with right hand card. In bringing the card down from this position, you then execute a sort of bottom change without the pack, which exchanges the relative positions of the two cards. This is covered by the patter, which is to the effect that you can't understand why it's not this one or that one (make change in pointing with left hand to two cards on table). It's certainly not this one (turn over card in left hand, normally this time). Aah, I forgot to rub this one. Rub card now in right hand, and disclose last message (C). This should make them sit up; a moment previously they saw card in right hand obviously blank on both sides. Retain card in left hand. "Well that only leaves me with this one. Perhaps we should see what card you chose." Lift top half of pack disclosing blank card at face. Comment - "Ah, well, that explains it."

I've found that the best presentation of this effect is on the lines that you can't understand what is going on. (we hope the audience will). This angle will adequately cover the various simple sleights employed. I feel that done in the manner indicated, more punch is given to the climax, when everything comes all right at the end.

When devising this effect, my first idea was to reproduce a facsimile of the chosen card on the other side of the blank. I am indebted to Hu Caddy, who suggested that the chosen card

This trick lends uself to a number of humourous situations. During the routine described in "Thanks to Pepys" it is possible to A - steal your assistants wallet, B - steal his wristwatch, C - button your coat to his.

All this is achieved whilst he holds his coat back-out to the audience.

IMPROMPTU COIN DROPPER

Needing a coin dropper urgently I came up with this idea using an ice lolly stick (flat type), matchbox case, two elastic bands, and a couple of paper clips, and a safety pin.

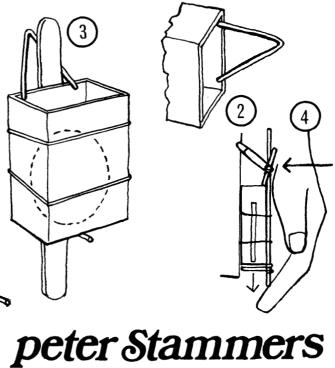

First of all straighten one paper clip and pierce it through the stick, about an inch from one end. Make sure the piece protruding is slightly more than the thickness of the matchbox case and then twist the remainder of the clip around the stick (see Fig 1).

The second paper clip is also straightened but then it is bent into a 'V' shape and fixed onto the matchbox case as Fig 2 so that it can move up and down as it will be this that secures the holder to the jacket.

Next take the matchbox base and lay it on the stick so that one end lays against the protruding paper clip and put the elastic bands around them to secure them (see Fig 3).

To fix, engage the safety pin in the 'V' shape and your jacket so that the bottom edge of the stick is in line with bottom edge of your jacket. To load, just drop the coin, (if one wants to produce more than one tie them with cotton) into the top of the matchbox.

To operate is simple. With the palm of the hand press the top of the stick which makes the bottom of the stick pivot and allows the coin to drop and be caught by the curled finger. The whole operation being supported by your leg (see Fig 4). This type of hold could also be fixed to the side of a table and be ideal for close-up performers

167

fred tobinson The ASCANIO SPREAD

It was fortunate that I should first see this useful move performed by its originator, thus enabling me to have the pleasure most of us enjoy when we are unable to explain just how an effect was obtained. This pleasure was somewhat reduced when Ascanio himself showed me the mechanics of the sleight, because I personally enjoy being deceived, and when that occurs I am content to remain in ignorance, or perhaps more truthfully, be allowed to solve it for myself.

Variations of this sleight have appeared, and most, if not all are inferior to the original, and this applies particularly to the ones in which the packet is held by the adjacent corners of the long side. Using this hold makes the easy flowing, casual action achieved by the original method impossible.

The object of the move is to show, in a casual manner, five cards as four concealing the middle one as the cards are spread between the hands face up. As the spread is closed the hidden card can be moved into any position other than the top or face of the packet.

To follow the explanation easily arrange the Ace, two, three and four of Spades in that order with the four at the face of the packet. Put any other card in the middle of four cards i.e. between the two and the three, face down. This face down card will not show if the instructions are being followed.

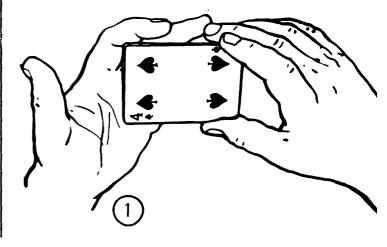

Hold the packet of five cards face between the thumb and second finger of the right hand. The fingers of the left hand go under the cards, the tip of the third finger touching the back of the bottom card, the Ace of Spades, near the corner held by the right second finger (1). The right hand draws back the packet exposing about half the face of the Ace of Spades which has been held back by pressure of the left third finger tip (2).

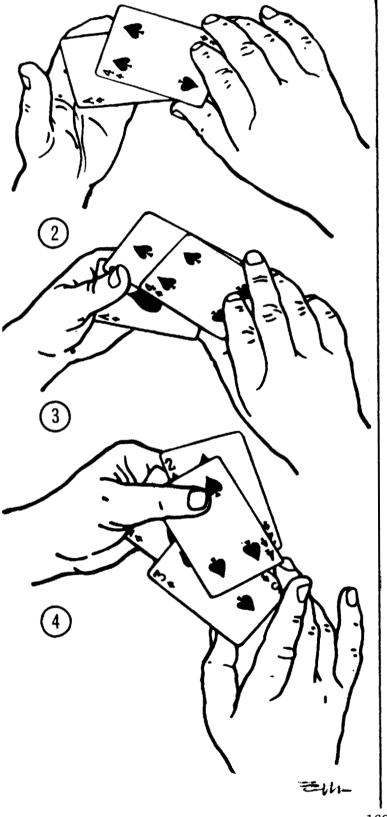

At this point the end of the Ace is in the crotch of the left thumb where it is lightly held. The right hand pulls the packet inwards and the tip of the left second finger holds back the Two as the right hand again draws the packet away. The position is now as in (3).

The right hand again moves inwards and this time the left thumb is brought down onto the face card, the Four. The right pulls back with the Three and face down card held as one card — the four being kept back roughly in line with the Ace and Two by the light pressure of the left thumb (4).

The left thumb on the face of the Four now pulls down reversing the spread and simultaneously the right second finger tip bends inwards causing the Three with the face up card beneath to move as one card to the opposite side of the spread. From this position the unseen face up card can be brought to any position in the packet other than to the top or face as the packet is squared up.

The move takes but a second or so to do and should 'flow'. The aim should be to give the appearance that the cards are spread haphazardly, in a casual unconcerned manner, and practice should be directed towards this end. If the action is stiff or appears contrived the Spectator's suspicion will be aroused and he will guess that something is taking place. In the hands of the originator no suspicion enters the minds of the onlookers. All that they are aware of is, that the performer is merely spreading the four cards for them to see the faces. This is as it should be, anything more and the move is useless.

PHILLIPPE

In November of 1954, I published a trick in Genii (Vol.19 No.3) in which four cards were located by key cards present in each selection packet. The trick was called 'Mental Four'. Several variations of the basic principle have appeared in the intervening years and the following is a recent one of my own, in which no key cards are used at all.

EFFECT:-

Four cards are selected by four spectators and then discovered by the performer with the assistance of four very famous conjurers. The trick is really completely self-working, but if you can carry out a simple false shuffle and cut, the effect will be considerably enhanced.

METHOD AND PRESENTATION OUTLINE:-

Explain that you would like to show a card trick in which four very famous conjurers will help bring it to a successful conclusion.

You will need four spectators to assist you, and you should think of them as spectators one, two, three and four.

Give each of the assisting spectators th name of a famous magician as follows:-

> Spectator No. 1 - MASKELYNE $Spectator\ No.2-BLACKSTONE$ Spectator No.3 - HOUDINI

Spectator No.4 — CHUNG LING SOO

Ask them to remember the names as you will have a roll call later. Some light humour can be obtained as you allocate the names i.e. Houdini — "He was famous for getting out of tricky situations, I think he would like you." Chung Ling Soo - "I think you look a little like him." Maskelyne-"He invented the pay as you enter toilet you know, perhaps you are familiar with his work." Blackstone — "He was a famous American magician, please try and act like an American."

Hand each of the spectators four cards from the pack and place the remainder of the pack aside. Ask each of the spectators to mix their group of cards and then to look through them, and commit one card to memory (i.e. each spectator remembers one card from the four he holds). Let them mix the cards again after making their choice.

Take back the four groups of cards in 1, 2, 3, 4 order, and assemble them face down in the left hand, spectator one's cards being the face group, and spectator four's the top.

Give the sixteen card packet a false shuffle and cut, so that they are left in exactly the same order. Deal out the cards into four face down hands on the table, dealing in conventional fashion as if playing cards. Turn each hand face up and spread them out a little so that the names of the cards can be seen.

Ask spectator one to hand you the group that contains his noted card. Turn it face down and ask him the name of his assisting magician. Spell out Maskelyne transferring cards for each letter from top to face of the packet as you do so. When you reach the last letter, hold the card face down for a moment and ask him to name his noted card. Reveal that it is correct, replace it face down on TOP of the packet and replace the packet in a slight face up spread on the table.

Ask spectator four to give you the group that has his selection in. Hold it face down in the left hand and spell out his assisting magician's name which is Chung Ling Soo. You will end on his noted card. Replace the card on the FACE of the group and return them to the table in a slight face up spread.

Ask spectator two to hand you his group. Spell out his name which is Blackstone and you will end on his card. After showing the card in the right hand, discard it onto the table. Show the remaining three cards to spectator three and say, "Does your card happen to be amongst these." If he says 'yes', spell out his assisting conjurer, Houdini, and you will end on his noted card. If he says 'no', just discard the three cards with the one already discarded, and ask him to hand you the group that DOES contain his card. Spell out Houdini, and you will end on his card.

Conclude by saying "You can see why they are famous, all four cards have been found. I wonder if I will ever be able to do a card trick that will make me famous."

The annual convention of the IBM British Ring held in Southport this year had little to offer those whose interest is confined to close up magic.

There were no lack of entrants for the Shield competition for which enthusiastic members spare neither time or effort to produce their acts, and as someone remarked "One could amost tell the size of their front rooms by the way they moved about the stage". Other commitments prevented us from seeing all the acts, but of those we did see it was difficult to imagine where they could be performed other than at magical functions. If these members are prepared to go to the amount of trouble and expense necessary to produce an act which they may only be able to perform a few times it is difficult to understand why the close up competition attracted only one entrant and had to be cancelled. The loss of this particular event meant that we were to have the pleasure of a lecture demonstration by BOB OSTIN who has mastered the difficult problem of showing and explaining the workings of small magic from a stage to a large audience, and doing so in such pleasant easy going manner that it was probably more enjoyable to watch than competition magic.

The real highlight was the unscheduled close-up show which took place in the basement of the headquarters hotel commencing about 12.30am on the Sunday morning and arranged by DON LEES, who seemingly had no trouble in getting performers, proving there is, as we have always suspected, a number of members ready and willing to perform our type of magic given the opportunity. No doubt this will become a regular feature at future conventions. TREVOR LEWIS set the ball rolling finding any ace called for at a selected number, and scaling cards. DAVE CARRE finding coins under cards and assembling them all under one card, and continuing with the Roll Over Aces performing it as if it was a self worker. He concluded with a one cup and ball routine. PETER 'wild card' KANE with several original card effects which we were too busy trying to work out how they were done to take notes, so we put our book away. ROVI followed with mental card effects, one of which must have used a stooge, if not, it was a near miracle and we apologise. WALT LEES coaxed a couple of ladies to help, and performed several effects which included a dice routine and his own method of the 'Cannibal Cards'. Even those who were unable to see, and there were many, could follow the effects being performed because this performer's clarity of diction and descriptive patter made this possible — a valuable asset under the conditions. The act that followed completely changed the atmosphere from what had been a comparatively sane one into one in which comedy predominated.

It was BOB READ with items from his book, the bottle production, Fatima, cups and balls, and maybe one other, plus gags and bits of business. For many this was the hit of the convention and we most certainly have never seen him in better form and to us was a clear indication that even greater success will come his way if he decides to slant his act still further to producing laughs, even if it means sacrificing some of the magic. This is of course a personal opinion and not a criticism of the act which would have received a standing ovation were not most of the audience already in that position. The unenviable task of following this act fell to ALEX ELMSLEY who standing on a chair performed his 'Dazzle' card effect impeccably and no doubt increased the number of potential subscribers to his forthcoming book.

TOPPER MARTIN then struck a match on the largest ping-pong ball we have yet seen, FLIP HALEMA'S pate, and comedy was again under way, but we were completely unprepared for what was to follow when PHILIPE FIAHLO was introduced and announced that he was to give a lecture a la SLYDINI. We will not attempt to describe what followed but merely content ourselves with mention that Trevor Lewis finished up limping after acting as a volunteer assistant, a card table had a hole smashed through the top, and the audience scattered when the lecturer? offered to give them a back view of the 'Paper balls over the head'. Fortunately no one had to follow this hilarious burlesque lecture.

During the convention FRANCIS GILES was filling in his spare time cutting silhouettes of contributers to this magazine. He modestly maintains that plenty of people can do this, but it is doubtful if many have succeeded in reproducing such striking likenesses.

PETER KANE showed an item from his new book. A startling effect in which a card instantly changed into a 'fiver' and also gave us some of his ideas for publication, as did FLIP whose lectures though not angled to close up magic did contain many items which could be scaled down particularly the rope knotting, and rope and ring moves. Apart from making us a personal present of a card trick, he also described his version of 'Triple Restoration' for the JOHN RAMSAY issue which will appear in March. The effect achieved is similar to that of Ramsay's and was worked out without FLIP being aware that anyone else had previously produced an effect of this kind. The method is different and we predict that many will go to work on it, as, it has all the ingredients necessary for producing entertainment and mystery.

MAGIC INIFO

THE INTERNATIONAL MAGAZINE

Now in its 3rd year.

MAKE SURE EACH ISSUE IS SENT TO YOU REGULARLY. SEND TODAY ONLY £2.00 ($ 7.00) FOR ONE YEAR (SIX) ISSUES SENT POST FREE TO ANYWHERE IN THE WORLD.

32 glossy pages in each issue.

THE INTERNATIONAL MAGIC STUDIO,
(RON MACMILLAN)

89 CLERKENWELL ROAD, HOLBORN,
LONDON, E.C.1.

WALT LEES ISSUE

The November Pabular will be devoted to tricks by Walt Lees, well-known to readers of this and other publications. It will be the first time we have presented a complete issue with the effects of a single performer and we would like to thank him for the work he has done and the time he has given to make it a very worthwhile Pabular.

Prepare to meet thy BOON!

The wonderful thumbwriter that HAS to be the best — still the greatest little gimmick in the world — 20 years continuous sales can't be wrong! Simple, invisible. NOT a nailwriter. £1.00 or US $2.50 inc. Air Mail. Eric Mason, 39 Dennis Park Crescent, London SW20 8QH, England.

KAN'T TEAR PAPER (2"x3") 100 Blanks Plus 12 SEX GAG CARDS £2.00 ($5.00) "TOM' FITZGERALD, 2814 Washington St., Wilmington, Dela. 19802 U.S.A.

ONE HUNDRED AND TWENTY THREE ACTS

Entered the Pontins National Talent Contest. First prize went to a good-looker who sang her way through the pops but — THE HUNDRED POUND PRIZE MONEY

Went to a man who borrowed a chap from the audience, performed one trick and was all through in just four minutes. Frank Farrow and Ken Brooke congratulate

TERRY HERBERT

The trick that he had linked to his personality was that which we mentioned in our advertisements last week — Don Alans "RINGED"

If you would like more details we will mail you a short list on receipt of a few stamps. CATALOGUE 50p or $3.00 Airmail. On Wednesday this week we had a phone call from Canada asking for 'THE NEMO PREDICTION SLATE' invented by DAVID HOWARTH. Eariler a friend had taken one back with him and what stock we had was sold within two weeks of his arrival home. We sent the goods airmail as requested together with others asked for. This morning, two days later a cheque arrived for £50.00. Magic and Magicians are wonderful people!

THE VIC PINTO SHOWGIRL TRICK

Famous industrial entertainer BUD DIETRICH spent last Friday with us. This was just one of the new original ideas he grabbed out of my hands. The card trick for the boys and suitable for adults only. Beautifully designed and produced by one of England's top fashion photographers. Living-colour pictures of a very beautiful girl. Money back if not delighted.

Price £2.50 here, £3.00 Europe, USA $7.50 Airmail CATALOGUE sent on receipt of 50p here or Europe. $2.00 cash or $3.00 cheque to USA.

Brochures of recent releases and a chat sheet 25pence or $1.00 bill. We have NO FREE LISTS WHATSOEVER. We do not have 1001 tricks. What we do have are made in the manner this establishment has made famous. With few exceptions all tricks sold by us carry a money back guarantee.

Open 9.00 – 5.30, Saturday closed at 1 o'clock. Lessons by appointment only. A lifetimes experience with small magic at your disposal.

There's No Place Like

KEN BROOKE'S MAGIC PLACE - 145 WARDOUR STREET LONDON. W.1. - ENGLAND

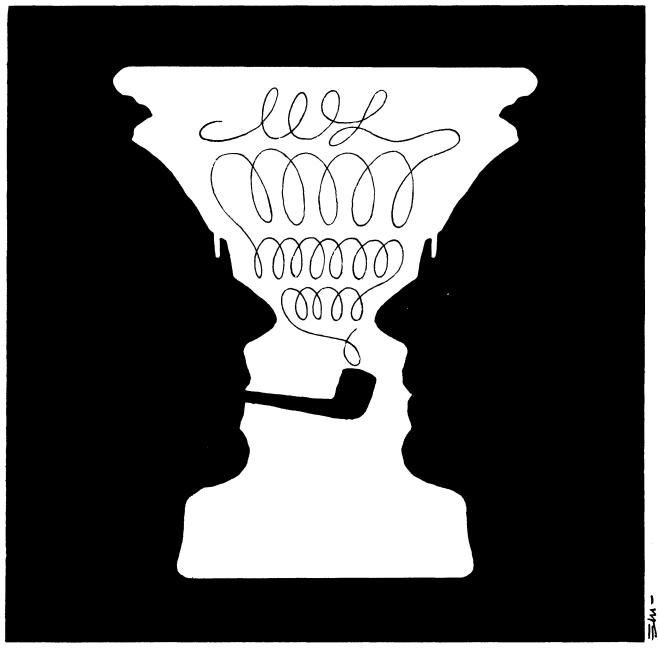

Tel: 01-734 9240

Pabular is published after the second week in every month and is printed by Instance Printers, Paddock Wood, Kent, England. Editor Nick Bolton, Technical Editor Fred Robinson, Art Editor Eric Mason. Subscriptions may be obtained direct from the publishers, Pabular, PO Box 180, London SE12 8JJ, England or through many magic dealers. Price 50 pence per copy (US $1.25) surface post included. Air Mail extra depending on country and subject to UK rates. Editorial or content copy should be sent to Fred Robinson, 1 Crescent Court, 24 Crescent Road, New Barnet, Herts, England. Advertising rates sent on request — smalls 3 pence per word (US 10 cents). Dealer enquiries welcomed. Reproduction of old prints and historical magical items by kind permission of Tony Faro.

The Magazine of Close-up Magic

Vol.2 Nº3 Nov.1975

WATT LEES

The PERPETUAL TELTEVATORS ROUTINE

When Fred Robinson first suggested that I contribute a complete issue of Pabular, I wondered, frankly, whether he was still in his right mind. However, after thinking things over I came to the conclusion that even if he was not, it still gave me a golden opportunity to describe in print a style of performing that I feel is under exploited at present — namely the use of routining as a psychological "weapon".

Anybody who has seen me lecture, or known my work, will have realised that I build all my tricks into routines. This gives me several advantages over the chap who just does single tricks. One obvious advantage is that the magic flows, without any hesitation on my part. I do not have to keep stopping to think what I can do next. Also there is a technical advantage, for with a little thought it becomes possible to set up one trick, while performing another — a great psychological throw off for the knowing ones! Most important, it is a commercial approach. The whole thing becomes a complete entertainment, with a start a finish and a middle. In addition, the audience, being given little time to think, stop worrying about how things are done and abandon themselves to enjoying the effect.

So much then for the basic preamble. Here is a routine of five card effects blended together to form a complete ten minute act, which has comedy, surprise and entertainment. You can of course perform any of the tricks separately, but take my tip and do the whole routine as described, it is far more effective that way.

Perform seated at a table, with a spectator (preferably a lady) to your left. The pack has been shuffled and you are ready to go. The first effect is the Marlo Elevator as described in the "Cardician". Those who are familiar with this need not really study this part, as they will be able to pick up the routine from the second trick. However for completeness sake, I am ving my handling, which varies slightly from the original.

1 − The First Elevator

Take the cards and run through them with the faces towards you, saying that you are going to show your version of the three card trick. The difference is that your version uses fifty-two cards! As you say this, quickly locate a red three and cut it to the top. Assume that it is the 3H. Now continue running the cards and upjog the 2H, AH & AD. This last card (AD) could really be any indifferent card but I always use it just in case the audience catch a flash of its face at this point. The three cards are placed on top of the pack face down, so that the AD is the top card, the AH is below it followed by the 2H & 3H.

Explain that for this demonstration you need the ace, two and three of hearts. Double lift the two top cards showing the ace. Hold these face up and use them as a lever to flip over the 2H. Take this face up on top of the ace(s) and use all the cards to flip over the three, which is also taken face up on top.

William + br

Display the block of four cards as three, then reverse the above sequence of moves, as the left thumb draws the cards one at a time from the right hand and replaces them face down on the pack. Attention at this point must be drawn to the order of the cards. It must be made clear to the audience that the ace is the top card, the two below that and the three underneath.

Deal the cards face down in a row from right to left saying as you do so, "Ace, two, three." In reality the cards will be as shown

The three is on top of the pack. Take the pack in the right hand, holding it from above, with the fingers at the outer end and the thumb at the inner (Biddle Grip). Hold it directly over the supposed 3H and about six inches above it. Allow the cards to dribble from the right hand onto the supposed three until only one card remains. Snap this one face up and show it to be the three. This is an uncanny effect, the three having apparently risen magically through the dribbled cards into the right hand. Place the three face down but about nine inches in front of the other face down cards.

Pick up the pack, square it taking care not to flash the 2H on the bottom. Take the pack in the right hand in the same grip as for the dribbling action. During the transfer of the pack from the left hand to the right, slightly separate the bottom card (2Ӊ) at its inner end. Hold this break with the right thumb. Take the supposed 2H (really the ace) and place it face down on top of the pack. Tap the pack smartly with the left forefinger at the same time releasing the bottom card with the right thumb. The pack should be held about a foot above the table top during this part of the effect. When the card lands on the table, turn it over and show the 2H. It appears to have magically penetrated the pack. Place the two face down alongside the three.

Finally take the supposed AH (really the AD) and push it into the centre of the pack. Now take the cards in the dribble position and dribble them onto the table from a height of about six inches. When only one card remains in the right hand, snap it face up and show it to be the ace. Place this face down along with the others.

This concludes the first part of the routine. No originality is claimed for the method, but the dribbling business and dropping the two are my own. At the conclusion of this effect you have the ace, two and three of hearts on the table in a face down row. You are now ready to repeat the effect using a completely different method. This is:-

Part 2 — The Cold Elevator (So called because it does not require you to be one ahead)

This is one of the variations on the "Elevator", theme, which I have worked out over the years. It has two points in its favour. Firstly you do not have to get one ahead before starting, secondly the finish leaves you one ahead in readiness for a repeat of the previous trick.

At the finish of the first "Elevator", the AH, 2H & 3H are face down on the table. Take the rest of the pack in a dealing position in the left hand, getting a little finger break below the second card from top. I normally accomplish this by thumb counting down with the left hand, under cover of the larger action of the right drawing the three tabled cards slightly nearer. The left thumb takes a break below the two top cards. This break is transferred to the little finger.

When you have got the break, allow it to open at the rear to a width of ½" as shown in fig.2. This is done by allowing the back end of the pack to drop slightly. The gap is only visible from behind.

This is the position for the well known, and very deceptive Vernon Tilt. From the front it will look as though a card pushed into the gap is entering the centre of the pack. The illusion can be further heightened by slightly disturbing the cards at the centre of the pack with the right thumb. This action is shown in fig. 3. The dodge was first shown to me by Fred Robinson.

In this particular instance you pick up the ace and insert it into the gap as in fig.3. There will be two cards above the gap. Do not show the face of the card just prior to pushing it home. Just give them a flash of it as you pick it up from the table. That is enough. As the ace is pushed home the left little finger holds a break below it. Square up the pack, at the same time closing the gap, but keeping the break below the ace. Now riffle the outer end of the pack, then turn over the top three cards as one. They should be layed face up on top of the pack and square with it. The ace has apparently returned to the

With the ace face up on top of the pack and two face up indifferent cards beneath it, you carry out the following action in one continuous movement. The right hand apparently deals the ace off the pack and turns it face down at the same time, placing it on the table. In reality you deal a second, placing the indifferent card on the table instead of the ace. As the second is dealt, both hands turn over simultaneously, holding the pack and the supposed ace back outwards. As the right hand puts the card down, the left deposites the face up pack on the face down 2H. The left hand does not release the pack, but picks up the 2H and turns over showing it face up on top. There are also two other cards face up, which are hidden by the two of hearts.

Turn the top three cards face down as one. Remove the top card and insert it into the pack. Copy exactly the movements made when doing the Vernon Tilt. Riffle the pack, then double left the top two cards showing the 2H back on top. Turn the two cards face down as one, place the top card (supposedly the 2H but really AH) on the table.

The left hand picks up the three, copying exactly the action used in picking up the two previously. The three is turned face down and during this action a break is obtained below the 2H on top of the pack. The pack is then positioned for the Vernon Tilt, putting the 3H directly below the 2H. Riffle the pack, then double lift showing the three back on top. Turn the two cards face down as one and deal the 2H (supposedly the 3H) onto the table.

At this point the cards will be face down on the table in the positions shown in fig.1, except that there will be an unknown card in place of the AD. In other words you are all set to quickly repeat the first "Elevator" sequence from that point. Do this rapidly as a climax to the first part of the routine.

Execute all of the above well, and by the third repeat of the effect you should have lost even those magicians who use the Elevator Cards themselves.

Part 3 — Triumph Plus

At this point in the festivities the spectator is brought into the action, as you perform a version of the "Triumph" effect. This is similar to the Garcia version described in "Super Subtle Mysteries", using the Zarrow shuffle. But there is a little more to it, because during the course of the trick you secretly set up the pack for the one which follows.

Collect up the three tabled cards in the following manner. Turn them all face up. Place the ace on top of the three then put both on top of the two. Put all three face down on top of the pack. As far as the audience is concerned you have finished with them.

Give the pack a quick shuffle, retaining the top three cards in position. Take the pack in the left hand in a position for the spectator peek. Have the lady peek at a card. Keep a little finger break below it. Hold the pack face down in the left hand. With the right cut off half the cards above the break and drop them casually face down on the table. Try to get them to spread about a bit as they land. Now cut to the break and drop the cut portion onto the tabled cards. In doing so, contrive to slightly side jog the bottom, - selected card - card of the packet to the right. This card should project from the tabled cards, but will only be noticeable if you know how to look for it, because of the haphazard way in which the cards have landed. Continue cutting off small packets and dropping them onto the tabled portion until the whole pack is exhausted.

Pick up the pack and cut the side jogged card to the top. Immediately below this card will be the 2H followed by the 3 & A. Place the pack face down on the table.

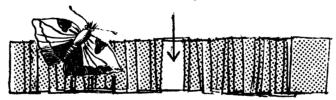

Undercut half the pack, turn these cards face up and Zarrow shuffle them into the face down packet. Work the Zarrow so that the face up cards go in immediately below the AH. Square up the pack. Locate the point at the centre where the face up cards meet the face down ones. This is easily located by the natural bridge that forms there. When you have found this point, undercut all the face down cards, turn them face up and really riffle shuffle them into the others. Take care not to let the faces of the cards be seen during this shuffle, otherwise the audience will notice that none of the cards are face down. Also do not disturb the four card set up on top of the pack. At the completion of this shuffle there will be a four card set up on top of the pack, face down, followed by the balance of the pack face up. Square up the pack and do a table slip cut, taking the top (selected) card to the centre.

176

Pick up the pack, secretly getting a break below the top two cards. Double cut them to the bottom. This double cut simply appears to be a way of showing that some cards are face up and others face down. After the double cut get a break below the two new top cards and cut them to the bottom in the same way. At the completion of this sequence the position will be that the entire pack is face up, except for the selected card, which is reversed in the centre, and the A, 2 & 3H which are face down on the bottom, hidden by an indifferent card.

All that remains is to make a few magic passes, then turn the whole pack face down and ribbon spread it across the table, revealing the face up chosen card. Care must be taken to keep the last few cards bunched so as not to expose the A, 2 & 3H, which are ready for the next trick.

Part 4 — The Small Packet All Backs

This is based on something that I saw Derek Dingle do some time ago. I was unable to reconstruct the exact effect, but in the process evolved the following:-

At the conclusion of the previous effect, square the pack and do a quick slip shuffle, faces on to the audience, getting rid of the indifferent card which was masking the set up. Also the spectator's card should have been left out on the table.

Take the pack in the right hand, from above, in the Biddle Grip, as described earlier. The cards are face up, except for the three on the bottom. The left thumb draws the cards off the face of the pack in small bunches and the lady is invited to tell you to stop at some point. Time it so she says stop somewhere near the centre. When she does so, have her place her card face up on the left hand packet. Get a little finger break below it. Now drop the right hand cards on top of it and square up, keeping the break. The whole pack should be face up in the left hand, which holds a little finger break below the chosen card. Directly above this card are the A, 3 & 2H.

At this point it is a good idea, although not strictly necessary, to cut to the break, bringing the four cards to the top. Shuffle retaining them there, then cut them back to the centre once more, retaking the break with the left little finger.

In nounce that you have three special cards in the pack, which you use for this particular effect. Spread the pack between your hands until you come to the first face down card. Split the pack at this point and place all the cards in the right hand face down on the table.

Keep the cards in the left hand square. With the left thumb push the first face down card into the right hand. The second face down card is pushed off onto the first. Finally, because you are still holding the break with the left little finger, it is a simple matter for the left thumb to push off the last face down card, together with the selected card beneath it as one. These are taken on top of the others in the right hand. The left hand now deposited all its cards face down on top of the other tabled portion.

Explain that the three special cards have backs on both sides. Now in rapid succession carry out the following:-

- a) Double lift the top card(s). Turn the two over as one. Do not turn them back again. Place them on the bottom of the packet.
- b) Take the packet in the Biddle Grip. Turn the right hand slightly palm upwards to flash the bottom card of the packet for a fraction of a second. Turn the hand palm down again. With the left thumb draw off the top card into that hand. As the card clears the packet the right hand repeats the business of flashing the bottom card. The left hand then draws off the second card. The right hand, holding its two cards as one repeats the flashing business. I have called this move the optical count because, when correctly executed it gives the impression that all the cards have been seen on both sides.
- c) The left thumb pushes the top card of its two slightly to the right. The right hand inserts its two cards as one between the two in the left. The top three cards of the packet are turned over and placed underneath the remaining card. The whole packet is then turned over and back again.

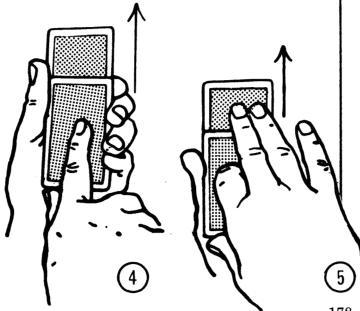

The above sequence a) b) & c) should be performed in one smooth, continuous series of actions at a fairly brisk pace. Performed in this way it will look as though you have shown three double backed cards and turned them this way and that while mixing them about. In fact, you should have, reading from top to bottom, 3H, AH, both face down followed by selected card and 2H both face up.

Rub the packet with the right forefinger. Spread off the first two cards with the left thumb, keeping the last two squared as one. It will appear as though one of the double backers has changed into the chosen card. Square up the two face down cards and replace them on top of the face up one(s). However, leave the face up card(s) projecting for about half its length.

Seize the projecting card(s) between the right thumb and forefinger at the outer end. Pivot them over the ends of the face down cards, so that they fall face down on top. Hold the whole packet square in the left hand. The right forefinger is placed on the centre of the top card — supposedly the one just shown — and moves it up and down with a rubbing action on the card below. This is a bit of by-play, which the audience take to be magical mumbo jumbo. It does, however, serve two purposes. Firstly it justifies placing the card on top of the others, secondly a similar bit of business will be used to cover a move in a few moments.

The top card is now slid off the packet and placed face down on the table. Take care not to flash its face at this point. The new top card of the packet is turned face up and shown. This looks as though a second double backer has changed to the chosen one. This card is turned face down and replaced below the other two in the left hand. These are of course being held together as one. The selected card projects at the outer end of the packet as in fig.4.

The right hand pushes up the two indifferent cards as one, in the direction of the arrow in fig.4. The cards are pushed up until they line up with the selected one. The top one only is then pulled back to the fig.4 position. This and the following move should be made to appear to be a repeat of the rubbing business indulged in earlier.

Now bring the second finger of the right hand up to rest on the back of the top projecting as in fig.5.

Now push both visible cards forward in the direction of the arrow in fig.5, but keep the lowest (chosen) card static. In other words the visible cards slide over the top of the concealed one. The left fingers and base of the thumb keep them lined up at this point. When the right thumb butts against the bottom card the action changes but there must be no hesitation. At this point the thumb and forefinger release their hold, but the hand continues to move forward until the second finger has pushed the projecting card clear of the other two. This card is allowed to fall face down on the table and should land on top of the one already there. To the spectators it should look as though you simply took the chosen card, rubbed it against the underside of the double backer and then dropped it on the Turn over the last two cards in the left hand as one, showing that the last double backer has also become the selected card.

Turn the last card(s) face down. Pick up the two cards from the table. Do not show their faces: and keep them in the order they are in. In other words pick them up together, not singly. Place them on top of the one(s) in the left hand. Now comes a quick repeat of the optical count described earlier and used to show the all backs. Take the packet face down in the right hand Biddle Grip. Draw off the top card with the left thumb counting one. At the same time slightly turn the right hand to flash the face of the bottom card of its packet. Draw off the next card counting two, at the same time flashing the two cards held as one in the right hand. Finally drop these face down on top counting three.

Snap the back of the packet with the right forefinger, then turn it face up. Now use the buckle or push off count to show that the ace, two and three of hearts have returned and the selected cards have all vanished. During this count reverse the order of the cards.

As stated earlier, this effect was inspired by something that I once saw Derek Dingle work. What I finally evolved is quite different. The main thing is to keep going at a brisk pace, which while not appearing to rush, does not give the audience too much time to think about the illogicallity of your having three double backers and three cards the same in a normal pack.

178

Part 5 — Finale

At the conclusion of part four you will be left with a small packet of cards in the right hand. There are four in all, although the audience are aware of only the AH, 2H & 3H. The three is on the face of the packet, the ace at the rear and the fourth card, a previously chosen one is between the ace and the two.

Place the packet of cards face down in the left hand in a dealing position. Deal the top card (AH) face down in the centre of the table. The second card (The Spectator's) is dealt face down to the left of this. The last two cards, held as one, are turned over to show the three, then placed face down on the tabled pack. Pick up the pack getting set for the Vernon Tilt, below the second card 3H.

Take the top card, supposedly the 3H but really the 2H and without showing its face push it into the gap. Riffle the ends of the pack, then turn over the top card and show the three. Put this face up on the table to the right (yes the right) of the face down ace.

Now hold the pack by its outer ends and dribble it onto the face down AH. Dribble the cards until only the two remains in the right hand, then flip it face up. Pick up the pack and place the two face up between the 3H and the selected card on the table.

Square up the pack and take it in the right hand, from above, by the outer ends. Get a break with the right thumb immediately above the bottom card (AH). Pick up the last face down card and without showing its face place it on top of the pack. Tap the top of the pack with the left forefinger at the same time releasing the ace from the bottom. As the ace flutters face down onto the table, the left hand reaches over and turns it face up and places it in line with the 2H & 3H. While this is happening, the right hand executes a one hand top palm stealing off the spectators card. The pack is quickly dropped on the table, while the performer produces the chosen card from his pocket. — Finish.

Post Script

The above is a routined sequence that I have featured regularly for some time now, and has been used to entertain laymen and magicians alike. Lack of space in a magazine must of necessity prevent me from going into all the details of presentation etc. It would take too long to describe all the bits of business and finer points of misdirection.

I like this routine because it is tightly worked out, rather like a piece of classical music. A basic theme is created with the Elevator effect and taken through with variations. Halfway though there is a change of tempo brought about by Triumph and The All Backs, before returning to the basic theme at the end. The final production of the card from the pocket makes a last chord and ties up the loose ends. (The pun was unintentional).

COINJURING!

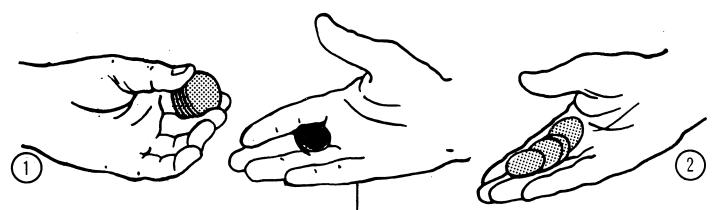

Here is a favourite coin routine of mine. Nothing greatly original is involved, just a few standard ideas combined to create an entertaining sequence.

Required are four silver coins of 10p size (American half dollars) and one copper coin of approximately the same size — English 2p. For the finish a Chinese coin is used. If one of these is not available there are several effective alternatives, which will be described later.

Begin by having the silver coins in the left coat pocket. The copper coin and the Chinese one are in the right.

Place both nands in the pockets at the same time. The left hand comes out with the four coins. The right obtains the copper coin and gets it into the purse palm (see fig.1). The left hand has the four stacked as shown in fig.1.

Keep the right hand tilted slightly towards yourself, while the left spreads the four coins along the fingers of the right so that they completely cover the copper coin and effectively hide it, fig.2.

Do not relax the grip on the copper coin.

Now tilt the right hand to display the coins to the audience. The copper coin will be out of sight, and both hands will be seen empty except for the four silver coins.

Call attention to the coins, then toss them back into the left hand. Retain the copper coin in the right. In the tossing action, the right hand turns back upwards, then it picks the coins one at a time off the left and lays them on the table in a neat row.

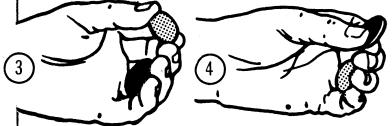

The left hand picks up one of the coins, getting it in position for Vernon's "Spellbound" as described in "Stars of Magic". For completeness, a brief outline of the move is detailed here, but I would suggest that look up the original if you do not already know it.

The silver coin is held in the left hand as were the four shown in fig.1. The right hand with the copper coin purse palmed passes in front of the silver coin and back again, as in the colour change of a card. As the right hand passes in front of the coin, the right thumb goes behind it and clips it in the thumb pinch. Then as the hand withdraws, the coin in the purse palm is taken by the left, in the position previously occupied by the silver coin. The effect is of an instant transformation from silver to copper. The change can be made to look even more effective by opening the right fingers as the hand withdraws. This lettle touch was suggested to me by David Carre, and certainly enhances the effect.

Point at the coin with the right forefinger, at the same time allowing the clipped silver one to drop onto the curled right second, third and fourth fingers. From here it is a simple matter to slide it into the purse palm with the right thumb. Do this as you drop the right hand to rest on the table. At the same time allow the audience to see that there is nothing in the left, except the copper coin.

Now repeat the transformation from copper back to silver, in exactly the same way.

Do the transformation back to copper once more, but this time the procedure is altered in a subtle way. As the right hand passes in front of the left, the silver coin is not picked up by the right thumb. Instead it is allowed to drop onto the left fingers as in the French Drop. The copper coin is still taken by the left, as before. The position is as shown in fig.3.

The left hand is angled so that the audience cannot see the silver coin. Care must be taken to get the angle right.

Do not make a song and dance about showing the right hand empty after this action.

The right hand picks up the three coins from the table, getting one in the classic palm position. At the same time the left thumb squeezes the copper coin, snapping it into the position shown in fig.4.

Make a tossing motion towards the left hand with the right, at the same time allowing the copper coin to fall into the left hand, where it clinks against the silver one hidden there. Immediately the left hand opens out, showing that one of the silver coins has arrived there.

The right hand, retaining one coin in the classic palm, casually drops the other two onto the table.

Without any hesitation, the left hand apparently tosses both its coins into the right. Really the silver is retained by the left fingers, and only the copper is tossed across. The right hand is opened out, displaying the silver and copper coins there.

The left hand picks off the copper coin in the fig.4 position. The right hand then deposited the silver coin on the left palm, taking care that it does not clink against the concealed one in the left fingers.

Pick up the two tabled coins with the right hand, getting one in the palm position. Make a tossing motion towards the left, at the same time allowing the copper to drop into that hand. Open the left hand showing two silvers and one copper. At the same time, the right casually drops one of its coins onto the table and retains the second in the palm. Immediately the left tosses its coins into the right, but keeps one silver back in the finger palm position.

COINJURING!

The right hand extends, displaying the three coins, while the left reaches across and picks up the copper in the fig.4 position. The right deposits the two silvers on the left palm.

Explain that the trick becomes more difficult if you put the last coin in your pocket. So saying, pick up the silver coin from the table and apparently place it in your pocket. Classic palm it just before the hand enters the pocket, then quickly seize the Chinese coin and purse palm it as the hand leaves the pocket. This will give you two coins held in the right hand as in fig.5.

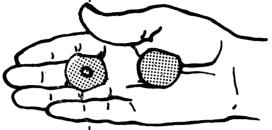

The above routine is both startling and entertaining. I get a lot of laughs by using a miniature policeman off a key ring instead of the Chinese coin for the finish. This is an old gag. You show the copper, change it to silver and back to copper (here the policeman makes an entrance).

Sometimes, when working for magicians, I use a sea shell instead of the policeman. Here the tagline is, "I do it the easy way.....I use a shell!" as you produce the shell.

David Carre does "Spellbound" with a coin and a key. The same idea could be applied here. Produce the key at the end. "This is the key to the mystery!"

Credits for the ideas used in this routine are various. The Vernon "Spellbound" is too well known to need any mention from me. A similar change is described in Victor's "Magic of the Hands" published in 1936.

A split second after the right hand enters the pocket to cop the Chinese coin, the left hand allows the copper to drop down into the hand and chink against the coins there. Then the left hand opens, showing that the coin has arrived.

By now the right hand is clear of the pocket. It comes over the left hand and picks off the silver coins, placing them on the table. Finally the right hand picks up the copper, displays it momentarily then replaces it in the "Spellbound" position as in fig.5.

The right hand passes across in front of the copper as in "Spellbound". As it does so, the copper coin is allowed to fall on the left fingers (as the silver did in fig.3), while the left fingers take the silver coin from the right palm to replace it. The right hand withdraws allowing the silver to be seen; now the right hand return and passes in front of the silver. This is clipped in the right thumb grip position explained earlier. As the hand withdraws the left takes the Chinese coin to replace it. The right withdraws revealing the Chinese coin, creating a sort of three way "Spellbound" effect.

The idea of changing one coin to a copper one, and then using the extra silver coin for the coins across, instead of ditching it, was shown to me by Albert Goshman several years ago.

David Carre gets credit for the idea of concealing the copper coin under the silvers at the opening.

NTIFICATION

Magic can be divided into three basic types:-

- * That which the public find entertaining.
- * That which magical audiences find entertaining.
- *That which the performer finds entertaining.

Here is a series of guidelines that may help one or two readers to prise their work our of the last category and into the first. Most of what follows is fairly obvious, but it may help to remind ourselves from time to time.

THERE'S NOT MUCH POINT IN HAVIN' A SECRET, ANYONE TO TELL IT TO II

*Choosing commercial material

The best tricks are very simple in effect. Things appear, disappear, float, change etc.

99.9% of all published magic is of no commercial value whatever. This is because it is too complicated. The realistic performer knows that the only effects worth bothering with are the ones which are easiest for the audience to follow. This does not mean that they are the easiest to perform. The opposite is often the case. It means that they must be direct in effect. Your audiences will not always be intelligent, often they will not be sober and none will expect to be made to work. Tricks that involve memorising cards/numbers for long periods, excessive counting, dealing or writing things down are all out.

*Keeping the effect simple and coherent

A magical effect is like a funny story or a play. It has a start, a finish and a plot. It is a progression from A to B. You must analyse your magic and be clear in your own mind exactly what the effect is supposed to be. Only then can you begin to communicate the idea to the audience and give your work the stamp of crystal clarity. You must make sure that they can see the point of what you are doing.

Ensure that what you do has a definite finish and does not fizzle out. People will remember the climax long after they have forgotten the rest.

Do not indulge yourself by including a lot of fancy business just for its own sake. Everything that you say and do should further the action.

*Trying to involve the audience

A trick where you sit down and do clever things may be very impressive. But at best it is merely a display of skill — or showing off! The audience realise that you are seeking admiration rather than trying to entertain. They are not there for the purpose of admiring you. It is not their job to flatter you and boost your ego. On the contrary, it is your job to flatter them and boost theirs.

If you thrust a pack of cards at somebody, with a curt demand to take one, that person knows that he or she is just being used. People are not card taking machines.

The ability to give their audiences a real sense of involvement in what is taking place has been the big secret of all the best close up workers. It is an essential ingredient of this sort of performance. Your function is to give your audiences a good time. They will enjoy themselves best if drawn into the action. Let them be a part of the show. Try to create a party atmosphere.

* Making Magic Fun

When the average magician does a trick, he sits hunched up at the table, staring intently at his close-up mat. When he speaks, half his remarks are never even heard by the spectators at all.

The late Senator Crandell once suggested that most close-up workers could earn a fortune advertising toupees.

You must look at people..... You must talk to people..... You must do your magic TO them not AT them!

★Knowing your magic

If you perform a trick in public, when you are not absolutely sure of it, then you are a fraud. You are trying to kid people, yourself among them, that you are a better magician than you are.

Never attempt a trick before an audience until you have thoroughly mastered every detail. For instance, you should be able to do all of the moves without watching your hands. Remember that, when you drop your eyes from the audience, you lose contact with them.

You must also know exactly what you are going to say. If you have to fight for words, you will at best slow down the action and ruin your timing. At worst you will become confused and nervous. Many inexperienced workers go to pieces in this way. It is very difficult to talk entertainingly and perform secret moves at the same time. Thorough rehearsal is essential.

★Being diplomatic

In close-up magic the audience are as much a part of the show as the performer, so learn how to handle them. You need their co-operation if you are to get the best out of your material.

Your audience will not like you, and will not co-operate if you insult them. This should be obvious, but for some reason it is not.

Remember also, that you are insulting them if you presume to foist upon them something that is under rehearsed or in any way inferior.

★ Getting started

How you do this depends entirely on your personality. Some magicians get to work straight away with a few quick visual tricks and go on from there. Others prefer a more conversational, indirect approach. The best approach is the one that you can make work. Only experience will tell you what it is.

First impressions count. Getting off on the right footing is important. You are the central character in your performance. You must take the lead from the word go.

*Being reserved

Do not push your magic at all and sundry. This merely cheapens it. Not everyone wants to watch you.

Only work if you are sure of your audience. Avoid becoming a bore.

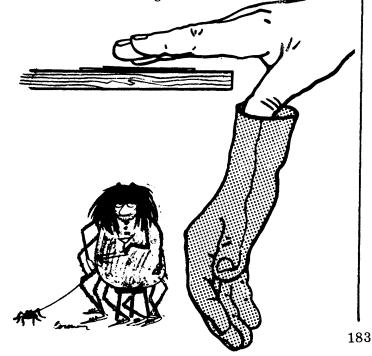

Finish while their interest is at its peak. Do not overtax their ability of willingness to concentrate. Always leave them wanting more

CheWINNING HAND

Here is a bit of business, that should be good for a laugh or two. You will need one of those rubber hands that are sold in some novelty shops. This is on your lap, held between the knees, with the opening just below the level of the table top.

Take a pack of cards and begin to do a series of showy shuffles and cuts. Then offer to show how to deal a good hand.

Deal out four hands of cards on the table. Point to the one nearest yourself and say "This is the best hand." As your right hand starts to draw the cards towards yourself and turn them face up, the right thumb is inserted into the opening in the rubber hand, drawing it quickly into view and tossing it onto the table.

Page boy speaks....

Who is Walt Lees? Well, Walt hails from the City of Lincoln and saw his first magician when he was only six years of age and by the time he was twelve he had done his first show for money, at the local police station where they probably paid him in coppers. He had a fondness for folkgroups and amateur dramatic societies, being a member of both, and he also performed in working men's clubs. In between this he somehow managed to run his own joke shop. A stint back-stage at the Lincoln Theatre Royal gave him an insight into the theatrical aspects of performing rather than the magical side.

In 1968 he started working for Ron Macmillan demonstrating in stores and exhibitions — places that are designed to tear one's heart out week after week. Walt's forte is probably routining and he performs most of his effects in routines. He started the serious study of close-up magic around five or six years ago and he became so skilled with his handling of a deck of cards that he was featured in a T.V. programme in this country called 'Aquarius'. He has edited 'Magic Info' magazine for over two years and in 1974 he entered the Magic Circle Close-up Competition and walked off with the first prize.

Walt is probably the only magician I know who actually rehearses every single day for one hour — and what's more he does it before he goes to work in the morning, and this should tell you what kind of a magic nut he is.

OK, so now you know what he has done and where he has been. So what about him as a person? Walt is tall, slim, quite good-looking (that's another reason I hate him); oh yes, he is a prolific writer — in fact he is so prolific that he has practically squeezed me out of this issue.

Most magicians have amusing stories about themselves that they can relate and Walt has a humdinger. A while back he was demonstrating the Svengali deck in Hamley's Magical Department when he looked up and saw a face he thought he recognised, one of his relatives. Midway through the dem' he remarked "Hello Auntie" and carried on working. When he has finished and was passing the decks out and taking the money, he looked again for the lady. Seeing her he suddenly realised he had been addressing Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth!

She had what can only be described as an inscrutable smile, probably thinking that Walt had been the result of a misdemeanour of one of her relatives somewhere along the line.

Patrick Page

THE INTERNATIONAL MAGAZINE

Now in its 3rd year.

MAKE SURE EACH ISSUE IS SENT TO YOU REGULARLY. SEND TODAY ONLY £2.00 ($7.00) FOR ONE YEAR (SIX) ISSUES SENT POST FREE TO ANYWHERE IN THE WORLD.

32 glossy pages in each issue.

THE INTERNATIONAL MAGIC STUDIO. (RON MACMILLAN) 89 CLERKENWELL ROAD, HOLBORN, LONDON, E.C.1.

Wanted: The following Findlay books: Conjurers coins and medals......1964 Charles Dickens, his Magic......1962 Joseph Herzer, P.O. Box 523, Simi, California 93065

Prepare to meet thy BOON!

The wonderful thumbwriter that HAS to be the best still the greatest little gimmick in the world - 20 years continuous sales can't be wrong! Simple, invisible. NOT a nailwriter. £1.00 or US $2.50 inc. Air Mail. Eric Mason, 39 Dennis Park Crescent, London SW20 8QH, England.

KAN'T TEAR PAPER (2" x 3")100 Blanks Plus 12 SEX GAG CARDS £2.00 ($5.00) 'TOM' FITZGERALD, 2814 Washington St., Wilmington, Dela. 19802 U.S.A.

Read what customers say

"The wallet which was recommended to me arrived today. It is the best Card To Wallet apparatus I have ever seen. Something I will use on a regular basis. Your suggestion to use it for The Ambitious Card was excellent. Enclosed is my check to cover the cost." Roland Hurley, U.S.A.

"The new wallet arrived and is simply fabulous. It makes miracles too easy. As a full time performer I need first class aparatus and like all your items. this is worth £100.00 to me." Al Dantte, Finland.

"What are the chances of getting another of the wallets you recently sent me?" Brad Holbrook, U.S.A.

"It has been doing so well for me I would like to order another one for my son who is also a full time professional magician!" Jack Pyle, U.S.A.

"I would like another two for friends!" Danny Dew, U.S.A.

"I use it as my normal wallet. Hand picked magic!" Fred Robinson, G.B.

Top quality black seal grain leather

Do you object to paying for apparatus of the highest class? Fred Kaps was here and performed the card in wallet — he did it again and again – and again in one continuous routine – Each time, the freely selected card was found in the zipper compartment of his wallet. Those present looked for all the usual weaknesses and found — NOTHING!

The actual gimmick is based on a little known idea, perfected by the world's leading artiste of our time. We have not sold millions, gentlemen, for this apparatus is of very high class. We only get a few each month.

If you can palm a card really well you will delight in this apparatus. If you cannot palm cards we will send you a very fine Barry Stevenson method which we failed to sell under its original title — 'The Incredible Signature' —

We do not supply any cards as any can be used in the classical version. You need certain special cards for the Stevenson trick, they can be had from us or from most dealers in all parts of the world.

This apparatus is sold to you on our usual money back guarantee. Wallet is black seal grain leather with gold metal corners.

Satisfaction is included in the price!

England £15.00

U.S.A. $42.00 Air mailed home.

CATALOGUE - PRICE LIST & SHORT LISTS for 50n.p. $3.00 air mail to U.S.A.

Your money refunded if not delighted at -

KEN BROOKE'S MAGIC PLACE — 145, WARDOUR STREET — LONDON, W.1. — ENGLAND Open 9 - 5.30. Saturdays until 1 p.m.

Pabular is published after the second week in every month and is printed by Instance Printers, Paddock Wood, Kent, England. Subscriptions may be obtained direct from the publishers, Pabular, P.O. Box 180, London SE12 8JJ or through many magic dealers. Price 50 pence per copy (or US $ 1.25) surface post included. Air Mail extra 12 pence (US $ 0.30) per copy or £1.45 (US $ 3.60) per year. Editorial or content copy should be sent to Fred Robinson, 1 Crescent Court, 24 Crescent Road, New Barnet, Herts, England. Advertising rates sent on request smalls 3 pence per word (US 10 cents). Dealer enquiries welcomed. Reproductions of old prints and historical magical items by kind permission of Tony Faro.

SOUD A

Ge Magazine of Close-up Magic Vol. 2Nº4 Dec. 1975

Many years ago I encountered an old effect wherein a solid steel ring was passed on to an arm whilst the hand was held by another person. It was presented as a mediumistic trick, the ring supposedly materialising on the arm. The effect in itself was powerful but lacked interest as it was necessary to put out all the lights in order to perform it. For the seance room, that was alright, but for use in the field of magic it was impractical. Because of this I more or less forgot about the trick.

Some time later, my good friend Sid Emons happened to be in my Studio and having some visitors present, he decided to show them an old stunt which would be entertaining. It turned out to be a modification of the ring on arm but this time it was presented as an effect performed on one person — and whilst that person was completely baffled, the rest of the audience — though not baffled, were indeed very amused. It seemed too incredible for words that anyone could be fooled so easily. It became apparent that what the trick lacked in one sense (it did not fool all) it certainly made up for in another (it entertained everybody). Having seen this, I decided to work on it.

One day Jon Tremaine came in to see me and we discussed the ring on arm. For five hours we experimented with the trick; every variation that was known was tried, new ideas were tested. Out of the many abortions came two or three strong ideas, and later, given more time to work those ideas I founded the basis of this routine.

The Powers of Darkness can hardly be called a new magical effect. The fraternity have been cluttered up with rings on sticks, off sticks and through sticks for many years. What is new is the approach. The routine is presented as a demonstration of psychology — not conjuring. It is devised to show how a man can be deceived when deprived of one of his senses — that of vision. The name of the routine explains that in the dark, the performer is gifted with new powers. The subject or spectator having his eyes closed is in the dark. If the routine was presented when the subject could see, it would look silly and fool nobody. But under the cloak of darkness, without vision, the spectator would be sure to gamble a fortune that you could not achieve what you do! To them, there is no explanation.

The audience will see what you do and how you do it. If any one of them is able to go away and do the same it will be exceptional. First they must have the equipment and second, having seen you do it only once — they must know move by move how to proceed. There are many moves and any one of them omitted will quite probably fail the trick. It becomes a curious position; you show the audience what to do and how to do it. and after that they cannot repeat the same! If any man has ability to remember every move you make, and has the necessary equipment to do the effect and that man wants to do it — he will be as successful as you. But it will take a clever man to remember the routine on one show.

Before the demonstration begins, a suitable opening address should be given. As a preliminary, the subject chosen is seated and then asked if he thinks his senses (i.e. that of sight, hearing, smelling, feeling and taste) are normal. To "test" the important senses you hold a coin up and ask him "Can you see this?" and then take copper and silver coins and giving them both to the subject say "Will you feel which one is the copper one and give it to me?" Then you drop either one or both and ask "Can you tell by sound which coin I have dropped on the floor?" These tests, all being easy, will result in correct replies from the subject. You appear satisfied with the results, explain that you were indeed testing his senses to see if they were normal and say they are. You now propose to demonstrate how normal senses can be deceived; how you can be made to feel something, when there is nothing there, to hear something when all is silent and so forth.

The subject is seated in a chair and you sit opposite him. (Under special conditions, the routine may be performed whilst both stand). You want him to be at ease, so you explain very clearly that you are going to perform a few simple tests. These tests will not hurt in any way and no embarrassment will be caused. He is to close his eyes when you tell him to do so, and to keep them tightly closed until told to open them. Explain that you do not want to use a blindfold so you will trust him to keep his eyes closed. You may add that he will enjoy the experiment much more if he plays the game and does not peep—it will not be amusing for him if he looks.

ROUTINE

Please note that this routine is given in every detail, no unnecessary moves are made. Not one sleight is used, every part is accomplished by way of misdirection. It is this misdirection which is of the utmost importance — every word, every move as given must be said and done at the exact moment stated. The routine describes word for word the method I use for presentation — alter it only if you can find misdirection that is equally as powerful.

PREPARATION

The chair you sit on should have a cushion on the seat under the cushion place a solid (9" diameter) ring. It is as well to put a newspaper on th chair first to stop the metal ring making any sound on the wood during performance. The ring can be slipped quietly between the sheet of newspaper and the cushion.

On a table or chair behind the subject place a similar ring with a break ("Key Ring") and with it the rod. The key ring may be covered with a folded newspaper if necessary. That is all the preparation which is needed. The third and only visible ring is held in the hands.

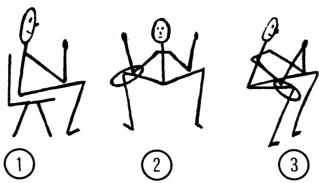

PART ONE: THE RING GOES ON

"Now we are ready, please make yourself comfortable. I want you to sit upright and this ring I shall place over your knee."

1. Do not ask to have the ring examined, simply show it casually and then place it over his left knee. He sits facing you and your chairs should be fairly close together.

"Now I want you to put your elbows on your knees — that's right, over the ring for the moment please."

2. He must put his elbows on his knees and "trap" the ring with his left elbow. Please note, when I say "Left or Right" I mean as you see it facing the subject. In actual fact it is his right knee but it is the one on your left. The drawing shows the first steps:-

"Now please join your hands together and hold them tightly closed. We are about to begin the experiment, so I shall ask you to close your eyes now, and remember what I have said, you will enjoy this if you do not look, there is nothing much to see anyway. Close your eyes please and from now on listen to me and I will tell you what is happening."

"I am going to take the ring off your knee and try the first test. I am pulling it off now and — oh! you should have examined it so will you please take it in your hands and feel it all round, it is strong metal."

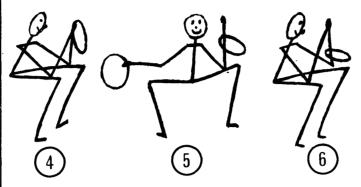

3. With the left hand, pull the ring off the knee and he will feel it go. At the same time, with the right hand, reach under the cushion (go between your legs) and pull out the other solid ring. As soon as the ring is free from his knee you introduce the patter "Oh! you should have examined it" and immediately push the left hand ring into his hands telling him to feel it. You make sure that he takes hold of it with both hands, if necessary saying, "Take it completely and feel all round."

"And Hold it tightly — grip it, I'm pulling it so you can tell it is strong metal, you can feel it right?"

4. With your left hand you take hold of the ring he is holding and push it into his left hand (your side again) making him grip it. Now pull fairly hard, drawing his hand away to the left and in effect forcing all his attention on this hand. At the same time pass the ring in your right hand over his right arm which you will find conveniently sticking up in mid air.

The drawings show the position occupied by the spectator. Number five shows the arm being pulled to the left to allow the second ring to be passed over the right. As soon as it is over the right arm, stop pulling and say:-

"Let go now please, let me have the ring and rejoin your hands."

5. They rejoin their hands and in doing so enclose ring number two on their arm. The effect is accomplished, the presentation and misdirection continues.

"Now, I am going to touch this ring to your forehead (DO SO) do you feel it? And I will bang it here on your sorry dropped it."

6. The touch on the forehead is powerful misdirection because they feel it and still think it is free so as to speak. Next we resort to misdirection by sound. As you say "And I will bang it on your.." holding it in the left hand, deliberately take it within three inches of the floor and drop it—they hear it on the floor a long way from their hands! All this time, which is really only seconds, you are holding the other ring over their arm very carefully in the right hand. At no time must you knock this ring against their arm. Do not drop it from a height of more than three inches because it may roll away and you cannot go and fetch it back!

"I'm getting clumsy! As I was saying, I will bang it on your arm just about here — can you feel it?"

7. As you pick up the ring with the left hand, take it to the cushion, stand slightly and tuck it underneath. At the same time with the right hand, holding the ring tightly, bang it on their arm between the wrist and elbow by pulling down sharply two or three times. It is impossible to tell that the ring is over the arm when this is done.

"Right, you can feel it so your senses are still normal, now I am going to surprise you — when I count three open your eyes and I will try to do something that you cannot feel. Keep your hands tightly locked all the time, don't give me a chance to cheat you!!"

8. Count three and as you say "Three" bang the ring fairly hard on their arm and swing it and let go. They open their eyes and look and sit their with their hands joined and the ring on their arm. Give them a moment to understand what has happened and then, before they have fully recovered, prepare for the next step in the routine.

PART TWO: THE RING COMES OFF

"Take the ring off please, you see it is solid, let me have it. Now I will try something else, let me see — I need some sort of stick — perhaps that rod would do — excuse me a moment."

9. Holding the ring, get up and quickly go to the back table. Put this ring down and pick up the key ring and the rod and return. In the meantime, our subject will note the empty seat you sat on just in case they thought you were sitting on an extra ring.

"This rod should do — but it might not be suitable. Will you hold it by both ends please — at the very tips — that's right."

10. Draw all attention to the rod and away from the ring. However, as you say "The very tips please" hold the key ring up with fingertips supporting it at each side as though to demonstrate what is to be done with the wand. The right first-finger and thumb conceal the gap and you have shown the ring without having it examined.

"Now let me pass the ring over the rod please, thank you. For this test I am going to knock ten times on the rod, each time I knock I will ask you to count out loud one, two, three and so on; when I reach ten, as I say it, will you call out 'ten' as usual and at the same time open your eyes and look — only as I say ten you open your eyes and then you will see what I will do — the counting is only to 'condition' you."

11. The ring is held in the right hand threaded over the rod. The gap is concealed from view pinched between the thumb and first finger. As you speak about knocking ten times, slowly and deliberately knock by tapping the ring on the rod to demonstrate what is to happen.

"Right, we will begin. so once more close your eyes please and remember open them quickly as I say ten."

12. The right hand begins to knock slowly and deliberately. The left hand reaches under the cushion and quietly removes the solid ring left there from the earlier trick. It brings this ring over the rod and as you reach the count of four, instead of knocking with the key ring, knock with the solid one and continue to do so whilst you slip the gap round with the right hand key ring, when in the right position, you gently slip the key ring off the rod, which is best done at the same instant the other ring hits the rod for one of the counts. The sudden jar of the ring on the rod hides the slight sound that might occur as the key ring comes off.

"Keep counting out loud, remember you must only count when I knock so you must pay attention."

13. The key ring should be off by "Six" and is taken with the right hand and pushed under the cushion. Be careful that a finger-ring does not cause it to sound when being handled. As soon as it is under the cushion, the right hand takes the solid ring from the left and the count is continued. However, as you reach "Eight", instead of knocking on top of the rod, move to the front of the rod and knock, then for "Nine" come a little lower and for "Ten" the ring is knocked upwards on to the rod.

"We are nearly there, be ready to open your eyes as I say ten."

14. For the last cound, the ring is held just so:-In the right hand, index finger (first) extended along the top of the ring, fingernail upwards, and the ring supported between the thumb and second joint of the curled second finger. All other fingers being curled. As you come to knock for the tenth time, bang the ring upwards and immediately slip the index finger over the rod, wait a brief second for the subject to open his eyes and as he does so, grip the ring on to the rod and pull towards you and in a slightly upwards direction. The illusion is created of the ring passing through the rod. As the subject has had his eyes closed for quite some time, he cannot focus them quickly on what he sees and for a second he will see the ring on the rod and then see you pull it off.

"Look! you see the rod is strong — the ring is solid and you are holding both ends — yet it is free, please take it."

15. Hand the ring to the subject and leave him with the rod. He will examine both and find they are solid, again there is no explanation.

"You look perplexed and I am not surprised! What you must now decide is did it happen — or was it your imagination. Perhaps the ring was never on, perhaps I made you think it was, perhaps it was on your arm all the time and you couldn't see it or feel it — take it over to the light and have a look for a join — perhaps it is a trick."

16. Whilst he goes over to the light, you calmly reach under the cushion and pull out the other ring — this, you push under his chair or down your trousers.

YOU HAVE ACHIEVED MUCH BY THE POWERS OF DARKNESS

tony corinda

MATCH CARD 2 by Barry Goven — Graham Etherington SET UP

Take the matches out of a booklet by removing staple. Glue in three matches at one end. Staple now on the front side of the match booklet only. Slip in the rest of the matches and you are set. Have a piece of double sided sticky tape on your left thumb (conceal this from audience).

TO PERFORM

- 1. Hold packet in left hand and show booklet of matches.
- 2. Close lid with right hand at the same time left thumb presses on the loose stock of matches and removes them under cover of closing the lid.
- 3. Go to pocket for deck of cards at the same time dropping the match stock and double sided tape.
- 4. As you do step 3 you also throw the booklet of matches onto the table with the three matches facing the audience. They suspect nothing as they think they can still see all the matches in the booklet.
- 5. Take out the deck of cards from the case and force a three spot onto a spectator. Tell him to tap the match packet with the card.
- 6. Tell spectator now to lift the lid of the booklet and hand it to you. Very slowly shoe audience that now there are only three matches left, corresponding to the three spot held by the spectator.

CIRCUZATUNG COINS

(spinning, tossing and rolling)
SPINNING:-

To make a coin spin on the point of a needle hold cigarette or pencil in right hand and place tenpence piece on top. The left hand takes a needle and puts point on the centre of coin (1). Invert both hands bringing cigarette uppermost. If you turn the page upside down figure 1 will show how it appears to the spectator. By giving the cigarette or pencil a twist between the fingers and thumb the coin will spin on the point of the needle.

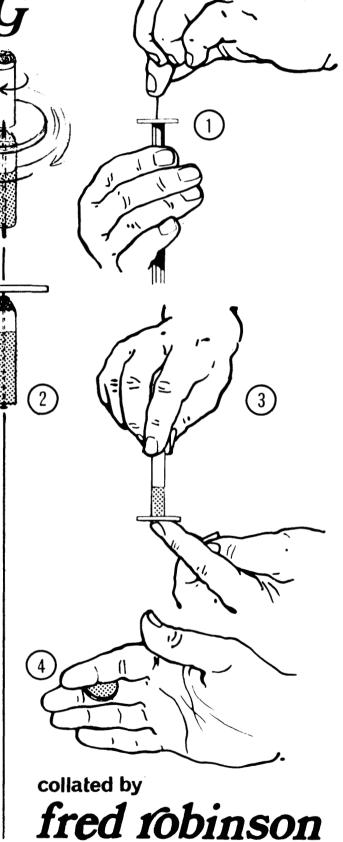

A similar effect may be achieved by seemingly causing a coin to spin on the end of a partly smoked cigarette by pushing a needle point first into the filter and leaving about one eighth of an inch of the eye end protruding. Sandwich coin between this prepared stub and another cigarette as shown in (2). Press protruding end of needle until it makes contact with the coin and twist upper cigarette making coin appear to spin on the burnt end of the partly smoked cigarette. If the tip is moistened it is possible to balance it on the table whilst it is spinning.

A coin may also be made to spin on the tip of the forefinger (3) by cheating a little. The coin is covered with a shell and it is this shell that revolves on top of the coin which remains stationary on the tip of the finger.

TOSSING:-

A coin tossed into the air can be made to fall head or tail up as desired. Place the coin on the hand with the side you require to fall uppermost with the index finger just over the edge (4). Throw the coin up letting the index finger catch the edge as it leaves the hand in a manner which causes it to 'wobble' without actually turning over. This wobbling movement can be made to resemble a genuine spin and except on the odd occasion will fall with the desired side face up.

A small coin is flipped up with the right hand which catches it and slaps it down onto the back of the left hand. On the right hand being removed the side of the coin face up is seen to be opposite to the one called. As the hand catches the coin the thumb pushes it between the first and second fingers (5) and as it is slapped down onto the back of the left hand the performer notes which side is adjacent to the index finger as the right hand opens. It is a simple matter to make it appear either heads or tails as desired by keeping the edge of the coin in contact with the back of the left hand and moving the right away either forward over the knuckles (6) or backwards towards the sleeve, the fingers releasing their grip on the coin at the same time.

ROLLING:-

Hold a large coin between the first and second fingers as in (7). With the hand close to the table top make a throwing motion away from the body and simultaneously press down with the index finger forcing the coin out through the back of the fingers. When the force of the outward throwing action is exhausted the reverse spin imparted by the index finger will take over and cause the coin to return to the performer. The distance a coin can be made to return in this way is considerable and can be controlled by the pressure of the index finger and the throwing action.

Holding a mixing bowl on the left hand the right throws a large coin inside and causes it to roll round and round the inside of the bowl on its edge in a manner similar to that of a motorcyclist in the wall of death. For the best results the bowl should be about fifteen inches across and fairly deep. The bowl which is glazed white on the inside and yellow on the outside can, or could be, found in most households is just right for the purpose being fairly deep, but reasonable results can be obtained with smaller bowls, but not being so deep there is a tendency for the coin to run over the edge. With the bowl seated on the left hand hold the coin in the right as in (8) and bring it within an inch or two of the inside of the bowl, and with a flick of the wrist release the coin allowing it to roll off the end of the forefinger. The spin imparted by this action will cause the coin to roll round the inside of the bowl in an ANTI-CLOCKWISE direction, and a gentle, almost imperceptable rotary action with the left hand will keep the coin rolling at a fair speed.

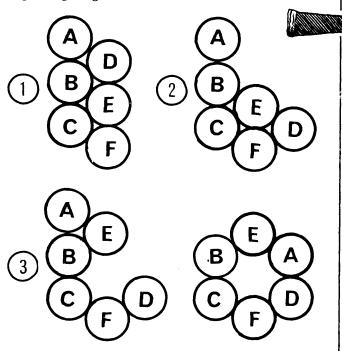

FESTIVE FUN

The Festive Season having come round again, here are some stunts and puzzles to fill in those blank spots between drinks. As with these pages last year most of what follows has been in print before in one guise or another, but you will have a varied mixture from which to choose. So here goes.......

Some time ago we saw Alex Elmsley do a coin puzzle that we liked and we'll use it to start. Arrange six coins of the same denomination as in (1). The puzzle is to form a circle with them by moving three coins. They must be moved separately and at the end of the move must be in contact with two of the other coins.

Figs. 2, 3 and 4 show how you do it. Even someone who manages it will have trouble repeating it again.

Ask someone to write down the sentence 'It is two miles from the Marlborough Arms to the White Horse Inn.' Now you ask him to write down 'There are two two's in the above sentence'. As we have written this it is grammatically incorrect; spoken out loud the sentence seems easy — try and write it and you will find you have a sentence that cannot be written.

Puzzle-minded readers may like the following:

You have twelve identical objects in appearance, but one of them is the odd man out—it is either lighter or heavier than the other eleven. Problem—you have to find out the odd object and ascertain whether it is lighter or heavier than the others but you only have a set of scales with no weights.

Solution: First divide the objects into 3 sets of 4, calling them X, Y, Z. Balance X against Y, Y against Z. If, for example, X and Y balance odd man out must be Z. Next balance Z against X or Y and if Z descends it must be heavier — and obviously vice versa. With two weighings we have found in which group of 4 the O.M.O. is in and whether it is heavier or lighter. To find which one of the four — you only need to weigh once more. Not wishing to spoil your fun we'll leave it with you

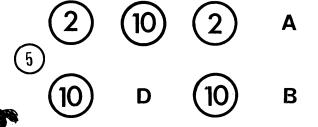

A big game hunter sees a bear to the east. The wind being in the west the hunter moved about a hundred paces north during which time the bear had not moved. Taking careful aim the hunter fired due south and killed the bear. What was the colour of the bear? You will find the answer in Focus.

You have been holding a party and afterwards see that someone has left a glove behind—you know it belongs to one of two one armed guests who buy and share a single pair of gloves, each having lost a different arm. The trouble is that they can only be contacted by phone and neither knows his 'left' from his 'right'. The problem: how do you ring them up and find out the owner without using the words 'left' or 'right' or referring to anything else except the glove?

The following effect, although having been around for many years, is seldom seen — and yet nearly every magician you meet knows something about it when mentioned. Strip off the striking surface of a box of safety matches, put it in a saucer, and set fire to it. The result will be a gummy residue. Now put some of this on the pads of your left index-finger and thumb. When you rub them together wisps of smoke can be produced. Follow this by saying "There is no smoke without a fire" and pass your right hand over the rising smoke causing it to burst into flame. How? Well, you have a concealed wad of flash paper in your right hand and of course this is ignited by your lighted cigarette. The impact produced by combining these two items will only be realised by those who actually try it.

Last year Ken Brooke gave us a coin puzzle that generated some correspondence (see Pabular Vol 1 No.4, page 50) and Tony Faro has come up with another answer to the same thing. Arrange four ten pence and four two pence pieces as in (5). Disregarding the letters each side of the square has, when added, a total value of fourteen pence. The object is to move four coins only in straight lines without disturbing any of the others, and form a similar square in which each side totals twenty-two pence. Before reading on, close the page and try it. If you remember the original version given last year it won't help as this version is completely different!

(2) (10) (2)

Here is the solution. First, move the 10p in the middle of the right hand side across to A. Now move the 2p at the bottom of the L.H.S. to B and then the 10p on the L.H.S. to C. Finally, move the remaining 2p on the left side to D. You may now open the page and carry on reading.

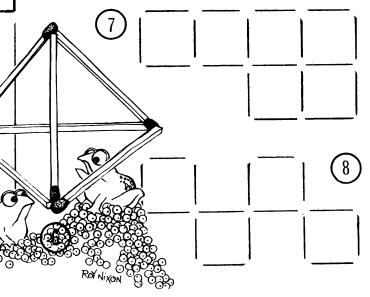

Tony Faro also gave us the following match problems. Can you make four triangles with only six matches? Lateral thinking won't help you. Make a triangle on the table with three of the matches then make a kind of tent with the remaining three, one end of each of these in the triangle corners, the other ends meeting together at the top (6).

Now take fifteen matches and arrange them in five squares as illustrated in (7). The problem? You must reduce the number of squares from five to four, only moving two matches. Fig (8) gives you the answer.

X Variations on the theme of a chosen card being revealed after the confederate/medium returns from outside of a room are many, but the following is neat. Remove the Ace to Nine of any suit and whilst your partner is outside have a card freely chosen from these and then mix this card with the other eight again, face down on the table. When the Medium returns you tap your finger on the back of each card in turn and then turn it face up. Naturally the chosen card is named. The secret is how you tap the first card — Fig.9 shows the code arrangement. As the audience will usually want it repeated you next use a method which should destroy their ideas of how it is done should they get that far. The next time you do not see the face of the card chosen and the person, who selected the card does the tapping.

This time you know the card because you are using a marked deck and as the cards are being spread around you contrive to get the chosen card into a position previously agreed with your partner. To enhance the effect further have the Medium fail to succeed with the cards face down but succeed with them face up when he grasps the hand of the person who taps the cards.

When next in a bar, remark casually that all beer tastes alike to you and you think that this must apply to most people. The immediate strong reaction you will receive is just what you want for the following stunt. Set up one or two glasses on the bar, one full of beer, one full of 'stout' (a dark beer). Blindfold each of those present in turn and handing them one of the glasses ask them whether they have 'beer' or 'stout'. The result is surprising — only about one in ten are correct!

"We're hoping for a boy."

Ed Schuman flew in recently from the U.S., left us with the memories of a good evening, and flew out. He also showed us the following numbers puzzle:

Write down beneath each other:

1000 20 1030 1000 1030 20 Your total? No, Not 5000 IT IS 4.100.

Present it as an addition sum, covering all the numbers with a piece of card etc. and lowering it row by row, asking the spectator to mentally add the numbers as they are revealed. Most normal people produce a total of 5000 but it should of course really be 4,100. (Try it—it works—we were 'normal'!) Ed emphasised that this was not original with him but that it has been arround in one or more versions for a long time.

A few years ago Larry Jennings paid us a visit and told of a stunt that was puzzling magicians. The fellow pulling it would take an empty bottle and stick in on the wall where it would remain suspended without visible support! The problem was solved for us at least who were in the Blenheim Bar one Monday night when Mike who kept his surname a secret did this stunt exactly as described.

There are no gimmicks. Just press the bottle firmly into the wall corner and move it . upwards an inch or two. It stays there! That's all.

COLLECTED THOUGHTS
john bragoli

An old card effect receives a new dressing in the following thought transference routine for the mentalist and his assistant.

EFFECT:-

Having been introduced to the audience by the performer the medium retires to another room. Spectator A thinks of the first word on any line of any book.

Spectator B remembers a card cut to in a pack of playing cards.

The performer exits from the scene of the operation and the medium returns. She correctly divines the thoughts of both spectators.

METHOD:-

An extra card is required, blank faced, with a back to match the rest of the pack. Beforehand, place an elastic band around the cards and have them in your jacket pocket with the blank card at the face of the packet. With a small pencil stub in the same pocket you are ready for action.

From the host's bookcase remove, apparently at random, about four books, including one which you previously decided to force. This same book is forced on spectator 'A'. Now have a page number and a line number called and invite spectator to think of, and remember the first word on that line. While he is locating the word drop your hand into your pocket, grasp the pencil stub and write the page and line numbers on the face of the blank card. This done, pull off the elastic band and transfer this same card to the top of the pack. Have the four volumes returned to the bookcase.

Produce the cards from your pocket and give them a brief shuffle, retaining the extra card at the top. Hand the pack to spectator 'B' requesting him to pull out a packet of cards from the centre of the pack and to note the face card of this packet and then drop the whole packet on the rest of the pack. Give him the elastic band and instruct him to slip it around the cards and put the pack on the table.

You now exit and the medium returns to the room. Pausing before the bookcase she studies the contents and finally removes a single volume. It is acknowledged by spectator 'A' to be the book used in the experiment.

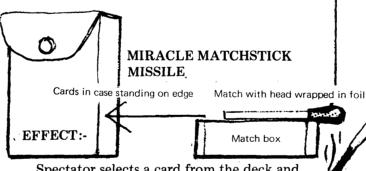

Saying "I'll return to you in a moment" the medium hands him the book and moves to the table where she picks up the cards. Now facing spectator 'B' she fans the cards, faces towards herself, and appears to concentrate, while actually memorising the pencilled figures on the previously blank card. A moment later she removes and displays the card immediately o its left, which spectator 'B' verifies as the card of which he had been thinking.

Returning to spectator 'A' the medium tells him she can now devote her full concentration to determining his mentally chosen word. Taking back the book she riffles slowly through the pages finally stopping at the selected page and revealing the chosen word.

Some readers will favour the use of a nail writer in place of the pencil stub. The choice rests with the individual performer.

The book may be forced by 'conjurers choice' or any other method the performer prefers.

If the performer has some facility with the nail writer the forcing could be eliminated. Spectator 'A' could be asked to stand in front of the bookcase and concentrate on any title and remove the book the performer secretly writing sufficient information on the blank card to enable the medium to find the same book. The initial letter of each word in the title should, in most cases suffice.

Spectator selects a card from the deck and remembers it (you hope!). He replaces the card and puts the deck back into the case.

Magician fires a matchstick 'bazooka' at the deck and when spectator examines his selected card it is found to have a hole burnt right through it.

PREPARATION:-

Take a duplicate of the Two of Hearts and burn a neat round hole in it. Place this card third last from the bottom of the deck. Place the undamaged Two of Hearts fifth card down from the top of the deck. Have a box of 'friendly' matches (the red ones) in your pocket and a piece of gold foil from a cigarette packet handy.

METHOD:-

The unfaked Two of Hearts is forced by placing the pack in front of a spectator and inviting him to cut the pack into five nearly equal heaps. Watch where he puts the heap which contains the top five cards of pack, and hand him this heap and ask him to deal one card face down onto the top of the other four heaps. He is now asked to look at the next card and remember it (this will be the 2H). Put all the heaps together and let him push his selected card into the middle. Bring this card to the top and palm it off. Hand him the pack and ask him to return it to the case. As he does so, go to your pocket and bring out the matchbox leaving the palmed card in the pocket.

Take two matches from the box and close it, placing it on the table near one edge. Wrap one match head very tightly in a small piece of gold foil (about one and a half inches by two inches). Place this prepared match flat on the box with the head protruding over the side about half an inch. Place the deck of cards standing on its edge about nine inches away from the matchbox and light the other match. Hold it under the wrapped head of the match on the box. After a few seconds the 'bazooka' match will suddenly explode with a nice flash and bang, and will fly towards the pack of cards.

When the spectator opens the card case and finds his card he will discover it has a hole burnt through it.

des colgan

KNIFE SHARPENING

bob read

Remember the plate/knife grinder? attributed to Nate Leipzig and described in Phonex and Gen and sundry mags. I'ts a great gag.

If you can't get a plate with a plain surface turn a patterned one round and use the back.

Anyhow next time Ken Brooke's has stock of those finger rings that squirt fire and brimstone cop a couple (one for me - they're as scarce as hens teeth) and as the knife touches the plate let out with the pyrotechnics - looks great.

Use the line "Used to be a knife sharpener but couldn't stand the grind."

OK, What do we talk about this time? Last time they didn't give me much space because the two-faced character on the front of the magazine took up all there was. Who have I seen since then? Yes, I remember—Mark Wilson. Who is he? Mark Wilson is the man responsible for, well, yes, 'The Magic Land of Alakazan'. And for the benefit of British readers that was a long-running American T.V. Magic Series and Mark was the man at the helm. Since then he has learnt another two tricks and these plus the ones he knew before seem now to keep him shooting back and forth across the Atlantic as often as I go to lunch.

Last time I was in the U.S. I had the pleasure of catching Mark in one of his long T.V. Spectaculars (one hour long, I believe) in a circus setting in which he performed quite a number of spectacular illusions plus one or two smaller effects and the overall result was almost excellence. Actually Mark was in town recently to organise a magic act that has been touring Europe for the last several weeks. By the time you read this the tour will probably be over and those concerned will have flown back across the Atlantic with their saddle-bags full of gold.

The act mentioned was headed by one Greg Smith, tall, dark, young and handsome, another guy called Chuck, and a beautiful blond whose name I have forgotten and she will hate me forever. The show was headlined by the British Pop Star 'Cat' Stevens. The tour took in Basle, Munich, Frankfurt, Gothenberg, Paris, London and Southampton, etc. Although it was a pop show, Greg + Co did a magic act of around 15 minutes.

Let me put on record my thanks to several people, namely Brian Miller, Alex McKeown and one El Don Diego. When Mark hit London he needed a habit of 8 doves and there was a problem. And there was a problem. You probably haven't thought about it, but in England doves only breed in the summer, whilst in California they breed all the year round. The problem, therefore, is buying doves in England, especially when you want eight. One or two, OK. But eight, in December? The three named above managed to scrape together the necessary amount of birds. Come to think of it I wish he had wanted another type of bird — I could have managed some of them. I can only guess at the success of the tour but I know that the London shows at the Albert Hall and the gigantic Odeon Cinema Hammersmith were complete sell-outs. Come back again Greg, and do tell me the blond's name.

So let's sneak another name in. Brian Buzzing. Do you know him? I'll bet the answer is no. I have known him for quite a few years. Brian is one of the few English performers who do close-up magic for money and currently he is appearing in a restaurant in Tunbridge Wells, about 35 miles outside London. (For the last two weeks I have been studying Harry Lorayne's book on memory development and I can't remember the restaurant's name.) However, for the last few months Brian has been appearing there every Friday evening and the result has been that the place is packed. If you want to sneak in and see him working you will have to book ahead. Talking to Brian recently he now says that the management want him to come on Tuesdays as well. The conclusion is obvious -Brian Buzzing is a draw — or if you like, close-up magic is a draw in a restaurant. Brian does the whole gamut of close-up — you name it, he does it. Restaurant patrons come back again and again with friends to see him and the result is that though it may be wrong to say his repertoire is second to none, he certainly has a lot of tricks.

Let's talk about me, and in case you wonder why I think I'm more interesting than anyone else I've mentioned so far, apart from the blond that is, just recently I had the pleasure of appearing at the Show Boat Restaurant, right bang in the heart of town. Apparently a singer who was to come from Israel to appear there was held over for a couple of weeks and fortunately for me, I was asked to fill in until he arrived. Luckily for me he still didn't arrive after the two weeks and I was asked to continue, which I did and enjoyed it immensely. The result was a show consisting of 3 comedy acts and a line of girls which, according to The Stage created some kind of a first in London night-life. Unfortunately for me, however, the powers that be eventually decided that they did need a vocal act and after the fourth week they found a very beautiful young girl singer who is being very successful in the show. Apparently, however, I was a success because the management asked me to continue,

CONTD. 198

THINK-A-RISE

EFFECT:-

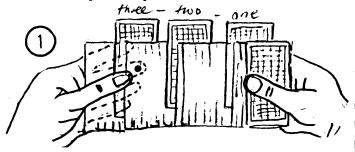

Magician spreads a borrowed shuffled pack of cards between his hands and asks a spectator to pull three cards out of the pack for about 2/3 of their length. Spectator nominates a card which he is shown and the pack is cut several times to lose the chosen card. Talking about the power of thought, the magician wraps a hand-kerchief around the bottom of the pack, pushes the protruding cards into the pack and asks spectator to merely think of his card. The thought of card rises from shrouded pack.

PREPARATION:-

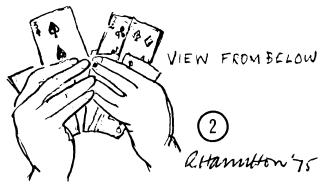

A small pellet of Blu-Tack is positioned on the nail of second finger left hand.

PROCEDURE:-

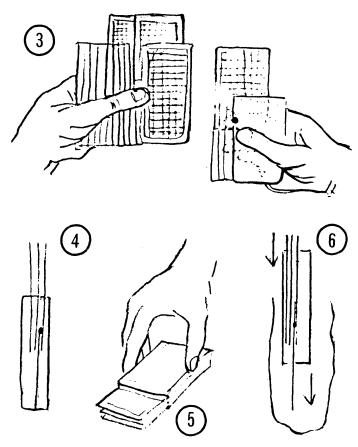

1. Spread borrowed shuffled pack face down between hands and ask spectator to pull out any three cards for 2/3 of their length (it could be 4 or 5 cards but we will use three for this example). Try to get cards pulled out so that there are about at least half-a-dozen cards between each selection. Position will now be as in Fig.1, where the dot represents pellet of Blu-Tack.

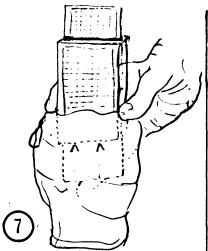

- 2. Keeping cards parallel to floor, ask spectator which of the three cards he wishes to think of, (keep stressing that he has 'thought' of a card during the whole of the effect), numbering them 1–2–3 from your right to left.
- 3. When he tells you, separate the cards to leave selected card at face of cards in right hand and as you do so roll the pellet of Blu-Tack from the nail onto the face of his card using the right second finger-tip. Fig.2 shows this just about to happen. Fig.3 shows position after separation with the pellet hidden beneath right second finger-tip.
- 4. Keeping left hand cards face down rotate right wrist to show spectator his card and ask him to think of it. Now replace right hand cards on top of left hand cards, square-up but keep the out-jogged cards in position. Fig.4 shows diagram of cards at this stage. Note how pellet of Blu-Tack attaches the card below to the selection.

5. Just to add some confusion you announce that you will cut the cards several times so that the position of the thought of card will be unknown. Place cards face down on table and perform a series of complete cuts, cutting between the out-jogged cards, Fig.5. It doesn't matter where the chosen card ends up.

6. Explain that by using the spectators 'thought waves' the merely thought of card will reveal itself. Take an opaque handkerchief and wrap it around the lower end of the pack, leaving sufficient space beneath the pack to accommodate the 'plunger' card. With the pack wrapped as explained and held by the sides in the right hand (backs of cards to audience at all times) push the three cards into the pack until flush with bulk. Fig.6 shows how, when cards are pushed in, the 'plunger' card i.e. the card attached to the selection, is automatically pushed into the hand-kerchief 'bag' and is thus unseen.

- 7. Ask spectator to really concentrate on his card holding the pack as in Fig.7 stretch the little right finger so that it contacts the 'plunger' card through the hank and gently and slowly push up this card. Naturally the chosen card will be pushed out at the top of the pack. Ask spectator for the name of the card and withdraw the card from the pack as follows:-
- 8. Cards are held in right hand, backs to spectator, on the right hand side of the body. Left grasps projecting card and tilts the card to the left, then withdraws it from the pack. This action tends to leave the pellet of Blu-Tack in the pack. Glance at the face of the card in the left hand, if no Blu-Tack showing toss face down onto table asking spectator to confirm that it's his. If the pellet of adhesive is attached to the card use the left thumb to scrape it off as you toss wrapped pack onto table. Pull the card from left hand and show spectator that his thought waves produced his card.

bob hamilton

boontityboonboonboon

KAN'T TEAR PAPER (2" x 3")100 Blanks Plus 12 SEX GAG CARDS £2.00 ($5.00) 'TOM' FITZGERALD, 2814 Washington St., Wilmington, Dela. 19802 U.S.A.

THE PAGEBOY SPEAKS, Contd.

in a different restaurant, upstairs, The Medieval Restaurant — and that is where yours truly is currently appearing every Thursday, Friday and Saturday. It's an odd situation — the room is not too large and probably seats 120 people at long tables, perhaps 20 to a table. The evening starts at about 8.15 pm, when the guests are greeted by a King Henry VIII character who introduces the entertainments after each course. I come on after the main course (top billing?). Being a medieval type banquet there is a certain amount of noise and rowdyism when the Page Boy appears. But we get by, fairly successfully.

Well that's all for this time, but may I wish you and yours a very happy Christmas and a very prosperous New Year.

Patrick Page

P.S. I named one, two ... anyway, quite a few people this month. That should sell a few copies. Oh, I forgot — the Blond can't read ...

P.P.S. Goodbye.

FOCUS, Contd.

Reacers of whis magazine will soon have a complete index of Volume One — which we will be sending out shortly with the January or February issue. This has been made possible sooner than expected by the kindness of a Dutch reader, Eric Eswin, who has sent us a copy of his personal index. He has promised to repeat this for subsequent volumes and we are very grateful to him.

It is now apology time. In the haste of meeting our publishing dates for the last issue, we omitted to give credit to Francis Giles for providing the cut-out silhouette of Walt Lees used to design the front cover. He has also given us several others for future publication and these will appear as appropriate — they are beautifully done and we would like to put our thanks to him on record.

If you have ever been present when a friend has given a particularly bad performance Alex Elmsley has collected the following selection of comments you could make:

- "Was THAT a show?"
- "You'll never do better!"
- "Well, you did it again."
- "That was a great trick you just did."
- "Tell me, was that your regular show?"
- "GOOD isn't the word."
- P.S. If you are searching for the problem of the bear hunter, he was at the North Pole where all bears are Polar Bears and are therefore white.

This being the final Pabular of 1975, we will permit ourselves a short look back over the year, the magicians we have met, the letters we have received. Quite a few of the latter contain moves or effects that are variations on tricks previously published and Roy Walton's effect Past Help which appeared in October was singled out for comment by Leslie May who writes: "... the names of Maskelyne, Houdini and Chung Ling Soo were greeted like old acquaintances, but the name of Blackstone, I am afraid, met no response. Seeing that a known name of 10 letters is required, I suggest DAVID NIXON is used. There is scope for humour here ..." He suggests the line: 'She was only a conjuror's daughter ... but she preferred Maskelyne ways." (Any readers who missed this trick might have another look as it is too good to pass by.)

Bob Haines visited us recently — and followed his visit with a letter in praise of two new publications from Paul Curry, 'Out of this World and Beyond' and 'Never in a Lifetime'. This last is a new red-black effect and Bob claims it is a thunderbolt for the spectator producing total shock — probably even more than 'Out of this World'. Ed Schuman from Colorado visited us briefly (beating inflation by changing pound notes into dollar bills), and, also from the US, Daryl Smith the Card Detective, consultant to several Casinos, showed us several moves with cards that left us puzzled--as did his statement that anyone who holds cards in the conventional manner when dealing should be suspected of cheating. He tells of watching some Greeks playing cards, who held the cards in the Biddle Position for dealing — which was from the bottom only. Supposedly this was to prevent second-dealing from a marked deck. If this method of dealing caught-on, it would raise some interesting possibilities. With the Biddle Grip the normal hold, card experts would have to practise dealing from the top.

Gordon Bruce, (who plays in the Scottish National Orchestra and is currently on tour in the U.S.) has promised us some effects for these pages. Someone who shall be nameless (though he had all of last month's issue to himself) said he thought Gordon was 'pretty good'. He can say that again!

The Magic Circle was recently honoured by a trip to their headquarters by Prince Charles. He was presented with the Jewel and Diploma together with the Circle's Silver Wand.

CONTD. 198

THE CONJURER

THE CONJURER is a brand new magic magazine, dedicated to the goal of instilling among magicians an awareness that the magic craft is a composite of many skills, and then teaching those skills with an honest and straightforward approach. Featuring major articles and essays, tricks, editorials, reviews, news and more. All this written like no other magazine in magic. It's provocative, informative and refreshing. It's got the biggest names in magic behind it; working for it; and reading it. If you are seriously interested in studying magic you should look into it. THE CONJURER is growing every day and is causing quite a stir in the magic world. It's unique.

See for yourself. Subscribe today.

Michael Albright
Editor
Jules Lenier
Associate Editor

One Year $10.00 (twelve issues)
Two Years $17.50
Three Years$24.00
Add $2.00 to all foreign orders

Conjurer Publications & P.O. Box 8181 & Van Nuys & CA & 91406 & USA

MAGIC IN FU

THE INTERNATIONAL MAGAZINE

Now in its 3rd year.

MAKE SURE EACH ISSUE IS SENT TO YOU REGULARLY. SEND TODAY ONLY £2.00 ($ 6.00) FOR ONE YEAR (SIX) ISSUES SENT POST FREE TO ANYWHERE IN THE WORLD.

32 glossy pages in each issue.

THE INTERNATIONAL MAGIC STUDIO, (RON MACMILLAN)
89 CLERKENWELL ROAD, HOLBORN, LONDON, E.C.1.

A NEW EFFECT BY ROY WALTON

KALEIDOSCOPE

An effect with a stunning climax. 3 Cards are removed from an ordinary pack and a fourth card with an odd back is used.

The audience have to guess which of the three cards matches the odd-backed card. This appears to be an easy task, but they soon realise that it is not as easy as they think.

The trick ends with a completely unexpected climax with strong audience appeal.

NO FAKE CARDS

HIGHLY RECOMMENDED

PRICE 60p

U.S.A. $ 2.00

L DAVENPORT & CO 51 Gt Russell St. London WC1.

01 405 8524

*A very funny, self working card trick, links with your watch to

RIGHT ET Clockaudacious

Beyond that all we will tell you is this — the principle is as old as the hills. It was shown to us by that amusing Dutch Award Winner, Dick Koornwinder. We sold out following one demonstration at a recent one day convention. It is sold on our usual money back guarantee.

Warning — If you are the serious type of performer 'CLOCKAUDACIOUS' will be useless to you. Please refrain from buying it. This is for those who enjoy bringing joy to the faces of the customers.

ENGLAND £1.75 * U.S.A. $6.50 AIR MAILED HOME * EUROPE £2.00

SOLD TO YOU ON A MONEY BACK GUARANTEE. OBTAINABLE ONLY FROM — 'KEN BROOKE'S MAGIC PLACE, 145, WARDOUR STREET, LONDON, W1. ENGLAND

Pabular is published after the second week in every month and is printed by Instance Printers, Paddock Wood, Kent, England. Editor Nick Bolton, Technical Editor Fred Robinson, Art Editor Eric Mason. Subscriptions may be obtained direct from the publishers, Pabular, PO Box 180, London SE12 8JJ, England or through many magic dealers. Price 50 pence per copy (US $1.25) surface post included. Air Mail extra depending on country and subject to UK rates. Editorial or content copy should be sent to Fred Robinson, 1 Crescent Court, 24 Crescent Road, New Barnet, Herts, England. Advertising rates sent on request — smalls 3 pence per word (US 10 cents). Dealer enquiries welcomed. Reproduction of old prints and historical magical items by kind permission of Tony Faro.

WAC OLONG

The Magazine of Close-up Magic

CLAIRVOYANT CHICANERY basil horwitz

In many tricks there is a move which is 'a bit of a fumble', and BASIL HORWITZ just in from South Africa who specialises in mental magic takes a particular interest in ironing out these kind of snags. It is efforts of this kind that bring about genuine improvements by making the presentation smoother and relieving the mind of the performer of the nagging doubt that someone may suspect that something is happening which they are not supposed to see. We have seen performers literally struggling to destroy the knots in the sympathic silks, or frenzidly fiddling to hook a finger ring on to a pull! These and other problems have been successfully solved and no doubt our readers have overcome similar difficulties. If so, why not let us know so we can pass your solutions on to other readers.

EFFECT With eyes closed and back turned a spectator successfully divines which envelope contains a card bearing an E.S.P. sign freely chosen by another spectator.

CLAIRVOYANT CHICANERY

REQUIREMENTS:-

Five cards each bearing an E.S.P. sign i.e. Circle, Cross, Wavy Lines, Square and Star. For close work the cards could be about the size of a playing card and for stage or platform large enough for the spectators to distinguish the different symbols. Five envelopes of a size to take the cards, one of which is marked with a pencil dot. A pencil in an inside jacket pocket, and in the same pocket a wallet to which a 'BOON' writer using Blu-tak for its adhesive is stuck near the top in a position from where it can easily be stolen when returning the pencil to the pocket.

WORKING:-

Invite two spectators to assist with the experiment, a lady to take the part of the clair-voyant, and a man to choose one of the symbols. Position the lady with her back to the proceedings and request her to close her eyes and keep them closed until you snap your fingers. Hand the E.S.P. cards to the man and turn your back on him.

You now ask him to select one of the cards and holding out the marked envelope behind your back request him to place his selection inside and seal the envelope taking care that nobody can see the sign on the card. This done, hand him the remaining four cards still with your back turned, ask him to put the remaining four cards, one into each envelope and seal them, again taking care that no-one sees the design on the cards. He is now told to mix the envelopes and put them into your hand which you extend behind your back for this purpose. Immediately the envelopes are in your hand turn and face front keeping the envelopes in view of the audience. It now becomes necessary to bring the marked envelope to the bottom of the packet. A simple way to accomplish this is to spread the envelopes out fanwise as you emphasise the impossibility of anyone knowing which E.S.P. sign was chosen other than the man who chose it, and no-one can know which envelope contains it as they have been mixed. During this recap note the position of the marked envelope and cut it to the bottom, if not already in that position.

Take the pencil from the inside pocket remarking that you will number the envelopes one to five to enable the clairvoyant to choose one without touching or seeing them. This is done fairly until you reach the fifth which is the marked one containing the chosen symbol, when you pretend to write the number five, actually writing nothing. Let the assistant who chose the symbol see the numbers on the first two or three envelopes as you write them gradually turning the packet preventing him from seeing what you are writing as you reach the last envelope. In any case when he has seen you write the first two or three numbers he will cease to be interested and assume that all is fair. Turn the packet face down and mix the envelopes but retain the unnumbered one at the bottom; mixed this way eliminates the possibility of the assistant from seeing the envelope without a number. Replace the pencil in pocket and steal the 'BOON'.

You are now ready to go into the finale. Request the 'clairvoyant' to name any number from one to five as you snap your fingers. Whichever number she calls out you secretly write on the envelope which has no number and contains the chosen design. Hand this envelope to the male assistant and ask him to name the symbol he chose. He opens the envelope and discovers his originally chosen symbol proving the lady has clairvoyant powers.

CASHMATCH will dexter

There are some tricks that are limited by time and circumstance to a short life only. I think this is going to be one of them. So let's make the most of it while we can.

A simple effect — magician produces a small handful of mixed coins; spectator does likewise. Magician (drawing attention to the fact that HE is making the first move) takes a coin from spectator's hand and holds it tightly closed in his fist. Spectator is told to choose one of magician's coins and hold it similarly concealed.

"What," says the magician, "are the chances that we have both picked coins bearing the same date? The odds must be thousands to one.... yet I think I have influenced your choice by pure will-power."

(What liars we are! The odds — even playing fair — could hardly be more than 70 or 80 to one. Work it out for yourself — which, of course, the spectator does not get time to do!)

So, both of you lay your coins down, and sure enough, both coins bear the same date.

It's certainly an odd coincidence, for both of you have offered for choice a handful of assorted coins of different values. And on later inspection, if anyone is nosey enough to demand proof, the coins are found to be of different dates.

The method? As simple as the effect. At the time of writing, it is a fact that ALL BRITISH TWO-PENNY PIECES BEAR THE DATE 1971. This does not seem to be generally known to the public — bless them for their trusting ignorance! How long we shall be favoured by this oddity of British coinage I don't know. But when they start making 2p pieces with other dates on them, this trick is a dead duck.

So...the magician's coins all bear the same date — 1971. It doesn't take long to collect a mixed bag of such coins minted in 1971. My own little lot consists of three 10p pieces, three 2p, three 1p, and a half-penny. I also have a Kennedy half-dollar dated 1971, which I sometimes use. More of this later.

These coins I carry in one of those leather bags with a ring round the neck. In a similar bag, I carry ten or a dozen similar coins BEARING DIFFERENT DATES. When a half-dollar is needed, I have one dated 1964.

You're ahead of me by now, surely. All you have to do when you choose one of the spectator's coins is to pick a 2p piece. Whatever coin he picks from your hand simply must bear the date 1971, unless you've been careless enough to use the bag of fair coins, and you wouldn't do that, would you? Or would you?

Having laid down your coin (his 2p piece) on the table or bar counter, slip all the other 1971 coins back into the bag and pocket it. Later, if anyone wants to examine your coins (it has never happened to me yet) bring out the bag of fair coins with your well-known nonchalance and let 'em rummage among them.

One word of advice, learned from bitter experience: carry a pocket magnifying glass with you. The date on these 1971 coins — just behind the Queen's head — is so small that it's hard to see.

Second word of advice: don't do this trick unless you KNOW the spectator has at least one 2p piece. Watch his money when he's buying drinks at the bar, and watch the change he gets. Or do another trick with coins first and see what he has (as the actress said to herself when the Bishop visited her).

That Kennedy half we mentioned above — you are probably wondering where it comes into the act. And so we pass on to.....

INFLATION SENSATION

It seems to me that the only people in Britain who are likely to have a half-dollar in their pockets are magicians. And there's not much doubt that the only ones who carry one of those giant half-dollars sold by the dealers, are also magicians.

Assuming you have a giant half and a 1971 Kennedy half, you'll need a Kennedy half with the date 1964, to match the jumbo. The normal Kennedy half (1964) is in the bag with your fair coins. The 1971 is in the bag of 1971 coins. The giant half is in your ticket pocket, or anywhere else handy enough to be picked up in the right hand easily.

Now — if you include the 1971 half among the coins for Cash Match, it is almost a certainty that it will be selected by the spectator, as it looks so different from your English coins.

If he does pick that one, good. While he is examining it afterwards, reach for your giant half and bring it out held against the heel of your right hand by the third and fourth fingers. Don't try to palm it cleverly; there's no need, as this grip conceals it quite satisfactorily. Rest your hand on the table top, palm down, thumb towards yourself, hand canted a little.

When the spectator has finished examining the normal half dollar, take it from him in left finger and thumb and lay it on the ends of the left first and second fingers. Look at it, turn it over a time or two, and comment: "They do say that inflation in USA is even worse that it is here"

Saying this, advance right hand to left as though to pick up the normal half with right thumb, forefinger and second finger. Turn left hand palm in towards you, continue leftward movement with right hand (which has closed thumb and forefinger as though picking up the smaller coin), and drop the giant coin on the table. As it falls with a clang, continue: "...and I believe them."

No doubt you (being a reader of Pabular) have your own two-handed switch for coins. If so, use it. If not, try my easy method. It HAS to be easy, if I'm to be able to do it, as I am most definitely dreadful at sleight of hand.

Going back to the spectator's choice of coin: if he doesn't pick the half-dollar, not to worry. When you bring out your bag of fair coins, tip them out on the table, and spread them. Someone is bound to pick up (more likely to grab than merely pick up) the American coin. Then you go ahead with the same patter and same switch. But this time you can draw attention to the date on the two coins.

Now I'm waiting for someone else to come up with a short easy routine using the giant Indian head one-cent piece. I've got one of those, too, and haven't yet found a use for it.

The Page boy speaks...

It is more than likely that a large number of the people who read this magazine knew that for quite a number of years I have been associated with a Magic Dealer, namely L. Davenport & Co of London. This, unfortunately, has come to an end. I have received so many letters and telephone calls from people in a panic, or worrying etc., that I thought I would mention here that I am no longer in this employment. Reasons? No reasons, though I must point out that I have spent 13 of the happiest years of my life standing behind a magic shop counter. Most magicians probably don't realise just how large a cross section of the public are interested in Magic. In those years I have met everyone from dustman and bricklayers to surgeons, barristers, company directors and millionaires. Even, (and you won't believe this) cabinet ministers. (For foreign readers, that is an acting member of our Government). I was actually asked not to mention that he was interested in magic and wild horses couldn't pull his name from me. Can you imagine the comments in the press when an important government decision was being made? Being able to meet people from all walks of life is an opportunity that few other occupations enjoy.

My place behind that counter has been taken by a longstanding friend of mine who prefers just to be known as 'Jake'. He is a nice guy, knows his magic and I am sure he will do well. I wish him luck and bon appetit — or whatever the French would say.

OK, that's that. What am I doing now? Well, for the first couple of weeks I did nothing but lie back at home and rest. I haven't quite got used to the fact that I don't have to get up early in the morning any more. Over the years there were so many things that I wanted to do but somehow never had the time. Now that I appear to have lots of time for them I find that I just haven't got a minute to myself because I am so busy doing other things that I hadn't intended doing. Like washing dishes and tidying up. (If my children were younger I'd be changing their nappies). I'm still doing a few shows here and there and just now that's all I intend to do until something turns up — which it probably won't. Maybe I'll retire, some people think I'm that old.

Change of subject. Jay Marshall is back in town. Also in town for the Magic Circle Christmas Show was a whole bunch of Americans, but unfortunately space only allows me to mention one — which was one act I hadn't seen before, namely John Shirley from Chicago, who can be described as 'The Wind-bag from the Windy City'. John blows up balloons for a living, which is quite different from those of us who do a little balloon modelling in our kid-shows. His act is a lesson to all performers on how to get the most from almost nothing. I remember he made a little tiny dog and had it jump through a hoop and he made a swan. That's it, I have just described his act. What I haven't described are all the little bits inbetween, the subtleties and wrinkles that can only come from a life-time's experience.

Now, a problem. We all have our weird little pipe-dreams and I have one but have no solution and so I hope someone will be able to give me one. The first time I went to Chicago Jay Marshall (sorry to mention him again), took me around the bars and I saw several performers working people like Heba Haba Al, Frank Everhart, Bobby Wonder, Jack Murray, plus several others. They impressed me so much that I probably stole most of their bits of business and am still doing them to this day. I did not see the Daddy of them all, Matt Schulien but I did meet his two sons. What struck me most about all of them was that they presented what I would call 'Instant Magic' - no long drawn out routines, boring tricks: you took a card and bang, they found it. One way or another. And they did it again and again, each time in a different way, though sometimes the same way.

I have discovered that this type of magic really works for me. I am not a particularly slow performer and like everyone else, I'm always looking for something different. Back to the problem; I have devised an effect and have several methods but none are suitable for my purposes. The plot is simple — but remember this is for close-up. A card is selected and returned to the deck which is ribbon spread across the table face up. The spectator looks through them and cannot find his card. At which point you raise your left coat sleeve with your right hand and there is the card. There are several methods, like having a duplicate there already and using a force etc., but for reasons I will not go into here, it has to be the same card. The card could be palmed-off and pushed up your sleeve behind your back but that isn't right either. Close-up card men will realise that what is required is some form of misdirection — the technique is unimportant. In the book 'The Magic of Matt Schulien' there was an effect in which he stole a card, folded his arms and pushed the card into his rolled up shirtsleeve. Something like this is required: simple, straightforward, obvious and no-one sees it. Problem over!

Patrick Page

AMIXEDBAG

It occurred to me, and maybe to others that with the pack stacked for thirteen cards of the same suit to fall to the dealer in a four handed game the pack could be false shuffled using the Zarrow at the same time dispensing with the usual initial strip-out. Simply make a straight cut at one of the cards forming the stack and Zarrow in under the top four cards.

Double riffle control:-

Riffle the outer end of a previously shuffled pack and ask a spectator to stop you at any point and let him peek at the card. Hold a break with the little finger and double cut to the bottom. Glimpse or mark the peeked card and shuffle it to the top of the pack.

Riffle pack again and invite a second spectator to stop and peek, holding break as before.

Cut off a section of cards above the little finger and insert them into the little finger break. Cut the pack at the break and place the bottom half on top. Both selections will now be together in the pack.

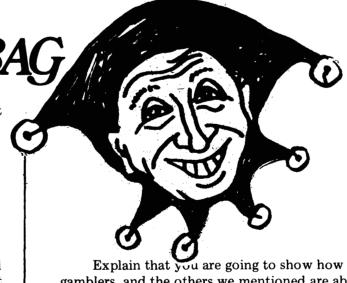

It is possible to separate the selected cards prior to disclosing them. After glimpsing the first selection and shuffling it to the top of the pack, assuming it is the seven of clubs, shuffle a further six cards on top of this card before having a second card selected. For disclosure explain that the value of the first card will find the second card. With the pack face up find the seven of clubs, the first selection, and the second selection will be seven below.

This idea can be taken further. If a block of six cards were cut into the second break and the section below the second selected card was cut to the top, the selected cards would then be seventh and eighth from the bottom of the pack. If this block of eight cards were cut to the top a third selection could be made and the block of eight cut off the top and inserted into the third break, at the same time forming a new break below the bottom card of the block. By cutting at this fresh break and completing the cut the selections would be seventh, eighth, and ninth, from the bottom of the pack.

With this information it is possible to have over forty cards selected — but then we are not all Ed Marlo's.

Middle Diddle:-

As we can't all deal from the middle, like some we know, the following fake middle might be I deal or should that be U deal.

Explain that you are going to show how gamblers, and the others we mentioned are able to deal cards from the middle of the pack. Double lift the top cards showing the face of the second card, and drop both cards as one on top of the pack. Taking the top card push it into the middle of the pack. Now second deal until requested to deal from the middle, then just deal off the top card.

Palm conscious:-

Riffle force a card, or stop the riffle at the spectators choice and glimpse. Fake palming the selection from the middle into the right palm. Request spectator to concentrate on his card and place the back of your own hand on his forehead. Explaining that the thought waves are getting through deliberately glance at your right palm, giving the spectator the impression that you are looking at his card. Name his card and watch him pounce at your right hand. He will be surprised to find it as empty as Pat Page's sporran.

Transpo plus:-

You need a ten pence and a five pence piece (Pat Page can use a two pence and a penny). Remove a five pence and a ten pence piece from the right pants pocket. Display the five pence but keep the ten pence concealed. Apparently throw the five pence piece into the left hand but perform the throw change and it is the ten pence which is dropped into the left hand. Suddenly you remember another five pence is required to perform the trick. Right hand goes into right trouser pocket and removes another five pence really the one which was already in the hand. Display the coin and close hand to match left hand which has been kept closed around the ten pence. With both hands above the table do the throw over sleight bringing both coins under the left hand so that the five pence is under the palm of the left hand and the ten pence under the fingers. Gradually move the left hand back towards the edge of the table until the five pence falls onto the knees. Explain that you are going to blow the coin under the right hand across to join the one under the left hand. Comment that you think you have blown too hard, raise right hand showing there is no coin there then left left revealing ten pence piece.

Ladies in waiting:-

Remove four Queens from the pack and drop them face up on the table, asking spectator if he can find the lady. Holding the pack in the left hand face down turn the bottom three quarters of the cards face up under the top quarter, using the half pass or other preferred method. Explaining the pack represents a block of flats show a couple of cards and comment "and you won't get many flatter than that." The four Queens represent four ladies of easy repute, one lives in the basement, (place one queen on the bottom). One lives and works on the first floor (place second queen face down in the pack). The third lady lives on the second floor (place third queen in the pack). The last lady lives in the top flat. With the left thumb riffle the pack until you get to the break between the face down and face up cards where you insert the last Queen. Hold break with left little finger and bring all the cards face down by secretly turning face-up cards face down. Comment that the police raided the flats and although the girls tried to hide, someone shouted shop and they all adopted their working positions. Fan pack and show Queens face up.

trevor lewis

IT'S IN THE BAG

You will require a polythene bag approximately 16" x 9" and a pack of cards which should be fairly new. Have card selected and put back into the pack bringing it to the top. Place the pack into the bag and as you do so palm off the selection using the one hand top palm. The pack is now squared up from the outside of the bag at the same time adding the chosen card to the pack on the outside. Wrap the bag around both the pack which is in the bag and the selected card which is outside. Hold the bag by the opening edge and let it unroll and the chosen card will appear to penetrate the bag. I know it looks cheeky but just try it. If you don't think it looks good ask Frank Farrow.

MORE FOR TESS

This technique for false counting in which a small packet of cards appears to contain a lesser amount than is actually the case is relatively simple to perform and completely deceptive in operation.

Once the mechanics are understood the sleight will become automatic after a comparatively short practise session, and no difficulty will be experienced in keeping an even rhythm, nor will there be any evidence for anyone to suspect that the performer is doing anything other than simply counting the cards.

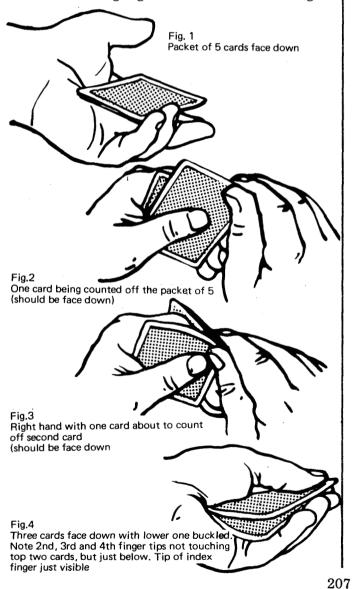

Assuming that it is required to count five cards as four hold the packet of cards by the inner corners between the centre of the palm and the outer phalanx of the little finger of the left hand (1). Drop the thumb diagonally across the top of the packet and bring the other three fingers up to the right side of the packet. The cards are now held in what will appear to be the usual one for anyone about to deal. Reference to the left hand in (3) should make everything clear particularly the position of the left thumb.

To commence the count the left thumb pushes the top card forward diagonally and its right outer corner taken between the right thumb and index finger (2) and pulled clear of the packet in readiness to take the second card. It must be understood that all cards as they are counted are pulled off the packet diagonally i.e. in the direction the left thumb is pointing.

The second and subsequent cards are taken in a special manner. The right hand moves in and the corner of the packet slides under right thumb and above the first card taken (3). The left thumb does not push the top card forward but remains static, neither does the right thumb move its position but merely eases its pressure slightly enabling the corner of the packet to pass between it and the card. Immediately the corner is under the right thumb this member renews its pressure and the right hand moves away taking the top card of the packet.

We now come to the move itself wherein the third and fourth cards are taken together as one card. The right hand comes in and takes these two cards as one in perfect alignment in exactly the way as the second card was counted off. It is the left hand which does the work, or more precisely the pad of the left index finger which presses upwards and inwards on the face of the bottom card just below its outer corner causing it to buckle as shown in (4) just as the outer right corner of the two cards are about to pass under the right thumb. The buckling of the bottom card does two things. The inward pressure takes the right outer corner clear of the two cards being counted off, and the upward pressure causes the right hand sides of the two cards to rise clear and out of contact with the left hand fingers making the removal of the two cards a simple matter. The last card is, of course, counted off in the same fashion.

In the initial stages of practice some difficulty may be experienced in preventing the thumbs from moving their position after the first has been counted off. The only movement of the right thumb is the slight easement of pressure to allow the corner to pass beneath it. The left thumb remains completely inert, except for exerting a little pressure when the bottom card is being buckled. Once the first card has been taken the only visible movement is that of the hands coming together as the cards are being counted. The only digit that moves at all is the left index finger as it buckles the bottom card. Even this movement is barely an eighth of an inch and is covered by the cards already in the right hand.

Apart from its use as a false count the sleight will be found useful in many of the small packet tricks. One example is the Xmas Calculator by Ed Eckl (see page 155 of No.1 Vol.2 of this magazine) in which it can be substituted for the Ascanio Spread, a sleight difficult to do really well. No claim is made that the routine using the 'More for Less' false count described below is any better than the original but it will provide an alternative method for those who wanted to add the effect to their repertoire but who did not care for, or had failed to master, the Ascanio move.

Arrange, Ace, two, three, four and ten, of any suit in the following order reading from the top:- two, three, and four face up, ten face down, and the ace face up. Show the cards by false counting the five as four, only the face up cards will be seen, the face down ten will remain hidden.

Take the Ace which is now at the top and push it, still face up somewhere into the centre of the packet, at least that is how it appears to the onlookers, but you make sure it goes in second from the bottom. This is a simple matter if the bottom card is buckled in the same way as during the false count.

False count the cards showing that the Ace has turned face down.

Take the two which is now at the top of the packet and repeat the moves done with the Ace, putting it second from the bottom and false counting the packet. The two will now appear to be face down and the Ace again face up.

The three is now the top card and a repetition of the moves used for the Ace and the two will cause this card to appear face down and two to re-appear face up.

Repeat the procedure with the four which is now conveniently on top and it also will appear face down, and the three will be again face up. In this case the face down four (actually the ten) ends up at the top of the packet so it would be more logical to put it on the bottom than in the centre of the packet. It practice this is not questioned, but if desired it is not difficult to make it appear that the card is being placed on the bottom of the packet when in reality it is going above the bottom card as required in the routine. Your patter should give some reason why this particular card is placed on the bottom of the packet rather than in the middle as were the other three cards.

To return to the routine the top face down card is pushed into the centre of the packet face down, again actually second from the bottom, taking care not to let its face be seen. False count showing all four cards face up.

Turn the packet over and fan out the cards revealing the ten spot.

fred robinson

SPOTTING GeSPOT

Performer shows a pack of cards and a paper-knife.

He has the usual card chosen, shown to the audience and returned and lost in the pack.

Taking the paper-knife he attempts to find the card by stabbing it (the knife) into the pack.

Casually showing both sides of the knife he plunges it into the pack, separates it at that point and withdraws the knife with one card below it (face-down of course). He turns the card over and is amazed to find it blank.

He asks what card was selected and is told (say) the Three of Clubs.

He expresses surprise and then glances at the knife. Turning the blade over, everyone sees that three club pips are now depicted thereon.

The explanation is simple. The card is forced (The Hindu shuffle force is ideal in this case). The pips are already fastened on one side of the knife, which is casually shown to be normal by means of the 'paddle-move'.

Have the three of clubs at the bottom of the pack and a blank card in centre of pack. This card has marked edges to ensure correct insertion of the knofe.

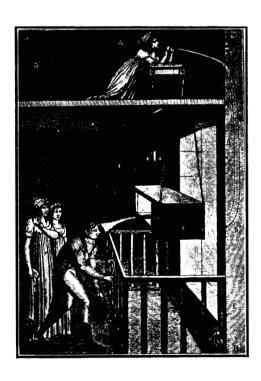

The alternative is to use a BLANK-FACED pack with exception of chosen card, which is normal.

This is returned and shuffled so that it is NOT near centre. The knife is plunged into the approximate centre of pack without any hesitation as might be required in first method above. It is therefore bound to be above ablankfaced card. The faces of the remainder of deck are not shown. And the trick ends cleanly and effectively.

There should be opportunity made for exchanging the blank-faced pack with a normal one of similar back design, but sans the forced card. This card is then added to the normal deck and used for further effects.

leslie may

WITHATWIST

EFFECT:-

Magician shows four blue backed aces. One by one they reverse a la 'Twisting the Aces'. These are then given to a spectator who also magically reverses an ace without knowing how. Offering to teach the spectator exactly how to do it the magician removes four red backed aces from his wallet. Now both the magician and spectator go through a procedure after which an ace is found reversed in each packet. Then comes the kicker finish wherein the two reversed aces change places.

REQUIREMENTS:-

Four blue backed aces and four red backed aces, and a small plastic credit card wallet in which to carry them.

SET-UP:-

Place each packet of aces face up on the table with the ace of spades second from the face in each. Transpose the two spade aces bringing the red backed one into the other blue backed packet and vice versa. Put both packets into different compartments of the wallet face down.

WORKING:-

Take out the wallet and remove the red packet, taking care that the other packet is not seen as you close the wallet and lay it on the table. Hold the packet of four cards face down — do the EC (Elmsley Count) placing the last card on the bottom. Do not refer to the colour of the backs at this stage. Flip the packet face up and spread showing that they are the four aces. Close up the spread inserting the little finger as you do so beneath the top two cards as if about to perform the classic pass. Keeping the little finger still in position turn the packet face down - do the half pass bringing the two bottom cards face up. The Automatic Half Pass explained in Epilogue Special No.2 by Ken Krenzel is excellent for this purpose. Finally bring the top card to the bottom in the form of a cut.

Tap the packet with the right fingers, EC showing an ace face up. Last card goes to bottom. Repeat the EC showing the same ace still face up, this time placing the last card on top of the packet.

Once again tap the packet and EC revealing the ace of spades face up. Explain that the ace of spades is the most difficult of all the aces because it has the most ink on it. Single buckle the bottom card and flip over the three top cards as one. Tap and EC showing a different ace face up, placing the last card to the bottom.

Now hold the packet squared in a dealing position and put the tip of the right index finger on the back of the top card near the outer end draw this top card back about an inch exposing the face up card beneath it. Still keeping the index in position put the tip of the second finger on the face of the exposed second card push the two cards forward as a unit until the top card is flush with the two bottom cards. The right thumb can be on the inner edge of top card as the cards are pushed forwards assisting in making the move and knowing, by touch alone when the top card is flush with the two bottom cards. With the face up second card now out-jogged for about an inch from the outer end of the packet tilt the cards so that only you can see the face of the jogged card and with the right hand fingers on the end of the out-jogged card secretly draw up the top card with the right thumb until it is flush with the out-jogged card and turn the two cards as one over end for end drop them onto the other two cards. The whole movement should be done without pausing and without exposing the back of the third card. A trial in front of the mirror will show what is required. Again tap the packet and EC show the last ace face up. Last card to bottom. Hold the packet in the dealing position again and pull back the top card for about an inch. This time buckle the bottom card with the left fingers and withdraw the two centre cards as one, ensuring that you do not flash the underside. Now turn the left hand to bring the cards face up, and onto these deposit the two cards (apparently a single face up ace) on top. Turn the packet face down and explain that you will now do the impossible and make the most difficult card, the ace of spades turn face up again. EC showing the four cards face down placing the last card to the bottom. Act puzzled and hand the cards to spectator asking him to tap the cards and spread them face down on the table. He does so revealing a face-up Ace. Now say you will teach him how to do the trick. Remove the blue backed packet from the wallet and EC showing that you have four face down cards, putting last card on the top. Turn the packet face up and show the four aces, and lay them on the table. Explain that in order to follow how the trick works he must turn his remaining aces face up. This done, you tell him that from now on he must do exactly as you do.

peter duffie

Put your aces of clubs, hearts and diamonds singly on top of the ace of spades face up. The order in which these go on top is immaterial, but he will think it is important and follow you precisely. Pick up your packet and count them face up reversing the order and bringing the ace of spades to the top. Turn your packet face down and hold in the dealing position. With the right hand take the top card turning it face up place it on the bottom. Repeat with the new top card. Now turn the packet over and slide out the bottom card — turn it face down and replace on the bottom. Adjust your packet so that it is lying flat on the left hand, and cover it with the right hand. Both packets now have the ace of spades face up. You now tell the spectator he can relax as all the work is over. This is important to prevent him from continuing to follow your actions, because you now EC your packet placing the last to the bottom, remarking that you are 'Just Checking' that you have taught him correctly. This is also silently implies that his four cards are face down. Replace your packet between your palms. Telling the spectator that from now on he must again follow your actions you both spread your cards showing the face up ace of spades in both packets. Now comes the kicker as you slowly turn your ace of spades over and the spectator does likewise showing that somehow the aces have changed places.

On February 20th Walt Lees will be lecturing to the London Society of Magicians and explaining the tricks that he recently described for Pabular in the November issue (Vol.2 No.3). This has been our first 'one man one issue' feature and it is good to see that this magazine is serving a good purpose — many magazines are published and then filed away. Walt will be using Pabular as it should be used and he is the right man to do it.

This issue has brought a lot of good comment from our readers and in particular the article called 'Pontification' in which Walt outlines his personal approach to close-up magic. If comments are to be judged by number, then further articles of this nature would be useful.

Another article on a theme away from trick descriptions was contributed in Vol.1 by Fred Kaps and earlier this month he was in London again, on a private visit. During his stay your Technical Editor was invited over 'for a chat' in company with Ken Brooke. The 'chat' lasted for four hours and incredibly a pack of cards never appeared. Some coins did appear though, and during the evening Fred did a coin trick that must be the coin trick to end them all. To say the impact is strong is an understatement as it staggers even seasoned professional performers. This is not an advertisement but the trick can be done regardless of conditions, seated, standing at a bar, and is angle-proof. It has all the ingredients of a close-up classic trick. Please do not ask how it was done - it was performed twice in the evening and its method still remains unfathomed. The following evening Ken invited all the Pabular staff to join his party and we saw Fred in action again entertaining non-magicians. It was a rewarding privilege and completely convinced us that Ladies do like tricks especially if the performer is Mr Kaps.

London is always having visiting magicians and recently here for a Parkinson TV show was Harry Lorayne. He memorised (?) a pack of cards and followed by repeating the names of the entire audience. It was a truly impressive feat that even amazed Jack Avis who was there. And that is quite a feat in itself.

Preceding the recording Harry took about thrity minutes getting the names of 200 or so guests. His finale, in which all are asked to stand up and then sit down when their names are called, is very strong. He throws in extra bits of information for good measure and it is definitely the best presentation of a memory act we have seen.

Magicians in South Africa need not be disappointed this Easter. In fact they ought to be very pleased because the Rand Magic Circle have organised a Safari Easter with close-up performers Ricky Jay and Derek Dingle together with Dr Peter Becker on 'African Magic, Mystique and Mystery' — the two visitors should give a good spectacle with their contrasting styles. Derek Dingle with his superb technical skill and original effects and Ricky Jay who is able to extract more comedy from a pack of cards than probably anyone you will ever see. They are a truly formidable pair, especially when together in a close-up session. We remember well their visit to this country.

From South Africa, Cyril Faranoff has made an interesting 'request' - he would like to see an article on the type of magic a business-man or executive can do for clients during breaks in meetings etc. A kind of 'Businessman's Commercial Magic' that is away from simply bringing out a pack of cards which would often be inappropriate. To us it would seem that impromptu tricks with articles that are carried on the person are needed, performed in a casual manner. A 'show' would not work and special apparatus tricks would not fit in. Someone who might have good ideas on this is Alan Shaxon who is currently preparing for a five month cruise. One (at least), of his effects would be ideal and it is the old cigarette varnish — just the tube on a piece of elastic that everyone knows. But Alan is different. He vanishes the cigarettes one after the other, as fast as they are offered to him, and he uses just the single fake. Maybe he has an asbestos lined pocket but he certainly has the misdirection that makes the trick. Frank Farrow saw him do the routine and said "We had them in the studio for a few pence and couldn't sell them."

A final note, also from South Africa, from Jack Yates, an early Pabular subscriber. He has recently opened 'Ron Aldo's Magic Studio', Suite 99, 11th Floor, 191 Jeppe St, Johannesburg. We sincerely wish him the best of luck.

Our last word this month is for Ron Macmillan. Reported elsewhere, his 'International Day of Magic' was a great success, and deserved to be. Through his kindness we were given the chance to display Pabular which enabled us to meet some of our subscribers.

It was appreciated.

THE INTERNATIONAL MAGAZINE

Now in its 3rd year.

MAKE SURE EACH ISSUE IS SENT TO YOU REGULARLY. SEND TODAY ONLY £2.00 ($ 6.00) FOR ONE YEAR (SIX) ISSUES SENT POST FREE TO ANYWHERE IN THE WORLD.

32 glossy pages in each issue.

THE INTERNATIONAL MAGIC STUDIO, (RON MACMILLAN) 89 CLERKENWELL ROAD, HOLBORN, LONDON, E.C.1.

Prepare to meet thy BOON!

The wonderful thumbwriter that HAS to be the best – still the greatest little gimmick in the world – 20 years continuous sales can't be wrong! Simple, invisible. NOT a nail/writer. £1.00 or US $2.50 inc. Air Mail. Eric Mason, 39 Dennis Park Crescent, London SW20 8QH, England.

KAN'T TEAR PAPER (2"x3") 100 Blanks Plus 12 SEX GAG CARDS £2.00 ($5.00) 'TOM' FITZGERALD, 2814 Washington St., Wilmington, Dela. 19802 U.S.A.

Friday evening, the 2nd of January, 1976. Time around 7.45pm. An expected knock on the door of the flat from a friend of long standing. Food and drink until what is, for us, an early night.

Following day, he digs around the studio looking over the bits and bobs, a pastime which I know gives him a lot of pleasure and, on odd occasions, a lucky find to add to that pleasure. Later, we talk over old, happy times when we were younger and, for me at any rate, a little more active. Another EARLY (2.45am) night.

Sunday — we walk together around St James — The Mall — The Park — Whitehall, back to the Soho pub — Lunch and a nap — Great stuff this, we both needed it — Evening time and we are joined by another fine English cardician, Fred Robinson — Later That Evening — It Happened!!!

AT MY REQUEST -

It happened again early on Monday evening. Robinson had no intention of missing a minute and we invited Terry Herbert and Vic Pinto along — It Happened Again — Another Performance of Just One Trick — Robinson had seen it the previous evening — For Herbert and Pinto it was the first time — The two experienced magicians actually screamed at the outstanding results laid before them.

GENTLEMEN -

Work on the trick I am talking about started many years ago. Recently, the man I am talking about put the final nail in the coffin and has recently added it to his stock in trade. I am indeed honoured that he has placed the trick in our hands for, in my working life, I have seen and sold much fine magic — This Is THE GREATEST Coin Trick Ever!!! — Ask Robinson — Herbert or Pinto. Have them describe their joy on this wonderful occasion.

Frank Farrow and Ken Brooke place on record their grateful thanks to the one and only -

'FRED KAPS'

For parting with a magical masterpiece which is the first of a series to be sold by this establishment. The props will be the kind you expect. The description, direction and art work will be the kind for which we have become famous. The great magician has worked everything out to perfection — You will be able to perform this Miracle Magic anywhere, under any conditions, sitting, standing, people all around. No bulk in your pockets. You have read the advertisements before. You've been in doubt. If you are still in doubt, just remember one simple thing —

The magic this establishment offer is sold to you on the understanding that if you are other than pleased Your Money will be Refunded less the postal and handling charges involved. We do not sell a million tricks and perhaps hit two or three new ones each year. We have thousands of satisfied clients the world over. We handle only that which is the very best.

PLEASE -

Do not write for details of the above yet. The props are now being made and will be advertised when ready. Our catalogue is now out of print. Another is being prepared and will be sent out when completed. It costs 50 pence here or Europe. $2.00 cash or $3.00 cheque to the U.S.A. We have no free lists. No stamp, no reply.

THERE'S NO PLACE LIKE -

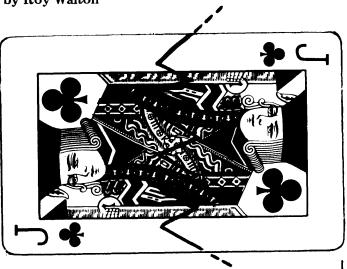

'KEN BROOKE'S MAGIC PLACE' 145 WARDOUR STREET, LONDON W1 ENGLAND Just you call and see!

Phone 01-734 9240

Pabular is published after the second week in every month and is printed by Instance Printers, Paddock Wood, Kent, England. Editor Nick Bolton, Technical Editor Fred Robinson, Art Editor Eric Mason. Subscriptions may be obtained direct from the publishers, Pabular, PO Box 180, London SE12 8JJ, England or through many magic dealers. Price 50 pence per copy (US $1.25) surface post included. Air Mail extra depending on country and subject to UK rates. Editorial or content copy should be sent to Fred Robinson, 1 Crescent Court, 24 Crescent Road, New Barnet, Herts, England. Advertising rates sent on request — smalls 3 pence per word (US 10 cents). Dealer enquiries welcomed. Reproduction of old prints and historical magical items by kind permission of Tony Faro.

CARD SHARK by Roy Walton

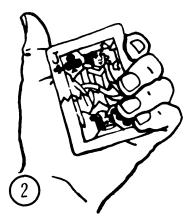

PERFORMANCE:-

Remove the pack from the case but leave behind in the case the half card that was on top of the pack. Close the card case and leave it on the table.

Tap the appropriate end of the pack on the table a couple of times, which will cause the half card to square up neatly with the end of the pack. Keep your hand positioned on the long sides of the pack to prevent the half from breaking through during the tapping action.

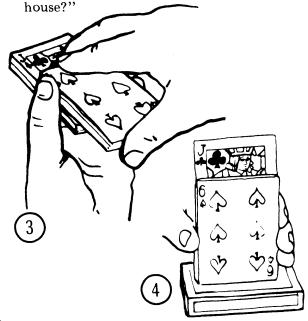

Position the pack face up in your left hand as in (2) with the third and fourth finger tips obscuring the index corner of the King of Clubs, and lower the outer end of the pack so that the face card becomes visible to the spectators. You will find that you can hardly see the zig-zag line across the centre of the cards.

Talk about the film 'Jaws' and say you would like to illustrate a sequence from the film with a pack of cards. Point to the face card with the right hand remarking "The Jack of Clubs will represent a swimmer." Twist the left hand so that the face card is away from the audience and with the left forefinger push about half the upper section of the pack down slightly causing it to injog. With the right hand remove this injogged section and replace it on the face of the pack positioning it so that it is injugged for about one and a half inches. Turn the left hand bringing the face of the pack towards the audience and place your right thumb on the short inner end of the injogged block and the tips of your fingers on the face of the Jack of Clubs, (3). Now move your right hand forward so that the injogged section is brought square with the rear portion. This action will automatically leave the Jack of Clubs outjogged from the end of the pack for about one and a half inches. Leave the pack in the left hand with its face towards the audience.

Continue your story saying "the pack represents the sea and the card case represents the shark." With the right hand slide the card case below the cards being held in the left hand and rest pack on the case, (4). Say, "the shark is at the bottom of the sea, and the swimmer is swimming in the sea. Suddenly, gobble, gobble, gobble and look what has happened." Slowly remove the protruding Jack of Clubs with the right hand revealing the half card with its zig-zag cut producing an amusing reaction from the audience. After a slight pause request a spectator to look inside shark (card case) where he finds the other half of the Jack of Clubs. Look at the spectators and say, "is there a surgeon in the

NUTTIDIE BOX mark weston

The following idea has been tried and tested in the close-up arena and found to be an entertaining routine.

EFFECT:-

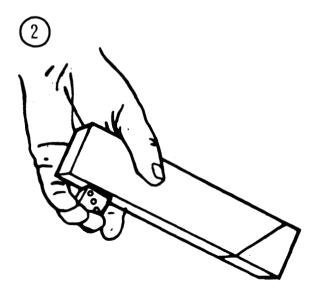

After emptying a pencil box of its contents the performer opens both ends of the box and proves it to be empty by allowing the audience to see right through. The box is then closed and a small die is rubbed along the box, and on opening one end a die falls from it on to the table. By repeating the process of rubbing a die along the top of the box the performer seems able to produce an endless supply of dice.

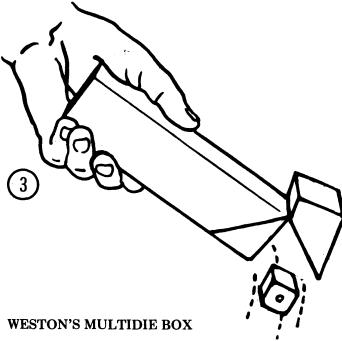

THE BOX:-

It is one that originally contained a dozen pencils. A small square opening is cut in one side in such a position that it is hidden when the flap marked A is folded back onto the side of the box. Fig.1 shows the type of box and the position of the hole in relation to the flap. The opening I use is about three-quarters of an inch square giving ample room for a five-eighths inch die to pass through. To present the routine have box filled with pencils and one die in the right outside jacket pocket and another in the left outside pocket. There is no other preparation.

Holding the box in the left hand with the fingers covering the secret opening show it all round to the audience, and with the right hand open the bevel edged end of the box and allow the pencils to fall onto the table. Open the opposite end (this end should always points towards the performers body) and hold flaps to sides of the box so that flap A hides the secret opening, allow spectators to look through the empty box from the bevel edged end. They will be satisfied that the box is empty. Close up the box and place on the table with the secret opening next to the table top.

Both hands go into the outside pockets and each bring out a die. The one in the right hand is displayed to the audience but the one in the left remains hidden. It appears to the spectators that the performers hands go to both pockets because he is not sure which one contains the die. The right hand now picks the box up from the table, and places it into the left, the opening going over the hidden die automatically loads it into the box (see Fig.2). The right hand now rubs the displayed die on the top of the box from back to front along the length of the box. The left hand tilts the box and something is heard to slide to the front end of the box. The right forefinger lifts up the end cover and the die appears and falls onto the table (Fig.3).

The original die is placed onto the table and the die just produced is apparently placed into the right pocket but in reality when the hand is in the pocket it is taken between the third and fourth fingers and brought out again. There must be no hesitation in the action of putting the die into the pocket and the hand coming out again to take the original die.

The right hand picks up the original die and as it moves twoards the box to commence the rubbing action, the die concealed between the third and fourth fingers is allowed to drop onto the left hand fingers (see Fig.4). The right hand hides any movement of the left fingers as it loads the die into the box through the opening. The moves are done in a fraction of a second and are completely hidden at all times.

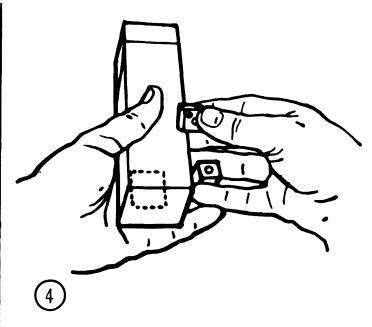

This second production is made by repeating the rubbing movement of the visible die along the top of the box and tilting it letting the die fall onto the table.

By repeating the moves for the production of the second die, the number of dice it is. possible to produce is limitless.

NOTE:-

Throughout the routine the box must be either in the left hand or on the table. It must never be taken into the right hand.

It will be obvious that the box lends itself to the production of other items providing they are of suitable size to pass easily through the opening in the box. With this in mind we offer the following idea which begins and ends with the production of dice, but in between other items make their appearance. The routine is accompanied with presentable patter lines to fit the production.

PATTER:-

"Here's a thing with a box and a DIE
A rub on the box — and a mighty big sigh
Watch closely now — here comes the DIE"
(Produce die)

"Thank you Len — I'll show you again."
"Bye Bye American pie — A rub on the box and here is the DIE"

(Produce die)

"There's this young lady from Brazil
All the boys know she's on the pill
(Produce pill)

Her husband is a Brazilian, but Unlike his wife he's a bit of a nut"

(Produce nut)

(Magician now addresses lady in the audience)

"If I say you have a lovely figure will you hold it against me?"

(still to lady) "Would you like me to give you a ring?"

(Produce ring)

(still to lady) "I've only got sixpence where could we go?"

(Produce sixpence)

(Now to audience) "There was once a fella named Ghandi —

Who went into a pub for a brandy"

(Produce brandy and say "Cheers")

Audience will applaud at this stage — so continue with the die productions to conclude as you say "BYE, BYE, NEVER SAY DIE"

As you can see from the above, various items are produced during the routine — these are switched from the right coat and trouser pockets — the arrangement of these articles is as follows. One die and the pill (a small plastic pink ball) in the match pocket of the right coat pocket. Second die in left coat pocket. In the right coat pocket proper place the ring and nut (this latter a plastic nut from a kids 'Bilofix'). Finally put the sixpence and brandy (a cocktail stick shaped to suit the hole) into the trouser pocket on the right side.

ORDER OF PRODUCTION:-

Remove the two dice as in original routine—work with these until ready to make switch for pill, leave die in match pocket and come out with pill palmed. Produce pill and leave in right coat pocket, hand coming out with nut palmed. Produce nut and place in right coat pocket coming out with ring palmed. Ring is produced and left in right trouser pocket coming out with sixpence. Ring is finally exchanged for brandy in right trouser pocket and when brandy is produced it goes into match pocket and a die is brought out to continue die production to complete the routine.

If it is felt the routine is too long it can be reduced even to the point of producing the brandy as a twist at the end, although the dice routine is strong enough to stand on its own.

Other items may be produced so here are a few that may appeal.

A Ball "Having a ball."

Cocktail watch — "Time to go etc."

Toy soldier — "Man of action."

Begin with small dice, and switch in large ones
..... water box with toy watering can.

Remember to make your switches clean at all times. The more you practise the greater the reward. Hope you like it.

ON FARO FELQN

0000000

This article was received as a letter and as it contains some valuable tips for faro shufflers plus suggestions for Faro Felon by Mark Scudiery which appeared in the April 1975 issue we decided to print it in full:—

Mark Scudiery's "Faro Felon," in the April 1975 issue of Pabular is a good illustration of how faro shufflers will persist in using a 52-card deck for their effects when a 53-card deck (Joker added) would make things easier all the way around.

In the first place, it is easier to cut at the "centre" of a 53-card deck than it is to cut at precisely 26 in a 52-card deck. With a 53-card deck, it doesn't matter whether the 26- or 27-card portion is held by the left hand or the right, as long as you faro the smaller "half" into the larger "half" — a so-called "straddle faro."

In the second place, in almost all the faro tricks involving face-up cards (which capture chosen cards or end up next to chosen cards), you do not have to worry about whether or not the reversed card or cards are in the upper half or the lower half of the deck as you get ready to do your final faro. Just do another straddle faro ("in" or "out"), and the positioning will take care of itself.

In the third place, the use of the Marlo incomplete faro peek is fascilitated if a straddle faro is used (an odd number of cards). If a 52card deck is used, there will be a "loose" card at the top or bottom of the incomplete faro which will have to be supported by the left fingers or thumb, making the handling a little more awkward and a little more suspect. With a straddle faro, using a 53-card deck, hold the 27-card portion in the left hand and riffle the 26-card portion with the right. The 26-card portion is held as in a kind of 'vise' by the "outer" cards of the 27-card portion, making the handling sure and casual. You can even hold the projecting 26-card portion without touching it at all with the left fingers (you can even hold the arrangement horizontal to the floor without spilling the cards!). One final advantage which many faro shufflers don't seem to know about: more often than not, it doesn't make any difference if one of the "halves" cut off just before the faro weave is not either 26 or 27 cards. The two portions can be 25 and 28 or even 24 and 29. (If it is worse than this, you need glasses!). All you have to be sure of is that the smaller portion is faroed precisely into the centre of the larger portion — that is, the "extra" or "loose" cards of the larger portion (those not meshed) are the same in number at both ends, or top and bottom. And even if you do this wrong (maybe you should do rope tricks), you can easily rectify the mathematical situation by double-cutting one or more cards from top to bottom or bottom to top, according to the position you want your chosen card to be.

(This is getting to be a treatise. I got started and can't stop!).

Doing a Zarrow-type shuffle in conjunction with the faro is, I think, bad psychology. Both shuffles belong to the same family of shuffles—interweaving the cards at the ends. Using the Zarrow and then doing a faro highlights the faro

ON FARO FELON by Charles M. Hudson

as a special move, something you have to do to make the trick come out right. After all, the faro shuffle is supposed to be a shuffle, a convenient in-the-hand method of mixing the cards. Let it be your "false shuffle".

If you must do a false shuffle in conjunction with the faro, I would suggest another in-the-hand shuffle, the overhand shuffle, pulling the cards off in small batches until you reach the centre of the deck, where you run cards singly until you are safely past the chosen card.

In Mr Scudiery's effect, an incomplete faro peek and control will put the selected card in the precise centre of the deck, which in this instance is 26th (the 2 black K's have been removed). An overhand shuffle of the kind described above will keep it at 26, where it has to be for Mr S's trick to work with a 53-card deck.

Mr S's approach is by no means new, of course. Marlo has a number of fine effects in which, by the use of the faro, one or more face-up cards locate a chosen card; and Paul Swinford, in his Faro Fantasy describes one, called "The Seekers," which is very much like Mr S's, the only real difference being that the two face-up locators ("the seekers") are removed from the deck after the card is noted, and then they are placed on top and cut into the deck. The straddle faro follows.

But to conclude with my original emphasis: Use a 53-card deck for your faro tricks.

charles m hudson

don alan lectures

For close-up magicians there was no place like Vic Pinto's studio on the evening of Tuesday, January 20th and the reason was a lecture by Don Alan. Don, who performs in American 'Hospitality Rooms' where business executives entertain their clients and has made many T.V. appearances, gave us an evening that will long be remembered.

After a few words from Ken Brooke, who made it all possible, Don seated himself, placed his bag by his feet, and obtained four spectators to sit beside him, two on either side, to act as assistants. Then he immediately went to work and it was at once obvious from the manner and style in which all this was carried out that we were about to witness magic from someone who knew exactly what he was doing. Props were obtained either from his pockets or the bag, and his experienced handling of the spectators, timing and good magic made the next sixty minutes pass by without those present being aware of time.

A layman reporting the lecture would probably have described it something like this: he pushed a lighted cigarette through a coin, made chosen cards rise from the pack, passed coins from one hand to the other, stabbed a selected card from a pack which was in a paper bag, made small cards suddenly turn into a normal pack, and produced a large steel ballbearing from a bowl that was too small to take it. He finished by producing a huge nut from under a hat — the kind that is normally on the end of a bolt.

The above list is a lesson in itself, because the effects produced can be explained in single sentences. Not for Don Alan the long drawn out complicated tricks with interminable counting of cards and lacking punch we conjurers like to show each other. The entertainment of the performance was such that one who was present confessed that after the first five minutes he could not have cared less what methods were used to achieve the effects, which again is a lesson in itself. The coins passing from hand to hand provided further lessons for those who use magic to entertain lay persons. When about to perform the trick Don took from his pocket a small container and remarking that he required six coins for this trick, removed the lid and tossed out a number of coins on to the table. To be precise there were seven. These were gathered up and placed in two rows of three coins and one thumb palmed in the process. No attempt was made to 'prove' that he was using only six coins by the use of clever moves which would only cause spectators to wonder what the performer was 'doing' and would not add one iota to the entertainment value of the trick. He merely stated that he required six coins and 'proved' it by making two rows of three coins, no further proof being required when performing to people other than magicians. The other lesson in this particular effect, the complete absence of moves and the directness of method which was basic. When sliding three coins into the left hand singly the thumb palmed coin is added and the remaining three coins picked up with the right hand. A simple gesture is made and two coins fall from the right hand, the third kept back in the thumb palm. The left hand opens and four coins fall onto the table. The same process is repeated twice more until all three coins have passed into the left hand. The relatively simple technique required in this method makes no demands on the performer who is thus able to concentrate on what he is supposed to be about, entertaining his audience. This is the attitude of the professional and is in direct contrast to the magicians' magician who will possibly spend time borrowing coins, which have to be returned, introducing coins of a different denomination to prove something or other, and finally making each coin vanish using different methods for each. All this is no doubt very clever but does nothing to increase the entertainment value and only succeeds in confusing the spectators, whereas the effect using the same simple method we saw used by Don, without embellishment, is what is required in professional work. This particular trick has been chosen in an attempt to convey the lecturers approach to magic which is of more importance than any 'secrets' he may have revealed during the course of the evening. The message was loud and clear for anyone contemplating performing close-up magic professionally. The tricks chosen must be simple in effect and capable of being performed whatever the prevailing condition. The act must be started without any signs of preparation and must flow from start to finish without any stage waits and be entertaining throughout. The audience must be involved both mentally and physically and at no time feel they are being performed at, and two or three times during the act must be literally hit between the eyes with some astounding production.

The above requirements are by no means complete but whatever has been left out it is a fair bet that Don Alan has it. It was a great evening an even greater pity that so few had the opportunity to experience what professional close-up magic is all about.

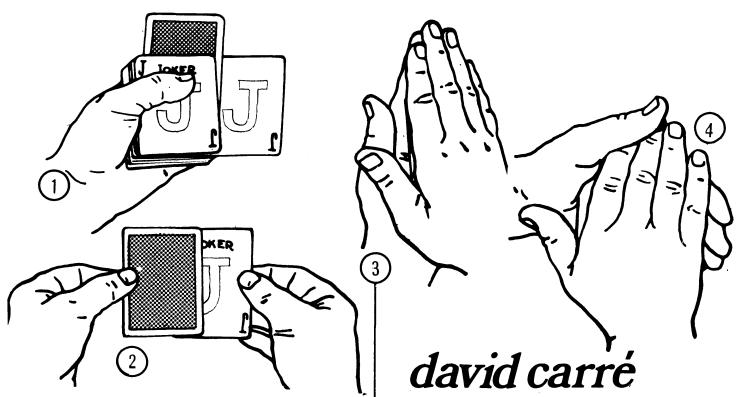

Fred Robinson

The effect in which a card is vanished only to reappear face up in the pack is not new, but this method is fairly easy and may appeal to those who liked the effect but found the previous published ways of achieving it unsuitable for one reason or another.

Three Jokers are required. One is face up second from the top of pack and the othet two face down on the bottom.

Turn the pack face up and get a break above the two bottom cards with the left little finger. Put the two Jokers at the top of the face up pack face down on the table and take the pack in the right hand with the fingers at the outer end and the thumb at the inner end (Biddle position) at the same time transferring the break from the left little finger to the right thumb. Swing cut about half the pack into the left hand, that is, lift the cards with the right index finger which swivels them to the left and toss them into the left hand. You should now have about one half of the pack in the left hand face up and the others face up in the right hand, the thumb holding a break above the two bottom cards. The left thumb now pulls cards singly onto its packet from the top of the packet in the right hand inviting spectator to call 'stop' at any time. When he does so he is asked to remember the top card of the left hand packet. Push this card about an inch over the side of the packet with the left thumb, and with the left side of the right hand packet do the secret addition move turning the selected card face down onto the left hand packet at the same time releasing the two cards below the break held by the right thumb letting them fall onto the chosen card. With the left thumb push the apparent selected card face down onto the table beside the two face down Jokers, and drop the packet in the right hand onto the one in the left hand, taking care not to expose the face card of the left hand packet as you perform these two actions as this card is different from the one originally next to the selection prior to the secret addition. At this point there are three Jokers face down on the table, the spectators believing them to be two Jokers and the selected card, when actually the latter is somewhere in the middle of the pack. Turn the pack face down in the left hand and take a break with the left little finger beneath the top three or four cards. Pick up one of the Jokers and put it face up on top of the pack. Take the second Joker and apparently put it also face up immediately beneath the one face up on top of the pack, but actually pushing it into the break. Do not push it in flush with the pack but leave it jogged over the right side of the pack. Pick up the remaining Joker, apparently the chosen card, and taking care not to expose its face push it in immediately below the face up Joker on top of the pack letting it extend over the outer end of the pack as shown in (1). In the action which follows you appear to square up the three cards and remove them from the pack. What really happens is that only the two top Jokers are taken, the one which was put into the break being pushed in flush with the pack with the tips of the left fingers during the squaring action.

The pack is now placed on the table and the two Jokers counted as three cards convincing the audience that the selection is face down between two face up Jokers. Hold the two cards in a squared up condition in the left hand between the thumb and finger tips near the left side of the cards. The right hand takes the top face up Joker and as it moves in and takes the face down Joker the face up one goes beneath it and is held with the left fingers to be shown as the second Joker. Fig.2 which shows the face up Joker going under the face down one also indicates how the cards are held for this sleight which is well known to knowledgeable cardmen. This brief description is included for those who do not know it.

The two cards are now held between the palms of both hands (3) and the hands twisted to the position shown in (4) with a card palmed in each hand. The hands now part and are held backs upward as in (5) and the two cards released letting them fall onto the table, the chosen card having vanished. The pack is now spread face down across the table, revealing the selection face up in the centre of the spread.

The idea of placing cards between the palms and causing one to disappear in the manner described above was originally conceived by Alex Elmsley to whom full credit is given.

The Page boy speaks....

Well, well, well. It appears that mention of an effect last time about a card appearing up one's sleeve has provoked quite a number of responses from our readers. Several people came up with different answers to the problem and perhaps next month or the month after we'll put them together as one article and let you see the results. One or two of the methods described were not really practical from my own point of view, but they may well be from someone elses. In any case, we will include them all. I found it rather interesting that others should be as intrigued by this effect as me. You never can tell—but we'll talk about this another time.

No doubt you will be reading on another page about the visit to our shores of one Don Alan, who, if my memory serves me correctly, hails from Chicago. Unfortunately I didn't have the pleasure of catching him this time as I was otherwise engaged in trying to earn a living. I've heard nothing but praise both for what he did and how he did it. I well remember meeting Don at an American convention a few years ago and being very very impressed. I think the only way to describe his type of presentation is to compare him performing close-up magic with perhaps Jack Benny telling jokes or Frank Sinatra singing and for me there can be no higher praise. It must be at least fifteen years ago that we first caught sight of Don Alan in this country when he came to appear on two TV shows, both at that time being the two highest rated light entertainment shows in the country, namely 'Sunday Night at The London Palladium' and 'Saturday Spectacular'. His Palladium act was stand-up, but on the Saturday show he performed close-up for the other stars of the show. The reaction on their faces as he performed was worth the price of the TV licence. Come again, Don Alan, and light another fire under those British magicians who came to watch. And a big thank you to Ken Brooke for arranging it all.

It seems that everyone was fooled by my photograph on the front page of the 'Magic Circular' this current issue. I gave that one to them quite deliberately and apparently no-one recognised me which was the intention.

Towards the end of March I shall be flying to the U.S. to do a few shows and some lectures. The full itinerary is not set yet but I will start in Chicago and finishing in New York with stops inbetween. I hope to meet, as before, many magicians, renew old acquaintances, make new friends and perhaps one or two new enemies. One rather interesting development regarding this visit has taken place. One lecture club is sending a contract that says I will guarantee to explain any of the tricks I show. If I remember correctly their explanation was that they had got rather fed-up with lecturers just selling their new tricks and not explaining the good ones. This is an interesting development which means that in future magic lecturers may have to beware of having to explain their pet secrets. Which means in the future they won't show them. But I can understand the magic club's point of view. It's interesting.

To finish this month, another problem. This is what is known as 'pushing your luck' as my last problem made the adrenalin flow. The effect here is classic and has been mentioned in many books and magazines. But in all my lifetime I have probably only seen the effect properly performed three times. It is simply the production of a genuine glass of wine from a 'cup' — as in cups and balls, Chop-cup etc. Many years ago in this country we had a manipulator called Ericson who did a cups and ball routine in his act, finishing with a glass of wine under each cup. I also saw an amateur magician do a similar thing. On several occasions I saw the late Senator Clarke Crandall produce a glass of liquid from under a die cup as a climax to a die-stacking routine. Both the first two mentioned used trick-tables to achieve the effect. The idea behind my query is to perform it close-up, using a genuine glass of wine. Probably it would have to be loaded from the pocket or lap, rather than from behind a box on the table, like Crandall. The major problem is always how to prevent the liquid spilling and how can the load be done silently. I have played with effect over the years and have never been 100% happy with it, though I have recently been getting close to it. Let's see if we can persuade some of our readers to supply what could be the perfect answer. Maybe an idea here, and an idea there could be combined to give the solution. It would be worth it because the effect is unquestionably stunning. OK fella's go to it because the ball is now in your court.

Goodbye.

Patrick Page.

ACE IN THE HOLE

The performer offers to demonstrate how a cheat may operate at five stud poker. He explains that in this game each player is dealt one card face downwards and four cards face upwards.

After shuffling the cards and having them cut by a spectator the performer deals a face down card into each of the four hands. "A crooked dealer" ne observes "would deal the best hand either to himself or a confederate."

He now invites a spectator to examine secretly the four face down hole cards and to select a particular hand which he feels might prove the winning one.

The performer now completes the deal by dealing four face up cards onto each hand. After each card dealt he comments briefly on the potential of that hand, for example if three cards had been dealt and the two face up cards were kings he would comment that the hand could possibly contain three kings.

On completion of the deal the face down hole card are turned face. The winning hand is found to be the one selected by the spectator and in most cases will contain either a running flush or a full house.

METHOD:-

Although it is necessary to second deal two cards the procedure is simplified in that these sleights are carried out unhurriedly and amidst diverting patter.

Prior to the performance the four two's are removed from the pack and the remaining fortyeight cards are set up in the order shown below, reading horizontally.

(S = Spades and X any suit.)

Give the cards a brief false shuffle to retain them in their original order and offer them for genuine cut.

After dealing the first face up card on the hand selected by the spectator second deal the next two cards and then continue dealing in the normal manner. At the close of the deal the spectator will have the winning hand.

3S8X 4X 6X 4S 8X 4X 6X 5S8X 4X 6X 9X JX KX 7S 9X JX KX 8S 9XJX KX 9S 5X 3X 7X 10S 5X 3X7XJS 3X7XQS 10X QX AX KS 10X QX AX AS 10X QX AX 222

MENTAL JIGSAW

The performer shows a booklet from a series such as 'Penguin Modern Painters' and tears out one of the paintings therein. Clipping this page into six strips of similar size he requests one of the spectators to seal each strip picture face downwards in a different envelope. He turns aside while this is being done. The spectator now mixes the envelopes and hands them to the performer behind his back.

Concentrating, the performer commences to describe colours and images from the bottom right section of the painting. Bringing an envelope to the front he passes it to a second spectator who confirms that the strip belongs to the bottom right corner. This procedure is repeated wich each envelope. During the routine a spectator acting on the performer's impressions, arranges each strip in jigsaw fashion until the complete painting has been correctly formed.

METHOD:-

Although simplicity of method is employed a little showmanship can make this routine very effective.

You will require a second booklet, from which to prepare six duplicate strips. Sealed in envelopes these duplicates repose within the back trouser pocket in any known order. The page to be torn out from the booklet has been previously divided by a thin pencil line into six equal sections.

Take the mixed stack of envelopes from the first spectator with the left hand, gripping them between the second and third fingers. Turn to face the audience and, while you appear to concentrate, remove the duplicates from your pocket with the right hand, immediately passing them to the left hand where they are gripped between the thumb and first finger.

The original stack is pocketed later, at a time when attention is focussed on the second spectator.

johη bragoli

"Well, how was I to know he'd mumble the magic words?" Qu Book REVIEW "The Magic of Francis Carlyle"

Francis Carlyle was not a name that came easily to mind when conversation turned to top flight magicians in the close up field. When Dai Vernon first visited us some twenty years ago he referred on several occasions to the high quality of his performances and the material he used, and many times we have heard of Francis being amongst a group of experts giving of their best when he would perform his 'Card to Borrowed Envelope and Wallet'. It would stop the show and no further tricks would be done during that session, everyone being aware it could not be topped.

This and seventy other items can be found in 'The Magic of Francis Carlyle' now available in this country. For the performer seeking practical close up tricks rather than novelty this is a 'meaty' book and will be a delight to those who know a little but do not know it all, and enjoy magic requiring a little skill to produce the effect. Many of the classic close up effects receive the Carlyle treatment as do the standard card sleights. We will mention one other trick by name, the 'ash' trick, one of the greatest bar tricks ever. The method described in this book is still being performed by a top European magician to whom it was taught by Carlyle many years ago. Our chief concern when reviewing books is to assess whether or not the tricks they contain have been, or ever will be performed. With this book we have no such problem containing as it does material used by a practising magician, and one whose contempories rated his work highly.

If it is practical close up magic you are seeking you will find it in this book.

Johnny Ramsay Issue

Subscribers could be forgiven for thinking that we had forgotten about this special issue, promised some time ago. In fact, next month will see the publication of our tribute to the great Scottish magician and we think the delay will have been worth it.

Contributors include Andrew Galloway, Patrick Page, Ken Hawes, 'Flip', Walt Lees, Bob Ostin, Alex MacFadyean and Fred Robinson. The latter, in the guise of 'Pabular's Technical Editor' has made several trips to Ayr researching information — and has uncovered some little known photographs that we will be reproducing as a special feature.

Direct subscribers will receive the magazine posted from Ayr, complete, we hope, with Scottish stamps and postmarks. Collectors please note that this is a 'once only' operation that we cannot repeat after this mailing.

'New Faces', for the information of our overseas readers is a nationwide television talent spotting competition. The acts are judged by a panel consisting of four personalities representing different aspects of show business, who, in addition to awarding marks for presentation, content and star quality, also offer advice to each act as it finishes. The winner on a recent programme was given two weeks booking at the London Palladium which will give an idea of the value an appearance on this programme can be to an hitherto unknown act. On February someone appeared on this programme, cracked a few jokes, did some funny business with an invisible hair and a handkerchief, a gag with three false noses we remember appearing in Pabular, and produced a bottle using a method you will find explained in the book with the unusual title 'Thanks to Pepys'. His act closed with a trick using three unequal pieces of rope.

By now most of you will have guessed that someone was Bob Read and if you saw the programme will know he was joint winner with a musical group who also used comedy.

We offer our congratulations to Bob and wish him luck when he appears in the all winners programme. When relating his experiences during rehearsals he mentioned that he did not know how to thank Mike Gancia who helped him to survive the experience. Well, we have just done it for him.

THE INTERNATIONAL MAGAZINE

Now in its 3rd year.

MAKE SURE EACH ISSUE IS SENT TO YOU REGULARLY. SEND TODAY ONLY £2.00 ($ 6.00) FOR ONE YEAR (SIX) ISSUES SENT POST FREE TO ANYWHERE IN THE WORLD.

32 glossy pages in each issue.

THE INTERNATIONAL MAGIC STUDIO, (RON MACMILLAN) 89 CLERKENWELL ROAD, HOLBORN, LONDON, E.C.1. Dear Ken, RINGED arrived last week and I have had great results with it. It is amazing what you can do if you follow intelligent instructions. The square key works perfectly and it was no problem securing one.

Just thought you might like to know how much fun I received from your brilliant effect.

Alan C. Greenberg (New York City)

Dear Ken,

Brad Holbrook just stopped by and showed me Don Alan's RINGED—it is beautiful!

Please send me one right away.

Roland Hurley (New Orleans)

GENTLEMEN

'RINGED' is Don Alan's version of the late Al Koran's Borrowed Ring to Key Case. It is THE VISIBLE METHOD highly endorsed by every purchaser.

The precision apparatus upon which the success of the trick depends is the work of a man whom we consider to be the finest magical mechanic alive today. As with almost everything we sell — 'RINGED' is sold on a money back guarantee.

PRICE, ENGLAND ONLY £15.00 EUROPE £16.00 U.S.A. $45.00 AIR MAILED HOME

New catalogues nearing completion. England and Europe 50 pence. U.S.A. $2.00 cash or $3.00 cheque. Air mailed. Put you name on our mailing list.

THERE'S NO PLACE LIKE -

'KEN BROOKE'S MAGIC PLACE' 145 WARDOUR STREET, LONDON W1 ENGLAND 01 - 734 - 9240

New trick by Roy Johnson just out. New trick by Juan Tamariz just out. Sets a new high in quality close up magic. Used four top hats, four apples, a rabbit and a worm. England £2.25. Europe £2.50. U.S.A. $6.00 air mailed home....Satisfaction is included in the price. Your money back if not delighted.

We do not wholesale to anyone.

Ge Magazine of Close-up Magic
Vol.2Nº7MAR.1976

To see John Ramsay perform a trick was to experience that rare pleasure of total mystification so gratifying to true lovers of magic. His ability to entertain magicians constantly over a long period of time without them being able to discover the methods he used was a remarkable achievement, and to my personal knowledge has never been equalled.

When John Ramsay decided to reveal the secrets of some of the tricks, with which he had tantalised us for so long, we fondly believed that we too would be able to perform these wonders. We were wrong. Our efforts to master these tricks proved futile, and the end result of our labours was complete failure. We concluded that they were only deceptive in the hands of their originator, who had tailored them to his own personal mannerisms.

Some time later this theory was proved wrong when I saw his pupil Andrew Galloway perform the published tricks of his teacher in a completely deceptive manner equal to that of his mentor. Since then 'The Ramsay Legend' has been published explaining the methods of misdirection used by John Ramsay. For the close up performer this is some of the most valuable information ever to appear in print. Misdirection was the real secret of John Ramsay, as it has been the key to the success of every close up performer of note in the past, and will be the essential ingredient of those performers in the future who achieve fame in the field of close up magic.

John Ramsay took particular delight in fooling his fellow magicians by leading them to believe he had used a certain move or sleight with which they were conversant, and as he proved by his subsequent actions such was not the case, used this proof as misdirection, to cover the move necessary to the trick he was performing.

A typical example was the way he used the well known ploy of concealing a small object in e empty space of a half open matchbox. As he closed the box he would subtly create the impression that he had loaded something into his left hand, which was kept partly closed as he put the box into his right coat pocket. Looking directly at the spectators, he would slowly open his left hand which was seen to be empty. When they realised that they had been caught they would instinctively look up and see John smiling at them. At this precise moment his hand would be leaving his pocket with the object they had thought he was stealing from the matchbox palmed in his right hand. Such was the manner in which John Ramsay deceived the minds of his brother conjurers and became the famous magician's magician he was.

It was not only on the magical scene John Ramsay earned respect both for his ability and as a person as can be seen in the following extract from the 'Comment' column of the Ayr Advertiser of August 14th 1975, fifteen years after he had passed on.

The name of John Ramsay was one to conjure with in Ayr 25 years ago. The late, great magician was so well loved by the town of Ayr that a memorial garden on the upstream side of Ayr Auld Brig was created to perpetuate the memory of a remarkable citizen of the town.

The twinkling eye of the grey-haired little grocer magician concealed a sharp brain which mastered the highest skills in the techniques of legerdemain. Johnny Ramsay was a wizard among his peers in the Magic Circle and as he displayed his skill at magician's conventions in Amsterdam, Paris, Switzerland and Barcelona in the post war years he drew the plaudits of the best in the world at the magician's craft.

Johnny Ramsay is a name which thousands of people will continue to revere for many years to come as they remember the sparkling little conjurer who enthralled generation after generation with his gift of prestidigitation'.

In conclusion I would like to thank the editor of the Ayr Advertiser for giving permission to reprint the above extract, Mrs. French for her hospitality and loan of photographs, and Andy Galloway whose considerable assistance made this issue possible.

Fred Robinson

*RAMSAY ON THE THUMB TIP

This was a favourite lecture item of John Ramsay's. It was presented as a lesson in the use of the thumb tip, using the classic torn and restored strip of paper as an example. The typical Ramsay twist at the end never failed to get a gasp of surprise and a laugh from his audience. At first glance it may look like a 'sucker gag' for magicians, but with careful study it will be seen to be much more.

PREPARATION:-

Two identical strips of dark blue tissue paper and a thumb tip are required. Each strip of paper should be approximately fourteen inches long and one and a half inches wide.

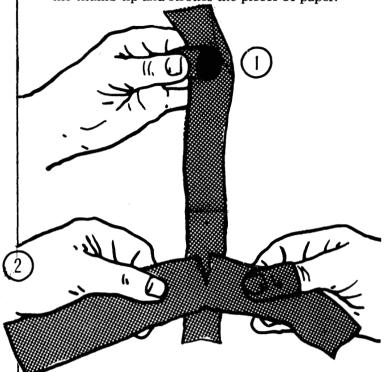

Paste small pieces of dark blue tissue paper similar to that used for the strips over the outer surface of the thumb tip covering it completely. One of the strips is accordian pleated in the usual manner, and jammed into the tip, so that when the thumb is removed the paper will stay put. John kept the thumb tip and the other strip of paper in one of his right waistcoat pockets.

WORKING:-

He would put his right thumb and forefinger into the pocket, the thumb going into the tip and the finger pressing one end of the paper strip against the tip. The strip was removed from the pocket and held hanging vertically with the thumb tip concealed behind, out of view of the audience. The left thumb and forefinger stroked down the paper with a straightening action, finally taking the end held by the right thumb and forefinger and at the same time stealing the thumb tip which was held concealed behind the strip with the left thumb (1). The right thumb and forefinger stroked down the strip and off the end. During the transfer of the strip from the right hand to the left the thumb tip was hidden from the spectarors' view.

Ramsay would now explain how the thumb tip should be well made and as near flesh colour as possible, also it must be pointed towards the audience at all times. During this discourse he would do just that with the right hand. The spectators would assume that he was wearing the tip on his right thumb, unaware that it was in fact hidden behind the strip held in the left hand. The right hand then moved to the end of the strip held in the left hand, its thumb going into the tip. The right thumb (wearing tip) and forefinger was then slid halfway down the paper and the left thumb and forefinger moved next to them. The strip of paper was now held in a horizontal position and torn in half (2). The right hand half was put on the piece, the left thumb again clipping the thumb tip against the left forefinger. The right thumb again slides out of the thumb tip and strokes the pieces of paper.

John would once again repeat his advice about keeping the thumb pointed towards ones audience, and demonstrate with his right thumb. The right thumb was again inserted into the tip and the right hand moved halfway down the pieces as before and another tear made. The right pieces were placed on the left, but this time the right hand kept hold of them leaving the left hand free to square up the pieces. When this was done the left thumb and forefinger once again took the ends of the pieces and the tip while the right hand stroked the strips. This time Ramsay would show the right hand briefly, almost as an afterthought, along with a look as if to say, 'Now don't forget what I told you'. The thumb was again put into the tip and the pieces torn in half again, and the right hand pieces again placed on top of those in the left hand. The pieces were now folded into a compact parcel, and the usual switch executed, the whole piece being removed and the torn pieces going inside, followed by the right thumb.

The whole strip was now slowly unfolded and allowed to hang down from the right thumb and forefinger vertically, showing the restoration.

John would now casually ask if anyone would like to see the thumb tip he used and without waiting for a reply would separate his right thumb and forefinger allowing the paper to fall, revealing the blue thumb tip in all its splendour. Although they may not have realised it, not only did John Ramsay fool his audience with this routine, he really did give them a lesson in the use of a thumb tip.

*COIN AND JAM JAR ROUTINE

John Ramsay worked out a number of tricks and stunts solely to baffle and amuse the customers who came into his grocers shop. The routine about to be described was one of these, which I also saw him do in a close-up show at an I.B.M. convention where it was well received.

John used an old penny and a two pound jam jar, but as both are now in short supply a tenpenny piece and a wide mouthed tumbler could be substituted.

Briefly, the effect is that a coin passes through the bottom of the jar from the outside to the inside twice. The third time the coin is thrown into the jar and appears to penetrate the base.

METHOD:-

The jar is on the table, mouth up, and the coin is shown in the right hand. Transfer the coin to the fingers and thumb of the palm up left hand which displays it for a moment. Bring the right hand over the thumb going behind and the fingers in front covering the coin. The left thumb releases its hold on the coin letting it fall to the base of the left middle finger. The right hand then closes as if taking the coin and moves away to the right. This move is commonly known as the 'Pinch' and was one of Ramsay's favourites. The left hand picks up the jar by putting the fingers inside the mouth and the thumb outside. The coin is held by the curled fingers which keep it clear of the jar. The knuckles of the right hand now tap the bottom of the jar a couple of times, the third time the hand opens and the palm strikes the base quite forcibly. This action has the effect of shooting the coin out of the left fingers and onto the bottom of the jar, giving a convincing illusion of the coin penetrating the bottom. To get the best effect hold the coin fairly loosely in the left fingers.

Take the jar with the right hand and shake it causing the coin inside to rattle. Transfer the jar to the left hand which tips the coin into the right hand and then put the jar onto the table mouth upwards. The coin is now displayed at the right finger tips for a few seconds before the left hand apparently takes it. Actually the 'Pinch' is executed again, and as the closed left hand moves away the right hand picks up the jar by the mouth. The penetration effect is repeated as already described the only difference being that you have used opposite hands.

This time the left hand takes the jar and shakes the coin inside, tips it into the right hand, and puts the jar on the table mouth downwards.

The right hand now shows the coin and seemingly drops it into the left. The coin is actually retained in the right hand in the finger palm position, but do not make a production out of this move, just try and make it look natural. Now grip the bottom of the jar between the thumb and forefinger of the right hand. Turn it mouth upwards and bring the closed left hand over the mouth of the jar. Pause for a second, then slap the left hand flat onto the mouth of the jar driving the base out of the grip of the right thumb and forefinger into the hand where it strikes the edge of the finger palmed coin, knocking it out of the left hand onto the table. The noise made by this action heightens the effect of the illusion of the coin penetrating the

If you are not happy with the 'pinch' move, any other sleight may be used which gets you into the right position, providing it is not too elaborate.

*COIN VANISH IN THE AIR

The mechanics of this sleight are virtually the same as those used for the vanish of the large ball in the Ramsay Cups and Balls routine. Actually it is easier with a coin.

EFFECT:-

Show a coin at the fingertips of the left hand and then transfer it to the right. After the transfer the left hand should be held in a slightly cupped position about waist high with the back of the hand towards the spectators. It should be kept in this position throughout the entire sleight (Fig.1).

Look up towards the ceiling and then back to the coin in the right hand. Throw the coin (do not spin it) into the air for a height of about six inches above the left hand (Fig.2); as it descends bring the right hand over the left to catch the coin (Fig.3). The hands do not touch each other, there should be a gap of about two inches between them as the coin is caught in the right hand. Do the throw and catch again. Toss the coin for the third time, but this time as the coin falls, slightly delay the catching action of the right hand letting the coin fall onto the left hand which being slightly cupped and back to the spectators it is out of sight of the onlookers (Fig.4). Do not try and palm the coin when it falls into the cupped hand.

From the commencement of the first throw until the coin is in the left hand there should be no movement whatsoever of this hand or its fingers.

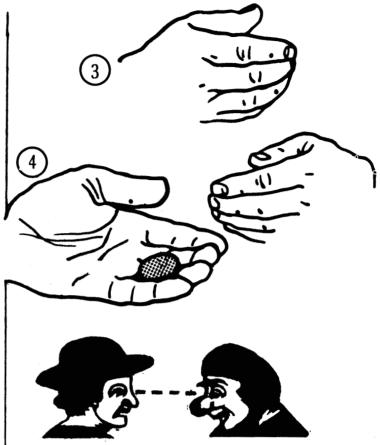

You may be wondering why the spectators do not see the coin as it passes the gap between the hands. The answer is a simple one — MISDIRECTION. At the exact moment the coin starts to fall, look up towards the ceiling. This draws their eyes away from your hands for the split second needed for the coin to pass between the hands.

The right hand having closed apparently holding the coin moves to the right. Look down at the hand and lower it as if to make a throw, and then look at the ceiling. Raise the hand again, hesitate, look at it once more, lower it again and look towards the ceiling for the last time. Make a throwing motion with the right hand, opening it at the same time. Let the audience see that it is empty, but do not look at it yourself, you should be looking vainly in the atmosphere for a coin. Having failed to find it, you re-produce it from the elbow or from behind the back as John Ramsay did.

It cannot be emphasised too strongly that from the first throw the left hand and its fingers must remain still and in the same position until the hand moves to reproduce the coin.

Without the use of the misdirection described the move will not deceive anyone With it, the illusion is so perfect that the coin will seem to disappear in mid-air. John normally used a copper coin for this vanish, it being less likely to 'flash' than a silver one, so making the 'concealed drop' less conspicious.

ON MISDIRECTION

Malini said it was "The Eye". Ramsay said it more fully when he said, "If you want someone to look at you, look at them", and "If you want them to look at something, look at it yourself." Both were talking about the same thing, namely, their personal theory of misdirection. In some ways their methods were similar, but I believe that Ramsay explored and refined the art of misdirection to a greater extent than any other magician before or since.

Malini learned his trade under very tough conditions, busking and entertaining in saloons, where the customers were not too polite if he made a slip. As a young boy John used to watch the assorted tricksters and con-men who worked the race-course in his home town of Ayr. He quickly learned that these characters had to be good, their very life and limb depending on it. During a long period of close scrutiny he analysed their methods and adapted them to his magic.

I have already explained Ramsay's approach to misdirection in 'The Ramsay Legend', and of this book Dai Vernon said "that only six people in the world would really appreciate it". I would go as far as to say that probably even less tried out the principles.

Let us go over them again briefly. We all know that the audience will look in the direction the performer looks. Therefore, if you are about to perform a sleight, one way to take their attention away from your hands is to look at them and make a remark, ask a question, or just smile. Another is to direct their attention to an object on your table, or pick up the object with one hand and look at it while making a secret manoeuvre with the other.

Timing is important. If your misdirection is too late the audience may catch your move, if on the other hand it is too early they may have transferred their attention back to your hands just in time to catch the sleight. In other words, apply the misdirection a fraction of a second before you make the move. Of course if you can do your sleights so perfectly that you feel you do not need any cover, then just forget this, but why take chances when a little thought and practise can pay such high dividends by making sure that you never get caught.

Try the following experiment. Take a trick you have been doing for years, one you think you know really well, and see if you can apply the methods I've explained. Take it move by move and try and work out the best and most natural cover for each one. You may find that simply looking at the audience could be the best cover for one sleight, while directing their attention to something, or someone, may be better for another. Once this has been done practise the complete routine a few times concentrating on the misdirection, then do it for somebody. You may be surprised at the reaction, especially if they have seen it before. It can also increase your confidence which in turn will make your performance smoother having the knowledge that your moves are covered. Using misdirection has the added effect of improving the presentation of the entire act.

By looking at your audience, you get them to look at you, or more specifically at your face, and this helps you to put over your personality. This is one of the important, if not the most important factors, in performing magic successfully.

THE CIG TRICK

When John Ramsay was trying to give up smoking he would sometimes pop one of those cardboard imitation cigarettes in his mouth to try and satisfy the craving. He soon realised that by cutting them in half, not only would they last twice as long but they were also easier to 'tongue'. Here is one of the gags he frequently pulled whenever he travelled by bus. He would always try and get a seat downstairs where smoking was not allowed, and as near to the door as possible. After getting a ticket from the conductor, John would roll it up and conceal it in his hand. The conductor would invariably reprimand him for smoking downstairs. John would mumble an apology, raise his hand to his mouth, tongue the 'cigarette' and throw the rolled up ticket out the door. The conductor would see something fly through the door and assume it was the cigarette. His surprise can easily be imagined when he looked round and saw that it was back between the lips of that seemingly absent-minded old gentleman!

andy galloway

*DICE-O-METRICS

This routine was evolved after reading John Ramsay's "Three Coins in a Hat". Although the two routines have nothing much in common, I feel that this one does reflect a small part of Ramsay's style. It is the nearest that I have been able to approach an understanding of his subtle methods.

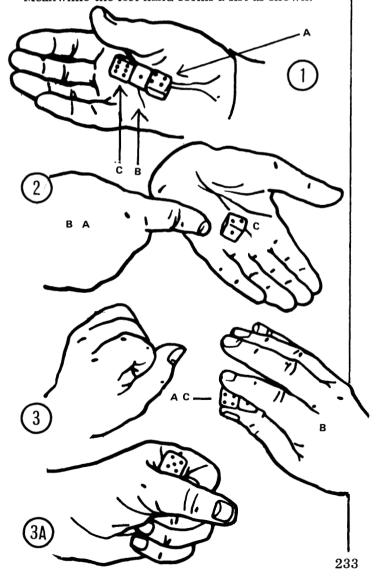

Required are five dice. Two are in the left coat pocket. The other three are palmed in the right hand. Some people prefer the finger palm and there is no reason why this should not be used. For the time being I will describe how I do it and the reader can adapt the handling as desired.

The position of the three palmed dice is shown in Fig.1. Note that they lie along the crease at the base of the thumb. They can be comfortably retained in this position for some time prior to the performance.

Phase1: The Magical Production of Three Dice

1) The left hand is laid palm upwards on the table, with the fingers pointing away from the performer. The right hand reaches out to a point somewhere on the performer's right and picks up an imaginary particle of dust. This is apparently placed in the left hand, which instantly closes around it. Meanwhile the right pretends to pick up a second dust particle. Once more pretend to place this in the left hand, the fingers opening momentarily to receive it.

- 2) The right hand pretends to pick up a third speck of dust and place it in the left hand. As it does so die A in Fig.1 is released and allowed to fall into the hand. It should be hidden by the left fingers as it falls. Immediately the left hand closes around it. It will be found a simple matter to release die A only, if the right ring finger curls over and holds dice B & C in position at the moment of release.
- 3) Pick up a fourth imaginary speck of dust and place it in the left hand. Take care not to flash the die.
- 4) Make a squeezing action with the left fingers, as though compressing the imaginary specks of dust together. Open the left fingers and reveal the die.
- 5) As the die appears, the right hand points to it (see Fig.2). During this pointing action die C is allowed to fall onto the curled right fingers.
- 6) The right hand picks up the die from the left palm, at the same time adding die C to it. The two dice are held in the right hand as in Fig.3, the right fingers being towards the audience. Meanwhile the left hand forms a fist as shown.

- 7) A is placed onto the fist as in Fig.3a, where it rests for a moment, before being allowed to drop down inside.
- 8) When the die is in the fist, open the hand, showing it and repeat moves 6 & 7 a couple of times.
- 9) Pick up the die as in stage 6. Once more apparently place it onto the fist as in 3a. But this time, under cover of the right fingers A is allowed to drop straight into the fist, while C is placed on top. The action appears exactly the same as the feints in steps 6 & 7. Allow the die to drop into the fist, taking care that it does not talk against the other. With the right hand, pretend to pick up one or two particles of dust and drop them into the left fist after the die. Make a squeezing movement with the left fingers, then slowly open the hand revealing two dice.
- 10) The two dice should be on the left palm, in a position such that one of them is ready for palming. Next execute a "shuttle move". That is, apparently tip the two dice from the left hand into the right. In reality one is retained in the left palm, whilst the other drops onto the right hand, joining die B, already there. In this way, both palms are seen to be empty except for the two dice.
- 11) Now comes a little convincer, that seems to throw even the most knowledgable off the scent. It is an application of a Vernon move, from his three ball routine. Form the left hand into a fist, exactly as in Fig.3, except that you have one die palmed. Place one of the right hand's dice onto the fist as in Fig.3a. Point to it with the right forefinger, then allow it to drop into the fist. However, it does not go right down inside the fist. It is stopped, as soon as it is out of sight, by a slight pressure from the curled left forefinger. The thumb closes over the top of the fist, hiding it from above.
- 12) The second die is now apparently dropped into the fist in the same way. In reality, under cover of the right fingers, the first die is squeezed back up to the position shown in Fig.3a and under cover of pointing to it with the right hand, the second die is palmed. (A fuller description of this move can be found in the Three Ball Routine from the Dai Vernon Book of Magic).
- 13) The left hand opens once more, showing the two dice therein. Again the "shuttle move" in step 10 is repeated.
- 14) Next, place the two dice back into the left fist, which already has one palmed. Use exactly the same actions as when doing the Vernon move. This time the dice are really placed into the fist. The right hand 'mimes' picking up some more particles of dust from the table and placing them into the left fist. The left hand makes a squeezing action, then opens up, revealing three dice. This is the end of the first part of the routine.

Phase 2: The Repeat Die Vanish

Start with the three dice on the table. The two additional ones are in the left coat pocket.

- 15) Form the left hand into a fist and place the first die into the hand, secretly getting it into position for the Vernon move, used above. Place the second die into the fist a la Vernon as detailed in step 12. This die is retained in the right palm, while that hand picks up the third one and really places it in the left.
- 16) Make a squeezing movement with the left hand, then open it showing only two dice.
- 17) Apparently tip the two dice into the right hand, really keeping one back in the left palm. This is the shuttle move described in step 10.
- 18) Repeat the shuttle move, dropping the dice back into the left hand. The right hand then picks the two visible dice off the left palm and holds them, while the empty left hand reaches into the coat pocket and brings out one of the dice in there.
- 19) The left hand extends, palm upwards displaying this die apparently the one which vanished in step 16. The right hand drops its two dice (the ones openly held) onto the left palm.
- 20) The performer offers to repeat the vanish, and drops the three visible dice onto the table. Repeat exactly steps 15 & 16. The fact that there is already an extra die palmed in the right hand will not interfere. However the shuttle moves as in steps 17 & 18 must be left out this time.
- 21) After the vanish, the right hand picks up the two visible dice from the left palm. The empty left hand then extracts the last die from the coat pocket, exactly as in step 18. This is held on the left palm, while the right hand drops the two visible dice onto it.
- 22) Repeat the shuttle move from left to right, but this time the left hand holds two dice back in the palm, only one being allowed to pass across. (This variation of the shuttle move was much favoured by Ramsay; to take advantage of the fact that very few magicians watching would suspect a multiple holdback. Most magicians can appreciate that a shuttle move will hide one extra die. Few will suspect that the same type of move might hide more than one. Ramsay used this stratagem in his "Coins and Hat" routine).

The routine could be terminated at this point.

Phase 3: The Production of a Fourth Die and "Chink-a-Chink"

- 23) The right hand drops the three dice onto the table. The left, still with two dice concealed, forms a fist. The right picks up two of the dice from the table and drops them into the fist.
- 24) As the right hand picks up the third die to drop it into the fist, the Vernon move as in step 12 is executed, leaving this die in the right palm. The right hand goes through the business of picking up more dust from the table and dropping it into the fist. A squeezing action is made, with the left hand, which opens up to reveal four dice.

At this point you have four visible dice and a fifth one palmed in the right hand. In other words you are all set to confound your magical friends by launching straight into "Chink-a-Chink" without stealing any dice. This is described in "Stars of Magic" and many other books, and makes a strong finish.

★OFF THE HANDLE

walt lees

I met Johnny Ramsay on a couple of occasions but only ever saw him perform one trick (The Four Beans), although he was a very close friend of an old friend of mine, Captain F.W. Collins, whom I believe was a founder member of the Order of the Magi.

The Captain often told me of the time when he put Johnny to bed when he had had too much to drink, so from this you will realise they were very well acquainted.

In my early days in conjuring Captain Collins would say to me, "If you are ever at a Convention and see Johnny, you must go up to him and mention my name, and he will show you all sorts of things." In those days Johnny used to give away thimbles with his name on, and so it came about as I was not very forceful in presenting myself, I would go up to him at a Convention and say "Captain Collins......" whereupon Johnny would say "Och aye you want a thimble," so that eventually I ended up with half a dozen thimbles but never got any further!

Perhaps you would be interested in a trick which was a great favourite with Captain Collins and which he kept very much to himself, and I think it was devised during his association with Johnny Ramsay. It was a simple but cunning idea for the release of a china cup from a ribbon or rope.

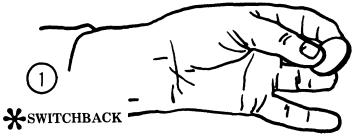

The ribbon was threaded through the handle of the cup which was then covered with a handkerchief. The Captain now removed the cup which was left together with the ribbon for the closest examination, no clue of the method being evident.

What he did was to have two handles, one of which was stuck to the cup opposite the true handle by means, I believe, of a mixture of gum arabic and china clay. The cup was held in the hand initially so that the genuine handle went between the fingers and was hidden from sight. Under cover of the handkerchief the fake handle was broken away and according to the Captain, if the adhesive mixture was right, there would be no mark left on the cup (or it could easily be removed before the cup was exposed to view).

I well remember the long search which Captain Collins made for better adhesives to perform this effect. Nowadays I suppose it would not be too hard. I certainly liked the idea of the genuine handle being hidden at the commencement, although I have never done the effect myself.

I corresponded with Captain Collins for a long while and many times he was a guest in my home, but about 5 years ago I heard that he was in hospital in Manchester, and I never heard from him again. I can only believe that as he was over 95 at the time he had departed this life, and my one possible link with Johnny Ramsay was severed.

bob ostin

The magical transposition of a silver and copper coin was a popular plot with John Ramsay, and he had more than one method for achieving this particular effect.

The one to be described uses a shell half-crown, an old penny, and a shim, this latter being a halfcrown ground or filed down until only the face of the coin remains. It must, of course, be the opposite side of the coin from the one on the shell. An extra penny will also be required.

It will be apparent that if the penny is in the shell and the shim put on top forming a kind of lid, the combination can be shown on both sides as a normal coin.

These two particular coins are now out of circulation, but no doubt readers who are really interested will find them or suitable alternatives.

To perform, have the duplicate penny in the right outside coat pocket, and hold the shell with the penny inside and shim on top in the left hand by its edge, between the tips of the thumb and second finger (Fig.1). The shim side is facing the spectators who can see that the hand is empty except for the 'coin'.

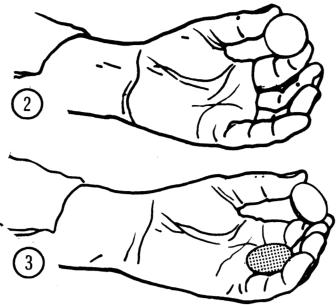

The halfcrown is now placed on the right

The halfcrown is now placed in the right hand at the base of the middle fingers, shim side downwards, thus showing the other side of the halfcrown.

Remarking that you will also require a penny, put the now empty left hand into the left outside jacket pocket, and at the same time tilt the right hand so that the halfcrown is concealed from the spectators view. The right thumb then pushes the shell with penny inside towards the finger tips leaving the shim at the base of the middle fingers. Put the thumb under the edge of shell, and lever it up, with the penny inside, to the tips of the fingers. The 'good' side of the halfcrown will now be facing the audience.

Failing to find the penny in the left side coat pocket, the shell with penny inside is transferred to the left hand which holds them by the edges between the thumb and finger tips (Fig.2). The right hand now goes to the right side coat pocket, leaving the shim behind brings out the duplicate penny and holds it by the edge in the same way as the left hand is holding the 'halfcrown'. At this point the performers hands are seen to be completely empty except for the two coins.

Turn the hands palm upwards and advance the right hand towards a spectator asking him to hold the penny for a moment. At the same time tilt the left hand a little letting the penny drop from the shell into the finger palm (Fig.3). Take a shell from the left hand with the right thumb and forefinger holding so that most of the surface of the coin is exposed. The left hand containing the finger palmed penny now apparently takes the halfcrown (shell), but using the Ramsay Coin Vanish as described in chapter 2 of 'The Ramsay Legend' it is retained in the right hand at the base of the fingers. Take the penny from the spectators with the right thumb and forefinger taking care not to expose the finger palmed shell. The right thumb now pulls this penny down into the shell and the fingers close into a fist.

Bring both closed hands, knuckles uppermost and backs to the audience, about level with the chin. Cross the forearms bringing each fist into the position just vacated by the other, pause a second, uncross the arms and pause again. Open both hands slowly, keeping their backs facing the audience, put the thumbs of both hands at the bottom edges of their respective coins and push them slowly towards the tips of the fingers. Continue this pushing action until the coins are at the extreme finger tips exposing as much as possible of their faces, enabling the audience to appreciate that the transposition has occurred, and to see that the hands are empty except for the penny and the halfcrown.

alex macfadyean

AN UNDERSTANDING.

Of all the close-up performers I have seen, I suppose Andy Galloway is the man who has impressed me most.

Now Andy is the only man I have seen who does magic. The rest just seem to be 'conjurers doing tricks'. As you know, no doubt, Andy was the pupil of John Ramsay. So in actual fact, having seen Andy work, is as near as I have been to Ramsay, John having died before my time.

Having studied the 'Ramsay Legend' and spoken to several people who saw and knew Johnny, I suppose the first thing I realised was that there is no way anybody can do John's tricks. What I found best was to try and get inside John's mind and think 'why'. In other words, apply the Ramsay philosophy to your own tricks, your own style and, most important of all, to your own personality. Every move and every gesture must be done for a valid reason—hence the 'why'. The trick or sequence must be analysed to the 'nth degree and detail.

The most common mistake I have seen magicians make is on a simple vanish, whether it be a coin, ball or card. They do not seem to have a reason for placing the object from the right hand to the left hand; they just do it so they can retain it in the right hand, which is an excuse not a reason! In fact, the act of placing often seems unnatural and, although it may look as if the object is in the left hand, the audience is aware of something not quite right. The only way to make it work is to really place the object in the left hand, the way you would place it there, and then analyse it (as Ramsay did) and when you do retain the object, there should be no difference in handling whatsoever. The audience should at no time be aware of a 'move' or sleight. When Ramsay did a sleight (and he did many complex moves), you were convinced that he was doing nothing, because every move and gesture blended in with the personality of the man. When he performed a sleight, the audience, more often than not, was not looking at his hands anyway and if what I will call sight misdirection was not enough to cover the move, he would use mental misdirection. In other words, he would keep the minds of the audience 'busy' for that split second. For example, he would ask a question so that the audience was mentally busy thinking of an answer.

John Ramsay's philosophy of misdirection seems very simple. If you want somebody to look at something, look at it yourself. If you want somebody to look at you, look at them.

Now the secret of this, I believe, is that you do not make or force people to look where you want them to. You have to get the audience relaxed and onto your own mental wavelength. In other words, the audience has to become accustomed to your style and personality before you even start to do anything. So, by the time you are actually into your first trick, you have to know that the audience will look and react the way you want them to, but of their own accord. It should never become a mental battle whereby the audience will be aware that they are looking you in the eye when you want them to.

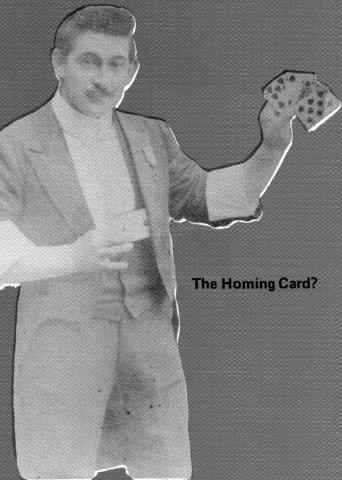

I mentioned earlier about 'doing tricks'. Now this is the one thing that John Ramsay did not do as such. He created a situation whereby magic happened. A coin would appear and then it would vanish etc. There was never a 'get ready'; his hands would never go to his pockets prior to a performance or a 'show us a trick' situation. John would perform when he was ready, but he would always be ahead, often by several moves in fact. He would sit for hours with thimbles or coins palmed in case the situation arose when he would perform and that is another classic 'Ramsayism' — hold and hide.

I think the basis of Ramsay's philosophy on misdirection is the fact that he used the natural human responses and reactions of his audience; very simple basic facts, such as the human eye follows a moving object (in John's case, the object being his head, his hands, his eyes etc.). The audience, therefore, was absolutely unaware of anything 'unusual' going on, because there was nothing to see. He would reach into the air and pluck out a coin and proceed to rub it right through his hand. That is exactly what it looked like and the audience had no reason at all to suspect that he did anything different. He had analysed and re-analysed every single movement, from the angle of the head to the twinkle in his eye, and he knew the precise psychological second of every gesture. And that is the sort of work which is involved in creating pure magic!

ken hawes

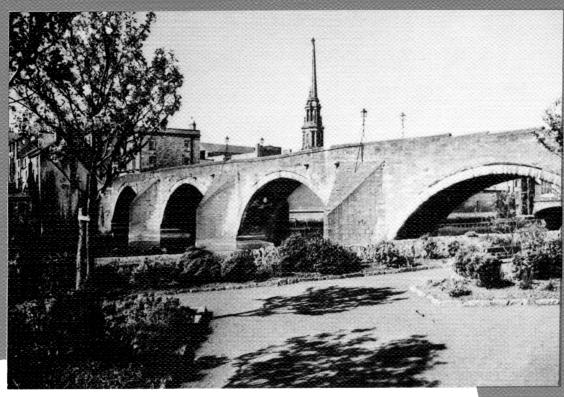

With the Professor

As a sprinter.....

Ramsay with Dai Vernon, Faucette Ross and a group of Scottish magicians

The Page boy speaks....

Usually, in this column, I tend to talk about anything and everything — whatever comes into my head, or my thoughts of the moment. But this time it's a little different. For the first time the editor has actually given me instructions — "Talk about Ramsay" — if you are a magician and someone says this they can only mean one man — and that is one John Ramsay.

Let's see. With the name 'John Ramsay' what comes to mind immediately? Well, I remember a little man with grey hair, waltzing onto a stage with a small tripod table in one hand, a hat in the other. I remember thimbles, a tamborine production, a burnt and restored piece of paper, some invisible coins being hung on an invisible washing line. Perhaps that sounds a terrible mixture, and it probably was, but that's what I remember immediately. What else? I remember a nice man, a pleasant man, an extremely intelligent man; and after that, naturally, that he was a Scotsman. Following this, it is difficult to know what to say about him. First, Ramsay was a winner. And by that I mean that he was, in fact, a 'pot hunter'. If he entered a competition, (and he did enter many), his only reason for entering it was to win. There was no other reason for entering a competition or anything else other than to win. That was Ramsay's philosophy. No doubt you will read on other pages that he had other interests. In these also he was a winner. Everything he did was designed to beat the other man.

Quite an example of this way of thinking is in his Cap and Pence routine. If you study it closely you will realise that there are more throwoffs for magicians than there are for laymen. One thing I find almost impossible to believe about this particular routine, although in fact I do believe it, (I think I was told this by Andy Galloway, apparently Ramsay's one and only pupil), is the fact that Ramsay devised this routine from only seeing the gimmick. He didn't know what it was for, because he had never even seen it before. He just went home and devised the Cap and Pence routine; the one we know now. Any man who can construct a routine of this type, from just seeing the gimmick, has got to be a genius.

Another important aspect on Johnny Ramsay, as a close-up performing magician, is the fact that if he was in company and the conversation came around to tricks and magic, he would never perform if the conditions were not right for him. What, you will ask, were those conditions? The answer, in fact, is very simple: he had to back himself into a corner. He would never allow himself to be trapped in the middle of a room with people all around him at any time. He had to be in such a position that there was no-one behind him, ever. This is a point well worth remembering because many times I have seen magicians performing, for example, in hotel lounges at various conventions, who give fantastic entertainment for perhaps 80 percent of those watching — but the other 20 percent can see what the performer is doing because they are standing behind him.

He was basically, first and foremost, a close-up magician. Having said this it seems odd that he also performed a quite successful stage act and here we come back to Ramsay himself. Why did he bother to do a stage act? Again the answer is as before — he did it to win a competition.

One day I hope to relive the kind of experience I had when I say Johnny Ramsay. One day, somewhere, I hope another man will appear on my horizon and blow my mind in exactly the same way that Ramsay did. It is unfortunate that the younger magicians of today have never had the opportunity to see him or anyone like him. But let me leave you with this one thought. If, at any time, you hear someone say 'He was as good as Ramsay' take it from me: he wasn't.

Goodbye Patrick Page

THE INTERNATIONAL MAGAZINE

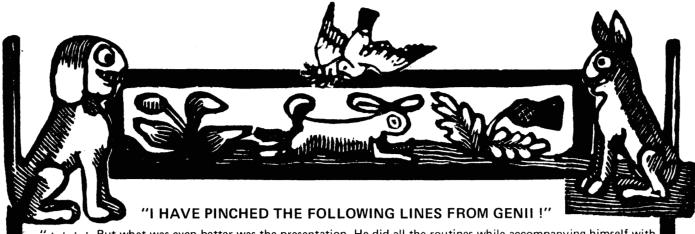

Now in its 3rd year.

MAKE SURE EACH ISSUE IS SENT TO YOU REGULARLY. SEND TODAY ONLY £2.00 ($ 6.00) FOR ONE YEAR (SIX) ISSUES SENT POST FREE TO ANYWHERE IN THE WORLD.

32 glossy pages in each issue.

THE INTERNATIONAL MAGIC STUDIO,
(RON MACMILLAN)

89 CLERKENWELL ROAD, HOLBORN,
LONDON, E.C.1.

": :: But what was even better was the presentation. He did all the routines while accompanying himself with a harmonica! Very funny light-hearted and terrific musically and of course magically as well. Others doing card work varied from good to lousy . . ."

The above review refers to Juan Tamariz following his prize-winning award in Paris. We hope to have him here for a lecture before the year is out. Juan Tamariz is the professional magical entertainer who devised —

* THE TAMARIZ RABBIT *

The close-up trick we marketed shortly before the Blackpool Convention. At that event Trevor Lewis used his routine in the close-up session. Many sets were sold following his showing but other wonderful things have happened since that time and we would like to bring the facts to your notice. FIRST AND MOST IMPORTANT —

THERE IS A PRICE INCREASE *

But not without very good reason. Listen — we have already told you that Trevor Lewis worked out a routine which differs from that of the inventor. His performance of it was singled out in Abra reports. We added the routine. Roy Johnson has come up with another session using the same outfit and his handling has now been added. Bob Gill (you may not have heard of him but you will) turned the entire thing inside out, backwards, forwards, sideways and took time out to write and illustrate three pages of delightful stuff. This has also been added. Then, along came Jack Avis with yet another effect using the same outfit with an additional piece of apparatus. That routine and prop has now been added!

 GENTLEMEN

I do not need to tell you that these things cost both money and time. Printing and paper adds to weight. The small, additional props add to both cost and weight. For this reason we must pass on these costs to you. From this date forward the TAMARIZ RABBIT sells at the following prices (Extra routines and prop 75p post free).

★ ENGLAND £3.00

X EUROPE £3.50

* U.S.A. $7.00 Air Mail

The apparatus sets a new standard in quality close-up apparatus. It is complete with routines that differ by — Juan Tamariz, Trevor Lewis, Roy Johnson, Bob Gill, Jack Avis. It is sold to you on a money back guarantee but is of no value to the open the packet boys. If you have not a geniune interest in learning — magic from this establishment is not for you. If you get pleasure from practice, we supply you with the finest magical apparatus and routines in the world today. Try this wonderful outfit today and see for yourself why we still continue to do record business without mailing shots for over two years. One customer tells another, hundreds talked about Blackpool and we have captured lots of new clients since. The above prices and trick will provide the truth you seek in magical advertising. Our money back guarantee is your saféguard against the purchase of junk.

we just received the samples

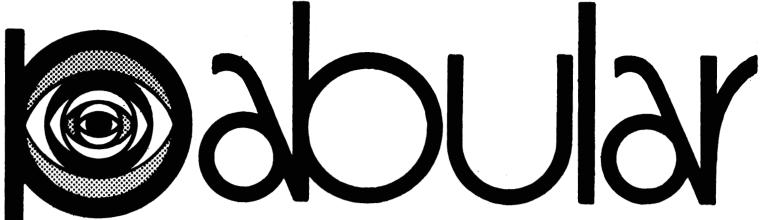

Of the very wonderful antique coins we have had moulded for the greatest of all coin tricks which Fred Kaps so kindly gave us earlier this year Gentlemen This trick is not for sale yet and I ask you — PLEASE DO NOT WRITE ASKING FOR DETAILS for there is much to be done. This I will tell you now. We, the dealers, have done all that ever could be done with coins or — AT LEAST WE THINK WE HAVE. Forget it, I am proud that for more years than either he or I care to remember we have been close friends. He has honoured me with THE COIN TRICK TO MAKE THEM ALL LOOK LIKE TOYS — Some will not believe this statement, some will — but, you all will, not when you have seen the trick but YOU WILL BELIEVE IT WHEN YOU SEE WHAT HAS BEEN SO BEAUTIFULLY PRODUCED. Remember please NO DETAILS YET No letters about it please!

THERE'S NO PLACE LIKE -

'KEN BROOKE'S MAGIC PLACE' 145 WARDOUR STREET, LONDON W1 ENGLAND

Just you call and see!
Phone 01-734 9240 *

Pabular is published after the second week in every month and is printed by Instance Printers, Paddock Wood, Kent, England. Editor Nick Bolton, Technical Editor Fred Robinson, Art Editor Eric Mason. Subscriptions may be obtained direct from the publishers, Pabular, PO Box 180, London SE12 8JJ, England or through many magic dealers. Price 50 pence per copy (US $1.25) surface post included. Air Mail extra depending on country and subject to UK rates. Editorial or content copy should be sent to Fred Robinson, 1 Crescent Court, 24 Crescent Road, New Barnet, Herts, England. Advertising rates sent on request — smalls 3 pence per word (US 10 cents). Dealer enquiries welcomed. Reproduction of old prints and historical magical items by kind permission of Tony Faro.

The Magazine of Close-up Magic

Vol.2 № 8 APR 1976

EFFECT:-

A double page is taken from a newspaper, torn into sixteen pieces, and handed to a spectator who is asked to count them into a heap on the table, and to stop whenever he wishes.

When this has been done, he is asked to deal the pieces into two alternate heaps, and to take the top piece from each heap, and holding one in each hand, crush them into balls. He then drops one of the balls.

The performer takes the dropped ball, and hands it to another spectator, asking them to read out any headline which may appear on the paper.

An envelope which has been in full view during the whole of the proceedings, is handed to a spectator, and he takes from it a paper on which is written the identical headline.

The beauty of this effect is that everything is done by the spectators, and there is no switch of pieces of paper, nothing is added, and nothing is taken away.

I have played around with the basic principle used in this effect, and have found it most useful. Incidentally, it was also used in a card effect in the first issue of Pabular. The effect is: "Spectator Magician" by Tony Faro. The date of the issue is Sept. 1974.

METHOD:-

In this prediction a headline is selected beforehand. It is best if there is a large advertisement or photograph on the other side of the paper, to avoid any confusion on the part of the spectator. If this is not possible, small print can be used, as you ask for a headline.

The double page used should be extracted from a newspaper, apparently at random. The news sheet is torn into sixteen pieces with the selected headline finishing at the bottom.

To illustrate the method (1) shows the double sheet ready for tearing down the centre with the headline selection at the bottom right of the left hand page next to the fold and indicated by X. After tearing in half the right hand piece goes in front of the prediction sheet and the two halves are turned so that the prediction is at the right upper corner (2). The pieces are folded and torn in half and the left hand pieces go in front of the right and the package turned bringing the prediction to the bottom right as in (3).

The pieces are torn in half again and the pieces containing prediction placed behind the others.

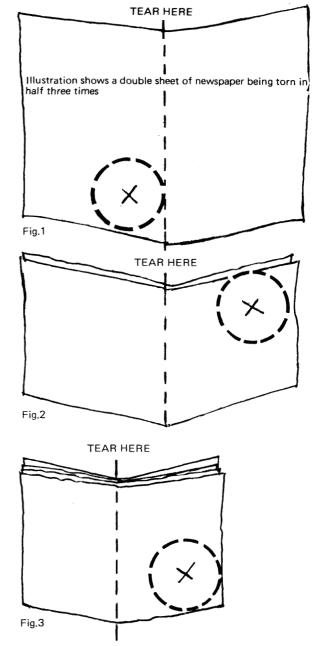

After the fourth and final tear the pieces in the right hand containing the headline are turned over and placed under those in the left hand.

In handing the torn pieces to the assisting spectator, the papers are turned over so that the headline is the top piece, but the spectator cannot see it because he is looking at the other side of the paper.

He is asked to put the pieces one at a time, in a heap on the table, and to stop whenever he wishes (The headline is now at the bottom). He is asked to pick up the pieces and to deal them into two heaps, and to take the top pieces, one in each hand, and to crush them into balls.

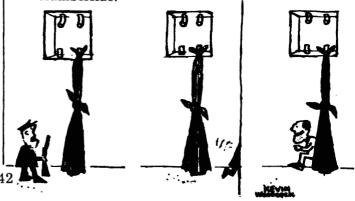

He drops one of the balls. This is "conjurer's choice". If he drops the headline, all well and good. If not, ask him to open the ball which he has retained. The effect is then brought to a successful conclusion.

arthur setterington

The revelation of the prediction can be in a sealed envelope, as suggested in the description of the effect, or it can be written on a large blackboard, which is covered with a cloth, or it may be played back on a tape recorder.

I showed this effect to Jon Marshall, who used it in his magic spot, on the magazine programme, "Friday Pie", broadcast on Radio Humberside.

UPTHE SLEEVE fred robinson

The plot in which a selected card vanishes from the pack and re-appears up the performers sleeve for which the Page Boy is seeking a solution is an excellent one, and most certainly worthy of some effort to find a workable method. That the missing card is eventually found in the very place conjurers are so often supposed to use when causing articles to disappear provides an opportunity for producing good entertainment.

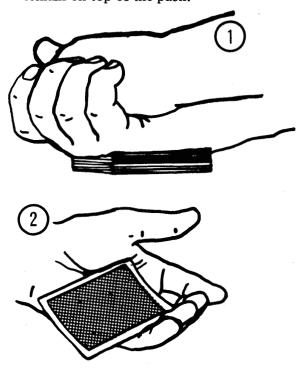

Here is one solution which seems to fulfill the required conditions.

You are near a table surrounded by a group and have a card chosen by the spectator immediately on your right which on being returned to the pack is secretly brought to the top and the pack placed face down on the table.

The misdirection starts right now by moving the attention of the audience to the spectator who selected the card. Clasp your hands requesting him to do likewise. Keep the attention of the group on the assisting spectator by making it appear important that his hands must be held in a certain way, moving one of his fingers, adjusting his thumbs etc etc. During this humbug you have unclasped your own hands as you helped him to get his hands 'just right'. Reclasp your own hands and ask spectator to place his hands on the pack 'like this' and keep them in that position (see Fig.1). In demonstrating what is required of the spectator the selected card on top of the pack sticks to the back of the right hand and is stolen away. As the spectator bends over to carry out your instructions his body gives ample cover for your left hand to grip the card as shown in Fig.2 and push it from the back of the right hand into the right sleeve in one action. Squeezing the card slightly causing it to curve will facilitate its passage into the sleeve.

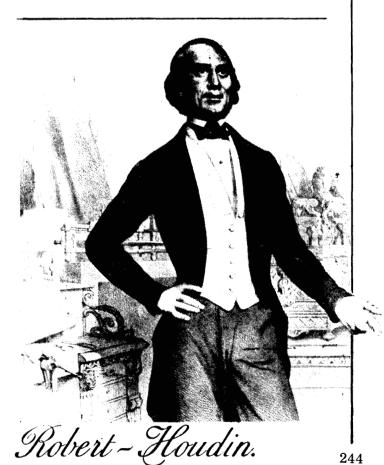

If the business with the spectator is kept moving fairly quickly, and as was written over one hundred years ago 'keep continually talking to the bystanders, looking them full in the face, so that they may do the same......', the method of stealing the card, which is possibly older than the quotation itself, will pass unsuspected as will the small extra movement required to get the card from the back of the hand into the sleeve. This latter move which is made at the time the spectators are watching your helper putting his clasped hands on the pack, is when the misdirection is strongest, and with the added cover of your assistant's body should present no problem. Whether it solves the problem to the satisfaction of our worthy columnist is something else. Perhaps he will let us know. Maybe it's not 'Instant' enough and something snappier is required like pushing the card from the back of the hand up the sleeve when pushing the sleeve back to expose the wrist watch with which you count the five seconds the helpers hands must remain on top of the pack.

Here is another method in which two chosen cards are found one up each sleeve. Requiring a double faced card this method fails to meet the requirements of the solution originally suggested, but it has other points in its favour, one being that the effect can be repeated and another that it can be performed by those less experienced in handling assistants.

Assuming that the double facer has the seven of spades on one side and the eight of hearts on the other, take these two cards from the pack putting the 7S up the right sleeve and the 8H up the left sleeve. The double facer is on the bottom of the pack with the 7S side at the face. Force this card using the Hindu shuffle action and bring it to the bottom of the pack and reverse it bringing the 8H side to the face. Spread pack face up on the table to show that the 7S is no longer there, and bring it from the right sleeve. Gather up the cards and give them a casual shuffle retaining the fake on the bottom. Tell the spectators you will give them another chance to see how it was done advising them to keep a close watch on the sleeve. Force the 8H show that it has vanished using the same methods and procedure as for the 7S. Ask the audience if they saw the card go up the sleeve this time. They will of course have been watching the right sleeve, and some amusement will be created when the left arm is shaken and the eight of hearts falls from the sleeve onto the table.

EFFECT:

A deck of cards is shuffled and then cut several times by the spectator. Now the spectator cuts the deck into four packets. The top card of each packet is turned over and whatever the value of the card, it is used to count down to that number in the packet. This is repeated for each of the other three packets. On turning over the four cards arrived at, they are shown to be the Aces. All can be examined.

- 1. The method is very simple consisting of a deck in order of King to Ace, but not in any particular suit or colour order just values.
- 2. The effect takes on astounding proportions if you use a deck switch, after the spectator's shuffle of a matching deck, especially since the now stacked deck can be freely cut by the spectator as often as he wishes. It is best if you spot the bottom card and stop when the value of the bottom card is somewhere about a six, seven or eight. The top card will be one less in value than the bottom card.
- 3. Now have the spectator cut the deck in equal halves. Follow by having him cut the two halves into equal quarters. He does not have to be exact since you have plenty of leeway to make the effect work.
- 4. Turn over the top card of the first packet on the left. Whatever its value, turn the card face down onto the packet, and count down to that number and remove the card at that number. Place it face down in front of this packet. Repeat the same procedure with the other three packets.

- 5. Gather the packets as you request the spectator to turn over the four tabled cards. During this time you casually riffle shuffle the remainder of the deck to destroy the arrangement, thus the deck and all can be examined.
- 6. If you can't make a deck switch, then simply give the stacked deck one or two reverse In Faros so that when you are about to start the effect you can give the deck seemingly fair shuffles (two In-Faro Shuffles) after which the spectator's fair cutting sells the rest.
- 7. If you haven't fooled your wife for a long time this should do it.

Marlo Note: In the event of the spectator actually cutting even packets the top cards will be of like value. In this case, assuming you feel he has cut even packets, first check to yourself the top card of each packet as you patter, "You freely cut to this card, then this card, etc.....". If the top cards are of the same value conclude the effect at this point by simply showing the top card of each packet. In the event of being one card off, by one value either higher or lower, in any packet you can palm out from its adjacent packet the required card and add it to the top of the other packet during the handling of the said packet or packets.

edward marlo

In a recent issue of Pabular you asked your readers for snag removers. I hope you will find this of interest.

I was fortunate enough to be part of the audience during Alex Elmsley's lecture in New York. That was a while ago but I'm still digesting the wealth of material he presented, not just effects, but theory and presentation.

Among the gems was his card stab. While I loved the effect, the method, involving a "Faro" took it out of my type of presentation. While thinking about how I could adopt it another deck stab came out. Ricardo's "Stabbed In The Pack". This is another very strong effect but the method did not suit me.

I finally found a solution. There are no new ingredients in this magical stew but judging from the response I've received in some fifty performances it is an epicurean delight.

EFFECT:

Two spectators each choose a card and sign or make an identifying mark on the faces. The cards are returned to the pack and the deck is shuffled, squared and placed face down on the table. The magician removes a business card from his wallet and scales it into the deck. The cards are ribbon spread and a spectator removes the business card along with the two cards on either side of it. The magician gives a brief recount of what has taken place and the spectator turns the cards over. They are the signed cards.

METHOD:

Any deck may be used and shuffled by a spectator if you wish. Holding the cards in the left hand face down, riffle the front corner asking a spectator to call stop. Break the deck at that point and lift off all the cards above the break with the right hand and hold them face out toward the spectator. While holding the cards, have him sign the card on the face and then hand the marking pen to a second spectator. While the pen is changing hands you replace the cards in the right hand back on top of the cards in the left hand. In doing this you perform Ovette's "Master Move", or "The Kelly Bottom Placement" bringing the signed card to the bottom.

Repeat all the moves with the second spectator. You should now have both signed cards on the bottom of the deck. Now do a slip shuffle keeping the bottom card on the bottom and shuffling off the second from the bottom card to the top. Square the deck being careful not to flash the bottom card and place it face down on the table. Now one signed card should be on the bottom and the other on the top of the deck. Take the business card from your wallet and scale it into the deck. (More about the card and the scaling below.)

Now comes the dirty work. Push the business card completely into the deck. Because it is smaller it will become lost in the deck. Pick up the cards and fan them between your hands until you come to the business card. Now you perform a Bill Simon move that is in Scarne's book on card tricks. When you come to the business card make a comment about it saying that on the other side is a prediction. Flip the business card over onto the cards in your right hand, let the spectators just get a glimpse of the writing then drop the cards in the left hand on top of it. What you have done is placed your business card between the two signed cards. All that remains is to square the deck, place it face down and ribbon spread it. Let the spectator remove the cards. Just sit back and enjoy the ohh's and ahhs.

MARKSMAN card triel make a c EXTRAORDINARY

NOTES:

I know that in print it may seem that I added snags rather than removed them but the three moves needed for this presentation are all quite easy. About the business card, I've experimented and have found that by themself they haven't enough body and if you glue two together that the edges fray and will not scale into the deck smoothly. I've even tried to laminate the card in plastic but it still didn't work well. What seems to work best is a playing card. I use a bridge size blank on both sides card. One side is printed with my name and on the other side I use an old Senator Crandall gag. If you do this effect with bridge size cards then your "business" card should be trimmed smaller.

On the scaling of the card, if you don't do it, about all I can say is that it is something you have to play with. It will help if you aim at a spot about six inches in front of the deck. What should happen is the card will hit the table and bounce up into the deck. For the best effect the card should enter the deck somewhere around the centre. All of this should be done on a flat smooth surface. I think that that covers all the details. While the explaining seems to go on forever, it is really a simple and fast moving effect that is easy enough to do. You can put all your work into the presentation. I hope you can use it.

carl herron

A TABLE WORKERS TABLE

When fulfilling formal engagements in which he is required to perform at several tables in succession the close up magician who prefers to work standing has a problem immediately he arrives at a table. Where to put his case. If he puts it on the floor he has to keep ducking below the table top, or find a spare chair on which to put his case as he arrives at each table. Whichever procedure he decides to adopt leaves much to be desired. It is not particularly dignified to keep bobbing down out of sight to obtain your props, apart from losing contact with the audience it is usually dark in that particular area and it may take some time to find what you require, thus aggravating the problem. A spare chair is not always available, and even if there is an empty one it may be only temporarily so, making it necessary to ask around if anyone is using it, which is not a good opening remark with which to start your show.

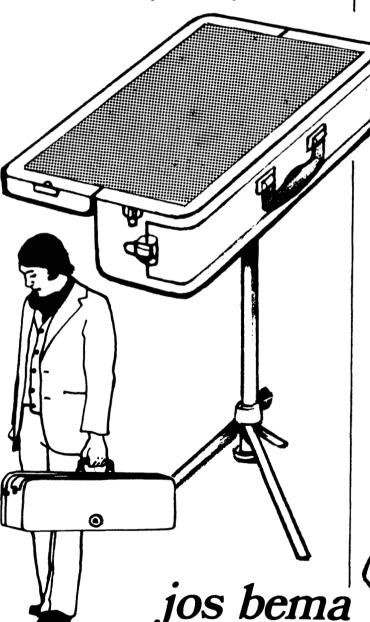

There is another problem which is common to all table workers whether they perform seated or standing, and that is finding space on the table to put any props. No doubt these problems have been solved by others but for those who have as yet no solution I offer my own.

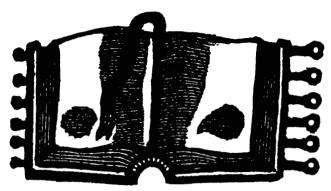

It is a case 24 inches long by 8 inches wide and 6 inches in depth when the lid is open it provides a working surface 24 inches by 16 inches. The case itself consists of a drawer and its housing. The drawer contains your tricks and a photographer's tripod which when screwed to the bottom of the case can be at any height from 18 inches to five feet which should prove equal to any conditions you are likely to meet, even to making it possible to do your act standing on a chair. The diagrams should make everything clear.

When you arrive at the establishment where you are booked to perform remove the tripod from the drawer and adjust it so that the lid of the case when open will lie level on the top of the tables at which you will work. On arriving at a table open the lid of the case and let it rest on what space is available getting as much of the lid as possible onto the table, and as you do this indicate by a suitable remark that the closer you get the better they will be able to see. Unless they are definitely hostile they will move the odd glass or ashtray enabling you to push the lid further onto the top of the table. You are now ready to perform with the minimum amount of trouble having solved the problem of table space and having your properties readily available. There is an added bonus in using this table, in that you are working a few inches away from the patron's table making you less vulnerable to bad angles.

It is probably best if the props for your first trick are taken from the pocket as opening the drawer at the commencement of the act seems a bit mundane and may prove to be of too much interest to your spectators who at this point should be mainly interested in you. You may have made a fine job of the table and by using it in the manner described will enable you to make immediate contact with those you are about to entertain, and to maintain this contact throughout your act. To allow your table to become a point of interest would be to minimise its usefulness in this particular respect.

BOOK REVIEWS

The Big Book of Magic published by Wolfe and selling for £4.50 is precisely what its title proclaims. Within its 300 odd pages can be found the secrets of a considerable number of what may be considered stock effects ranging from pocket tricks to illusions. The potential magician will find a wealth of material from which to construct an act whatever type of magic he wishes to adopt.

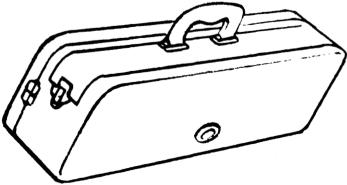

For intending manipulators there is valuable instruction on the front and back palming of cards, which includes information I do not recollect having seen in print before. A full chapter on thimble manipulation plus the Misers Dream will get them off to a good start.

The platform worker has thirty-one effects from which to choose, some of which use live-stock. He will also find additional material among the rope, paper and liquid tricks apart from excellent instruction on the Linking Rings.

The really ambitious who see themselves as a future Doug Henning heading their own magic show are well catered for in the chapter on Magic Spectaculars which also includes Escapology.

For the less ambitious there are pocket tricks, sponge balls, cups and balls and many others.

To sum up, it is an extremely well written book being both in the lucid description of effects and the style in which it is written. Our readers are familiar with the latter, the author being our regular columnist Patrick Page. The illustrations are by our Art Editor, Eric Mason, and are second to none I have seen in any other magical publication.

The Page boy speaks....

GREENWICH VILLAGE, NEW YORK CITY.

From what you have just read above you will realise that at this moment I am in America. To be exact, staying at the gorgeous and, by American standards, very old fashioned home of Charlie and Regina Reynolds of whom more later.

First stop was O'Hare Airport, Chicago to · be met by one Jay (Soapy) Marshall who barely an hour or two before had been taping the Merv Griffin TV Show along with Mark Wilson, Dai Vernon, Shimada and perhaps some others that I can't recall. Jay is a very good porter, he carried my bags all the way to the car. And as he loaded them in he said "We're not going home." As I raised my eyebrows he explained that we were going to a restaurant straight from the airport. It turned out to be an extremely large restaurant owned by one Marshall Rodine. Jay and the said Rodine drank while I watched them and in the course of the next 30 minutes or so a number of people began to gather and to my surprise I found that they were coming to celebrate Francis Marshall's birthday. (I'm not quite sure which birthday but I think she was 38 again last year).

After a delightful meal, which included, to the surprise of everyone present, a large birthday cake baked especially for the occasion by Marshall Rodine's girl friend, we moved upstairs into an extremely large ballroom where we danced and enjoyed the music of a 14 piece orchestra until about 2.00am. I don't think anyone quite realised that although it was 2.00am to them, to me it was more like 8 or 9 in the morning. Eventually I got to bed, and after what seemed like a 10 minute nap I was awoken by someone saying "Get up - you have a lecture to do in one hour." The lecture turned out to be for the Young Magicians Club which meets at Magic Incorporated's H.Q. This particular occasion turned out to be a near disaster as they had invited the local Cub Scouts along and most of them thought it was to be a show rather than a lecture; enough said.

No sooner had I finished the lecture when Jay said that we had better get going as I had a show to do at 2 o'clock and from there we drove over to a local college where the Society of American Magicians were holding their annual shindig and the show turned out to be two, one in the afternoon, one in the evening, with The Boy Wonder appearing on both. With the usual Jay Marshall efficiency we arrived on time. I think they liked both my shows, because they paid me and no-one complained as I ran away with my money held tightly in my hot little hands.

The following day I went to Milwaukee which they tell me is a brewery town. Again I did an afternoon and an evening show and again they must have liked me because they gave me money. (I like America, they keep giving me money). The following day was a day off. Tuesday, Peoria, Illinois. Wednesday, St Louis, Missouri. Thursday, Nashville, Tennessee. Friday, I don't remember. Saturday, Sunday and Monday I had a delightful stay in Buffalo and my grateful thanks go out to Jack and Shirley Alden who were my hosts. My stay included a visit to the Niagara Falls which I will remember for a long time. I M.C'd and performed what I laughingly call my act, on their show and lectured the following evening. It turned out in fact to be a Tri-city Convention taking in Buffalo, Toronto and Hamilton from over the Canadian border.

From there to Rochester and this time my delightful hosts were Keith Walker and wife Wendy whom I was pleased to meet because they are both from England. Once again they gave me money. Unbelievable. Next day, Washington and the kindly Al Cohen of Al's Magic Shop. (Free plug). I've known Al a long time. He is a nice man and a true lover of magic, pushing it whenever and wherever he can. The Washington lecture was a full-house affair and I completely ran out of lecture notes but I wasn't worried because Al had a package waiting for me, mailed to him in advance, with a fresh supply. Next, New Jersey and this time my hosts were Mr and Mrs Herb Zarrow of card-shuffling fame. Herb is one of the nice men of magic. Quiet, unassuming, pleasant, a great host and a nice guy to be around. I like him. At this lecture I was met by Charlie and Regina Reynolds who took me for the rest of my journey to New York. (Actually Mrs Zarrow did the driving). In New York I was down for a magic show at Hunter College. This is my last stop and I have been here several days, during which time I popped over to Philadelphia on the Sunday to lecture under the auspices of Martin Kaplan who owns a magic shop there, managed by Bob de Suza (I know I've spelt it wrong, Bob).

That, up to now, is where I have been and what I am doing here in the U.S. I haven't yet had time to mention many other people, both old and new faces, whom I have met and some of the other things I've seen, but more on that next month.

Goodbye. Patrick Page

THE USELESS PACK

What is outlined here is the basic routine only. The presentation, patter and etc., is up to the individual. My particular style involves presentation without any patter at all.

First of all, the necessary credits. As far as I know, the originator is Dai Vernon whose "All Backs" routine appears in "Expert Card Technique", anyway that was the one I worked from. The "All Faces" addition comes from the pages of Ed Marlo's "The Cardician". My contribution was to the way the two fit together and the surprise ending.

EFFECT:-

A pack of cards is removed from its box. These, to the Magician's apparent surprise (depends on your mode of presentation) consist of all backs. These transform to a pack of all faces. The final knockout comes when these faces transform to all backs once more but of a different colour from the original. The Magician then either states that it is pointless to show a card trick as he had planned with such a pack, disposes of it in favour of another trick or merely disposes of that "useless pack" and performs with another, more sensible, pack.

METHOD:-

A set up is required. You need half of a red pack, half of a blue pack (consisting of different cards from those in the red half), two double facers and a red backed Joker. From the top downwards we have the Joker face down, a face down red card, one face up, another face down and yet another face up. Below these five cards are the rest of the red backed pack face down. This is followed by the two double facers and then the face down blue backers.

Ensure that the last blue backer is an easily remembered card (such as the Ace of Spades). The value on the face of the first double backer is also remembered, that is, the face which is facing downwards. Sorry about the mental exercise but as you will see it helps to know these two values. The pack is placed into a red box.

- The pack is removed backs upwards from the box. The top one is turned to show the Joker. This is put aside. A little finger break is held over the last red card or alternatively this last red card can be a thick card for easy location.
- Double lift the now top two and show as a double backer. Insert this into the break over the finger. Maintain the break.
- Double lift the next two and show as double backer. This is replaced on top but the right thumb keeps a break between these and the remainder of the pack.
- The left hand removes all the cards below the finger break, deposits them on to the top. This hand then goes underneath the pack and grips the half below the right thumb break as the right hand lifts the top half off.
- Both hands revolve at the wrists to show all backs returning to the original positions. The left hand places its half on top of that on the right and maintains a little finger break.
- The cards above the break are fanned to show all backs. As the fan is closed, the half above the break is injogged.
- Right hand grips the pack with fingers above and thumb below at the edges in front of the Magician, and turns the pack over. Pack is placed on the left hand.

doug alker

Right hand lifts off the portion above the jog. Both hands revolve to show all backs. Left thumb goes under its packet and flips it over before placing this on top of the packet in the right. Left finger maintains a break.

- Top half is fanned out again (all backs). Close fan and maintain break. Left fingers peel away bottom half so that right side ends up facing the left if you get what I mean. This is shown as all backs. The right hand which is arched over its half comes over the left half. The finger tips curl over the far edge of the left hand half and slides the bottom card out on to the bottom of the right hand portion.
- Separate hands (each with half a pack). Show bottom of right half to be a face. Turn hand down and the left thumb pulls off the top card on to the top of its portion. Right hand turns over and left hand thumbs off the bottom card of that portion on to its half. Thumb off another card from the top of the right half. Turn over the hand to show a back and then turn it down again for another card to be slid off. Right half is placed below that of the left. The right hand grips the whole pack and turns it over to show another back. Pack is turned down, on to the left hand.
- Using the right hand as a screen the left fingers pull out the bottom face up card and revolves it.
- Pack is turned over to show a face. Fan out about a dozen cards, faces showing, grip in the right hand which turns these to show the backs.
- Continue to do this (showing cards as normal red backers) until you reach the Ace of Spades (blue card). From that point, faces are shown as you spread cards from left hand into the right. When you reach the remembered double facer you will have three or four cards remaining in the left hand. Keep these in the left hand which revolves to show red backs. These are put on top of the face up pack.
- The set up is now from top downwards, face up red backers, face up blue backers and finally the two double facers at the bottom.
- Pause and then turn the pack over with the right hand to show a face. Lift and show this card as though you were double lifting. Replace on top.
- Hold pack in left hand. Right hand comes over the top, grips pack at the short ends. Left fingers pull away about 10 cards from the bottom turning to keep the bottom card upwards. Right hand turns to show two faces. Left hand turns at the right time as right hand replaces cards so that the exposed back is not seen.

- Left hand pulls off a few more cards (perhaps 20) as above action is repeated. This can be done perhaps a couple more times.
- At the next cut which will be around the half-way mark, the left fingers side slip the top card off the right half as the cut is made. Both halves can now be shown as all faces. Replace halves and maintain a break with the little finger.

Revolve top half with the right hand.

- Fan out all cards above the break to show all faces. Injog the top half as the fan is closed.
- Turn the pack over. With left little finger inserted into the jog, fan out to show all faces. Close fan and revolve top half (over the break) and place this below the remaining half.
- Set up is now, double card on top followed by face down blue backers, then the face down red backers. The other double facer is somewhere in the red half.
- Turn the pack over (all now face up). Slide out the now bottom card and transfer to the top. With the right hand as shield, the left fingers pull out and reverse the bottom card.
- The top card is shown as a double facer and inserted half-way down in the upper half. Pack, which is gripped by the left hand fingers is turned so that four faces are visible. The double facer is pushed in.
- Right hand arches over and cuts off just over half the pack. As the left hand shows the remaining portion as all faces the right fingers prepare its half for the Kelly replacement. Left portion is replaced below the right portion between the stack and the split away bottom.
- Pack is turned over when a blue backer is seen. Pick up the tabled Joker and contrast the backs (this is important as people frequently forget the original colour).
- Right hand cuts off less than half and shows the blue backer on the top of the left hand portion. As the right half is replaced, the left fingers curl on top of the blue backer just exposed and pulls it round underneath to the bottom where it ends facing upwards.
- Pack is turned to show a blue backer at the bottom. Turn it back. Double lift the top two cards and show as a double blue backer.
- Insert this double into the pack just less than half-way down and get a right thumb break below its point of insertion. Cut off at the break and revolve both hands to show all blue backs.
- Replace halves as they were, keeping a little finger break. Fan out the cards above the break to show all blue. Injog when closing and turn the pack over.

- Cut at the now outjogged half. Show both halves as blue. Replace left half on top of the right half after turning this (left) half over in the left hand.
- Fan out to show blue backs. Reject pack as unsuitable for use.

First of all, thanks to the many readers who by phone and letter said such nice things about the John Ramsay issue. March 13th next year will be the centenery of his birth and we are already seeking material, tricks, anecdotes etc for a commemorative issue to mark the occasion. If you have anything you would like to pass on please get in touch.

Presented by his secretary Mrs French and Andrew Galloway, some of the actual properties used by John will soon be on permanent display in the Magic Circle museum. Had it not have been for our journey to Ayr in connection with the special issue these items would most likely have been lost.

The Blackpool Magical Society's One Day Convention has become an occasion to meet friends, so much so that we did not see all the magic we wanted to. We did see much of the Close-up though, and in particular Mark Weston with a continuous cigarette production that looked good, even from the sides, and Mo Howarth cutting and restoring a silk. We also saw Trevor Lewis in full swing with The Tamarix Rabbit trick, stacking dice, and producing a bottle of coke.

Close-up magic at magical events is something of an ordeal both for the organisers and performers. In conditions where the spectators are on the same level as the performer the maximum number of people who can see the performer in comfort is about twenty seated with about a dozen standing at the rear. In the above event four performers were attempting to entertain probably more than 300 which would require about eight performers if all were to get a comfortable view of the action. This would of course require a much larger room than the one at Blackpool. The increasing popularity of close-up magic will eventually force organisers of magical events to give more though to providing better facilities for the more intimate type of magic including cabaret style acts and expending less effort in trying to produce a big show, when professional illusion acts are almost non-existant. It is by the creation of a similar environment in which the professionals work and booking these performers at their events that magical societies can best serve the interests of their members and magic as a whole.

For almost a week a Soho pub became the unofficial headquarters of a mini close-up convention with Derek Dingle performing original card mysteries using his superb technique with other aids thrown in which threw us completely. He split a card in half in five seconds flat and presented us with a couple of bars of gold in the shape of Tally-ho cards. He has promised us a not too difficult non-card effect for the magazine. Derek was of course breaking his journey on his way to the Magic Safari in South Africa. He was accompanied by Ricky Jav also booked for the same event with his own special brand of magic and who makes difficult moves and flourishes look like childs play; he performed the Signed Card in Purse among other effects. Ricky includes performing at Country and Western, and Rock Concerts among his engagements with a show lasting a minimum of 45 minutes. When asked what tricks he does, he replied, "I just throw a few cards about." He has written a book due out in the autumn, something about the Martial Arts — using playing cards as a weapon. When these two characters were last in London nearly three years ago and they literally knocked us cold it was Bob Read who remarked "I wonder what they say about us when they get back home." This time we were ready. Gordon Bruce, card expert and double bass player with the Scottish National Orchestra, on a one night stand at The Festival Hall, stayed over a couple of nights and joined in and caused Ricky to comment, "you never told us about Gordon." Well, we are forgetful on occasions. More to come. Brian Sinclair chipped in with a couple of his specialities, Coins through Table, stealing a ladies wrist watch, and also a considerable amount of the thunder. (Brian can be seen every Friday night at the Chalet Arosa, Tunbridge Wells where he entertains at the tables). On the last night it was almost impossible to get inside the pub! Someone who had sat quietly watching the previous evenings decided to have a go. Armed with a couple of safety pins, a borrowed pack of cards and the egg bag Ken Brooke went to work, and closed the show. If you have any sense you don't try to follow Ken in this kind of situation. It was a terrific week in which many people had a great deal of fun including the customers and bar staff.

TOP PHOTOGRAPHER 'VIC PINTO' CREATES TWO BEAUTIFUL GLAMOUR SHOTS OF A PROFESSIONAL MODEL. BOTH IN TREMENDOUS LIVING COLOUR!

the pinto'shöwgirl

HELD BEFORE A MIRROR A REVERSE IMAGE OF THE SHOWGIRL REVEALS MORE CHARMS and — THE SELECTED CARD!

This is the brainchild of professional photographer and friend 'Vic Pinto'. Known in the commercial field throughout the world and a magical nut if ever I met one. Few men would go to the trouble and expense to produce a quality product of this nature unless he was (almost) out of his mind!

'Pinto' built a special set in his studio, employed a beautiful model and with his creative genius turned out 'The Pinto Showgirl' — Small, exclusive apparatus which we guarantee will create havoc with the boys in the bar.

Routined by 'Ken Brooke' here, briefly, is what happens - - -

From a small wallet you remove a playing card which has been permanently sealed in a plastic container. The face of this card is not shown.

Spectator is handed a pack of cards and is asked to deal them face down, one at a time and stop dealing whenever he wishes. That card is turned face upwards. The sealed package is turned over and, believe it or not, the spectator finds a duplicate of the selected card right inside the package!

Saying this is not the trick he intended to show, the performer explains that he was rehearsing his 'big show' the previous night and his assistant picked up one of the large cards he uses and at that very moment he had a premonition that the very card she was holding would be selected tonight. So saying, the magician removes a beautifully coloured photograph of a showgirl holding a large playing card, back towards the camera — The magician states that the card is a duplicate of the card spectator stopped the deal at a few moments ago ---

SOLD TO YOU ON A MONEY BACK GUARANTEE, OBTAINABLE ONLY FROM — 'KEN BROOKE'S MAGIC PLACE', 145 WARDOUR STREET, LONDON W.1. ENGLAND

U.S.A. $7.50 AIR MAILED HOME

ENGLAND £2.50

EUROPE £2.75

EXCLUSIVE GLAMOUR MAGIC

innumille.

mondaytuesdaywednesdaythursdayfriday saturdaysundayBOONDAY

Those of you who had difficulty in understanding Roy Walton's CARD SHARK effect everything will become clear if the following is inserted between paragraphs two and three under the heading PERFORMANCE.

'Hold the pack in your left hand so that the end with which the half card is squared, is away from you. Riffle the inner short end of the pack with the right thumb until it jumps at the King of Clubs. Carefully cut the pack at this point and complete the cut, so that the King of Clubs and the half card above it come to the face. If the half card is not completely square with the outer end of the King of Clubs, use the fingers of the right hand to correct its position. Keep the pack tilted up slightly during these actions, so that the face is not visible to the spectators.'

Our apologies to all including Roy.

THE INTERNATIONAL MAGAZINE

Now in its 3rd year.

MAKE SURE EACH ISSUE IS SENT TO YOU REGULARLY. SEND TODAY ONLY £2.00 ($ 7.00) FOR ONE YEAR (SIX) ISSUES SENT POST FREE TO ANYWHERE IN THE WORLD.

32 glossy pages in each issue.

THE INTERNATIONAL MAGIC STUDIO, (RON MACMILLAN)
89 CLERKENWELL ROAD, HOLBORN, LONDON, E.C.1.

Pabular is published after the second week in every month and is printed by Instance Printers, Paddock Wood, Kent, England. Editor Nick Bolton, Technical Editor Fred Robinson, Art Editor Eric Mason. Subscriptions may be obtained direct from the publishers, Pabular, PO Box 180, London SE12 8JJ, England or through many magic dealers. Price 50 pence per copy (US $1.25) surface post included. Air Mail extra depending on country and subject to UK rates. Editorial or content copy should be sent to Fred Robinson, 1 Crescent Court, 24 Crescent Road, New Barnet, Herts, England. Advertising rates sent on request — smalls 3 pence per word (US 10 cents). Dealer enquiries welcomed. Reproduction of old prints and historical magical items by kind permission of Tony Faro.

6030Uar

The Magazine of Close-up Magic

Vol.22Nº95MAY 1976

PLAY IT AGAIN SAM

EFFECT Seven pairs of cards are shown, the pairs running in numerical order, a pair of aces followed by a pair of twos etc. One of the pairs is replaced in the pack and the remaining pairs split up. The pairs magically assemble once more as pairs in order, and the one placed in the pack at the beginning of the trick joins them.

peter duffie & roy walton

PLAY IT AGAIN SAM by Peter Duffie and Roy Walton

METHOD:-

Run through the face up pack and remove a pair of sevens and place them at the face of the pack. Continue with a pair of sixes, fives, fours, threes, twos and aces. Do not bother about removing pairs of the same colour, just concentrate on the values. Spread out the seven pairs on the face for a moment as if to check that they are all correct taking this opportunity to get a left little finger break two cards below the pair of sevens. Close up the spread of pairs and lift them away from the face of the pack with the right hand, really taking all the cards above the break, so that the two extra cards have been secretly added at the rear of the seven pairs. The remainder of the pack is laced face down on the table.

Spread out the cards face up between the hands making sure the spectators understand that the pairs are in numerical order from the face, keeping the last three cards square as one so as not to expose the two extra cards. Square up the spread and turn the cards face down. Thumb off the two top cards and push them into the centre of the main pack. Say, "seven has always been my unlucky number, so I think I'll get rid of the pair of sevens."

The packet of pairs should be held face down in the left hand. You are now about to give the impression of splitting the remaining six pairs into two separate piles onto the table.

Push the top card slightly with the left thumb and take the two top cards from the packet with the right hand, thumb at the near short end and the fingers at the far one, keeping the cards in their unsquared condition. Move the right hand so that the two cards rest on the table. Now place the second finger of the left hand on the back of the lower card of the pair pressing it against the table's surface, whilst the right hand moves a little to the right with the upper card leaving it on the table. During this action the left hand will need to twist exposing the face of the card at the bottom of the packet. Twist the left hand so that its cards are face down again at the same time getting a left little finger break under the top two cards. Bring the right hand over the packet and using the same grip as before move the top two cards as one, slightly to the right. Now use the left thumb to push the next card over slightly, enabling the right hand to take it below the 'one' it already holds and move away with the 'two' cards. Place the lower card ON TOP of the face down card already on the fable at the left hand side, again pressing on its back with the second finger tip of the left hand. The remaining 'one' is placed face down on top of the other face down card with the right hand, making sure to keep 'it' absolutely square as you do so.

Turn the left hand bringing its cards face down again and push the top two cards over to the right slightly in an unsquared condition. Take these two cards into the right hand using the same grip as before but prior to taking them away from the packet, use the left thumb tip to slide the uppermost card of the pair a little to the left of the one below it. Distribute this pair in the manner already explained, but this time the UPPER one goes on top of the LEFT hand heap and the lower one on top of the heap on the right.

Push the next pair over with the left thumb and take them into the right hand. This time the LOWER one is spread a little to the left of the upper one and the pair split and distributed as before.

Push the next two and this time use the left thumb to draw the upper one to the left before removing them with the right hand and distribute them.

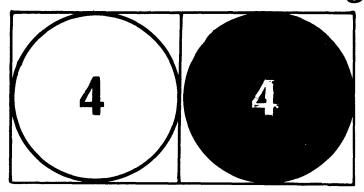

You will now be left with three face down cards in the left hand, the audience thinking you just have the final pair. Push over the top card and take it into the right hand. Place it on top of the right hand packet, and as you do this put the last card(s) in the left hand quietly on top of the left hand packet. Your work is now over, but do not let your sigh of relief be too obvious.

Snap your fingers over the two face down packets and then turn the two top cards of the left hand packet face up with the left hand and place them still face up between the two packets. They will be seen to be a pair of aces. Turn the top two cards of the right hand packet face up with the right hand, showing a pair of twos place them on top of the aces face up. Continue this left/right sequence until all six pairs are assembled face up in the centre packet.

Point out that an extra card has appeared in each packet. Take these two cards, one in each hand and turn them face up in a display position to reveal the pair of sevens. Conclude by saying "Looks like my luck has changed."

(Carlos Colombini) fabian

TRANSPO INK

This is my version of John Racherbaumer's Ace Portation'. No fake card is necessary, the entire effect being achieved by using the Biddle and Elmsley counts.

EFFECT:-

Four cards each with a black spot in the centre, and four cards with a red spot in the centre are freely shown on both sides. The four black spots are placed on the table to the performers right and the red spots to his left. One by one a black spot card changes places with a red spot card until all four black spot cards are on the performer's left and vice versa.

REQUIREMENTS:-

Prepare eight blank faced by sticking a red spot to the face of four of them, and a black spot on the face of the remaining four. Suitable stickers are available from most stationers.

PERFORMANCE:-

- 1. Openly remove from wallet the eight cards and spread out explaining that you will show them something unusual with eight cards, four with red spots and four with black spots. Square up the packet face up with the black spots above and the red spots underneath.
- 2. Holding the packet in the right hand in the Biddle position draw off the top face up black spot card with the left thumb. The second black spot is pulled off in a similar manner holding a break between the two cards with the tips of the left fingers. Draw off the other two black spots, pause and say, "Four black spot cards."

- 3. Left hand comes back to the packet held in the right hand and pulls off the first red spot card with the thumb at the same time leaving the three black spot cards above the break underneath the right hand packet. The left thumb peels off the next two red spot cards singly, and then drops the last red spot with the three black spot cards beneath it as one card. Reading from the top the order is one red, three blacks, three reds and one black.
- 4. Turn the packet face down and hold it in the left hand. Turn the top black card face up and count off four cards without reversing their order and place them on the table to your right. Count the remaining four cards retaining their order and take the bottom card and put it face up on top of packet which you put on the table to your left. The position is now, on your right a face up black spot with three red spot cards face down beneath it, and on your left a red spot face up with the face down black spot cards.
- 5. Take the face up red spot card, turn it face down and with it scoop up the three cards and turn the packet over replacing it on the table. Repeat the same operation with face up black spot card.
- 6. You now order one card in each packet to change places. Lift the top card of both packets revealing that the change has taken place. Replace the cards on top of their respective packets.
- 7. Make a magical gesture over each packet and using the Elmsley count with each packet in turn show that two have now transposed.
- 8. Make another magical gesture and this time count each packet in the normal manner reversing the order as you do so, but replacing the last card on the bottom. It is important that in this count which shows a third transposition to have taken place that the cards are held in exactly the same manner as when doing the Elmsley count.
- 9. A final magic pass and the fourth and last cards are shown to have transposed by Elmsley counting both packets.
- 10. The effect over drop one packet on top of the other and using the side steal bring the bottom card to the top. Place the packet on the table, and should anyone pick it up they will find everything normal.

FOUR GONE CONCLUSION

In this effect two selected cards are lost in the pack, and four cards taken from the top of the pack are shown to be all alike. Two of the cards disappear and the two left are shown to be the previously selected cards.

On being returned to the pack the two chosen cards are secretly brought to the top of the pack by whatever method you favour. Holding the pack in the left hand in the normal dealing position the thumb pushes the top four cards over the right side of the pack in a spread out condition. The right hand moves in to take the four cards roughly squaring them up as it does so and in the process pushes the bottom card of the four under the left thumb finally moving away with only three cards. This is not a difficult move technically, but does require to be done in an easy casual manner that will not arouse suspicion that you have done anything other than take the four cards from the top of the pack. The rest of the pack is now placed aside being no longer required.

With the packet of three cards held face down they are counted as four using the standard Elmsley count procedure which will bring the card not selected in the middle of two chosen cards. You now show the three cards as being four like cards, by using the familiar buckle move.

Hold the cards in the left hand, buckle the bottom card and with the right turn the other two face up as one card counting one, and turn them back face down again. Place the top card face down beneath the other two. On the count of two turn the top card face up and then put it face down on top of the packet, and buckling the bottom card place the top two cards to the bottom. Count three and repeat as on the count of one. Counting four turn the top card face up, and then turn it back face down. You have now shown that you are apparently holding four identical cards.

Continue by showing the four cards again by using the Swindle count, a move I believe to be original with me. It should not be used in such a manner as to make it appear that you are trying to prove anything, but should be performed as casually as possible and appear as part of the previous count which it should follow without pause.

Hold the packet face down in the left hand, thumb on top of the cards and fingers beneath. The right hand takes the top card pulling it off the top of the packet with the thumb displays it face to audience counting one. On the count of two the right hand takes a second card from the left hand leaving the first card beneath the remaining card in that hand. The face of this second card is not shown but is kept face down in the right hand as you continue to count three and raise the left hand showing the face of the bottom card of the two in that hand. Bring the left hand to its original position and pull off the top card of the two with the right thumb onto the top of the card already in the right hand. Count four and raise the left hand as before and show the face of the card it holds. Place this card face down onto the top of the two in the right hand.

It may be felt that such a blatant miscount is sure to be noticed especially as in the first few attempts the rhythm will tend to feel a little unnatural. Once the latter is overcome this manner of counting will never be questioned.

To bring the effect to its climax the three cards are held face down in the right hand in the Biddle position. With the tips of the left hand fingers pull out the bottom card to the left of the two cards above it, the latter being retained in the right hand taking care to keep them perfectly squared. The position is now that you have one selected card in the left hand and the other in the right with a card concealed behind it. On being told the names of the selected cards display the face of the bottom card of the two in the right hand and drop it/them as one card face down onto the table. Without hesitation snap the card in left hand with the fingers and show it to be the other chosen card. To prevent the two from separating when they are dropped onto the table squeeze the ends sufficiently to put a slight bridge in them.

256

The Page boy speaks....

Well now, let me see, the last time you read this column it was coming from New York. This time we're back home in London. In actual fact I had to leave the USA earlier than I had wanted due to my wife being taken ill. I had intended staying in New York for a few days doing absolutely nothing apart from chatting to my very good friend Al Flosso. Unfortunately it was not to be, although in fact I did have some time to spend with Al. going out for a meal one evening with him, Stanley Palm and Stanley Burn the ventriloguist. You probably will not believe this, but my only reason for going to New York was to see Al. It's just as well that I did because now, unfortunately Al is no longer with us. A little more than eighty years ago God decided, in His wisdom, that he would explain the meaning of the word Magic to us and so he created Al Flosso. For me he succeeded. The Flosso-Hornmann Magic Company is now in the very capable hands of Al's son Jack. I wish him all the success his father had.

Last time out I said I would mention a few of the people I met in the USA. The first one who springs to mind, because he was the first person I met, was Ed Marlo in Chicago. Ed had a few pertinent words to say about Pabular. Mainly the fact that one or two of the items that have been printed have previously appeared elsewhere. (Listening, Mr Editor?). There are few people in this world who could say such things with his authority. Another name was Eddie Fechter. He runs a bar cum hotel in Buffaloe, New York and this was the first time I had ever met Eddie, and I hope it isn't the last. I have mentioned before that I never had the pleasure of meeting the late Matt Schulein and Eddie Fechter must surely be his worthy successor. In saying that, I would appreciate the fact that Eddie's actual technique is probably far in advance of the late Mr Schulein but the approach is, I imagine, very similar. Eddie is a well-built man with a very pleasant personality and knows how to handle a deck of cards and a handful of dice better than most. He showed me quite a number of things I have never seen before (I'll bet you are wondering what they are).

Dick Kohl is a name of which I had never heard. I appeared with him on a show at Hunter College, New York where he was billed as 'The Great Kohl and Company', (the Company being his charming wife and daughter). I am not quite sure what kind of an act Dick does normally, but the act he performed that night was unbelievably hilarious. He did stunts and twists on existing effects that I have never seen before. He's funny, funny, funny. One day we might even see you in England, Dick — but if you do come don't forget to bring that Sawing-in-Half effect.

Doc Dougherty was someone I do not think I had met before, and this time it was in Washington. I had an afternoon to spare and Doc was kind enough to take me on a partial tour of the Smithsonian Institute in Washington. That, I may add, was one of the highlights of the whole trip. I had always believed that this particular institute was a place where they kept records and nothing else. How wrong I was. It turned out to be one of the finest museums, particularly of American history, that it has been my pleasure to see.

Scotty York and Billy Wells were another two guys I had met in Washington — Scotty I had met before but not Billy. After my lecture they drove me back to Billy Wells' home where I was to spend the evening and I had the pleasure of watching Scotty York perform a lot of close-up magic. He has some really excellent ideas. He actually performed his lecture for me. It is, of course, a close-up lecture in which coins and cards are predominant and also an effect using a 'goldfinger' (I always thought 'goldfinger' was a Jewish gynaecologist).

Scotty tells me he wants to come to England and in fact I have recently heard that this will be happening and he will be doing his lecture. Don't miss it, he's good. The thing that impressed me most of all the things I saw Scotty perform for me was a routine I believe is published in manuscript form and is sold in the U.S. under the title "The X rated Caps and Balls Routine by Scotty York". This is a more or less standard type cups and balls routine (in effect) but in this particular routine there is just no way you can guess where those final loads come from. It is excellent, excellent. On that particular evening Billy Wells was, like myself, a spectator, but in the course of conversation I began to realise that he too had a thing or two up his sleeve. Why not come over with Scotty, Bill?

Goodbye, Patrick Page

Prior to the publication of Card Shark we were shown the effect described below by Trevor Lewis who had heard that Roy Walton had a trick with the film 'Jaws' as the theme but had no details. That the effect should be similar even to cutting the card in half zig-zag fashion is surprising and another example of great minds etc. We believe it will be of interest to those with the ability to force a card in the classic manner enabling the effect to be achieved with less handling and the sudden appearance of the half card above the pack is rather more startling. Credit for the origination belongs, of course to Roy Walton. O

CARD SHARI

A duplicate Queen of Hearts cut in half as in the original version. One half is left in the card case which represents the shark. The other half is placed in the pack approximately fifteen from the top, and squared up in line with the end of the pack nearest the body. The Queen of Hearts belonging to the pack is on top of the pack.

Using an overhand shuffle, undercut below the half card, in-jog the first card and shuffle off. Force the Queen of Hearts by the classic method and close up the pack. Fan out the pack for the card to be replaced. Close up the fan and turn the pack end for end in one action using the move which must be well known to users of the one way back principle and stripper packs.

Hold the pack in the left hand pick up the empty? card case with the right and zoom in towards the pack giving the best imitation you can of a shark diving towards its victim including the gobble, gobble business. Drop the card case. With the left thumb across the middle of the pack riffle the outer end of the pack with the right fingers. This will cause the half card to jump above the end of the pack. Try to regulate the pressure so that the half card does not fly right out clear, but just peeps out above the end of the pack. Let the spectator verify it as being the selected card and ask him to remove it from the pack. Ask him now to open the card case (shark) where he will find don't forget to put it in.

The jump up move was shown to me some years ago by Patrick Page during a late night session at some convention or other. I suppose therefore, that this Welshman must, with reluctance, give part of the credit to a Scotsman

trevor lewis

DROPIT \---

One of the most useful of gadgets to a close up magician, and one that is in constant use with many of our top flight performers is TOPIT. It is not claimed that DROPIT will make it redundant but it is a ready made substitute which most of us already possess and is extremely useful when it is required to cause small objects, particularly coins, to vanish completely.

Having aroused your curiosity I hope that you will not be disappointed to learn that BROPIT is merely the outer breast pocket of your jacket. Should you not be wearing one, a similar pocket in your shirt will serve as a substitute in most cases.

The idea of using this pocket as a receptacle for secretly disposing of vanished objects is not new but does not seem to have been fully exploited. Only two of its many possibilities appear to be well known, dropping a coin into it from a right thumb palmed position as the right hand pulls back the left sleeve, and stealing a coin held at tips of the left fingers with the right fingers as the right hand draws a handkerchief over it. Towards the end of this action the right hand with coin comes near the pocket and drops it in just before the handkerchief falls off the left fingers revealing an empty left hand.

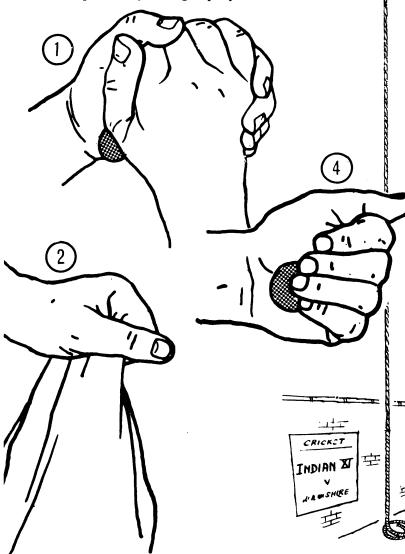

The following ideas which have on occasion been used and proved to be practical may inspire others to try them out and in so doing find other uses for DROPIT.

Before attempting any of the ideas it is necessary to ensure that the mouth of the pocket is open slightly and remains so. This can be easily achieved by pushing a small handkerchief or paper napkin down to the bottom of the pocket or as I do, pull up the lining of the pocket from the bottom about half way up the pocket.

1. Hold a coin in the cupped hands and shake them as you would if you were holding more than one coin and wished to make them 'jingle'. Bring the hands still cupped and clasped together near to the breast pocket, blow on them, and repeat the 'jingle' action during which you work the coin back towards the heel of the left hand (Fig.1). At this point the coin is a mere couple of inches away from the pocket. Blow on the hands once more and keeping them near the pocket do the jingle business and look directly at the spectator immediately in front of you in the eyes say, "You've seen this before." As he looks up you do two things simultaneously. You release the coin as you are making an upward movement of the hands in the jingling action, virtually throwing it at the coat just above the pocket, and still holding the gaze of the spectator say, "Your friend has." Your own gaze moves to the second spectator as you make this second remark. The coin on striking the coat falls into the pocket under cover of this calculated misdirection but it is most important that the spectators must not as yet be aware that the coin is no longer in your still closed cupped hands. Move the hands an inch or so further away from the pocket, open them slightly and peep inside. Close the hands and remark, "No luck as yet. Would you like to have a blow?" Move your hands towards the spectator for him to blow on them. Note how the hands have moved gradually away from the pocket and how you have contrived to convince the spectators that the coin is still in the hands after it is safely in the pocket by taking a 'peep' at it.

When the spectator has blown on your hands open them slowly showing that the coin has disappeared.

2. The above move can be adapted to change a borrowed silver coin into a copper one.

Have a copper coin concealed in the right hand between the second and third fingers. Take the borrowed silver coin on the palm of the left hand and cup the hands and proceed as in the previous effect vanishing the silver coin and revealing the copper one at the finish. Prevent the coins from clinking by trapping the borrowed coin between the two hands to avoid it making contact with the concealed copper one.

- Cover the open palm of the left hand with a handkerchief and place a coin on it directly over the centre of the palm. Close the fingers and bring the hand towards the body near to the breast pocket and blow on it. With a slight flourish turn the hand over keeping hold of the handkerchief at the centre allowing the corners to hang down as in (Fig.2). With the right hand grasp a convenient corner of the handkerchief give it a shake which pulls it from the right hand. The coin has vanished having, as you have no doubt guessed, disappeared into the breast pocket during the slight flourish when the fist was turned over. When the right hand takes the corner of the handkerchief the left hand must have moved well away from the body. It is probably more effective if a spectator is allowed to take a corner, the right hand gently releasing the handkerchief and letting the left hand be seen to be empty.
- Close the left hand into a loose fist and a coin is pushed into the opening between the thumb and forefinger where it rests on the tips of the fingers (Fig.3). The coin is held at the heel of the hand as in (Fig.4) and taking care not to flash the coin bring the hand back towards the spectator and in such a position that it would be an easy matter to release the coin during a gesture letting it hit the coat and slide into the pocket. No doubt you could evolve a suitable one. In the meanwhile here is one which gives good cover. Have a handkerchief in the breast pocket and remove it with the right hand and as you give it a shake to make the folds fall out the spectators eyes will be on this action, particularly if you make it look important by watching it with interest yourself.

None of the above are really difficult but they do need practise to get the necessary smoothness for the timing and misdirection to be effective.

May you never drop it when using DROPIT.

fred tobinson

barrie richardson

one of the cards. Please do not let anyone else see the figures. Good, now take another card and on it draw two simple geometric figures — such as a square and a cross — but please do not use these. Make the first one fairly large and draw the second one within it. Good! Now mix the cards so that no-one, not even you, know the location of the cards on which you have written. Now place your cards in this envelope." You hold open the envelope and assist him (this envelope already has two cards in it so it now contains nine cards). "Please seal the envelope." Having taken the pencil back with your right hand, hold out your left hand which is still

THOUGHTS IN TRANSIT

This is an effect which I have used in my luncheon club lecture entitled 'Magic of the Mind'. Men, for some reason, respond more favourably to this type of E.S.P. trick than to some other kinds which appeal to women.

The origin of this demonstration is found in Anneman's 'Practical Mental Effects'. I have added a few touches which seems to create a good impression whether used as a close-up trick or on the platform.

The magician holds a stack of coin envelopes in his left hand. He hands one to a person on his left and another to someone on his right. Both are empty.

He now offers the person on his left a packet of about twenty blank cards (I use white cardboard cards rather than blank business cards). He is now asked to count off seven cards. He would of course find this awkward to do while holding the envelope, so you take it from his and casually push it in the centre of the stack in your left hand.

Take the rest of the blank cards from him and request that he recounts the cards to make sure that there are seven. When he confirms this hand him a pencil and say, "Will you please write a two digit number — such as 93 or 21 on holding the packet of envelopes take back his sealed envelope on top ask if he has marked the envelope. He of course answers "No." You do a double lift turnover bringing the second envelope which is sealed and contains five blank cards. The spectator signs this envelope and places it in his pocket. He will later testify that the cards never left his hands.

You turn now to the spectator on your right and ask him to carefully count seven out aloud. "Please confirm your count" . . . "Place your cards in your envelope." He does this and seals it. With the packet of envelopes on the left hand have him place his sealed envelope on top at the same time hand him the pencil saying, "Please initial your envelope on the upper corner - right here." Again doing a double lift and turnover bringing the first spectators envelope to the top. You continue to hold the stack of envelopes acting as a writing support as he signs as requested. He is now asked to put the signed and sealed envelope into his pocket and you put the remaining envelopes away, either in the pocket or on the table.

The fun starts. Turning to the first spectator say, "Sir, please concentrate on your number." You pretend to write something on one of the blank cards or on one of the envelopes you retained when disposing of the stack. "Now think of the geometric designs." You draw a triangle with a circle inside. (These hit 95 per cent of the cases and you are 99 per cent of the time at least half right).

"Sir, what two digit number did you think of?" Twenty-seven he responds. This you write in secretly with your trusty 'Boon' or swami writer. Drop the card onto the table. "What geometric designs did you draw? A circle within a triangle! Do you believe this — LOOK." Turn over the card.

The spectator is now requested to validate your drawings by showing his original cards. He opens his envelope and is surprised to find only five cards all blank. The assistant on the right is asked to open his envelope and sure enough he now has nine cards which include the two missing from the other spectator's envelope, one on which is written the number 27 and the other a drawing of a circle with a triangle.

Surely, such a demonstration of telepathy and psychokinesis is enough for one sitting. The trick is easy to do, leaving plenty of room for showmanship without which it is just another trick.

In 'The Page Boy Speaks' Patrick Page sought the solution to a card quickie; here is my answer. Whichever sleeve you want to produce the card from you must have an inside pocket on that same side of your jacket, thus the card will mainly be produced from the right sleeve as not all jackets have an inside pocket on the left side. However you proceed as follows: the card having been selected it is palmed from the pack in the left hand. The pack is transferred to right hand and then placed on the table or given to spectator to hold. Left hand now goes to inside right pocket of the jacket and pushes the selected card into the right arm-hole. The card should be pushed down as far as possible but not below the elbow. This is done quickly as the left hand now removes a miniature sword, wand or a pencil, indeed any object from the pocket which you can work into the effect. Give the pen to the spectator and ask him to sign his name on his selected card or something. Make sure that the spectator sees both empty hands as you gesture to the pack. As he looks for his card the right hand bends and tugs slightly at the right sleeve where upon the card will slide down the sleeve. Raise the right hand to prevent the card dropping out. When spectator can't find card you show hands empty and then left hand reaches into right sleeve to produce the selected card. Hope Mr Page likes the idea.

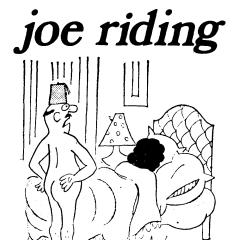

MISSION ACCOMPLISHED

In the book Paul Curry Presents there is an excellent effect entitled Mission Incredible. This is particularly effective when it follows a previous effect called The Problem of Thirteen. Unfortunately Mission Incredible requires something more than a normal pack. In the version to be described any pack may be used.

The thirteen cards of any one suit, say spades, are face up on the table in order from ace to king after performing the previous effect. During the introductory patter face the rest of the pack, that is, turn the bottom half of the pack face up. Pick up the packet of thirteen spades and drop it face down onto the top of pack. Look at the spectators and enquire if they know what card is on top of the pack. Regardless of their answer deal the top card, the King of Spades, face down onto the table, and as it is being turned face up secretly turn the pack over bringing the remaining spades face up at the bottom of the pack. Replace the King face down on top of the pack and as you say "Thirteen spades altogether" count off the top thirteen cards reversing them in the process and place the rest of pack onto the table. Square up the thirteen cards which the audience believe to be the complete suit of spades, but really only contains the King which is on the bottom of the packet. Overhand shuffle the packet retaining the King at the bottom by pressure of the left finger tips, and finally shuffle the King to the top of the packet. Spread the thirteen cards face down onto the table. Pick up the rest of the pack which is held in the left hand as the right pulls a face down card from the spread saying "If I choose one card from these I have mixed up, what is the chance of it being the Ace?" Place the King face down onto the top of the pack without exposing its face and continue to patter, "Of course you may think I have kept track of the Ace so I did not guess. But suppose I asked you to pick out each card in order what would be the odds against you succeeding. Please push out a card which you think might be the two." As this is being done palm the King from the top of the pack with the right hand, which still retains its hold on pack gripping it between the thumb at the inner end and the fingers at the outer end. This manner of holding the pack is similar to the one used when doing the one hand top palm or the Biddle move and does not appear unnatural particularly in the context of this action when the left hand is occupied taking the cards as they are pushed out by the spectator, and it is required that they be placed onto the top of the pack. When the spectator has pushed what he guesses to be the two out of the spread it is taken with the left hand and placed on top of pack held in the right hand. The arched condition of the right hand with the King palmed in no way effects this action. Continue having the spectator push out cards as you call out three, four, etc and keep placing them on top of the pack until only one card remains on the table, and as you say "King" he pushes it forward and you pick it up, put it on top of the pack and in squaring the cards let the palmed King fall onto the top of the pack.

Look at the spectator and say, "Would you be surprised if that last card was the King?" Again deal the King face down onto the table inviting the spectator to turn it face up. As he does so and finds the King, secretly turn over the pack which brings the remaining twelve spades to the top. You will usually have time to right the faced pack at this point as the misdirection is very strong as the spectator turns over the King. Having righted the pack spread it across the table face down. Finally turn the cards over slowly one at a time revealing that the spectator is turning over the King, count the top twelve cards face down onto the table as you say "If you were correct that would be the Queen, the Jack, ten, etc and so on until the Ace is reached which you turn face up, and saying, "I was right with the Ace, how well did you do?" Have him turn the twelve cards face up one at a time, and as he does so you have ample time to right the faced pack, and spread them on the table to conclude a simple but very effective trick.

"The magic is not going out of our marriage if I can help it, Doris."

BOOK REVIEW

DAI VERNON "The First California Lecture"

The intent and purpose of this booklet is to commemorate Dai Vernon's last California lecture on March 27th 1976, in Sacramento, are the opening words in the introduction by Jeff Busby.

It is in three parts. The first section by Dariel Fitzkee who describes in detail the effects performed by Dai Vernon at a lecture given in San Francisco on Saturday, May 24th 1947.

The 'Professor' began the lecture with some general remarks and continued with Variations on the False Count and continued with Follow the Leader, Palming, Forcing, the Multiple Shift, Top and Bottom Changes, a Silk Routine using a change tube, Cups and Balls, Han Pin Ghien, Centre Tear, Cone, Ball and Handkerchief, Linking Rings and closed with criticisms on second and bottom dealing, and a performance of Triumph and Cards to pocket by special request.

The second section is by Fred Braue and begins with an unpublished version of the Slow Motion Aces he saw Vernon perform some two months later, a handling of the Erdnase bottom palm, and ends with the full patter and routine for the Aeroplane Card to pocket, claiming that is a great effect to use with any deck, anywhere. We agree.

Notes on the text, by Jeff Busby occupy Section Three and is of particular value to those seeking further details of the effects mentioned as it gives up-to-date references to itmes of literature which will enable the serious student to understand the methods of the man who revolutionised close-up.

There is a portrait of Dai Vernon on the front, an unpublished photograph of him lecturing, and a facsimile of the Introduction to the First Lecture. It also contains something we have not seen before, a picture of Fred Braue.

Softbound, its cost is Five Dollars and Ten Dollars for the hardbound edition which is limited to 100 copies. Postage extra. It may be obtained direct from Jeff Busby, 4001 Fruitvale Avenue, Oakland, California 94602 U.S.A.

MAGIC IN FO

THE INTERNATIONAL MAGAZINE

Now in its 3rd year.

MAKE SURE EACH ISSUE IS SENT TO YOU REGULARLY. SEND TODAY ONLY £2.00 ($6.00) FOR ONE YEAR (SIX) ISSUES SENT POST FREE TO ANYWHERE IN THE WORLD.

32 glossy pages in each issue.

THE INTERNATIONAL MAGIC STUDIO, (RON MACMILLAN) 89 CLERKENWELL ROAD, HOLBORN, LONDON, E.C.1.

IF YOU HAVE 1 + 2 AND CAN MAKE 3

contact Don Lees at 15 Lodge Drive, Belper, Derby, England. Telephone: Belper 5609

- 1. A GOOD CLOSE UP ACT
- 2. NOT MORE THAN TEN MINUTES
- 3. BRITISH RING CONVENTION AT BRIGHTON, SEPTEMBER 1976

Zina Bennet Trophy Open Only to British Ring Members.

Friends of Bob Read who chanced to read in the gossip column of a well-known newspaper that his recent appearances at the Savoy produced only one laugh, and that was when someone walked out, will be pleased to hear that Bob has been rebooked at this top night spot. Why this journalist wanted to make the act seem a flop is beyond us as the criticism was incorrect and pointless. (Bob doesn't seem to be too worried, as he has received other offers following this date).

Congratulations to Doug Alker on winning the Close-Up Competition at the Northern Magic Circle's Easter Parade, and in consequence has been invited to appear on the 'Late Night Close-Up' at the I.B.M. Convention. Included in his act was 'The Useless Pack' effect which can be found in last month's Pabular.

Friday evening, the 2nd of January, 1976. Time around 7.45pm. An expected knock on the door of the flat from a friend of long standing. Food and drink until what is, for us, an early night.

Following day, he digs around the studio looking over the bits and bobs, a pastime which I know gives him a lot of pleasure and, on odd occasions, a lucky find to add to that pleasure. Later, we talk over old, happy times when we were younger and, for me at any rate, a little more active. Another EARLY (2.45am) night.

Sunday — we walk together around St James — The Mall — The Park — Whitehall, back to the Soho pub — Lunch and a nap — Great stuff this, we both needed it — Evening time and we are joined by another fine English cardician, Fred Robinson — Later That Evening — It Happened!!!

AT MY REQUEST -

It happened again early on Monday evening. Robinson had no intention of missing a minute and we invited Terry Herbert and Vic Pinto along — It Happened Again — Another Performance of Just One Trick — Robinson had seen it the previous evening — For Herbert and Pinto it was the first time — The two experienced magicians actually screamed at the outstanding results laid before them.

GENTLEMEN -

Work on the trick I am talking about started many years ago. Recently, the man I am talking about put the final nail in the coffin and has recently added it to his stock in trade. I am indeed honoured that he has placed the trick in our hands for, in my working life, I have seen and sold much fine magic — This Is THE GREATEST Coin Trick Ever!!! — Ask Robinson — Herbert or Pinto. Have them describe their joy on this wonderful occasion.

Frank Farrow and Ken Brooke place on record their grateful thanks to the one and only -

'FRED KAPS'

For parting with a magical masterpiece which is the first of a series to be sold by this establishment. The props will be the kind you expect. The description, direction and art work will be the kind for which we have become famous. The great magician has worked everything out to perfection — You will be able to perform this Miracle Magic anywhere, under any conditions, sitting, standing, people all around. No bulk in your pockets. You have read the advertisements before. You've been in doubt. If you are still in doubt, just remember one simple thing —

The magic this establishment offer is sold to you on the understanding that if you are other than pleased Your Money will be Refunded less the postal and handling charges involved. We do not sell a million tricks and perhaps hit two or three new ones each year. We have thousands of satisfied clients the world over. We handle only that which is the very best.

PLEASE -

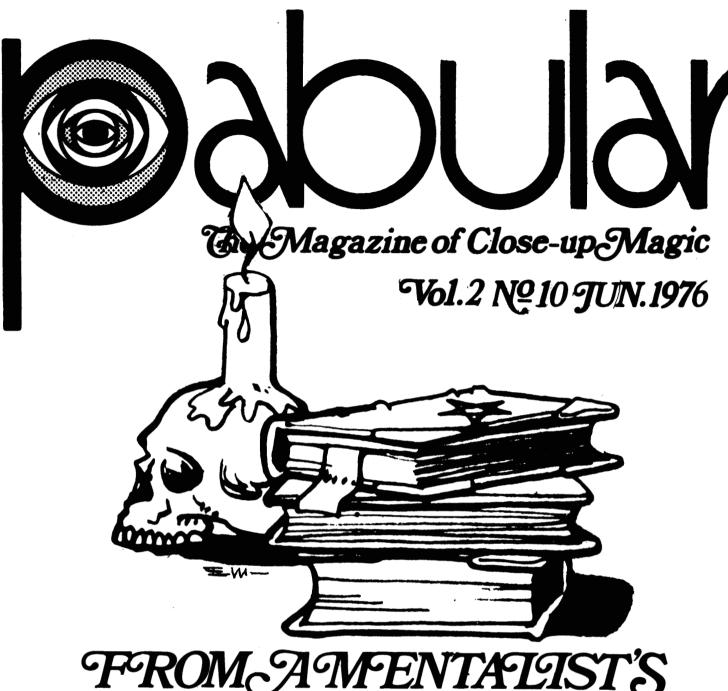

Do not write for details of the above yet. The props are now being made and will be advertised when ready. Our catalogue is now out of print. Another is being prepared and will be sent out when completed. It costs 50 pence here or Europe. $2.00 cash or $3.00 cheque to the U.S.A. We have no free lists. No stamp, no reply.

THERE'S NO PLACE LIKE -

'KEN BROOKE'S MAGIC PLACE' 145 WARDOUR STREET, LONDON W1 ENGLAND Just you call and see!

Phone 01-734 9240

Pabular is published after the second week in every month and is printed by Instance Printers, Paddock Wood, Kent, England. Editor Nick Bolton, Technical Editor Fred Robinson, Art Editor Eric Mason. Subscriptions may be obtained direct from the publishers, Pabular, PO Box 180, London SE12 8JJ, England or through many magic dealers. Price 50 pence per copy (US $1.25) surface post included. Air Mail extra depending on country and subject to UK rates. Editorial or content copy should be sent to Fred Robinson, 1 Crescent Court, 24 Crescent Road, New Barnet, Herts, England. Advertising rates sent on request — smalls 3 pence per word (US 10 cents). Dealer enquiries welcomed. Reproduction of old prints and historical magical items by kind permission of Tony Faro.

FROM AMFENTALIST'S NOT EBOOK

- 1. I have found that you can construct an excellent dark writing thumb writer by gluing with epoxy glue the tip of a 'grease pencil' sometimes called china marking pencil obtainable from stationery stores to a standard band type nail writer. The black writing simulates that of a felt tipped pen. I hollow out a small hole in the thick 'crayon' and place it over the existing lead, covering the edges with flesh coloured adhesive tape used for bandages.
- 2. 'A Question I am Answered', described in Practical Mental Effects was a favourite effect of Anneman's. It is bold and allows for good acting. It can be done almost impromptu, and

- is just as effective when performed for large groups. It is well worth the practice, because it has all the requisites of good mental magic.
- 3. The metal filing box which holds cards three inches by five is an excellent prop. Eric 'Boon' Mason uses it for a modest prediction chest. Using a thumb writer a word or number can be written on a card (unseen by the audience) which is sticking out between the hinges of the closed box. After the prediction is written the card is pushed into the box.
- 4. This same box also makes an excellent box with which to give demonstrations of clairvoyance.

barrie richardson

FROM A MENTALIST'S NOTEBOOK by Barrie Richardson

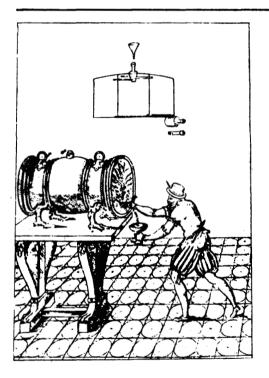

A spectator writes something on a card and places it face down in the box and closes the lid. It is then sealed with two or three rubber bands. Grasping the box in the left hand and in the process of handing it to someone else or placing it down you open it about half an inch. The card is easily tipped up along the side of the box and it takes but a glance to read the message. It is an old one — but is very strong.

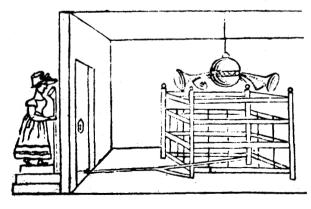

- For an easy Question and Answer session try this one. Prepare a window envelope by cutting most of the address side out. Remove the flap also. Two such envelopes will be required. In the top envelope of the packet place a blank card and turn it flap side up. Place the window envelope on top and under the flap of the envelope containing the blank card. You are now set up for the well known envelope switch. Turn the packet over and repeat the arrangement. Hand out some blank cards requesting spectators to write on their cards a question or a command for you to perform some action. You next hand out envelopes, but not to all who have cards, leaving out two spectators who are close to you but as far as possible away from each other. From one of these take his card face down and put it in the window envelope and apparently remove it by taking the flap of the envelope below it which contains the blank card and have him seal it. Go to the other spectator who does not have an envelope turning the packet over as you do so, and repeat the same business at the same time asking the rest of the spectators who have cards to put them in their envelopes and seal them. All are now collected and during this operation you read the messages in the window envelopes. Two of the envelopes are now selected and you pretend to read them — better still do your business without even touching the envelope.
- 6. A nail writer can be used double. Anneman used two pencils fastened together. If a band or Boon writer is worn on the tip of the middle finger with the lead pointing OUTWARDS it is possible to write on a card with a ball-point pen and at the same time write the same word in pencil on a card held two inches below. Beats pocket writing by a mile.
- 7. Many people are suspicious of so-called psychic demonstrations. These same persons enjoy demonstrations in which you supposedly give them explanations in terms of naturalistic principles. For example do centre tear after you have explained contact telepathy as a physical form of communication. Then have them hold your hand as they write a word. Cards from pocket sense of touch. Coins in spectators pocket are dropped into glass and shaken while your back is turned — you write your prediction, and when the coins are counted the prediction matches. The power of sensitive hearing and a thumb writer. A forced card or a stacked deck allows you to demonstrate 'body language', cold reading, or the lie detection via subtle changes in the victim's eyes.

8. The ability to do one or more 'amazing mental feats' is worth the relatively modest amount of time and effort required to master them. Harry Lorayne once told me he was pleased that so few magicians would spend the time required to learn mnemonic tricks, but would spend ten-fold the amount of time on a single sleight. The public rarely sees anyone memorise a shuffled pack of cards, or the contents of a recently published magazine, or the serial numbers of ten randomly collected pound notes. These are very strong — and it is always possible to cheat a little. Such is mental magic — at least from one man's view.

Cheers.

This page blank

peter duffie

5. Bring the right half of the spread back to join the left half so it is now as it was a moment ago except for the outjogged card. You now apparently flip the four face down again but really executing a Gordon Bruce 'Reversal Move' as follows: As the card is about to be flipped over, the right fingers under the spread engage

THE GO-BETWEEN

Two jacks placed on top and bottom of the pack vanish from their positions and are found magically reversed in the centre of the pack with a previously selected card between them. Similar to Roy Walton's "Mission Accomplished" from the Devil's Playthings.

This trick was inspired by a J.K. Hartman trick entitled "Centre of Attention" from his first 'Linking Ring' parade.

WORKING:-

- 1. Remove the 2 red jacks from the pack. Hold the pack face down in dealing position in the left hand with a little finger break under the top card.
- 2. Pick up the 2 red jacks and drop them face up on top of the pack saying, "One jack goes on the top." As you say this, hold the uppermost card in place with the left thumb as the right hand from above withdraws the other 2 cards above the break as one. Use this double to flip the jack on top of the pack face down. Momentarily drop the double card on top of the pack as you continue by saying, "and one jack goes on the bottom. Take off the face up jack and turn it face down and place it to the bottom.
- 3. Turn the pack face up and emphasise the positions of the 2 jacks. Now turn pack face down executing an invisible turnover pass near the centre somewhere and hold a break with the left little finger as the halves come together.
- 4. Spread the pack between your hands and stop at the break point. Split the spread at this point taking the upper half in the right hand still in a spread and use the left end of this spread to flip over the top card of the left hand half. Assume this card is the 4 Hearts. Jog this face up card forward for half its length and ask the spectator to remember it.

- the card above the four and the card below it (the two Jacks). Now the right fingers flip all 3 cards over as a unit. The right hand spread conceals the jacks as they reverse and all that can be seen is the outjogged card turning face down. Once this is done close up the spread leaving the face down 4 Hearts outjogged.
- 6. The 4 Hearts is now sandwiched between the 2 face up jacks. Make some magical gesture then turn over the top card to show the jack has gone and then show that the one on the bottom has also gone. Ask the spectator to push the outjogged card flush. Spread the pack to show the jacks have caught a card. Not only that but they've also turned face up. Ask spectator to name the card they were asked to remember and finish by showing that it is the face down between the jacks.

END NOTES:-

- a. Gordon Bruce's Reversal Move described in stage 5 can be used for reversing single cards, blocks of cards, etc. It is described here for the first time.
- b. So as not to complicate the text, I left the following out. In stage 3 I normally do the following: With the pack face down in left hand after placing the jack on the bottom, obtain a little finger break under the top 2 cards. Now the left little finger pushes the inner right side of the 2 cards to the left, at the same time the left thumb moves under the pack and flips pack face up with the result that both jacks can be seen, the lower right index of the bottom jack, with an indifferent card squared behind it, jogged slightly to the right. I believe this to be a Larry Jennings touch.

The Page boy speaks...

I did not mention that on my recent trip to the States one person I met was Howie Schwartzman. Howie is a guy I have met several times and this time I had the pleasure of meeting him in Washington when I was lecturing at Al Cohen's Magic Shop. Howie is a nut, and before he phones to complain I mean it in the nicest possible sense. A friend of mine had asked me, of all things, to buy a pair of cowboy spurs whilst I was in the U.S. and I thought that Washington seemed to be as good a place as any to buy them. However, contrary to British belief they don't actually sell spurs on every street corner in the States - in fact they aren't easy to find at all. But Howie knew a place in, I think, a suburb called Georgetown, where they could be found, and so we jumped into his wagon and set out to find this place — the exact location of which Howie wasn't quite sure. What followed next sounds like a film script and typifies almost everything that we British visualise about the United States. The time is late afternoon, about 5 o'clock, the traffic is building up and here are we, driving madly to get to the store before it closes. Suddenly he remembers that he has to call his office which he proceeds to do there and then. Being American he has a phone in his car and during the course of his conversation I learn that his office is in Miami, Florida which is a long way from Washington. Picture Howie driving to beat the lights, yelling at other drivers, talking to a guy on the phone in Florida and telling me "Watch out for a Cowboy Store — it should be here somewhere!" It was quite an experience for which I thank you Howie. (One final point I must mention is that when he stopped in at Al Cohen's to say hello and catch my lecture he picked up a $25.00 parking ticket. I hope he found this expensive lecturer worth it).

I have mentioned before that I had to come back from New York a few days earlier than intended because my wife was ill. I flew straight back to Scotland where she was staying and after a week or two I returned to London to fulfill some commitments, one of which was a trip to Italy to do three lectures, in Torino, Milan and last but not least, Rome. All three lectures were (I think) quite successful and I had the pleasure of meeting several old friends and meeting several new ones. The man responsible for organising this trip was one Dr Lotterio from Milan. Three years ago I had flown out to do a show for him and this time he fixed the lectures for me.

The first one in Torino was memorable because some guy, a non-magician, tried to gatecrash the lecture. They threw him out as only Italians can with a maximum of words, not one of which I understood. In Milan I felt very much at home because I think I knew virtually everyone present. Dr Lotterio was unfortunately not well at this time and I was placed in the very capable hands of Gaetano Papalardo. After wining and dining me at his home and (surprise, surprise) watching England play an International Football Match on Italian TV he drove me off to do the lecture which seemed to be successful. There are several Milan magicians who read this magazine and I would like to convey my regards and thanks to them.

Next stop Rome. The lecture in Rome was scheduled to take place in the same hotel in which I was staying. I don't pretend to understand the Italian magicians outlook but they are certainly enthusiastic and perhaps more secretive than we are. This particular lecture was for a much smaller group than in either Torino or Milan. After the lecture I took the opportunity to spend the next few days in Rome and I was lucky that my old friend Silvan elected to be my guide. I met him in a beautiful restaurant for lunch overlooking the Roman ruins. Afterwards he took me on a tour of this beautiful city — you name it, I saw it, and I had a complete run-down on it from Silvan who probably knows more than any of the official guides. I then spent the whole evening with him at his home, looking at his magic (and boy has he got some magic) and talking to his wife about England (because, in case you don't know it, Silvan is cleverer than we think, he married an English girl). It's funny how little things impress you when you travel. During my stay whenever I had eaten a sandwich there had been no butter on the bread. Silvan's wife thoughtfully put it on the table and it was then I realised that I had been missing it! Thank you for your hospitality Aldo.

Whilst in Rome I had the pleasure of meeting Vanni Bossi who is strictly a close-up magic buff. He has some rather interesting and off-beat ideas, particularly with coins, and he said he thought that some of these would be suitable for Pabular. I agreed instantly and he has promised to let us have some of the material for future issues.

Arriverderci, Patrick Page

SUPREME GLIMPSE

1

During my years as a card worker, I have been asked on numerous occasions to perform the following sleight for the benefit of other card men and magicians, they refer to the SUPREME GLIMPSE as the fancy cut, for to the eye of the beholder, this sleight appears to be purely a flourish, and it does not seem at all possible, even to the experienced, that a glimpse can be obtained, because of the speed at which the operation is performed. The sleight is a combination of SKILL and SUBTLETY, for in appearing to perform a fancy flourish with the cards, the operator obtains a grand view of the chosen card that lies in the centre of the deck.

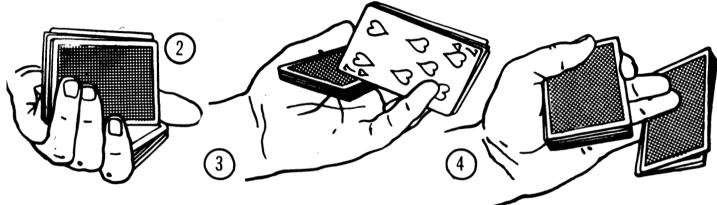

PURPOSE FOR WHICH THE SLEIGHT IS USED. As a glimpse performed in full view under the guise of a flourish.

THE SLEIGHT AS A GLIMPSE. A card having been selected, noted by the selector and duly returned to the deck, the card is located by a little finger break in the normal manner, ABOVE THE SELECTED CARD. The cards at this stage are held rather tightly especially with the third and fourth fingers. These two fingers grip the top half of the deck as in Fig.1. Now by extending these two fingers to the right side of the deck, the top packet will automatically twist, so that the face of the bottom card (TOP PACKET) is before the performer's eyes Figs.2 and 3. Continuing the twisting action, the top packet moving in an anti-clockwise direction until it has completed one half revolution. At this stage the packet will have turned face down again, for on reaching the vertical position if the movement is continued and the two fingers (3rd and 4th left hand) opened out, we arrive at Fig.4, the top packet being in face down position once again. Here, the Right Hand takes the packet from tips of the left fingers and places the packet BENEATH the packet held in the left hand.

If the moves are first performed slow, the glimpse will be all too obvious to the operator, but it is the speed at which the move is performed that baffles the onlooker, the whole operation should be performed in approx: 1 to 2 seconds and at this speed the glimpse becomes a flash, hence the reason for the usefulness of the move.

USING THE GLIMPSE. I have found from my experience with the sleight, that the best method of having the card selected is by Riffling the outer edges of the cards before the eyes of the spectator and at the same time requesting him to call STOP at any time during this riffle movement. Break the deck at the position he requests and lever the top packet upwards at the outer end, to enable the person to see the card at which the riffle movement has stopped, and for him to remember this card. As the cards are lifted before the spectator's eyes, a break is taken below his chosen card with the left little finger and you are ready to execute the SUPREME GLIMPSE. I find the best way to do this, in actual performance, is to offer the deck with the returned card, to the person who has made the selection, with the request that he should cut the cards. If you time the actions correctly, as he reaches for the cards, you execute the SUPREME GLIMPSE MOVE and the cards will appear to cut by themselves without any assistance from the performer, especially as the cards are held in the left hand only, the right hand being out of the way, but always ready to come forward and take up the top packet to conclude the move. From the audience viewpoint, you have merely cut the cards in a rather novel manner and this will be appreciated as a feat of skill, nothing more. Meanwhile the operator has the necessary know-how regarding the selected card and the card is in position at the bottom of the deck for left hand palming or any other denoument he cares to use.

I also use the move as a running gag when performing card effects on cabaret, I ask the gentleman nearest to cut the cards and as his hand reaches for the cards, the cards cut themselves, I use this irrespective of glimpsing a card purely for the novelty of the move.

One final note on the Supreme Glimpse. It is advisable to work under a strong light, subject to the speed at which you perform the sleight. If the light is fairly good, then the sleight can be used and the card easily sighted when working at the fastest possible speed. These are the ideal working conditions for the glimpse.

The PIP-EATING SPIDER,

jos bema

This trick was inspired by an effect described by Billy McComb in Magic Circle Magic who said the theme was one evolved by Stanley Collins. The following method is one I worked out specifically to suit my own inability and taste. The effect remains similar to the original idea, which is as follows.

A piece of tissue paper is rolled into a ball around a piece of thread and hung over the arm (1) as you explain to the audience that the ball of tissue paper is a 'pip-eating spider' whose sole diet consists of playing card pips. You proceed to prove this by taking the six of diamonds and feed it with the pips until the card is blank except for the indices. On unrolling the 'spider' the pips are found inside.

You will require a piece of white thread, a square of tissue paper, half a dozen diamond pips, a card which is blank except for the indices (2) and a specially prepared fake (3), which is the card shown in (2), when it is in the rack you are all set to go. Show the square of tissue paper and roll it into a ball around the thread at the same time introducing the loose pips. Wrap the thread around the left arm leaving the 'spider' suspended. Take the pack and find prepared gimmick push it up out of the pack for about three quarters of an inch allowing the audience to see the index and appreciate that it is the six of diamonds. Remove card and gimmick holding it back to audience in the left hand as in (3). Pretend to half a six of diamonds cut diagonally with one opposite centre pip having the top half removed.

making a hinged card which can be slipped onto of the centre pips erased completely and the

Another half card is fixed to it using sellotape remove one pip from the card and feed it to the spider. Repeat with a second pip after which you let the audience see the face of the card. Two pips have disappeared. Continue to feed the spider with a further two pips and in the process push the card and gimmick a little further down into the hand and 'accidently' let the audience see the face of the card which now seems to have only two spots. (4) In taking the fifth spot you secretly remove the gimmick keeping it hidden in the right hand as you feed the spider. As you take the last pip push the gimmick behind the card leaving it there. The card can now be seen to be blank except for the indices. The right hand takes the card with gimmick

Attention is now called to the spider which is opened to reveal the missing pips.

Should you require an additional climax use flash instead of tissue (also for the pips) and an artificial joke spider. When putting the card into the pocket steal out the spider which has been folded and secured with flash string. After disclosing the arrival of the pips crumple up the paper introducing the joke spider. Light the paper ball and toss it into the air and a lifelike spider will appear.

CONTINUOUS
BALL PEN PRODUCTION

I use the following item as an alternative to my continuous cigarette production, the method of stealing and loading is quite different and is intended for items roughly twice the length of a normal cigarette, for example Ball Pens, Pencils, Cigars etc. The angles are well covered throughout and if you will try out the moves before a mirror, I think you will be pleasantly surprised with the result.

REQUIREMENTS:-

Two ball pens of the cheaper variety "BIC" are ideal — approximate length 6 inches. If used in the act the tops should have the clip legs cut off and then be dressed smooth after which the tops are best permanently glued to the pens proper, with "Evostick". Alternatively you may choose to use pencils of the same length or cigars — neither of which would require any treatment.

PREPARATION:-

The two pens are placed inside the coat pockets one pen in each pocket, the point of the pen in the right pocket should be pointing towards the audience.

Let me now explain briefly what we are attempting to do. As in most continuous productions of this type one of the pens is produced in the left hand, this pen is removed with the right hand, placed into the right coat pocket — immediately another pen pops up in the left hand again the right hand pockets this pen in the same way as before — and again another pen pops up into view in the left hand — and so on — indefinately. What actually happens is that the pen taken in the right hand is really retained in that hand, the hidden pen being transferred into position in the left hand at the moment the right hand touches the left hand when removing the produced pen from that hand.

Now that our aims are a little less vague (I hope) let me describe the action in detail.

- 1. The grip on the right hand pen is depicted in Fig.1 this is the pocket loading position and each time thr right hand is removed from the pocket the pen (point to audience) is held in this manner.
- 2. The left hand adopts a position as at Figs.2 and 3—in line with the performer's body. The left hand remains in this position throughout the routine—THIS IS IMPORTANT.
- 3. The blending of BOTH HANDS for the loading and production are as follows:-

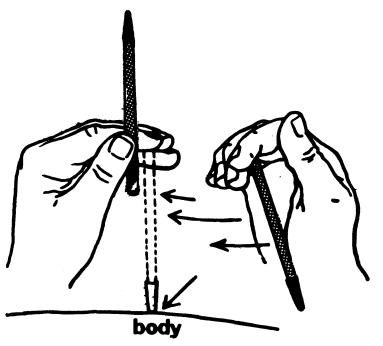

Fig.2 View From Above

A pen is produced in the left hand Fig.3 Right hand approaches left with pen in loading position Fig.1 and takes hold of the left hand pen at the base near the left hand 1st finger and thumb — this action places the right hand pen into position for stealing in the left hand — the left hand DOES NOT MOVE OR ACTUALLY TAKE THIS PEN FROM THE RIGHT HAND -THE RIGHT HAND places the point of the pen between the left 2nd and 3rd fingers where the point is gripped by the left fingers and because of the left hand position approximately 6 inches away from the body — the left hand loaded pen is made firm and steady by allowing the base of the pen to REST ON THE BODY — see Fig.2. Hence the reason for not moving the left hand during the action.

4. The right hand carries the pen to the right pocket—left hand remains rigidly in position—The right hand places the pen into the pocket POINT TOWARDS AUDIENCE—where it is immediately AND WITHOUT FUMBLING—positioned in load position as before—now as the right hand is removed from the pocket—the left thumb goes under the pen in that hand

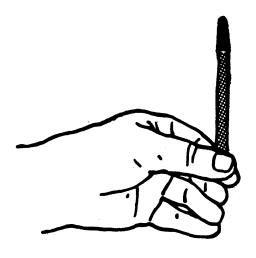

Fig.3 Performer's View

levering the left hand pen up into view in a pop-up action.

And the whole process is repeated.

That is all there is to it, in performance both hands go to the pockets together — the right hand stealing a pen into load position — the left hand displays the other pen at the position as Fig.3 — the left hand pen is removed from the right as explained — loading its hidden pen into the left fingers at the same time and so the continuous production continues.

Over the years one hears that certain actions are harmful to magic. Exposures, bad performances, too many performers doing tricks or routines that are similar etc., etc. The reality is, nothing can harm magic any more than musicians can hurt music. What is really meant is that the actions of some magicians can act against the interests of others. The person who photo-copies material currently available is reducing the sales of the dealer who has them for sale. Such persons may even claim that by making information freely (!) available they are advancing the art by circulating secrets more widely. Performers who steal the acts of others tend to cheapen the acts of the originators and so the list goes on.

There is another kind of thief, which in plain words is what they are, the professional al one. Not performers, but the dealers who wait on the side lines ready to copy original items immediately they appear on the market, or even before, if they can get the necessary knowledge regarding the effect. You may think this is a problem which only affects the dealers who are the victims of this unethical practice. You would be quite wrong, it affects everyone who from time to time purchases original material. only to find that before long every Tom, Dick and Harry is working it on their patch, having purchased it at about half the original price from some dealer who copied the original thus escaping the production costs and as is usual with such copies, inferior apparatus and workmanship, there is little wonder he is able to charge less.

The above is self evident but there is one other way these practices affect the intending purchasers of new tricks which is more obscure and not generally realised. One dealer who advertises less than a hundred yards from our back page has tricks which he will not put out because of these dealers.

Who is the loser? Is the time coming when dealers who specialise in producing original effects which are well made just advertise that they have a trick for sale without giving the effect away? It may be that such dealers will budget to produce a trick at a relatively higher price for sale to selected customers who will have something they know will escape the pirates for a little longer. You will then have to pay more for your tricks or be content with mass produced junk on sale in some supermarket devoted to children's toys.

Also near to the interest of our readers and with the creation of original effects and moves with cards, in particular the name most likely to come to mind is that of Ed. Marlo whose contributions in print are truly prodigious. Another, Larry Jennings has also been responsible for some excellent plots which have an appealing freshness of method and approach. Accepting that both gentlemen are blessed with above average gifts of original talent we were surprised to receive a letter from the latter claiming he originated, and had been performing, 'Spectator Cuts to Locate the Aces' which appeared in the April issue credited to Ed. Marlo. We promised to mention it and not wishing to enliven our pages with personal controversies will have nothing further to say, other than to offer Ed. Marlo the opportunity to reply if he so desires.

From Holland, Michigan, on his regular annual visit Barrie Richardson who specialises in mental and memory feats (a couple of which have appeared in this magazine with more to come). He is full of praise for the 'Professor' having recently been to one of his lectures which lasted all of six hours. On his visit last year Barrie collected about twenty inches of column space, accompanied by an action picture, in the Sunday Telegraph by performing the Knight's Tour in the record time of seven minutes thirty seconds with his back to the chess board.

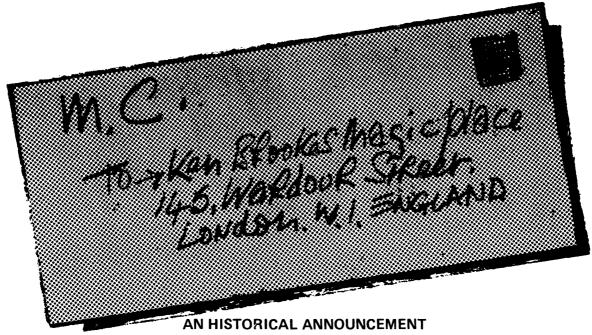

THE INTERNATIONAL MAGAZINE

Now in its 3rd year.

MAKE SURE EACH ISSUE IS SENT TO YOU REGULARLY. SEND TODAY ONLY £2.00 ($6.00) FOR ONE YEAR (SIX) ISSUES SENT POST FREE TO ANYWHERE IN THE WORLD.

32 glossy pages in each issue.

THE INTERNATIONAL MAGIC STUDIO, (RON MACMILLAN) 89 CLERKENWELL ROAD, HOLBORN, LONDON, E.C.1.

From my earliest days as a magical dealer I sent either the carbon copy or the original instructions to a man who later became a close friend, knowing that the writings would be given a good home. My friend passed away a short time ago and is sadly missed by the senior members of the fraternity. Over a lifetime this kindly man built up a collection of apparatus, books, magazines and rare works of art. It was beautifully housed at his home not very far from my birthplace. He always promised that I would be given first refusal of the entire collection. The promise made then has been honoured. Almost ten years ago, another old friend and I were having our usual Tuesday night drink in a Soho pub. The man asked me how much money it would take to start a magic business in the West End. Frankly, I was busy performing at the time and wanted no part in such a venture. Later, I mentioned a sum of money knowing it to be in excess of what was really needed. Before I knew where I was, the cheque was on the bar, we shook hands and around ten o'clock that evening, wheels started turning and a few weeks later, a new sign went up in Wardour Street. It read —

KEN BROOKE'S MAGIC PLACE

Frank Farrow was the man who talked me into all this. He has become known to our customers throughout the world.

Success snowballs. Along the road we purchased the business of the late Fred Lowe. Now, another great step has been taken. I am indeed honoured to tell readers of this magazine and our many customers in all parts of the world that on the 16th of June, 1976, Frank and I purchased the

WONDER COLLECTION OF THE LATE JACK MORRISON

In order to put our studio and office in order it will be necessary for us to close for about one week. Just when we cannot say at the time of writing, so if you are planning a visit, please phone first.

I think it safe to say that when we re-open we will be able to supply almost any known piece of small to medium apparatus. Also any book or magazine (volumes only) that has ever been published. The collection is one of the largest in the world. Almost everything is in MINT CONDITION.

We plan to send out a (short) list of all items. This list-will cost £1.00 in this country and in Europe. Air mailed to the U.S.A. it will cost $3.00 cash. When applying, customers in this country MUST SEND A LARGE STAMPED ADDRESSED ENVELOPE. Note please — It will be sent when ready not, repeat not, in the immediate future as a great deal of work has to be done. Mark your envelope "M.C." in the top left hand corner. Lists will be sent out in strict rotation. No phone conversations will be entered into so that all have a fair chance. We shall welcome all with a genuine interest but no browsers please. We reserve the right to refuse any offers made.

Frank and I thank you for your continued support and confidence and remind you that we continue to seek out the best in commercial magic and give you the guarantee for which we have become famous the world over — Your money back (less the postal and handling charges) if you are other than satisfied. BUT — you must have a genuine interest for we have nothing for the man who wants to open the packet and get on with it. Magic, the better kind of magic, does take a little time!

   KEN BROOKE'S MAGIC PLACE

145 Wardour Street, London W1, England — Tel: 01-734 9240

 Thank you all for making this announcement possible!

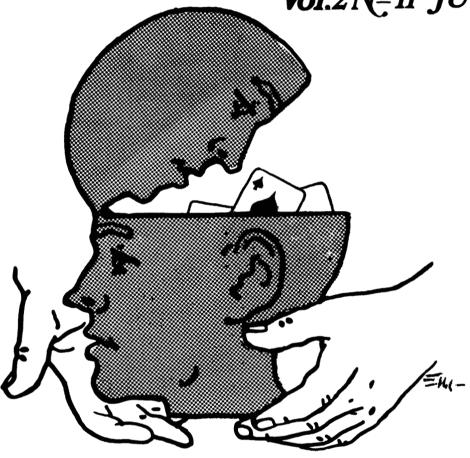

**

Pabular is published after the second week in every month and is printed by Instance Printers, Paddock Wood, Kent, England. Subscriptions may be obtained direct from the publishers, Pabular, P.O. Box 180, London SE12 8JJ or through many magic dealers. Price 50 pence per copy (or US $ 1.25) surface post included. Air Mail extra 12 pence (US $ 0.30) per copy or £1.45 (US $ 3.60) per year. Editorial or content copy should be sent to Fred Robinson, 1 Crescent Court, 24 Crescent Road, New Barnet, Herts, England. Advertising rates sent on request—smalls 3 pence per word (US 10 cents). Dealer enquiries welcomed. Reproductions of old prints and historical magical items by kind permission of Tony Faro.

SOUD NOTES OF THE PROPERTY OF

The Magazine of Close-up Magic

Vol.2№11 JULY1976

ECATUOBA ECAF

EFFECT:-

From a borrowed pack a card is freely selected and proves to be an unusual one because it has a different coloured back. Another card is chosen, of a different denomination which also proves to have a different coloured back. This card then appears to transform the first card chosen to its own suit and value. Attention is now called to the remaining cards which the spectator is shuffling. On looking through these they are seen to contain yet another card of the same denomination as the first two — and again this one has a different coloured back.

Finally, when the spectator looks at the cards he is holding — every back is different!

eric mason

ECA TUOBA ECAF

EXPLANATION:-

The first part of the trick is credited to Frank Everhardt and can be found in Garcia's Million Dollar Card Secrets under the title 'Chicago Opener'. My own contribution is the ending of the trick that justifies the title plus a little something else which we hope will prove to be a 'CHANGE FOR THE BETTER'.

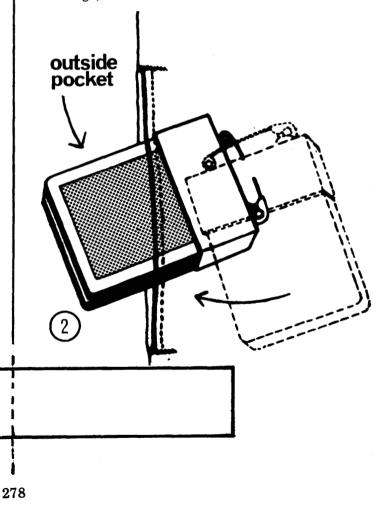

You will require twentysix to thirty cards having a different back design from each other. The more brightly coloured and contrasting these varying designs are, the better will be the final effect. One of these cards must be an Ace. Additionally you will require a holder approximately half the length of a playing card into which the random backed cards will fit tightly allowing them to protrude outside the holder. This can be easily constructed by bending and sticking a piece of cardboard cut as shown in (1). The holder complete with cards inside is seen in (2) which also shows a safety pin which requires to be affixed to the bottom of the holder.

The holder is attached to the trousers using the safety pin in such a way that when not in use the holder with cards in it are concealed in the pocket. When required to perform the trick they are moved to extend outside the pocket where they can easily be stolen at the appropriate moment.

Your performing position will govern the position of the holdout, and in certain conditions it may well prove necessary to dispense with its use and conceal the cards behind the bended knee if as an example you were seated in a public bar hunched up like a spider where it is not possible to steal the cards from the holder in a natural manner. Where ever the cards are secreted they must be so arranged that when stolen they are face down in the right hand. Do not worry about stealing them, nobody will notice, as it is adequately covered by misdirection as I will soon show.

WORKING:-

To begin the trick borrow a pack of cards and secretly add an odd backed Ace to the face of the pack. Look for its duplicate and bring to a position second from the face of the pack. With the pack face down (your added Ace will now be at the bottom with its duplicate above it) have a spectator cut off a small packet of cards and place them on the table. You now ask for a number and count down offering the card that falls at that number as a free selection and go into the Chicago Opener. At the conclusion you are left with two cards in your right hand with different backs but of the same denomination (in my case, Aces), and a packet of cards face down in the left. After displaying the two Aces give packet out to be shuffled and hold the two aces as in (4) casually reach down and steal the cards from the holdout grasping them with the third and fourth fingers (5). This position is similar to the one adopted when about to perform the Kelly replacement move and the stolen cards are completely hidden by the two face up aces. Take the shuffled packet from the spectator with the left hand you now secretly exchange it for the ones with differing backs concealed under the aces in your right hand using the Eric Mason Turnover Change, which is done as follows:

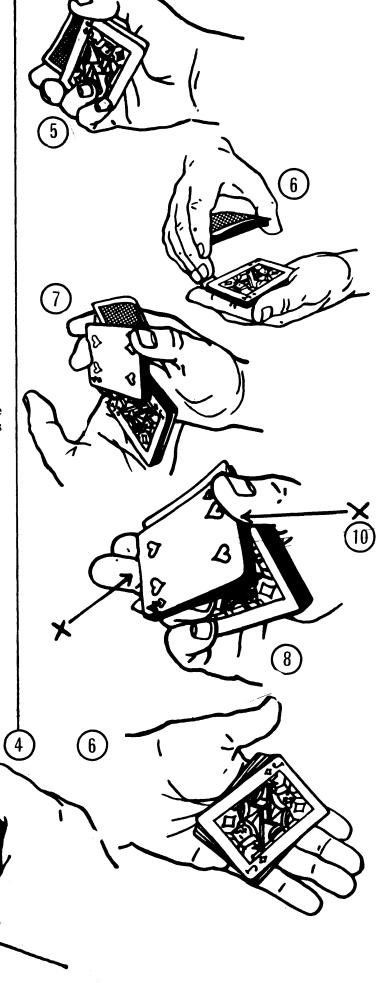

The right hand with its hidden packet approaches the cards in the left hand which are face down and appears to turn them over on the left hand bringing them face up (6). It is during this action that the packets are exchanged under cover of the face up Aces (7) and (8) etc. As you say to the shuffler, "Did you notice an extra Ace in the cards you have just handled?" - he won't have done of course, but as you make this remark put the two Aces with the packet of cards concealed beneath on top of those on the table. This action is obviously necessary to free your right hand which assists in spreading the cards and removing the extra ace. That the packet on the table has doubled in size will not be notices as the attention of the spectators will be centred on the extra ace as you remark, "It's a strange thing to have so many Aces of the same kind especially as they have different backs." You now pick up the two Aces from off top of the pack on the table to compare the back designs at the same time gently offering him the packet face up. Again there is an implied reason for the action as it enables the three Aces to be displayed freely. Your assistant now has a packet with all different backs and I leave it to you to build up the effect of him discovering that the backs of his own cards have changed colour.

If you do this trick with your own cards you will be aware they are all on the table and you have only to pocket the packet of varied backs and continue with other items from your repertoire as desired.

 $\times (10)$

3

FURTHER THOUGHTS:-

The TURNOVER CHANGE is a sleight of considerable utility providing a natural change for one or any number of cards either on the hand or on a table surface. It requires no 'get ready' to speak of, the hand holding the pack merely looks as if it picks up the card and turns it over in a perfectly normal manner. It will even change a card without turning it over, and furthermore it will change a packet of say, four cards and retain one of them, or any number of cards for any other number retaining some of the original, and as we have seen exchange a really large packet of cards.

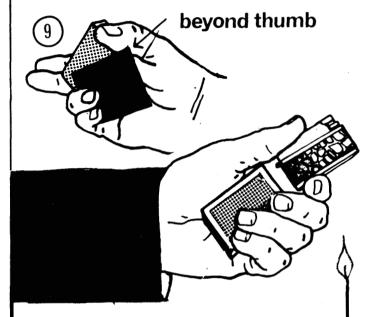

It may prove useful to illustrate a single card change and leave it to the Pabular technicians to develop the ramifications and variations for use in their personal themes.

Hold the pack in the position shown in (6) and side glide the bottom card exactly as when performing the Kelly replacement move noting that the glide card is beyond the thumb position. Pick up the card to be changed in the left hand (6) and begin to turn this card over by grasping it at the positions indicated by XX with the second finger and thumb of the right hand (10). Retain this hold as the right hand releases the glide card allowing it to fall out behind it turning it over as it does so.

To actually turn a card over without changing it use the first finger of the left hand, You should try and duplicate this when actually making an exchange. Now try exchanging four cards. The only 'get ready' required for packet exchanges is to make sure that you thumb count and position the four cards to be changed beyond the right thumb as shown in (9).

So, in order to practise try this. Borrow some well shuffled cards and have them ribbon spread on the table and get someone to push a card out of the spread. Gather up pack sighting the bottom card and say, "Did you know your cards were marked, you've chosen the (name sighted card)." Perform change and show card. Next turn pack in right hand face up (using body for cover if necessary) turn the card face down changing it as you do so, and put the pack face down onto the table. Now push the apparently chosen card into the pack face down about four cards from the bottom and command it to rise to the top and turn the top card over. If you get a good response offer to do it again (you have stolen one of your odd cards and added it to the bottom of the pack). Riffle force this card and in shuffling the pack control it to the bottom. Ribbon spread the pack face down again without disclosing the odd card and have another selection pushed out. Gather up the cards and pick up chosen card with left hand and on turning it over it is revealed as the one chosen previously by doing the change. Still face up it is pushed through the face down pack and when the back is shown.......Well, you know.

A GAG FROM CROMBO

For many years Jock Crombie has been pulling this particular stunt. With cigarette at the ready his lighter refuses to work. After a few unsuccessful attempts someone is sure to offer him a light accompanied by a remark usually of an uncomplimentary nature regarding his choice of lighter. The kind offer is refused and Jock pulls a match from that part of the lighter which is normally occupied by the wick and strikes it on the bottom of the lighter remarking "My lighter never fails." He has of course some of the striking surface from a matchbox stuck on the base of his lighter.

It occurred to us that it would be possible to end the gag magically, by having a matchbox concealed in the left hand as in diagram and after lighting up let the lighter drop into the box which has been suitably faked by removing one end of the drawer. On taking the box with the right hand pass some remark which calls attention to the change, before putting into your pocket.

It would of course be possible to construct some ingenious lighter which changes automatically into a matchbox and no doubt quite a lot of fun could be had in making such a prop which would be the envy of your magical friends. Whether or not the effect would be improved is a matter for some doubt. There is sufficient historical evidence of similar 'improvements' to suggest that it would not.

This is a development of a routine I was shown a couple of years ago. The method does require a little practise which is time well spent as it is most effective with lay audiences.

EFFECT:-

Three half dollars and an old English penny are shown together with an empty Okito box. One by one the half dollars vanish and reappear in the empty box. The penny is also caused to disappear and it is found to have joined the three half dollars in the Box. The box with the coins inside is now placed on the back of the right hand and tapped with the tips of the left fingers whereupon the penny falls onto the table having penetrated both the box and the back of the hand. The penny now magically changes into three half dollars and on picking up the box it now contains the penny, having changed places with the three half dollars. Everything can then be examined.

For this routine you will in addition to a standard Okito Box, three half dollars, an old English penny and a fake coin silver half dollar on one side and old English penny on the other.

To commence the routine place the coins on the table from left to right in this order. Half dollar, half collar, fake coin silver side uppermost, and the penny. The Okito Box is now placed onto the table between you and the coins (1). Unknown to the audience you have an extra half dollar concealed in the right hand. No-one will be aware of the palmed coin so do not worry about it just act naturally and nobody will suspect a thing — I promise you.

With the right hand pick up the Okito Box and put it on the left palm and with the right hand remove the lid and place it on the table mouth uppermost. The left hand now picks up the box and shows it to be empty at the same time let the half dollar drop from the right palm onto the finger. Do not look at the right hand but keep the attention of the audience on the box. The right hand now picks up the lid in the following manner. With the half dollar resting on the second and third fingers the forefinger goes to the front edge of the lid and levers it up allowing it to be held between this finger and the thumb. At the same time the left hand picks up the half dollar at the extreme left of the row and without letting go of it move it from side to side in the box explaining that it just fits inside the box. The noise made by this operation conceals any made when loading the coin into lid which is accomplished by simply sliding the lid over the finger-palmed coin. Again two things take place almost simultaneously. The left hand returns its coin to its place on the table as the right turns bringing the lid into view with the thumb on top and the second and third fingers beneath holding the concealed coin in place. The left hand having placed the half dollar back onto the table picks up the box and the lid is put on loading the coin at the same time.

david carré

You now explain that you will show them something interesting with the half dollars and the box. As you put the box on the table with the right hand pick up the half dollar on the left of the row with the left hand holding it in the French drop position and apparently taking it in right 'sprinkle' it over the box finally showing the hand to be empty. Remove the lid with the right fingers and put it into the left sliding it over the coin which was retained there when doing the French drop. Show the half dollar in the box by picking it up with the right fingers and allowing spectators to see inside. Replace the lid loading the coin into the box as before. Do not worry about the coin making a noise as it falls into the box as the onlookers will assume that it is the sound of the lid being replaced. If you have any fears on this account it is quite easy to synchronise the dropping of the coin with the lid sliding on the box.

Put the box on the table and repeat the previous moves with second half dollar.

With the box on the table pick up the last half dollar, which is fake silver-copper coin with the left hand again holding it in the French drop position. This time the right hand really takes the coin and in the squeezing sprinkling action get it into the classic palm position. This time you cannot show the right hand empty but the audience having seen it empty after the two previous squeezing movements will not be suspicious provided your actions appear the same as before.

The right hand with coin palmed picks up the box with the fingers and puts it on the obviously empty left palm. That the left is seen to be empty will be a throw-off for magicians and others who suspected an extra coin was concealed in that hand.

Remove the lid with the right fingers and place it on the table mouth uppermost. If you so wish the three coins may be tipped out of the box onto the table and then returned to the box instead of just showing them in the box. Either way, you put the box onto the table and load the fake coin into the lid in exactly the same way as the first half dollar was loaded. This time you demonstrate that the penny also fits the box as the fake coin is loaded into the lid. When the lid is put on the box the fake coin will be copper side on top ready to be accepted as the penny which you are now about to cause to disappear.

Pick up the penny with the left hand and transfer it to the right, because this time you are going to cause it to vanish from the LEFT hand instead of the right. Any good method may be used but the 'retention of vision' is to be preferred because this time you say, "This coin will disappear very slowly" thus giving a little variety to the action.

After the vanish the coin is left classic palmed in the right hand. Let the left hand be seen empty as it removes the lid to show the arrival of the copper coin.

We have now reached the point in the routine where the penny magically penetrates the three half dollars, the bottom of the box and the right hand. It uses the old turnover move in which the lid is apparently put on the top of the box in the normal way, but in reality is put on the base. For those not conversant with the move here is a brief description.

The right hand replaces the lid on the box and picks it up, the right thumb and second finger holding the lid and the third and fourth fingers underneath supporting the box. You now put the box on the fingers of the left hand which is palm up, but just before it reaches the fingers of the left hand, the third and fourth fingers of the right hand are moved away and the left hand pushed forwards causing the box to turn over when the lid is pushed onto the base. The spectators are unaware that the box has left the lid, the action being shielded from their view with the back of the right hand. Suitable patter also helps to divert their attention. Correctly performed it should appear that you have merely picked up the box from the table and put it onto the left fingers.

The box together with the coins is placed on the back of the right hand which still has the penny classic palmed. Tap the lid of the box at the same time release the palmed coin letting it fall to the table. The left hand now takes the box from the back of the right hand, holds it on the fingers in the same position it occupied before putting it on the back of the right hand.

The right hand now picks up the penny and whilst displaying it the left hand puts the box onto the table secretly stealing the three half dollars and the fake coin as it does so. Here's how. With the left thumb lift up the box and bend the fingers inwards which will leave the coins in the finger palm position at the base of the fingers and the first finger and thumb holding the box which can be put on the table still retaining the coins finger palmed.

You now change the copper coin into the box. Hold the penny in the right hand as for the Spellbound effect by the edges between tips of the fingers and thumb. Using an Ed. Marlo move the left hand strokes the penny the thumb going behind and the fingers in front. As the left fingers cover the penny the right fingers release it letting it fall into the right finger palm, the left hand leaving its finger palmed coins in the position just vacated by the penny, but retains the fake coin finger palmed with the copper side in contact with the fingers.

The right hand turns palm downwards and puts the three half dollars on the table retaining the penny finger palmed. As this takes place the left hand is picking up the box and loading the fake coin into it. This should cause no problems the box being mouth down with the lid on the base.

You are now going to show that the copper coin has passed into the box which was previously occupied by the three half dollars. To accomplish this another turnover move is used, one which I do not think has been in print before.

With the box resting on the left fingers, the right finger tips slide the box forwards toward the left finger tips until the second finger tip enters the mouth of the box keeping the fake coin from falling out. Care must be taken that the penny in right finger palm is not seen. The right hand now takes the box holding it with the thumb on the lid and the second finger in the mouth and in contact with the fake coin inside, and back of the hand towards the audience. The box is now brought to within an inch and a half of the top of the table and the second finger moves away as the hand makes a slight forward and backward tossing movement causing the box to land onto the table mouth upwards with the coin still inside. There is a certain knack which is soon acquired after a few trials.

After the box has fallen onto the table let the copper coin be seen inside and apparently tip it into the right hand. The box turning over on the fingers with the right hand held just below creates the illusion that the coin they saw in the box is the one (actually the real penny) they see in the right hand as it moves away from beneath the left hand.

To conclude drop the penny on the table as the left thumb lifts the box up, and leaving the fake coin finger palmed put the box onto the table.

We finish as we started with three half dollars, an old English penny and the Okito Box.

BOOK REVIEWS
STABBED COINCIDENCE
by Larry Jennings

This is a clean and baffling effect which can be performed with any deck, anytime, anywhere.

The deck is shuffled and a prediction card is placed aside face down. A spectator selects a card, which is not looked at. He then stabs this card into the deck at a freely chosen position. The selected card is shown to match the prediction card. For a stunning climax the selection is shown to have been stabbed into the deck BETWEEN the remaining cards of the same value. A minimal amount of skill is required to perform this effect. Fully illustrated.

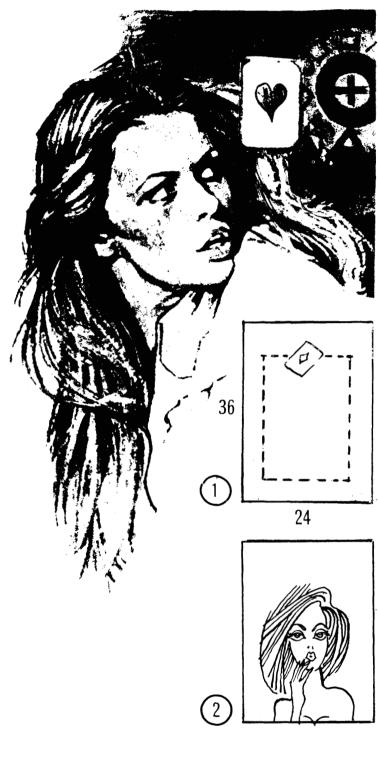

The above appears on the front cover of this sealed booklet and pretty well tells all that can be told without giving away the secret. It is the first of a series of exclusive releases of effects by Larry Jennings and costs Five Dollars plus 50 cents. The second exclusive release at the same price is an effect which will undoubtedly find its way in the repertoire of magicians the world over who perform their magic impromptu in bars and at parties and again we take the easy way out and quote from the cover.

A borrowed marked half dollar vanishes from the performer's hand and arrives audibly in a beer can held in the opposite hand. The can must be cut open so that the marked coin may be removed by the spectator. The coin CANNOT fit through the pouring spout. The effect on the spectator is unbelievable. This is a true reputation maker. This effect requires a minimum of sleight of hand skill.

Both are available from J.W. BUSBY, 4001 Fruitvale Avenue, Oakland, California 94632 U.S.A. who also promises Notes on Card and Coin handling by Larry Jennings, Seven dollars 50c ready about August and The Card Magic of Larry Jennings in which nothing will have previously been seen in print. Special pre-publication price Fifteen Dollars and price on publication Twenty dollars. Both plus 50 cents to cover mail and handling charges. Should be ready about December.

Fred Robinson

V ACE OF SPADES!

bob stephens PSYCHIC EXPOSURE

This effect is simple to explain. Someone chooses a card after which you take his photograph with a polaroid camera. On exposure the selected card appears on the picture above the head of the sitter.

It is of course achieved by double exposure but neverless seems to puzzle even photographic types and will be found to be just the thing to perform at parties.

You will require a piece of hardboard covered with non reflective black material (I use velvet). On this fasten the card to be forced (sorry about that) just above centre as in (1).

Using a flash cube, and the camera loaded with the appropriate film take a photograph focusing so that the card is at the top of the viewfinder. Do not remove the photograph.

When ready to perform have card selected forcing the same one you have photographed. The card is returned to pack which is then shuffled. Get the victim to pose requesting him to look upwards and concentrate his mind on the card he chose. Focus camera as in (2), click the shutter, and when the film is removed the result will be something like (3).

Any kind of polaroid camera will do, but the portrait type is to be preferred. Should you possess, or be able to borrow another camera it would be possible to take other pictures before ringing in the prepared one when ready to do the psychic exposure.

Oh dear, oh dear, oh dear. A few issues back I mentioned that I appeared on a show in Chicago with Marshall Brodine. I am not sure whether it was your worthy Editor or the printer but the name came out minus the letter 'B' for BRODINE and even that's probably spelled wrong but at least it sounds right. Sorry Marshall. (I sound just like the Deputy).

Last time out I discussed Italy. This time, surprise, surprise, it's Italy again. Because, believe it or not, I have been there again, this time to Milan, once more under the auspices of Dr Lotterio. This particular trip was made to perform on a Magic Show at the Aero Hotel Executive which I believe is one of the largest there. The actual venue was a ballroom in the hotel.

The occasion was a tribute to Slydini from the Italian magicians. There were four acts on the bill. Alberto Sitta who presents a Chinese act under the name of Chung Chin Foo. We have seen Alberto in England and this was a repeat performance of the same act complete with cotton wool smoke from the mouth, miles and miles of thread from the mouth and the unbelievable Carmo's Beads presentation etc. He was on top form. Yours truly was next with his kilted offering. Third was Shimada and his charming wife Deanna with his dove act which stood that Italian audience on their ears. Next came the maestro himself, Slydini, performing his novel effects as only he can - bare hand production of an incredible number of silks, torn and restored newspaper, paper balls over the head, Chinese rings. It doesn't sound like much, but as I have said, performed as only he can.

A thought occurred to me while watching him perform and it was that I wondered how long it would have been since he had performed in his native language. It did seem strange to watch him go through his same handling of the spectator for the paper balls effect without being able to understand a single word of what he was saying.

The show was closed by Shimada and Deanna, this time performing their justly famous Japanese act which consists mainly of the production of Japanese parasoles, though that is a very bald description.

The show was a complete success and the audience of about 500 was specially invited to the performance though I did hear that if they had opened the show to the public they could have sold the seats 3 or 4 times over. The actual finale consisted of the compere introducing all the notable magicians present of which there were many, and eventually bringing all the artists who had performed back on stage where we were each presented with a gold medal in appreciation of our efforts from the magicians of Italy.

So that was that. For the next thirty minutes or so there was pandemonium in our dressing rooms where everyone seemed to want to come back stage to say what a great show it had been. At last we got them all cleared out and the performers and a few others adjourned to the restaurant for a sumptuous meal. Afterwards we all gathered in one of the rooms in the hotel where we were entertained by an Italian Comedy — songs none of which I understood. After this Slydini was cajoled into performing Close-up and again I was able to appreciate the skill and technique of this man who told me at one point that he was actually 75 years of age. I could hardly believe it. He performed all the things he's famous for. After the Lord Mayor's show yours truly performed a few card effect, then Slydini came back with a piece of rope and a pair of scissors and fooled everyone for 10 minutes. It was an evening I will never forget.

One other person whom I have not mentioned but who deserves to be, was the compere but I regret I do not have his name. He himself performed a rope routine between two acts, c + r, stretching and 3 to 1 etc. I will find out his name because I think it is important that he should be named as he did a wonderful job.

Patrick Page

The effect is that of two freely chosen cards being revealed, but the effect on the audience is just too good to be believed, this two card reveal is a sure fire eye-popper beloved of magicians and laymen alike.

A fair description would be as follows. The magician having had two cards chosen by the audience, noted and shuffled back into the pack, then removes the top card of the pack and having ascertained that this card is not one of the selected cards takes the card into his right hand then causes the card to spin in the air very fast. Midway through the spin the card splits three ways and becomes 3 cards—all spinning until all 3 cards hit the floor—needless to say the two new arrivals are the two cards chosen by the audience.

REQUIRED:

A normal pack of cards in fairly new untreated condition.

THE SPIN

We are not concerned here with the selection of the cards etc. — sufficient to say that the two chosen cards are controlled to the top of the face down pack then the performer executes a TRIPLE LIFT to arrive at the position depicted in Fig.1.

Now the actual spin — follow carefully with cards in hand. There are two movements involved.

Move 1

With the cards gripped as in Fig.1 by moving the right arm across the body from Right to Left and hitting the inner corner at the point X the cards will SPIN but this is INSUFFICIENT as the cards will not spin fast enought neither will they separate so combined with this movement of the right arm we bring in the Move 2 action that lifts this beautiful flourish out of the common place league.

Move 2

As the 3 cards held as one leave the right finger and thumb they are SNAPPED off the edge of the right thumb sharply by pressure of the right second finger — this action combined with the sharp movement of the right arm from right to left causes:

- (a) The cards to spin out very fast away from the performer.
- (b) The cards to SEPARATE this they will not do unless you perform the SNAP action—without this THERE IS NO MAGIC—the cards just spin and fall flatly to the ground instead of spin-flying in 3 different directions mid-way through the spin.

This is the kind of flourish beloved of card workers, please give it the practice deserved — you will be well pleased with the end product.

mark weston

IF YOU HAVE 1 + 2 AND CAN MAKE 3

contact Don Lees at 15 Lodge Drive, Belper, Derby, England. Telephone: Belper 5609

- 1. A GOOD CLOSE UP ACT
- 2. NOT MORE THAN TEN MINUTES
- 3. BRITISH RING CONVENTION AT BRIGHTON, SEPTEMBER 1976

Zina Bennet Trophy Open Only to British Ring Members.

AT THE TABLE by Neil Elias

This is a reprint of the 1946 edition and re-issued by Busby Enterprises of Oakland, California and available from Magic Books by Post at £1.20 inc. postage.

This booklet contains material which will appeal to the close-up card worker who prefers to use manipulation to achieve his effects. There is a version of Dai Vernon's Follow the Leader which includes a cute switch of a red card for a black one which is not at all difficult. A Poker demonstration which will find favour with the in-joggers. A torn corner card trick requiring only a glide and a reverse. For the palm conscious there is a method for getting a previously selected card from the pack to the inside pocket or if desired into the wallet which does use a palm, but the need for the hurried dive into the pocket is neatly solved. There are a couple of spelling tricks and a Chinese Compass variation. A sleight for secretly reversing a card and one for switching cards. Three fancy cuts one which brings a previously selected card face up on top of the pack, plus a dodge for extending the length of the ribbon spread between the hands completes an acceptable little booklet.

Fred Robinson

MAGIC IN FO

THE INTERNATIONAL MAGAZINE

Now in its 3rd year.

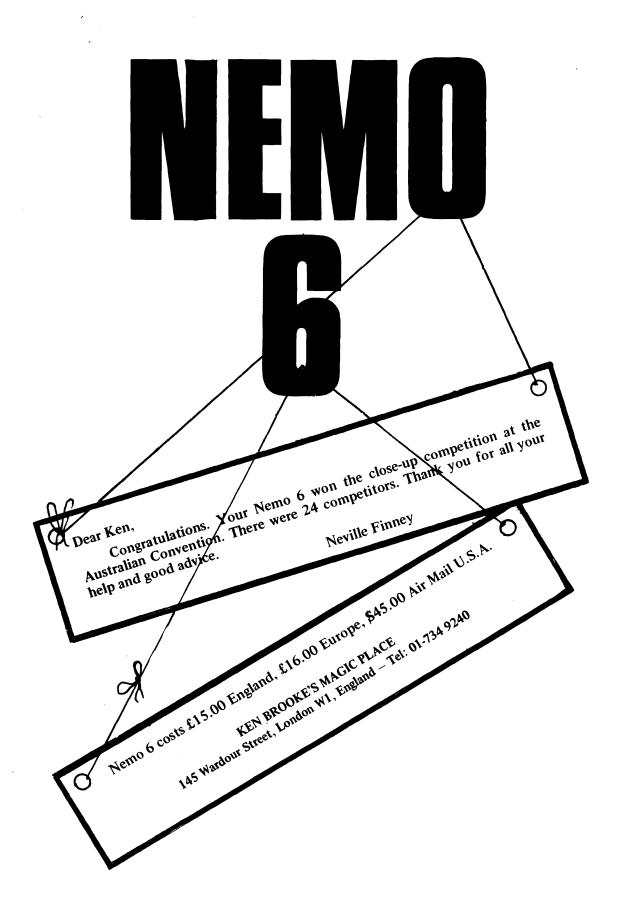

MAKE SURE EACH ISSUE IS SENT TO YOU REGULARLY. SEND TODAY ONLY £2.00 ($6:00) FOR ONE YEAR (SIX) ISSUES SENT POST FREE TO ANYWHERE IN THE WORLD.

32 glossy pages in each issue.
THE INTERNATIONAL MAGIC STUDIO,
(RON MACMILLAN)
89 CLERKENWELL ROAD, HOLBORN,
LONDON, E.C.1.

Our congratulations this month are somewhat belated. On 13th of March The Academy of Magical Arts Inc. presented Robert Harbin with their highest award A MASTERS FELLOW-SHIP in recognition and appreciation of a lifetime's dedication to magic as a performer, creator and writer.

Although Bob Harbin would not be considered a close-up performer in the magical sense, he has originated many effects suitable for presenting under close up conditions particularly in the field of illusions bringing what in the past would have been considered stage effects on to the cabaret floor. It has been suggested that there are more magicians in the U.S.A. possess a ZIG-ZAG than own a set of linking rings. He has published books on Origami which include many of his own originations. A dip into one of these could provide close-up magicians with an extra string to their bow in the same way children's performers use balloon modelling. His most important magical publication 'The Magic of Robert Harbin', now a collector's item contains many of the best effects of the man whose contributions to magic have in certain aspects never been equalled.

Pabular is published after the second week in every month and is printed by Instance Printers, Paddock Wood, Kent, England. Subscriptions may be obtained direct from the publishers, Pabular, P.O. Box 180, London SE12 8JJ or through many magic dealers. Price 50 pence per copy (or US $ 1.25) surface post included. Air Mail extra 12 pence (US $ 0.30) per copy or £1.45 (US $ 3.60) per year. Editorial or content copy should be sent to Fred Robinson, 1 Crescent Court, 24 Crescent Road, New Barnet, Herts, England. Advertising rates sent on request—smalls 3 pence per word (US 10 cents). Dealer enquiries welcomed. Reproductions of old prints and historical magical items by kind permission of Tony Faro.

The Magazine of Close-up Magic

_W1.2Nº12AFUG1976

CARD IN GASESS TRANSPOSITION

REQUIREMENTS:-

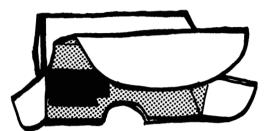

One ordinary blue backed pack of cards and 2 red backed cards with matching faces.

Place one of the red backers on the bottom of the blue pack and place the pack in its case (assume the card to be the 6 Spades).

The other red backer is placed in your pocket.

The face of this card is never seen.

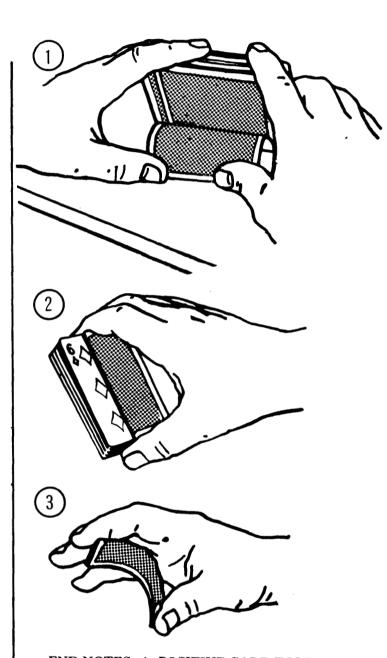

peter duffie

CARD IN CASE TRANSPOSITION by Peter Duffie

WORKING:-

- 1. Remove the pack from box and shuffle retaining bottom card. Explain that you have a prediction card in your pocket. Remove red backer and drop on top of pack as you point out the difference in back colour. Now double lift and turn over showing say the Ace of Hearts. Hand the spectator a pen and have him write your own inititials on the face, then turn double face down again and pick off top card only. Fold this card into quarters by first folding the card lengthwise then in half again. Make sure the face is not seen. Place this folded prediction card into the card case and place the case on the table with the flap open and to the top.
- 2. You now force the face card of the pack by a way in which the back is not seen. I use the Hindu Shuffle or the crossing the cut force. Have the spectator sign his name on the face of this card, the 6 spades. Place the halves together and control the card to the bottom of the pack.
- 3. Now do my "Positive Card Fold" (see End Notes).
- 4. At the finish of stage 3 you will be left with a pressure fan in the left hand and the folded 6 spades in the right. Scan the fan for the Ace of Hearts and withdraw it with the right hand. Place pack aside. Do not show the face of the card in hand but miscall it as the 6 spades.
- 5. Emphasise the fact that the red backed prediction, the Ace of Hearts was placed in the case before you started and that it bears your initials. Place the Ace of Hearts face down on the spectators palm and pick up card case with left hand. Insert right fingers into case and apparently withdraw prediction card, really palmed card. All that's left to do is show the strange transposition.

END NOTES: A. POSITIVE CARD FOLD

This is based on an idea of Tom Batchelor's From Canadian Card Control, page 39.

The card to be folded is on the bottom of the pack. Place the pack on the table in position for a riffle shuffle and proceed as follows:-

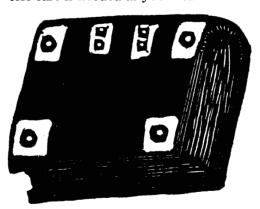

Α

1. Cut the top half of the pack to the right and begin the riffle shuffle, the left hand releasing the bottom card first (the card to be folded) then the right hand releasing a few and then finally the remainder is shuffled together in normal fashion.

- 2. The two halves are pushed together for about one inch then the elongated pack is lifted by the right hand so it is perpendicular to the table. The back of the pack thus faces the spectator. This action leaves the selected card lying face down on the table. The left hand is still at the left end with the thumb behind the pack and resting on the inner edge of the selected card. This is really the position for Steranko's "Action Reverse"
- 3. The card is now folded in half lengthwise during the action of squaring the pack by pushing with the left and right thumbs (see Fig.1). The card is held in this condition and the pack lifted from the table. So far, this is the same as Canadian Card Control, but differs from here on.
- 4. The final fold is now made but on the offbeat. Hold the pack vertically with backs to the spectator with the right hand in a sort of biddle grip. The folded card is also gripped by the same hand (Fig.2). This is position for a pressure fan. Make the pressure fan in the left hand with faces still towards you and you will find that the card will be delivered into the right hand automatically, pinched now in a ¼ sized condition because of pressure between fingers and thumb. (Fig.3 shows rough right hand grip on card). Keep looking at the fan and not the hand.

В

The red backed prediction card which you remove from your pocket at the beginning could match the top card of the pack, in this case the Ace of Hearts. This means that its face can be shown as it is removed from the pocket, and also less care is needed as you fold it.

Book Review
EVER SO SLEIGHTLY
The professional card technique of Martin A. Nash
by Stephen Minch

When ever a professional performer decides to release his methods and effects one can be certain that the material will be practical.

'Ever so Sleightly' will appeal to those whose chief interest lies in the study of moves and sleights, and tricks requiring their use. For those requiring easy tricks which are new in effect will find little to interest them.

From the introduction we learn that Martin Nash, known professionally as 'The Charming Cheat' works ten months of the year displaying his skill at trade shows, and lecturing to police departments on gambling and cheats.

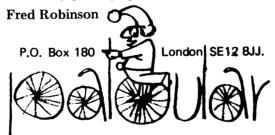

Part One deals solely with sleights and the first one to receive attention is the double lift, the method explained requiring no 'get ready'. This is followed by five ways of replacing the cards after the lift. Next comes a one-handed double lift and turnover which can also be used to execute triple and quadruple lifts. It is explained how this double lift may be used as an 'add on' by double dealing the top two cards as one.

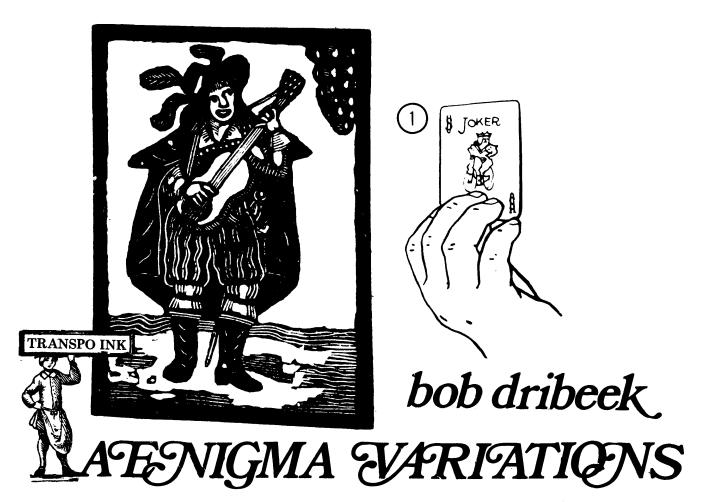

Nash's multiple shift is undoubtedly one of the sleights that will be used by many card table workers being relevantly easy and is performed with economy of movement which will appeal to those who appreciate the importance of such things.

A method of secretly reversing a given number of cards in the pack, an instant change of a card when being scaled into the air, a variation of the Hofzinser change, four small packet switches and an attempt to teach the perfect table faro. In this latter, considerable effort has been made to explain in detail the various position and pressures which are vitally necessary for the execution of this sleight, the success of which depends ultimately on getting the 'feel' of the sleight and this only comes after considerable practise and thought as I can personally testify.

Part Two gives some nineteen routines. The four kings turn face up, then turn to aces. A not too difficult cutting the aces. A peek control and a quick colour change routine are among the first to be explained. The remaining tricks include the McDonald aces without the usual fakes, and a three to seven hand poker stack in which a spectator says how many players are to be in the game the dealer eventually getting the four aces. It requires perfect faros and second dealing.

Everything is clearly explained and there are ninety photographs to supplement the text.

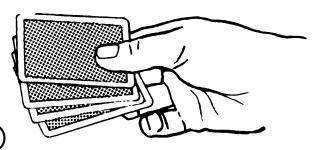

This effect in Pabular Vol.2 No.9, May 1976 is a beauty. I use eight Jokers from Aviator decks. Four are coloured red and four green using a felt pen. My story runs around the theme "East is East and West is West and never the twain shall meet". Follow the instructions as given in Pabular paragraphs one to five inclusive.

You are now ready to perform 'escapes' from East to West and vice versa. In the newspapers you will find plenty of material from which to make up a story. British diplomats involved in sex scandals fly to the Soviet Union, Russian writers seeking asylum in Switzerland, Bolshoi ballet dancers fly to Holland etc.....

I do not particularly like the first transposition given in para 6. The move I use is a kind of Hindu shuffle which is also used in the Fred Kaps handling of the 'Side Walk Shuffle'. Here it is. Take the so-called red (East) block in your right hand holding them at a narrow end with the thumb on the back and the fingers on the face Fig (1). Public see the face of a red Joker believing the three green Jokers behind also to be red. Turn the four cards face down fanning them slightly Fig.(2). Left thumb now peels off the top card keeping it face down in the left hand, and the right hand turns the remaining cards face up allowing the audience to see another (?) red Joker. Right hand turns the cards face down and the left thumb peels off another on to the top of the green Joker already there. Right hand turns it two cards face up again showing the same red Joker. The right hand turns the cards face down again but this time the left thumb slips the BOTTOM card onto the top of the two in the left hand. This leaves you with a green Joker in the right hand which you show as the first transposition. Put this card face down on top of the three cards in the left hand and cut the packet in the middle, i.e. the top two cards are placed on the bottom. Put the packet face up on the table with the red Joker showing. Repeat this with the green Jokers (West bloc) and you are then ready to perform paras. 7-8 and 9.

For the finish, para. 10, I would not suggest the side steal. This is a "testimonial paupertatis" because my efforts with this move are not very convincing and I prefer the "Aenigma Replacement", which I use in a slightly different way in Paul Curry's "Out of this World".

Starting at para. 9 where you have the two packets face up on the table. In each one the second from the bottom is a 'stranger'. Take either packet and Elmsley count showing all four cards to be the same colour leaving the 'stranger' on the bottom. Put the packet in the thumb crotch and pick up the other packet with the right hand and do the Elmsley count showing them also to be of one colour. No difficulty will be experienced in performing the sleight whilst holding the first packet in the thumb crotch. Separate the hands slightly each holding four face up cards with a 'stranger' on the bottom. You now clean up using the Aenigma Replacement. Here's how.

The packet in right hand is placed on top of the packet in the left AT AN ANGLE and in so doing the right finger tips pull the bottom card of its packet back to the right causing its right outer corner to coincide with the right outer corner of the packet beneath as indicated by X in Fig.3. From the point of view of the audience the trick is over and they have seen you casually put the two packets of cards together. Do not make a 'move' out of this action. The right hand having momentarily moved away leaving both packets clipped under the left thumb comes in again and taking the out-jogged bottom card of the top packet together with the four cards beneath places them on top of the other three in the left hand. You now have four of a kind followed by four of a kind with no interlopers.

Here is a pleasant follow-up to the DUFFIE-WALTON contribution on page 254 of the same issue of Pabular.

If you have the cards stacked in face-up pairs held in the left hand reading from face to bottom: A,A,2,2,3,3,4,4,5,5,6,6,7 and 7 try this.

Turn the packet face down in the left hand and start dealing alternatively a card left and right onto the table into two separate heaps clearly dividing the pairs. That is what you appear to do, but in actual fact you deal seconds on the second, sixth, and tenth card, dealing the eleventh on the left heap and the twelfth on the right when you stop leaving the two Aces in the left hand. Display these and wave them over the two piles which you then turn face-up showing that the odd pairs are re-assembled in the left heap and the even pairs in the right heap.

doug alker

DOUBLE MONTE

The original inspiration for these two Monte effects came from a George Blake column in Magigram in which he recognised that an effect he had just outlined was short of a strong ending. I was sufficiently interested in the effect to try and remedy this deficiency and in the process I developed or rather modified the effect to what I considered to be a more deceptive one. Later, the original aim of a strong finish was achieved, but as it was not possible for the two effects to follow one another, I finished with two separate effects.

Here is the first one:

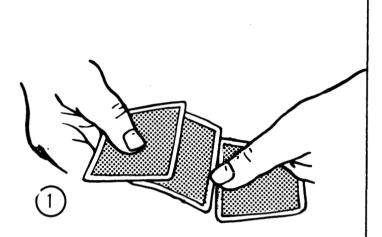

The effect is along the lines of the classic three card monte. A Queen is shown with two Jokers and the spectator fails to locate it despite being so certain of his choice.

Required are three Jokers and one Queen. With the cards face up arrange them in the following order. Joker, Queen, Joker, Joker. I show these in a fan twice in a certain way that the spectators are convinced of there being only three cards. Hold the cards in the left hand as you would for a buckle count. Push off the top card, a Joker, taking it in the right hand with the thumb above and fingers below and moves it clear of the pack. Without altering its grip on the card, the right hand brings the card back towards the pack where its left long edge is gripped lightly between the left thumb and fingers. An upwards pressure with the right fingers causes the Joker to 'snap' free of the left hand grip. This is a now popular move to convey the impression that the right hand is holding only a single card. The left thumb now pushes over the Queen which the right hand takes below the Joker it is already holding Fig.(1). The left fingers keep the two Jokers remaining perfectly squared. 'Snap' the Queen as you did the Joker and then take the two Jokers from the left hand keeping them in alignment 'snap' them also. A little practice will be needed to make the snapping sound the same for all three counts, i.e. when snapping one or two cards. It is a matter of adjusting how far the card(s) are bent and the amount of pressure applied.

I usually follow this with a repeat count which you may dispense with if so desired. In this second count the bottom card is buckled and the second and third cards taken as one leaving a single card at the end. This second count usually clinches matters and convinces the spectator that you have only three cards.

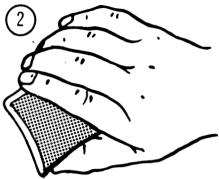

When the counting is finished the cards are left slightly fanned. The cards are squared and held face down in the left hand in a dealing position. The left hand pushes the top card off the side of the pack as when dealing and taken in the right hand with the thumb at the inner end and the fingers at the outer end Fig.(2). Squeeze the two ends slightly making the back convex and drop it gently on the table from a height of about two inches. At the same time say, "Joker." Do not throw the card down or put it on the table, just let it drop. We now come to what I call the 'DOUBLE CARD HAND OVER'. Lift off the top two cards as one from the three in the left hand, bend them slightly, and keeping them aligned show the face card saying, "Queen". The left hand is now turned over to show the Joker. The left hand turns over bringing the Joker again face down. The double card with the Queen at the face is now dropped face down on top of the face down Joker in the left hand, and in so doing the right thumb releases the bottom card of two leaving a little break between the first and second cards. The right hand now empty picks up the tabled Joker, shows it to the spectator and drops it back onto the table. The right hand returns to the packet and removes the top card, which the spectator believes to be the Queen, bends it, and drops it to the left of the Joker. The small break between it and the second card enables it to be taken without hesitation. The right hand now takes the remaining two cards from the left hand as one and shows it/them to be a Joker and gently drops this double onto the table from a height of a couple of inches as you did the two previous cards. It is quite easy with a bit of practice to keep the two cards aligned as they are dropped and land on the table. A steady nerve also helps. The dropping of all three cards should be uniform and as casual as possible. The spectator is totally convinced of the whereabouts of the Queen if you have done the necessary moves slowly and deliberately, and will be really surprised when he turns over a Joker instead of the Queen. You gather up the cards before he goes for a second chance.

The second one. Also along the lines of the classic effect but with a kicker at the end when the Queen turns out to have a different coloured back from the Jokers.

Required are three Jokers, say with red backs and a blue backed Queen. To my mind, the handling etc of this method is not quite so clean as the previous one but it is easier and many readers may like the final kicker. Here goes.

There are two ways of making your 'display fan' and I will describe both. When you have decided which you will use you must stick with the same method throughout the effect.

Method 1. (which I prefer). Hold the cards face or face down in the left hand in the dealing position getting a break under the top two cards. Slide the top two cards above the break to the right as one card and take it in the right hand. The next card is slid off and taken in the right hand below and to the left of the first one. The third card is added to the left of those already in the right hand forming a three? card fan. Actually there are four cards, the top one being double.

Method 2. Hold the squared cards in the right hand (Biddle position). With the left hand palm up place the fingers against the bottom card and draw it to the left and clear of the other cards. The left fingers now draw off the new bottom card on top of, and to the right of, the card already there. The remaining two cards held in the right as one are added onto the two in the left hand to form a three card fan.

The set-up for both methods is the same. Reading from the top with the cards face up it is Joker, Queen, Joker, Joker. Display them one at a time in a fan using whichever of the methods you prefer. Close the fan and turn the packet over and repeat the fan which will be seen to consist of three red backed cards. Ask a spectator to indicate the Queen which he fails to do. Repeat the process and he will again fail. At the third time display the fan FACE UP and again ask him to indicate the Queen. This time he cannot fail and you ask him to remove it. Turn the two? cards in your left hand backs uppermost showing the expected red backs commenting that you cannot understand how he failed to pick out the Queen on the previous occasion because it has a different coloured back. Inevitably he will turn the Queen over and discover that it has a blue back.

The TEGPULL

If you have read no further than the title thinking this article explains some sort of practical joke the loss is yours. What follows is the description of a novel but simple pull of considerable value to close-up magicians. Its uses are varied and the loose change in your pocket should provide the necessary capital for the properties required which consist of a small button, a larger button of the kind usually found to be missing from your overcoat or mackintosh, a length of elastic or, preferably, a length of rubber often used to provide the motive power for model aeroplanes, obtainable from a model shop and lastly a length of nylon thread.

First, make a loop in one end of the rubber sufficiently large enough to put the foot in, stirrup fashion, leaving enough length of rubber so that the end reaches the knee without stretching. To this end attach the large button by pushing the end of the rubber through one of the holes and tying a knot in it. Fasten the nylon thread to this larger button passing it through the hole diagonally opposite the one through which the rubber is attached.

To set the pull first remove your shoes and trousers and put your left foot into the loop. It is important that the correct foot is in the loop otherwise you may experience some personal discomfort when operating the pull and cause the audience to wonder why you are taking a bow in the middle of the trick.

To prevent the audience from seeing the pull it will be necessary to put on your trousers again. Normally this is a fairly simple matter, but in this case it is necessary to have the end of the thread available at the top of the trousers after they are back on in order to pass the thread through the waist band from inside to the outside at a point between the buttons at the front of the trousers on the left side to which the braces are normally fastened. If you are a belt-only person the above information will be sufficient guide for you to know what is required.

The difficulty you will experience will be to hold the end of the thread with one hand and pull up the trousers with the other and you will probably decide, as we did, that it would ease matters if you held the thread in the teeth leaving both hands free. It is precisely at this point you find that your teeth are some inches short of their objective and it would have been much easier if you had not been so stingy with the thread. However, by pulling the thread and stretching the rubber band you manage to make the end of the thread reach the mouth — and you make further discoveries. The first one, that it slips through the teeth because it is on tension and secondly when trying to prevent this happening you will bite through the thread. In either case you will lose the thread and have to start the whole business again from square one.

Fortunately, there is an alternative and that is to get your wife, girlfriend or boyfriend to hold the thread while you deal with the trousers, or vice versa. If you have all three perm trousers, or vice versa. If you have all three, perm any two from three and let them do both jobs which will leave you free to advise them how to do what you failed to do yourself.

Assuming that you now have the thread through the waist band, pull it through to take up the slack and fasten the small button onto the end, and fill the recess with wax and you are now ready to vanish any small light object that will adhere to the waxed button. You simply steal the waxed button with the left hand and press the object on it. On releasing the button it will take the object with it back to the top of the trousers and out of sight beneath the coat. The button can be replaced with the usual hook found on normal pulls and thus increasing its versatility.

It has certain advantages over the sleeve pull. It is completely out of the way leaving the arms free and when not in use one has only to remove a shoe and take the foot out of the loop which will, if properly adjusted, go out of sight just inside the trouser leg. It can just as easily be regained when it is required to go into action. And finally it can remain fixed in position at all times with one exception. Do not forget to remove it when sending the suit to the cleaners or the young lady might wonder what kind of fellow you are who keeps such a strange piece of apparatus up the trouser leg.

alf goodwin

How long is it since you had what can only be described as an almost perfect day? I had one recently in New York. You know the kind of day I mean, when everything happens just right. There is a man in New York called Charlie Kalish. Professionally Charlie is an unsung genius of photographing and processing equipment, but in his spare time he collects magic things. So, on the day to be remembered, I am invited to see his place of work sometime before noon, and after the tour of the premises, (during which the boy wonder nodded and smiled at employees as if he were the president of the company on his tour of inspection), Charlie bid good-bye to his staff, and the rest of the day. and off we went to lunch, for which he paid. I ask you? Is there a better way to start off the day than to have someone pay for your lunch?

The Page boy speakş....

After lunch, next stop, Charlie's home, to meet his wife and daughter, (I try to keep the unimportant things short), then it's downstairs to the basement. Did I say he collects magic things? He told me that he had recently disposed of most of the larger items in his collection that what remained was the smaller stuff. What amazed me was not just the amount of the small stuff he has collected but the quality. Name a dealer, and he probably has a number of the choicest items that that dealer ever manufactured, and the majority of them are of the mechanical type, and they are of such a quality that they will never see the light of a dealer's catalogue again.

He has several items described in the Hoffman books which I believe have never been manufactured. Boxes for vanishing or producing coins one at a time, coin stars, a number of items which were the property of Hofzinser, countless boxless items of the ball box type. To coin a phrase, I collapsed like a folding half with a broken rubber band. Charlie also knows about clocks and he has several which he has forbidden me to describe, of the magical variety of course.

What next? Oh! Yes, paper. He has piles and piles of paper, magical ephemera, photographs, playbills, programmes, etc. and that, if I may say so is my line of country. At that point I felt a little sick and had to come up for air, when suddenly he socks me in the eye, with, "Have I shown you some of my Robert Houdin things?" Conradi, Bartl, Klingle, Willman, Basche etc., they were all represented in this basement of a home in suburban New York.

By now, it's around 6 o'clock, and Charlie drags me out to the car and off we go to dinner where we are joined by one Willie Schneider. I think I have said so somewhere before but Willie is one of the real nice guys in magic and Charlie couldn't have picked a nicer eating companion for me. (I am not sure who paid for this meal, but it wasn't me. The day is getting better). Next stop the American Legion Hall somewhere in New Jersey at which one of the world's leading lecturers on things magical was to demonstrate his ability. (Modesty forbids me mentioning his name). He did a good job that night, sold a lot of lecture notes, met some old friends, made some new ones, and when it was all over, Charlie drove him all the way back to New York City, perhaps around 2am. And so ended the almost perfect day. The only thing missing was sex. Maybe next time. Thank you Charles.

Now contrast the above with one day last week. I take my wife for a walk in the park, (we don't talk a lot but we do walk) and when we get back to the car park here's my car — gone. Taxi home, a frantic 'phone call to the police, plus arranging to hire a car the next day as I have a kid's show a million miles away. Later that night, (the plot thins), the police call me to tell me they have recovered my car and they have it at the police station. Needless to say the contents were gone, a pair of shoes, a microphone, a prop that didn't belong to me, but worst of all, the roof of the car is caved in. A police sergeant told me they had found an eighteen year old youth jumping on the roof of the car like it was a trampoline. That was a bad day.

Piracy of magical effects is getting a lot of publicity in the magical press these days. I have a solution. It won't stop it, but if you want to make someone who has stolen a magical effect of yours, really mad go jump on the roof of his car.

Good-bye,

Patrick Page

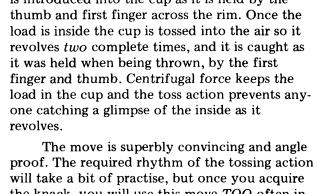

A GAG FROM PAT CONWAY

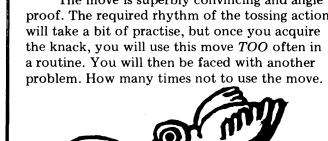

A regular visitor to the Blenheim bar after the Magic Circle Monday Club nights, Pat has usually something new to show and failing a trick or gag will frequently tell a story with an Irish flavour and mostly one we have not previously heard. Among his best known tricks are a Cut and Restored rope, the Conway cigarette case, and what is not generally known (and we are pleased to put on record) the Sympathic Matchboxes in which the drawer of a half open matchbox closes as the drawer of another box is pushed open, an effect which can be repeated ad lib.

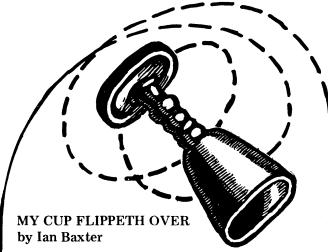

This particular gag is typical of the kind of his ideas. Take from the pocket a reel of what you claim to be invisible thread. Claim that whilst it is wound on the reel it is visible but once a length is pulled free it cannot be seen. With some difficulty you manage to get hold of the free end which you pull, and naturally the reel turns as the thread is pulled. A length is broken off and given to someone to hold. Noone can see the thread once it is off the reel. In fact none is pulled off.

To prepare attach the free end of the thread near the pocket. To perform take the reel out of the pocket keeping it close to the body holding it in the left hand with the tip of the forefinger on the hole one side and the thumb over the hold on the other (1) when pretending to pull thread off the reel as the right hand moves away with the thread? the left also moves away from the body causing the reel to revolve. Pretend to break off a length and return the reel to the pocket. After giving the length to spectator pretend to drop it, having difficulty in finding it etc. and any other 'business' you can think of.

You now have some really invisible thread why not use it? Remember the old gag of blowing on the corner of a handkerchief breastpocket, pretending that the movement was caused by pulling on a piece of thread? Why not take your invisible thread by either end and make believe that it is causing the movement of the hanky. Maybe you can think of other uses for this useful property.

Of all the natty moves one comes across for the eternal Cups and Balls, this cutie 'takes the cake'.

Magician holds a cup in the right or left hand, tosses it in the air, and catches it, then places it down onto the table. Nothing new, but, the cup can immediately be lifted to reveal a load. The 'how' is unbelievedly easy - the load, be it a ball, apple, egg or whatever, is loaded in the conventional manner - i.e. the palmed load is introduced into the cup as it is held by the

For some time now we have been considering having a Pabular Close-Up Convention. One of the chief problems has been finding a suitable venue which provides all the facilities required for such an event in particular one which has seating arrangements which allow all the spectators an uninterrupted view of the performance in comfort. We have found such a place, which in addition has the right atmosphere, with refreshments including soft and hard drink being at hand during the whole event. It is the Midland Institute, Birmingham which makes about as central as you can get and is just off the motorway and about ten minutes walk from the railway station. More about it next month.

Still with conventions, Don Lees is trying to whip up interest in the British Ring Close-Up Competition. If you can do seven to ten minutes intimate magic why not contact him at 15 Lodge Drive, Belper, Derbyshire DES 1AJ. Performers will be judged solely on Magical Entertainment with the accent on entertainment. They will be judged on one performance alone in front of an audience consisting of the general public with two magical and two lay adjudicators.

The idea of bringing in the lay public to form an audience is a welcome one for several reasons. Firstly, it should encourage those members whose magic is not angled towards magicians and have thus been inhibited from taking part. Secondaly, it will tend to change the attitude of those performers who do enter, towards making their magic more entertaining to non-magicians. This is an extremely important factor, especially to youngsters coming on to the magic scene in the hope of learning something of the art.

Competitions for Close-Up Magic have been a continuing problem for the organisers of such events for more years than we care to remember. At one such recent event we understand a competitor lost marks because he moved out in front of his table. Presumably the judges considered he should have performed his whole act seated behind his table. This seems to us to be nonsensical and makes close-up magic even more artificial than is usual at these events. The real charm of close-up magic is its intimacy and this is completely lost if the performer works from behind the table. This lack of close contact can to some extent be overcome if, a la Goshman, two members of the audience are invited to sit on either side of the performer, providing they are kept continuously involved in the action. Thus engaged they form a link between the performer and his audience and help to break down the physical and psychological barrier which the table presents.

Visitors to London over the past months have included Marv Long from Michigan, whose idea of magic is to pull coins up through the table with the implement generally used for unblocking sinks, and the continuous salt pour in which in addition to what usually happens salt streams in seemingly unlimited quantities from various parts of the clothing. Bob Haines from New Jersey, with a liking for warm British beer and card tricks. Of the latter he has one similar to, and almost if not as good as, 'Out of this World'. An ordinary pack is used and given to the spectator to shuffle and shown to be well mixed after which an OOTW kind of effect is performed. In playing with the above in the Blenheim Bar the following near miracle occurred. One magician gave another the pack to shuffle, cut and deal into two separate piles. When the cards were turned over one pile was seen to contain all the red cards and the other all blacks which surprised everyone including the man doing the trick. Any ideas?

THE INTERNATIONAL MAGAZINE

Now in its 3rd year.

MAKE SURE EACH ISSUE IS SENT TO YOU REGULARLY. SEND TODAY ONLY £2.00 ($6.00) FOR ONE YEAR (SIX) ISSUES SENT POST FREE TO ANYWHERE IN THE WORLD.

32 glossy pages in each issue.
THE INTERNATIONAL MAGIC STUDIO,
(RON MACMILLAN)
89 CLERKENWELL ROAD, HOLBORN,
LONDON, E.C.1.

fred lowe's CHINESE COIN BOX

The finest and most complete coin box in existence. It is made to take, and supplied with, fakes that permit better and stronger effects yet is examinable when desired and does not need special coins, they could be borrowed. Coins from four different countries could be used, for instance, a Kennedy half-dollar; British 50p; Canadian half-dollar; French 5f; German 5Dm. Truly International Coin Magic. Think of the presentation and patter themes!

Not only can the 'Chinese Coin Box' be used as an Okito Box and Boston Box (examinable without switching) but different effects can be achieved, effects not possible with any other box advertised. For instance, in Fred Lowe's profusely illustrated routines there is 'Chinese Revolution' — a large silver coin placed in the box is penetrated by a chop-stick, pencil, cigarette or even a slender lit cigar. When repeated with the Chinese coin, the latter escapes from the box and passes onto a chop-stick etc. Immediately follows the vanish of four coins and the spectators can see through the box although performer has not removed the fake, which drops off itself or is automatically lapped later.

Our 'Janus Coin' can be used with this box. Also, our 'Bastille' half-dollar coin. The box is non-magnetic. Superlative design built with craftsmanship, care and great skill with engraved Chinese motif in two colours on lid. Complete with all the fakes and apparatus plus the 'Fred Lowe' instructions and routined presentations.

PRICE £18.00 U.S.$45.00
Airmailed home
Money back if not delighted

There's No Place Like

KEN BROOKE'S MAGIC PLACE - 145 WARDOUR STREET

LONDON. W.1. - ENGLAND

LONDON. W.1. - 20240

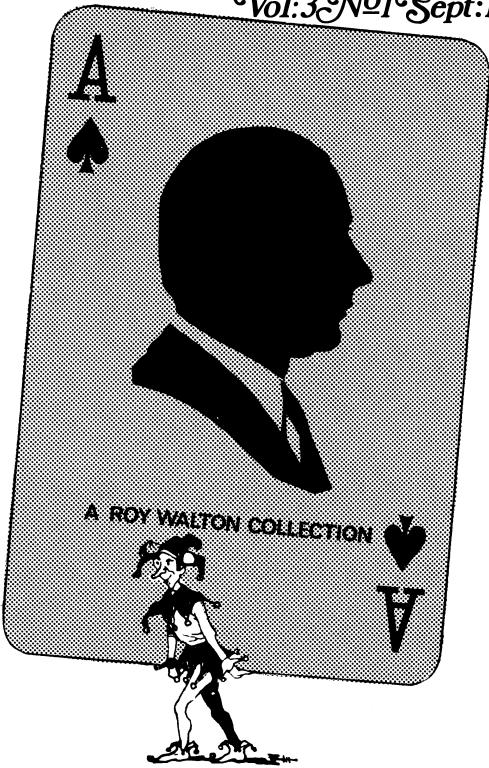

Tel: 01-734 9240

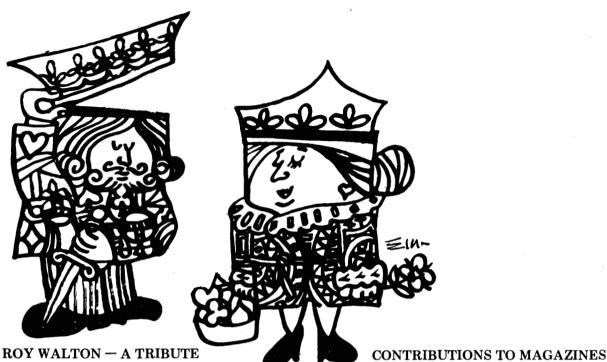

Pabular is published after the second week in every month and is printed by Instance Printers, Paddock Wood, Kent, England. Subscriptions may be obtained direct from the publishers, Pabular, P.O. Box 180, London SE12 8JJ or through many magic dealers. Price 50 pence per copy (or US $ 1.25) surface post included. Air Mail extra 12 pence (US $ 0.30) per copy or £1.45 (US $ 3.60) per year. Editorial or extent copy should be sent to Fred Robinson, 1 Crescent Court, 24 Crescent Road, New Barnet, Herts, England. Advertising rates sent on request—smalls 3 pence per word (US 10 cents). Dealer enquiries welcomed. Reproductions of old prints and historical magical items by kind permission of Tony Faro.

Ge Magazine of Close-up Magic

Vol:3Nº1Sept:1976

It is my privilege and pleasure to be invited to say a few words about Roy, who came to Scotland some ten years ago to manage the Glasgow branch of the well-known and respected magical dealers, L. Davenport and Co. This issue is especially welcome as it enables me to pay tribute to the one who encouraged and assisted me in my early efforts to master the technique required and to appreciate good card magic, both by advice and practical example. In the intervening years I have met many of the top experts in the field of card magic without my personal regard for Roy's work being in the least diminished. It is a real lesson in card magic to study his methods and the way he approaches a problem and arrives at an elegant solution. Although he is a master of advanced technique you will find that few of his tricks require any great manipulative skill, most being within reach of the average card handler. His effects are clear cut and have that simplicity which is ever the hallmark of effective card magic. Perhaps one day Roy will be persuaded to embark on a lecture tour which will enable many more to appreciate his incredible skill and inventiveness that has given me so much pleasure over the past years.

Until that time arrives many will have to content themselves with studying the tricks in this issue, and the numerous previously published and marketed tricks listed here.

British Abracadabra

Gen

Epilogue Genii

American

Magic Circular

Hierophant

Pabular

Hugards Magic Monthly

Pentagram

Kabbala
Linking Ring

Canadian Ibidem Linking Ring
Pallbearers Review
Phoenix

Indian

Swami Booklets in order of publication

The Devil's Playthings Cardboard Charades

Tale Twisters
Card Script

Some Late Extra Card Tricks

Tricks marketed

Cardwarp Cascade

Kaleidoscope

Animal Magic

dealers, L. Davenport and Co.

To this impressive list Roy has another what he modestly calls 'booklets' in the pipeline, and I sincerely trust that "the moving finger, having writ" will continue to "move on".

Gordon Bruce

cover silhouette Flancis Siles 19/3/16

EFFECT:-

An ace is placed face up on the centre of the pack. The top card of the pack is shown, say the King of spades, and then lost in the pack. The King of spades magically returns to the top of the pack and the face up ace turns into the other three Kings.

PREPARATION:-

From the top, the pack is arranged as follows. Ace of spades, the four Kings, remainder of the pack FACE UP. You can start with the pack in that order, or cull the required five cards to the top and do the half-pass below the top five cards to bring the pack into the correct starting position.

PERFORMANCE:-

Start with the pack half face down in the left hand. Remove the top card (AS) and without showing it push it face down into the approximate centre of the pack, taking a left little finger break above it as you square the pack. This is a casual action, performed before commencing the trick.

Cut the pack at the break point, completing the cut but retaking a left little finger break below the upper half of the pack as the pack is squared after the cut.

Tip the left hand slightly so that the back of the top card is hidden from the spectators. Keep the left fingers close together near the outer end of the pack ensuring that a back is not flashed when you tip the pack.

Remove the top card of the pack with the right hand and show it to the audience (AS). Having drawn attention to its value, replace it FACE UP on top of the pack. Once it is in position, you can lower the pack to show it face up on top. Say that you will cut the ace into the pack in its face up condition. Do this by cutting the pack at the break point and completing the cut. No break is held after this cut, so make sure the fairness of the procedure is noticed by the spectators.

Remove the top card and show it — it will be a king. Push the king face down into the centre of the pack and as you square the pack take a little finger break above it.

Mention something about the king being lost in the pack and as you explain this give the pack THREE cuts, taking a left little finger break between the two halves as you square up between each cut, and cutting at this break point each time you cut. The three cuts should be carried out fairly rapidly and casually. End with the pack face down in the left hand and no break being held.

State the name of the king you placed in the centre once again, and then rub the back of the top card of the pack with the fingers of the right hand in a magical gesture. Move the left hand towards the spectators and in this action twist the hand at the wrist turning the pack completely over, and with the left thumb push off the king letting it fall onto the table face up. The pack has been turned completely over, but the misdirection of the king being thrown face up completely covers this.

Say, "do you remember the name of the ace I placed face up in the pack at the beginning of the trick?" Whatever the reply, spread the pack face down and say "Well it has now changed to the other three kings."

INFLATEDACE

EFFECT:-

This is a story card trick in which the cards are used to illustrate what happens to two Earthmen when they visit Mars.

PREPARATION:-

In addition to a normal red backed pack of cards you will need a King of Spades and a King of Clubs with blue backs. Reading from the top of the face down pack it must be arranged as follows. Queen of Clubs, face up King of Spades, about half the pack, face up Queen of Spades, King of Clubs with blue back, about a dozen cards, King of Clubs, about a dozen cards, King of Spades with blue back, and the remainder of the pack.

PERFORMANCE:-

Run through the pack from the face and remove the King of Spades and the King of Clubs as you come to them, placing them face up on the table, the King of Clubs resting on the face of the King of Spades. Turn the pack face down and hold it squared in the left hand.

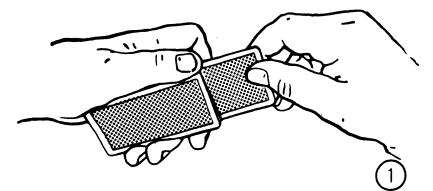

Explain that the pack will represent the planet Mars and the King of Spades and King of Clubs two Earthmen who are going to visit Mars. During this explanation riffle down the left hand long side of the pack until you see the face up Queen of Spades. Keep a break at this point by pressure of the left thumb against the edge of the pack.

Say, that after travelling for many weeks the Earthmen eventually landed their spaceship on Mars and made their first tentative steps on the planet. Illustrate this by picking up the King of Clubs and putting it face down into the break point being held by the left thumb (right above the Queen of Spades). Position the King of Clubs so that it partially covers the left thumb. Under cover of this card the left thumb riffles two cards and inserts the King of Spades face up at this point. There are now two cards trapped between the two kings, which are protruding from the pack. The position of the two kings are adjusted so that they extend for about an inch over the short end of the pack perfectly squared.

Grip both cards at the centre of the short end with the right thumb above, and the fingers below as in (1). Holding them locked together pull them out from the pack for approximately another inch. This action will secretly pull the two trapped cards out of the pack, but this will be unknown to the audience. All the preceding actions are carried out as you explain about the spacemen landing on Mars.

With the right hand first finger push on the outer short end of the King of Clubs so that it travels into the pack, stopping when it lines up with the pair of cards beneath it. You are apparently just moving it down to reveal the face up King of Spades below it (2). Say, "they looked around and decided that Mars looked just like the Earth."

With the right hand take hold of the face down King of Clubs (really three cards as one) with the thumb on the back and the fingers on the face at the outer short end, and remove it/them and place the three cards as one face up on top of the pack. Immediately they are square on top of the pack, use the left thumb to push the single King of Clubs slightly off the pack. Now remove the King of Spades from the pack with the right hand and take below it the King of Clubs from the top. Both Kings are now being held in the right hand away from the pack.

Say, "although everything looked normal when they were face to face things were far from normal when they turned round." Here turn the two cards in the right hand face down and say "their backs had turned blue."

Continue your story saying how they did not want to go through life half pink and half blue, so they decided to try and capture a Martian or two, to see if there was a cure for their condition.

Square up the two kings and hold them face up in the right hand in position for the Ovette/Kelly Placement Move so that as you apparently place them face up on the top of the pack. You really only put one on top (the King of Spades) and the other ends up secretly on the bottom of the pack.

Spread the top three cards of the pack and the two spacemen will be seen to have captured a face down Martian between them. Remove the three card spread with the right hand and place them on the table for a moment. Separate the three cards and push the face down one out from between the kings, leaving it face down on the table.

Gather up the two face up kings with the right hand making sure the King of Clubs is on the face. Square them up with the assistance of the fingers of the left hand, which is still holding the pack, and again grip them in the right hand in the Ovette/Kelly placement Move position.

Place them again on the top of the pack, and again carry out the Placement Move, the King of Spades going secretly to the bottom and the King of Clubs ending up face up on top.

Spread the top three cards again and a second Martian will be seen face down between the face up Earthmen (alright Kings, if you haven't got my imagination).

Place the face down card aside with the previous one, and the two face up kings in a slight spread a little apart from them.

State that when the Earthmen questioned the Martians about a cure for their 'blues', they said the only cure was to marry a Martian. Turn the face down cards face up as you say this. Continue "as the Martians were two very beautiful young ladies, the Earthmen did marry them and were cured." On the final line turn the kings face down to reveal their red backs. Conclude by muttering "I think it was a Martian form of a shot gun wedding."

NOTE:-

The add on move used in this routine was developed whilst playing with a sleight originated by Gordon Bruce.

EFFECT:-

A group of cards is mixed by a member of the audience and then magically sort themselves out into suit order.

PERFORMANCE:-

Run through the pack and find four hearts placing them face up in a pile on the table, followed by four spades, four diamonds, and four clubs. Place each set of four on top of the previous one to form a face up pile of sixteen cards. Place the remainder of the pack aside.

Run through the face up group and up jog two clubs, two diamonds, two spades and two hearts. Strip this group of eight cards out from the others and put them face down below the remaining ones. Point out to the audience that you have removed a pair of each suit and placed them below the remaining cards. To emphasise, spread the cards out between your hands to show the face down ones at the bottom. As you close the spread get a left little finger break below the top two cards of the face down group i.e. below the upper ten cards of the complete group.

Appear to cut the upper face up cards off with the right hand, simulating a thumb-riffle at the inner short end to see where the two groups meet, but really just cutting off all the cards above the little finger break. Place the face down group on the table with the left hand, making sure that they are perfectly square.

Say that you will split the face up group into two sections each to contain one card of each suit. Do this by running through the face up packet and outjog alternate cards starting with the second from the face (a club). When you come to the eighth card (a heart — but really three as one), move the three as one to the upjog position, and in a continuing action strip out the spade, diamond and club immediately in front of them placing them still face up below the other four face up cards.

Thumb over the club, diamond, spade and heart at the face and in this spreading action outjog the heart slightly. Take these four cards into the right hand, thumb on the face and fingers on the rear and say, "one card of each suit." Turn the four cards face down by twisting the right hand inwards, and replace them below the cards in the left hand. As you square up the complete group with the assistance of the right hand get a left little finger break below the face down heart that will now be conveniently injogged for you. If you check the position, you should now have a break below the upper seven cards of the group.

Thumb off the next four face up cards and take them into the right hand as before saying, "the other four suit cards." Turn them face down and appear to place them below the other cards in the left hand, but really pull down with the left little finger at the break and insert them at this point (Ed. Marlo's Pull Down Move). As soon as they enter the break point, release the break and square up the complete group. Watch your angles on the pull down move.

Thumb over the top four face down cards showing them to a spectator saying, "four suit cards for you, will you please mix them up." Explain that he must not look at them or let anyone else get a glimpse of them.

Whilst he is mixing his four suit cards you apparently mix yours. Actually you carry out a simple overhand run shuffle as follows: run three into the left hand and throw remainder on top of them, run one into left hand and throw remainder on top, run three into left hand and throw remainder BELOW them. Remember you are only supposed to have four cards so keep them as square as possible when shuffling.

When the spectator has mixed his group to his satisfaction request him to place it face down on top of the face down group on the table, that was placed there at the beginning of the trick. Place your cards face down on top of his.

Pick up the complete packet and hold it face up in the left hand. Thumb off the pair of clubs at the face placing them face up on the table. Continue doing this with the next three pairs, so you end with four pairs in a face up row on the table — in club, diamond, spade, heart order reading from left to right. Turn the remaining cards in the left hand face down.

Thumb off the two top cards from the left hand and drop them face down on the top of the face up club pair, and continue this with the remaining three pairs in the left hand, placing them respectively on the diamond, spade, and heart pairs.

Point out that the face up pairs have a strange power to influence the shuffled face down cards that are resting on them. Turn each face down pair over to show they are of the same suit as the face up pair below them.

CHIEFLY YOURSELVES

EFFECT:-

Four cards are lost in the pack and rediscovered in a surprising way. Their values are used to produce a poker hand that has unexpected contents.

PERFORMANCE:-

Run through the face up pack and remove the Ace, two, three and four of hearts, placing them face up on the table. Whilst removing these secretly get the five of hearts to the top of the pack.

Hold the pack face down in the left hand and use the right hand to arrange the four hearts in numerical order, the ace being on the face. Pick up the four hearts and push them face down into the centre of the pack, the left thumb making a convenient break for them to enter at the outer left hand corners. They must all go in together.

As the packet of four cards go into the pack push them in slightly diagonally, enabling the left little finger to get a break under the face card of the group (the Ace of Hearts) as the pack is being squared up. Cut the pack at the break point and complete the cut, retaking a break with the left little finger as the halves come together. From the point of view of the audience the four hearts have been lost in the pack.

The next sequence is based on Jack Avis's 'Spin Cut Aces' published some time ago in the original Pentagram. The right hand takes the pack from above, thumb at the near short end and the fingers at the far one, the thumb taking the break over from the left little finger. The left hand forefinger presses on the near short end of the upper half of the pack and pivots it out and round, the pivot point being the right hand second finger on the opposite short end. Once the upper half has twisted round it is allowed to fall on the palm of the left hand, the thumb of which presses on the face card of the right hand half and pushes it up and around the left hand long side of the half pack until it falls face up on the top. As the half with the ace now face up at the top is replaced on the half in the left hand, the left little finger retakes a break between the two halves.

Thumb off the Ace of Hearts and place it face up on the table. Point out that its value is one, so you will take the first card in the pack. Place this card face down on the table.

Replace the Ace of Hearts face down on the top of the pack. Give the pack a single cut at the break point and retake a break between the two halves as they come together. As you are squaring the pack after the cut, with the assistance of the right hand let one card drop from the face of the upper half to the top of the lower one, and retake the break at this point.

Repeat the Spin Cut to produce the Two of Hearts face up at the top. Place the two face up on the table and count down to the second card in the pack, placing it on top of the previous one removed. When counting to this card, count the cards onto the table.

Replace the Two of Hearts face down on top of the pack and the unwanted first card counted, on top of the two. Cut the pack at the break point, retake the break between the two halves and again drop one card from the upper half onto the lower one, retaking the break at this point.

Repeat the Spin Cut sequence to produce the Three of Hearts. Place the three face up on the table. Count down two cards onto the table and place the third one on top of the previous two placed aside from the earlier counts. Place the Three of Hearts face down on top of the pack and the two unwanted counted cards on top of the three. Cut the pack at the break point and retake the break between the two halves, dropping one card from the upper half to the lower, as usual.

Spin Cut to produce the Four of Hearts and place the four face up on the table. No need to hold a break at the centre any longer. Count down three cards onto the table, and place the fourth one on top of the three cards previously counted to. This time place the unwanted three counted cards on top of the pack FIRST, and finally the Four of Hearts face down on top of all.

Place the pack aside to the right of the table and palm the top card into the right hand. Scoop up the pile of four face down cards with the right hand adding the palmed one in this action. Square up the cards and hold them neatly squared in the left hand.

CHIEFLY YOURSELVES Roy Walton

Say that if you have been lucky the four cards will have located a good poker hand. Pause, and then say "wait a minute, a poker hand contains five cards, not four." Spread out the face down cards into a fan saying "well, they have found five."

Turn the face one of the fan face up, and place it on the table. Say "Now I wonder what four cards added to the Five of Hearts would make a good poker hand." Turn the four cards in your hand face up and lay them on top of the Five of Hearts to form a nicely displayed straight flush.

The Page boy speaks....

Vienna...what does the word Vienna mean to you? Does it conjure up images of Harry Lime or Gin and Lime? To me it meant Waltzes, Woods and wishful thinking of days gone by when the word elegance didn't mean denims studded with rhinestones. No doubt by now you will have heard that there was a F.I.S.M. Convention there. So was I.

And so was Billy McComb. We shared a room together. In fact we shared a bed together, and let me tell you he isn't the cuddly personality he portrays on stage.

A whole diary of the events will probably be listed in other magazines by now so let's look at a couple of items you may not have read about. First evening there, we went for a stroll through one of those delightful walkways they have in Vienna, traffic free, and littered with tables and chairs serviced by the adjacent cafes, and occupied in the main it seemed by beautiful young ladies. Surprise, surprise, we were just in time to see a crowd dispersing from watching a magician busking in the street. Another surprise, I knew him. Hans Wittus was the name and he hails from Germany and as soon as I mentioned that we had just missed his performance he proceeded to start another one.

Standing with his back to a shop window which was fully lit (it was around ten thirty in the evening) he opened a large canvas holdall and despite the fact that he was wearing jeans, proceeded to don top hat and tails and don't ask me why, but somehow, for a street magician, it looked right. For openers, he did a fire eating routine which was obviously designed to draw a crowd, and it did. This was followed by a very simple sponge ball routine using several ladies in the crowd, egg bag, Chinese sticks and closing with the Chinese rings. All very competently performed, taking perhaps fifteen minutes, and accompanied by patter in German with asides in English for the benefit of seven or eight English-speaking magicians in the crowd. It was the perfect opening to a week of magic, more so because it was totally unexpected. Thank you Hans.

We had been informed that there were two magicians appearing at a night club locally, the Moulin Rouge, soooooo one evening after the organised magical events had finished, the boy wonder in the company of Messrs McComb, Trevor Lewis, Paul Stone, Obie O'Brien etc. (I'm sorry if I included you in the etc.) made a bee line for the said place of entertainment which turned out to be small, circular, intimate, and with a balcony which completely encircled the room and upon which we were perched. The show started at 10.45 and finished at 2am and was a delight for all lovers of speciality acts. A glass balancing act, a hand balancing act, puppet act, trampoline act, a topless compere with the most powerful looking pair of lungs I've seen in a long time. Nice voice too. Three strippers also appeared at intervals, each one performing three times, plus our reason for being there, two magic acts.

The first actually appeared twice in the show. His first offering was small magic of the 20th Century silk, Stung, Evaporated Milk type, performed quickly and silently. His second act was his more familiar with productions of of mice, glasses of beer, trays of glasses of beer, a card castle type production of beer bottles, lota vase as a running gag and climaxed by converting a beer barrel into a very large bottannia. At the end of the act, after he had taken his applause he came back to pick up the bottannia and folded it up as he made his exit.

The other was a husband and wife act which is opened with the male half performing the Sun and Moon paper tear. Two spectators are invited up and in the course of performing the Three Cards Across they have their pockets picked. The remainder of the act consists of pocket picking in which the female half of the act also dips, which is unusual to say the least. Slick, professional and very pleasing.

Still another evening in a bierkeller in the basement of the Hilton Hotel I had the pleasure of watching a French magician, (who, coincidentally, is also a pickpocket) Gerard Majax perform thimble magic CLOSE UP. Yes, he has actually devised a thimble routine for table work. Vanishes, productions, colour changes, they are all there with a handling that is quite different to what one would normally expect from this type of magic. It was a tonic.

Auf Wiedersen Patrick Page

DENARY DECEIT

EFFECT:-

The magical powers of a ten spot card are demonstrated when it manages to draw out ten cards of the same colour from a mixed packet of cards.

PRIOR ARRANGEMENT:-

Reading from the top of the face down pack have ten red cards followed by approximately ten black cards. The exact number of black ones is not critical. Make sure that there is a ten spot in the mixed up face section of the pack.

PERFORMANCE:-

False shuffle the pack retaining the top stack in position. I recommend the overhand jog type shuffle.

Run through the pack from the face and remove a ten spot placing it face up on the table. This action gives the spectators an opportunity to see that the cards are well mixed Square up the remainder of the pack and place it face down on the table. Talk about the card you have removed having strange powers which you will now demonstrate.

Cut off about one third of the main pack, hentioning that as there is some dealing to be done you will use a small packet of cards in order not to make the trick too tedious. You will of course cut into your stack somewhere among the black cards, the exact point being inimportant.

Explain that you would like a spectator to deal the packet of cards into two heaps in a completely haphazard order. For example, he could deal two to the first heap, one to the second, three to the first then one to the second, and so on, until the packet is finished. Make sure that he understands that although he can deal out the two heaps as he wishes, the cards must be dealt singly. Demonstrate what you require of him by dealing two heaps yourself, stopping when you have dealt ten cards. Gather up the two heaps which you place on top of the packet keeping a little finger break below them.

Place the tenspot face up on top of the packet you are holding and cut at the break sending it to the centre. Hand the complete packet to a spectator and request him to commence the formation of the two heaps as previously explained. Tell him to deal out the complete group leaving the ten spot face up and dealing it to whichever heap he wishes. Point out that as he can form the two piles in any fashion he is obviously mixing the cards very thoroughly.

When he has completed the dealing pick up the pile containing the face up ten and fan them out until the ten shows up. Place the ten face up on the table by cutting off the ten and all the cards above it with the right hand. As the ten is left on the table place the remaining cards in the right hand below those in the left and get a left little finger break between the two sections.

Pick up the other pile from the table in its unsquared condition and put it on top of those in the left. As the right hand is squaring the complete packet carry out the Paul Curry 'Top Pass' from his book 'Paul Curry Presents' at the break point. This pass fits in very well as you appear to be tapping the upper section of cards on the lower one to square them up. If you do not use this particular sleight any other pass will do that cuts the packet.

Stress the mixing by the spectator before moving towards the climax of the effect. Count off ten cards from the top of the packet after first touching the face up ten spot on top of the group. Turn over the ten cards to show they are all of the same colour. The magic ten spot has drawn out ten cards of the same colour from the mixed packet. Say, "Not only has it the power to draw out ten cards of the same colour it has drawn out every card of that colour." On the last word, turn the cards remaining in your hand face up to show they are all black.

AMBITIOUS MOVIE

*This is not a trick, but an interlude to be inserted into your Ambitious Card routine. If you do not have an ambitious routine, you can use the sequence on its own as a lightweight trick.

The effect is that the spectators visually see a card travelling from the face to the top of the group of cards.

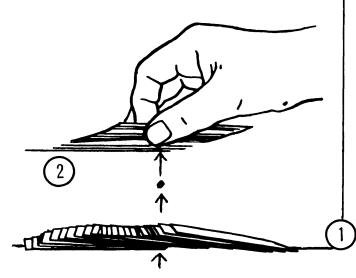

Let us assume that you have already made the top card travel from the centre of the pack to the top a few times, you now offer to let the spectators see how it gets to the top. The card being used as the ambitious one is at this moment second from the top.

Double lift to show the card is back on top and then turn it face down onto the pack again. Remove the top card and place it face down on the table explaining that you will now let the spectators see how the card travels from the centre of the pack to the top.

Cut off about half the pack with your right hand and place the remaining half aside. Grip the cards in the right hand from above the thumb being on the near long edge and the fingers on the far one, and with the aid of the left hand spread the cards out evenly in a lengthwise direction to form a spread as shown in the sketch (1). Make the spread as long as you can remembering that the cards must be supported in their spread condition with the right hand alone when the left hand is removed after getting the cards into position. The grip of the right hand does not change, the thumb remaining on the near long edge and the fingers on the far one.

Place the spread on top of the ambitious card lining it up exactly with the face card of the spread. Keep the right hand grip on the cards but reposition the right forefinger so that it rests on the back of the top card as in sketch (2). Now call attention to the thumb side of the cards and with a fairly even pace, riffle the cards with the right thumb from face to top. An illusion is created of a card moving along from face to top of the group. Lift up the long side held by the left thumb for about an inch and a half before letting the cards drop from the thumb and when you reach the top card remove it and by releasing the right hand finger grip on the outer long edge let it flip face up catching it between the thumb and forefinger of the right hand, sketch (3).

You will obviously have to adjust the viewing angle to enable the spectators to see the illusion, and I find the easiest way is to carry it out well over to the right of the table, so that the right thumb side is in fact facing the spectators.

* Five cards are selected and the assisting spectators subjected to a simple lie detector procedure which results in the performer revealing the names of their chosen cards.

TRUTH&CONSEQUENCES

PREPARATION:-

The upper section of the face down pack is arranged from the top as follows. Any five spot cards from the suit of hearts, any five spot cards from the suit of spades, any five spot cards from the suit of diamonds, any five spot cards from the suit of clubs and then any five face cards followed by the remainder of the pack. Whilst the values are not important they should be well mixed.

PERFORMANCE:-

False shuffle the pack retaining the top twenty-five cards in position. Spread the top five cards and hand them to spectator No.1. Hand the next five to spectator No.2 and so on, until five spectators have five cards each. Stress that they should keep their cards face down so that you cannot peek any of them.

Request each spectator to mix his cards, then look at the top one of his packet remembering it, and finally to mix them up again. A helpful line to prevent them from looking at any other cards in their group is to say, "Please do not look at any other cards in your packet, because I want the strongest possible impression made on your mind by the image of your card."

Take back the groups in any order placing one on top of the other and cut the complete groups a few times. You can even let one of the spectators gather them together if you so wish.

If you do a faro shuffle, straddle faro the group a few times with cuts between shuffles. The number of straddle faros you do will not affect the outcome of the trick but may affect the interest of the spectators, so I suggest you keep it to two. If you do not use a faro (there is a good description of the sleight on page 8 in Vol. One No.1 of this magazine) any false shuffle that will keep the cards in order will suffice. If you cannot do either a faro or a false shuffle just cut the packet a few times.

Deal out the 25 cards into five face up hands of cards, dealing from the face down packet in the conventional fashion as when playing a game of cards.

Explain that you are going to try an experiment in lie detection, and that spectator No.1 is to call out the five cards in the hand containing his noted one, prefacing each name with the phrase, "my card was not the."

State that you will turn away whilst the cards are being called out, and try to decide which statement is a lie.

It is a simple matter to know his card because it will be the only spot heart he calls out. Play up the lie detector angle, his voice hesitated etc., etc., before actually naming his card.

Follow a similar procedure with the remaining four spectators. No.2 spectator's card will be the only spot spade, No.3 the only spot diamond, No.4 the only spot club, and No.5 the only face card.

The SIDEWATK SHUFFLE

Routine-Handling & Presentation by FRED KAPS

£4.75 U.S.$20.00 inc. Airmail

Money back if not delighted

There's No Place Like
KEN BROOKE'S MAGIC PLACE - 145 WARDOUR STREET
LONDON. W.1. - ENGLAND
Tel: 01-734 9240

Pabular is published after the second week in every month and is printed by Instance Printers, Paddock Wood, Kent, England. Subscriptions may be obtained direct from the publishers, Pabular, P.O. Box 180, London SE12 8JJ or through many magic dealers. Price 50 pence per copy (or US $ 1.25) surface post included. Air Mail extra 12 pence (US $ 0.30) per copy or £1.45 (US $ 3.60) per year. Editorial or content copy should be sent to Fred Robinson, 1 Crescent Court, 24 Crescent Road, New Barnet, Herts, England. Advertising rates sent on request—smalls 3 pence per word (US 10 cents). Dealer enquiries welcomed. Reproductions of old prints and historical magical items by kind permission of Tony Faro.

Was a second of the second of

The Magazine of Close-up Magic Vol:3 № 2 Oct:1976

MONIKER by Eric Mason

that a ribbon was threaded through the handle of a cup, the ends were held by a spectator and the cup covered with a handkerchief. The magician on reaching underneath the handkerchief removed the cup from the ribbon after which everything could be examined. The secret was beautifully simple. An additional handle was added to the cup and it was through this extra handle that the ribbon was threaded, the real handle being covered by the fingers.

The Captain had some difficulty in finding the right kind of adhesive with which to make the handle stick temporarily to the cup and come free leaving no trace. This is no longer a problem as I have found that Bostik Blue Tak is just the job.

Instead of a cup, not readily available in bars, I use a pint beer mug. It will, of course, be necessary to get a spare handle. I was lucky to find a glass merchant who was persuaded for the price of a pint to do the necessary cutting and grinding.

To prepare put a couple of blobs of the Blue Takon the handle and stick it to the side of the mug as shown in (1), that is, at nine o'clock with the real handle at 12 o'clock. You will also need a cloth readily available.

To perform hold the mug in the right hand, thumb inside and fingers outside covering the real handle (2), standard casual beerdrinkers' hold. Held in this manner it is easy to keep the real handle hidden from the spectators on the handle side with the fingers, and it will be invisible through the glass to those on the opposite side. It would of course be clearly seen by anyone lying on the floor and for that reason it is perhaps advisable to perform the effect early in the evening. With some liquid in the glass find yourself another 'mug' and ask him if he would like to see your pet miracle. On receiving an affirmative reply drain your glass and pick up the cloth from the bar and tuck it under the right arm (the hand of which is holding the glass) - you could ask the barmaid for one if she has been suitably primed beforehand.

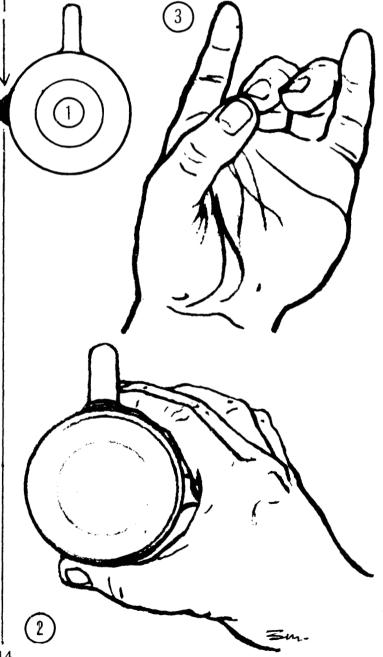

Saying that many people consider hypnosis to be the solution to the problem about to be shown, request the victim to hold his fingers like this demonstrating what you mean by bringing the tips of the thumb and second finger together as in (3). Kiss the tips of the fingers remarking that "This is going to be superb."

You now request him to part his finger and thumb for you to pass the extra handle and ask him to close them again interlocking them with the handle, but not to hold it.

You now STRESS, repeat STRESS, that you require him to keep his finger and thumbtip tightly together and on no account to let them come apart whatever you do or say. As you take the cloth from under your arm ask him to let go for a second. Remembering what you said previously he may refuse to do so, in which case you congratulate him for not getting caught. If on the other hand he does release the handle admonish him and say, "You must understand that in no circumstances must you let go."

The position is now that he has his finger and thumb around the extra handle and you are also holding the glass with the fingers shielding the real handle. The bottom of the glass is within a few inches of his nose.

You now cover the glass and both his and your hand with the cloth. Again coax him to release the handle at the same time the left hand goes beneath the cloth and presses the handle down onto his thumb. This pressure is continu until you are finally 'begging on your knees' fo him to release the handle. When you are in this position the right hand removes the mug from the handle and puts it on the floor. Still keeping the pressure on the fake handle you straighten up and slow down for effect. Reach under the cloth with your right hand and take the handle out of his fingers without touching them and ask him what has happened. "Can he still feel the glass?", Did he feel it getting lighter? Has he let go? etc and finally say "WATCH" and whip the cloth off his hand with your right hand concealing the handle in the folds. Not only have you succeeded in releasing the glass it has also completely disappeared.

The success of this trick largely depends on the spectator being convinced that by regulating the pressure of the handle on his thumb that the glass is still there after it has been spirited away.

The vanish can also be accomplished by handing the glass to a stooge standing behind you and slightly to your right. A stooge can also be used in another way by dispensing with the vanish and only performing the magical release. Tell him beforehand about the effect and that it is just a gag and that the release is obtained by the confederate parting the thumb and fingertips. You also tell him that he will be the second one to take part.

With the first spectator perform the release only, using the extra handle as before without the vanish. You now immediately repeat the effect with the stooge who believes he is doing what the first spectator did. Not only are any theories held by the first spectator destroyed, you can come back at a later date and fool the stooge by using the extra handle.

A considerable amount of fun can be obtained with this effect which has been thoroughly tested in the Blenheim Bar and has fooled more than one reader of Pabular who had obviously missed the effect with the cup and ribbon.

This effect has also been offered to our favourite dealer who had to refuse it because of the difficulty of supplying an international handle. Don't you think you are lucky?

eric mason

PABULAR CONVENTION

At long last we can announce that definite arrangements have been made to hold a two day Close-up Convention. It will be on Saturday and Sunday, 12th and 13th of March 1977 in Birmingham, this date being the centenary of the birth of the late John Ramsay. We are calling it the 'RAMSAY REUNION' and it should be an occasion to be remembered; there will be lectures, performances and of course plenty of time for informality. It will have an international emphasis and already two world class performers have promised to be present, one for the first time in Europe.

In keeping with the event we will be producing a souvenir programme that will be signed by the performers taking part, but obviously the number will have to be limited. Those who cannot be present are invited to apply now — the price will be £1.50 England and Europe, US$4.00 air mail — please enclose your remittance.

A registration form is now available and if you would like to join us write now as admission is limited. Please include a self-addressed envelope, (stamped if UK, help for postage costs appreciated if you are outside UK) and we will send details.

If interested write at once to: Fred Robinson, Technical Editor, Pabular, 1 Crescent Court, 24 Crescent Road, New Barnet, Herts, England.

THROUGH THE FOURTH DIMENSION

EFFECT:-

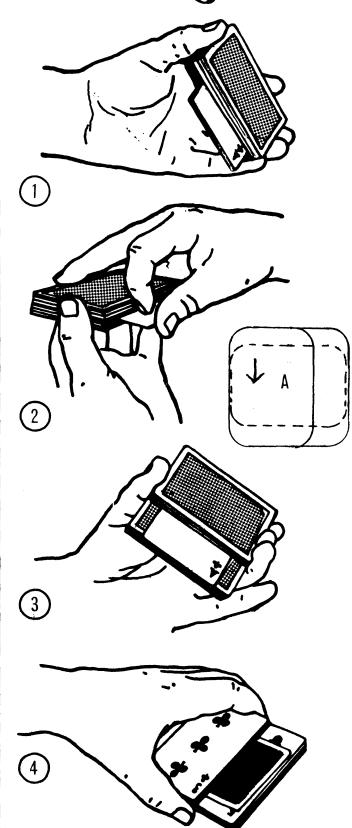

Two selected cards are returned to the pack and subsequently lost therein. The performer locates one by cutting to it and on pushing it through the pack (the fourth dimension) it changes to the second selection. The pack is then divided into two halves, and one half turned face up and riffle shuffled into the face down half. Magically the cards all turn face down with the exception of the chosen ones which remain face up.

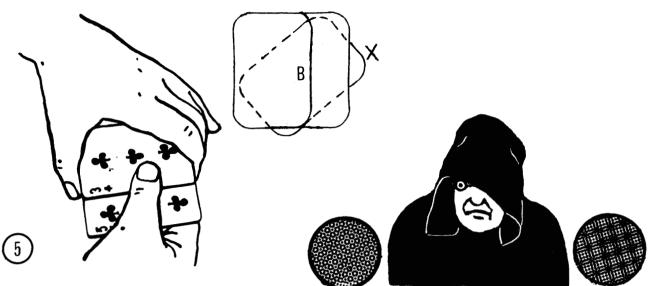

METHOD:-

Have two cards freely selected and returned to the pack and bring them to the top using whichever method you prefer. Using the double lift turn them face up on top of the pack claiming that you have located one of the chosen cards using fourth dimensional magic. When the card has been verified as one chosen hold the pack as in (1) and pick off the two top face up cards as one and push them, still face up, into the side of the face down pack. In detail you perform a mini faro with the corners of the two face up cards and the corner of the pack interlacing one card between the two face up cards. The two cards are moved to a central position in the side of the pack. (1) Note that the left forefinger is positioned on the left side of the pack preventing the two cards from becoming unsquared during the faro and subsequent movement of the cards. Once the card(s) are projecting as shown in the diagram the left forefinger moves to the outer end of the pack. The right hand now moves over the pack with the thumb on the edge of the projecting cards and the forefinger in contact with the side of the cards above the exposed face up card and resting on it. The remaining fingers of the right hand are touching the other side of the pack. In this position the right thumb levers up the projecting cards slightly upwards and moves them together with the upper half of the pack to the left into the position shown in (2). Fig.(3) shows the situation as viewed from the top with the right hand removed and half the face of the first selection still visible. The left hand is now turned over as in (4) bringing the back of the second selection into view the spectators wrongly assuming it to be the back of the first chosen card. Remove it,

david britland

and without exposing its face place it face down onto the table.

This method of secretly exchanging one card for another is original with me, and with due modesty I have named it the "David Britland Lateral Change".

With the exchanged card on the table you proclaim that it has been through the fourth dimension and invite a doubting spectator to turn it face up. It is the second selection. As this is happening the right hand approaches the pack and takes up the position as in (5) in readiness to square up the two halves, together with the first selection which is still face up and at right angles to the pack (A). The right fingertips pull back the crosswise card in the direction shown by the arrow in (B) an action which brings the corner X into view just above the crotch of the right thumb and as the two halves are closed up the projecting card is automatically forced into line with the rest of the pack making it an easy matter to square up the pack without fumbling.

Cut the pack immediately below the face up card bringing it to the bottom and you are now set to perform the reverse effect.

With the pack in the left hand the right cuts off about half the pack and as it puts it face up on the table the left hand turns palm down bringing the half it holds face up with the selected card face down on top. Pick up the other selected card from the table and insert it face down into the apparent face down half held in the left hand. Faro the face up half into the face down half appearing to give a face up face down mixture. Cut the pack and complete the cut. Ribbon spread the pack across the table revealing the two chosen cards to be the only ones face up in an otherwise face down pack. This reverse is a good clean up making use of a reversed selected card. Do give the 'Lateral Change' a try, I can assure you it looks impossible.

BILL CHINN writes

A mental item. I've always liked the effect in which the blindfolded performer tells which coloured ball each of five persons has taken from a box, and put in his pocket. I had the early apparatus method but in seeking an easy non-apparatus method I hit upon the following.

The five coloured balls are on the stand, both are unprepared. Performer blindfolded stands with back to the proceeding. Each of five spectators takes a ball and hides it in his pocket. On turning round performer accurately 'divines' the colour of the ball each spectator has in his pocket. This very effective effect has a simple secret. One of the spectators is a collaborator who always takes the same coloured ball and he cues performer — using a simple 'finger' or 'head' code — to advise him the colours the other spectators have chosen.

(If a 'foot' code was used the whole effect could be performed without removing the blindfold provided the assistant stood where the performer could see his feet from beneath the blindfold. In this method the performer would remain in one place and be approached by each person in turn and as he was 'divining' would mention all the colours in his patter and as he named the correct colour his assistant would move his foot slightly. Tech. Ed.)

One of the most effective demonstrations possible with a pack of cards is to convince card players that you possess the requisite skill to win money if you so desire.

The method about to be explained enables the performer to deal a flush, four of a kind or a full house in a poker game where three, four or five players are taking part. The spectators dictate the kind of hand and the number of players and can also chose which player is to receive the hand chosen.

It requires the pack to be arranged in the following manner:

1	14	27 — 8D	40 - AD
2 - 6C	15 - 10H	28	41 - JC
3 - AH	16	29 - AC	42 - 7D
4	17	30 - KD	43
5-9C	18 - 8S	31	44
6 – KH	19	32	45 - 10C
7	20 - 10D	33 - KC	46 - 78
8	21 - 8H	34 - 7H	47 - 98
9 — QH	22	35 - QD	48
10 — 9H	23	36	49
11	24 - 8C	37 - QC	50 - 6H
12 — JH	25 - JD	38-7C	51 - 2H
13	26	39	52 - 9D

At the numbers where no card is shown any of the following may be put at these positions:-6D-6S any of the fives, fours, threes 2C-2D-2S. The following should be written on the face of the 2H:-

You are now in position to give the method a dry run. Imagine you have been requested to deal a flush in a four handed game. With the pack towards you start to run through the pack and look at the two of hearts. At the side of FLUSH there are the numbers 3-4-5. Note the name of the card which follows the number 4 (the number of players), it is the AC. Continue to run through the pack until you find this card. In actual performance at this point you would pause and ask which player they would like to receive the chosen hand. Suppose they say No.3. Countithree cards including the AC as you push the cards from the left hand into the right in the usual manner when running through the pack. Cut the cards at this point. If you now deal out four hands player No.3 will get AC (key card) followed by the King, Queen, Jack and Ten of Clubs.

The working is simplicity itself. Find the relevant key card and cut at the point to the left of it so that it falls to the player chosen to receive the specified hand. The rest happens automatically regardless of the kind of hand or number of players the spectators request within the options you have given them. So much for the 'bare bones'. Here are some pointers which may help in getting as much as possible out of the effect. To simply take the pack from the pocket and perform it right away without first doing a couple of other tricks would not be very convincing as audiences would be apt to suspect that there was some pre-arrangement of the cards however much you tried to prove otherwise by false shuffling, cutting etc. etc. they would still have their suspicions.

Apart from switching packs, a method will be given later, it is possible to perform a couple of card tricks which do not destroy the set-up, or if it did only to an extent that it would be easily possible to restore the arrangement without arousing suspicion. If you feel equal to memorising the order of a full pack, not at all difficult if taken in easy stages, the answer may be found in

fred robinson

The Nikola Card System under the heading 'A Subtle Game' which will not be given here. It can be found in Hugards Ency. of Card Tricks which is readily available.

The switch now to be explained is not new, but the way in which it is presented leads nicely into the poker demonstration.

The stacked pack is placed in the ticket pocket of the outside coat on the right side, face of the pack towards the body. From the matching pack you have been using for earlier tricks force any card which is a duplicate of one in the stacked pack and in a position somewhere, say, from about the sixth to twelfth position. The forced card is lost in the pack which the spectator shuffled. You now hold open your pocket containing the stacked pack, fingers or pocket flap covering the opening of the ticket pocket, ask that the pack be dropped inside. Announcing that by sense of touch you will find the selected card. Showing your right hand empty you plunge it into the pocket, produce a card and put it face up on the table. It is the wrong one. You then try a couple more times but still fail to find the chosen card. Each card as it is produced is placed face up on top of the preceding one. At this point you say, "The last time I did this trick it was the fifty-second card." Continue to take cards from your pocket until finally you succeed in producing the right one. The object of these repeated failures is to produce a little fun which tends to reduce the critical faculties of the onlookers as they are being amused at your continued failure to produce the chosen card. The cards you have been producing are of course, from the stacked pack in your ticket pocket. The switch is complete when you remove the remaining cards from your ticket pocket, after producing the chosen card.

Remarking that the effect just performed depended largely upon a fine sense of touch and your difficulty was due largely to the fact that you forgot to sandpaper your fingertips this morning, explaining that card sharpers resort to this ruse which enables them to distinguish one card from another. This, you tell them, is something you will now demonstrate to show one of the methods used by cheats to win when playing poker.

Explain that one method of cheating used by card sharpers is to remember the position of certain cards as they are picked up following the previous hand. They are then able to shuffle the cards in such a way that these remembered cards can be dealt either to themselves, or to any other player as desired. Saying that it would take too long to show what happens by actually playing a game, and in any case you only play for money, a remark that some people seem to find amusing. Continue by saying, "As you do not seem anxious to play, it will be necessary for me to get the information I require by having a glance through the pack, but first tell me how many players, 5, 6 or 7, the kind of hand, royal flush, four of a kind, or a full house."

Having made their choices you look through the pack in order to 'memorise' the positions of certain cards. You then proceed to 'shuffle them' in order to get the result they have requested.

When you are supposedly memorising the positions of the cards you find the key card which has been ascertained from the two of hearts and when it comes into view enquire which player is to receive the kind of hand chosen. On being told, the cards are cut at the appropriate place in such a way that the spectators do not realise it. With part of the pack in each hand look carefully first at the cards in the right hand then at those in the left and finally at the audience remarking that "It's rather a tough one." Place the cards in the right hand UNDER those in the left hand and immediately run through the pack once more as if you are making a final check.

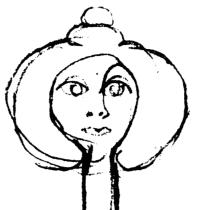

You now give the pack a few false shuffles which retain the order at the same time telling the audience you are shuffling the cards required into position. Should your false shuffling be less than perfect provided you maintain the set-up it will not matter. The spectators will assume that you are doing what you claimed you would do and if your shuffling looks a little contrived it will help to convince them that you really are shuffling the cards into position.

Having stacked the pack, deal out the hands required turning the cards falling to the chosen player face up.

The effectiveness of the demonstration depends on how well it is sold as a feat of skill. It is not difficult technically and there is nothing to remember as all the information required is on the two of hearts which can be studied at leisure as the positions of the cards are being memorised. There are only nine key cards and if they are committed to memory the necessity for having them written on the card can be dispensed with, and you could work clean.

'Come along, now. Don't be such a baby . .

ASSIGNATIC walt lees

This is my version of 'Seven Keys to Baldpate'. I like to think that it is somewhat more entertaining than most other presentations using this theme. Also, whilst being suitable for inclusion as a light interlude in a mentalist's programme, it is sufficiently magical and amusing to be performed in any magical patter act.

There is nothing new in the method, it is the presentation that matters. For this reason, I will first explain the presentation and give brief details of the working afterwards.

At some point in the programme the performer removes his wallet. As he opens it a hotel key falls out. This is a normal yale key attached to a tag which bear a room number on it. Explaining that he is supposed to leave the key at the reception desk on a board provided for the purpose when he goes out, but is reluctant to do so because it is very easy for anyone to steal keys from the board and gain access to the rooms of other residents. So saying, the performer reaches into his pocket and pulls out six or seven similar keys each with a tag attached bearing a different number. He calls attention to this fact by casually looking at, and calling out a couple of the numbers and as he calls out, say number seven remark, "That was the room with the smashing blonde" which is always good for a laugh.

The magician returns his own key to his wallet which is left in view. Then advancing to a young lady in the company he asks, "Would you like to spend a weekend in a good hotel? You can have any room you like. Just take any key."

As he says this, the performer holds the stack of keys by the tags so that the numbers are concealed and invites the young lady to pull out one of the keys. When she has done so, he asks her which room she will be sleeping in, and she tells him the number of the chosen key.

The performer then exclaims, "Well, isn't that remarkable! Of all keys you could have chosen, you have picked the one to my room." Here he removes his own key from the wallet and shows that the numbers match.

It will be apparent that there are endless opportunities for comedy in this routine. You an make jokes about the hotel and the other uests and the climax is sure of a big laugh.

As for the working it is just another application of the old label force, used so effectively by Maurice Fogel in his "Cheating the Gallows" routine.

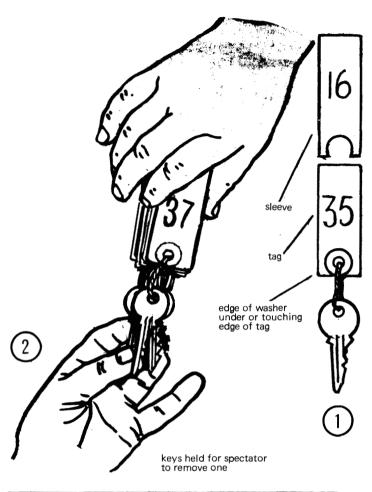

You will need six or seven similar yale keys. To each attach a tag made from stout cardboard. The exact size of these is not important, mine being the length of a playing card and about three-quarters of an inch wide. All these tags bear the same number. Each tag is provided with a cardboard sleeve which fits neatly over it and these tags bear a DIFFERENT number.

Near one end of the tag is a hole which is reinforced with a linen washer, obtainable from good stationers. The holes in the tags should be so positioned that the edge of the washer just reaches the edge of the tag and the sleeves should have cut-outs at the end so that the washers are left visible. The tags are attached to the keys with a piece of string.

Fig. One shows the key attached to the tag which is numbered 35 as are all the tags, and the sleeve numbered 16 with the cut-out at one end enabling the washer to be visible when the sleeve is covering the tag. The numbers on the sleeves, remember, must be all different, and when in position on the tags you appear to have a number of different room keys, which can be freely shown and provided they are well made can be handled by the audience.

The working is simplicity itself enabling the performer to give his whole attention to the presentation, which, as we said at the beginning is the important part. Just hold the tags squared with the keys dangling at the front (Fig. Two). Invite the lady to pull out a key, and as she does so exert a gentle pressure on the tags which will cause the tag of the selected key to be pulled out of its sleeve which is left hidden in the stack.

That is all there is to it. Your own key bearing the same number has been in the wallet all the time.

IBM (BRITISH RING) CONVENTION 1976

CLOSE-UP COMPETITION

The Close-up performer may face a variety of situations; he could be in a pub surrounded by wet tables and beer mats and a crowd, or seated at a dinner table in someone's house with two spectators. Many more conditions readily come to mind.

At Brighton, close-up performers in the competition were bedevilled by the popularity of their type of magic, namely too large an audience making the conditions too formal. It is easy to criticise but hard to see how it could be improved given the number of people involved and the facilities provided; perhaps it would be fairer to praise the organisers for their idea of having the actual judged performance done before laymen.

Having said the above, the Competition was won by Bob Gill with a good presentation of Chop Cup, sponge balls and a colour changing back routine. Second was Michael Florence, who started by floating a cigarette (well presented) and included an excellent and skilful coin assembly routine. He is a young performer who is very keen and he should do very well in the future.

Placed third was Bob Swadling. Card flourishes confidently done certainly pleased the lay audience and a neat coin penetration of a pack was effective — he gave an assured performance.

Unplaced was Doug Alker. Handicapped by lack of speech, his presentation (mime, acting, — eye contact, call it what you will) was excellent. His attempts to find a signed card provided a series of mishaps, which he punctuated by frequent alcoholic refreshment. As each card was produced and proved to be the wrong one, it was thrown on the table and seen to have a different back. The situation built up to a fine climax that will not be given away here, but the applause he received was deserved. (He did not satisfy the judges because performers were assessed on their ability 'at entertaining at a restaurant table'. The point may be valid but he certainly satisfied the conditions at Brighton).

But to many the informal sessions are an important part of the Convention, swapping yarns, moves and tricks. A couple of hours with Joe Riding of 'The Three Card Trick with Four Cards' fame during which he showed us his close up version of the Six Card Repeat which is commercial card magic at its very best. Rovi in great form round our table one evening, or was it morning, with his special brand of magic and funny stories. He was also in a generous mood offering any of his professional material to Pabular that we cared to accept. Before he could get away we had some of it on tape. David Carre, also there, gave us permission to publish the routines many of you have seen him perform. Doug Alker also gave us a couple of tricks. Geoff Ray (producing signed, selected cards nailed to blocks of wood) has some material for us as well. Understand Walt Lees was trying to find us having another trick for the magazine.

North of the border Peter Duffie and Sonny Day both doing informal magic at our table, the latter with a double lift which Roy Walton (who was not there) said should be in print. We are taking care of that. A few minutes with Trevor Lewis gave us a chance to offer our belated congratulations for winning the close-up card competition at the F.I.S.M. Congress in Vienna. He also has something for us. Apart from the fun of meeting these and others there was the added importance of being able to see much of the material we eventually publish knowing that it is practical and actually being used.

Bob Read was around looking for magicians to whom he had promised a fall-apart wristwatch when, and if, he was able to get some more made. If you were promised one, you can get in touch with him at 32 Regal Way, Kenton, Middlesex.

One regular feature of the Trade Fair was missing to the disappointment of many to whom watching magic's top salesman at work was something not to be missed. For many years he has provided free entertainment to those able to resist the purchase of a trick after a dem. We mean, of course, Ken Brooke.

Another character who has provided free entertainment in a different way is our columnist Pat Page who could always be found in the centre of a group into the wee small hours. The recent publication of his excellent 'Big Book of Magic' has apparently resulted in his expulsion from the British Ring, so next year's Convention will be the poorer for the absense of a member who was ever ready and willing to take an active part in filling any blank spots outside programmed events.

Another frequent visitor to the Conventions, Frans Biemans of Holland, usually brings with him a magical novelty and this year's offering was a puzzling finish to the well known effect in which a door key rolls over on the palm of the hand. At the conclusion he causes the ward, that part of the key which actually goes into the lock, to turn leaving the rest of the key stationary ending with handle at right angles to the ward. This happens on the hand of a spectator who can then examine it.

We almost forgot to mention that we had a stall and back numbers were in demand which seems to prove something.

THE INTERNATIONAL MAGAZINE Now in its 4th year.

MAKE SURE EACH ISSUE IS SENT TO YOU REGULARLY. SEND TODAY ONLY £2.00 ($ 6.00) FOR ONE YEAR (SIX) ISSUES SENT POST FREE TO ANYWHERE IN THE WORLD.

32 glossy pages in each issue.

THE INTERNATIONAL MAGIC STUDIO, (RON MACMILLAN) 89 CLERKENWELL ROAD, HOLBORN, LONDON, E.C.1.

CLOSE UP, FRENCH STYLE by Bernard Bilis published by Magic Inc., Chicago.

Like many other activities, close up magic in France does not differ greatly either in methods or performance from those of Britain or America. If you have mastered the triple lift, the tilt move and the Hammond count you will find the effects in this 52 page book with soft boards and excellent photographic illustrations within your scope.

There are nine effects in all and are concerned either with cards or coins or both, one of which uses two coins only which covered one under each hand. The one under the right hand disappears and joins the one under the left hand.

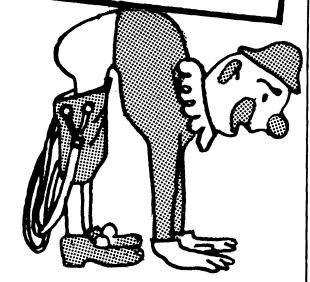

Of the card effects proper, four blue-backed Jokers are shown. Two of them change to red backs, and some transpositions take place and to conclude the backs return to their original colour.

A version of Everywhere and Nowhere. A red-backed Joker is inserted into a blue-backed pack by a spectator and the cards on either side are found to be two previously selected ones. Performer places a Chinese coin on top of a face down pack, on waving his hands above a previous selection appears face up beneath the coin.

A vanished coin is found in the centre of a pack immediately above a selected card. Four Jokers and a Queen of Spades are shown; the latter is placed face down onto a table. The Jokers change to Queens with different backs and the Queen changes to a Joker. An assembly of four coins under a card uses some new moves to achieve this classic effect. In addition to the necessary skill some double facers and a little patience to 'gimmick' a card are also needed. Well worth buying if this kind of magic is your scene.

FRED ROBINSON

WANTED: Photographs of professional magicians. Will buy, exchange, or accept presents gleefully.
PATRICK PAGE
130 LOMOND GROVE
LONDON S.E.5.

The Page boy speaks....

And yet another British Ring, International Brotherhood of Magicians Annual Convention is over. This year, Brighton. It's the first convention I've missed for quite a few years. Missed isn't the right word because I did manage to get there on Saturday afternoon to have a quick look around the dealers. I didn't have time to study all of their wares, but they were all smiling, and you know what they say about smiling dealers. They have either got your money or are just about to take it from you. I know — I've spent the larger part of my adult life smiling.

My reason for being in Brighton on that Saturday was that I was doing a date that evening at a local club. So I thought I'd kill three birds with one holdout, the dealers, the Gall Show and the date. No that wasn't a misprint. It wasn't meant to read Gala Show. There were two shows and I had to catch the earlier one. The second show is usually sold out to the conventioneers and the earlier one is mainly local townsfolk. I wonder what they thought of it. There were, of course, some good things, but overall it lacked spark. Of the two shows in Brighton that night I liked my one best.

There was one other happening which took place at the Brighton Convention which was unusual. The general committee had a meeting. I suppose they have meetings at all the conventions but this one was a little different in that at least one of the subjects for consideration was me. This was quite an honour in that I doubt if the general committee had ever considered me before. I have no idea how the debate went as I was not present but they did reach a decisionthey expelled me.

Now tell the truth, do you know anyone who has ever been expelled from the I.B.M. for anything other than perhaps not paying his annual subscription? There can't be many, can there? Are there enough to start a magic club? A sort of Breakaway Wand Wielders Association. Could we call it the Institute for Destitute Prestidigitutes? Did the general committee have a reason for coming to this decision? But of course.....it's that dreaded bogeyman of a word......EXPOSURE......I was guilty ofEXPOSURE.......Would you like to hear about it? Of course you would. It isn't everyday you get to talk to someone who has been expelled from the I.B.M. for.....here we go again.....EXPOSURE.

You see I have written an excellent book of magic (sorry about that) called The Big Book of Magic and several national newspapers reproduced several of the items in the book. This, in the language of the I.B.M. is called....... EXPOSURE— and quite rightly too. I was asked to explain why this happened, I did, and my explanation was rejected by the general committeeeeeee who passed a resolutioooooon deciding to expel me, which they promptly did. So there.

At least I think that's the full story. Not being at the meeting I'm not too sure. You see, one of the other points was that the general committee was concerned at the exposure of, and I quote, "advanced magical secrets in this book" unquote. I never knew it was against the rules to write a magic book. Rules don't say it's against the rules to write a magic book. Maybe it's a new rule, although rules usually say what rules are as a rule. Several members of the committee have written magic books, very good ones too. Maybe the rules are just for the members and not for the committee. They'll just have to have another meeting to get a ruling on it.

The Council of the Magic Circle, also required an explanation of my behaviour. They accepted my explanation. I wonder if that makes the committee of the I.B.M. more pure than the Council of the M.C. I wonder. It's all over now. I have been cast into the wilderness, no longer able to announce to the world at large that I am no longer a member of the world's largest magical organisation. A pity. Because they used to like to hear me say that I was.

And with those words we say a fond farewell to the I.B.M. the home of everything that is good in this evil world of magic.

Goodbye.

PATRICK PAGE (I.B.M. Expelled)

Pabular is published after the second week in every month and is printed by Instance Printers, Paddock Wood, Kent, England. Subscriptions may be obtained direct from the publishers, Pabular, P.O. Box 180, London SE12 8JJ or through many magic dealers. Price 50 pence per copy (or US $ 1.25) surface post included. Air Mail extra 12 pence (US $ 0.30) per copy or £1.45 (US $ 3.60) per year. Editorial or content copy should be sent to Fred Robinson, 1 Crescent Court, 24 Crescent Road, New Barnet, Herts, England. Advertising rates sent on request—smalls 3 pence per word (US 10 cents). Dealer enquiries welcomed. Reproductions of old prints and historical magical items by kind permission of Tony Faro.

Vol. 3 Nº 3 Nov. 1976

Over the past ten years I have performed this routine for magic groups at conventions both here in the U.S. and England. It requires no preparation to speak of, and can be performed anywhere regardless of conditions. The only properties required are a fairly large handkerchief, four coins, I use half dollars, and an extra large coin of which there are several different kinds now available. Personally I use a Chinese one given to me by Charlie Miller which is twice the size of an American silver dollar.

> To prepare put two half dollars into the left side coat pocket, and the other two halves, the large coin and the handkerchief into the right hand coat pocket.

> > larry jennings

COINS AND HANDKERCHIEF by Larry Jennings

Remarking that you will require a handkerchief for this trick both hands go into the pockets in search of it. The right hand comes out with the handkerchief plus the two half dollars finger palmed and the left also comes out with the two halves similarly palmed. You are now set to produce the four coins from the handkerchief using a well known method. Here is a brief description for the benefit of the uninitiated.

The right hand drapes the handkerchief over the left hand covering it. The left thumb tip pushes one of the finger palmed coins to the tips of the fingers. The right thumb and fingers grasp the coin through the handerchief and takes both clear away from the left hand which is held in a position so that its remaining finger palmed coin is not seen.

The right hand is now holding the coin through the approximate centre of the handker-chief.

To produce the coin the right hand turns over and handkerchief falls over the hand covering it completely and exposing the coin which is taken with the left hand and placed onto the hand of a spectator. The second coin is produced in like manner but in reverse. This time the right thumb pushes up the coin to the finger tips and the left hand removes the handkerchief with coin beneath it and turns over causing the appearance of the coin, which is taken by the right hand and placed with the other coin onto the spectators hand. The third and fourth coins are produced repeating the process and putting them onto the spectator's hand.

In the second phase of the routine the four coins are caused to penetrate the handkerchief. Firstly all together and then one at a time.

Two spectators are asked to assist by holding the handkerchief by the corners forming a makeshift table on which the four coins are dropped. Having duly amazed the audience by the production of the four coins you pull back your sleeves and by your manner convey the idea that they are about to see an even greater miracle.

Pick up the four coins and hold them evenly stacked by the edges between the right thumb and fingers in the French drop position. The left hand apparently takes the coins but by using the aforementioned sleight they are retained in the right hand which allows them to fall onto its fingers with a clinking sound. The move should be made so that the spectators misconstrue the sound as coming from the coins taken in the left hand. The right hand containing the coins goes beneath the handkerchief and the closed left hand above. Both hands shake together, and if the left is held in loose fist the spectators will accept that the noise comes from that point, when it is, of course, made by the coins in the right hand. The left hand now flattens out and turns over showing it to be empty as the right emerges from beneath with the four coins on its open palm having apparently penetrated the handkerchief. Pour the coins onto the handkerchief and enquire if they would like to see that again, a remark which gets a little laugh. Say, "Perhaps that was a little too fast for you - I will try and do it one at a time." As you make this remark pick up the coins one at a time with the right fingers and place them onto the palm up left hand as follows. The first one goes on the third and fourth fingers and the remaining three overlapping towards the palm. As the last one is placed onto the hand the first one is stolen by the right third and fourth fingers in the back pinch position which enables the right hand to go under the handkerchief palm upwards and obviously empty. (As far as I am aware the above move first appeared in the original Stars of Magic series described by Ross Bertram. Latterly it is more widely known as the 'Goshman pinch'). This move does require some cover and this is provided both with the closed left fist as it goes over to the centre of the handkerchief and by moving the body forward. Together, these two actions obviate any chance of the back pinched coin being seen. With the closed left hand holding three coins above the handkerchief (the audience believe four) and the right below with one coin in the back pinch position, pause a moment, and then turn the left hand over and open it show the three coins. The right hand which has worked the coin from the back pinch position into the hand proper now comes from under the handkerchief with the missing coin on its open palm. The three coins in the left hand are now poured onto the handkerchief and the one in the right tossed onto the handkerchief a little distance away and to the right of the three. It is quite possible to keep it separate from the others if the handkerchief is held fairly taut.

The left hand now picks up the three coins singly and puts them onto the outstretched right hand the first going into the purse palm position, (Fig 1), and the others on top of it. The right hand now turns over, appears to drop all three coins into the left hand, which immediately closes. Actually only two coins leave the hand, the purse palmed one being retained. The right hand, palm downwards moves over the remaining coin on the handkerchief and draws it towards the edge and as it reaches that position the right thumb goes beneath and picks it up. The right hand goes under the handkerchief palm down, and as soon as it is out of sight back pinches the coin just removed from the handkerchief. Look at the audience and ask, "How many coins in the right hand?" and without waiting for a reply, immediately bring the hand back into view showing one coin on its open palm, the one previously purse palmed. The right hand moves back beneath the handkerchief and works the back pinched coin to the finger tips, where it is held so that when released it will fall with a 'clink' onto the other coin.

You are now ready to make the second penetration. Holding the left hand in a loose fist shake it causing the coins to jingle, and bring it onto the handkerchief and open it out flat. Simultaneously, the coin at the right fingertips is released and falls onto the other coin making the familiar clinking sound. Remove the left hand showing two coins on the centre of the handkerchief, and bring out the right hand from beneath showing two coins on its open palm, which are then dropped onto the handkerchief.

Both hands each pick up two coins in readiness for the third penetration.

The hands hold the coins in a loose fist. You now create suspicion that you have transferred a coin from one hand to the other by bringing the hands into contact causing the coins to clink. Look at the audience and say, "I know, you think I have stolen one of the coins already." Open the left hand to show you still have two coins in it. In the meantime you have prepared for the Tenkai penny pinch move by getting one of the coins in the right hand into the back clip position between the third and little fingers. The Tenkai move is described in detail in Bobo's 'Coin Magic'. Briefly, the object of the sleight is to secretly pass one of the coins from the left hand into the right, as you fairly show each hand to contain two coins.

The position is now that you have one coin in the closed left hand and two on the open right hand with another back clipped between the third and fourth fingers.

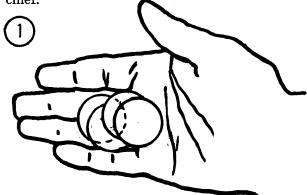

The right hand palm uppermost moves under the handkerchief and the back pinched coin brought to the tips of fingers as before. The loosely closed left hand is held above the handkerchief and shakes. Simultaneously secretly shake the right one creating the illusion that there are still two coins in the left hand. Again flatten the left hand on the handkerchief and let the coin at the right fingertips fall onto the other two coins. Remove the left hand showing only one coin on the handkerchief. Pick the coin up with the left hand getting it into position at the heel of the palm in readiness for the Han Peng Chien move. The right hand comes from under the handkerchief displaying the three coins one of which is in the classic palm position. These three coins are now apparently dropped onto the handkerchief, but the one on the classic palm position is retained and it is the one in the left hand which is released and let fall to join the other two. The regular Han Peng Chien move but done on the handkerchief.

The right hand with palmed coin picks up the three from the handkerchief and goes under, and the closed empty left hand above its knuckles touching the fabric. The right hand feeds one of its coins into the left fist where it is literally held between the tips of the fingers and the heel of the palm through the handkerchief.

Do not push the coin too far into the left fist as it will cause the handkerchief to wrinkle.

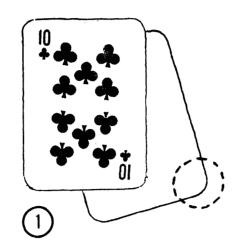

Say, "How many coins here" as you bring out the right hand from under the handkerchief showing the three coins on its open palm. Close the hand showing it from all sides. Open the hand again making it obvious that it contains only three coins. Right hand goes beneath the handkerchief with the three coins visible on its palm, and the left releases the coin it is holding through the handkerchief letting it fall onto those in the right hand making the familiar clinking sound. Show the left hand empty and bring out the right from under the handkerchief with the four coins on its open palm. Toss them onto the handkerchief.

You now have magically produced four coins and caused them to pass through the hand-kerchief. We now come to the finale.

The left hand picks up the four coins and moves under the handkerchief. The right hand also goes under and brings out one of the coins, displays it, and appears to place it in the right side coat pocket, but actually palms it and goes under the handkerchief and brings out another coin, actually the same one, which is also placed in the pocket and palmed out again. Repeat until three coins have been put into the coat pocket. You now say "How many coins does that leave in the left hand?" at the same time palming the large coin. They of course say 'one'. Bring out the left hand showing it contains three. You now say "I'll do that again for you." Left hand again goes under followed by the right with the large coin palmed and leaving it in the left hand comes from under with one of the half dollars which is shown and placed cleanly into the pocket. Repeat with the other two half dollars and ask "How many now in the left hand?" Whatever the answer grasp the large coin from above with the right hand through the handkerchief and request that the corners of the handkerchief be released. Turn over the right hand revealing the large coin which makes a fitting climax to the routine.

DOUBLE-X-POSURE

steven kuske

In this effect one of the two black tens first loses its spots and then changes to a chosen picture card.

It is based on 'Nick's Push Thru', Ken Krensel's 'Incredible Card Tunnel' and a similar Garcia effect, but it is sufficiently different both in method and effect to stand on its own.

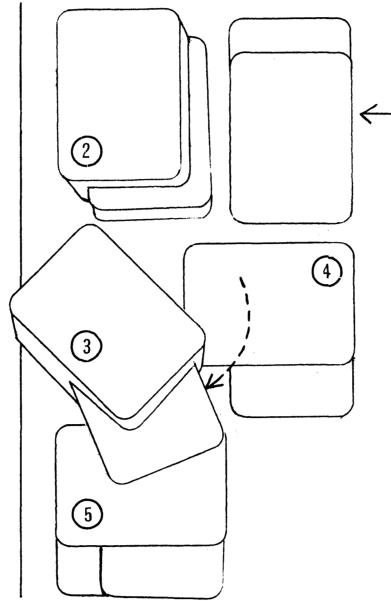

First remove the ten of clubs and the ten of spades from the pack and at the same time secretly cut the ace of hearts to the top of the pack.

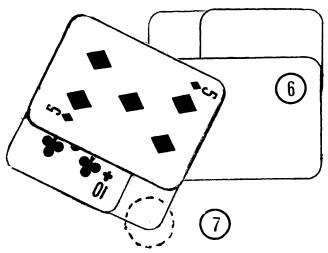

Display the two tens explaining that they will serve as photographic paper. Place them face down onto the table switching one of them for the ace of hearts which is on top of the pack using your favourite method. (A method for switching cards suitable for this effect can be found in this issue entitled 'Double Lift Drop Switch').

Turn the pack face up and fan or spread the cards taking care not to expose the 'switched ten spot and have a spectator indicate any court card they see. Close up the spread taking a little finger break below the chosen card.

As you turn the pack face down execute the invisible turnover pass bringing the chosen card, say queen of spades, to the top of the pack and get a little finger break beneath it.

Pick up the ace of hearts without showing its face as spectators believe it to be a black ten, and pretend to rub the spots off it. Place it face down on top of the black ten and explain that it is blank and also that it cannot be shown as it is now light sensitive. This remark will be greeted with an expression of disbelief so you say, "Maybe I can let you have a quick peek." Display them momentarily as in (Fig.1) keeping the index of the ace of hearts covered with the fingers, but exposing as much of the blank area as possible.

Turn both cards face down and drop them on top of the pack to square them, adding the Queen of Spades as you do so. Right hand removes the three cards, and the left puts the rest of the pack face down onto the table. The top card of the packet, the ace of hearts, is now placed on the bottom of the packet. Do likewise with the new top card.

Openly slide back the queen of spades and secretly do the same with the black ten. This leaves the ace of hearts outjogged. Care must be taken at this point not to expose that you have an extra card. Left hand now picks up the pack from the table and holds it in the dealing position and creates a break in the right side into which the packet is inserted (Fig2).

The packet is now turned clockwise leaving the ace of hearts within the pack. The outjog makes this possible (Fig.3). Align the packet at right angles to the pack and flush at the right end (Fig.4). Slide the bottom card, the black ten, to the left (Fig.5). Push them through carefully and a plunger action will occur, pushing out the ace of hearts. All look fair (Fig.6). Turn the pack face up and pull the group out as far as possible without exposing the index of the ace of hearts (Fig.7).

The audience are now invited to watch what happens when you push the blank through the photo machine. Push the group through the pack and when they appear the other side the blank card has changed to their chosen queen of spades. Carefully remove it and the black ten singly to avoid the plunger effect. The effect is over and you are clean.

When you require something to bring a little comic relief to your coin routine or something to use when asked to do a trick and the situation calls for something short and snappy, the following will fill the bill.

You will need a rubber spider, or failing that a beetle or small snake which can be purchased from your local toy shop. Assuming you have the spider, put it in your outside coat pocket on the right side.

Borrow a coin and hold it in the left hand in the French drop position i.e. by the edge between the thumb and finger tips. Apparently take it with the right hand, but actually letting it fall onto the curved fingers of the left hand. The empty right hand seemingly puts the coin into the pocket. The left hand reproduces the coin from wherever pleases you, at the same time the right hand comes out of the pocket with the rubber spider concealed, and immediately takes the coin from the left hand.

The coin is then thrown onto the open left hand and again picked up with the right fingers and in appearing to repeat the previous action perform the throw switch, retaining the coin in the right fingers and releasing the spider. The sleight does not have to be technically perfect as the whole attention of the spectators will be on the spider as it lands on your hand, particularly if you shout out and bounce it up and down.

An alternative presentation would be to get a spectator to assist you by holding out their hand palm upwards. Do the French drop and steal the spider as before and reproduce the coin from under the spectator's hand. Tell the spectator you are now going to test their reaction by throwing the coin onto his outstretched palm and he must as soon as he feels the coin on his hand bring his other hand down on it trapping it between his palms. Needless to say you do the throw change and it is the spider he succeeds in catching. The effectiveness of this latter method is considerably increased if your helper is a lady as her reaction is certain to be more startling than that of a mere male.

During the past few weeks it has been our pleasure to be present and enjoy some of the finest close-up magic anyone could ever wish to see.

It began at the BBC TV Centre with the recording of the Michael Parkinson chat show due to go out before the end of the year. His guests on this occasion being Fred Kaps performing on stage, and also close-up during the chat, performing one trick very slowly when it was suggested that the 'quickness of the hand' was one of the magician's secrets. Great. It was now the turn of Ricky Jay whose name will appear in the next edition of the Guinness Book of Records having thrown a playing card 168 feet, a record only likely to be beaten by frustrated imitators of this and his other card magic using a full pack. Completely different, both in style and appearance from Fred Kaps his act consisted of throwing cards and tricks with them, performing in a casual, off-handed manner which belied the considerable technical skill required to produce the effects.

Richiardi Junior performed illusions which made it a complete and satisfying magical treat which was climaxed with a combined effort by the three magicians with Michael Parkinson being stretched to his full capacity. Mrs Parkinson was not completely fooled by the latter being heard to exclaim that a certain visible part of the victims anatomy did not belong to her husband.

The production was in the hands of John Fisher and his first time effort has every sign of being a winner. He appeared later to pay tribute to Ali Bongo and Ken Brooke for their help and also mentioned that the spirit of camaraderie between the performers had greatly impressed all involved in the production. Nice to know.

The next event was not an act or a show, advertised as 'AN AFTERNOON with RICKY JAY' took place at the Concert Artist's Club. Arranged by Ken Brooke who before introducing the artist presented John Fisher with a copy of Raymond Toole Stutt's 'A Bibliography of English Conjuring 1581—1876' which had been signed by all present. This most definitive book yet published on the subject was a fitting present for the recipient who has been instrumental in promoting magic in the best possible way.

Ricky Jay then emerged from a side door and made his way to a table. Of the many effects performed none were explained, other than the technique of card throwing. This was at the request of Jack Avis who caught the top change he missed at the Parkinson recording. For those who came to learn 'secrets' of tricks may have been somewhat disappointed but for those whose interest in magic goes a little deeper had plenty to think about. Before performing one effect we were warned he was about to do something unprofessional. The trick was a gambling routine in which a number of winning hands were dealt and the routine appeared to be impromptu and the general impression created was that he could produce a winning hand at request for any of the popular card games. To us it seemed that little could be done to improve it, but Ricky claimed he needed another year before it would be ready for public performance. How many of us, having learned the technical requirements and patter for a trick consider that its presentation requires a further twelve months study? On being asked, Fred Kaps agreed that he would also spend this amount of time perfecting an effect. The realisation that this one fact alone was an essential ingredient in becoming a top class performer could prove invaluable to those of us who decide to set upon it. Apart from the above card routine a signed card to purse effect and the gypsy thread accompanied with 'Pakastani' patter was performed. The other tricks can be seen on the Parkinson show. We gathered that he performs professionally anywhere under every conceivable condition - from behind bars to Rock Concerts before audiences of over four thousand. He doubts the qualifications of many who give lectures after a couple of years in magic and deplores the trend in his own country of magic being so freely available where many of the latest effects are being mass produced and their sales promotion being angled to the general public. We almost forgot to mention he wears his hair long and has a beard to match. Not a particularly important piece of information, but we thought you would like to know that he claims that his act at Rock Concerts and the like would be just as acceptable without it.

The Magic Place has now been in existance for ten years. To mark this milestone in magic John Fisher and Paul Stone decided that it should not be allowed to pass without some recognition. They circulated their idea and as a result made a presentation to the directors of this firm following the Scott York lecture. Frank was presented with a handsome decanter and something with which to fill it, and Ken with a record token for £150. We of Pabular had also been thinking in similar vein, Editor Nick Bolton on behalf of its staff, contributors and subscribers presented each with a suitably engraved glass. Here's to the next ten years.

Tunbridge Wells is an interesting town in many ways, but it is not particularly noted for the entertainment it provides after nightfall. However, Friday is an exception. At the Chalet Rosa you can dine on exotic Swiss and Continental specialities, dance to music played on quadrophonic equipment, and Brian Sinclair, London's leading close-up conjurer, will astound you with his wizardry at your own table.

The chances of seeing magic performed live do not occur often and the opportunities for seeing close-up magic at the table, outside the magic scene, are almost non-existent. There being nothing of magical interest happening in London, Bob Haines on his twenty-sixth visit to this country suggested we make a trip to Tunbridge Wells.

The restaurant is the top place in the area for an evening out and we found the food excellent, the service good and the atmosphere friendly. Having savoured all that we were ready for the magic.

As the diners reach the coffee stage Brian Sinclair approaches the table. He is a bearded, burly fellow well on the right side of middle age, whatever that is. Opening with the sponge balls enables him to make immediate contact with the patrons at the same time involving them in the action and getting his first laugh. His second trick is the best of the lot, getting seated at the table. (We will not tell you how he manages this because you have to see it happen to believe it). The rest of the tricks you all know and they include Chop Cup, Coins through the Table, Ringed, Fido, Card in the Wallet, Egg Bag, Devano Rising Cards etc., etc.

As we watched him pass from table to table it was evident from the laughter and applause that everyone was having a good time, which is what performing magic for the general public is all about. To achieve this kind of success the ability to handle people is far more important than being technically skilful or possessing apparatus; neither of these will enable you to approach a table in a proper manner, present your magic in a way that will interest people who do not necessarily like magic, or to deal with that ever-present awkward customer who has boasted to his friends that he will catch you out.

Nearly a year working the tables at the ChaletArosahas enabled Brian to learn through experience the demands of this kind of work, demands undreampt

of by those of us whose close-up efforts have been confined to family parties and magic clubs.

Anyone having aspirations in this direction will find that a visit to the Chalet Arosa any Friday evening to be both enlightening and enjoyable.

Should you get the opportunity, arrive early and discreetly make yourself known to Brian who will make you welcome. Please remember that it would be extremely unethical to bring out your own pack of cards and do your own party piece. It would also be unadvisable. Brian is a big fellow and the way out is down a long flight of steps. Far better to sit back, watch for the misdirection which you will miss anyway, forget about the secret of 'how the trick is done' and try and discover what makes the people enjoy his performance.

As we were leaving Bob Haines sought out the manager and told him how much he had enjoyed the evening, adding that he was lucky being able to obtain the services of such a good magician. That way, everyone goes home happy.

DOUBLE LIFT DROP SWITCH

If we have managed to get this move into the same issue as Steven Kuske's effect you will not have been wasting your time looking for it.

The principle is very simple and must have been thought of before, though no-one to whom it has been shown claimed they had thought of it previously makes the sleight unique, in one respect at least.

In the effect mentioned it requires that the spectators should believe that the two black tens are on the table when in fact one is the ace of hearts.

When starting this effect instead of taking the two black tens from the pack and then switching one of them for the ace of hearts, try, this. Spread out the cards faces towards you, find the ace of hearts and the two black tens and bring all three to the back with the ace between the two black tens. When the pack is turned face down the top three cards will read black ten, ace of hearts and the other black ten.

Hold the pack in the left hand in the usual position for secretly counting cards using the left thumb. It is a similar position to the one adopted to find a corner short. This explanation should make clear what is required and relieve us of the necessity of providing one of those sketches which tend to make some readers flip over the page.

The left thumb releases the top card which is taken with the right hand, fingers at the outer end and thumb at the inner, and displayed to the audience. Still retaining the card in the same position, the right hand moves down and apparently takes a second card and displays it in the same manner, but this time the left thumb releases two cards and the right takes them as one. Thus you have shown two black tens as the two top cards. The true second card, the ace of hearts is concealed between the two tens. Drop the three cards back on top of the pack whilst you brush the dust off your mat, or straighten it, or perform any other action which gives a reason for not placing the two (?) cards directly onto the table. Deal the top two cards singly onto the table and proceed with the effect as described.

fred robinson

"THE GREAT WIZARD OF THE NORTH,"

Performing his celebrated trick of

POURING FOUR DIFFERENT LIQUIDS FROM ONE BOTTLE

Here is a variation of the idea which can be used in the Dunbury Delusion effect wherein it is required that the spectators believe that their chosen card is one of three taken from the pack.

The card chosen is returned to the pack and brought fourth from the top by whatever means you have at your command and hold the pack as explained before. This time you take off a double when removing and showing the first card, and repeat when taking the second. When you display the latter it will be recognised as the chosen one. You then appear to remove a third card and show it, but what you really do is to leave the chosen card on the top of the pack and show the card which was concealed behind it, which was originally the third card.

A further variation is to cause the chosen card to disappear completely leaving only two cards. To achieve this take a single card fairly and then a double and when appearing to take the third leave the one just shown on top of the pack and show the card which was concealed behind it. The two cards, which the spectators believe to be three including the chosen one are kept squared and put onto the table, or in your own or someone elses outer breast pocket. In some respects it has a marginally stronger effect for the card to disappear than for it to change into another card.

Loading In After A Riffle will be found to be an extremely natural method with which one or more cards can be loaded onto a packet of cards on the table at which you are seated. It is a fairly simple matter to drop a few cards from the regular palm on to a pile already on the table when standing, but when seated it always seems to be an awkward operation unless it happens to be a low coffee table.

Let us suppose it is required to load on to the pack ten cards when performing the Nap Hand effect, and the cards are on the lap or behind the knee. The cards are shuffled by one of the spectators and finally riffle shuffle them yourself. You then cut off the top half putting them on the table beyond the bottom half. If there is a spectator on your right let your right hand remain in this forward position acting as a mask and preventing the palmed cards from being seen.

The cards are copped and held in the left hand, gripped at one narrow end near the corner by the fold of flesh in the thumb joint and the palm as shown in the diagram. With the cards in this position the hand rests at the edge of the table giving complete freedom of movement to the fingers with the cards out of sight below the edge of the table.

To load the cards the left hand moves over the original bottom half of the pack and in the act of picking it up the palmed cards are dropped as they line up with the bottom half which is then put on the other half completing the cut.

In adding a single card to a small packet of cards I find it easier to add it to the bottom of the packet during the act of turning the packet over if the move of turning is started from the left front corner of the packet.

The move can be used to add a number of cards to the bottom of the pack, or under an empty card case as you turn it over to reveal a selection.

No doubt this method of adding a card or cards will be found of use in many effects and being more open and less 'stilted' than using the conventional palm will, I hope, be welcomed by readers of this magazine

The Page boy speaks....

First off, let me start with an apology. For what? you may ask. Answer, several things. In fact some time ago, it seems a long long time ago, I asked for readers of this magazine to give me some answers to a couple of problems I posed. Strictly speaking I would have been happy with one perfect answer for each. Quite a number of people wrote in, and just in case you have forgotten or become a new reader let me remind you of the problems. One was to have a card selected and returned to the deck, which is then ribbon spread on the table. The card is not there but one pulls back one's sleeve and lo and behold there is the card tucked neatly up it. A number of people came up with ideas and I think Fred Robinson even published one but none of them quite came up to scratch as far as I was concerned. And as I am the sole judge and jury that is my decision, so there. Nevertheless some of them were quite interesting.

The other problem was how to produce a glass of wine from under a cup as in the Cups and Balls. Again, one or two people came up with ideas and yet again nothing that I considered to be the final answer. Perhaps in the next issue we will cover some of these answers and see if perhaps someone can improve upon them. And so let me apologise again to those who wrote to me, in particular to George Blake (who sent me a long letter) and Alf Moore, and several others.

Funny things seen on T.V. Department: Yesterday afternoon crouched comfortably in front of my T.V. set enjoying one of my favourite T.V. characters, one 'Bugs Bunny' I was amazed at one line of dialogue in the script. Briefly Bugs was a music hall-cum-vaudeville artist who did anything from tap dancing to juggling. At one point he performed the Sawing in Half effect, using as his assistant, a duck. As the duck jumped into the box before being sawn in half he yells "Aw gee, that old trick! All that happens is that they stick a pair of false feet out of one end and double up in the other!" Well?

Within a week or two we will be entering the year 1977. I don't know what this will mean to you, it doesn't mean very much to me, but to a large section of the British public it will mean Jubilee Year. For those of you who don't know this means that our Monarch Queen Elizabeth of England (maybe I should have said Britain) has reigned on the throne for 25 years. June 7th is the official date and I do know that many childrens entertainers are very heavily booked around this time. They will have a field day. I do remember the Coronation Year in 1953 when a similar thing happened. (Just in case our foreign readers have worked out that 53 from 77 is only 24 let me point out that she acceded to the throne in 1952 — she was crowned in 1953).

In terms of close-up magic I wonder if any of our readers are going to come up with magic effects specifically for the Jubilee Year or the Jubilee thought. One effect that does come to mind is an old effect that was marketed by Davenports many years ago, certainly in the thirties, and then was revived later in the fifties, called Penny to Sovereign. This, of course, would be a good effect to perform next year and there are no doubt others but I just can't think of them — perhaps some of our readers can come up with some ideas. And remember, we are talking close-up.

Patrick Page

It is always desirable to be able to promote one's name during the course of an effect. The following is a brief bit of close-up mentalism, seemingly impromptu and off-the-cuff, which allows you to leave the spectator with a commercial "plug" for yourself. There is nothing new in technique here — it is the presentation that is of interest.

Psychini the mentalist has been approached by an interested party, who would like to see a demonstration of the former's abilities. "Fine." replies the mystic, who proceeds to take a pocket writing pad and pen from his pocket. As he writes on the pad, he explains, "What I am committing into writing has some bearing on a choice you will be making in the next few moments. It is my intention to mentally control your response to a simple question I will ask. You may take your time in answering, and you may even change your mind before finally deciding — but I assure you that this paper will give proof that your final choice was not the product of your own free will, but a specifically guided and controlled choice....controlled by my will." As he concludes this statement, he finishes with his writing. Tearing the sheet from the pad, he folds the paper into a small packet, and places it on the table.

"There — I've committed myself. Now for your question. I want you to consider the numbers from one to six. Take your time, but decide on one of those numbers. Then look me straight in the eye, and state your chosen number." The spectator thinks for a moment, and calls out "four".

The performer invites the spectator to open the paper. On it is the following:

"The Great Psychini is:

1. Remarkable

4. YOUR CHOICE

2. Unusual

5. Uncanny

3. Fascinating

6. Entertaining"

The method is simplicity in itself. In the performer's pocket is a simple five-billet index loaded with duplicate lists. Each list has been re-ordered so that the phrase "YOUR CHOICE" appears at a different number — one, two, three, five, and six. During the presentation, the performer writes the #4 list on the pad, and folds that slip to resemble the pre-written billets in the index. Should the spectator name "four", no further action is necessary. For any of the other choices, he must of course remove the proper billet from the pocket index, and do a billet-switch as the tabled paper is picked up and handed to the spectator.

Note that the action of writing out a slip as you talk to the spectator serves to suggest that only one slip could possibly be in play. The effects is not earth-shaking, but it is a nice, direct demonstration of mental control — and the spectator is left with a physical reminder of the event, which promotes your name. Additionally, if the pad of paper used had your name and address imprinted on it, the list given out as a souvenir would be even more valuable from an advertising point of view.

phil goldstein

Pabular is published after the second week in every month and is printed by Instance Printers, Paddock Wood, Kent, England. Subscriptions may be obtained direct from the publishers, Pabular, P.O. Box 180, London SE12 8JJ or through many magic dealers. Price 50 pence per copy (or US $ 1.25) surface post included. Air Mail extra 12 pence (US $0.30) per copy or £1.45 (US $3.60) per year. Editorial or content copy should be sent to Fred Robinson, 1 Crescent Court, 24 Crescent Road, New Barnet, Herts, England. Advertising rates sent on request—smalls 3 pence per word (US 10 cents). Dealer enquiries welcomed. Reproductions of old prints and historical magical items by kind permission of Tony Faro.

To Warrent Class up Wagis

The Magazine of Close-up Magic

*jan heins@carl lauchli

BAKER STEET RE-VISITED

This is a pocket trick using the upside down read-out feature of Electronic Pocket Calculators. These calculators are relatively inexpensive and many people carry them around, or use them at the office, so there should be lots of opportunities for showing the trick. The trick will work with any type of calculator with neon displays.

PREPARATION:-

You will need 21 double blank cards, which can be the type supplied by your magic dealer, or just plain pieces of card which are approximately playing card size. 20 of the cards have each got a number on one side and a word on the other, and the 21st has the word 'stop' on one side and a message on the other.

Here are the numbers and words that are written on the cards. Use a thick felt pen to write on the cards. Underline the numbers as shown noting that the line starts at the first or second numbers on alternate cards. Make the lines below the nos, casual and not too neat.

Front	٠ŧ	Cand
Front	OΤ	l ara

18200 51070 314 27 11 5_
$\frac{31070}{314}$
$\frac{327}{27}$
11
5_ 4
40
1179 1021 2262 2914 14 7
$\begin{array}{c} 1021 \\ 2262 \end{array}$
2914
$\frac{14}{7}$
209
$ \begin{array}{r} $
12
$\frac{12}{22}$

Rear of Card

SHELL PLAYERS SLOB TAKE HELL JULIA BILL DOUBLE HILL JEAN HISS BURN BEE SLOW LIE HORSE BESARAH HE COAT

A Message from S.H.

Add on the numbers on the back of the card placed aside. The total produced gives a clue to the name written on the other side of the card. You can read it by standing on your head or turning the Calculator upside-down. Do whichever you prefer.

Regards, Sherlock

The cards are arranged in the sequence given with the numbers uppermost, the card with 18200 being at the top of the group. Place an elastic band around them, and place them in your pocket.

PERFORMANCE:-

Remove the cards and after taking off the elastic band, hold them number side up in the left hand. Without altering the order of the cards, take a few off from the top with the right hand and point out that the cards have numbers on one side and words on the other. Point out that all the numbers and words are different, as you twist the right hand to show both sides of the cards. After showing a few of the cards, give the complete packet a false shuffle followed by a few genuine cuts. You can leave out the false shuffle if you wish.

Hand the packet to a spectator and request him to cut it a few more times. When he has done so to his satisfaction, note whether the top number is underlined at the beginning of the number or slightly in. If at the beginning, ask him to remove the top card and place it aside. If slightly in, ask him to remove the bottom card and place it aside. If the STOP card arrives on top, ask him to cut once more.

Now have him call out the numbers on the backs of the cards remaining in his hand, dealing them in a pile on the table as he calls each one out. As he calls them, add them up on a

STOP

Calculator, making sure that the machine is cleared before you start. He will eventually reach the STOP card. Have him turn it over and read out loud what is on the back. Having followed the instructions, turn the Calculator upside down and let him read the word formed in the neon display window. It will coincide with the word on his selected card.

The cards can easily be set for the next performance by taking the remaining cards from the spectator, placing the STOP one on top of these, the chosen one next on top and the dealt off tabled pile on top of all. If you now do a simple overhand you shuffle to reverse the top section until you reach the STOP card and throw the ran cards back on top of the STOP card the pack is back in the starting sequence. This shuffle can be done immediately prior to your next performance of the trick if you wish, instead of a conventional false shuffle.

NOTE:-

If you have a mathematically inclined friend who wants to take the cards home, just palm away the 22 card before giving them to him.

HOLIDAZE arthur day

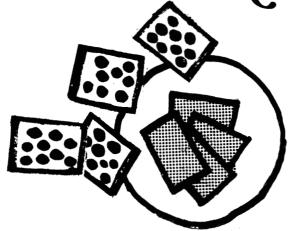

Five magicians went to Brighton for their holidays last year for the same fortnight and each stayed in separate hotels on the promenade. Quite by chance (as true as I'm riding this bike) all the hotels were next to each other and reading from left to right, they were the Cresta Hotel, Hotel Eldorado, The Sands, The Harbour Lights and the Ocean Hotel. They met up with each other during the holiday and had some rare sessions. All had different tastes in magic and the following facts emerged. From these facts, find out whether the magician who uses doves, like to watch Tommy Cooper or Dai Vernon.

- 1. The magi who deals with Jack Hughes is staying at the hotel directly to the right of the magi who gets all his tricks from Ken Brooke.
- 2. The fire eater deals with Goodliffe.
- 3. A parrot is used by the mentalist.
- 4. The close-up worker's favourite performer is David Nixon.
- 5. The member of the 'Order of the Magi' is staying next to the poodle owner.
- 6. Fred Kaps is the favourite of the magi in the middle hotel.
- 7. The kiddie's entertainer belongs to the 'Mystic Seven'.
- 8. Dai Vernon is the favourite of the magi dealing with Jack Hughes.
- 9. The I.B.M. member is staying next to the magi with the chicken.
- 10. The vent is staying at the Cresta Hotel.
- 11. The M.M.L. members favourite magician is Slydini.
- 12. The I.B.M. member deals mainly with Repro.
- 13. The Magic Circle member does a rabbit production.
- 14. The vent is staying next door to the magician who gets his tricks from Davenports.

Determine by logic.....(not magic)

- 1. The name of the hotel each magi is staying at.
- 2. The favourite performer of each magi.
- 3. The speciality of each magi.
- 4. The dealer each magi uses.
- 5. The society each magi belongs to.
- 6. The animal each magi uses in his act.

COUNTER REVOLUTION

The effect is straightforward, eight cards are used — four red, four black. The reds are put on the table, face down. The blacks are held in the hand, face up. The blacks turn face down one at a time, and then are revealed to have changed to the four reds — the blacks are now on the table. Several counts are used, but they all approximate the Elmsley Count from the spectator's point of view, so the action is visually consistent. Note that each count sets you up for the following one, with virtually no re-setting during the course of the routine.

Use eight high-value spot cards - eights and nines. From the face of the packet, four blacks, four reds. Fan out the packet, and display the two colours. Square up the cards and hold the packet from above (Biddle Grip). The left hand comes over to the packet, and the left thumb draws off the top card. The next card is drawn off onto the first, overlapping about 1/2-inch to the right. The 3rd and 4th cards are similarly drawn off into the left hand, and the four blacks are displayed the fanned condition. The left hand now squares up the four blacks, taking a break with the little finger below the second card. The right hand moves over the left hand's cards, and the left hand draws off the first red card. Simultaneously, the right hand steals the two cards above the left little finger break, and moves away to the right. The left little finger is inserted to take a break below this first red card. The hands come together again, and the left thumb takes the second red card on top of its packet, and then the third. The final red card (with two blacks hidden behind it) is dropped on top of all. The situation, from the face: R, B, B, R, R, B, B. The left little finger is holding a break above the bottom two cards of the packet. During this activity you are seemingly just counting four blacks and then four reds from the right hand to the left — and pattering about the two contrasting colours.

Pause for a moment. Now the right hand grasps the packet from above once again, holding it from the inner and outer narrow edges. The left thumb lies across the face of the top (red) card. The hands separate. The right hand takes all of the cards above the break; the left retains the face card and the two below the little finger break. Seemingly, the black cards are all in the right hand, the reds in the left. In fact, the left hand holds two black cards below a red, the right holds three reds below two blacks. (This switch was derived from work by Jack Vosburgh and Ed Marlo). Put the right hand's cards down on the table, face up. Turn the left hand's packet face down, and hold it with both hands in the grip commonly used for the Elmsley Count.

The count to be used here will show three cards as four. An Elmsley or Jordan count will do this, but both will leave the red card in between the two blacks. This count will leave the odd card on top, as it must be for a later action. The count is as follows: the right hand takes the top card. The hands come together, and each hand's cards are exchanged: the left hand takes back the first card while the right hand takes both of the left hand's cards, for the count of "2". The hands come together again. The right hand takes the left hand's card as the left hand steals back the right hand's bottom card, for a count of "3". The final card is taken by the right hand for a count of "4". State, "four red cards" as you flip the top card face up and then down again. Place this packet onto the table, face down.

Pick up the second (five-card) packet. Obtain a break below the top two cards of this face up packet. As you patter, perform a halfpass on the three cards below the break. Status: on the table, face down from the top: R, B, B. In the hands, from the top, face up B, face down R, R, R.

Do a twisting motion on the packet in the hands. Now Elmsley Count to show three face up blacks, one face down card. Do another twisting motion, then a display count as follows: the right hand takes the top card, then the second card a bit down-jogged on top of it. The left thumb pushes off the next two cards squared as one onto the first two — the right hand taking this double card down-jogged onto the cards it holds. Finally, the last card is taken, down-jogged on top of all. The audience sees four cards — two face up and two face down.

phil goldstein

The packet is squared, and twisted again. The next count is another visual approximation of an Elmsley Count: the right hand takes the top card, then the next card on top of the first (and down-jogged). The left hand lays its remaining three cards on top of the right hand's first two, down jogged, and as this happens the right thumb pulls the top card of this three-card block down, to show three face down cards. A face up card shows second from the bottom of the (supposedly) four-card spread — the other face-up card is hidden behind the second card from the face.

Re-square the packet, twist, and do an Elmsley Count to show four face down cards. State, "It's really not so amazing that the cards turned face down...." and as you do this, casually transfer the top two cards of the packet to the bottom. "What's amazing is that these cards have changed to the red cards!" Turn the packet face up and do an Elmsley Count to show four red faces.

Obtain a break above the bottom two cards of the packet as the right hand takes the cards in a Biddle Grip (the break is held with the right thumb at the inner narrow edge). With the right hand, pick up the tabled packet, and immediately drop all of the cards below the right thumb break into the left hand. The right hand drops its cards (three reds) face up on the table as the left hand turns up its cards (four blacks with a red in the centre). Do an Ascanio Spread to show four blacks. The right hand at the end of this spread will be holding onto a double card — the odd red hidden behind a black. Drop this double card onto the face up reds, and then drop each of the other blacks one by one onto the tabled packet - the eight cards are now in proper order - four blacks on top of four reds. Finis.

NOTES:

The one-at-a-time turnover sequence can be accomplished in the following manner: do an Elmsley Count to show the first reversal. The final card of this count should go below the packet. Do another Elmsley Count to show two of the cards have turned face down (this is a normal Elmsley Count, as are the subsequent ones). Do another EC to show three face down cards, then a final EC to show four face down cards. I personally prefer the variant display counts as detailed above, but either sequence will work.

In displaying the four blacks at the finish, you can use an Elmsley Count instead of an Ascanio, but you'll have to re-adjust the cards after the count to get back to your finish layout of four blacks on top of four reds. The Ascanio is more effective.

VERSADEAL john bragoli

The principle of dealing a winning bridge hand has appeared over the years in many guises. The following effect, which is a development of the same principle, requires no skill other than the ability to carry out a preliminary false shuffle. It is, nevertheless a strong item, particularly when performed before an audience of knowledgeable card players.

EFFECT:-

From a shuffled pack which has been cut by a spectator the performer deals four hands of thirteen cards. Turning over top cards of the first three hands dealt he shows winning combinations relating to a variety of card games. Finally he picks up the fourth hand and ribbon spreads these cards face up across the table. They show an unbeatable bridge hand of thirteen spades.

PATTER AND PRESENTATION:-

"In any demonstration of crooked gambling" patters the performer as he shuffles the cards "the operator usually starts by controlling a good hand of cards, such as four aces, to the top of the pack. It is of course possible to prevent this deceptive procedure, simply by cutting the cards."

VERSADEAL by John Bragoli

So saying, he cuts the cards, then invites the spectator to do likewise. "At this stage" he continues, "it is unlikely that the top cards will be seen." Turning over the top card of the pack (which for example might be the seven of spades' he says, "the top card is certainly not an ace, it's a seven. I'll burn it." He thereupon puts it face down on the bottom of the pack. The performer next deals out four hands of thirteen cards. "Different card players" he patters, "may show preference for different games."

He now turns up the top card of the first hand, which may for example, be the queen of hearts. "A picture card" he states, "is always useful in poker or brag, especially if you have some matching cards." Turning up the top cards of the second and third hands they are seen to be queens. The three queens are now discarded to one side.

"In blackjack or pontoon" the performer continues, "the player is trying to achieve a maximum score of 21." He turns over the top card of the first hand which proves to be an ace. "In either of these games" he remarks, "an ace is an excellent card to hold since it has a value of either one or eleven. A seven (turning up the top card of the second hand) takes us to eight or eighteen and a three (turns up top card of the third hand) gives us the maximum score of twenty-one. The ace, seven, and three are discarded.

Once again the performer turns up the top two cards of the first and second hands, which are seen to be a two and an eight. "In a game of baccarat, chemin de fer, or punte bance, he explains, "these two cards would be a poor combination since their total is nil, or baccarat, and one would need a nine to achieve the maximum score with three cards. Here's a nine." Turning over the top card of the third hand which proves to be a nine, he then discards the three cards displayed.

For the last time the performer turns up the top card of the first hand which may, for example, be the four of diamonds. "On it's own" he points out, "this is not an exciting card, but if a player held the four, five and six of diamonds it would be a useful combination in a game of kalooki or rummy." The top cards of the second and third hands are now turned up and seen to be the five and six of diamonds.

"Personally" concludes the performer, "I prefer a nice leisurely game of bridge, particularly when I can win all thirteen tricks by bidding a grand slam in spades." The performer now spreads the last hand face up across the table showing it to consist of all the thirteen spades.

METHOD:-

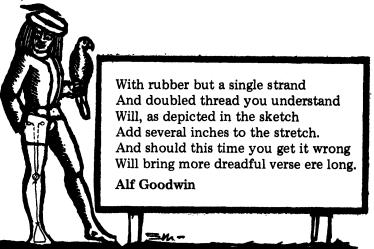

Stack the pack in the following order — the bracketed numbers (4—5—6) must be cards of the same suit.

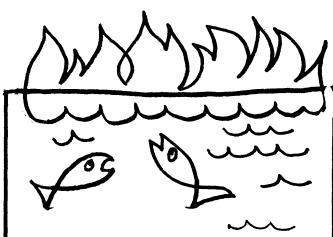

K-K-K- any spade -A-7-3-any spade-2-8-9-any spade-(4-5-6) Q-Q-Q-any spade-A-7-3-any spade-2-8-9-any spade-(4-5-6-) J-J-J-any spade-A-7-3-any spade-2-8-9-any spade-(4-5-6-) 10-10-10-any spade-A-7-3-any spade-2-8-9-any spade-(4-5-6-) any spade.

It will make the setting up a simple matter if the spades are removed first and placed face up in a separate pile. Then remove the three kings and drop them face up onto the table followed by a spade from the pile, then A-7-3, another spade etc, etc. At the start give the pack a brief false shuffle retaining the order of the cards and continue the routine as described under patter and presentation. After the spectator has cut the pack secretly glimpse the bottom card, and if it is a spade simply deal out four hands of thirteen cards. Should it not be a spade then turn up one, two or three cards from the top of the pack until you reach a spade, pointing out that those cards are not aces. Put the cards which have been named at the bottom of the pack so that a spade becomes the bottom card.

After the four hands have been dealt the top card of the first hand dealt will be either an ace, a two, a four, or a picture card (or ten) and will determine the point of the routine from which you can progress.

For example, if this card was a four the first game referred to would be kalooki. Should the first three cards shown be the three tens, remark that they would be a good combination for poker, but you will discard one of them. Then turn up the next top three cards of the first three hands, the three kings, and announce that a full house of kings on tens would be a winning hand in most games of poker.

FIREWATER

This is an excellent stunt to pull in a pub. Hold a light just inside the mouth of your half empty glass and a burst of flame issues forth. The secret is a simple one and if you have a cigarette lighter fuelled by gas you're in business. Secretly let the gas escape into the glass holding the lighter well inside. The gas being heavier than air will remain within for a considerable time. It is more effective if it is someone else's drink particularly if you give it a build-up on explaining how strong drink came to be called 'firewater', hand round a few feathers and do a war dance round it before lighting the gas. Whether you go that far depends on the mood of the party at the time.

Jan Heins was the first to show us this stunt of which the idea was shown to him by Carl Lauchli.

Kung-Fu Magician

Selected card found impaled on a block of wood. Can be handed out for examination. Price £2.50.

Joe Berg's Card Slide

For an instant and visual card change. Hand made in beautiful blue, and lined with gold leaf. Price £8.50.

Colour Changing Cards

Nine cards shown and the backs change colour twice. Price £1.50.

Available from:
GEOFF RAY
191 Wenlock Road, Shrewsbury,
Salop, England.

LECTURE NOTES

NOTES ON THE MAGIC OF FRANK SHIELDS transcribed by Gene Matsuura, 2 dollars: PAUL SWINFORD LECTURE NOTES, 2 dollars 50, are both available from Busby Enterprises 133—17th Street, Oakland, California 94612. Customers outside the U.S. should add one dollar.

The first named is an unpretentious, unnumbered, nine page typescript effort without illustrations or index, secured at the upper left hand corner with a single staple and will add nothing to the appearance of your bookcase. Seldom if ever, does one find anything of value in such productions but this is another 'kettle of fish', and the information it imparts will be welcomed by the practising close-up performer.

For those who have not yet added the top change to their repertoire will find the section devoted to this sleight most rewarding, and the misdirection given may provide the answer for those whose previous efforts in this direction have not always been successful. Misdirection is also given for the card on the forehead. In the other thirteen paragraphs handling for the double lift, the French drop, Vernon's 2—6—4, Rub-adub-dub, pivot coin vanish, dime on wrist etc are dealt with, plus notes by Jeff Busby.

This manuscript only gives a peep into the methods of one of America's top bar performers. Another look would be most acceptable.

The Swinford Notes are a physical improvement in that they have line drawings and a spiral binding. The content matter being a description of tricks shown at demonstrations given to magicians differs from the Shields notes which were taken during an actual performance for an audience presumably consisting of lay persons. Twelve effects are explained as follows. Thoughts on the Elevator, Serpentine Silk and Vernon's Seven Card Monte. Two routines, one with a Chop Cup and another with dice. A copper and silver exchange, and royal flush stack which will delight the perfect faro addicts. A mental tapping puzzle type effect using numbered and varicoloured poker chips aptly titled - Time on my Hands. A colour changing knife, and wait for it - The Berland-Gardner-Judah-Swinford-York, Vanishing Bill Trick — wonder who Bill was.

North of the border Roy Walton on Scottish TV with the Three Card Trick. They liked it enough to re-engage him, this time with the Three Shell Game.

TWIN KEY-BOARDS peter duffie The following effect is based on a trick of Gordon Bruce, its origin being the Piano Trick.

WORKING:-

- 1. Openly remove 7 matching pairs of cards from the pack and place them face down on top. One of the pairs should be the black aces and should be about 3rd or 4th from the top. Do not refer to the number of pairs.
- 2. Hold the pack face down and deal off the pairs together into a face up pile on the table. Draw attention to the fact that each pair matches in colour and value. Once you have dealt all 7 pairs, deal one more, then noticing that all the pairs have been dealt, replace these last 2 cards back on top of the pack but hold a little finger break below them.
- 3. Pick up the face up pile from the table from above with the hand and using the left fingers, square it up. Pick up the 2 cards above the break during the square up then place the pack aside.
- 4. Now spread the face up packet between the hands counting aloud the number of pairs keeping the 2 reversed cards at the bottom concealed under the last face up card. Explain that you really need an even number of pairs for the trick to work so remove the 2 black aces and turn them face down and place them to the bottom of the face up packet. Again count the number of pairs to show 6. Injog the face down cards at the bottom.
- 5. Turn the packet face down, thus bringing the 2 aces face up on top with 2 face up indifferents under them. Turn these 4 cards face down as 2. This is easy because of the jog. Now take off the top 2 cards and cut them into the pack.
- 6. You now say that you will do the trick with the pairs of cards. Turn the packet face up and explain that you will split up each pair be dealing the packet into 2 separate piles. Demonstrate this by dealing a few cards from the face into 2 alternate piles then gather them back in the original order on the face of the packet again. The above is purely to ensure that the spectators understand that by dealing into 2 piles the pairs will be split. Turn the packet face down and deal the 2 piles but deal a second on the 4th, 8th and 12th.

- 7. Make some magical gesture towards each pile then pick up off the top 2 cards from the left hand pile to show that a pair has magically come together. Pick off another 2 cards from the same pile to show another pair, then finally pick off the 3rd pair and show. A single card will be left on the table. Look surprised at there being an odd card left saying "That's strange, I'm sure I had an even number of pairs."
- 8. Repeat stage 7 for the remaining pile. Finally pick up the 2 odd cards that have been left and ask the spectator if he can remember the 2 cards that you buried in the pack before you started the trick. Turn over the 2 cards to show the aces have come back.

TRIGGER. A collection of card tricks using unprepared cards. By Roy Walton. Published by L. Davenport & Co Ltd. Price £1.

This booklet contains one sleight which is clearly explained, and with the excellent line drawings by Gordon Bruce no difficulty should be experienced learning it, especially if you have already mastered the turnover pass. The sleight forms the basis for the following tricks.

SHOWDOWN — On the pack being spread two previously noted cards are seen to be face up. HOP-A-LONG Hofzinser. A selected card changes over with one of four aces which matches its suit. TRIGGER-HAPPY — Four kings on top of the pack change places with a face up ace in the centre and the cards change colour. JAIL BREAK — A story in which the four aces escape from between two jacks. GREENHORN — An instant transposition of face up and face down card. HORSE SENSE — Using only four cards, the backs of two change colour and the faces of the other two change from jokers to queens. All are practical and typical of the author's work.

Fred Robinson

344

Oh! dear, oh! dear, oh! dear. At the risk of boring everyone all over again, I'd like to point out just one more time, that, contrary to what you may read elsewhere, I was never asked to resign my membership of the I.B.M. My membership of the society was "terminated". That, dear friends, in ye olde English, means EXPELLED. I can't quite remember exactly how the late Ellis Stanyon used to put it, but the letter can be examined by anyone caring to call in at the office. I'm thinking of framing it. With a toilet seat.

For the record, I've probably had more correspondence over this matter than dear Marj in the Daily Mirror. One very interesting point is the amount of mail I've had from the United States with most of the suggesting that it was about time I joined the "real I.B.M." and all of them offering to sponsor me. Thank you gentlemen, but no thanks. There are too many exposers in the ranks of the Americans already. Gibson, Elliot, Hugard, etc., and my puny little effort just couldn't hold up in that company. I need a little more time.

If I could resurface for a breath of clean air, I'd like to change the subject, and the location, to Lyons, France. They had a convention there recently. This has already been reported in other magazines, but I'd like to stick my fourpence worth in. It was a pleasure to meet some new faces for a change. One new face for me was Gaeton Bloom. He is short, fat and funny. The only time I had come across the name before was in one of Ken Brooke's ads in Abra. If that means that Ken is going to market some of his items in future, then make a note of the name. His approach to close-up magic is best described as off-beat. Perhaps you would understand that better if I were to describe as a sort of French Bob Reed, and that is intended as a compliment to both of them.

Another new one on me (and I know I'm going to spell this name wrong) was Dominique du Vivienne. Dominique specialises in cards. He doesn't speak English, and as I can't speak French or English, we had a communication problem, which he overcame by simply sitting down and showing me a number of card effects. He runs the whole gamut of card moves. False cuts and shuffles, steals, switches, lapping, all trip gaily off the end of his fingertips like letters from an I.B.M. secretary (sorry). He is tall, long hair and a beard, and quite unassuming. He had a number of books he had written for sale, but as they are in French it is unlikely that they will ever be reproduced in the English national press. It was a pleasure to watch him work.

Talking about hairy faces, we had one over here recently from the U.S. one Ricky Jay. He was over here to tape the Parkinson T.V. Show along with Fred Kaps and Richiardi. It goes on the air Xmas day. While he was here Ricky did a sort of lecture. It couldn't have been very good. He didn't tell anyone how the tricks were done. Maybe he assumed that because they were all magicians present, they actually knew all the methods he was using so didn't bother to explain. He was probably right wasn't he?

Actually, while Ricky was here in England he staved with me a few days, which was most enjoyable, especially as he didn't show me a single trick. One thing he did show me, however, was the typescript of his forthcoming book entitled (I think) 'Using Playing Cards as Weapons' It is, as you will imagine about Card Throwing at which Ricky is something of an expert, and if any of you are still worried about exposures you should see some of the photographs he has included. Whilst he was here he did a few stunts for Mr. Norris McWhirter of The Guinness Book of Records fame and as a result you may well see next year an entry in the same which states that one Mr. Ricky Jay can throw a playing card further than any living human being.

One pleasant result of his visit is that today I received a circus poster of Grock. Ricky Jay, I love you.

Happy Christmas and all that jazz.

Patrick Page

The following is based on The Tell-Tale Aces by Larry Jennings which appeared in 'Ultimate Secrets of Card Magic'. The problem of that effect lies in the complex turning of the packet, of aces on the top of the pack; add to this the involvement of a joker and a selected card and you run the risk of confusing the spectators. I have been using the modification outlined here with good results.

EFFECT:-

Four aces are laid face up on the table. A card is selected from the pack which is noted and then returned. The pack is put down and the aces picked up and shown, then placed back on the table. When the aces are spread out it is seen that one is reversed and its suit corresponds to that of the selected card. Full pack is then spread out and it is seen that there is one card reversed. When turned over this card is found to be an ace. When the aces are turned over the reversed card in their middle is seen to be the selected card.

METHOD:-

Layout the aces face up and offer the pack for the selection, a free choice. Set this card to the bottom by your favourite method and glimpse the suit. Suppose it is the Ten of Spades. Move the Ace of Spades to the top of the ace spread using the right hand. The left hand Cops the selected card off the bottom of the pack as the right hand picks up the pack and places it down in front of you, long side facing you. The right hand gathers the aces and adds them onto the palmed card in the left. Square up this packet and hold it in the Biddle Position in the right hand. With the left thumb slide off the top ace (Spades) naming it and hold it in the left hand. The thumb now slides off the next ace on top of the spade ace about three quarters of an inch to the right, and likewise with the third and fourth aces (with the selected card hidden behind the fourth ace). Name each ace as it is removed. Close the fan getting a break above the bottom ace (Spades). Simultaneously the right hand places the ace packet about 12 inches in front of the pack and the left hand Cops the bottom ace and adds it ... the top of the pack as it picks it up. The right hand now spreads the aces and shows that the 'Spade' is reversed. Comment that the selected card must be a spade. Reverse the top card of the pack by pulling it under with the left fingers (or any other method); then cut the pack finally spreading it face up revealing one card face down. This is shown to be the Ace of Spades and not, of course, the selected card which the spectators were expecting.

Turn over the face down card in the ace packet and show it to be the selected card.

doug alker

*Artists so far booked for the Ramsay Reunion arranged by Pabular to take place in Birmingham on March 12th and 13th 1977 include:

- FRED KAPS with close-up magic and lecture.
- *DAVID ROTH Top flight coin magician for the first time outside the U.S.A.
- ★BOB DRIEBEEK The odd-ball magician from Holland.
- *PHILIPPE FIALHO with his speciality effects for which he is now famous.
- and the MC will be Pabular's popular columnist PATRICK PAGE.

Join us in this 'once in a lifetime' event. Write to Fred Robinson, 1 Crescent Court, 24 Crescent Road, New Herts, England for registration form and further details.

The final lecture of the overgentleman's European tour was given in Eondon on Nov. 26th. Once again Vic Pinto kindly loaned his studio and Ken Brooke made the arrangements and introduced the lecturer. Prior to the introduction Ricky Jay handed round a two-page breakdown of what we were to see, which saved everyone the trouble of making hurriedly scribbled notes which are usually impossible to decipher afterwards.

SCOTT YORK LECTUR

Commencing with 'Twenty minutes from the pockets' the first effect was a Coin Assembly followed by the coins across. Those two routines alone showed clearly that Mr Scott had much to offer. GOLDFINGER came next in which the props consisted of an imitation gold finger, silver coins and a leather purse. The effect consisted of the coins and purse turning to gold. Ring Triology in which a finger ring continued to escape from a piece of string. Much fun was then obtained with an old joke prop 'the snapper' during which a borrowed note vanished and finally appeared in the barrel of the snapper. An unusual card stabbing effect using a razor blade ended the 'from the pockets' routine. We had seen an exhibition of superb magic and it is doubtful if anyone not previously having knowledge of the methods used could have explained how the effects were achieved. The X-Rated Cups and Balls based on the Vernon

MAGIC IN FU

THE INTERNATIONAL MAGAZINE Now in its 4th year.

MAKE SURE EACH ISSUE IS SENT TO YOU REGULARLY. SEND TODAY ONLY £2.00 ($ 6.00) FOR ONE YEAR (SIX) ISSUES SENT POST FREE TO ANYWHERE IN THE WORLD.

32 glossy pages in each issue.

THE INTERNATIONAL MAGIC STUDIO,
(RON MACMILLAN)

89 CLERKENWELL ROAD, HOLBORN,
LONDON, E.C.1.

routine, but eliminating loading from the pockets for the climax, also proved to be a fooler. Five more effects were performed and explained in a 'sit in session' which closed a veritable feast of magic and the eagerness of those present to secure the lecture notes fully confirmed this. These can be obtained from Ken Brooke for £2.75 post free, who can also supply Scott York's 43 page booklet on 'COINS' which contains ten items for the more advanced worker £4.25, the X-Rated Cups and Balls for £3.50. The material in these two booklets is not included in the Lecture Notes. The three purses, two leather and one of metallic cloth plus the instructions for GOLDFINGER can be obtained from the same source £9.50. No coins or gold finger are included in the latter.

The Magic Circle close-up competition arranged by Devano was won by Ken Hawes whose act included double bottle production, one more than Bob Read, and a slow motion presentation of the transposition of two coins for those who did not catch it first time around.

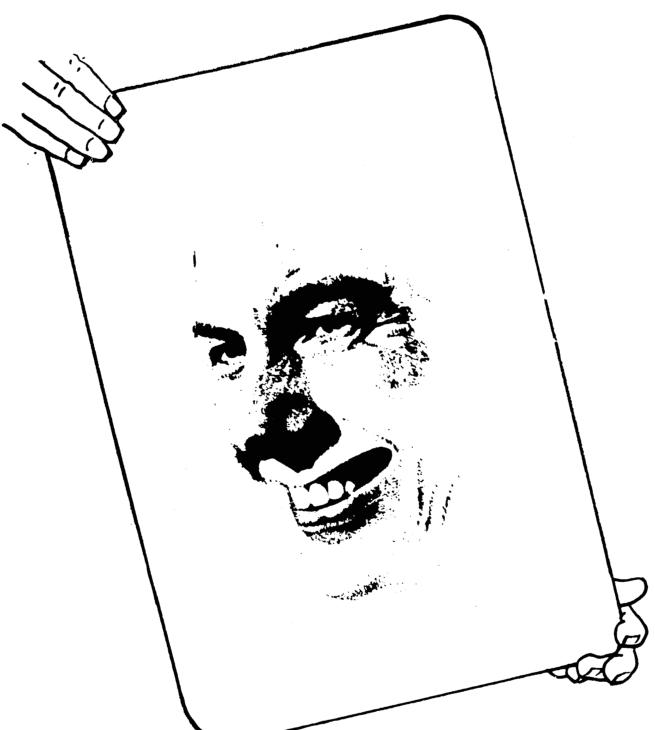

BOOK REVIEWS

MAGIC AS A PERFORMING ART, A Bibliography of Conjuring by Robert Gill. Published by Bowker, London and New York. £7.50.

This exceedingly well produced book is unique among bibliographies in being of considerable practical value to anyone who performs magic, whether as a hobbyist or as a professional. It is far more than a mere compilation of titles with the usual bibliographical details common to similar publications. The author, with a commendable economy of words has managed to inform the potential reader which of the 1066 items contain material likely to be suitable for his personal use as a performer. This information alone could save its readers a considerable amount of time and not a little money. Apart from some wisely chosen classics only books published between 1935 and 1975 are dealt with, excluding only those of doubtful merit. Being in general agreement with Robert Gill's assessment of the contents of the titles included I am confident that little of real worth to the practising performer has been ommitted.

There is also a brief appraisal of the most important bibliographical works which will appeal more to the students of conjuring literature, librarians, collectors, historians bibliophiles etc than to the man who just does tricks, though even the latter may find this book a starting point for widening his magical interests. Recommended without reservation.

Fred Robinson

The SIDEWATK SHUFFLE

Routine-Handling & Presentation by FRED KAPS

£4.75 U.S.$20.00 inc. Airmail

Money back if not delighted

There's No Place Like
KEN BROOKE'S MAGIC PLACE - 145 WARDOUR STREET
LONDON. W.1. - ENGLAND
Tel: 01-734 9240

Pabular is published after the second week in every month and is printed by Instance Printers, Paddock Wood, Kent, England. Subscriptions may be obtained direct from the publishers, Pabular, P.O. Box 180, London SE12 8JJ or through many magic dealers. Price 50 pence per copy (or US $ 1.25) surface post included. Air Mail extra 12 pence (US $ 0.30) per copy or £1.45 (US $ 3.60) per year. Editorial or content copy should be sent to Fred Robinson, 1 Crescent Court, 24 Crescent Road, New Barnet, Herts, England. Advertising rates sent on request—smalls 3 pence per word (US 10 cents). Dealer enquiries welcomed. Reproductions of old prints and historical magical items by kind permission of Tony Faro.

The Magazine of Close-up Magic
Vol:3№5 JAN.1977

A Happy New Year to all our readers and may it bring as much pleasure magically and otherwise as 1976 gave to us. Among the high points of the year was to see for the first time ever close-up magic presented on British television in a thoroughly professional manner by Fred Kaps and Ricky Jay thus setting a standard for all who aspire to present intimate magic on the box. The contrast in personalities, the hippy like Ricky with card tricks which included card throwing, a four ace trick, his laughing card trick etc and Fred performing among others, Chink-a-Chink, Gypsy Thread, Victor's Eleven Card Trick with paper money and the Floating Cork with his usual effortless ease, plus a part of his stage act giving plenty of variety, which was further enhanced by the illusions of Richiardi Jr. whose vanishing lady was somewhat of a sensation.

Hardly a week passes without at least one overseas magician appearing on the scene, many having already been here previously and almost all vowing too that they will be back again at the first opportunity — the reason they give us, that there is no place like it for magic. We have, of course, the Magic Circle, dealers who are in the game because they love it, and the British pub, all of which make their contribution to the enjoyment of our visitors.

The first one to arrive this year was Gaeton Bloom who was spotted by Archie McIntyre, one of the few Englishmen working on New Year's Day, ringing a bell that does not work to a studio in Wardour Street which was closed for the holiday. Gaeton who hails from Paris is a prolific ideas man in the field of unusual and original effects mostly with a comedy angle. One of his ideas appears in this issue, and many of the others will be seen when he appears, for the first time in England, at the Ramsay Reunion. Also in this issue you will find an effect by Jan Heins which, when performed by its originator brought a look of utter disbelief to Gaeton's face when he realised he must be sitting on the card he had just chosen plus the entertainment produced by the presentation left us in no doubt that the trick is a winner for those who like to perform magic for lay people.

The last visitor of the old year was Juan Tamarix from Madrid, a professional who has been appearing on Spanish television every week for almost two years. We had several sessions with him and saw some great magic which we will not detail because he also will be appearing for the first time in England at the Ramsay Reunion. He has a distinctive style angled towards comedy but does include items requiring considerable skill and is one of those lucky individuals who can enjoy magic both as a professional and when mixing with hobbyists doing magic which only really appeals to magicians. His presentation of Oil and Water is the best we have seen and laymen must be convinced he never 'touched' the cards, and the effect in which a losing hand of poker visibly changes to a Royal Flush instantly with the faces of the cards in view is something that Cy Endfield, who was present at one session, must still be pondering over. Apart from appearing in his own country Juan has toured South America and written five books, two for beginners, one on trick cards, another describing colour changes with cards, balls, and handkerchiefs. At present he is busy with one on knives. Some of these have been published in French and German and will ultimately be available in our own language.

In the April issue of last year we published an effect sent in by Ed. Marlo entitled 'Spectator cuts to locate the aces'. Subsequently we received a letter from Larry Jennings claiming that he had invented the effect and that his notes showed that he first had the idea in 1964. He sent copies of letters from two other magicians who had seen him perform the effect at a convention on the morning of March 19th 1976 and that money had been spent on artwork with a view to publishing the effect in a booklet.

In this column we offered Ed. Marlo the opportunity to reply if he so desired. He did so at some length and states 'The effect and whatever ideas and approaches within the text I sent you are strictly my own and not derived from any other source'.

This unequivocal statement leaves us with nothing further to say other than to advise anyone wishing to claim any trick or move (or whatever), as their own invention, to get it in print before they show it to anyone—even a friend.

FRED KAPS · DAVID ROTH PHILIPPE FIALHO · BOB DRIEBEEK JUAN TAMARIX · RON WILSON PATRICK PAGE

all at BIRMINGHAM on Saturday and Sunday 12th and 13th of March 1977 Write now- there are still some places left! Fred Robinson, 1 Crescent Court, 24 Crescent Road, New Barnet, Herts, England

A CY ENDFIELD TOCATION riffle perfor

Some months ago two top flight cardmen, Derek Dingle and Ricky Jay and myself were invited by Cy to his home for a session of magic. On arrival we found Alex Elmsley already there and the ensuing hours brought out some high powered magic from these gifted individuals.

Cy, a film producer by profession, was responsible for Entertaining Card Magic which was written by Lewis Ganson and published in three parts some twenty five years ago, containing material which has remained undated and contains at least one effect, Aces for Connoisseurs, which is still being performed by many leading cardmen ne has a new hobby — electronics — and this new interest has given further scope for his inventiveness. We were shown the results of his endeavours in this direction which involves communications and will be of particular help to people with certain disabilities once it gets into production.

A few days later we received details from Cy explaining one aspect of the invention and giving permission to publish it in Pabular only to receive a phone call the following day with the request to hold it until he gave the go-ahead. Fortunately, he also sent a card location which goes something like this.

The performer takes a shuffled pack which may be borrowed and gives it a few table riffles to get, so he says, the feel of the cards. The performer now turns his back and requests a spectator to give the pack a riffle shuffle and square up the cards. He is then invited to lift off a few cards and note the card at the face of the cut and then to cut the packet he has lifted off and replace it on the section of the pack left on the table. He is finally instructed to square up the pack. The performer now turns round and picks up the pack and running through the cards face up removes the card noted by the spectator. Voila.

The secret is rather subtle. As the performer is giving a pack the preliminary riffle he notes, by secretly glimpsing, the two top cards. When he has the two glimpsed cards on top he cuts the pack as if to give it a further shuffle, but this time it is a slip-cut—an Endfield slip-cut if you will—which leaves both halves with a known card on top of each half.

At this point a spectator is requested to riffle shuffle the two halves together as the performer turns his back on the proceedings. It will now be obvious that when the shuffle is completed one of the glimpsed cards will end up on top of the pack, and it will also be clear that the card noted by the spectator will be next to this glimpsed card when the packet has been cut.

To find the card the performer has only to leaf through the face-up pack disregarding the first of the glimpsed cards he comes to, and remove the card immediately to the right of the second glimpsed card. It will be the one noted by the spectator.

Cy has some even more mysterious dressings for this location, but this simple straightforward presentation is completely baffling.

by Fred Robinson

For all I know this may be used now, but the few cardmen I showed this to had not seen it before. This is simply a modification of the well known "Buckle Count". I have found it easier to use and a lot more foolproof in close quarters. At close quarters one can get away with the usual buckle count if one wishes to conceal no more than a couple of cards, but when one wishes to conceal four or perhaps more then some observant spectator is likely to spot the thick card.

I was developing a routine (see Three Cards Across article) and this required three counts which concealed three or four cards. After the first count you can be sure that the spectators study subsequent counts very closely indeed. It is no use counting fast as they will then be convinced you have done a twist somewhere. What you want is a slow (not too slow) count so that they can follow it with their eagle (?) eyes. If your count passes then the subsequent results knock them for six. The modification outlined here has since been used for other tricks with success.

It is a well known psychological fact that the maximum alertness by a spectator to such a thing as a count is at the start and near the end. At the start, they notice the style of counting and are watching for false moves. Towards the end, their interest (and alertness) heightens as they see how many we have counted. The middle period is the time when they want the count to "get on with it". That period is the one when they are not as mentally sharp. So, psychologically, that is the best time to count your four or five card stack as one. The count to be described is based on that assumption. I have had good results with it, and hope that you do also.

The idea is to buckle three (or even four if it suits your purpose) cards instead of the usual one. All the cards above these three are moved over as a single card. The spectator interest (and alertness) heightens during the last three card count. You are clean then as you really do have three and can, if you wish, slow down slightly and emphasise the count and let them see that there is only one card being moved over. For magicians who know the buckle this floors them. As you go "eight, nine, ten" (or whatever your last three are) you slide the single cards over one at a time and our eagle eyed friends will have to admit that all is well.

Take a little finger break above the bottom cards and count as follows: the cards are slightly bowed downwards by the thumb. The thumb slides off the top card. This is taken in the right fingers. Left thumb slides off the next card which is taken in the right hand above the first card. Cards in the right hand are held in a similar position as those in the left (i.e. with thumb on top and fingers on the side), which is as it would be for a normal slide off count.

You go on until you are four short of your target count. For instance, if you wish to count ten, you count thus up to six. The seventh is the "one". Here, you move your left forefinger (which is at the side of the packet) slightly away from the packet forming a break. This finger also bends slightly, accentuating the buckle. The left thumb keeping pressure straightens slightly. This moves the top packet towards the right and looks as though you have slid a single card off. This packet is taken in the right hand as a single card. You are now clean. Continue counting the last three. Slow down slightly and emphasise "eight", "nine" and "ten" turning the body to face the audience.

Try it. It is very difficult indeed to explain in print but is quite easy in practice and is deceptive as long as you do not break the cadence at the crucial count.

An example for the use of this sleight is in the following effect.

THREE CARDS ACROSS EXTRA by Doug Alker

The effect here is as the usual routine of having two spectators count ten cards each. They hold these in their hands and after a suitable moment these are recounted to show that three cards have passed from one to the other. The spectators retain their packets (now seven and thirteen cards respectively). A second recount shows that one has only four and the other sixteen. The final knockout comes when all ten have finally been shown to have transferred from one spectator to the other. There are various ways to present this depending on the performer's style, but there is plenty of scope for comedy.

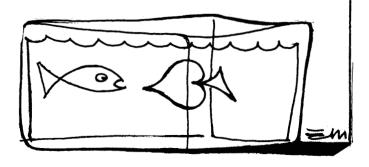

All that is required is a pack of cards. Beforehand, introduce seven cards into your right hand trousers pocket. Four are placed with long sides facing the floor and three are perpendicular to these (i.e. with short sides to the floor).

Two spectators are introduced and placed on either side of the performer. The pack is handed to the one on the performer's right with the request to count off ten cards on to his left hand. While this is being done steal three from your right pocket with your right hand. As the spectator finishes his count, take the cards into your right hand by picking them from above with that hand. Ask the spectator to give the pack to the other chap. You "check" his count at ten with a three card buckle. Hand it to him to hold. Left hand spectator counts ten more cards on to your left hand. On squaring, get a break above the bottom three cards. As you indicate to him to put the remainder of the pack down, bottom palm the bottom three (I use the gambler's bottom palm) and hand him the top seven with your right hand. As you do this, you will naturally turn so that your right side faces the audience. You then deposit the three palmed cards into your left trousers pocket. As an after thought, check his counting. Count seven as ten. Use any count you like but I use the one described by Edward Victor as the actions are identical with the other count.

After suitable by-play, chap on your left counts his cards on to your left hand. Get a break below the top three. Turn slightly to the spectator on your right and get him to count his cards (thirteen) on to your right hand. When completed, turn to the left chap making some comment like "How?" As you turn back to the right, your left hand which had been slightly extended to the left passes back in front of your right hand. As you continue turning throw the three above the break in your left hand on to your right hand cards. Do not make a jerking motion. The natural swing does it. Immediately, move your right hand to the right and offer the cards to the spectator. Re-count the cards in your left hand as seven (actually four) before handing them back to the spectator on the left. You could, if you wished, "check" the other cards as thirteen with the three card buckle. After by-play ask the spectator on the right to count on to your hand. While he is doing this you steal the four cards in your right pocket with your right hand. As he counts "16", you take the cards into your right hand (fingers above) adding the extra four. "Check" his count using a three card buckle before handing to him (now 20). Get the spectator on your left to verify he has only four left by counting on to your left hand. Ask him to hold out his palm. As you do this bottom palm three as you lift off the top card with your right hand. Turn to your left and pocket these three as you place the card(s?) on to his palm. Place his other palm on top of this so that the card is sandwiched. More by-play follows (or a pause). Left hand chap is asked to check his four (?) cards. He does so and finds he has only one left. Take this in your right hand. Turn to the other spectator and ask him to count on to your left hand. He counts and under the surprise of having 20 instead of the anticipated 19 add the one in your right hand on them as you turn to the left spectator asking him where his card was or words to that effect. By then all will have forgotten that you had taken it and not returned

doug alker

keith bennett

Twisting the aces, although an outstanding effect, has always to my mind lacked a definite climax. The following routine provides that necessary climax, followed by a second even stronger climax, and at the same time cleans up the handling. The four aces are taken from the deck and as they are counted each ace turns face down, in turn. The final ace when turned back face up changes into the joker and when the whole packet is turned over all the cards have changed from blue to red.

SET-UP:-

Take the four aces from a red deck and put them face up on the face of a blue deck: place third from the face of the deck the blue Joker, face down. From the face the set-up runs red back ace, red back ace, blue back Joker face down, red back ace, red back ace, remainder of blue back deck. Return the deck to its case and drop it in your pocket. The purists can if they wish remove the blue back aces from the deck.

METHOD:-

When you are ready to perform take the deck out and casually fan the cards so that the blue backs are seen. Be sure the customers do not get a flash of the set-up at the face of the deck. Turn the deck face up and remove the aces as a packet but do not let either the Joker or the backs of the aces be seen. Drop the remainder of the deck on the table with the blue backs showing. Show the packet consists of the four aces by doing the Ascanio Spread (AS). Shift the pair of cards to bottom but one position in the packet as you close it up. Do the AS again and you will find one of the aces has turned over. (If you know the Ascanio Spread this will make sense: if not, turn to the October 1975 issue of Pabular). You will now have three cards in one hand, one of which is face down, and in the other hand a pair of cards which appears to be only one card. Return this pair under the face down card, close the packet up and do the AS. A second ace is now face down and the first ace has righted itself. The face down card is the top one of the pair and they are returned to underneath the packet. Do the AS again and show that now the third ace is reversed. Close the packet up leaving the pair on top and do the AS yet again. Now the fourth ace appears to have turned over; it will be the middle of the three separate cards. Place the pair on top of the three so that the packet appears as a fan of four cards, take out the face down ace and turn it over and show that it is now changed into the Joker. Replace the Joker still face up below the pair and above the two single cards. Up till this point the spectator has seen only blue backs and he has been repeatedly shown the back of the cards as each ace turns over. He should be fully aware of the colour of the deck. This makes the trick doubly effective when you now turn the packet itself over and do the AS and the spectator sees that the backs are now red.

BOOK REVIEWS

by Fred Robinson

KOSCHITZ'S MANUAL of useful information,

48 pages.

THE LITTLE SECRETS by Frank Bonville, 48 pages.

POKER by Hardison, 63 pages.

The three booklets are all published by the Gamblers Book Club in conjunction with Busby Enterprises 113—17th St Oakland CA 94612 USA from whom they can be obtained at Two Dollars each.

All are editions of rare books which the publishers, in the twenty odd years of dealing in books on gambling have never owned any of them and had only seen the Hardison book before. All are true to the originals but have been reset for easier reading, and the title pages have been reproduced to give a flavour of the period in which they were first published.

KOSCHITZ'S MANUAL of information, according to the title page deals with Marks and Stamps, portable and fixed devices, manipulation of cards and other matters of interest to Lovers of Draw, and also that it was published in 1894. In the introduction we are informed that much of the material was obtained in 'actual combat' with experts and that it is the writer's desire that the information be used only for 'self protection'.

Under the heading 'Marks and Stamps' most of the methods of marking cards are exposed some twenty in all including 'roughening'. Wedges, strippers, humps, and briefs i.e. cards cut wider or shorter than the rest of the pack. The 'long' escapes mention the Portable and Fixed Devices include holdouts, shiners, bugs, goose-neck, eagle's claw, and arrangements of glass, pictures, etc.

The section on manipulation in relation to cheating at cards, the usual and wellknown sleights are mentioned including 'butting-in' wherein two halves of pack were made to interlap by pressure and springing one card being made to enter above the other.

There is a list of Stratagems and some General Remarks, the latter contains some gems. Here is one. 'A deformed or one-handed opponent is entitled to the same attention as any of his more physically fortunate rivals'.

For readers seeking definitive instruction for the performance of sleights or information not previously published there is little that will be of interest. Those who enjoy taking a backward step in time if only to find there is little that is really new will derive pleasure from its contents.

Precisely the same can be said of the other titles. That their review is somewhat shorter is not because they are less interesting but due to lack of space.

THE LITTLE SECRETS by Frank Bonville, published in 1904, again repeats the various methods of cheating at poker, but there is additional material explaining how the unwary are parted from their cash. The run-down is given on the methods of Gold Spectacle, Phoney Jewellry, Watch, Whiskey and Razor grafters and how people are short changed.

Readers conversant with ERDNASE will immediately recognise POKER by Hardison, published in 1914, as a 'rip-off' in the sense that it is divided in two parts, one on cheating and the other card tricks, the inadequate illustrations owe much to M.D. Smith, and the appearance in the text of such phrases as 'bucking the tiger', 'mealy-mouthed sophistry', 'annual crop of suckers' is certainly not coincidental. Nevertheless it does contain at least a couple of items which did not appear in its respected progenitor, dealing seconds from the bottom, a sleight which has been re-invented by numerous card men, and the 'spread' one of the most valuable accomplishments of the poker cheat.

So what's new? Not much it appears, at the moment. We had plenty to look at on T.V. over the Xmas period magicwise. . .but it was a great pity that several of the more prominent and spectacular items were duplicated. De Kolta's Vanishing Lady was probably never been seen before on British T.V. but there it was, twice on prime time in two days, apart from the fact that it had an airing in a show from the Magic Circle clubroom two or three months back. It's one of those effects which every magician has read about but no-one ever seriously considers doing . . .until someone does.

The Page boy speaks

And whilst we are on the subject (what subject?) I remember a few years ago I devised, produced, invented, rehearsed, an act for a young man, Colin Rose, who, since then has been doing very nicely thank you. It was an act with the central theme of fire. The idea was to produce fire, either from thin air or silks ala Channing Pollock. Since then, I've seen countless acts, professionals at that, lift pieces of the act, and what's more I've seen them do it thousands of miles apart. (Hey, that's the subject. . .copyists).

To get back to T.V. again; besides the De Kolta effect, we had Selbit's Stretching a Lady again at prime time. Don't think I'm knocking the acts, I'm not. . . In the case of the T.V. shows I would say it was probably ninetyfive percent pure coincidence. . .I enjoyed all of them but for me the palm must go to Richiardi for the slickest presentation of an illusion on T.V. I've seen in many years, the D.K.V.L. The Doug Henning doing his thing show was excellent. . . He fooled me. . . no that's not right. . . one of his assistants fooled me. Okay youse guys with the videotape machines, (I know you have them) what happened to the assistant who was standing behind the Houdini Water Torture Tank, wearing a purple robe? Don't write and tell me he ran off with the others, he didn't. Don't suggest that he probably did this or that, he probably didn't.

Don't remind me of D.H. running off to get the axe, I saw that. If you do write, just tell me where the hell the assistant in the purple robe went to......I'm worried, he had such an interesting face.

In the current copy of the World's Only Magical Weekly there was a leaflet advertising the formation of a Magic Club which is biased towards close-up work and to promote themselves they're having a close-up convention. I don't have the relevant details before me but I do recall it's based in Swindon. A worthy effort, which may see a few more afficionados of the rolled up piece of felt on their way to fame and fortune. Mind you, the fact that they are biased towards close-up work doesn't guarantee anything. I know one magical organisation where the main interest is magic, but......

Do you want to learn a new coin vanish? One you can perform in the nude? One where the coin really goes? You do? Gee, thanks. Well try this.

Show a coin lying on the right fingers. Hold the left hand up, palm up, alongside the right. Turn the right hand over and apparently drop the coin on to the left hand, actually retaining it in the right finger palm. Now two things happen at one and the same time. The left fingers close over the coin??? and at the same time the right hand travels back towards the left wrist and half throws, half drops, the coin on the left arm just at the crook of the elbow. The left hand, held closed, is raised a little, which helps the coin on its way into the fold of flesh and at the same time traps the coin. The left hand now turns back up and the left elbow points out to the left. The coin is trapped between the left forearm and the bisep. The right fingers tap the back of the left hand and both hands open out fully palms towards spectators and separate slightly to frame the face. Try it, it works. If you decide to try it in the nude and wish to dispose of the coin, use a small one, otherwise you may have to enlarge your portable servant. Patrick Page

THE INTERNATIONAL MAGAZINE

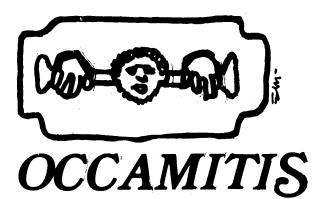

Now in its 4th year.

MAKE SURE EACH ISSUE IS SENT TO YOU REGULARLY. SEND TODAY ONLY £2.00 ($ 6.00) FOR ONE YEAR (SIX) ISSUES SENT POST FREE TO ANYWHERE IN THE WORLD.

32 glossy pages in each issue.

THE INTERNATIONAL MAGIC STUDIO,
(RON MACMILLAN)

89 CLERKENWELL ROAD, HOLBORN,
LONDON, E.C.1.

A freely selected card having been lost in the pack is found by the performer throwing a razor blade into the pack with one hand as it is being riffled with the other. The chosen card is found immediately beneath the blade which does not go completely into the pack but appears to be trapped by the riffle leaving half of the blade projecting outside the end of the pack. Such is the effect as seen by the spectators.

A specially made double card in which a simple but ingenious locking device is concealed and onto which a slotted razor blade can be hooked is responsible for the effect.

To make the gimmick two cards will be required, one of which must be a picture card, some adhesive tape, (Scotch tape to our U.S. friends) and a safety razor blade.

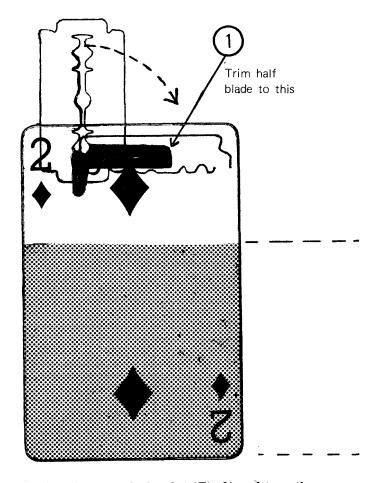

With a pair of scissors cut the blade in half lengthwise and throw one half away. To the half retained wrap a short piece of the tape round one end, sticky side out, and position it on the non-picture card as shown in (Fig.1).

Take the picture card and make a clean cut from the end of the card straight down the line enclosing the picture area for a distance of one third of the card (see Fig.2).

Apply impact adhesive to shaded area of the card on which the half blade is positioned and also on the back of the face card on the two thirds starting from the end of the slit. Stick the two cards together both with the glued surfaces and the tape surrounding the half blade. The latter should now be firmly fixed between the two cards.

Take another blade and insert in the end of the double card threading the free end of the half blade through the slot (Fig.3) and turn the blade in the direction of the arrow until it is concealed between the two cards.

gaeton bloom

To test the fake put it about one third down from the top of the pack and riffle the end of the pack near the corner. This will cause the whole blade to swivel out exposing about half its length but being kept from coming clear of the pack on account of being 'hooked' onto the half blade.

The only preparation necessary before presenting the effect is to load the double card with a blade and put it on the bottom of the pack, and have an extra blade to hand on the

TO PERFORM:-

Hold the pack in the right hand face down in the Hindu shuffle position, with the end containing the blade at the inner end. Commence the shuffle requesting a spectator to stop you at any point he wishes, and to look at and remember the top card of those in the left hand. You then drop the cards remaining in the right hand on top thus bringing the 'fake' immediately above the noted card. It may be that you have been stopped at the point which automatically leaves the 'fake' at the desired position about one third down the pack. If not, a simple cut will do the job. Experts will no doubt achieve the objective by continuing with the Hindu shuffle.

The pack is now placed on the table with the 'loaded' end overlapping the edge nearest the performer for about an inch. The left hand is positioned with its fingers on top of the pack and its thumb at the overlapping end, ready to give the pack an upwards riffle.

The right hand now appears to take the blade and throwing it towards the pack where it is caught between the cards as they are riffled with the left thumb. The blade seen protruding from the pack is the one you had previously loaded in and the one lying on the table was lapped as you drew it towards the edge of the table.

The illusion of the blade being thrown into the the riffled pack is perfect, provided the empty right hand is palm uppermost at the end of the throwing movement and the riffling action is correctly timed.

The pack is now picked up from the table and held in the left hand. The right hand takes the protruding end of the blade with fingers and thumb, disengages it from the half blade, and still keeping half the blade within the pack slides it round from the end of the pack and along the side through the slit in the face card of the fake. With the blade still partially within the pack the right lifts the cards above the blade and shows the face card remarking that it is not the chosen card. The name of the card is now requested and the top card of the bottom half is turned over to reveal the selected card proving (?) that you have only to throw a razor blade into the pack to find a chosen card.

NOTE:-

The manufacturing and selling rights of the above effect are reserved by the originator.

 $3\overline{5}7$

TERAGRAM

The effect now to be described was evolved after partially overhearing a conversation in which an effect was being discussed and the presentation of the trick required that the assisting spectator repeated statements made by the performer. The climax coming when the spectator repeats "I am sitting on the card." On standing up he finds the selected card on his chair seat.

Teragram is the result of my efforts to produce an effect using the same theme without fully understanding the original concept. Subsequently I was informed that the trick under discussion was an Eddie Fechter idea and can be found in his book 'The Magician Nitely'.

EFFECT:

Both spectator and performer have a pack of cards, and each note a card in the others pack, after which both packs are shuffled. In a very funny and mysterious way it is revealed that both noted identical cards, which on looking through the pack are found to be missing. The effect is brought to a climax when performer and spectator discover they are sitting on their selected cards.

REQUIREMENTS:-

Two packs of cards which may be borrowed, and a spectator from the audience to assist, preferably a lady.

PREPARATION:-

Contrive to get a known card beneath your victim, say the six of clubs, as she sits down on the chair. How you manage this is dependent on conditions. Should you use the trick in an impromptu session, just wait, the opportunity will arrive. The pack from which this six of clubs has been taken is handed to the lady, and the top card of your own pack is also the six of clubs.

PRESENTATION:-

Commence by telling the lady that you are going to show her how to become a good magician and for her to be successful she must do exactly as you do, and repeat what you say.

'Please shuffle your cards." As you say this pick up your pack and give it a false shuffle retaining the six of clubs at the top. Your assistant will of course follow your instructions with regard to the shuffle, but most probably forget to repeat what you said and it will be necessary to remind her of this omission. From this point onwards is fun time between you and the lady and the amount of entertainment you generate will depend largely upon your ability and previous experience. Proceed with the trick making the following remarks which are repeated by your helper.

"Please look at the top card of my pack and remember it." You push the top card over the side of the pack and hold it close to her face and she will note the six of clubs. She will do the same which prevents others from seeing it is not the six of clubs.

"Please shuffle your cards again." Keep your top card in position.

"Put your pack into your left jacket pocket."

As you make this remark taking the pack in the left hand retaining the top card, the six of clubs, palmed in the right hand. Simultaneously turn your body to the right keeping your face towards the audience. This twisting of the body is made presumably to let the audience see clearly that the pack is put into the pocket but it also serves another important purpose. In making the movement the right hand, with its palmed card, goes naturally onto the edge of the chair seat in order to preserve balance. Once in this position it is a simple matter to slide the palmed card beneath the right buttock. Keeping your eyes on the spectator as you put the pack into the pocket will provide the misdirection necessary to cover the move. It is of course unlikely that a lady assistant would have side jacket pockets. You appear not to notice this until you have your card safely in position, suggest that she could either put her pack in her handbag or a gentleman's pocket. All the physical moves necessary to the effect are now finished and the presentation continues with the spectator repeating your remarks until the name(s) of the noted cards are revealed and the cards themselves discovered.

"Your card was a black card."

"It was a club?"

"A spot card, and not a picture."

"What's your telephone number."

"I'm not telling you."

"That's nothing to do with the trick."

"I know."

These and other irrelevant remarks can be thrown in (or out) depending upon your particular style or the mood of the company.

"Your card was the six of clubs."

"You find your card and I'll find mine."

You now both look through the pack and fail to find a six of clubs. Say,

"I can't find it."

"You're sitting on it."

When your assistant repeats this last remark stand up and look down on your chair seat at the six of clubs pretending surprise. It may take a second for the 'penny to drop' in fact it may be necessary for you to repeat "You're sitting on it" before the lady stands up and discovers her own six of clubs.

As an impromptu card effect I feel it would take some beating. Its practicability was amply proved when I performed it recently several times at the Magic Circle during the Pabular evening. There is plenty of potential for having fun and it has a strong magical climax. Hope you like it. Margaret does.

We will not make any money from this advertisement. Jay Marshall will. So will Bill & Irene Larsen.

if you are a working performer, toss this magazine down this very second, grab a telephone and act.

We can send you a well illustrated book for £1.50 (extra 25p overseas) it will teach you a very fine, visible trick recently seen on British television. . . You must then buy the Christmas issue of Genii in which my ex-pupil, now a very successful professional in the States, Nicky Lewin, published an addition WORTH A MILLION TO THE WORKING ARTISTE. Do not write to us for Genii please, write Larsen and let him have the run around to the Post Office.

We won't tell you what the book is called. You may have it and, in any case, this information is worth lots more than both publications will cost you.

Now — some will act, others will think this is a gag or come on. Those known to us ACT NOW and get a priceless, visible and practical entertaining stunt.

Even if you have to ring Jay Marshall or Larsen — don't miss out if you are a performer.

This establishment offers congratulations to Paul Daniels on his success in obtaining top billing at 'The Savoy' Must go right to the very top!

RING NOW

There's No Place Like
KEN BROOKE'S MAGIC PLACE - 145 WARDOUR STREET
LONDON. W.1. - ENGLAND

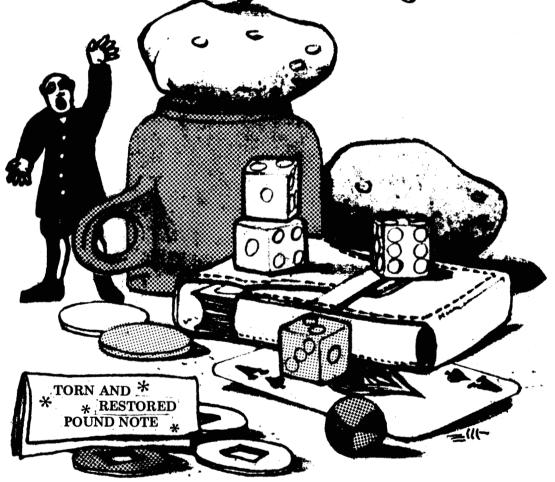

Tel: 01-734 9240

To Wagging of Class up Wagis

Ge Magazine of Close-up Magic

Vol:3Nº26 FEB.1977

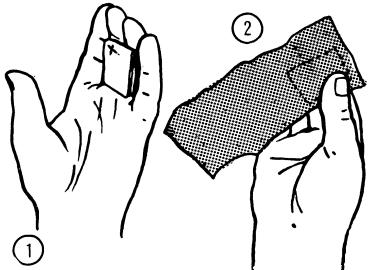

assemblage

*This is my handling of a method devised by Sam Berland. If desired the note may be a borrowed one and signed by the spectator from whom it is borrowed.

You will require a portion of an imitation note, nearly half, which is folded in half twice making a square packet which is concealed at the base of the fingers in the left hand, with the folded corner (the corner at which there are no edges) at the position shown in (Fig.1).

DAVID CARRÉ

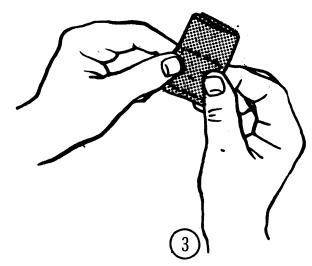

Taking the note with the right hand put it in the left covering the fake as you display it, and then retake it with the right at the same time stealing the fake gripping it between the right. third and fourth fingers at the corner diagonally opposite the folded one. This grip allows the note to be handled casually as it is smoothed out and twisted end for end. The right second, third and fourth fingers can be curled inwards towards the palm further concealing the fake and enabling the note to be handled openly and freely. At the end of the movements, (the purpose of which is to let the spectators see that the hands are holding only the note), the right thumb should be towards the end of the note which is pointing towards the audience (Fig.2).

The note is now folded in half taking the inner end over towards the other end and under the right thumb. The left hand now creases the fold, and as it does so the right first and second fingertips press on the fake holding it against the underside of the note enabling the right third and fourth fingers to release their grip on it.

Fold the note once more by taking the folded edge over to meet the ends squarely and crease the new fold.

Both hands now hold the note, thumbs above and fingers beneath (Fig.3). The dotted lines indicate the position of the fake which is held square with the third and fourth fingers of both hands. The folded corner of the fake is indicated by X.

The first and second fingers of both hands are now brought from beneath the note and pressing down on the outer end fold it in half trapping the fake within. Up to this point it has been necessary to keep the outer end of the note dipped down slightly to keep the fake hidden, but now the hands move their general position bringing the back of the hands towards the audience who now see the folded packet 'flat on'.

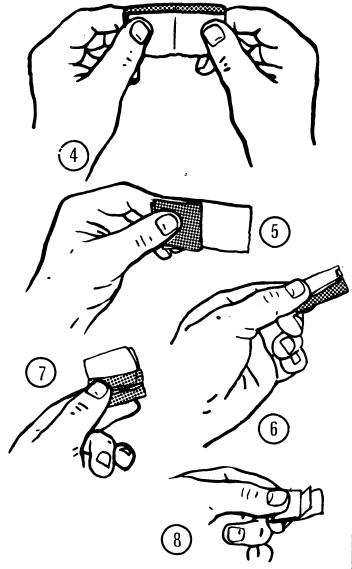

Crease this last fold sharply and give the packet a quarter turn bringing this folded edge to the left side. Re-open the packet at the centre which will open out one fold of the fake leaving it with one fold and hidden from the audience behind the note (Fig.4). The right fingers now bend the end of the packet it is holding forwards and round folding it in half, thus bringing the fake to the outside of the packet and into view of the audience for the first time who will accept what they see as the genuine note.

Using both thumbs open the fake only which will leave the folded note behind the fake and held with the left thumb (Fig. 5).

The right hand now tears the fake in half with a downwards action, and puts the half it is holding under the left fingers and onto the other half of the fake with the newly torn edges together. The pieces are now neatly squared and in so doing the packet is turned end for end.

Hold the packet between the fingers underneath and the thumbs above. Fold it just above the halfway line bringing the fake pieces outside the note leaving the edges staggered (Fig.6). Re-open the fake pieces leaving the folded note held hidden from the audience behind the fake (Fig.7). Aided by the right hand the left turns the packet over bringing the note to the audience side of the fake where it is covered with the left fingers. The right hand tears the fake as before, and puts the portion it is holding under the left thumb on top of the rest of the fake, again with newly torn edges together. The right hand now takes the packet and turns it over.

Give the packet a quarter turn to the right. The index fingers pushing the outer end of the packet upwards and over inwards folding it just above the halfway line trapping the note inside the fake. The position is now as in (Fig.6) again, but the packet is of course smaller.

The packet is re-opened, but this time at least one layer of the fake is left beneath the left thumb (Fig.8). Turn packet over and tear fake in half putting pieces in right hand under the left thumb. Turn packet over bringing the layer that was left under the left thumb back into that position. This layer is now opened and folded back round the torn pieces trapping them within. The folded note is now immediately under the left thumb with the torn pieces of the fake in a neat parcel beneath. The note is now unfolded and shown to be completely restored. During this operation the fake pieces beneath can be folded in half once again making a still smaller parcel which can be passed from hand to hand beneath the note as the creases are being smoothed out. It is important that all the folds should be made neatly and each one well creased, and also that the torn pieces be kept neatly squared. The staggered edges created by not folding the packet exactly in half enables the note to be opened more easily to show its restoration.

COIN CONGREGATION

The plot of this effect is the familiar one in which three silver coins disappear one at a time to join another covered with a playing card. In this method the performer admits that he uses more than four coins and reveals that he is using an extra one — but it is seen to be a copper one. There is a final 'kicker' when the four silver coins suddenly change into copper ones which have holes in the centre.

You will require four U.S. half dollars or other silver coins about that size, a matching coin which is copper on one side and four copper coins with holes bored through their centres. You will need two playing cards and a mat on which to perform.

Also required is the ability to 'classic' palm four coins in the right hand retaining them in that position throughout the routine, and on occasion to perform the same sleight with one coin in the left hand. You will also need to use the move described by Derek Dingle in 'Dingle's Deceptions' in which a card is turned over without exposing a coin hidden behind it.

Before commencing the performance get the four copper coins classic palmed in the right hand and a silve one likewise in the left hand.

Begin by arranging the other coins on your mat in square formation thus:

A	B
silver	silver/copper
C	D
silver	silver

The fake coin is, of course, silver side up.

The two playing cards are then placed face up between the coins at C and D.

COIN CONGREGATION by David Carre

The right hand picks up the card on the left and puts it in the left hand which turns it face down and places it over the coin at A with the palmed coin beneath it making two coins under the card at A.

The coin at C is now picked up with the right hand allowing both sides to be seen as it is taken with the left hand which holds it edgewise between the thumb and finger tips. The right hand appears to take it but the French drop is performed leaving it in the left hand. The right hand supposedly containing the coin makes a sprinkling motion over the card at A, and then picks up the card revealing two coins. The card is now placed into the left hand over the coin left there and performing the Dingle move turn the card face down and placing it with the coin concealed beneath over the two coins at A, making three coins at that position.

The right hand picks up the coin at D and drops it onto the fingers of the open left hand which close over it. The right thumb now raises the nearest long side of the card to the right and the left hand apparently puts its coin beneath it. Actually it is retained in the left hand. It is important that when the finger and thumb emerge from under the card they must be in such a position to convey that the coin has been left beneath.

The left fingertips press the coin into the classic palm as it moves to raise the card at A. When the card is removed the audience expect to see the coin just vanished to have arrived there making three in all, but they see only two. There were of coursethree coins under the card but one was lifted up with and hidden beneath it. This is a simple move and is achieved by pressing the tip of the index finger on the back of the card immediately over a coin at the edge nearest you as the tip of the thumb bends under both the card and coin lifting them together (Fig.1). The card is then replaced with coin beneath over the two coins.

The performer at this point is in an extremely strong position, being two moves ahead. An extra coin under the card and one palmed in the left hand.

A magical gesture is now made over the card which is then raised in the fairest possible manner to reveal the arrival of the third coin. The card is then dropped face up onto the mat. The card covering? the coin at D is raised, showing 'nothing there', and it also is dropped face up onto the table.

The right hand picks up the card on the left and places it in the left hand which adds its palmed coin beneath, and using the Dingle move turns the card face down, and with the coin hidden beneath places it over the three coins at A, making four at that position. The other card is then placed over the coin at B, the silver/copper one.

Using both hands the two cards are raised simultaneously, the left taking one of the coins with its card using the move described earlier. The audience seeing three coins at A and one at B are satisfied that nothing has happened as yet. Replace the cards and make the usual gesture. Raise the cards together as before, but this time no coin is seen at B all coins now being at A completing the effect.

An additional subtlety is employed when raising the card and coin at B. As the thumb tip goes under the card and coin the tip of the second finger goes to the opposite edge of the card and pulls upwards bending the card lengthwise as it leaves the surface of the mat (Fig.2). The card is only held in this position momentarily before the second finger releases its hold letting it snap flat. Do not make a production out of this move which is not made with the intention of proving that the coin is no longer there but rather as a casual action which prevents any such suspicions arising.

It is now necessary for the coin to be held against the face of the card with the tips of the fingers instead of with the thumb, in other words, to reverse the relative positions of the thumb and fingers after the snapping action.

To achieve this bring the second finger from the back of the card to the face and on the coin which is being held in place with the thumb. Both card and coin are now held between the index and second fingers enabling the thumb to move to the back of the card. The index finger is now moved to the face of the card and onto the coin completing the operation, which takes only a second or so, tends together with the snapping action to dispel any notion the audience may have that the hand contains anything other than the card, which is then used to tip the card in left hand face up. This face up card is then put beneath the card in the right hand, and with a sliding movement pushes it between the face down card and the coin.

As the cards become square with each other the left fingers take the coin keeping it pressed against the bottom card. The right hand turns the top card face up and squares the two cards the left fingers turn the coin over bringing the copper side uppermost. The two cards with the coin concealed beneath are placed on the mat to the performer's right.

The right hand now picks up the four silver coins and appears to throw them into the left. hand but actually thumbs palms them. It is the classic palmed copper coins that leave the right hand and which the left fingers close over.

You now say to the spectators "Maybe you think that I am using more than four coins?" The two cards are turned face down revealing the fake coin copper side uppermost as you continue, "yes, I also use a copper coin."

This item is a production of four dice which are then used to perform the well-known Chink-a-Chink effect. This latter is also explained as it may be welcomed by readers of Pabular who find the remaining material in this issue too difficult but enjoy doing effects that appear to require clever sleight of hand but are in fact relatively easy to perform.

First the production of four dice. With two dice palmed in the left hand and three palmed in the right, the tips of the right fingers and thumb scrape up some imaginery dust from the table top and the hand closes into a fist. One of the palmed dice is then allowed to fall out of the fist from between the thumb and forefinger onto the table having apparently transformed the particles of 'dust' into a solid die.

The left hand picks up this materialised die and closes the hand into a fist which now contains three dice. The die is then let fall onto the table through the top of the fist in the same manner as it was produced from the right hand. The left hand now lets one of its palmed dice fall from the closed fist to join the first one. The right hand picks up one of the tabled dice and closes into a fist and repeats the dropping of two dice making a total of three dice on the table. Repeat with left hand producing the fourth die leaving one still palmed in the right hand.

The dice are now formed into a square on the table thus,

A B

In placing the dice both hands should be used and the action should be casual and unhurried in exactly the same manner as if the right hand was actually empty. It would help to achieve this end if the dice were first arranged without the palmed die and then copy the same actions with the die palmed which would ensure that the audience would not suspect that anything was concealed due to audience would not have their suspicions aroused by an unnatural movement.

With the dice set out about twelve inches apart and one palmed in the right you are now ready to cause the dice at A,B and C, to magically join the one at B. In other words Chink-a-Chink.

Place the right hand with palmed die flat on the one at B, and the empty left hand flat over the one at D. Raise the right hand leaving its palmed die on the table and then raise the left, which having palmed the die it was covering, creates the illusion of the die at D having moved to join the one at B.

JUST DICE by Dave Carré

The left hand with its palmed die covers the two at B, and the empty right hand covers the one at C. The left hand is now raised showing three dice at B, and the right at C moving away with the die it was covering palmed.

The right hand with its palmed die now covers the three at B and the empty left hand covers the one remaining at A. The right hand is raised showing all four dice having arrived at position B, and the left is then raised having palmed the die it was covering, shows 'nothing there'. During all the movements of the routine the hands should be kept open and palms down and when placing the hand over a die to be palmed it should be so positioned that the die can be palmed without having to adjust the hand to get it into the palming position.

Immediately the effect is over the hands relax and come to rest on the table near the edge and release the palmed die letting it fall onto the lap.

Should you have no dice immediately to hand try out the effect using metal bottle tops in place of the dice. They are well suited for this effect, the crinkled edges make for easy palming.

THE GARD
EXPERT

This sequence of affects has been designed with the object of impressing the spectators that your control of the pasteboards is such that anything is possible. It should be presented as an exhibition of technical skill.

The routine begins with the four aces appearing face up out of the centre of a shuffled pack one at a time. On being placed face up on top of the pack they disappear, also one at a time.

The pack is now cut four times, and on each cut an ace appears and is placed face up onto the table.

The top card is shown and used as an ambitious card which ends with two halves of the pack being mixed, some face up and some face down. On being spread across the table all are face down with the exception of the ambitious one which is face up.

The tabled aces are now put into the pack and lost only to be found again in quick succession and replaced on the table.

After shuffling the pack four cards are dealt onto each ace making each into a royal flush.

The pack is now cut to reveal the ambitious card at the face of the top half which is put face up onto the bottom half, and the top half placed aside. The ambitious card is dealt face up onto the table followed by the next three cards which are seen to match numerically.

The routine concludes when the tabled half is shown, picked up, and the cards in both hands spread to show one hand with all the red cards and the other all blacks.

The only preparation required is the arrangement of the pack in the following order reading from the top of the face-up pack and that the eight of hearts be crimped.

KC, QC, JC, 10C, KH, QH, JH, 10H, KS, QS, JS, 10S, KD, QD, JD, 10D, one red card, 8C, four black cards, the four Aces face down, ten black cards, 8S, 8D, 8H (crimped), thirteen red cards.

Commence the presentation by giving the pack a false shuffle and a false cut without destroying the initial arrangement. This being an exhibition of skill the shuffles and cuts need not conform to normal card table procedure but may be varied and include those most likely to impress the onlookers with your technical skill. However, care must be taken not to expose the face up aces.

With the pack face up in left hand dealing position obtain a left little finger break above the four Aces, an easy matter because of the natural break formed by the face up aces. The left hand turns over bringing the pack face down and during this action the little finger tip presses inwards turning the break into a step. Cut the pack at this step and complete the cut bringing the four aces face up at the bottom of the face down pack.

Holding the pack in both hands, long side towards the audience, between the two thumbs on the inner long side and the second and third fingers on the opposite long side. Both index fingers are curled up on the back of the top card and little fingers at either ends of the pack. The right thumb presses down on the edge of the bottom card and gains a break.

The pack is now divided the left hand taking the top half and the right hand the bottom half. The right hand now brings its half to the position shown in (Fig.1) where it rests lightly on the half in the left hand in readiness for the Piet Forton move in which the right hand makes an outward throwing action in which it moves forward for about an inch returning instantly back to its original position. The object of this throw is to give impetus to the ace below the break which is released by easing the thumb as the outward throw is made. In returning to its original position the top half traps the ace, which is moving forward, between itself and the bottom half as shown in (Fig.2).

The ace is allowed to fall face up onto the table and the remaining three aces are produced in the same manner, and the left hand half of the pack placed on the half in the right hand.

Take a left little finger break under the top four cards of the face down pack and put the four aces face up on top — a position from which they will disappear one by one using a move credited to Frank Garcia.

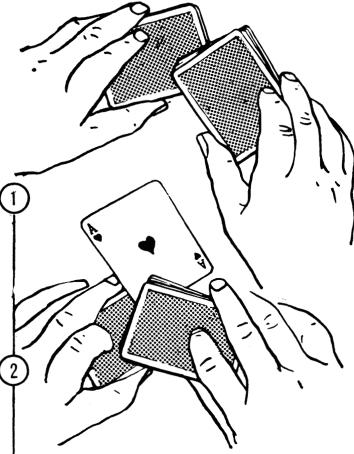

The right hand with thumb at the inner end and fingers at the outer end takes the cards above the break and moves away to the right; the left thumb pressing on the back of the top card of the packet retains it letting it fall onto the pack in the left hand. The cards in the right hand are placed on top of the pack in the left hand.

Spread out the three aces and continue to spread showing the back of the three following cards. The first ace has disappeared

Close up the spread taking a left little finger break under the sixth card and cause the next ace to disappear by repeating the same moves which caused the first ace to vanish. This time take the little finger break under the fourth card as the spread is closed.

Repeat the moves with the third ace but this time spread only the remaining ace at the top of the pack and the second card, otherwise the face of the ace just vanished would be revealed.

The last remaining ace which is face up on top of the pack is made to disappear by using the colour change described on pages 151-2 of 'Erdnase' under the heading 'Transormations'. In effecting this change the second card is brought to the top, or to put it another way the first and second cards are transposed. A variant of this sleight is explained in Vernon's 'Inner Secrets of Card Magic' by Lewis Ganson, and requires that the right hand be placed flat on pack and moved forwards and back to its original position. A similar movement should be made each time, without transposing the two cards, before spreading the top cards to show the disappearance of the first three aces thus giving some uniformity to the vanishes.

The four aces are now caused to reappear one at a time by double cutting, i.e. a break is taken beneath the top card and the pack is cut retaining the break with the right thumb. The pack is then cut at the break bringing the ace to the top which is then placed face up onto the table. Repeat until all four aces are face up on the table. Do not return them to the pack.

Now follows an ambitious card interlude with the eight of clubs, which due to the arrangement, is now the top card. Turn this card face up leaving it on top of the pack. It is now necessary to bring the bottom card of the pack to the top face down covering the face up eight of clubs.

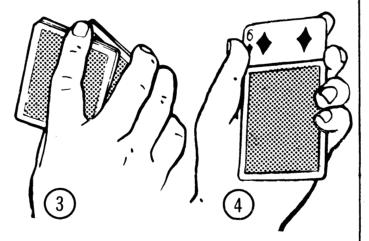

To achieve this take a break above the bottom card with the right thumb and hold the pack in the right hand in the Biddle position. The right index finger tip lifts up about half the pack and swivels the outer end towards the left, the right thumb acting as a fulcrum (Fig. 3). The left hand takes this top half away by gripping it in the thumb crotch and then allowing it to fall onto its palm. The right hand half is now placed on top completing the cut and the left little fingertip taking the break held by the right thumb. The right thumb re-taking the break cuts the pack about halfway between the break and the bottom of the pack. Complete the cut, and cut again at the break. Complete this cut also.

THE CARD EXPERT by David Carre

The right hand, thumb at inner end and fingers at the outer end now remove the two top cards as one and the left thumb pushes the new top card over the right side of the pack for about an inch. It is then tipped over face up using the card(s) in the right hand.

The card(s) in the right hand are now placed on top of the pack but injogged for about half their length leaving about half the face up card visible (Fig.4). The double card is now pushed forward until it is square with the pack when the right thumb releases the bottom card of the two and the right fingertips pressing on the back of the top card pull it back inwards to its original position to reveal the face up card having changed to the eight of clubs. This single card is now placed on the bottom of the pack.

You now perform the double lift and turnover and take the top card which the spectators believe to be the eight of clubs, actually it is a red card, and push it into the pack amongst the red cards. The top card is now shown to be the eight of clubs which has mysteriously moved from the centre of the pack back to the top.

With the eight of clubs face down on top hold the pack in the right hand with the thumb at the inner end and the fingers at the outer end perform the swivel move as explained before. Do not complete the cut but push the top card of the packet in the left hand over the side, the eight of clubs, and tip it face up. Turn it back face down using the same action and at the same time let the bottom card of the right hand packet fall on top of it. This is the well known secret addition move. The right hand still holding its packet extends its second finger and with it pushes the added card forward over the outer end of the left hand packet and then drops its cards square on those in the left hand, leaving the indifferent card outjogged. Holding the pack in the left hand and with the tip of its index finger push about half the cards below the one outjogged inwards, see (Fig.5). The right hand takes them and puts them on top of the pack. Repeat the move, this time taking all the cards below the outjogged one. Again using the index finger push the outjogged bottom card flush with the pack. At this point the eight of clubs is at the top of the pack, the spectators believing it to be at the bottom.

You now claim that the eight of clubs has risen to the top of the pack, but on turning the top card over it is seen to be the ten of diamonds because you did a double lift and turnover. Turn the two cards as one face down and hand the top card to a spectator requesting him to wave it towards the pack. You now turn over the top card — once again it is the ten of diamonds. Look directly at the spectator as you turn the ten of diamonds face down and, if he has not already done so, ask him to look at the card he is holding. It will, of course, be the eight of clubs. Take it from the spectator and push it into the centre of the pack, immediately steal it out using the side steal or any other method you may prefer, and put the pack on the table. Produce the stolen card from an inside pocket and drop it onto the table. Take the pack in the left hand and with the right cut off about half the cards and gather the tabled eight of clubs face down onto the top of the cards in the left hand. The right hand replaces its cards on top of those in the left taking a break between the two halves with the left little finger. The left fingertips squeeze the top half inwards losing the break but creating a step. This step is retained as the right hand takes the pack, thumb on back of top card and fingers beneath on the face of the bottom card, and puts it face down onto the table, in position for a Zarrow shuffle.

Place both index fingers on the back of the top card to retain the step and as the remaining digits are positioned to divide the pack into two halves the left thumb makes a break at the step. The right hand takes the half above the break, turns them face up and Zarrows them into the other half beneath the top card. To convince the spectators that the face up and face down cards are hopelessly mixed cut the pack alternatively in the face up and face down halves in an apparently random manner. Then cut the pack where the cards are back to back, there is a natural break at this point which makes it a simple matter, and put the top half in the left hand. Pick up the tabled half consisting of all face down cards, and turn it face up put it on top of the cards in the left hand as shown in (Fig.6) allowing the spectators to note that the cards are 'boxed'. Push the face up top half forward until it is square with the lower half. Turn the pack over and spread across the table showing all the cards to be face down with one exception, the eight of clubs, which is face up.

Push the face up eight of clubs out of the spread and gather up the remaining cards, retaining their order and turn them face up. Leaf through the pack and when you arrive at the eight of hearts divide the pack to the left of it and place the half containing it face up on top of the face up tabled eight of hearts. All four eights will be at the bottom of this pile which should be picked and placed face up on top of the face up half in the left hand.

Reading from the face of the pack the order of the cards should be: Fourteen black cards — 8S - 8D - 8H - 8C - Fourteen red cards — K, Q, J, 10 of clubs, K, Q, J, 10 of hearts, K, Q, J, 10 of spades, K, Q, J, 10 of diamonds with the four aces up on the table.

Holding the pack face up in the right hand make four piles by dropping packets from the bottom of the pack onto the table the first packet to your left, the second to the right of it followed by the third. The remaining cards forming the fourth heap. Put an ace face up on each of the first three piles. Pick up heap No.1 and take a break under the ace double cut sending it to the bottom of the packet. Place heap No.2 on top and double cut as before and repeat with heap No.3. The three aces will now be on the bottom of the face up pack. Turn the cards face down and put the tabled ace face down on top, and perform a few false cuts retaining the order of the cards with the four aces on top. The routine requires that the topmost ace be faced in the pack and this is accomplished as follows. Take a break under the top ace with the left little finger and pick-up heap No 4 with the right hand which places it face up on the cards on the left. The right thumb takes over the break from the left little finger and this face up packet is moved diagonally forward. Spread a few of these face up cards and holding them with the right hand as the left turns its packet face up. The right hand with its partially spread packet assists in spreading about ten of those in the left finally squaring up the cards leaving those in the right on top. Turn the pack face down and double cut bringing the topmost ace to the bottom. Perform any false shuffles and cuts which retains the order of the cards. Produce the four aces in rapid succession and as they appear place them face up in a row on the table. Turn the top card over, an ace. Turn pack over to show an ace at the face. Turn it back face down and show new top card to be an ace, and produce the last ace by spreading the pack face down across the table where it is seen to be face up in the centre of the spread. These aces are placed face up onto the table as they appear.

Give the pack a false shuffle retaining the order. You are now ready for the climax.

You now tell the audience that using the same skill which you have used to perform the tricks they have seen makes it possible to win when playing cards.

Proceed to prove this by dealing the top four cards onto the face up ace of diamonds and four each also face up onto the ace of spades, ace of hearts, and ace of clubs making four royal flushes. Put the remainder of the pack face down onto the table.

Continue by saying, "It is a simple matter to find any of the remaining cards, for instance, it is quite easy to find the eight of clubs," (the ambitious one). This is easy because the eight of hearts, which was crimped beforehand, is next to it. Right hand cuts at the crimp and shows the eight of clubs which the left hand removes and puts it face up on the table, as the right hand puts the cards it holds face down onto the table towards the right. Left hand picks up the half with the eight of clubs face up on top and deals it onto the table continuing to deal the next three cards face up showing them to be the other three eights, and replacing the remaining cards onto the table towards the left.

You now have face up on the table four royal flushes, the four eights and two face down packets.

Calling attention to the face up royal flushes and the four eights remark that "There must be some truth in the old saying 'That birds of a feather flock together' "— pick up the face down packets, one in each hand, and fan them out simultaneously showing all red cards in the right hand and all black cards in the left, concluding the routine.

As the royal flushes and the four eights are revealed they should be positioned so that at the conclusion they form a neat display.

TMPROMPTU CUP&BALL

In this effect a small ball is magically produced and covered with a cup. It is then apparently pulled through the bottom of the cup. The ball is now disposed of, and upon lifting the cup a potato is revealed which is also put away, and again the cup is lifted and yet another potato makes its appearance.

The plot which follows closely that of the deservedly popular Chop Cup is not offered as an alternative, but as a substitute when the required properties are not to hand.

Any cup, mug or beaker, may be used in place of the standard one provided it will hold the final loads. Two balls are needed or you can substitute sugar cubes, olives, nuts or anything of similar size provided the two can be held classic palmed. Onions, apples, or small oranges may take the place of the potatoes.

With a potato in the right side outer coat pocket and another in the opposite side pocket and two small balls classic palmed in the right hand you ask for a cup, beaker or whatever.

Show the borrowed cup and emphasise it is empty by wiggling the right fingers inside, an action which also removes any suspicion that the right hand is other than empty.

Place the cup mouth down onto the table a little to the left of centre and with the right finger tips pretend to gather some dust particles from the surface of the table and in so doing let one of the balls fall from its palmed position onto the fingers and close the hand into a loose fist. Cause the ball to make its appearance by squeezing out of the top of the fist and pause for a moment before letting it fall onto the table.

The left hand lifts up the cup and the right the ball from the table simultaneously, and as the cup is turned slowly mouth towards the audience who again see it to be empty, the right fingers press the ball into the classic palm next to the other one. If you look at the cup as you slowly turn it mouth to audience any slight movement of the right fingers will pass unoticed. The right hand now appears to put the ball under the cup as the left hand replaces it mouth downwards onto the table immediately in front of you.

It was for the purpose of this misdirection that the cup was placed towards the left initially.

The right hand now makes a gesture immediately over the cup and appears to pull something through the top (bottom) of the cup which is put into the left hand the fingers of which immediately close over it. During the gesture a ball was released from the palm to fall onto the fingers and actually put into the left hand but the audience were not allowed to see it. The left hand now produces the ball at the fingertips.

The right hand now tilts the cup back leaving it lying on the table with its mouth pointing slightly towards the spectators on the right. It is of course empty. During this action the ball in the right palm has been allowed to fall onto the fingers. The right hand now brings the cup into an upright position at the same time secretly loading the ball.

Attention is now called to the ball in the left hand, the fingers of which close over it as it turns palm downwards. In closing the fingers the ball is moved towards the heel of the palm where it is held with the tips of the first and second fingers. The right hand now approaches the left and makes a passing movement over it, and as it does so the left hand turns bringing the ball into contact with the right palm which steals it directly into the classic palm position. The right hand starts the movement just beyond the closed left hand and moves inwards over it and turns up at the correct time to bring the ball into contact with the right palm so that when the right hand moves outwards again towards its original position it rolls the ball over the nails of the first and second fingers of the left hand when the right classic palms it and continues outwards clear of the left fist.

The gesture should be a slow one and appear to the spectators as a casual passing movement over the left closed hand. In effecting the steal no movement of the left fingers should be made. Only pressure of the right hand is required to palm off the ball from the knuckles of the left fingers.

Having stolen the ball the right hand makes a downwards gesture over the cup after which the left hand slowly opens and is seen to be empty. The right hand now picks up the cup to reveal the previously loaded ball and passes the cup into the left hand, which holds it mouth facing the audience.

The ball palmed in the right hand is allowed to fall into the curled fingers of that hand, as the left passes cup to the right hand the ball is loaded and the cup is placed mouth downwards onto the table. During the loading of the ball and putting the cup onto the table the left hand is picking up ball from the table.

This visible ball is placed into the left side coat pocket and the hand comes out with the potato palmed as the right lifts up the cup to reveal the previously loaded ball.

The cup is now passed to the left hand which holds it in the correct position for loading the potato, which it does, and as the loaded cup is placed onto the table the right hand picks up the ball, displays it for a moment then puts it into the right side coat pocket and gets possession of the second potato.

The left hand picks up the cup to reveal the first potato as the right comes out with the second one palmed. The cup is passed to the right hand and the palmed potato loaded and as the cup is placed onto the table the left picks up the visible potato which it puts into the pocket.

The right hand now slowly raises the cup revealing the second potato and bringing the routine to an end.

On two previous occasions we have devoted a complete issue to the effect of one magician. Predictably, both numbers received favourable comment from our readers as they were the work of Roy Walton and Walt Lees both well known for their previously published work.

This issue is comprised exclusively of the methods used by David Carre whose name is familiar only to those who have seen him work, little of his material having been published. Seekers of novelty of effect or self workers will find little of interest but for those who enjoy using manipulation to achieve their effects will welcome the challenge offered by the contents of this issue.

The practicality of the tricks is beyond question. On many occasions we have seen David perform these and other effects, (most of which will appear periodically in this magazine,) with flawless technique and seemingly effortless ease. Visitors to the Ramsay Reunion will be seeing all these effects on colour film made by Lewis Ganson, and that will no doubt cause the non-readers to buy this issue. Undoubtedly they will be surprised at the amount of skill required to perform the effects in the casual manner shown on the screen.

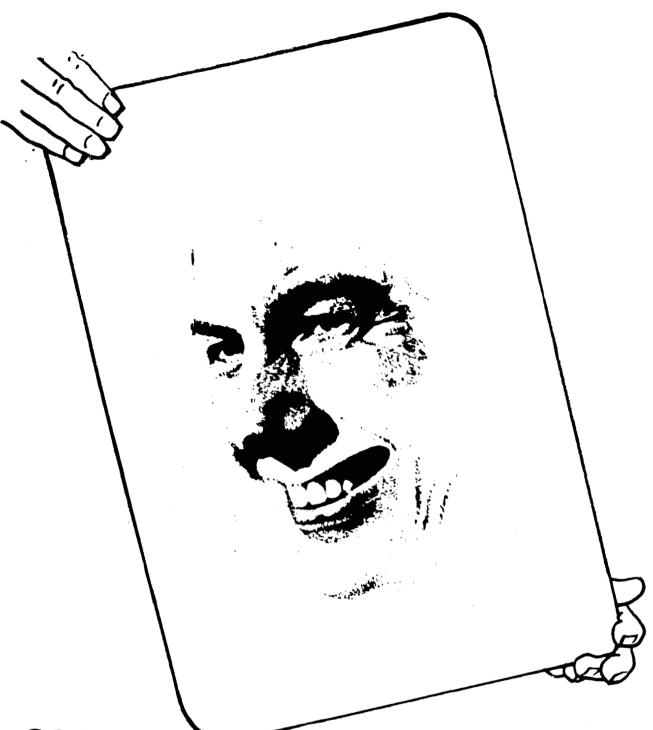

The contributions of Lewis Ganson to the literature of magic, particularly in the field of close-up have been of enormous value to the fraternity. His expertise and long experience as a magical author plus his own professional work in photography have enabled him to produce an excellent film of close-up magic. We understand that copies will be made and on sale in the near future.

Only half a dozen tickets for the Ramsay Reunion remain unsold and these will be gone long before this issue is printed. There have been many problems and we thought they had all been solved until Frank Farrow came up with a new one when he remarked, "Who are you going to get next year?" Perhaps you would let us know who you would like, with one proviso, it must be someone who has not appeared in this country previously. Magicians have an insatiable desire for something new whether it be tricks or performers and it is an unending challenge to produce either.

Way back in 1951 the F.I.S.M. Congress took place in Barcelona. It was there Fred Kaps won his first Grand Prix and John Ramsay, with spectators almost sitting on his shoulders, won the close-up, a kind of magic which had not yet 'caught on' in Spain. Since then, mainly due to the influence of Ascanio there are some excellent performers who will soon be household names in magic. Juan Tamarix tells us there are some brilliant performers in South America, where the language which is Spanish, prevents them from being known in the English speaking world. Perhaps that is where we will find some new faces for next year.

THE PAGEBOY

Lack of space in this special issue has caused The Pageboy to vanish this month. He will reappear in our March issue as usual.

The SIDEWATK SHUFFLE

Routine-Handling & Presentation by FRED KAPS

£4.75 U.S.$20.00 inc. Airmail

Money back if not delighted

There's No Place Like
KEN BROOKE'S MAGIC PLACE - 145 WARDOUR STREET
LONDON. W.1. - ENGLAND
Tel: 01-734 9240

Pabular is published after the second week in every month and is printed by Instance Printers, Paddock Wood, Kent, England. Subscriptions may be obtained direct from the publishers, Pabular, P.O. Box 180, London SE12 8JJ or through many magic dealers. Price 60 pence per copy (or US $1.25) surface post included. Air Mail extra (US $0.50) per copy or (US $6.00) per year. Editorial or content copy should be sent to Fred Robinson, 1 Crescent Court, 24 Crescent Road, New Barnet, Herts, England. Advertising rates sent on request — smalls 3 pence per word (US 10 cents). Dealer enquiries welcomed. Reproductions of old prints and historical magical items by kind permission of Tony Faro.

Ge Magazine of Close-up Magic Vol:3 №7&8 MAR-APR.1977

TAKE THREE

Once upon a time the universal method used by conjurers — we had not yet reached the status of being called magicians — to cause a coin or other small object to disappear by sleight of hand was the French drop. Over the years variations of this move have appeared in print, some of which, though not many, may be regarded as improvements.

A method popular with John Ramsay was one in which a coin held at the tips of the left fingers was caused to swivel round behind the left fingers with the right hand as the latter appeared to remove it. In John's hands this was completely illusive due as much to the misdirection which accompanied the sleight, as the technique used. Here are three variations, the first one by Patrick Page.

fred robinson

TAKE THREE described by Fred Robinson

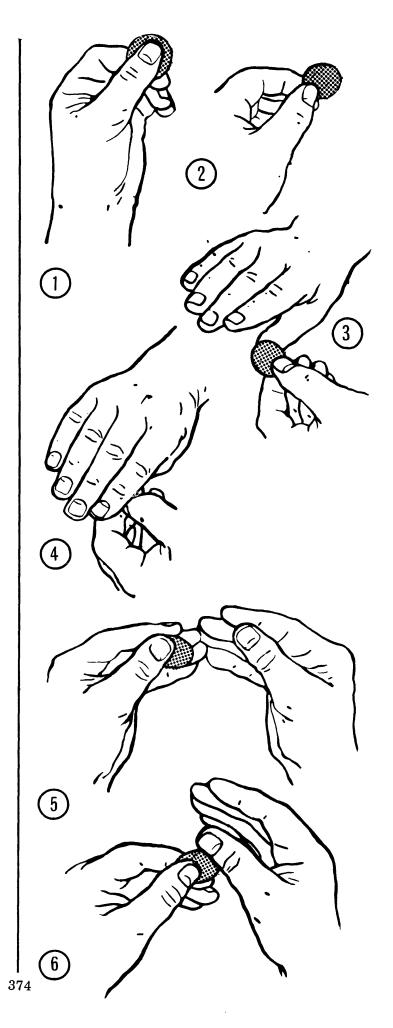

Hold the coin in the left hand with the thumb extended up behind the coin. The tips of the fingers are about the centre of the other side of the coin, leaving about half of its surface visible to the audience (Fig.1). The right hand comes in to take the coin and as its fingers cover it from the view of the audience the left thumb pulls it downwards behind the left fingers where it is hidden. The right hand now moves away apparently taking the coin. The merit of this method is that the left fingers are in a naturally curved position when holding the coin at the beginning of the sleight and remain so after the right hand has removed the coin. No movement of these fingers is required after the sleight to adjust the coin as it is safely in the finger palm position.

The second one is by John Gilliland.

Although this looks extremely convincing from spectator's viewpoint, initial performance may be 'uncomfortable' from the magician's. At first it may look awkward from the performer's angle, which might give a feeling that the spectators will think you 'are doing something'. This is not the case, however, as a trial infront of a mirror and live performance will show.

Let us assume that you have borrowed a coin which has been marked, or its date noted. Holding it in the left hand at the fingertips you look at it, and apparently not finding the mark or date on that side of the coin take it with the right hand (actually leaving it in left) turning it over as you do so, in order to examine the other side. As you are looking at the non-existant coin in the right hand ask the spectator the date of the coin, and when he replies just agree with him. If your audience is a magical one, say "I am just making sure you didn't change it", a remark which should cause a smile. Should the coin have been marked, say "You will recognise your coin when you see it again -if you see it again." Still gets a laugh, if timed properly.

The above preamble has been included to stress the importance of having a reason for passing a coin or other object from one hand to the other before causing it to vanish. In this particular case it is to see the opposite side of the coin. To perform the sleight hold the coin between the thumb and fingertips of the left hand (Fig.2). The right hand approaches (Fig.3) and covering the coin from the performers view with its fingers (Fig.4) its thumb going behind the fingers of the left hand.

The right fingers curl round the coin and in so doing come into contact with the edge of the coin, and continuing to press cause the coin to swivel round into the position shown in (Fig.5) where it is hidden from the spectators behind the left fingers. As the right moves away apparently taking the coin it turns bringing the palm facing the performer. This duplicates exactly the movement which would be made if the coin was actually taken for the purpose of enabling the performer to examine the other side. The position of the hands as seen by the performer is as in (Fig.5) at the conclusion of the move.

The final variation on this theme comes from Gordon Bruce and at the beginning the coin is held as shown in (Fig.2). The right thumb, in coming in to take the coin strikes the outer edge as seen in (Fig.6) knocking it out of the grip held by the left thumb and fingers into the left finger palm position at the base of fingers. The right hand then moves away apparently taking the coin.

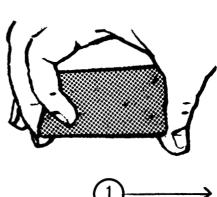

MOVE TO SHOW BOTH SIDES OF A CARD BLANK

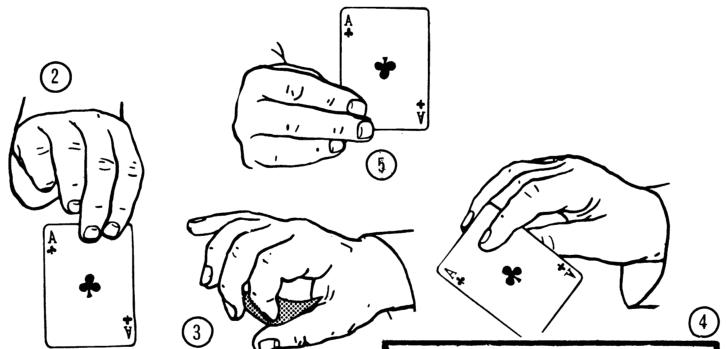

Moves to show both sides of a business card or playing card blank when in fact something is written on one side, are not very commonplace. The methods I have used in the past are all more suitable for a cabaret or stand-up-type of performance, this particular method is very natural in performance and convincing providing the eyes of the audience are below the height of the card in hand at the commencement.

Fig.1 depicts the actual right hand hold on the business card prior to the move being executed, in the sketch the back of the card has been patterned for clarity, actually only the performer would see this side of the card, the action is as follows:

- 1. With card in position as Fig.1, the right thumb releases the card at the rear so that face of card is shown to the audience Fig.2 this is the audience view.
- 2. Now with the card held in first finger and thumb R.H. Fig.2, from this position the right second finger reaches round to the left long edge of the card (performers view) bending the edge of the card outwards. This bending action continues and card is released by the right thumb and gripped between 1st and 2nd fingers only see Fig.3. Note:- this action is hidden from the audience by turning the right hand inwards slightly.
- 3. The card is now in a horizontal plane position Fig.4 this is the performer's view of the card. Whilst in this position the right thumb goes UNDER the card levering the card into an upright position again facing the audience, the card being held by the right thumb and fore-finger as in Fig.5.

This concludes the moves which should be performed naturally one look in the mirror will convince you of the effectiveness of this subtlety.

I like to use the move with playing cards that are blank both sides. I write my predictions onto one side of each blank card and place both cards together in the middle of the deck WRITING SIDE DOWN. Now before performing your prediction routine, tell the audience that inside your normal pack of cards you carry two blank cards, fan the pack backs to audience showing the two blanks, cut the two blanks to the bottom of the pack, then turn the pack face up, taking care only the underside (blank) of the blanks or prediction cards is seen by the audience.

Next take a blank card in each hand in position for the move to show both sides of each card blank Fig.1, leaving the rest of the cards on the table. Now execute the moves as already described, place the written prediction faces, face to face and an elastic band around the two handing these to a spectator to place inside of his coat pocket.

Now all that remains is to force your two predictions, or should you be a real magician give the spectators a free choice, then have the two blank cards opened to reveal the predicted names, which match the forced names.

Try the moves before a mirror with a playing card in each hand, you will fool yourself and I'm sure you will be pleased with the results.

mark weston

SECOND VARIATION ON TWISTING THE ACES REVISITED

keith bennett

For this variation you will have to make up a special card. Simply stick a pin-up on the back of one of the aces from the red deck. Be careful however that in doing so you don't upset the handling quality of the cards; perhaps a card from one of the pictorially illustrated decks now available would do. Set this card with the normal face showing as the face card of the original setup.

Go through the routine up to the point where the last ace has turned over and been replaced beneath the pair. From here the routine changes when you turn the packet over perform an extended Elmsley count i.e. count five cards as four. This is done with the same handling as the Elmsley count but you show the top card, the second card with two cards concealed under it, the bottom card, and finally the original top card again. The plot appears the same up to this point but the last ace to turn over is now the face card of the packet. Now say "You thought the ace of Spades had vanished" (or whatever ace you feked) and swing the packet up to show it has reappeared. Now ask them what colour the back is and according to whether they say red or blue say "No it's blue" or "You couldn't be more right" and toss the ace face down on the table showing the blue back. How pornographic the back is I leave to your taste.

P.S. If you can think of a better gag line for the finish of this item let me know.

A card is now freely chosen by riffling the side of the pack with the left thumb asking a spectator to call 'stop' at any time and cutting the pack at that point. You now double lift and turnover to show the chosen card requesting that it be remembered. Turn the double face down square on top of the pack and remove the top chosen (?) card push it into the outer end of the pack leaving about an inch protruding.

flip hallema

In presenting this effect you commence by remarking that you are about to show something that has yet to be invented. Five cards are introduced which are blank on both sides and one is chosen. When this card is placed on top of a pack of cards it immediately and visibly changes into a card previously chosen and replaced in the centre of the pack. Tell the audience that what they have seen is quicker than polaroid, but they actually have seen nothing because it still remains to be invented. It was just an illusion.

In addition to a pack of cards you will need five cards blank on both sides and one blank faced card with a back to match the pack you are using. Place the blank faced card back uppermost beneath the five blank cards and put the packet of six cards into a small envelope.

Commence the trick by removing the cards from the envelope and place them onto the table taking care not to spread them and expose the back of the bottom card.

Remove the playing cards from their case and hand them out to be shuffled and on taking them back pick up the six from the table and drop them on top of the face down pack. Deal the top five cards off the top of the pack, side by side, onto the table showing both sides of each card as you do so. You now have the blank faced card on top of the pack and because of its matching back its addition will not have been noticed by the spectators.

Have a spectator hand you anyone of the five blank cards which you put on top of the pack and double lift and turnover bringing the matching backed blank face uppermost and the double blank second from the top. To the spectator all you appear to have done is to have turned the blank card he handed to you over.

You now request the spectator to make the four blanks remaining on the table into a neat pile onto which you put the double squarely on top. Give the top card a quarter turn so that it lies crosswise distinguishing it as the one chosen. It is of course, the blank with the matching back.

Hold the pack in the left hand in a dealing position but with the left index fingertip resting on the end of the protruding card, take the chosen blank card from the top of the pile placing it squarely on top of the pack and prepare for a double lift.

The left index finger now presses on the outjogged card which the spectators believe to be the chosen one, pushing it into the pack. Immediately it is flush with the pack turn over the two top cards as one making it appear that the chosen blank card has acquired the face of chosen card. This surprise is followed by another as you slowly turn the card over to show it has also gained a back. Here now is a surprise for you. Push the chosen card back into the pack and take a break with the left little finger under the top card. Count the five blank cards from the table back onto the top of the pack saying "Just an illusion." You are now set up to repeat the effect or simply put the six cards back into the envelope.

The double lift and turnover is frequently in use in the above routine it may be of interest if I describe my own method for this sleight. It is fairly simple to acquire and requires no facial contortions whatsoever.

Hold the pack in the left hand in the normal dealing except that the thumb is along the left side of the pack instead of across the top of the pack. The thumb of the right hand is positioned at the inner left corner of the pack and the right second finger at the left outer corner. The index fingertip of this hand rests lightly on the left side of the top card.

The right thumb raises the two top cards sufficiently for the left little finger to take a break. In squaring action which follows the left thumb appears to push a card over to the right where it is taken with the right hand. Actually, it is the right thumb and second finger that take away the two top cards as one. This method of double lifting the cards can easily be turned over and replaced on top of the pack.

CLUBNIGHT TWINS

My Elevator routines are a series of card sequences, gleaned over the years from a variety of sources, with additions and variations of my own which I have inserted to provide more entertainment value. The following is one such sequence, and although I use this sequence in the middle of my own routines, I will outline the details when used as an opener with an unprepared deck, as the whole sequence may be used exactly as stated here, and will stand up to scrutiny in this situation.

THE ROUTINE:

The deck having been shuffled and returned by the spectator, run through the cards faces towards yourself, tell the audience you will remove the Ace, Two and Three of hearts, during this action contrive to get the ACE, TWO AND THREE OF CLUBS onto the BOTTOM of the face up deck, with the three spot bottom card, two spot above the three, and the Ace above the two spot. Having thrown out the three heart cards face up onto the table, DOUBLE UNDERCUT THE THREE CLUB CARDS PLUS ONE EXTRA CARD FROM BOTTOM OF FACE UP DECK TO THE TOP, then turn the deck face down.

POSITION from top of deck: indifferent card top card followed by ACE...TWO...THREE of CLUBS face down in that order. The ace, two, three of hearts are face up on the table.

We now follow the lines of a standard elevator routine using the one ahead principle, but with two differences.....

- (a) At the conclusion of the first phase there is an additional surprise quite unexpected to the onlookers.
- (b) At the conclusion of the first phase the cards are AUTOMATICALLY in position for phase two which is a MATCHING PAIRS SEQUENCE.

To continue..... The Ace, two and three hearts are placed face up on top of the face down pack in that order and the cards are spread between the hands, during this action of displaying the cards a break is taken UNDER THE SEVENTH CARD FROM THE TOP i.e.: 3 clubs, square up the deck lift off all the cards above the break as one in the right hand, table the balance of the deck. Now the packet of cards with the Ace hearts at the face is taken in the left hand to enable the right hand to remove cards singly, first the Ace, this is placed under the packet, then the two is taken in the same manner and placed under the packet and finally the three, the packet of cards is returned face downwards on top of the deck.

POSITION from top of face down deck: Top card indifferent — followed by ACE, TWO, THREE CLUBS, followed by ACE, TWO, THREE HEARTS..... then the balance of the deck.

Now the top three cards are dealt onto table calling the cards the ace, two and three (which they are not), the Ace is dealt to your right, then the two to the left of the Ace and finally the three to the left of the two spot. At this point the three of clubs is the top card of the face down deck.

Proceed as follows: Say, "I will place the deck on top of the three (suit actions to words), snap my fingers over the deck and the three comes to the top". Turn up the three of clubs at the top of the deck, pretend everything is normal and place this card face up on the table to the left. Now take up the supposed two hearts from the table and say "When I place the two on the top of the deck this passes to the bottom" (suit actions to words), show the two of clubs on the bottom and place this card onto the table to the right of three of clubs. Taking up the supposedly face down Ace of hearts you continue: "The ace goes in the middle of the deck like this, (suit actions to words again) and comes up to the top just like that." Turn the top card of deck face up to reveal the Ace of clubs, place this alongside the two and three spot. Now for the first time you appear to notice that the hearts have changed to clubs..... so you say..... "Now that's odd, it must be CLUBNIGHT." This ends the first phase, the cards being set at the top of the deck in readiness for Phase Two.

SECOND PHASE:

At this stage, and unknown to the audience, the ACE, TWO and THREE OF HEARTS ARE FACE DOWN ON TOP OF THE DECK in that order, now I continue to the conclusion of the routine as follows:

With the deck held in the left hand push off bottom half of deck to your rear using the left first finger (Fig.1), this packet is taken by the right fingers at the sides and placed onto the top half of the deck but stepped to the rear. This is to enable the left thumb to thumb count the cards at the outer end (Fig.2). With the left hand holding the cards in thumb count the left thumb counts one card and the ACE of clubs from the table is placed FACE UPWARDS under this top card, the left thumb runs another single and the TWO of clubs is placed UNDER this face down card, this is repeated with the THREE clubs, then the stepped packet is aligned with the bottom packet leaving the three face up cards protruding halfway out of the deck (Fig.3). You are now in position to execute my BLUFF MULTIPLE CARD SHIFT which is a nice utility move I use in my Ace cutting routines; here are the mechanics of the move which is quite simple in operation.

BLUFF CARD SHIFT

The starting position for the shift is as (Fig.3).

Move 1: The right fingers push the three protruding cards flush with the deck, this action causes the cards to step at the rear now the right thumb breaks the deck OVER THE LAST STEPPED CARD FROM THE REAR (Fig. 4).

Move 2: The right thumb lifts the cards above the break to allow the little finger of the left hand to take over the break from the right thumb, the left little finger taking its break in the normal manner at the side of the deck. Move 3: Now the cards are all squared up using the right fingers at the front and thumb at the rear, the deck being held in the left hand. Immediately the cards are square the right thumb regains the break from the left little finger.

Move 4: With both hands holding the deck, the left thumb riffles down the left side of deck to a point some ten cards from the bottom and a DOUBLE UNDER CUT IS MADE.

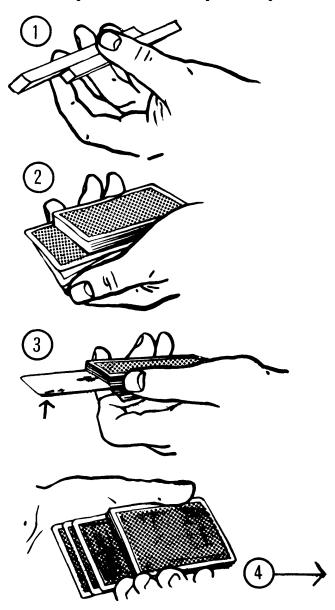

This double under cut is a vital final action to the bluff shift and brings the three face up CLUBS to the TOP of the deck BUT WITH ONE FACE DOWN CARD OVER EACH, these face down cards are the ACE, TWO, THREE of Hearts respectively, and because of this care must be exercised when making the D U Cut that these face up cards are never seen by the onlookers.

The face up cards are now apparently lost in the deck, this is enhanced by fanning the deck at this point hiding the block of six at the right of the face down fan, showing all the cards face downwards.

So much for the BLUFF SHIFT..... it will now be obvious to the card man that by double undercutting the single interlaced cards from top to bottom, the face up cards will appear one at a time in a surprising manner, and this would be alright in an ace cutting routine, which this is NOT, so although we are to produce the lost ACE, TWO AND THREE of CLUBS in the manner described above, at the same time a further sequence of moves takes place and again we have a DOUBLE SURPRISE CLIMAX TO

THE ROUTINE which is well worth the effort, especially as the moves are already in your armoury.

The action is as follows: with deck held in left hand in face down position Double under cut the top card to the bottom revealing the ACE of clubs face up on to the top of the deck, remove this Ace and place it face up onto the table. Now the top card which passed to the bottom during the D U cut action is the face down ACE OF HEARTS and the TWIN to the ACE OF CLUBS lying face up on the table, this is not yet disclosed at this stage, instead, the deck in the left hand as (Fig.1), the left first finger pushes off the bottom half into the right hand in readiness to execute the Piet Forten single card pop out (see Pabular No.6 Vol.3) with the bottom packet in the right fingers the face down ACE OF HEARTS is produced in this manner and is dropped onto the face up ACE OF CLUBS, then the right hand packet is replaced UNDER the left hand packet. The above sequence of moves is repeated to produce the TWO of Clubs, this is tabled as before and its twin produced as before this being placed face down on top of the face up TWO of Clubs which lies to the right of the Ace. The actions are again repeated for the THREE of clubs and the last face down card is produced and tabled.

All that now remains is for the spectator to be asked to turn the face down cards face up to reveal the lost ACE, TWO and THREE of Hearts with which the routine commenced, matched with their appropriate Ace, Two, Three of Clubs.

You will find the above quite entertaining if slotted into your existing elevator routine, as it provides for a number of additional surprises. I use it in the middle of my own routine but that is a matter of personal preference. Hope you like it it.

Mark Weston

BOOK REVIEWS

CLASSIC TACKLERS
by Phil Goldstein

Three dollars

A small booklet of 16 pages which describes the author's methods which resulted from tackling some of the classics of card magic.

The tricks to come in for treatment are under differing titles — Solo Aces — Follow the Leader — Fingertip Poker is a variation on the effect of cutting four of a kind but failing on the last card and finally succeeding when the first three cards change to match the outlander — a variation on Alex Elmsley's 'One at a Time Collectors' (see Pabular Vol.1 Number 3) — three methods for secretly exchanging a packet of four cards, one using a double facer — a four phase Oil and Water — an Ambitious Card move — and an elaboration of the twisting plot entitled Counter Revolution which appeared in Pabular Vol.3 Number 4.

Facility with the following sleights is required to perform the effects. Biddle Steal — Downs change — Charlier pass — Buckle count — and Glide.

If you have mastered some or all of the above there should be something to profit you within this booklet.

THE BLUE BOOK OF MENTALISM by Phil Goldstein Three dollars

This 27 page booklet describes 13 tricks of a mental nature as would be expected from the title. The interesting introduction explains the limitations in this particular field of magic and danger of falling into constant repetition and thus boring our audiences. The author, a professional mentalist, believes the only way out of this straightjacket is to devise new and interesting themes and the booklet is a result of his efforts.

The Living and Dead Test becomes a less morbid affair, the 'dead' name becoming a location a spectator would like to visit. A simple two-person code is made more interesting with the introduction of burnt ashes and so on. The methods used are practical, most having been used before, credits being given to the originators.

If you are seeking new and entertaining presentations then you are almost certain to find something within. Even if you are not a mentalist 'Chaos' which uses a gimmick which so many have bought, without seeming able to find a use for it, is an item with considerable possibilities.

'CARD TRICKS for people who don't do card tricks . . and some for those who do' a Lecture by Phil Goldstein Three dollars

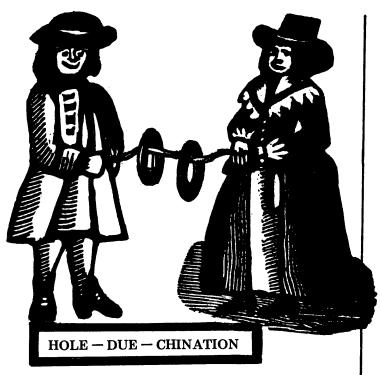

The lengthy title covers the front of this large paged manuscript and there are nine others. One of an introductory nature dealing mainly with the need for directness in the presentation of effects to avoid losing entertainment value through shifting the focal point of the spectator's attention during the trick for no valid reason. Well worth studying.

There is an article on Controls — the short card and corner shot are detailed plus other methods more or less well-known.

The trick content totals nine. An entertaining routine in which selected cards are found by 'pulse reading'. A sandwich type effect wherein two cards from packs of different colours transpose. A self-working counting and spelling effect in which a selected card is found. Four Aces basic routine repeated twice with amusing variations. Unspotted dice are thrown and spectator imagines them to be any number he wishes which when added together a previously selected card is found at that position in the pack. Production of four aces. Card in the Wallet with an 'up the garden path theme', and Follow the Leader which also appears in CLASSIC TACKLER. The author has succeeded in increasing the entertainment value of some wellknown principles.

The above may be obtained from the author — 15 Glenville Ave /1/, Allston, Mass.02134 USA, 50c over price stated outside USA. May also be obtained from most magical booksellers.

by Fred Robinson

In this effect two coins with central holes are threaded onto a cord and the ends knotted. One coin becomes free whilst being held in a spectator's hand.

You will require a thin woven nylon cord, and two coins equal in diameter with holes through the centre, one being larger than the other. For example, a Chinese coin with a square hole and a Greek or Danish coin with a smaller circular hole.

Commence by displaying the coins on the open palm of the left hand and with the right hand move the Chinese coin to the tips of the left fingers and then put the Greek one squarely on top. Pick up both coins together with the right hand and place them between the thumb and index finger of the left hand which holds them edgewise.

The right hand now pushes about two inches of the cord through the holes in the coins from the rear where it is held with the left index finger at the front and the left thumb at the rear. The right hand then slides down the cord to the other end which it picks up and holds level with the coins about five inches away to the right.

The left fingers and thumb retaining their grip on the cord, release the coins which fall to the centre of the cord. The right hand now passes its end of the cord to the left hand which holds both ends between its thumb and forefinger.

Van Bossi assisted by Anthony Brahams

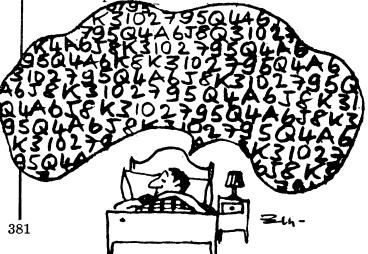

The right hand now takes both coins between thumb and first and second fingers in such a way that the coins do not protrude beyond the fingertips, and the left hand releases the ends of the cord.

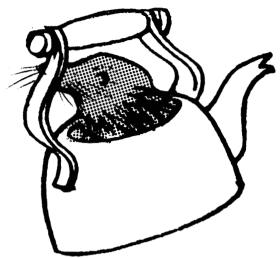

The right hand gripping the coins and the cord at the point where it passes through the coins draws the cord (both strands) through the left hand. As the hands come together to start this action, the cord strikes the edge of the left palm at the base of the little finger. Repeat the action but this time release the Chinese coin letting it fall onto the left hand at base of third finger of the left hand. Do not finger palm the coin but hold the hand in a naturally relaxed position with the fingers slightly curved hiding the coin.

The right hand now throws the Greek coin, which is still threaded on the cord, into the left hand directly on top of the Chinese coin. The audience, being unaware that the left hand contains a stolen coin will assume that the 'clink' comes from two coins threaded on the cord.

The left hand is now opened and the audience appear to see the coins with the thread passing through both of them. The reason for one coin having a smaller hole disguises the fact that the cord is only threaded through the topmost coin.

Hand the two ends of the cord to a spectator requesting him to knot them together, and then with the right hand pick up both coins from the left palm with the thumb on one edge and the first and second fingers on the opposite edge. Place them on the palm of a spectator who is asked to close his fingers over them. Pull gently on the doubled cord, but do not pull it out of the spectator's hand. Relax tension from pull and ask spectator to open his hand. Resume pulling and the cord comes away with the Greek coin threaded on it, leaving the Chinese coin on the spectator's palm, giving the appearance of a visible penetration.

ANIMAL TUAGIC

EFFECT:

Five cards are shown. On each card there is printed the name of an animal. The animals are: Badger, Stoat, Weasel, Water Otter and Fox. The cards are mixed, then laid face down on the table. One of the cards is chosen, looked at by a spectator, who is asked to mix it with the rest of the cards. The performer takes them, lays them on the palm of his left hand, and drapes a hand-kerchief over them.

He removes the cards one at a time, saying each time, "This is not your card?" and turns it over before laying it on the table so that the spectators can see the name. Taking the last one he says, "This is your card." He removes it face down, and asks "What name did you select?" The spectator says, "Water Otter." Turning the card face up the performer shows that the last card is the Water Otter. Almost as an afterthought he says to the spectator, "By the way, have you ever seen a water otter?" If the spectator says that he hasn't the performer asks him to watch carefully. Taking the handkerchief by its centre, he slowly raises it, and says, "And there before your very eyes a Water Otter." On the palm of his hand there stands a miniature kettle.

The only requirements are, a handkerchief, five cards with the animals names printed on them. The back of the Otter card is marked so that the performer can see it at a glance. Miniature kettles are easily obtainable, made in brass, from novelty and gift shops.

arthur setterington

METHOD:

The card is forced. I use the simplest one. The cards are laid in a row, and the spectator is asked to cover three of them with his hand. If the force card is one of the three, the others are discarded. He is asked to cover a card with each hand. If the uncovered card is the force card, he is asked to add the two to the discards. If the force card is one of the two, he is asked to raise one hand. If that card is the force card he is asked to discard the other. If the covered card is the force card, the performer removes the other card and adds it to the pile.

The spectator looks at the card, and mixes it with the others. Meanwhile, the performer takes a handkerchief from his pocket, also the kettle. The performer takes the cards, but before putting them under the handkerchief fans them with one hand. It appears to be a flourish, but actually the performer notes the position of the marked card. He lays the cards on the left palm, drapes the handkerchief over the hand, and while doing this hangs the kettle on the left little finger.

He takes the cards one by one, and just before they appear, he says, "That's not it." When he comes to the marked card he begins to take the cards from the bottom of the heap. Finally he comes to the force card. The spectator is asked to name his selection, and the performer turns the card over.

It is a simple matter under the cover of the handkerchief to remove, one handed, the kettle, from the little finger, and position it on the palm of the hand.

If, by any chance, a spectator says that he has seen a Water Otter, simply produce the kettle and say, "Well, there's another."

THE RAMSAY RE-UNION by Fred Robinson

This two-day event organised by Pabular to celebrate the centenary of the birth of Britain's great close-up performer John Ramsay began with a 'Get Together' at mid-day Saturday. 12th of March in the Birmingham and Midland Institute when magicians of twelve different countries met to renew old friendships and make new ones over drinks and light refreshments.

At 2.00pm we all moved into the Small Theatre which must be the finest possible venue for performing and watching close-up magic anywhere in the country. With its comfortable upholstered raked seating giving everyone an uninterrupted view of the performers, superb lighting and acoustics, plus provisions for showing films, it had everything we required.

Patrick Page, Master of Ceremonies throughout the event, opened the session by introducing those responsible for its organisation and emphasised that it was going to be a fun event and the intention was that everything would be informal, and then proceeded to suggest that the RAMSAY RE-UNION should be officially declared open. (In case it gets squeezed out through lack of space let us say that at this point Pat had created, within the first few moments, the right atmosphere and a rapport with those present which continued throughout a major contribution to the success of the event. To perform this function Pat decided to invite that legendary and respected gentleman of magic 'Professor' Dai Vernon, who just happened to be there, to do the honours.

Having duly performed the ceremony the 'Professor' sat down and immediately created some amusement as he tried to move the microphone remarking "I haven't much to say, but I do want it to be heard." A couple more tries, and more laughter, before it was made clear that it was fixed to the floor and belonged to Vic Pinto who was recording the whole event (advt). The 'Professor' went ahead relating many anecdotes relevant to John Ramsay. Here is one.

For six months Dr Daley had been practising what has now become known as the Ramsay coin vanish and considered he had it about perfect. The opportunity arose for the 'Professor' to suggest that Dr Daley perform it for John. After he had done so John Ramsay said "Ye didna have it Doc, ye didna have it." The 'Professor' went on to say "John didna say why he didna have it, just that he didna have it. During the talk he broke the news that Andrew Galloway had re-written Ramsay's main tricks and that Gordon Bruce had made 300 illustrations so in the not too distant future conjurers would have available the correct information required to perform the tricks of John Ramsay.

Regretfully we have insufficient space to include all the stories which included such names as Glen Pope, Ed. Balducci, Al Baker, Warren Keene, Jarrow, Malini, Nate Leipzig, Tommy Downs, Silent Mora etc etc.

We also received some advice. Take one trick and work on it, study all aspects of it, practise it, and perform it as often as possible with the object of getting it perfect. Eventually you will have a trick which you can do better than anyone else in the world and no matter who else performs the same trick it will be you they will want to see perform it, and it will be you they will talk about whenever they see anyone else do it.

Over twenty years ago those who saw Dai Vernon on his first visit to this country had their ideas and approach to close-up magic revolutionised by his performances and lectures. On this occasion we just listened to the 'Professor' for whom magic is a great art and not 'just something for kids' and counted ourselves fortunate in being once again favoured with the company of one who only claims 'to be a lover of magic'.

Next was the Fred Kaps lecture. Another great treat from a performer regarded by many as the greatest all-round magician in the world of magic today. He included a ring off rope, his eleven note (bill) trick, card in the box and many others, notably the cups and balls. It was this latter which enthused Walt Lees (see his four page write-up in Info) so much that he exclaimed (uncharacteristically) "I've had my money's worth."

This time from France Philippe Fiahlo, complete with beret and looking more like a French peasant than the genuine article, broke open a French style loaf to find his magic wand and then proceeded to perform the cups and balls, Vernon style, following this with a self-working Chink-a-Chink which continued to work despite one piece being nailed to the table. Very funny.

From The Magic Castle, professional closeup magician Ron Wilson with Card in the Wallet, a Micro Macro variation and others including a fine version of the colour changing silk with 'sucker' explanation.

Again from France Gaeton Bloom (also far from serious) who used hammer and nails to fasten a selected card to a block of wood which somehow escaped and was ultimately found in the bandage covering a thumb injured during the previous hammering. Also a card trick using a razor blade described in a recent Pabular. Again very funny.

Top Row: Pat Page, Dai Vernon, Fred Kaps, Philippe Fialho, Ron Wilson, David Roth.

Second Row: Gaeton Bloom, Doug Alker, David Roth, Bob Read.

Third Row: Fred Kaps, Dai Vernon, Pat Page, Fred Kaps, Freddie Fah, Danny Ray, David Roth, Pat Page. Los Mancos

Bottom Row: The McKissicks, Gaeton Bloom, Dai Vernon and Coat of Arms, Trevor Lewis, Dai Vernon, Philippe Fiahlo, Geoff Ray, Roy Johnson

BLANK PAGE

The next act from Spain was a double one, or nearly so; Los Magicos (Anton and Tamarix), each with one arm, sat side by side and what appeared at first to be a deficiency became a definite asset as they used the missing arms to produce some standard magic. Others please do not copy. They had a couple more hands belonging to R.M. (Bob) Davis who provided the musical accompaniment.

Juan Tamarix reappeared with arm restored to perform his act which won for him the first prize (Card Magic) at the 1973 F.I.S.M. held in Paris. In this very novel act the performer accompanies himself on the mouth-organ as he performs card tricks which is very unusual.

David Roth closed this session with coin magic, the like of which we have never seen before. There is little point in listing the tricks which he performed even if we could remember them all, but here is one effect for your consideration. Taking a few coins in one hand and shaking it he causes them to rattle. The noise ceases as he opens his hand to show it empty — the coins have completely vanished. This he did coatless wearing a short sleeved shirt. This was an act never to be forgotten.

Even magicians have to eat sometimes so we left to dine at The Albany Hotel, a few minutes walk away. The meal proved to be an excellent one and immediately it was over it was magic again. This time really close-up, with groups forming all over the Arden suite, later spreading to other parts of the hotel and lasting until the early hours of the morning. The chief attraction was the 'Professor' who seemed tireless. For about three hours he showed trickes and moves, many of the latter appertaining to gambling were new to us, or maybe he was doing some of the old ones a little better — one never knows with the 'Professor'. And so to bed.

The Sunday morning session started at 10.80am with a Lewis Ganson film of the work of David Carre. Some of the card work was excellent.

Promptly at 11.00 came the lecture of David Roth in which he performed nine tricks—a four coin transposition from hand to hand—a repeat copper and silver transposition—a retention of vision coin vanish—an Okito coin box routine—chop cup, chink-a-chink, purse and glass routines and a three coin effect all were explained and are included in the lecture notes which found a ready sale.

A large birthday cake made its appearance to the strains of 'Happy Birthday' — it happened to be David's birthday.

First to appear was Kevin Fox with a trick he contributed to an early Pabular and closing with the production of a live rabbit.

Doug Alker opened with an All Backs routine (another contribution to this magazine), plus a variation of The Fred Kaps note trick.

Trevor Lewis with his card act that was a first prize winner last year in Vienna at the F.I.S.M. Congress.

Piet Forton from Switzerland, who won the F.I.S.M. card competition three times in succession did effects with Jumbo cards.

Bob Read closed the event with his usual act—a bottle production—some other effects and closed with an unrecognisable version of the Vernon cups and balls.

An unscheduled event took place on Sunday morning when John Fisher, producer of the Parkinson Christmas Magic Show made a presentation to the 'Professor' on behalf of Ken Brooke and friends, a fine silver medallion, the work of Quintin Mann. On one side was engraved the Verner Coat of Arms, and on the other a suitably worded inscription.

Being personally involved in organising the event makes it impossible to assess objectively. However, we are in general agreement with the following observations. ——

Goodliffe — Editor of Abracadabra....

'must surely be the world's greatest close-up gathering ever held. I loved it.' In the same issue Paul Stone took space to say '.....the greatest magical weekend ever held in Britain.....the greatest thrill in my magical life.' Arthur Day..... 'the climax of my magical lifetime.....the greatest Convention ever.' Trevor Dawson.....'an occasion of a lifetime.' Doug Alker.....'the Convention was fantastic.' Many others have offered their congratulations personally, but a considerable amount of credit must go to others not connected with the magazine.

A very specjal 'Thank You' to our very good friend Ken Brooke who came to our aid when we needed it. Within days of our request for help he rang to say "Dai Vernon is coming to Birmingham." He was directly responsible for turning what could have been a parochial event into one which has become a talking point in the world of close-up magic. Our regret is that he could not have been with us — our hope is that his health continues to improve and he will be with us next time around,

Thanks also to Ray Mills and Mike Ganeia who relieved us of many responsibilities during the two days, and to all others who gave a helping hand.

spectator on the right who rejects it as being his selection. The card is placed face down on his left palm. Each spectator is now holding the others chosen card after having denied that either card is the one he chose. Care must of course be taken during the trick that when a card is being shown to one of the spectators it is not seen by the other.

The trick is an excellent one for getting experience in performing the top change and some pointers towards achieving success with this particular sleight may be welcomed by readers.

First it must be understood that success does not depend on technical skill. Once one has the facility to make the change neatly any further practise with a view to making the sleight 'invisible' to anyone who happens to be watching the hands is a sheer waste of time. At this point it may be a good idea to quote from

DOUBLE DENIAL

Some years ago I explained a plot to Roy Walton who thought it would be a good idea to describe it in this issue because of the misdirection involved in the method used to obtain the effect.

EFFECT:-

Two cards selected by different spectators are returned to the pack which is shuffled. The performer removes a card from the pack and gives it to one of the spectators after both have denied at being the one they chose. They are shown another card, again they both deny that it is their card and it is given to the other spectator. They are asked to name their selections and each spectator is found to be holding the card chosen by the other.

METHOD:-

With a spectator on either side the performer has each take any card, remember it and return it to the pack. The card chosen by the spectator on the performer's right is secretly brought second from the top, and the one chosen by the spectator on the left third from the top, using whatever methods the performer prefers.

The top card is shown to the spectator on the performers right who denies that it is the one he chose. A top change is made and the card shown to the spectator on the left who also denies that it is the one he selected. This card, actually the one chosen by the other spectator, is placed face down on the palm of the right hand of the spectator on the left. He is now shown the top card of the pack which he also denies being his card, another top change is made and the card held is shown to the a book written over one hundred years ago. In 'The History of Playing Cards etc.' this is what its author, the Rev. Taylor has to say:-

It must ever be kept in mind, that in any kind of conjuring, but particularly with cards the performer must never look at his hands; for, if he does, the spectators will most certainly do the same, a consummation most devoutly to be avoided.

In all instances, the performer must keep continually talking to the bystanders, looking them full in the face, so that they may do the same, minus the talking to him.

Returning to the point in the trick where the spectator on the right has denied that the card he has been shown is the one he selected and you are standing completely relaxed with the hands in a position ready to execute the change. Looking him 'full in the face' you ask the following questions,

Are you sure it is not your card? Is it the same colour?

It is an instinctive reaction for anyone replying to a question to look the questioner in the face as he replies, and as he does so perform the sleight slowly and say, "Perhaps it is the other chosen card." As you finish this sentence turn to the spectator on the left who also denies that he selected that particular card. Put the card on the palm of his hand and show him the top card saying, "then this must be your card." He denies that also, and you lower the hand holding the card and say, "You are sure this is not your card?" bringing the hand up again giving him another chance to see the face of the card. He will of course again deny that it is his chosen card, and you lower the card bringing it into position in readiness for the change. As you do this day, "You did say the card on your hand was not the one you chose" - pause here for a second and continue, - "perhaps you had better take another sly peep and make sure." As he looks at the card on his hand you slowly make the top change. It cannot be emphasised too strongly that to escape detection under close-up conditions the top change must be done slowly and without excessive movements of either the body or the hands, and the idea that a greater movement, such as turning quickly or a sweeping movement of the arms will cover the smaller one of exchanging the cards is completely erroneous. Such movements may have some validity when performing on the stage, but under conditions where the spectators are within a few feet such actions will only bring their attention to an action which you are attempting to conceal and will tend to nullify any advantage gained by following the advice of the reverend gentleman quoted earlier.

In the letter which was responsible for the appearance of this effect Roy said he found the climax rather confusing and felt that the effect would be more clear-cut if each spectator was holding his own selected card at the finish. The following are two methods he suggests for bringing about this result:-

Method 1

Spectator A and B select cards and return them to the pack which the performer shuffles keeping the chosen cards on top in B. A. order.

A card is taken from the pack (really B's card) and shown to A who denies it's his. It is top changed for A's which is then shown to B who denies it is his. It is given to A to hold between his palms.

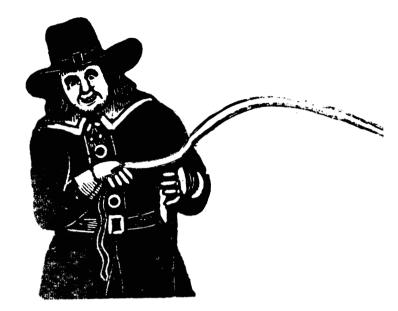

Indifferent card is now taken from the pack and shown to B who denies it as being his. This card is top changed for B's card and then shown to A who denies it is his. Card is given to hold between his palms. Climax is that held cards change to the ones chosen.

Method 2

This method uses the bottom change which some may find easier.

Cards controlled to top in A. B. order. Any card pulled from centre of the pack and shown to A. Bottom changed and shown to B. Given to A to hold. Any card pulled from centre of the pack and shown to B. Bottom changed and shown to A. Given to B to hold.

fred robinson

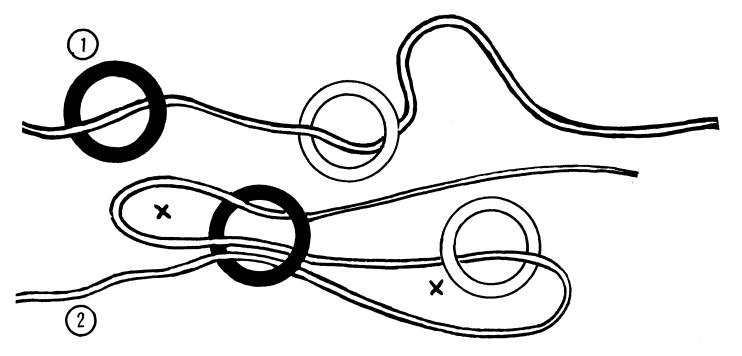

YECRIK

Here is a little close-up effect that will go over well with any audience. Two plastic rings, one red, the other white, are threaded onto a piece of cord. The cord is a two coloured affair one end being red and the other white. In other words it has been dyed to match the rings. The red ring goes over the red end of the cord and the white over the other end. The cord is laid out on the table and the rings slid near to the centre of the cord. The centre of the cord is covered for a few moments. Both ends of the cord are left in view and the magician explains that he intends, under the cover of the handkerchief to change the positions of the rings. The spectators are asked to note that the two ends of the cord remain in full view throughout. He places his hands beneath the handkerchief and in seconds he tosses the handkerchief off to show the red ring on the white end of the cord and vice versa.

METHOD:

For ease in explanation, forget about the cord being coloured, except for the fact that rings match the ends over which they are placed.

With rings in place, lay the cord on the table as shown in (Fig.1). The cord in actual fact is longer than shown. This is in order to get the whole thing in the picture. Note in particular that the cord is not in a straight line but is laid loosely down. There is a large curve in the cord just to the right of the right hand ring. THIS IS IMPORTANT. THE CURVE MUST BE THERE. Don't make a thing about the curve. Practice a few times and you will soon get the knack of placing the cord down so that the curve just drops into place.

Now separate the rings and explain what you intend to do. Cover the centre of the cord with a linen handkerchief and ask that an eye be kept on the ends of the cord to make sure that you do not cheat.

Place the hands beneath the handkerchief. Put the left thumb on the portion of cord between the two rings and 'trap' it on the table. This prevents any error. Now take the cord at the curve that you have been so careful to leave, with the right hand and pass this 'slack' through the left hand ring. You will now find that you are in the position shown in (Fig.2).

Slip the thumbs between the loops as shown and exclaim "Good, done it." At the same time rapidly raise the hands about eighteen inches in the air. It appears that this is done in order to toss off the handkerchief that is used as cover. Indeed it is, but it also allows the loops to be drawn through the rings. There is however, a special way to do this. If the cord is just pulled outward it looks 'fishy'. As the hands fly upwards, keep the hands together. At the top of the upwards thrust pause a brief second.. only very briefly.

Now drop the hands about a foot and at the same time toss the handkerchief free and pull outwards. The cord slips thro' the ring with ease. The reason for this is that handling the props as explained cuts the friction to a minimum. If you take the trouble to try both ways without the cover you will quickly see what I mean. It allows the ends of the cord to drop together before the outward pull and cuts out the drag.

The cord slips through the fists which should encircle it and its passage is halted before the ends are reached. The knots at the end of the cord are an added precaution. If you feel these in the fist grab on tight and stop pulling. With a very little practice however you will find that you will not need to rely on the knots.

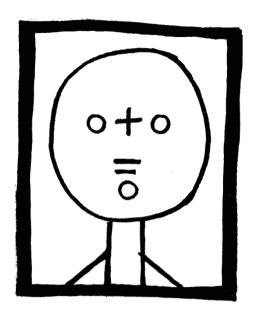

In conclusion hand out the cord and the rings whilst they are still in place on the cord. They may be examined till the cows come home as there is nothing to hide.

A word about the unusual title of this trick. I was at a loss for a name for it. Using the word 'ring' in the title seemed corney and overdone. It was then that I remembered that when I first gave the effect a try-out, the chap who was acting victim at the time just blinked and said "Crikey" so I took the last two letters of CrikEY, reversed them, YE and moved them from the end of the word to the beginning. Now I don't know which is best. . the title or the trick

roy baker

'No, over here on the couch it's more comfortable"

ONE IN FOUR

This effect was a development of Mike Boden's "Marked Pack" which appeared in "Card Cavalcade 2". There is little difference between the two effects, the difference being in the presentation.

EFFECT:

Using a blue backed pack, a spectator selects, notes and returns a card to the pack. In attempting to find the card the performer appears uncertain and finally ends up with four cards. Fanning the four cards face up, he comments that he is not sure which of the four is the one chosen but requests that the spectator does not tell him. After studying the cards, he removes one and places it face up on the table in front of the spectator asking if this was the noted card. Upon receiving a negative reply, turns it face down to reveal that it has a red back. The performer comments that the selected card had a blue back and so obviously the eard laid down is the wrong one. He tries again, laving down one of the remaining three face up cards. The spectator disowns this card which is also shown to have a red back. The performer's third attempt is also wrong and proves to be another red backer. The fourth card is claimed by the spectator to be the correct one. This has a blue back. The performer states that it must be and to emphasise the point, the remainder of the pack is spread out to show that all the backs are red.

doug alker

PREPARATION:

You will require a red backed pack. Put the four of Clubs at the face and remove a small spot card and a picture card. From a blue backed pack take the four of Clubs and the duplicates of the two discarded red cards. These three strangers are added to the top of the red pack in the following order: the four of Clubs, the picture card and finally the small spot card on top. The pack is placed in a blue case.

WORKING:

Commence by forcing the blue backed picture card. I do this by side slipping the two top blue backers to the centre of the pack one at a time and holding a break above them. I riffle with the request to "stop" (riffle at the back using the right thumb so that the red backs are not exposed). The pack is cut at the break and the blue backer on top of the left hand portion is dealt face down on to the table. At this point the spectators can see three separate blue backers as well as the blue case. No comment is necessary.

The spectator notes the tabled card (picture card) and returns it to the pack at the same position from which it was removed. The top half is replaced.

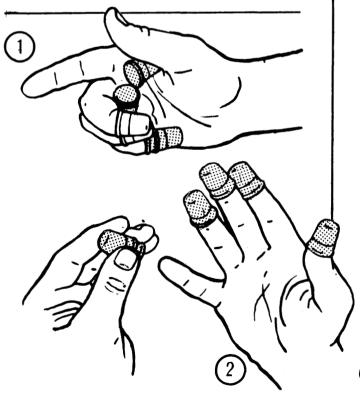

The pack is turned face up. In a hesitant manner, transfer any three red backers to the back of the face up pack taking care not to expose the backs. Do likewise with the selected card and the other blue backer (small spot). Close the fan and turn the pack face down in the left hand. With the right hand arched over the pack, lift off the top six cards using the thumb. As this packet is taken by the right hand the left simultaneously twists inwards to avoid exposing the red backs and places the pack face up onto the table. The four of Clubs is now the top card of this face up pack.

The packet in the right hand is placed face down in the left hand. The order of these six are, reading from the top down, blue backed small spot card, blue backed picture card, three red backed cards and the blue backed four of Clubs.

Comment that you have four cards (Elmsley count very casually to show the backs of these, placing the last card counted which is the small spot card on top of the face down packet) and are not sure which one is the selected card. Turn the packet face up in the left hand. With the help of the right hand, slide off the first three cards keeping the last three lined up as one. Study the resulting fan of four (?) face up cards. With the right hand, take any one of the three odd cards, place it face up onto the table. Close the fan in the left hand and turn the packet face down at the same time as you ask the spectator if the tabled card is the correct one. Upon receiving a negative reply, turn this card face down to show a red back. Cast it aside, fan out the top three cards (which are all blue backed) of the packet in the left hand stating that "it couldn't have been that one as the selected card had a blue back and so it must be one of these three." Close the fan, turn face up and fan out the top two, keeping the last three lined up. With the right hand remove and place on the table one of the two remaining red backers. Close the two (?) card fan in the left hand and turn face down. With the left thumb push off the top card without drawing any attention to it. When the spectator has denied your second choice, your right hand turns this card face down to show another red backer. State "that can't be it either, it must be one of these two", indicating the two blue backers in your left hand. Close the fan of two, turn it over. Deal out the top face up card (red backer) keeping the remaining three lined up in your left hand. These three are placed face up onto the face up pack. Almost immediately, take off the top one of these (selected card) and place aside. The blue backed four of Clubs is now on top of the face up pack, the spectators assuming that it is the same card which had been exposed all the time.

Your third choice is rejected by the spectator. Turn it face down to show another red backer. Pick up the pack, ribbon spread it, taking care not to expose the blue backers, showing that all the backs are red. Turn over the selected card showing it to be blue backed.

ROSINI THIMBLES

This is a variation in the handling of Paul Rosini's 'Impromptu Thimble Routine' described in 'The Dai Vernon Book of Magic' (Ganson). As in the original version six thimbles are used, but it is essential that they are made of metal and nest neatly.

The effect differs little from the original, but the use of the nesting principle makes for cleaner handling and there is no extra thimble to dispose of at the conclusion of the effect.

Prepare by secretly getting the thimbles positioned in the right hand as follows.

One thumb palmed, one each on the second and third fingers, two nested on the little finger and the remaining one finger palmed at the base of the two middle fingers, its mouth pointing towards the thumb side of the hand (Fig.1).

Commence the effect by producing the thumb palmed thimble on the tip of the right index finger and with it perform a few vanishes and recoveries which do not expose the remaining.thimbles.

With the thimble on the extended index finger at the conclusion of these sleights, remark, "You probably think I use more than one thimble", as you say this push the tip of the thumb into the finger palmed thimble and extend it together with the other fingers disclosing a thimble on every digit and continue "I use five." Without deliberately calling attention to it allow the left hand to be seen empty.

The following moves are designed to show all is fair before proceeding, and at the same time providing an opportunity for one of the nested thimbles to be secretly transferred to the left hand.

The left hand removes the two nested thimbles as one from the right little finger between its thumb and fingers (Fig.2) and replaces it/them retaining the uppermost one as it comes away. This thimble is kept hidden behind the left first and second fingers as they, with the aid of the thumb, remove and replace the other thimbles in turn, starting with the one on the third finger followed by the second and finally the thumb.

david caíré

ROSINI THIMBLES — A variation by David Carre

All the above moves are performed with the backs of both hands towards the audience. The right hand is now turned palm to audience displaying the empty palm and the five thimbles on the tips of all digits as the index finger of the left is pushed into the stolen thimble. Both hands make a little flourish as the index finger of the right bends inwards thumb palming its thimble and immediately returning to its extended position. Simultaneously the left index straightens out wearing the thimble, giving the effect of a thimble jumping from the right index finger to the left.

With the left thumb and forefinger (still wearing thimble) remove the thimble from the right little finger and place it on the now vacant right index finger. Under cover of this move the left little finger enters the thimble thumb palmed in the right hand, and stealing it curls inwards towards the palm where it is hidden.

The hands now move apart and again make passing flourish as the right index finger thumb palms its thimble as before, and the left hand little finger extends to complete the second transposition.

The third transposition is achieved by removing the thimble from the right third finger and putting it on right index finger and again stealing the thimble in the right thumb palm, this time with the left third finger. Make a gesture as before, thumb palming thimble on the right index finger and extending the left third finger.

Take thimble from second finger and put on index finger this time stealing thumb palmed thimble with second finger of the left hand and repeat flourish this time extending left second finger as the thimble on the right index finger is thumb palmed.

At this point the audience see four thimbles on the fingers of the left hand, and one on the right thumb. There is also one thumb palmed in the right hand.

The left hand now removes the thimble from the right thumb taking it between the thumb and base of the index finger puts it on the right index finger. During this action the left little finger, still wearing a thimble steads the one from the right thumb palm position.

The thimble on the right index finger is freely displayed showing clearly that there is only the one thimble in that hand. Meanwhile the left thumb has pulled the extra thimble off the little finger and worked it onto its tip, keeping it concealed behind the left fingers.

For the last time make the flourish, thumb palm the thimble on the right index finger at the same time extend the left thumb to show the completed transposition of five thimbles from the left hand to the right.

The nesting principle makes the clean up at the finish a simple matter. The right thumb and index finger remove the thimble from the left thumb, an action which gives cover for the left index finger to steal the one in the right thumb palm position. The one removed from the left thumb is placed mouth downwards onto the table followed with the two as one from the index finger and finally the three remaining on the other fingers. Both hands are now empty.

The various turning movements necessary to conceal the moves and to display the thimbles to the best effect during the routine have been omitted. The first should be obvious and the second depends to a large extent on personal style.

Effects where spectators are allowed to shuffle the cards, and still some unexpected magical climax occurs, are usually well received by audiences. For example, the type of card control described in many of the earlier books on magic where the selected card is palmed out of the pack, before handing the pack out for shuffling by a spectator and subsequently adding the palmed card to the pack on its return. This procedure is, in my opinion, vastly superior to any advanced control of a selected or peeked card, in which the pack never leaves the hands of the performer. In this trick, the impression given is that the performer hardly touches the pack at all, and yet the trick is concluded successfully.

For maximum effect it is desired that the spectators have a simple knowledge of poker hands, although this is by no means essential, as the climax is apparent even to a non-poker player.

No new principles are used in the effect. Cy Endfield's Location in Pabular No.5, Yol.3 started me thinking about the presentation. I believe the placement used is Bill Simons', and the reverse stack principle is in print and claimed by a number of inventors, so I will not name one, and offend the others.

A stack of nine cards is required and these should ALL be of the SAME COLOUR i.e spades and clubs or hearts and diamonds. The values reading from the top of the face down pack are, ace, two, three, four, five, five, four, ace, two. This simple stack is an easy one to remember.

PERFORMANCE:

Hold pack in the right in the normal overhand shuffle position with the face of the pack towards the palm of the hand. Explain that you have a lucky card, and should it fall into your hand when playing poker you always win. Name your lucky card as the three spot in your stack.

While you are saying this run the top five cards singly into the left hand reversing their order, and then drop approximately half the cards in the right hand on top and the remainder to the face of them. Now run the two top cards into the left hand, reversing their order, and throw the rest of the pack on top.

This little setting up shuffle takes only a few seconds and can easily be completed whilst your hands until you arrive at the face up three spot and break the pack at this point so that the three spot is on top of the left hand section. Twist the left hand inwards bringing the packet face up and the three spot face down. With the assistance of the right thumb this latter is drawn face down onto the top of the face down half held in the right hand. As it is pulled off position it so that it is outjogged over the outer end of the pack for about its length when the left hand twists back bringing its half face down again and places it on top of the half in the right hand.

This complete sequence of movements are carried out smoothly and fairly fast, as you explain that to complete your 'lucky cards' poker hand you need four more cards. After completing this placement sequence I normally tip the outer end of the pack upwards slightly and with the right fingers bend back the jogged card a little to show its face once again as I come to the point in the patter concerning the lucky three spot.

Say that you will take the two cards on either side of your lucky three to complete your poker hand. Run through the face down pack

eastraight Shuffie

you are explaining about the lucky three spot. You will now have the top five cards of the stack sandwiched in the centre of the pack, an ace on top and a two immediately below it. The bottom card will be a five with a four immediately above it.

Turn the pack face up and run through it removing your lucky three spot placing it face up onto the table, and breaking the pack into two halves at the point from which it was taken and place each half separately onto the table.

Spread each face down half slightly, and request a spectator to push the lucky three spot FACE UP into the centre of either spread. Point out the fairness of this. Close up each half into a face down squared packet and push them towards a spectator requesting him to riffle shuffle them together. It is natural that the two separate halves should be riffled rather than overhand shuffled, but it is advisable to make sure the spectator knows what riffle shuffling means before asking him to do it.

Take the shuffled pack and hold it face down in the left hand. Spread the pack between and 'VERY FAIRLY' remove your 'lucky card' and the pair either side of it. Hold these five cards face down in the left hand and place the remainder of the pack aside.

For maximum effect please try concluding the effect as follows before trying to change it.

Look towards the spectator who shuffled the packets together and say, "Did you do a straight shuffle?" Pause a moment and then say, "You certainly did." On completing this remark turn the packet face up and you will find either an ace or a two at the face. If it is an ace deal the top two cards onto the table singly reversing their order. Should it be a two, thumb off the two cards together and place them onto the table without reversing them. Deal the next card which will be a three spot on top of them. The face card of the pair remaining in the left will be either a five or a four. If a four deal them singly on top of those already on the table. If a five, just spread them slightly and drop them on the three already on the table.

The result is a neat face up spread of a one colour 'straight' in numeric order.

I have a complaint. Before anyone suggests I see a doctor, it isn't that kind of complaint, it's a mental one, and as I write I know I should never have admitted that because I can see my reader (the editor has informed me that I do have at least one reader) saying to himself "true, true". I'll tell you what, let's start again.

Dear editor, I have a complaint to make about the way you run this magazine (I feel better already). Last month for some reason best known to yourself you squeezed my, did you get that, MY column out of existence...... I don't like it.

Yours in disgust, The Pageboy.

That's telling him. Well how would you like it if someone squeezed you out of existence. It wouldn't have been half so bad if they had replaced me with something decent, and comparable with my talents, like Mark Twain, Robert Benchley, or even MacGonagle, but no, what did they put in my place? Tricks, stupid bloody tricks, and close-up ones at that. I repeat, I don't like it. Can you imagine the Daily Mirror without Marjie Proops?, the Daily Express without William Hickey?, the Sunday Times without Bernard Levin. It's inconceivable to even contemplate these atrocities, but our editorial team, Messrs Bolton, Mason and Robspiere just don't care. But care they should, because the end is nigh (whatever the hell that means) and the revolution is at hand. It shall not happen again. It must not happen again, and this is where you, dear reader (the same one) can help. Right now, I want you to write NOW and complain. Tell them you have been unable to visit the smallest room for more than a month due to their idiotic blunder. Stand up and fight for your rights. Insist that the Pageboy has a place in your home which has been empty for too long and that the gap cannot be filled by the waving of a mere magic wand. Impress upon them that the sentiments come straight from the bottom of your heart and from your wife's bottom too. Tell them that you aren't going to just sit there motionless and do nothing. Give them action.

O.K. that's got that over with, now let's clear the air a little.... What's been happening recently. For the last issue I did a brilliant column about my travels on the continent, a column which, alas, will never see the light of a printers ink. Since then I popped over to Switzerland to appear at a convention in Montreux, in company with several other English magi. I enjoyed it. In the close-up field, the one I remember was Binarelli, a young Latin from Italy, who fooled me very badly with a version of Wild Card, during his lecture. I didn't feel too badly afterwards when I found out he was using a wrinkle which doesn't normally exist in the usual set of cards used in Wild Card. I thought at first he was using the regular set of cards and had switched something in. He didn't, he just fooled me. He has lecture notes entitled Playmagic and they are in English with beautiful photographs. Remember the name, Tony Binarelli.

I have not so far mentioned the Ramsay Reunion Weekend, which was a runaway success. You will read an ad. in this issue which will inform you that the whole affair was recorded. Fill in the loose leaflet enclosed with your name and address and listen to some of the really greats in magic do their thing.

Things I remember from the Ramsay Reunion:

Dai Vernon, who didn't stop talking.

Los Mancos, the two Spanish boys who had one of the most original and funny close-up acts of all time.

Gaeton Bloom, who had the funniest gag of the year when he asked Dai Vernon to shuffle the cards.

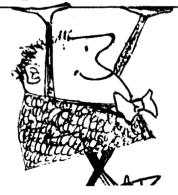

David Roth's sleeve.

And last but unfortunately Bob Read.

Don't forget to close the door.

Patrick Page

The Page boy speaks....

The RAMSEY REUNION

SOUND OF MAGIC AND PABULAR

Present

THE "RAMSAY REUNION" WEEKEND ON TAPE

For the first time ever, A COMPLETE MAGIC CONVENTION captured on tape. Excerpts from acts and lectures recorded live on the 12 & 13 March, 1977, in Birmingham, England.

Goodliffe of Abracadabra said:

The Ramsay Reunion was probably the greatest gathering of Close Up magicians ever assembled.

YOU ARE THERE

With SOUNDS, WORDS & PICTURES, you are there listening to the all-time greats in magic. Just look at the line-up.

Dai Vernon * Los Angeles Fred Kaps * Holland Piet Forton * Switzerland David Roth * New York Ron Wilson * Los Angeles Juan Tamariz * Spain Trevor Lewis * Wales Geoff Ray * England Kevin Fox * England Doug Alker * England Bob Read * London Los Mancos * Spain

Phillipe Fialho * Monte Carlo

And, of course, PAT PAGE, who tied the whole thing together

Here is what you will receive:

1. Two 1 hour long Tape Cassettes beautifully recorded and edited with added commentary by Pat Page.

Vol.1 — (Day one): lectures, and an after-dinner chat with the Professor himself, Dai Vernon.

- Vol.2 (Day 2) Coat of Armes Presentation to Dai, additional lectures feature David Roth. More chat and listening-in and the surprise act of the convention, Bob Read. A final farewell from many well known people in magic.
- 2. A spiral bound presentation book with words, lots of pictures and a complete programme of events as on tape.
- 3. The cassettes and book will be beautifully boxed with title on spine to store on your bookshelf.

Listen to Vernon talk about Ramsay, drop in on David Roth's birthday, hear Bob Read make an audience scream, find out why you should have been there yourself.

Place YOUR order for

THE RAMSAY REUNION WEEKEND TAPES NOW

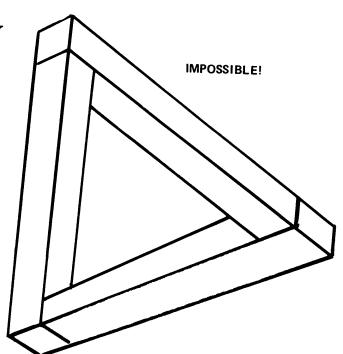

UK £10.50 postage paid

US $20.00 inc. Air mail

To 'Sound of Magic', 8 Herbal Hill, London EC1, England
Please reserve me the Ramsay Reunion Tapes. I enclose Cheque/P.O./Cash/International Money Order. I understand these will be sent to me as soon as possible.
Name [*]

14d110
•
Address

Country

From Eric Mason, 39 Dennis Park Crescent, London SW20, England

MAGIC INIFO

THE INTERNATIONAL MAGAZINE

Now in its 5th year.

MAKE SURE EACH ISSUE IS SENT TO YOU REGULARLY. SEND TODAY ONLY £2.50 UK, £3.00 OVERSEAS AND US $6.00 FOR ONE YEAR (SIX) ISSUES SENT POST FREE TO ANYWHERE IN THE WORLD.

32 glossy pages in each issue.

THE INTERNATIONAL MAGIC STUDIO (RON MACMILLAN)
89 CLERKENWELL ROAD, HOLBORN, LONDON, E.C.1.

HAVE YOU SEEN -

"SCOTTYORK WECTURE"

It took us almost six years to make up this miracle that you can perform anywhere —

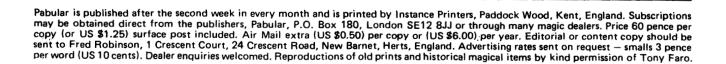

THE SCOTT YORK LAMP TRICK

FREDDIE FAH has four of them already.

Lists 50 pence, US $2.00 cash, $3.00 cheque

There's No Place Like
KEN BROOKE'S MAGIC PLACE - 145 WARDOUR STREE
LONDON. W.1. - ENGLAND

Tel: 01-734 9240

We Magazine of Close-up Magic

Vol.3Nº99MAY 1977

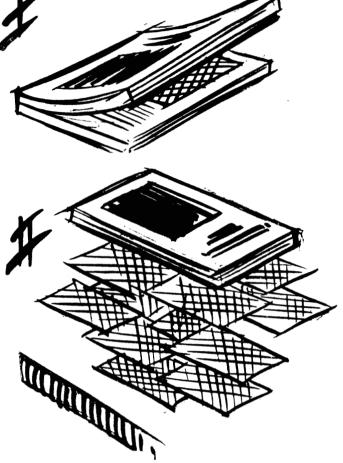

The performer writes a prediction during which time a spectator shuffles a pack of cards. One of the cards is freely selected and the performer, without looking at the face of the card, throws it into a book as he riffles the pages. The spectator is then requested to concentrate on the first few words on the page at which the card was found. After due concentration the performer succeeds in divining the words which he reveals in his best dramatic manner. The prediction is then read disclosing the name of the chosen card.

For this effect you will require a book with soft covers and containing about 300 pages, an ordinary pack of cards, and pen and paper.

The only preparation required is to place a known card, say the ten of spades, about a third of the way from the front of the book near the long edge as shown in (Fig.1). You must also note the number of the page at which it is inserted and the first few words on that page.

PRESTIDIGITATIONAL PREDICTION

PRESTIDIGITATIONAL PREDICTION by Gaeton Bloom

With the book on the table commence the presentation by handing the pack out to be shuffled as you write your prediction, the name of the card in the book, on a piece of paper which is folded up and placed in a prominent position, or given to someone to hold.

Have pack placed onto the table and ask assisting spectator to cut off about ten cards, which you take and deal out on the table in haphazard fashion, with the LONG EDGES towards you, see (Fig. 2).

Request spectator to select one of the cards by placing his finger on it. Take the chosen card with the right hand and pick up the book with the left. Position the chosen card in the right hand and place the book on the dealt out cards, opening towards you and bending it upwards in readiness for the riffling action as shown in (Fig.3) which also indicates how the card is held in the right hand.

You are now ready to create the appearance of throwing the chosen card into the book at some chance position as the left thumb riffles the pages. At the conclusion of the action the card is seen to be trapped in the book leaving half its area protruding. That is the illusion, the reality is that the card is thrown under the book where it mingles with the cards on the table, and the card sticking out from the book which the audience believe to be the one thrown, is actually the ten of spades which automatically shoots from the book as the pages are riffled. When the right hand throws the card its second finger is placed on the table in front of the pack to prevent the ten of spades from jumping completely out of the book. The position at this point is indicated in (Fig.4).

This is the only move in the trick and takes less than a second to perform. It is entirely dependent on correct timing for its success, which we will attempt to explain.

A split second after the card is thrown you start to riffle the book. If the riffling is started too soon the card will hit the book and if too late there will be a time lag between the throwing action and the appearance of the card. Immediately the card leaves the right hand its second finger is placed on the table to stop the card when it is about half way out of the book. Some practice is necessary, but once you have it the illusion is perfect.

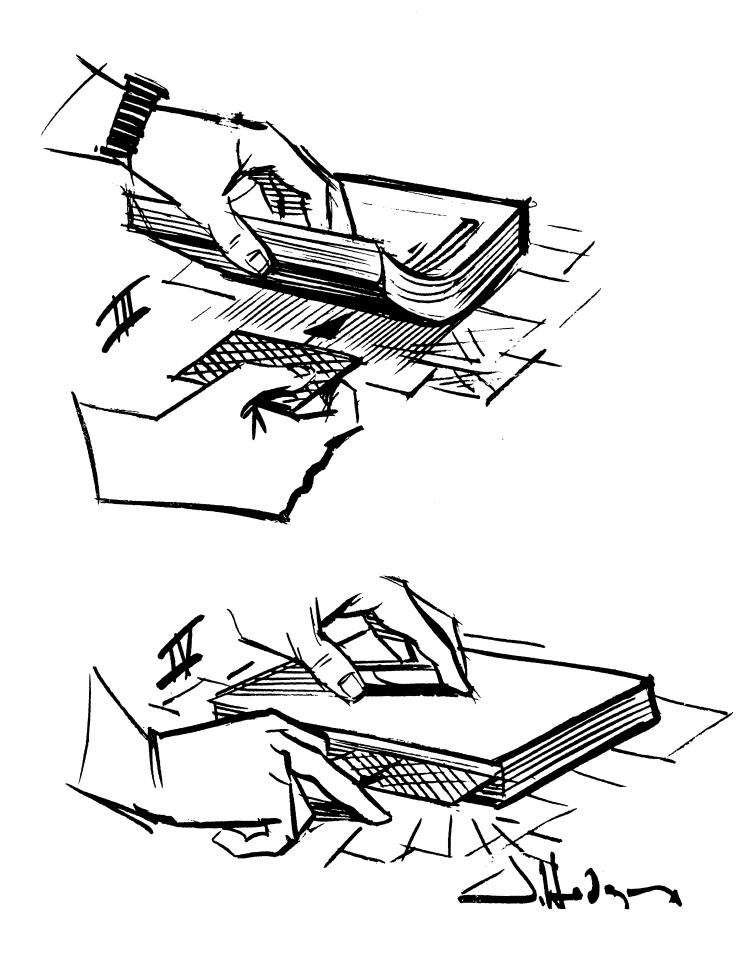

Returning to the presentation of the effect, the book with the card protruding is handed to a spectator asking him to note the page at which the card has entered the book and concentrate on the first line. You dramatically reveal word by word this line, and then ask that the paper be opened to show that you correctly predicted the name of the freely? chosen card.

A variation of the presentation can be made be eliminating the written prediction and instead divine the name of the card by 'reading' its back. You also pretend to read the first line of the page at which the card has chanced to arrive, proving that you have X-ray eyes.

Another approach would be to write, say, the ten of spades across page 123 with a red marker and wrap the book in a parcel. Put the ten of spades at page 123 in another book with which you do the trick up to the point where the selected card is thrown into the book. A spectator is invited to open the parcel, and on opening the book at the same page as the chosen card was thrown into the other book he will see your prediction.

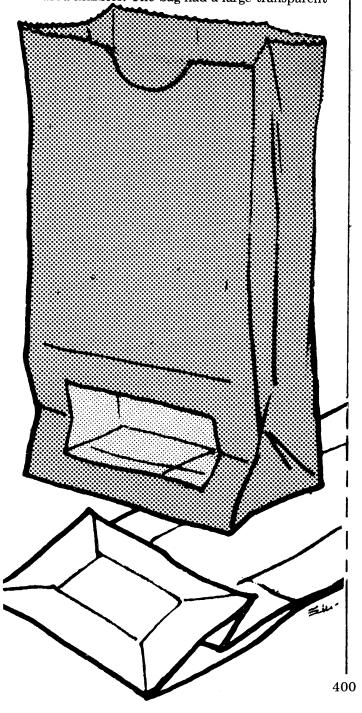

Finally a couple of precautionary notes. Always make sure a note is made of the page number before the thrown card is removed, and that the card put in the book before starting the trick is the right way up.

PSEUDO-PSYCHQMETRY in a paper bag...

It is many years since Ted Annemann presented Pseudo-Psychometry to the world of magic and mentalism. Based on the idea of identifying the owner of an object, or the writer of a message by the use of marked envelopes it has been used by many modern mentalists in some manner or fashion with great success.

This alternative way of achieving the same end was inspired by seeing a comedy magician getting laughs with a paper bag and some coloured marbles. The bag had a large transparent window in the side, and when a person's hand entered the bag it could be clearly seen by the audience.

The bag I use is a common opaque brown paper one which is folded flat in a special way, the sides being pleated inwards and the bottom folded over. When folded the bag measures ten inches by five or thereabouts. Near the bottom of one side of the bag it is necessary to cut our a rectangular hole two inches by one, in such a position that when the bottom of the bag is folded over the hole is within the fold and hidden from view. Reference to the illustrations should make everything clear. If desired the hole may be covered with transparent plastic though I have not found this to be necessary.

Briefly, here are three variations using the principle. The mentalist, who may either be standing or seated at a table begins by saying — 'Let's try an experiment. Will three of you please remove some small object from your pocket or handbag keeping it hidden and say — This is my object—this is my object.' As this is happening the performer takes out in a casual manner the paper bag without saying anything about it. Its purpose becomes obvious when the mentalist holding the top edge of the side of the bag with the cut-out, and turning his head away, requests that a spectator drops the object into the bag without anyone seeing it. It is essential that the bag be held with the bottom of the bag at eve level making it obvious that the objects cannot be seen over the top of the bag and it also brings the opening in the side of the bag in position so that the object deposited inside is instantly visible to the mentalist as he turns round for a split second to request the second spectator to drop his object into the bag. Repeat with third spectator and turn fully round to face the spectators. This time it will be unnecessary to glimpse the object as it will only be the one not known, therefore the mentalist can keep the bag away from his direct line of vision as he places the palm of his free hand over the cut-out and dumps the objects onto the table.

The participants are now requested to pick up an object which is not his own and hold it behind his back, the performer noting who takes the first object. The rest is showmanship. Tell spectator No.2 to kindly give the object he holds to spectator No.1 — for example a key — and No.1 to return the comb to No.3 and No.3 to give the coin back to No.2.

The opportunity may arise to make lighthearted remarks when requesting the return of the objects to their rightful owners. For instance a baldheaded man may have a comb, a man may have a lady's lipstick or key etc.

The effect as a whole may sound very simple, but it is direct and very perplexing to the lay audience.

In the second presentation the mentalist gives a brief spiel on the different vibrations, due *to body chemistry, between a person's left and right hands.

To demonstrate this fact in a practical manner a person is invited to hold two small objects, one in each hand taking care that the performer does not know the disposition of the objects. The performer after asking the spectator to count up to fifteen turns his head away and when the counting is completed he requests the spectator to drop the object he is holding in the left hand into the bag. He now turns face to spectator and glimpses the object as he asks him to drop the other object into the bag and immediately turns away.

The mentalist now reaches into the bag and removes one of the objects, studies it for a moment and then returns it to the bag. He then repeats the procedure with the other object. Both objects are now removed from the bag and brought into contact with the spectator's palms 'to test the vibrations'. Finally putting the objects into the correct hands. Conclude by giving a cold reading to the spectator.

For the third variation collect five objects remembering the order of the first four. Dump objects onto the table and do the psychometric reading business to establish ownership of the objects.

When performing any of the above every effort should be made to prevent the audience from regarding the paper bag as having any importance. It should be handled in a casual manner and no verbal reference made to it at any time, nor should it be held by the bottom lest it be suspected that you are able to recognise the articles by sense of touch. The success of the experiments depend solely on your ability as an actor to dramatise the effects and convince the spectators that there may be something in this mentalism business. Any action or statement remotely similar to those used by conjurers should be carefully avoided to prevent any suspicion that the effects are brought about by trickery.

The RAMSEY REUNION

SOUND OF MAGIC AND PABULAR

Present

THE "RAMSAY REUNION" WEEKEND ON TAPE

For the first time ever, A COMPLETE MAGIC CONVENTION captured on tape. Excerpts from acts and lectures recorded live on the 12 & 13 March, 1977, in Birmingham, England.

Goodliffe of Abracadabra said:

The Ramsay Reunion was probably the greatest gathering of Close Up magicians ever assembled.

YOU ARE THERE

With SOUNDS, WORDS & PICTURES, you are there listening to the all-time greats in magic. Just look at the line-up.

Dai Vernon * Los Angeles Fred Kaps * Holland Piet Forton * Switzerland David Roth * New York Ron Wilson * Los Angeles Juan Tamariz * Spain Trevor Lewis * Wales Geoff Ray * England Kevin Fox * England Doug Alker * England Bob Read * London Los Mancos * Spain

Phillipe Fialho * Monte Carlo

And, of course, PAT PAGE, who tied the whole thing together

Here is what you will receive:

1. Two 1 hour long Tape Cassettes beautifully recorded and edited with added commentary by Pat Page.

Vol.1 — (Day one): lectures, and an after-dinner chat with the Professor himself, Dai Vernon.

- Vol.2 (Day 2) Coat of Armes Presentation to Dai, additional lectures feature David Roth. More chat and listening-in and the surprise act of the convention, Bob Read. A final farewell from many well known people in magic.
- 2. A spiral bound presentation book with words, lots of pictures and a complete programme of events as on tape.
- 3. The cassettes and book will be beautifully boxed with title on spine to store on your bookshelf.

Listen to Vernon talk about Ramsay, drop in on David Roth's birthday, hear Bob Read make an audience scream, find out why you should have been there yourself.

Place YOUR order for

THE RAMSAY REUNION WEEKEND TAPES NOW

UK £10.50 postage paid

US $20.00 inc. Air mail

To 'Sound of Magic', 8 Herbal Hill, London EC1, England
Please reserve me the Ramsay Reunion Tapes. I enclos Cheque/P.O./Cash/International Money Order. I understand these will be sent to me as soon as possible.
Name
Address

barrie richardson-

fred tobinson

To Vic Pinto we owe an apology, in fact, more than one. We failed to credit him for the pictures which appeared in last months issue, I (not we) failed to ensure that his name appeared with the photograph which accompanied Walt Lees report in INFO, and on the front page of ABRA. We also apologise in advance for any pictures which may appear in the GENII. No provision had been made to get a pictorial record of the Ramsay Reunion, so without the ones taken by Vic, who is a leading commercial photographer, there would have been an irreplaceable gap in the records of the event.

A report that Andy Galloway performed at the Ramsay Reunion may be puzzling some of those who attended the event. He did perform some of John Ramsay's favourite effects privately for the Professor, Fred Kaps and David Roth and not as the report seemed to indicate as part of the programme

One who did appear was Doug Alker. He recently slipped over to Holland for the Dutch Convention where his distinctive style and dramatic ability plus a pack of cards won for him the close up competition. Congratulations.

Rovi was also there lecturing and no doubt performing close up magic wherever two or three were gathered together. He recently made TV appearance performing cut and restored handkerchief, unlinking ropes and card tricks. The camera was angled to give an excellent view of the table top and the properties used. Never did we get a full face view of the performer and we only saw the backs of the spectators assisting with the tricks. It was a perfect example of how not to use the camera when presenting intimate magic to the faces of those assisting in the audience. The success of any kind of television programme in which people are involved depends entirely upon how well the personalities of those taking part comes over to the viewers. In this particular instance the personality of Rovi, and he has plenty of that valuable commodity, never came over for the very simple reason we never really saw his face, the chief indicator of anyone's personality. Indeed it was difficult for his friends (of which I am/was one) to recognise him.

Still with television, John Fisher the BBC TV producer and knowledgeable in matters magical has been busy recording acts for future magic shows. There were three sessions in all which included only one which may be regarded as strictly close up — Al Goshman. Entirely from memory, the others were Paul Daniels — Jay Marshall — Marvin Roy — Bob Harbin — Moretti's — Valerie — Flip — Johnny Thompson — those I missed — and Harry Blackstone Junior. Personal favourite effect Blackstone's Dancing Handkerchief.

Eddie Dawes makes an interesting observation when referring to the routine titled The Card Expert in which it was suggested "should be presented as an exhibition of technical skill." This routine includes the Four Aces, Ambitious Card, Reverses and a Colour Separation and Eddie writes 'certainly the "magic" will have been effectively removed from any other card effect shown.' Few would disagree with this statement and in most instances it is a valid one, but there are exceptions, and it is actually possible to enhance the "magic" of a card effect by preceding it with a display of technical expertise.

Using the routine in question as an example omitting only the Colour Separation, let us assume the point in the effect has been reached when the four eights have been dealt on to the table. Instead of putting the balance of the cards in a separate pile on the table drop them on top of the other face down packet.

Your display of skill is now over, you indicate that you will show something a little different. Pick up all the face up cards, with the exception of a red and black eight, and push them into the face down packet apparently haphazardly, but making sure that the red cards go into red half and the black into the black half.

As most readers will have now realised the next trick will be Paul Curry's 'Out of this World' and it has been my experience that the greatest impact is achieved with this effect if it is performed immediately after a display of digital skill. To include it among other effects it becomes just another card trick.

It is of course possible to leave the display of royal flushes and the four eights and perform the Curry effect with the remaining cards. A description of Out of thi World can be found in Paul Clive's book, Card Tricks without Skill, or it may be possible to obtain it as a separate trick from your magical dealer.

Had several sessions recently with Darwin Ortiz a New Yorker over here to lecture at Jack Hughes' Wizard's Weekend. His speciality is riffle stacking. Here is a 'for instance'. With the four aces and four kings on top of the pack someone suggests the number hands to be dealt, three to seven inclusive, and which hand is to receive the kings. The dealer will get the aces. Darwin obliges after giving the pack four riffle shuffles.

With him and performing incredible dice stacking came Jim Zachary who is seeking a copy of Clayton Rawson's Death from a Top Hat. Would be pleased to hear from anyone with a copy to spare.

Charlie Miller also in town joined us and did a card trick. He stayed with us until the early hours even though he claims to have given up magical sessions.

The increase in space allotted to advertisements in this and subsequent issues will not push the Page Boy out nor reduce the number of tricks etc. There will be an increase in the number of pages in some issues and this may be one of them.

Four items for review this month and all from Busby Enterprises. The first and the one most likely to appeal to magicians is Larry Jenning's 'On Card and Coin Handling' price Ten Dollars. Divided into three sections the first deals with coins and explains five effects which are a Copper and Silver effect using two coins, a spectator's hands and the Dobrina palm. Coins through the table with four coins and a whiskey glass. A 'stand up' three coin routine with a hand-kerchief serving as table. Four coins pass from hand to hand. A coin vanishes and appears in a pack of cards next to a selected card.

The card section has fourteen tricks which include a cards to pocket effect in which two selected cards find their way into pockets selected by a spectator. Follow your Leader, a Slow Motion Four Aces, and an effect in which all the cards in the pack change colour except the three previously chosen, a couple of small packet effects etc.

Section Three is exclusively devoted to Larry Jennings excellently routined and original version of Al Wheatley's Chop Cup. It was first published in the Genii and although the text in this description is much the same, there are additional line drawings which make some of the moves easier to understand. The routine is intended to be performed seated at a table and as a result of this re-publication many will be inspired to add the effect to their programme.

All the material has previously been in print either in magazines or lecture notes but it is doubtful if many, especially those outside the U.S., will be acquainted with all the material offered. The gathering of so many of the originations of Larry Jennings within the pages of one book will be particularly welcomed by the many admirers of his work who have been unable to gain access to, or unaware of, some of the effects described therein. To those, and others, who enjoy performing magic of the kind that requires some effort - though there are a few 'selfworkers' - will find many hours of pleasure within the 67 pages of this book of clearly explained practical close up magic. The fine illustrations of Ken Taylor which supplement the text cannot be allowed to pass without mention. Recommended without reservation to all who love magic sufficiently to give it some practise time.

The Secret Tricks of Bending Metal Objects with JUST Your Mind, or How Those Big Time "Psychics" on TV Fool You Every Time. Distributed entirely by Busby Enterprises. Four dollars plus 50 cents postage. The title is almost a review in itself, and what follows on the front cover of this book with pages the size of this magazine, tells us that you can amaze your friends, astound your relatives, etc. etc., for hours as you bend door keys, car keys, spoons, knives, forks, coins, nails and other metal objects. Conjurers who have kept abreast with the literature of 'bending' methods will find little new in this respect. It may be possible to astound at least one of your relatives if you are the small son of a doting and gullible mother, but married men will be unlikely to meet with similar success when trying to convince their wives that a bent piece of cutlery is a result of their psychic powers. Purporting to have been written by a professional psychic who had decided to give up the "racket" and when ready for publication, reversed his decision to give up the profession and as a result elected to remain the 'Anonymous Psychic Bender'.

Amusingly written it does give the lowdown on what is required to achieve success in the field of 'psychic bending' and as such will meet with the approval of anyone considering embarking on such a career.

For the next few months Busby Enterprises will have the exclusive distribution rights of Baccarat Fair and Foul by Professor Hoffman. Published by The Gambler's Book Club priced Two Dollars plus postage, it is a reprint of the original first published in 1891 and made possible with the help of Jeff Busby who also provides an interesting and informative introduction. In common with their previous reprints the title page of the original has been reproduced.

The first nineteen pages are devoted to explaining the games of Baccarat, of which there are two, Baccarat Chemin de Fer and Baccarat Banque. The remaining 34 pages cover the various fraudulent methods used by both bankers and punters.

We are informed that one of the most popular methods of cheating was the secret arrangement of a number of cards which were then added to the top of the pack immediately before the deal. The methods used to make this secret addition are varied and interesting and in the words of the Professor, "An immense amount of perverse ingenuity has been directed to covering this particular manoeuvre."

As can be expected second dealing, marked cards, secret telegraphing and methods of secretly adding or subtracting money from the stake after the cards are dealt receive attention. Purchasers of similar books in this series will certainly wish to add this new item to their collection.

How to Control Fair Dice. Two dollars plus postage published by Busby Enterprises is a reprint from the K.C. Card Co. edition of the thirties, and previously sold at prices varying from five and twentyfive dollars. Some of the shots have appeared in 'Scarne on Dice' but should be of interest to gambling collectors as it contains material not published elsewhere.

Fred Robinson

If you do a stop trick routine, here is an alternative handling you may like to try. The effect incorporates a fancy deal the origin of which escapes me, but the idea must be very well known nevertheless. The effect is similar to most stop tricks, a chosen card being returned to the deck and lost, the cards being dealt singly until the card chooser calls "STOP" the card being dealt at that time when "STOP" is called is then proved to be the original chosen card.

In this method, the cards are held in the right hand as (Fig.1), the first finger pushes off the top card as illustrated in (Fig.2), the card then lies in position roughly 90 degrees at an angle from the deck proper, the right hand passes across the left hand palm as (Fig.2) then returns towards the body, during this return the singly pivotted card is caught by the left raised thumb which causes the card to align with the cards in the left hand, this is the deal action, each card going through the above motions and arriving into the left hand.

THE STOP TRICK

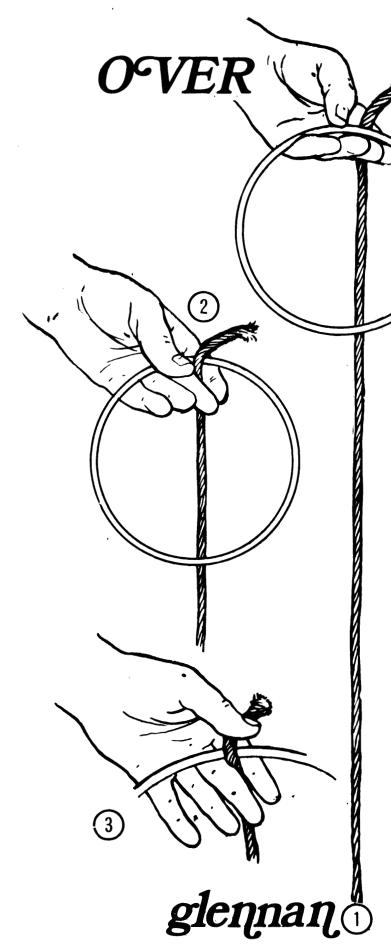

To perform the stop trick the chosen card is returned to the deck and controlled to the BOTTOM, the right thumb taking a break at the rear. Now commence the fancy deal action into the left hand as explained, until the command "STOP", then the BOTTOM card of the right hand packet is dropped onto the top of the cards in the left hand, the action being completely covered by the pivot action of the next card in the right hand. This sums up the action, there are however several methods of now disclosing the card as follows:-

Method (a) As "STOP" is called by spectator ensure that a single card pivots out to position (Fig.2) (to cover the drop), this card is used to tip the top card of the left packet FACE UP to reveal the chosen card.

Method (b) When "STOP" is called, make the drop then complete the fancy deal action with the pivotted card dropping this card on TOP of the chosen card, then DOUBLE LIFT to show chosen card.

Method (c) As in method (b) but SECOND DEAL chosen card onto the table.

There are of course other ways of disclosing the chosen card, but I trust the foregoing has given you food for thought.

THE TOP

A solid metal ring is struck against a piece of ope hanging from the performer's hand. As it the rope for the third time a visible penetrative takes place.

ou will require a metal ring about six inches in diameter, one from a small linking ring set is illeal, and about a yard of soft white rope.

Id the rope and ring in the left hand, the rope ling between the first and second fingers and lout a couple of inches from the end (1).

With the right side of the body turned to the uddence raise the left hand shoulder high, and with the right hand stroke the rope from a point about two inches below the left hand downwards to the centre as you observe that is necessary for the rope to be perfectly still. The right hand, having steadied the rope moves up smartly and grabbing the ring moves quickly downwards keeping the ring horizontal and close to the rope. On reaching the centre of the rope hit it several times with the edge of the ring. In making these striking actions the ring only moves two or three inches from the rope and is kept horizontal.

Failing to achieve the required effect the ring is returned to its original position in the left hand. The rope is again steadied and a second attempt made. Again without success.

Following this second failure when returning the ring to the left hand it is placed over the end of the rope as shown in (2) and as the right hand steadies the rope the left thumb traps the rope against the base of the forefinger (3). It is important the performer does not look at the left hand when making the above move.

With the rope steady the right hand again brings the ring down, but this time it is encircling the rope. The spectators will be unaware of this fact if the inside circumference of the ring is kept in contact with the rope diametrically opposite the right hand as it moves to the centre of the rope. Before they become aware of the real position the right hand is moving the ring back and forth with a quick lateral action which simulates the two previous attempts when the rope was struck sharply in rapid succession. When the lateral movement ceases, and sometimes just before, the spectators will become aware that in some mysterious way the ring has penetrated the rope.

The root idea behind this effect should, I believe, be credited to Stewart James. Peter Warlock's "Words End" used a special slate. I cast about for other methods to achieve this effect, and I have two other versions for platform use. The method we are concerned with here is taken from a card trick using half cards, invented by Mickey Hades.

From the spectator's viewpoint; performer writes down half of a word on a small piece of paper (as an alternative, Lexicon cards or a pocket slate could be used for this purpose). A choice is made from several pairs of half cards, each bearing part of a complete word. Chosen pair of cards is isolated temporarily. The other pairs are shown to each consist of different words. Spectator's word is formed — he writes on paper or slate, say, the second part of the word. Performer's prediction is shown to complete chosen word.

Several small cards are required (I use five, but the exact number is immaterial). Each of these cards are cut in half. One important point here is that the half cards so obtained should be all exactly the same size. (The reason for this will become apparent later). You can either measure them off, or do as I did, chop them with a guillotine, and trim them up afterwards. This results in five pairs of cards, and five halves bear half of a word each. The other five half cards are double-faced, and on one side all bear the prefix "PER", but vary on the other side according to the word to be formed. The complete list is given at the end of this article. The prefix "PER" will complete any of the words, and this is written as your prediction, or formed with Lexicon cards and laid aside, according to your working. To mislead the more knowing ones of your audience, you will note that some of the words use the non-force side of the double-faced half to complete the word instead of to commence it. A subtle throw-off as to the method used, and the credit for this ideas goes to my friend William Foulger. For making your prediction use the fibre-tipped type pen or a marker pen, for better visibility and bolder effect.

In working, arrange the double-faced force halves with "PER" side down, facing table. Place other half card face down on top. Place the five pairs of cards in a row, and point out that you have several words, each different, and divided into two halves. (Don't show the complete words at this stage, however). Make your prediction, or set aside Lexicon cards, as already stated. Explain that this represents part of a word that you think may be chosen later. Have a pair of cards isolated by having a coin or other small object placed upon it. Now turn over top halves of pairs not chosen, showing each word to be different, and stress that either of these could have chosen instead. Now show chosen pair by turning both halves at once, and spectator writes or makes from Lexicon cards the first or second part of the word, as the case may be. Then disclose your prediction, which is shown to complete the chosen word.

COMPLETE LIST OF WORDS USED

D.F. half: BAN/PER AL/PER COM/PER ATA/PER AGE/PER

Other half: ISH FORM PLEX SON USE

phil wye

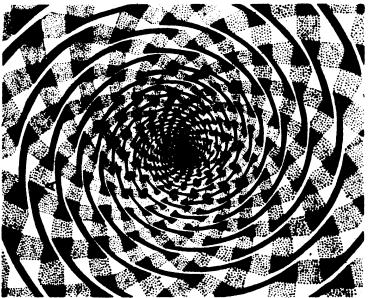

HELPING HAND vic allen

The stunt of placing a coin on a spectator's open hand and inviting him to 'beat you to it' by closing his fingers as you make a grab for it has a variety of presentations. The one I have been using for several years with good effect has an additional 'kicker' which adds that little more to the stunt, especially if a lady is chosen to assist you.

Place a tenpenny piece on the open palm of the lady's left hand and cover it with your own right hand palm uppermost. Explain that the idea is for you to snatch the coin out of her hand before she can close her fingers over it, but she must not start to move before you do. By merely turning your hand over quickly and making a grab at the coin you win every time. Do this a couple of times impressing upon her the need to close her hand immediately she feels your hand move.

After she has failed a few times suggest she tries once more, this time with her eyes closed to help her to concentrate. You also explain that you will make it easier for her as you will both start to move on the count of three. With your left hand take her wrist, place the coin on her palm and ask her to close her eyes. You quickly remove a joke rubber hand from beneath your coat, or out of your Topit if you have one, and put it palm up on her hand. Count one, two, three, GO, quickly because onlookers may laugh too soon and cause her to open her eyes. As you say, go, loose her left wrist and grab the bottom of your right sleeve pulling your right hand inside it.

The lady's reaction as she opens her eyes and sees the rubber hand on hers and your right hand missing is really something.

IF YOU'VE NEVER HEARD A MAGICASSETTE YOU DON'T KNOW WHAT YOU ARE MISSING

THE ROBERT HARBIN (75-minute) MAGICASSETTE IS READY NOW

Nearly one and a half hours with one of the world's most respected inventors and illusionists. Spend an evening with Robert Harbin in your own Magic Den. What does he talk about? Zig Zag, inventing, cruising, performance tips? Listen and discover for yourself. £4.80 including post U.K. and $11.00 (U.S.) airmail anywhere in the world. Other Magicassettes ready as this ad. is being written are: James Randi exposing Uri Geller/David Berglas TV's Man of Mystery on His Own Brand of Mystification, Bobby Bernard on Close Up, Val Andrews with a Magicassette entitled You'll Always have a Dollar! (His Life Story). Lewis Ganson Vol.1 and Vol.2/Alan Alan Vol.One and Vol.Two/Francis White on 50 Years with the Magic Circle/ready as this ad. goes to press. Exclusive rights to FAUCETT ROSS remembers. Hilarious magical memories of Dai Vernon/Nelson Downs and others — even had my wife laughing!

Each Magicassette Volume is just £4.80 post free or 11 Dollars airmail anywhere in the world. MAGICASSETTES from Martin P. Breese, 77 BOLINGBROKE ROAD, HAMMERSMITH, LONDON W14 OAA

MAGICASSETTES

DICEPTION

EFFECT:-

A small square tube is shown, and two dice are placed inside. They are separated, and a metal ball is dropped between them through a hole in the side of the tube, the dice are pushed together apparently squashing the ball. To show that it is not an illusion two plastic slides are passed through slots in the side, trapping the dice. The tube is handed to a spectator with a request to remove the slides and the dice. The metal ball has disappeared.

REQUIREMENTS:-

Two identical dice, a small oblong tube with a hole in one side and two slots in an adjacent side (Fig.1), a ballbearing and two plastic slides. The slots should be so spaced that when the two dice are inside the tube they are trapped when the slides are inserted. A third matching die (Fig.2) which is hollow with a piece of Blue Tack stuck inside which will help to retain the ball inside during the handling.

WORKING:-

The hollow die is concealed in the right hand. Pick up tube with the left hand and show to audience. It is then passed to the right hand which secretly introduces the hollow die, open end first.

Still holding the tube in the right hand, the left puts the two normal dice into the tube at the end opposite to the one at which the hollow one was loaded. These two dice are visible through the hole in the side of the tube. The left hand now picks up the ball as the right forefinger secretly pushes the dice towards the left. This action causes the hollow die and one normal one to be visible through the hole, though to the

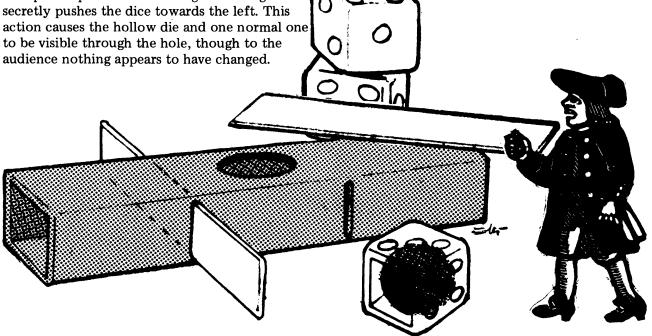

The performer now separates the two dice (one of which is the hollow one) and drops the ball between them via the hole. The separation of the two dice, which is only slight, is also done through the hole.

Using the forefingers of both hands push the dice together, an action which pushes the ball into the hollow die and brings the two normal dice into their original position where they are both visible through the hole. They are also in the right place to be trapped within the tube when the two slides are inserted in the slots, which is done as follows.

The first slide is pushed through the slot between the hollow die and normal one next to it. The tube is now tipped up, presumably to facilitate the insertion of the second slide. Unknown to the audience it also causes the hollow die with the ball inside to fall out of the tube into the hand for disposal at the first opportunity.

A spectator is now invited to remove the slides and empty the tube. He finds only two dice, the ball having completely disappeared.

At last! A book on one of the few really great close-up men in the world. Larry Jennings' magic is being used by discerning magicians everywhere.

Twenty great effects with cards and coins, totally described so that you can do them. Dozens of fine line drawings to make all points clear.

LARRY'S LEADER TALLY-HO SPELL LOOK-AN ILLUSION BLANK AND BLUE NUMBER TRANSPOSITION NUMERICAL ACES ADD-ON MOVE ACES RECOUNT TRANSMUTATION COIN CUT WHERE'S THE DISCREPANCY? IMPOSSIBLE COUNTDOWN L.J. COINS ACROSS TWENTY TWO CENT TRICK L.J. COINS THROUGH THE TABLE A HANDLING OF "BETWEEN YOUR PALMS" CHALLENGE CARDS TO POCKET NOWHERE AND EVERYWHERE AGAIN VERNON BALL ROUTINE DONE WITH COINS

Included by popular demand is the famous Larry Jennings CHOP CUP ROUTINE - the one that fooled the experts. The two large load balls seem to come from nowhere! Acclaimed as the best Chop Cup routine in existance. Again many fine line drawings have been added to make the important details clear.

While some of the effects take advanced technical ability, most can be done with average skill and many are self working.

This book is typeset, fully illustrated with fine line drawings and a photographic frontispiece of Larry Jennings. Offset printed on a heavy grade paper with a glossy cover in two colors.

$10.00

Dept. P-1 133-17th Street
Oakland, California, 94612
U.S.A.

or from your favorite dealer.

Please add 50¢ for postage and packing by Fourth Class mail in the U.S.. If you wish to insure the package, please add 40¢ extra in the U.S.. Add $2.00 for Air Mail postage to any part of the world. Add 50¢ for Special Handling mail. Add $1.00 extra for First Class mail in U.S., Canada, and Mexico.

CURRENT CATALOGS OF CLOSE-UP MAGIC BOOKS $1.00.

COPYRIGHT @ 1977 BY J.W. BUSBY

Okay, now that all the excitement has died down over the Ramsay Reunion Weekend, is there anything left? Yes, fortunately, there is. There always is, thank heaven. That's one good thing about the magic game, these days anyway, there is always something happening, has just happened or is about to happen. In this instance, it has just happened. What has just happened, you may ask? Okay, I'll tell you.

The Page boy speaks

I have just been to Spain. In this, their first election year for something like forty years, the Spanish magicians elected to have the Page Boy do a lecture and an act for them. As far as I can gather, they normally get around one hundred and fifty at their shindig. This year, they expected more, perhaps two hundred and fifty. What did they get? To everyone's surprise, it got close to four hundred. Was it a success? I'll say it was.

There were three lectures. The boy wonder, Fred Kaps, and Ron Macmillan. Whether by accident or design, all three lectures were completely different. I arrived at Cuenca which is somewhere in the mountains between Madrid and another part of Spain (if I explained where it was you still wouldn't know) at about seven o'clock in the evening and was promptly asked by Juan Tamariz if I would do my lecture. Yes.. I said..but when? At eight o'clock he said.

It turned out that I was the actual first event of the convention, because, as Tamariz put it, he wanted to open the convention with a bang. How's that for soft soap? So I did my lecture that evening and though I say so myself it wasn't a bad lecture. In fact, let me whisper this, it was so good, that Fred Kaps, who was lecturing the next day, had to pull out all the stops and did one of the best lectures I have ever seen in my life. He did everything I have ever seen him do almost, plus some others I had never seen before. Normally, Fred rations himself out very carefully, but on this occasion he didn't and the result was that he floored everyone present.

Ron Macmillan, did a repeat of the lecture I had seen him do a few weeks before in Switzerland, which is an expose of most of the manipulations in what can now be called his old act as he no longer performs.

For someone who no longer performs, Ron can still achieve a perfection of manipulation which can hardly be surpassed anywhere in the world, and if any convention anywhere requires a lecturer, and I'm not available, contact Ron Macmillan.

The close-up I did see was excellent. Tamariz did a routine with Jumbo cards, ves. close-up. Oil and water with several variations, Four Aces etc. There were two others who deserve a mention and in my usual fashion I scribbled down some names and have come up with two. Whether they are the same person or two different people I don't know but the names are Antoniode Estrada Carmena and Juan Carlos. One did an excellent demonstration of dice stacking, switching etc finishing up with large size dice under the cup with a colour change or two on the way. The other did card work which I had a little trouble following because of the language problem (his, not mine) but he knocked everyone out with a selected card appearing inside a cigarette lighter which at that moment was being held by a spectator.

Talking about dice stacking reminds me that there was another convention recently. The Jack Hughes Diamond Jubilee held in King's Lynn, Norfolk and that Jacks' son Bernard who was responsible for these things had imported Jim Zachary from the U.S.A. to a close-up lecture and Jim's forte is dice stacking with a vengeance. Up up and up they go. At the same convention we had another U.S.A. import, one Darwin Ortiz. Darwin likes card tricks, so do I, so I like Darwin Ortiz. The only thing I don't like about him is that he's better than me. He had lecture notes and I liked the pun in the title of the notes. They were called Darwin's Theories. I like that, it's almost as good as Patrick's Pages of Magic which is the title of another set of lecture notes I have read somewhere.

Some time ago I asked for ideas re effects with a Queens Silver Jubilee theme. I got them, several of them and they were terrible. If that's the best you can do fellas, forget it. Which reminds me. Even further back I asked for solutions to a couple of problems, namely a selected card appearing up ones sleeve and how to load a glass of wine under a cup as in the cups and balls. I had several replies to those queries. Some of them were interesting and if you will bear with me we will publish those so-called solutions in a future issue.

One last item. In last month's issue you probably saw an add for tapes of the Ramsay Reunion. They are just about ready (they may well be ready by the time you read this) and I would like to thank everyone who has placed their order. Have you placed yours?

Patrick Page

*KEY-RECT

MENTALISM AND CLOSE-UP

*A sensation! Ask Tony Griffith, Roy Johnson, David Berglas, Ali Bongo. Don Alan etc.

£17.00 U.K.

£18.50 inc. post overseas

Money back guarantee

GEOFF MALTBY'S

GEOFF MALTBY'S

48 Emu Road S.W.8 London

ENGLAND

Tel: 01-720 6257

Manufacturers of Flying Carpet Magic

CATALOGUE - IMPORT BROCHURE - LATEST LISTS - 75p

HAVE YOU SEEN -

"SCOTTYORK VECTURE"

It took us almost six years to make up this miracle that you can perform anywhere —

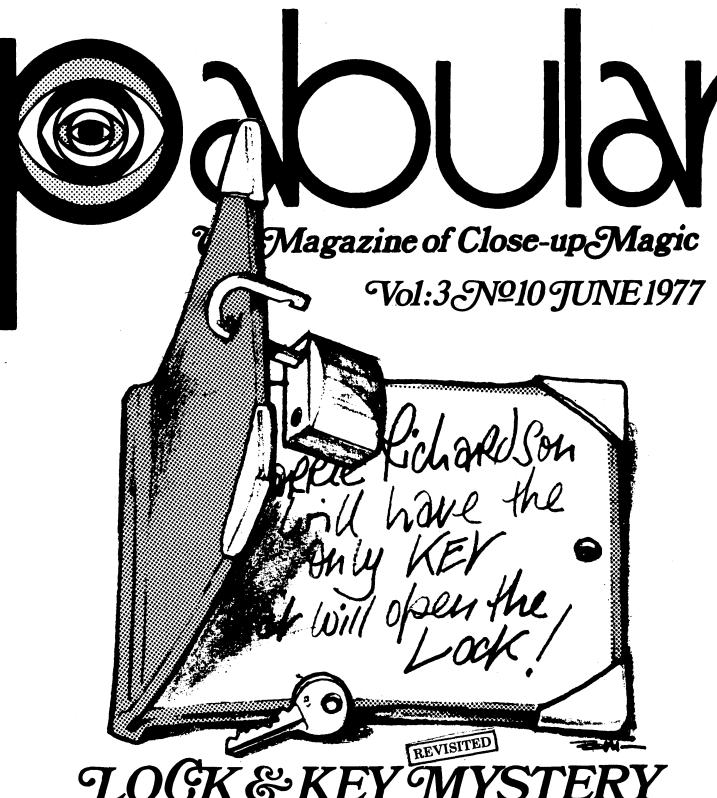

THE SCOTT YORK LAMP TRICK

FREDDIE FAH has four of them already.

Lists 50 pence, US $2.00 cash, $3.00 cheque

There's No Place Like
KEN BROOKE'S MAGIC PLACE - 145 WARDOUR STREET
LONDON. W.1. - ENGLAND

Tel: 01-734 9240

In 1931 Anneman introduced "Seven Kevs to Baldpate" which he explained in 'The Book Without a Name'. Briefly, the effect consisted in the performer divining which one of seven keys would open the lock, and required a changing bag. Henry Fetsch suggested a fascinating approach to the problem in the Jinx some seven years later which involved a second lock, and since that time several methods have been devised to produce the effect.

My own solution depends on the Fetsch principle, and though it may be open for debate, I believe it has the advantage of being cleaner in operation.

Two locks are required. Seven keys which open one lock and one key which opens the other. Let's call the lock with the seven keys B. which is closed and placed in the right coat pocket. The other lock A is opened and the key basrie richardson

LOCK AND KEY MYSTERY Barrie Richardson

which is not required during the performance placed aside. One of the seven keys is tied to a piece of ribbon and placed into the open lock A.

Commence by distributing the six keys among the audience. Hold up the open lock with the tagged key in it saying, "A lock which I testify has not been tampered with. I offer one thousand dollars (or pounds) to anyone who can prove that this lock is not exactly as it left the factory. Six keys which will not open the lock, and one, this one, which will. Please take the lock, Miss, remove the key and snap the lock shut." The audience will believe that the ribbon is on the key as a means of identifying which key will open the lock and assume that it was used for that purpose.

The lock is now passed around for examination and to allow those with keys to satisfy themselves that they will not open the lock. While they are trying secretly take the other lock from the pocket and ask the spectator to remove key from the ribbon.

This request should be so timed that the attention of the audience is directed to the person untying the ribbon as you regain the lock taking it with the hand not holding the duplicat The locks are now switched by apparently putting the visible lock into the hand contain the duplicate and bringing the latter into vig During this action you should be watching person untying the ribbon and if some relev remark is made to this person it will further ensure no-one will be watching you as the switch is made, which should be made casually without any attempt to make the move invisible. This would be a pointless exercise as the misdirection is so strong that all eyes will be on the ribbon as it is being untied.

The ribbon is now taken and put into the pocket together with the original lock and the 'switched in' lock handed back to the helper with the request to open the lock again (criminal isn't it) and then lock it.

All seven keys are then mixed and you discover the right key in whatever fashion you prefer.

You may wish to again switch locks back again after it is open, along with the key which I do when at the table. Another idea is to put each key as it is eliminated into the right coat pocket as you take it back. At the conclusion apparently remove them from the pocket, actually bringing out six duplicates which had been placed in the ticket pocket. It is advisable to make sure that none of these will open the lock.

A final note. The routine I now use may be of interest to the readers. In addition to the divination effect the routine also embraces a prediction.

With a felt tipped marker I write the following on a 9 inch by 11 inch folder — "Joe Bloggs will have the only key which will open the lock". No-one is allowed to see what has been written. A hole is now punched near the edge of the folder and the person assisting in the experiment who has the lock snaps it around the folder. The keys are then distributed after being mixed and using a fork or pencil in the manner of a dowser six of the key holders are eliminated leaving only the seventh in this case Joe Bloggs who opens the lock.

Now the misdirection is very strong for making the second switch of both lock and key as the message is being read. Everything can now be examined.

-A PLEA

Much has been written to help acts attain a more professional standard, from the limitless supply of new tricks to the unending stream of presentation and rehearsal tips.

One wonders, however, why the average ayman/booker should consider close-up magic any better than "party tricks" when even magic clubs themselves continually foster the idea by an almost casual disregard for the work and efforts of the close-up magician.

Although a relative newcomer to the closep business, I have been appalled by the lack of courtesy, primitive conditions and deprivation meted out to the performer by the organisers of the average close-up show.

I have had the misfortune to watch shows wherein the acts have not been introduced — screens and resetting facilities have been non-existant, working surfaces supplied that were totally unsuitable. At other functions I have personally been asked to perform simultaneously with other acts — no less than 8 times creating the atmosphere of a demented 3-ring circus.

Think about it, and see if you don't agree that considering their valuable entertainment input to the present day convention, close-up magicians are, in general treated deplorably by the average club.

414

Respect, like charity, begins at home and it is surely encumbent upon our own fraternity to take the first steps.

Here is a 9 point plan designed to improve working conditions and provide a smoother structure for the benefit of performers and audience.

1. Responsibility

Appoint a reliable committee official to take sole charge of the close-up show. His duties will include booking and paying the acts, welcoming the performers on arrival, co-opting members to arrange seating, arrange introductions at each table and overall responsibility for the welfare of the entertainers and smooth running of the show.

Don't leave this appointment until "the day" — and advise the acts who this link-man is well in advance.

2. Booking

Take a leaf from the Blackpool boys and send a contract with 2 copies stating time, place, fee.

3. Special Requirements

Go one further and — like the Leeds MC ask the acts, before the great day, if they have any special requirements i.e. music - lights - props etc.

4. Basic Essentials

Please provide at least the basic essentials. A dressing room, if possible with wash basin as even close-up acts like to change for a performance. A screen in the hall behind which the act can reset. Reliable card tables — i.e. 4 legs of approximate equal length with reasonable size working surface. Please invest in a number of green baize cloths large enough to hang to the floor on the front edge of the table. Oh, and a large jug of water and glasses —it's a thirsty hour.

5. Venue

The Leicester MC actually arrange for the audience to sit around circular tables with overhead lights — and I'm told the Ramsay Reunion took place in a lecture theatre with rakes seating. These are, of course, exceptional conditions but if you can't arrange different rooms for each act, at least have as few tables as possible — in the largest available room — and have the acts work diagonal corners instead of clock/anti clockwise. This way the audience is not as obviously "tipped off" about what is coming next.

6. Procedure

Don't ask the performers to work 6 tables—4 is enough. Try to have the performers work in teams of two, i.e. one working, one setting up. This way you have no stage waits, no restive audience and no panic.

7. Format

Check with each performer the effects to be performed. Act as mediator to eradicate duplication — do not expect the performers to resolve this. Ask if the performers have any objections to members of the audience using tape recorders.

8. Introductions

Introduce all the artistes to the audience before the show. Delegate someone at each table to introduce the act and thank all the performers and organising staff after the show and before the audience start to leave. Let's not have the mismanaged shambles we've seen in the past. Close-up shows should run as smoothly as stage shows with the start, middle and end clearly defined. Have a club member write a factual and interesting account of the acts for the magic magazines — this need not be an eulogy neither a bald list of effects, but enough to convey what was done and the style and standard — and get the name right.

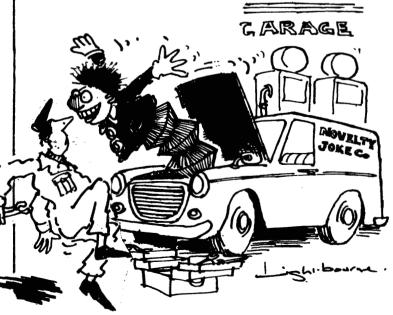

9. Payment

See that the performer is given his money — preferably cash rather than cheque — in a sealed envelope with a short letter of thanks IMMEDIATELY AFTER THE SHOW.

OK, follow just some of the above points and you will end up with a more professional balanced show. The audience will feel more comfortable watching a show that has been well produced and the acts will give more of their best.

Most of all, you will have contributed more positively to the elevation of the art of close-up magic.

TUST CHANGES

In this effect four cards of particular denomination appear one at a time protruding face up from a face down blue-backed pack. On being turned face up they are seen to have red backs. They then mysteriously change their faces only, first to kings and finally to aces still retaining their red backs.

To prepare remove the four aces and four kings from a blue backed pack and replace them with similar cards from a red backed pack. The blue backed pack with the red strangers is now set up as follows. Face down blue backed card—face up blue backed card—the four red backed kings face up—and the following all face down:—blue backed card—red backed ace—three blue backed cards—red backed ace—three blue backed cards—red backed ace—three blue backed cards and a red backed ace, followed by the remainder of the pack. To complete the set-up turn the four bottom cards face up.

The production of the four face up cards to commence the routine uses Piet Forton's effective method explained in the February issue Vol. 3 No. 6, and are the four faced cards from the bottom of the pack. As each one is produced it is allowed to fall face up on to the table.

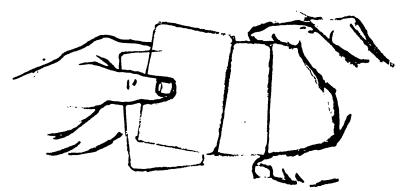

With the pack held in the left hand a left little finger break is taken below the face up kings. The natural break provided by these reversed cards makes this a simple matter. The tabled cards are placed face up on top of the pack and the block of eight cards above the break turned over on top of the pack. To the audience it will appear that the four face up cards have been added to the pack and turned over. The four red backed kings now on top of the pack are dealt face down in a row on to the table the audience supposing them to be the four cards just produced.

The tabled cards are turned face up to reveal that they have changed to kings at the same time taking a left little finger break below the second card — a red ace. Count off three cards from the top of the pack taking two on the first count and put the three cards (actually four) on top of one of the face up kings. The little finger break simplifies the taking of the two cards as one and as the second and third cards are counted off they should be placed on top of the double card which will result in the red backed ace being at the bottom of the face down packet on the king. Again take a left little finger break under the second card and count off four as three and place the packet on another king. Repeat the procedure twice more covering the other two kings.

Pick up one of the packets keeping it face down. Take the king from the bottom and put it face down third from the top of the packet taking care not to expose the red backed ace. Elmsley count the packet of five cards as four putting the last card on the bottom of the packet. The top card of the packet is a red one which the audience believe to be a king is thumbed off on to the table and the packet put on top of the pack. The tabled card is turned face up to reveal the change from king to ace.

Pick up the second packet and after squaring it up take the king turn it face down replace it on the bottom. Count off the three blue backed cards with the right hand taking care to keep the two red backed cards squared as one card. Replace two of the blue backers on top of the red cards in the left hand injogged for about an inch, and the remaining one similarly injogged below the two red backed cards. Left hand turns bringing the packet faces of the cards towards audience allowing spectators to see the outjogged king. The red backed ace is concealed behind the king. The left hand now turns bringing the packet back to its original position and the right hand grasps the outjogged red backed cards thumb on top and fingers below and keeping them aligned 'wiggles' them and finally pulling the top card, the ace, clear as the left index finger tip engages the outer end of the king below pulling into and square with the blue backed cards in the left hand. Right hand turns the king face up showing it to be an ace and dropping it face up on to the table. The packet of four cards in the left hand are now shown as three blue backed cards and keeping the red backed king, which is third from the top, hidden. This is achieved by holding the packet in the right hand in the Biddle position, thumb at inner right corner and index finger tip at right outer corner as the left finger tips pull the bottom card of the packet towards the left and the left thumb moves the top card also towards the left, leaving the two middle cards out jogged towards the right (1). The right hand now moves from the Biddle grip position and takes the cards from the left hand commencing with the double then the remaining two singly and placing them in a squared packet face down on top of the pack.

The face down cards only of the third packet are picked up leaving the king on the table. The packet of four are counted as three with the backs towards the audience. Hold the four cards faces down in the left hand and take the top card with the right. then the next going on top and finally the next two as one on top of the other two. Turn the packet faces up and show the faces of three cards only keeping the ace hidden using the same means to achieve this end as taken to show the backs of three cards while keeping the red backed card hidden when dealing with the second packet to which sketch (1) refers. Having reached the position in the illustration but with the faces of the cards towards the audience the right hand pulls out the double card and places it/them on top of the other two. Still with faces towards the audience square up the cards and take a break under the top card with the left little finger tip. Pick up the king from the table and place it face up on to the face up packet.

This time the king is changed into an ace by means of a colour change. The right hand takes up a position over the packet with the thumb at the inner end and fingers at the outer end and the three cards under the break are swivelled into the right palm using the left fingers. The left hand moves away with the two cards and the right hand implants it three palmed on those in the left changing the king into an ace. If desired a Herrman or other pass may be used to bring about the effect. The ace is now removed, its back shown and dropped on to the table. The faces of three of the remaining four cards are shown keeping the king hidden using the method explained previously. The packet is then placed face down on to the pack.

Pick up the last packet and place the king face down on the bottom of the face down packet which is then held in the left hand. The right hand takes the three blue backed cards singly, and the two remaining red backed cards turned over in the left hand as one card to show the king. Place one of the cards in the right hand face down on top of the two in the left hand and the other two on top. Show three blue backed cards with the face up king second from the top using the Ascanio Spread. Move the king with the ace below it below the second card and repeat the sleight revealing that the face up king has changed to an ace.

Cut the packet bringing the ace to the top and thumb it on to the table. Take a break above the bottom card and turn the top card face up and push it into the break flush with the rest of the cards. Take the new top card, show its face and put it face up on the bottom of the packet. Repeat with the next card which will reveal the face of the first of the three cards shown at the face of the packet creating the illusion that there are only three cards in the packet and the face and backs of all three have been shown, and the trick is over.

david carré

417

THE U.S.A.TRAIL

EFFECT:-

Five cards are freely chosen from the pack by a spectator. He remembers one of these and the performer magically locates the noted card. When the remaining four cards are turned face up they are found to have changed to aces.

METHOD:-

Start by having the aces palmed in the right hand, backs towards the palm. They can be palmed from the pack after culling, or simply kept in your pocket or on your lap until you are ready to go into the routine when you sneak them into your palm.

Fan out the pack face down using both hands requesting a spectator to remove any five cards from the pack. Note that the spread pack perfectly conceals the palmed cards, the right thumb being on the backs of the cards and the fingers below.

When the five cards have been taken close up the pack and hold it face down in the left hand in a casually squared condition. The right hand with the palmed aces drops down into a relaxed position. One of the big secrets of successful palming is to keep the hand and arm relaxed with complete absence of tension. Imagine your hand has just taken an aspirin to remove tension and you won't get caught.

Ask the spectator to discard any four of the cards he is holding extending the left hand so that he will automatically drop them on top of the pack. Take them in a fairly sloppy manner so that they are not neatly squared on top of the pack.

The spectator is now requested to look at the card he has retained, remember it, and show it to any others present. As he looks at the card bring up the right hand and add the palmed cards to the top of the pack. The unsquared condition of the four cards returned by the spectator provides the reason for the right hand to approach the pack — to square up the cards.

Immediately the palmed cards have been added and the right hand rests on the pack, the left thumb pushes over these added cards (the four aces) in a slight spread. The right hand now takes these four retaining the spread condition and the left hand places the remainder of the pack on the table.

Request the spectator to push his noted card amongst the ones you are holding. Since you use the word 'amongst' he is conditioned to place it within the packet and not at either end of the spread, so it will end up at position two, three or four from the FACE of the group. You can easily note its position as he pushes it into the packet. If he places it in position two, close up the spread taking a left little finger break under the top two cards of the face down packet. Should he insert it in any other position close up the spread remembering its position.

Remarking that you will demonstrate an infallible way of finding the chosen card proceed as follows.

If it was returned as position two from the face put the top card under the packet and the next one on the table, continuing this procedure until you are left with one card. Note that the first card you place under the packet is really two cards as one. The break obtained when closing the spread makes this move relatively simple to perform.

If at position three from the face put one card under the packet and the next one down onto the table and continue the sequence until you are left holding one card.

10y walton

If at position four from the face place one card on the table and the next one under the packet and continue the sequence until you are holding one card.

Ask the spectator to name his card and slowly turn the card you are holding face up to show that you have found it.

Point to the four face down cards on the table and say, "You are probably wondering whether the trick would have worked if you had chosen one of these cards instead, well, to be honest it wouldn't. I would just have had to show you my four ace trick." On the final line turn the four cards face up to reveal that they are aces.

the first joint of the left index finger until they are clear of the pack. In a continuous motion the pair is flipped bookwise face up onto the pack. Exclaim, "Your card wasn't the five of hearts? Hmmm..." As this is said, flip the double card face down, and deal the top card (supposedly the five of hearts) onto the table face down. State, "Perhaps the five is in indicator... maybe we will find your selected card fifth down in the pack."

Second deal four cards. The fifth card (actually the original top card, the five of hearts) is now dealt and turned face up. Express astonishment and confusion at seeing the five at this location and turn your attention to the tabled card. It is turned over, revealing that it has changed into the kings of hearts, the chosen card.

TAKING THE PLUNGE

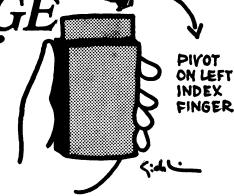

This routine offers several surprises. It is presented with an air of bewilderment as if the magic were taking you by surprise as much as the audience.

Begin by having a card selected from the pack, and as the spectator is noting the card begin an overhand shuffle and as you reach the halfway point have the selection returned. Continue the shuffle running two cards onto the selection, injog the next card, and then run off the remainder of the cards on top of all. Square up the pack, and as you push the injogged card back into the pack obtain a break below it.

Overhand shuffle to the break. Injog the first card after the break. Run off two more cards and then injog the next card. Shuffle the balance of the pack on top of all. The situation will not be that there are two cards extending from rear (inner end) of the pack, with two cards sandwiched between them which are square with the pack.

Perform the plunger rise, which will cause both cards between the injogged cards to rise squared as one. The visible face of the risen pair will be an indifferent. For the purpose of explanation let's say it is the five of hearts, and that the chosen card hidden behind it is the king of clubs.

Hold the pack face down in the left hand, with the extending card(s) towards the audience. With the right hand swivel the extending card(s) to the right. See illustration. The pair pivots on

Note: For readers lacking facility with the second deal the following wellknown simple wheeze will overcome the deficiency. In counting off the five cards take them one at a time with the right hand each succeeding card going on top of the previous one counted off. This procedure will result in the five spot being at the bottom of the packet of five cards at the end of the count. At this point — pause — and make some remark relevant to the supposed five spot on the table. It could be a query such as asking if anyone remembers the suit of the tabled five. The object of this minor diversion is to prevent the audience from recalling how the cards were counted off so that when the packet in the right hand is turned over to reveal the fifth? card they will not tumble to the simple ruse with which they have been deceived. The misdirection will be even stronger if you express some doubt when, as the count of five is reached, by saying, "Are you sure it was the five of hearts?" They will instinctively look at the card only to find they are holding the selected card. You then turn over the packet to reveal the five of hearts at the fifth position.

dorion sagan described by phil goldstein

Let us assume that five cards consisting of three blue-backed cards and two red-backed cards are to be counted face-down as five bluebacked cards. Arrange the cards in the left hand face-down in the following order:

- top card is blue-backed
- second card is blue-backed
- third card is blue-backed
- fourth card is red-backed
- fifth card is red-backed

The right hand takes the cards from the left hand and holds them with the right thumb and forefinger as depicted in figure 1. Note that the cards are held by the very tips of the fingers. Only a light touch is required. The grip ensures the smooth working of the switch later on in the count, but, more importantly allows the audience to see the entire back of the card: there are no extraneous fingers to obscure the back and diffuse the interest point of the audience (that is, the audience normally concentrates on the middle of the back of the card).

The other right fingers play no part in this count and are held loosely spread, though the angle of view depicted by the diagram makes it appear the fingers are closed. This is not the case. On the other hand the fingers are not intentionally spread so as to emphasize the somewhat awkward position of the right hand. The best approach may be to just forget the 2nd, 3rd and 4th fingers of the right hand and just let them fall into whatever position they would normally fall into.

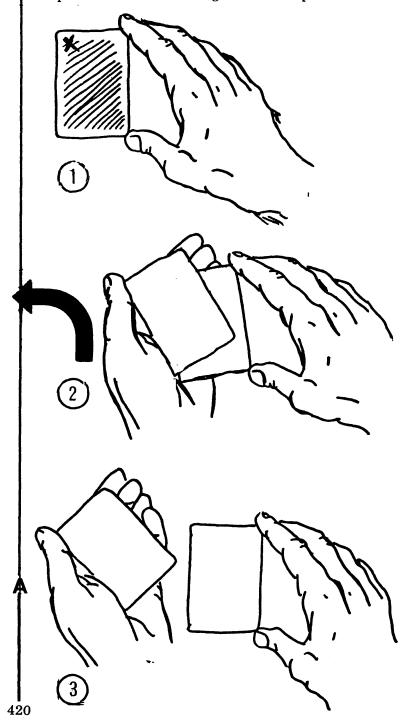

Step 2

The left hand approaches the right hand in order to pull off the first card. The right hand does not move towards the left hand. The right hand and arm remain immobile and rock steady during the entire count. The action is always one of the left hand approaching the right hand, pulling a card off, and then moving to the left. If the right hand moves, even slightly, a great deal of the illusion is destroyed (this principle applies to all counts, especially the Elmsley and Hamman counts).

The "X" in figure 1 denotes the spot the left thumb should aim for. With practice it is possible to have the left thumb nip just a fraction of the left top outer edge of the card as depicted in figure 2. To pull off the card the left thumb exerts a light downward pressure while at the same time pulling the card slightly to the left until it can be secured by the left thumb above and the middle joint of the left forefinger. Again figure 2 depicts this position.

The card is pulled off at a 45 degree angle as depicted by the arrow in figure 2. The left hand continues along the arc until it reaches the position relative to the right hand as depicted in figure 3. In the normal Hamman count the card moves straight off to the left. In the present method this angling is necessary to ensure a continuity of action: i.e., during the switch this angling is necessary therefore the audience must be prepared to accept the action during the switch.

The left hand pulls off each card by pivoting at the wrist: the left forearm does not move, but remains as rock steady as the right hand and arm. Again this enhances the illusion and makes the 45 degree pull-off appear more natural.

Step 3

As the left hand begins to move back towards the right hand to remove the second card the card in the left hand is shifted slightly towards the body (i.e. an injog) by placing the left forefinger slightly over the top outer edge of the card. Please refer to figure 3B which depicts the action. Note also the left hand position in figure 3C. In effect the left hand "cradles" the card.

Figure 3C depicts the left hand beginning to remove the second card. As in the original Hamman count the first card in the left hand is placed directly below the packet in the right hand as the second card is pulled off. The second card is pulled onto the left hand card and the left hand moves off to the left as before. Again as the left hand begins to approach the right hand to pull off the third card the two cards in the left hand are shifted slightly towards the body by the left forefinger. Thus far the audience has seen two blue-backed cards pulled off into the left hand and are now prepared to see a third blue-backed card pulled off into the left hand.

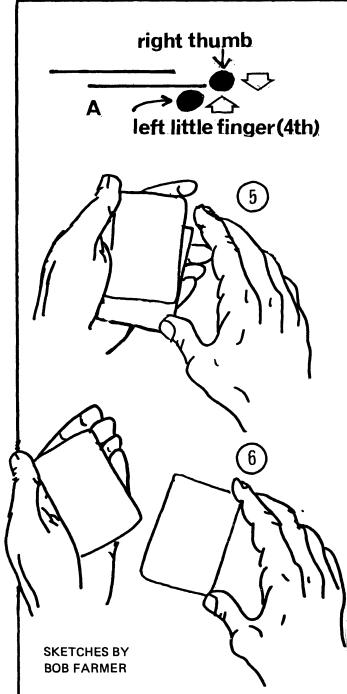

Step 4

At this point two cards are squared and injogged in the left hand. The left hand is moving towards the right hand to pull off the third bluebacked card. The right hand holds a three card packet which, from the top down, consists of a blue-backed card, a red-backed card, and a red-backed card. In this part of the action the three cards in the right hand are pulled into the left hand while the two cards already in the left hand are left in the right hand to be counted as cards number 4 and 5 respectively. The effect is that five blue-backed cards have been counted into the left hand.

The switch is performed as follows: As the left hand reaches the right hand the cards in the left hand are placed below the cards in the right but injogged a fraction of an inch. As this happens the injogged packet contacts the pad of the right thumb. Figure 4 depicts the action at this point. Figure 4A depicts the injog, however the packets are shown separate: this is merely for clarity in practice the packets are contiguous

Step 5

Contemporaneously with step 4 the following action occurs: because the lower packet is injogged the upper 3-card packet can be nipped by the left thumb and forefinger (middle joint) in a manner identical to the first two pull-offs. The technical problem at this point is to retain the two card packet in the right hand without dropping it on the floor (it is unsupported).

To retain the two card packet the right thumb pushes down slightly on the injogged packet as the left little finger pushes up. The entire left little finger is utilized in this action. If reference is made to figure five you will note that the right forefinger is not touching either packet (more about this in a moment). The injogged packet is supported or nipped by the right thumb and the side of the left little finger. The upper packet is nipped between the left thumb and forefinger.

As the left hand moves away (and the pressure and presence of the left little finger departs) the right forefinger moves to the top outer right edge of the two card packet: see figure 6. It is not necessary to consciously control the movement of the right forefinger, it automatically "flops" from one packet to the other. Figure 5 is actually a frozen action shot. In practice the switch of the forefinger, though visible, is not noticed. I proved this empirically through demonstrations before magicians (a demonstration without explanation followed by explanation and a second demonstration confirmed that the movement is not noticeable).

Step 6

The two cards now in the right hand are counted as cards 4 and 5 respectively onto the cards in the left hand. Of course a similar manner of removal is employed. The audience has seen five blue-backed cards and the two redbacked cards have been hidden.

Points to Note

- 1. The right arm and hand, and the left forearm remain rock steady throughout the count.
- 2. The left hand always approaches the right: the hands never move towards each other.
- 3. The actions during the switch are simultaneously executed.
- 4. The cards are counted 1-2-3-4-5 in a smooth continuous rhythm. I have timed my execution of the sleight and it occupies just under four seconds from beginning to end (i.e. from the time the cards are held in the right hand until they are all in the left hand).
- The attitude of the performer during this count is very important to the construction of the illusion. The impression you are trying to convey is that you are trying to display the cards as neatly and fairly as possible. Of course the ideal way to do this would be to deal the cards singly onto the table. However, this obviously is not possible. The position of the hands in this count, especially the right hand, appears slightly awkward (or "unnatural") to the spectators and therefore they must be placed at ease. To do this the performer must convey the impression that the cards are purposefully held in such a position so that the spectators can get a better (and fairer view): if the spectators believe this they will ignore the grips.
- 6. The Hamman Count is not a false count but a false display: that is, the correct use of the count is to display the physical appearance of the cards, not establish the number of cards. As a false count (that is as a method of counting a packet as containing more or less the number of cards it actually contains) the Hamman count is inappropriate.
- 7. It may be necessary for the individual performer to make adaptations of some of the positions to suit the hands available.

bob farmer

MASON'S NOTIKER MODIFIED Ray Waters

I must have been one of the first people to be on the receiving end of Eric Mason's Moniker (Pabular Vol.3 No.2) during its road-testing in the Blenhiem Bar. I am surprised to find that as far as Eric knows, he and I are the only people using this most spectacular item of bar magic.

When I began to use this effect, I was rather worried by the fact that in some conditions it is necessary to have a 'fielder' to take the glass; my worry stemmed from the fact that I have no friends. I therefore decided that the glass must be deposited on my person, and got out my Topit (a device for vanishing a pack of cards, available from Davenport's). This is my presentation using the said device.

Make your fake by removing the handle from a standard beer glass using your favourite method; put Blu-Tak on the ends and lie in wait for your prey. Stick the fake on to the glass as described in the original routine, and persuade your victim that he must hold the glass by the (fake) handle with his finger and thumb, and must not open his fingers. Cover the glass and hand with a borrowed towel.

Now, with your coat unbottoned, and both hands under the cloth, remove the glass with one hand while maintaining slight pressure of the fake on your assistant's fingers with your other hand. Say "Even if I put my hand on my heart and beg you to let go, don't open your fingers." As you say "Hand on my heart", suit the action to the words, dropping the glass into the Topit as your hand goes under your lapel. For lady assistants, the vulgar among us may wish to add "Even if I put my hand on YOUR heart, don't open your fingers, just scream."

Now, having more or less done the trick, announce that you are about to perform a great and beautiful wonder, to wit:- you will cause the glass to float with no means of support. Raise the fake and craftily slip it out of the encircling digits. Remove your hands to the corners of the towel and get your assistant to confirm that the glass is indeed floating. Ask if he would like to SEE this marvel, and when he says "Yes" reply "So would I", and whip away the cloth, immediately showing it empty. You now allow him to buy you a drink. If he says he DOESN'T want to see the glass floating, just say "Okay" and remove the cloth, he won't see it float. Do not buy him a drink.

Note:- You now have in your Topit a beer glass that nobody knows about; this is a good way to ensure a supply of glasses for making spare fakes. I offer to pay the landlord for the vanished glass as I can't get them back but have never been asked for the money. I hope that the prospect of free beer glasses may encourage other magicians to use Moniker. It's too good to file away and forget.

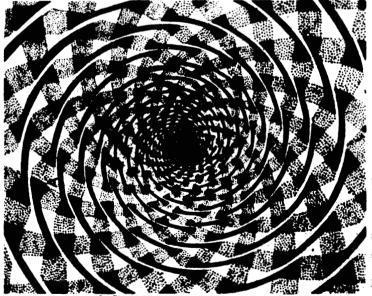

IF YOU'VE NEVER HEARD A MAGICASSETTE YOU DON'T KNOW WHAT YOU ARE MISSING

THE ROBERT HARBIN (75-minute) MAGICASSETTE IS READY NOW

Nearly one and a half hours with one of the world's most respected inventors and illusionists. Spend an evening with Robert Harbin in your own Magic Den. What does he talk about? Zig Zag, inventing, cruising, performance tips? Listen and discover for yourself. £4.80 including post U.K. and $11.00 (U.S.) airmail anywhere in the world. Other Magicassettes ready as this ad. is being written are: James Randi exposing Uri Geller/David Berglas TV's Man of Mystery on His Own Brand of Mystification, Bobby Bernard on Close Up, Val Andrews with a Magicassette entitled You'll Always have a Dollar! (His Life Story). Lewis Ganson Vol.1 and Vol.2/Alan Alan Vol.0ne and Vol.Two/Francis White on 50 Years with the Magic Circle/ready as this ad. goes to press. Exclusive rights to FAUCETT ROSS remembers. Hilarious magical memories of Dai Vernon/Nelson Downs and others — even had my wife laughing!

Each Magicassette Volume is just £4.80 post free or 11 Dollars airmail anywhere in the world. MAGICASSETTES from Martin P. Breese, 77 BOLINGBROKE ROAD, HAMMERSMITH, LONDON W14 0AA

MAGICASSETTES

QASIS

The increasing popularity of close-up magic has created problems for those responsible for organising that part of function devoted to this specialised type of magic. Many societies have yet to realise that the presentation of close-up magic events, if they are to be successful, require as much care and effort in organisation and expenditure of money as the more formal platform and stage shows.

In Bert Graham's article in this issue will be found sufficient information and ideas to make it an invaluable guide for those responsible for the arrangements of these functions. One point he makes is that performers should not be asked to work at more than four tables brings to mind that at a recent magic club convention which attracted around 800 registrations only four close-up performers were engaged and were required to give eight performances each, which seems to indicate a lack of awareness of the increasing popularity of close-up magic. If there is any truth in the saying "you get what you pay for" magical societies will have to increase the amount of money they allocate to the provision of close-up entertainment if they are to present top class magic in this particular field. This objective is unlikely to be achieved by inviting someone to lecture for 'free' and when he agrees informing him that he would be required to pay the registration fee, or to cite another case in which the magician quoted a fee, double the amount he was originally offered, was asked to accept £1 less.

This penny pinching resulted in registrants being deprived from seeing these performers in action and in consequence it can be assumed the organisers had to make second choices, which means, if they approached the best available in the first instance, standards had to be lowered. As the avowed aims of most societies is to elevate the art of magic, and if that includes raising the standard of close-up magical performance, one of the most valuable services they can provide for their members is to give them the opportunity of seeing top class performers in action. This of course may mean that more money will have to be spent in this direction, and less on other events.

The forty-first annual convention of the British Ring No.25 of the I.B.M. takes place at Harrogate, Sept. 14th-18th. There is an excellent line-up of performers from all over the world — but wait for it — no star close-up attraction. The good news is that the close-up competition will take place in five separate rooms ensuring a comfortable view of the performers. A similar arrangement proved successful last year when Don Lees, who has worked hard to promote close-up magic at this event, was in charge. This year Mike Gancia takes on the task, and if you are a member drop him a line before Sept. 1st saying you wish to compete, you will be helping to ensure that next year there will again be proper facilities for close-up performers at this event, also that consideration may be given regarding booking a top line close-up personality for your entertainment.

The Magic Circle's winter programme commences on Monday, Sept. 5th with Pabular in charge for the third year in succession. Should you wish to do a stint around the tables drop me a line.

From Juan Tamariz comes the news that Frank Garcia, Jose de la Torre and Slydini will be in Madrid towards the end of October giving a three-man lecture. After this the "IV Jornadas de Cartomagic" will be held in the Victoria Palace, a four star hotel in the village of El Escorial forty miles from Madrid. About 30 card specialists will be there including Ascanio, Piet Forton, Bernard Bilis, Reinhard Muller, C. Vasquez, Anton etc. etc. Two days of nonstop magic with four lectures, lots of films, workshops, shows and discussions in a friendly atmosphere. Unbelievably this is free, no registration fee whatsoever. The hotel charges are £14 per day for room, breakfast, lunch and dinner. Ray Grismer piano teacher to the 'Professor' in London recently performing his speciality, Ring off Cord with many interesting variations, plus card effects, in the Blenheim Bar for magicians and customers. His courteous manner when performing for the latter was an object lesson, and his remark that the most difficult trick was "to know when to stop", did not pass unnoticed. Sadly, it is one that many of us have yet to learn.

Another night and a different pub with Gordon Bruce, Peter Duffie and Steve Hamilton up from Glasgow. Our Art Editor Eric Mason who also happened to be there showed us the ultimate using the Cornelius slate. You name a card, and Eric puts the slate on your hand and invites you to turn it over to find your choice indicated thereon. During the session Eric invented yet another trick using a pint mug which will appear in this magazine shortly.

Til next month.

Fred Robinson

Fred Robinson

BOOK REVIEWS

It has been written by someone whose name escapes me for the moment that 'the knowledge that one is about to be hanged concentrates the mind wonderfully'. This is also true, though perhaps to a lesser degree when one purchases a book devoted to one effect. This month we have two such books for review.

BOB READ'S TRANSPO TUMBLER available from most dealers and also from the author, Bob Read, 32 Regal Way, Kenton, Middlesex, England. Price £1.50 U.S.A. Four dollars. The effect produced is simply explained. A glass tumbler is wrapped in a sheet of newspaper from which it disappears, to reappear under a hat previously shown empty. There is some byplay with a small ball of paper which supplies the necessary misdirection as the coin does in the old glass through the table effect.

The text, with 42 photographs, explains the working in the clearest possible manner and there is a patter story which has some relevance to what is happening and brings in the laughs. The routine is magically strong and is less dependent on 'gags' as such than this author's previous publications and will in consequence have a wider appeal to magicians generally.

*"BACK TO BACK" Jeff Busby's small packet All Backs routine. Four dollars. Available from Busby Enterprises.

The moves used to achieve this miniaturised version of the deservedly popular 'All Backs' effect are meticulously described by Dr. Gene Matsuure who is also responsible for the line drawings. Four cards are shown, all having backs on both sides. On being shown again one card is seen to have developed a face, the others still with backs on both sides. The remaining three cards develop a face one at a time and each time this occurs both sides of the undeveloped cards are shown. Finally all four cards instantly revert to their original condition having backs on both sides. Not difficult technically, and well within the scope of the average small packet card trick devotees who will only be required to memorise the routine, and possess an easily acquired fake card to be in business.

There are three pages of technical and historical notes by the author who credits some fifteen magicians with having been involved in various ways with the effect over the years and also makes the point that it bears repetition before the same people and that is a popular effect with the ladies.

MAGIC H H

THE INTERNATIONAL MAGAZINE

Now in its 5th year.

MAKE SURE EACH ISSUE IS SENT TO YOU REGULARLY. SEND TODAY ONLY £2.50 UK, £3.00 OVERSEAS AND US $6.00 FOR ONE YEAR (SIX) ISSUES SENT POST FREE TO ANYWHERE IN THE WORLD.

32 glossy pages in each issue.

THE INTERNATIONAL MAGIC STUDIO (RON MACMILLAN)
89 CLERKENWELL ROAD, HOLBORN, LONDON, E.C.1.

the greatest little gimmic in the world...

From Eric Mason, 39 Dennis Park Crescent, London SW20, England

The Page boy speaks....

(from Kirimuir, Scotland)

I have been in Scotland for a little more than two weeks now and this literary gem will land on your editor's desk in reply to a desperate telegram.

For two weeks I have relaxed and done nothing, absolutely nothing, I haven't seen any magicians, met any magicians, haven't wanted to see any, or wanted to meet any. Actually this is not completely true, I have seen some on television, and at the moment Scotland is very well served with Magic on TV as there are three shows running more or less at the same time — Kreskin, The David Nixon Show, and the Magic Circle Show which features Ray Alan as compere. The first week I was here I caught all three shows, but since then I have been so relaxed and easy going that for the last couple of weeks I haven't even bothered to turn the TV set on.

I will however be seeing quite a few magicians when, during the next week I will be in Glasgow when the Boy Wonder is giving a half-lecture — the other half being by George Kovariwho has come to appear at the King's Theatre, Glasgow. We'll tell you more about that next time round.

I mentioned last month that I was at a Spanish Convention and that there were two guys who were very good and that I couldn't remember either of their names. Well, just for the record, the guy who did the dice routines was Camilo and the fellow with the great card magic was Tony Cachadina. It was he in fact who told me, and I apologise for not making notes at the time. I can remember in the past people mentioning what I did but not my name, so I'll put the record straight for them.

In a couple of weeks time I shall be in Italy, Torino to be precise. This time I won't take any chances, I'll take a pencil and paper and write everything down. (Believe that if you like).

I don't know if this is the right place to bring up this matter, but I'm going to do it anyway. I recently had a book published, namely One Hundred and Fifty Comedy Props. Somehow a dispute has arisen between the binders and the publishing company about unpaid bills etc and this has resulted in a delay in the actual production of the book. I won't tell you how many of you guys have actually written to me for a copy of the book but there seems to be an awful lot of you for which I thank you. All I can say at the moment is that as soon as they arrive I will mail your copies at once. In the meantime don't worry - remember I will not cash your cheques, postal orders, International Money Orders etc. I think I have actually written to everyone concerned and if I haven't written to you I apologise and promise that I will do so explaining the situation. A few of you actually sent cash and some of you who did must be mad because quite a number of you actually sent cash in an envelope with no return address and I am quite sure that if the letters had never reached me you would never have believed it. Remember please in future that when you send money (not of course just to me but anywhere in the world) the very least you can do is to put your name and address on the back of the envelope in case it goes astray.

One of the reasons I have come to Scotland is to write another book, again on comedy. I mention the subject matter just to allay any suspicions that anyone may have had about its contents. And I promise that this time I will not advertise the book until the copies are actually in my hands.

I have in the past year or two met Dai
Vernon just a few times and on each occasion he has mentioned the effect in which a coin is pushed into the back of the performer's fist, and when the hand is opened the coin rests on the palm. Dai often mentions the fact that he asked John Ramsay if he had ever seen this effect performed by L'homme Masque. Is there a perfect method? Does anyone know the perfect way of performing this effect? It is important that it is performed with one coin only. Several methods have been published over the years but Dai is still looking for the perfect one.

Maybe he has found it, but just isn't tipping and his constant search is just to find out if anyone else can do it. He's crafty like that. Should you know of a way of doing this, how about publishing it in Pabular so we can all write to Dai Vernon and tell him we all know how the trick is done?

Goodbye, Patrick Page At last! A book on one of the few really great close-up men in the world. Larry Jennings' magic is being used by discerning magicians everywhere.

ON CARD AND COIN HANDLING

Twenty great effects with cards and coins, totally described so that you can do them. Dozens of fine line drawings to make all points clear.

LARRY'S LEADER TALLY-HO SPELL LOOK-AN ILLUSION BLANK AND BLUE NUMBER TRANSPOSITION NUMERICAL ACES ADD-ON MOVE ACES RECOUNT TRANSMUTATION COIN CUT WHERE'S THE DISCREPANCY? IMPOSSIBLE COUNTDOWN L.J. COINS ACROSS TWENTY TWO CENT TRICK L.J. COINS THROUGH THE TABLE A HANDLING OF "BETWEEN YOUR PALMS" CHALLENGE CARDS TO POCKET NOWHERE AND EVERYWHERE AGAIN VERNON BALL ROUTINE DONE WITH COINS

Included by popular demand is the famous Larry Jennings CHOP CUP ROUTINE - the one that fooled the experts. The two large load balls seem to come from nowhere! Acclaimed as the best Chop Cup routine in existance. Again many fine line drawings have been added to make the important details clear.

While some of the effects take advanced technical ability, most can be done with average skill and many are self working.

This book is typeset, fully illustrated with fine line drawings and a photographic front-ispiece of Larry Jennings. Offset printed on a heavy grade paper with a glossy cover in two colors.

$10.00

Dept. P-2 133-17th Street
Oakland, California, 94612
U.S.A.

or from your favorite dealer.

Please add 50¢ for postage and packing by Fourth Class mail in the U.S.. If you wish to insure the package, please add 40¢ extra in the U.S.. Add $2.00 for Air Mail postage to any part of the world. Add 50¢ for Special Handling mail. Add $1.00 extra for First Class mail in U.S., Canada, and Mexico.

CURRENT CATALOGS OF CLOSE-UP MAGIC BOOKS $1.00.

COPYRIGHT @ 1977 BY J.W. BUSBY

Look at this

".... Received the bulb and instructions yesterday and I must say I'm very proud and flattered by the nice job and kind words. I thank yourselves and Bob Swadling and any others who helped in making this project become a reality. I really think your customers are receiving a real bargain"

SCOTT YORK (U.S.A.) (AFTER RECEIVING HIS LAMP TRICK)

Look at this

".... I received through Guy Lammertyn (I asked him to order it with his one) the SCOTT YORK LAMP.... IT'S WONDERFUL!"

CLAUDE RIX (France)

Look at this . . .

".... I received THE SCOTT YORK LAMP trick. It is a work of art. Bob and his friend are to be complimented and listed in the Guinness Book of Records. I am enclosing a cheque for $225.00. This will cover the cost of three more lamp tricks. Two of them are for me. One for a friend"

PAUL GREEN (U.S.A.)

Look at this . . .

".... Got THE SCOTT YORK LAMP.... It's one of the greatest miracles ever launched. Please send a second lamp to the enclosed address"

HANS W. BREUKEL (Germany)

Look at this . . .

FREDDIE FAH — After buying one bought four more If that's not good enough for a foremost French magical entertainer

Then look at this

DANNY DEW told me he would not part with his trick for any money On recent visits to this country both JOHNNIE THOMPSON (Wait for it this winter!) and HARRY BLACKSTONE JR bought A COUPLE.

MR ELECTRIC

HIMSELF Marvyn Roy. This world travelled magician relies on this quality product.

LIST ...

.... YOU CAN FIND ALL ABOUT ALL THIS AND ONE OR TWO OTHERS — ALL SOLD ON A MONEY BACK GUARANTEE — 75p and $3.00 air mail U.S.A.

ask the men who think about magic!

There's No Place Like
KEN BROOKE'S MAGIC PLACE - 145 WARDOUR STREET
LONDON, W.1. - ENGLAND

Tel: 01-734 9240

We Magazine of Close-up Magic Vol:3 Nº11 JULY 1977

THE SECRET OF SCHHH....

When a chosen card vanishes from the pack and appears sealed inside a borrowed bottle of Schweppes, it really blows the minds of the customers at your favourite pub. This is because you have deceived them with underhand trickery. You conceal from them the fact that the card was forced and the bottle switched, thereby avoiding expulsion from whichever society was crazy enough to let you join.

The card in the bottle is waterproofed by the application of two coats of Rowney's Cryla Medium No.2 Matt, which dries very quickly. It is available from artists' suppliers. I have tried other things but find this to be the best (my wife is an artist, so I use what she has paid for). Pay special attention to the edges of the card to avoid eventual separation of the layers of board.

Pasteboard cards are easier to prepare than plastic faced. I suppose all-plastic cards could be used, but the price frightens me.

WITH GREAT CARE, loosen gently all round the edges of the cap of a bottle of tonic water or other clear mineral water, removing it with the minimum of distortion. Roll up the waterproofed card and insert it into the bottle, causing the contents to bubble and overflow onto your lovely polished table top. Wait until the bubbles subside, top up with water, and replace the cap. For this you will need a crown cap sealing tool sold by Boots the chemists and suppliers of home brewing equipment. You may also be able to purchase new caps of the right colour from the latter, in which case you can remove the original with gay abandon. Schweppes, say waters

THE SECRET OF SCHHH..... Ray Waters

who allowed me to use their advertising line for the title of this effect, have given me a free supply of crown caps so I do it the easy way. You could try your friendly local pop manufacturer or brewery. If you re-use the original cap, put a very thin ring of Blu-tac around the sealing edge to prevent leakage.

To conceal the bottle prior to switching, I use a hold-out made from six inches cut from the toe of a black sock, the edges coated with a little Copydex to prevent fraying. This is pinned inside my jacket on the left side just above a Topit vanisher and adjusted at an angle which prevents the bottle from falling out. It has been suggested that the holdout could be dispensed and the bottle pushed into the top of the trousers but there would be a risk of the two bottles coming into contact during the switch.

PRESENTATION

Borrow a bottle of tonic water. If they sell a brand other than yours, supply your own bottle. Don't have it examined, just ask someone to hold it. Borrow a cloth from the bar person which you ask the person holding the bottle to examine, relieving him of the bottle at the same time holding it in your hand ready for the switch. Retrieve the cloth (or your foulard if they would not lend you one) and drape it over your Topit-side forearm in the time-honoured manner of all magicians using loading pockets. Pass the bottle behind the cloth and pitch it into the Topit, stealing the prepared bottle in the same movement. With your free hand grasp the neck of the bottle through the cloth and stand it on the bar. Pass a ring or bangle of suitable size over the neck of the covered bottle pushing it down to the bar surface. This will prevent anyone being tempted to pry under the cloth; it also makes what you are doing look more interesting, and enables you to point out that you cannot interfere with the bottle yourself.

Force a duplicate of the bottled card from a pack with a matching back design if possible, using whichever method you prefer. Have the card returned to the pack inserting your little finger above it in readiness for the pass. Say "I haven't seen your card; do you think it possible for the name of the card you chose to be on the label of the bottle?" Whatever the reply invite your victim to remove the ring, uncover the bottle and look at the label. The surprise of finding his card inside the sealed bottle will cause considerable impact and is such that the name of the card did not appear on the bottle is of no consequence.

During the above activity on the part of your helper you have performed the pass, palmed the card off the top of the pack, placed it in your pocket and put the pack down. This may seem rather a tall order but it is dead easy in practice as your every intention is covered by misdirection right up to the completion of the unveiling. Everyones attention will be on your helper as he uncovers the bottle, and their interest will be centred on seeing if the name of the selected card is on the label, believing in their innocence that your part in the trick is over.

When the card is discovered someone will be sure to pick up the pack. They will, of course be too late, which is as it should be.

NOTES

Topit is an adaptation of the old time poacher's pocket. It can be obtained from Davenports together with the Topit Handbook written by Patrick Page.

It would be simpler to prepare if a screw topped bottle was used, but I think that the impact is greater if a crown-sealed bottle is used and well worth the extra effort. Also pubs sell crown topped bottles.

Offer to pay for the 'spoilt' tonic. If your offer is accepted take it away for use elsewhere. Don't let them open it and find the Blu-Tac in the cap. If the landlord wants to keep it displayed as a souvenir, great! The story will grow as he exaggerates every time he tells it, and your reputation will grow with it. Several pubs have a bottled card on the top shelf as a result of my proving trials.

QASIS

Last month's issue contained an article by Bert Graham entitled A Plea giving excellent advise for those responsible for arranging the close-up part of Convention programmes.

For the third year in succession I am responsible for the Pabular evening of close-up magic at The Magic Circle which takes place this evening, the 5th September. It is a small event it in which the performers are chiefly members and the requirements are not so exacting as those of large Conventions. Nevertheless, some organisation is necessary to ensure success, and the following details regarding our methods may be of interest to those involved in similar events.

Seating accommodation for all spectators is a must to prevent them from moving around and causing distraction and spoiling the general atmosphere.

There must be sufficient tables — one for each twenty or so spectators will ensure everyone has an uninterrupted view of the performers without the need to move position in order to follow the action. These tables should be as far as possible from each other and round the sides of the room leaving the centre of the room for the performers, for whom chairs should be provided.

Citing our own circumstances we have five tables and about a dozen performers whose only instruction is that they can perform one or more tricks, but not to exceed ten minutes in time, and that they introduce themselves at each table. Giving members the option of doing just one or two tricks encourages them to participate. Many magicians who do not have an 'act' as such, perform the odd trick very well which they are quite willing to perform but refuse if invited to do an act.

The show commences with a performer at each table, the remainder of the performers with the organiser in the centre, seated in comfort. Immediately a performer finishes at a table he returns to the pool and his place is taken by one from the pool. This continues for the stipulated time of the show, in our case about an hour.

The advantages of this arrangement are obvious. The spectators are assured of a continuous show without the usual waiting for a performer coming from another table. For the performer, he can re-set at his leisure and go to a vacant table completely relaxed. It only requires one organiser whose duties are — to brief the performers, start the show and declare it over when he finds he has run out of performers. This latter announcement is made as briefly as possible leaving the performers still working to finish their acts.

There is only one slight snag. All performers will not appear at every table so it is best to have the more popular performers among those starting the show which will make it more likely everyone will have a chance to see them.

The above was written yesterday, and I can report that again everything ran smoothly and take the opportunity of thanking the following performers who provided such a high standard of magic. David Carre, Arthur Carter, Tony Faro, Jan Heins, Basil Horwitz (from South Africa), David Beckley, Jim Jones, Brian King, Eric Mason, Nikolas, Chris Pratt and Phil Wye.

Apologies to Geoff Ray, one of the first to volunteer to help us in any way he could with the Ramsay Reunion. Giving up professional engagements to be there and perform we repaid this generous gesture by omitting his name from those who performed. Again Sorry.

A present from Ricky Jay, his newly published book Cards as Weapons dispelled all the gloom resulting from our errors of omission and commission referred to above. An extremely amusing book which covers every conceivable aspect of card throwing. An effort will be made to review this unusual piece of literature next month.

Next month will see the start of a series of articles on stunts, gags, bits of business etc mainly with common objects. Some effort will be made to devote each article to a particular class of objects. Our first effort will be entitled where there's Smoke and will cover pipes, cigarettes, cigarette packets, matches, match-boxes, in short, anything to do with smoking.

Til next month,

Fred Robinson

This variation of the cannibal cards brings into use a faked card which enables further entertainment to be extracted from the effect.

To make the fake take any queen from the pack and apply a narrow strip of adhesive on the back along both ends. Take another card, not a ten, and place it face down on top of the queen to form a double card which is open along both long sides. Take a duplicate queen and cut it into small pieces. These pieces are stacked and placed into the fake which is then placed on the face of the pack. Place the four tens on top of the pack and proceed as follows:-

- 1. Run through the pack and toss out the four jacks face up onto the table.
- Hold the pack in the left hand in dealing position face down and with the right hand pick up the jacks from the table and hold them face up in that hand also in dealing position and say, "These four jacks represent four hungry cannibals and the pack represents the jungle which contains the greatest cannibal delicacy, raw missionary. Let me show you how a typical cannibal tribe spend their day. In the morning they have breakfast which consists of one, two, three missionaries." As you say this last sentence thumb off the top jack face up onto the table, then a card (a ten) face down from the top of the pack onto the jack. The face down card you explain is a missionary. Continue dealing alternately until you have a packet of seven cards on the table, four face up jacks with three face down cards (tens) alternating between them.
- 3. Place the pack on the table and pick up the packet and hold it in Biddle position in the right hand between thumb at the inner end and the fingers at the outer end. Pull off the first jack with the left thumb then the first face down card taking a little finger break between the two cards. Next pull off the second jack at the same time steal the face down card above the break taking it below the cards in the right hand Biddle fashion. Left thumb pulls off the next face down card and then the jack, again Biddling the face down card as before. Pull off the last face down card and hold a break below it then drop the last jack with the two face down cards below it on top of the cards in the left hand, which now holds all the cards in the following order from top to bottom: face up jack, three face down tens, little finger break, three face up jacks. To the spectators you have merely emphasised the position of the missionaries between the cannibals.

- 4. Take the packet from above with the right hand, thumb at the inner end, fingers at the outer end. When the cards are squeezed and then the pressure relaxed the long ends will open and close at the break point. Repetition of this action produces the now well known simulation of a mouth opening and closing. After this action place the cards back into the left hand retaining the break under the top four cards.
- 5. You now count the four jacks one at a time into the right hand by taking first the block of four cards above the break then the remaining three one at a time on top thus showing the three missionaries have gone.
- 6. You continue the story by saying "In the afternoon the cannibals go into the jungle to catch some missionaries for their evening meal." You now perform the first part of Frank Garcia's Apex Ace which can be found in Harry Lorayne's Close Up Card Magic, page 88. The Apex Ace is also used by Walt Lees in his very good cannibal routine. Vanish the first three jacks by the Apex Ace handling. The final jack is inserted face up into the centre of the pack and apparently lost, but really it is stolen into the palm of the right hand via the side steal. Pass your right hand over the pack and deposit the palmed jack on top to reveal the cannibals.

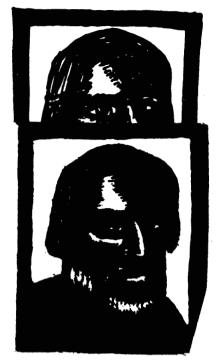

Spread the top seven cards to reveal the four cannibals with the captured missionaries between them. Left thumb pushes off one more card making eight in the spread and the right hand squares up the eight cards holding them in Biddle position. The left hand places the pack on the table face down with the outer and pointing to about two o'clock position.

- 7. The face down cards are made to vanish by the process of step 3, but this time when the last jack is dropped on top three cards are concealed under it instead of two. Again show the vanish by the push off count.
- 8. You now cause the jacks to mysteriously turn face down one at a time by using an automatic reverse sequence of Dai Vernon's explained in Expert Card Technique. Hold the packet in the left hand in dealing position and with the left thumb push off the face up jacks one at a time into the right hand buckling on the third. Do not reverse the order. This action will reveal three of the jacks face up and a face down card last in the spread. Put this last card on top as you remark, "Too much raw meat gives the cannibals a funny turn." Repeat the above sequence three times apparently causing all four jacks to turn face down. Actually they are the four tens, the jacks are now face up below them.
- 9. Hold the packet in the left hand in dealing position and take a little finger break above the jacks. Using the gambler's cop, steal the jacks in the left hand which then picks up the pack adding the palmed cards. Turn the pack face up to reveal the face of the faked queen and say, "Cannibals are not averse to lady missionaries." Thumb the fake over the side and push it into the centre of the four face down cards in the right hand which should be fanned slightly. The fake goes in face down. Put pack on table.
- 10. Square up the packet and hold it in the right hand and do the mouth business gradually angling the packet allowing the pieces of card to dribble from the fake as you remark, "You can't keep a good missionary down".

Finally take the packet in the left hand and deal the cards face up onto the table buckling on the third which you deal together with the fake. The last card is dropped casually on top and slightly forward of the others to prevent the fake being seen. As you deal remark, "In fact they've eaten so much food that they've come out in spots."

The 'Spots Finish' is an idea of Roy Walton's from the 'return of the cannibals' in 'CARDSCRIPT'.

peter duffie

SPLITZ

Since Bill Simon introduced his business card prediction in that excellent work "Effective card magic", this idea has always intrigued me, and consequently I have used this in various forms from time to time.

Now that Larry Jennings has released his improvement on the original handling eliminating the weak points in "Stabbed Coincidence" perhaps you would like to try this variation as an alternative to the business card. I am sure you will be delighted with the resultant effect on the audience.

EFFECT:

A blue pack is displayed to the audience, all cards faces are different, the pack is then shuffled by the performer and fanned before a spectator, face down position. The spectator is handed a card with a blue back, but not the same pattern as the pack in use, the spectator is requested to push the single card into the pack at any point. This done, the magician remarks on the likeness of the single card to the pack, and that because of the likeness of this card to the pack the spectator may become confused, so therefore in order that everything should be as fair as possible the magician turns the single card over to show the card's opposite side and the card is seen to be now completely contrasting with the pack. . as the side now on view is RED and spectator is able to distinguish the card quite easily from the remainder of the pack. The inserted card is now pushed flush with the pack, the pack is next turned face upwards and fanned again before the eyes of the spectator. . . with the request that he remove the odd single card and the two cards one at each side of the singleton. He is requested to hold the two normal cards from the pack and magician takes the single card with the red side and blue side and SPLITZ the DOUBLE BACKED CARD into TWO cards, THESE TWO CARDS MATCH THE TWO CARDS HELD BY THE SPECTATOR. The effect as stated above is effective on laypeople and the ending quite unexpected.

SPLITZ

WORKING:

To users of the SIMON MOVE the above will be quite clear and for those unacquainted with the move the following brief outline of what it achieves may be welcome. In this effect when the card inserted by the spectator it is removed by dividing the pack at the point of insertion the right hand taking the cards above the Splitz card. This card is turned over and the two halves brought together again with the double backer between them apparently at the same position, but in reality it is now between the original top and bottom cards because the upper half held in the right hand is replaced under the original bottom half.

A special card is required made up from two normal cards with contrasting backs (black and red). I use up my old cards with this routine. I make a few predictions cards up at a time, and stick one in the card case ready for use. The drill is to get some small envelopes that are just right size to hold a playing card, take two contrasting cards, write their names on the front of the envelope, say 3 clubs and 9 hearts, then place these two cards into the envelope, repeat this procedure for whatever number you are going to make up, then take one envelope, glue the two cards together using "PRITT" the none sticky sticky stuff. . . BUT IT IS IMPORTANT TO PUT THE GLUE JUST ON THE FACE OF ONE CARD ONLY, otherwise you may not get them apart cleanly. The card is then placed back into its own envelope and pressed inside a book cover, thus the cards are identified inside their own envelope, this enveloped prediction is then placed in the card case ready for use.

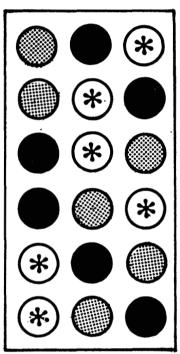

Before presentation it will be necessary to place the two cards to be predicted at the top and bottom of pack respectively then to place the cards back into their case, I usually open the card case. . . take out the pack and check that the cards written on the envelope are at top and bottom of pack. . . only then do I remove the envelope and tear this open removing the card and placing the envelope into my pocket to be forgotten. . . the spectator should not see the writing on the envelope at all. The pack is displayed and false shuffled to retain the top and bottom card, then fanned before the spectator as explained for the insertion of the double backer, the routine then continues as explained in the effect.

As already stated, this routine is quite a change from the business card prediction and much more startling to the onlooker, also helps to use up your old odd playing cards, the idea is designed for use with the Jennings handling which is highly recommended to the uninitiated . . . may it serve you well.

MANUFACTURING RIGHTS RESERVED.

mark weston

MEXICAN GEOMETRY

The performer displays six cards bearing geometric shapes: two circles, two triangles, two squares. The spectator is given one set; the performer takes the other. Both participants mix their cards. The performer lays his three cards out, face down. The spectator is asked to place his cards face up, one next to each of the performers — and to let his intuition guide the placement of his cards. Sure enough, when the performer's cards are turned up, the spectator has succeeded in intuitively matching the performer.

As the title indicates, the operative technique here is the Mexican Turnover. The cards are not gaffed, and obviously do not have to bear geometric shapes. Numbers, letters, standard Rhine symbols, cartoon characters, or pictures of any sort may be used. The only restriction is that the pairs must match exactly—thus playing cards cannot be used, as the different suits would tip the method (and to use sets of identical playing cards would be somewhat illogical). To make the description easier to follow, we will describe the work with cards numbered one, two and three.

Your cards are laid out face down in a known order — say, 1-2-3. The spectator can only arrange his cards in six possible ways.

- A. If the spectator places his cards in 1-2-3 order, nothing further need be done. Turn over your cards (or let the spectator do it), to show the match.
- If the spectator places his cards in 1-3-2 order, proceed as follows: pick up the spectator's left-hand card (1), turn it face down, and use it to flip over your left-hand (1). This is a legitimate action, but you must use a handling which duplicates the action of a Mexican Turnover. Replace the spectator's 1 back in its position. Now pick up the spectator's centre card (3), turn it face down, and use it to apparently turn over the centre card of your row. In fact, use a Mexican Turnover — you are turning over the spectator's own 3 card, and are now holding a face down 2. Use this face down 2 to Mexican Turnover the right-hand card in your row. A 2 will be turned up, to match the spectator's, and you are left holding a 3, which you replace in the centre position of the spectator's row.
- C. If the spectator places his cards in 2-1-3 order, proceed as in example B, except going from right to left.
- D. If the spectator places his cards in 2-3-1 order, proceed as follows: pick up the spectator's right-hand card (1). Turn it face down, and use it to Mexican Turnover the right-hand card of your row (3). You're now holding a face down 3. Use it to Mexican Turnover the centre card of your row (2). Now you're holding a face down 2, which you use to Mexican Turnover the left hand card of your row. You're left holding a face down 1. Turn it face up and replace it in position at the right end of the spectator's row.
- E. If the spectator places his cards in 3-1-2 order, proceed as in example D, except going from left to right.
- F. If the spectator places his cards in 3-2-1 order, proceed as follows: pick up the spectator's left-hand card (3). Turn it face down, and use it to Mexican Turnover the left-hand card of your row. You're now holding a face down 1. Use it to genuinely turn over the centre card of your row (2). Now use the face down 1 to Mexican Turnover the right-hand card of your row. You're left holding a face down 3. Turn it face up and replace it in position at the left end of the spectator's row.

There is no need to memorise this system. After playing with the various combinations it will be an easy matter of logic to determine how to handle whatever layout the spectator uses during your performance.

If you wish to mark the spectator's cards, he can lay his row out face down, and you can handle the situation without turning his cards up until the finish. If all six cards are marked, the spectator can lay out both rows face down.

phil goldstein

A handkerchief is shown empty and from it are produced, first a copper coin and then a silver one. The latter is placed within the handkerchief and a transposition takes place — the copper coin visibly changes to silver and upon unfolding the handkerchief the copper coin is revealed. Finally, the silver coin is enclosed within the handkerchief and the copper coin disappears and joins the silver, arriving with an audible clink.

The three effects forming the routine are not new and have been described previously with differing moves, sleights and methods. Although my handling may differ in some respects from previously published methods the only claim I make is how they have been combined to make an effective routine which is appreciated by audiences whether they be magicians or laymen.

The only properties required are a fairly large handkerchief. a silver coin (half dollar size), and two matching copper coins. With the silver coin classic palmed in the right hand and the two copper coins finger palmed at the base of the left two middle fingers the only other preparation required is that the handkerchief be readily accessable — in an outer breast pocket on the left side with one of its corners positioned so that it can be taken from the pocket without fumbling, is ideal. You are now ready to perform.

HANKY PANKY

Remove the handkerchief from the pocket with the right hand taking it with the accessable corner. The left hand takes an adjacent corner and displays one side to the spectators. Both hands retaining their hold on the handkerchief turn it round to show the other side. The left hand now releases its grip and the right drapes the handkerchief over the left. The foregoing moves should be done casually and in no way should it appear that you are trying to 'prove' anything whatsoever.

The left thumb pushes up the nearest copper coin upwards from the finger palm so that it extends above the tips of the fingers and touching the handkerchief. The right hand now grasps the coin through the handkerchief and takes it away still covered with the handkerchief. With a little flourish turn the right hand over causing the handkerchief to fall over the hand exposing the copper coin as seen in (1). The left hand removes the coin, displays it momentarily before dropping it onto the table.

Meanwhile the classic palmed silver coin, now covered with the handkerchief, has been secretly manoeuvered to the tips of the fingers. The left hand grasps the silver coin through the handkerchief and produces it by repeating the action used with the right hand when producing the copper coin. The right hand takes the silver coin and puts it onto the table, and then takes the handkerchief by the centre and lays it on the table with its centre pointing towards the two o'clock position. One of its corners should be in a position where it can easily be grasped and taken smoothly when it is required later in the routine.

The left hand now picks up first the copper coin and drops it on the open right hand on the middle of the first and second fingers, and then the silver which is dropped just below it. See (2). The 'shuttle' move is now performed, apparently tossing the two coins into the left hand where they are displayed on the open hand. Actually the copper coin in the right is retained by pressing on it with the right thumb, and the copper coin seen in the left hand is one of the two finger palmed before starting the routine. As the coins are being displayed in the left hand and placed onto the table, the copper coin retained in the right is worked into the classic palm, enabling that hand to be held in a natural way as it picks up the handkerchief, which it then drapes over the left hand in readiness for the transposition of the two coins.

The silver coin in the right hand is let fall from its classic palm position onto the fingers as the same hand picks up the silver coin which is taken with the left hand between its finger and thumb through the fabric, at the same time the first and second fingers of the same hand steal the copper coin, also through the fabric, taking it in the back clip position (3). The left hand should be so angled that the copper coin is not exposed but kept hidden by the silver coin and the folds of the handkerchief. The rear edge of the handkerchief i.e. the one resting on the forearm, is taken with right hand and folded forward over the coins. When the hand reaches the point immediately below the silver coin, this coin is allowed to fall onto the fingers of that hand which classic palms it. The right hand now grasps the copper coin, which the audience believe to be the silver one, through the fabric and places the handkerchief between the second and third fingers with the coin in a kind of pocket resting at the base of the third and fourth fingers. The right hand picks up the copper coin from the table and puts it between the thumb and fingertips of the left hand in the Spellbound position. (4) shows the position at this point. The classic palmed silver coin in the right hand is now moved into the 'purse Palm' as shown in (5). The copper coin is now changed to silver using Dai Vernon's move which, briefly explained, is performed by passing the right hand over the copper coin stealing it by taking it in the right thumb palm and leaving the purse palmed silver coin in its place. After the change the copper coin is pushed from the thumb palm into the classic palm. The right hand now unfolds the handkerchief back onto the forearm revealing the copper coin. Leaving the handkerchief draped over the left hand the right hand removes the copper coin and places it with the silver one on the table.

To commence the last stage of the routine the right hand picks up the silver coin and places it on the handkerchief over the left palm. The left hand grasps the coin through the handkerchief, turns over allowing the handkerchief to fall around the coin. The right hand now gathers up the corners of the handkerchief and in bringing the right hand on a level plane with the left allows its palmed copper coin to fall inside the handkerchief taking care it does not make contact with the silver one.

A spectator is invited to hold the silver coin through the fabric and the free left hand takes the corners held with the right hand. With the right hand pick up the copper coin from the table and hold it above the centre of the handkerchief. Quckly raise the right hand thumbpalming the coin and without hesitation brings it smartly down with a karate like chop which knocks the handkerchief from the spectator's grip. The copper then falls onto the silver making an audible clink. The spectator is invited to open out the handkerchief where he finds the vanished copper coin together with the silver.

david carré

PabulaRS

Pab

YOUR AUTOGRAPH, PLEASE

Approach your victim, preferably someone who positively hates card tricks, and take from your pocket a pack of cards. As you remove the cards from the case assure him that you are not going to show him a card trick but would like his autograph. This request will not only give him some pleasure, he will also be somewhat relieved.

Leaf through the pack showing the cards to be completely blank except for those bearing the autographs of other wellknown magicians and invite him to take out any of the blank ones and give it to you. At this point it is important that he is aware that the card is blank on both sides without 'proving' it. An easy way to do this is to ask which side he would prefer to sign jim hooper

YOUR AUTOGRAPH, PLEASE

the card as you show both sides of the card. When he has made his choice put the card on top of the pack with the chosen side uppermost.

Hand him the pack, which acts as rest, as he signs his name. Retake the pack and run through the cards showing the other side of the cards previously signed. All these have a message — for instance — on the one autographed Tommy Cooper, 'Not like this, like that' is written on the other side.

You now take his card which has remained on the top of the pack and suggest that he too may like to write something on the other side. As you make this remark turn over his signed card only to find something already written on the other side which is relevant to the person or his particular niche in magic.

Let him see the message as you read it out aloud with an air of puzzlement. You proceed by saying 'You've already done it' as you replace the pack into its case and return it to your pocket, thanking him for adding to your collection.

Prepare for the performance by writing the message on one of the blank cards and waxing the other. Place this card waxed side uppermost on top of the pack i.e. with the signatures showing when the cards are spread. When returning the chosen blank card to the top of the pack press it firmly to the waxed surface of the message card and proceed as outlined above.

It is possible to dispense with waxing the message card by top changing the message card with the chosen blank card under the misdirection of asking if the victim has a pen. The conditions for performing this sleight are ideal as no-one is likely to suspect you of changing one blank card for another.

Whichever method you decide to adopt do not make it seem that you have performed a trick (you promised not to, remember) but express surprise that he had anticipated your request and you had not noticed that he had also added the message on the reverse side.

The greatest little gimmic in the world ...

The inspiration for the effect outlined below came from Martin Nash's "Kings Incognito". This effect was a switch of four Aces for four Kings. The idea appealed to me but I felt that a much stronger effect could be obtained by showing four Aces and the backs caused to change colour and design. The following effect is a result of my experimentation.

EFFECT:

The four Aces are taken from the pack and after showing the face and back of each one separately the backs are caused to change into a design different from each other and from that of the pack.

PREPARATION:

You will require four stranger Aces each of a different suit and back design. The end result will be enhanced if the backs of these strangers contrast strongly both in colour and design from each other and also from the pack being used. With the pack face down set up the Aces as follows. The Ace of Diamonds from the pack on top followed by three stranger Aces, of clubs, hearts and spades. The remaining four Aces are dispersed throughout the remainder of the pack ensuring that the stranger Ace of Diamonds is so positioned that it is the third ace when the pack is turned face up. The pack is placed in its regular case.

PRESENTATION:

Remove the pack from the case and spread it out face up throwing out each Ace as you arrive at it onto the table, taking care not to expose the four Aces together at the bottom of the pack. Square up the pack and hold it face down in the left hand and take a break under the top four cards with the left little finger. Pick up the tabled Aces and place them face up in a fan on top of the pack holding them in position with the left thumb as illustrated. The Ace of Diamonds is the second card in the fan.

With the right hand take the top Ace and show it on both sides, name it and place it face up on the table. Next, take the Ace of Diamonds (the queer backer) show its face only, name it, and drop it face up on the other tabled Ace. Repeat the same procedure with the third and fourth aces showing both sides of the cards. Pick up the four Aces with the right hand, and with the assistance of the left hand which is holding the pack cut the packet of four Aces in half bringing Ace of Diamonds to the face. In squaring the packet, again with the assistance of the left hand it will be found a simple matter to add the four cards above the break in the pack to the bottom of the packet which is held in the Biddle position in the right hand. The order of the eight cards in the right hand reading from the top is — Face up stranger Ace of Diamonds, three face up Aces which match the pack, face down Ace of Diamonds from pack and three face down stranger Aces. The pack is in the left hand in the dealing position.

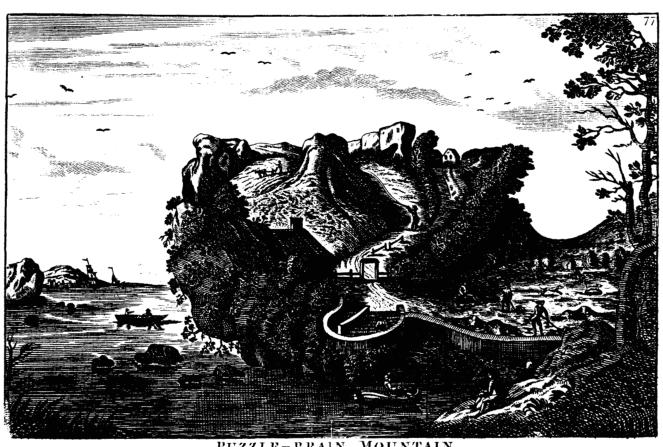

With the left thumb pull the face up Ace of Diamonds towards the left and swivel it round the left side of the packet bringing it face down to the bottom of the packet and in alignment with it. Repeat the move with the next face up Ace, this time taking a break with the right thumb as the card slides beneath. Repeat with the next Ace. The last face up Ace is also dealt with in a similar manner, but this time at the completion of the move the left thumb is moved clear and the three cards below the break are dropped onto the pack in one continuous movement. When swivelling the first Ace, the odd backed Ace of Diamonds care must be taken not to flash its contrasting back.

Place the pack on the table directly in front of you in such a position that you will have to move out of the way to display the Aces at the finale.

The five face down Aces in the right hand are now taken in the left hand face up. Spread out the cards into a fan pushing the first three singly keeping the last two squared as one card. Close up the spread taking a left little finger break above the bottom card. The right hand takes the four cards above the break leaving the bottom card palmed, gambler fashion, in the left hand. Without pausing the left hand pushes the tabled pack away leaving its palmed card on top. The right hand drops its packet on the spot just vacated by the pack, and with suitable patter turn the Aces face down one at a time to reveal the different backs and enjoy the sight of your audience being flabbergasted.

doug alker

PUZZLE-BRAIN MOUNTAIN.

Some of the move printable comments about BOB READ and his magic!

Bob, am I gled you put your Cups & Bays voutinein print... the first time I saw you do it ... in a pub... I was really knocked over this was the absolute best version for the entertainer I have ever seen ...

Pete Biro, CA, USA.

`...Bob Read...atruly delightful performer' Dai Vernon,12,usa.

`... packed with gags... the best in the field today'
Goodliffe, UK.

`Bob Read...tops for sheer entertoinment....' Baynard Grimshaw, UK.

Pepys....its great, thanks for printing it. W.Myers, PA, USA.

'Many thanks for the book...it's sensational'. John Fisher, u.k.

`...tue content is superb...excellent, excellent material... Penultimate is a gem...'

Earle Cates, USA.

'Bob Read, the funniest magician I have ever seen'. Darwin Ortiz,NY,USA

\ Chaplinesque./

Dany Rey, France

'Flip and myself come down when we heard the laughing. Topper Martyn, Sweden,

'There was one man who knocked me completely to death ... Bob Read!! My God what a talent'. Bob Dreibeck, Holland.

'The highlight for me ... Bob Read's Cups and Balls' Billy McCombe, UK

It was Bob Read with items from his book... for many, the hit of the convention...' Fred Robinson, London,

'Transpo Tumbler' A NEW manuscript— Bob Read's Impromptu magic-16 pages 42 photographs Air mail $ 3.00

Penultimate Cups and Balls'-Reprinted by demand-83 photographs, ring bound, card covers.

Ar mail $ 11.00

Thanks to Pepys' A complete 15 minute act with borrowed props.

60pages, 51 photographs, card covers.

Airmail $9.00

Save $2 if ordered together—send $21 to:-Bob Read 32 Regal Way, Kenton, Middlesex, England.

IF YOU'VE NEVER HEARD A MAGICASSETTE YOU DON'T KNOW WHAT YOU ARE MISSING

THE ROBERT HARBIN (75-minute) MAGICASSETTE IS READY NOW

Nearly one and a half hours with one of the world's most respected inventors and illusionists. Spend an evening with Robert Harbin in your own Magic Den. What does he talk about? Zig Zag, inventing, cruising, performance tips? Listen and discover for yourself. £4.80 including post U.K. and $11.00 (U.S.) airmail anywhere in the world. Other Magicassettes ready as this ad. is being written are: James Randi exposing Uri Geller/David Berglas TV's Man of Mystery on His Own Brand of Mystification, Bobby Bernard on Close Up, Val Andrews with a Magicassette entitled You'll Always have a Dollar! (His Life Story). Lewis Ganson Vol.1 and Vol.2/Alan Alan Vol.One and Vol.Two/Francis White on 50 Years with the Magic Circle/ready as this ad. goes to press. Exclusive rights to FAUCETT ROSS remembers. Hilarious magical memories of Dai Vernon/Nelson Downs and others — even had my wife laughing!

Each Magicassette Volume is just £4.80 post free or 11 Dollars airmail anywhere in the world.
MAGICASSETTES from Martin P. Breese, 77 BOLINGBROKE ROAD, HAMMERSMITH,

MAGICASSETTES

At last! A book on one of the few really great close-up men in the world. Larry Jennings' magic is being used by discerning magicians everywhere.

ON CARD AND COIN HANDLING

Twenty great effects with cards and coins, totally described so that you can do them. Dozens of fine line drawings to make all points clear.

LARRY'S LEADER TALLY-HO SPELL LOOK-AN ILLUSION BLANK AND BLUE NUMERICAL ACES NUMBER TRANSPOSITION RECOUNT ADD-ON MOVE ACES TRANSMUTATION COIN CUT WHERE'S THE DISCREPANCY? IMPOSSIBLE COUNTDOWN L.J. COINS ACROSS TWENTY TWO CENT TRICK L.J. COINS THROUGH THE TABLE A HANDLING OF "BETWEEN YOUR PALMS" CHALLENGE CARDS TO POCKET NOWHERE AND EVERYWHERE AGAIN VERNON BALL ROUTINE DONE WITH COINS

Included by popular demand is the famous Larry Jennings CHOP CUP ROUTINE - the one that fooled the experts. The two large load balls seem to come from nowhere! Acclaimed as the best Chop Cup routine in existance. Again many fine line drawings have been added to make the important details clear.

While some of the effects take advanced technical ability, most can be done with average skill and many are self working.

This book is typeset, fully illustrated with fine line drawings and a photographic frontispiece of Larry Jennings. Offset printed on a heavy grade paper with a glossy cover in two colors.

$10.00

Dept. P-3 133-17th Street
Oakland, California, 94612
U.S.A.

or from your favorite dealer.

Please add 50¢ for postage and packing by Fourth Class mail in the U.S.. If you wish to insure the package, please add 40¢ extra in the U.S.. Add $2.00 for Air Mail postage to any part of the world. Add 50¢ for Special Handling mail. Add $1.00 extra for First Class mail in U.S., Canada, and Mexico.

CURRENT CATALOGS OF CLOSE-UP MAGIC BOOKS $1.00.

I have just been watching a TV programme about antiques. The interesting thing as far as we are concerned is that they showed a midnineteenth century autometer of a monkey-cummagician which raised and lowered a cover on the table. Under the cover were dice which presumably changed either in size, number or perhaps colour. Alas, we will never know as, like many of his kind, the director of the show did not seem to know what interests the public. First, they appeared not to have anyone there who was capable of making the thing work properly (and it was in working condition), and secondly when they finally did get it started the director concentrated on a close up shot of the monkey's head moving from side to side whilst the real action on the table top was taking place out of camera. I am a TV addict, but this is one of the occasions when I hated it.

The Page boy speaks.

I had a very interesting conversation the other day with John Booth. John, as many of you will remember, was the author of several magic books, notably Forging Ahead in Magic and Marvels of Mystery. There were a couple of other smaller ones of slightly less importance, but none the less very worthwhile. I was interested to hear from him that in the days when he was working as a professional entertainer back in the middle thirties to middle forties, John appeared in many prominent hotels and night clubs in the United States. One thing he told me, and I had never heard of this before, was that sometimes when he was in an hotel for an engagement lasting maybe 3 or 4 weeks, or even one week, that the big trick was to get the management of the hotel to 'hold you over'. This is an American expression meaning that they will keep you at the hotel week after week after week. Needless to say you had to change your act slightly, but the big secret was how he convinced the manager to hold him over.

John had a very interesting method, and this was to use Close-up Magic. After his act he used to entertain the patrons at the tables. There were table-tents with his photograph and name saying that he would come and entertain them for several minutes at their table. John tells me he did one or two card tricks, perhaps a mindreading trick, and the 3 Shell Game which was one of his favourites. The interesting thing here is that he was actually using close-up magic to gain further employment with a stand-up act, which is quite a twist, I think.

By the time you read this the IBM Harrogate Convention will be over. Unfortunately, I was not able to be there for many reasons. First I was too busy, secondly I am no longer a member of the IBM, which is a great pity because I used to enjoy the Conventions. I have, of course, had my spies out and have been hearing about the shows and Close-up Competition, who won which prizes.

One thing that pleased me was that Doug Alker was doing a stand-up act. I think the whole concept of the act was very funny indeed, as did most of the Conventionees present.

I was also more than pleased to hear that the Gala Show was exceptionally good, because after last year at Brighton when I felt the show had reached an all-time low I thought that maybe this was the end, maybe the IBM had thrown me out at the right time, when it was dying on its feet. But in fact they hadn't, and this year they appear to have excelled themselves.

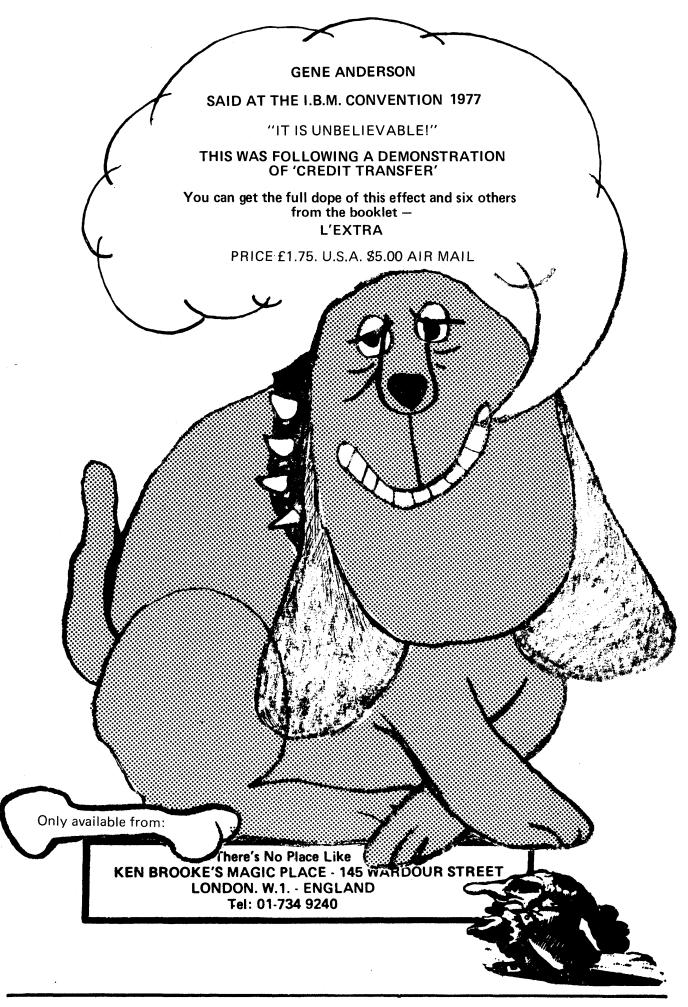

I believe, no that isn't true, I have been informed that my name was mentioned at the Annual General Meeting. Apparently there was a move afoot to have The Pageboy reinstated as a member of the British Ring. I have had at least four different reports of what was said and I have not quite been able to put it all together because each version is slightly different. Whichever version is correct I would like to say thank you very much to those who appeared to talk in my favour, and thank you again to those who said 'hear hear' when my reinstatement was suggested.

Only one terrible thought occurs to me and that is: is there going to be an apology? If so, who is going to apologise? Is it me? Is it the General Committee of the IBM? Is it some members of the Committee? I don't know the answer. Let me say this much, there is going to have to be an apology. I believe one person at the Convention remarked "One day I'm going to tell the real story of why Patrick Page was expelled from the IBM." Now this intrigues me as I have always been convinced that I was not expelled for my so-called blunder in publishing a magic book. I have always been convinced there was another personal reason. I think I know it but so far it has never been mentioned.

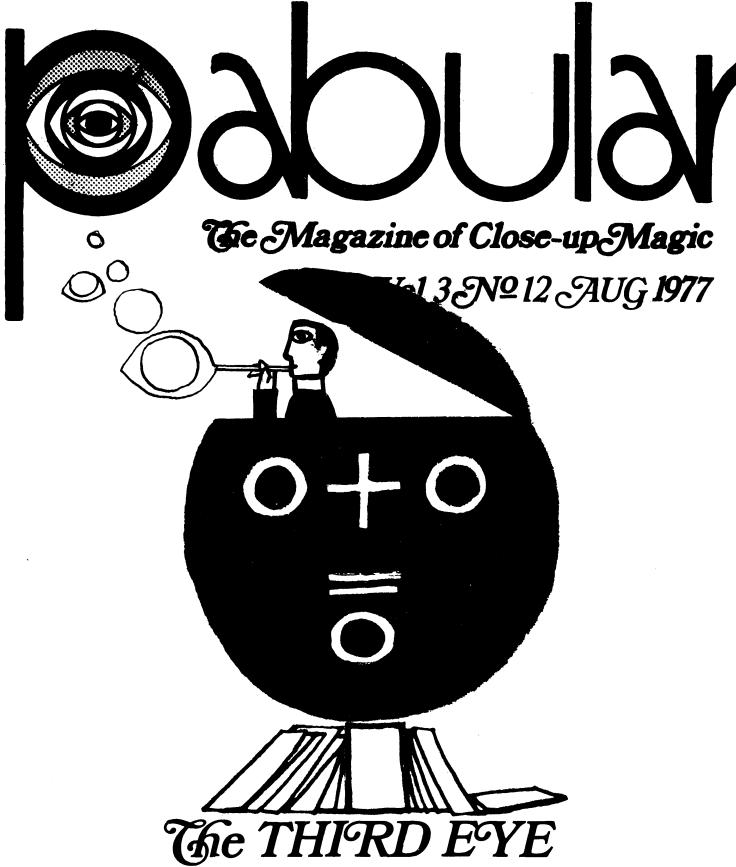

At this stage I would like to make one small point. I was commissioned to write a magic book. An artist was commissioned to do the pictures. After the hoo-ha I was expelled. The artist is still a member of the IBM. No-one has ever mentioned it to him.

Goodbye, Patrick Page

Pabular is published after the second week in every month and is printed by Instance Printers, Paddock Wood, Kent, England. Subscriptions may be obtained direct from the publishers, Pabular, P.O. Box 180, London SE12 8JJ or through many magic dealers. Price 60 pence per copy (or US $1.25) surface post included. Air Mail extra (US $0.50) per copy or (US $6.00) per year. Editorial or content copy should be sent to Fred Robinson, 1 Crescent Court, 24 Crescent Road, New Barnet, Herts, England. Advertising rates sent on request — smalls 3 pence per word (US 10 cents). Dealer enquiries welcomed. Reproductions of old prints and historical magical items by kind permission of Tony Faro.

This is an effect of divination and the method may be used in a variety of ways. A colour, number, name, date, geometric design or anything you wish may be divined using this principle. It can also be used in a book test very effectively, using any book which happens to be at hand.

The only properties required are about a dozen white blank cards of a stock similar to that used for visiting cards, and in size about as long and slightly narrower than a playing card. With these in your wallet and a writing instrument to hand you are ready to perform at any time and under any conditions.

basil horwitz

THE THIRD EYE Basil Horwitz

As you commence your spiel regarding the power of the Third Eye remove the cards from your wallet, and as you continue to patter pull the top and bottom two cards through your fingers snapping them as you do so. This action is necessary in order to loosen them, as unlike playing cards which slide easily when taking them singly from the top of a packet, most other card similar to visiting cards tend to cling which would impair the performance of the move necessary in the routine.

Assuming that you are going to divine a geometric design drawn by a spectator, hand out a card to someone requesting him to draw a simple design on it — a square, circle, triangle or whatever, taking care that you cannot possibly know what he has drawn.

Extend your left hand, which is holding the packet of cards, towards him requesting that he places the card with side bearing his design face down on top of the packet of cards, keeping your head turned away until the card is on the top of the packet.

You now look directly at the spectator (do not look at the cards) and obtain his assurance that you cannot possibly know what he has drawn on the card. At the same time your right hand appears to remove the card from the top of the packet in reality taking the bottom one and holding it towards another spectator ask if he can see anything through the card. You then place the card onto the table.

The move of taking the bottom card when appearing to take the top one is achieved as follows. The right fingers covers about three quarters of the card which is on top of the packet, the thumb going beneath. The right fingers appear to slide the top card back clear of the packet, when actually this card remains in situ whilst the thumb pulls out the bottom card. Card workers will recognise the similarity between this action and the first part of a wellknown colour change sleight. The move is a simple one and can be acquired with little effort and may appear to be a bold one, but the spectators whose minds have directed spectators whose minds have been directed by your manner and patter will be concerned with making sure that you have no opportunity to see what has been written on the card. Being so misdirected they will neither see or suspect the switch of cards.

You now turn over the two top cards as one bringing-the spectators design face up second from the top. On the top card draw a circle which you explain represents the Third Eye. Remove this card and hold it to the fore-head with the circle outwards, and at the same time glimpse the design which is exposed. As the Third Eye Card is removed turn the packet over bringing the spectator's design face outwards on the bottom of the packet. Obviously this design is kept hidden from the spectators.

The spectator is now asked to gaze into the Third Eye which you are holding to your forehead and imagine he can see his design within the circle. You then remove the card from the forehead and draw the spectator's design which you have glimpsed inside the circle, and without letting anyone see what you have drawn place it design downwards onto the table and request the spectator to cover it with his hand.

Now pick up the blank card from the table and place it on top of the packet of cards stressing the impossibility of you knowing what was drawn on the card. The spectator is now invited to see what you have drawn in the Third Eye. As everyone is intent on seeing what you drew in the circle perform the 'move' and throw the card bearing the spectator's design onto the table revealing the power of the Third Eye.

PYRAMID ACES

A card is chosen and returned to the deck, following which the four aces are removed from the deck and displayed in a "pyramid" formation. The aces are squared and upon being redisplayed, the ace of the same suit as the chosen card has changed into that card.

This is purportedly a Hofzinser card plot and is similar in effect to the "lost ace" trick of Jack Avis which was published in Epilogue 11.

METHOD:

Have a card selected and holding the cards in the right hand begin a Hindu shuffle, stopping when about one-half of the deck has been shuffled off; have the card replaced on top of the cards in the left hand. As the cards remaining in the right hand are placed atop those in the left, move the left little finger into the gap between the packets; immediately regrip the cards below the break and draw them backward. The selected card remains in the left hand as a result of the friction applied by the left little finger. The cards in the right hand are now Hindu shuffled onto those in the left. The selected card is at the bottom (face) of the deck. This effective card control is J.B. Bobo's and appears in his book, Watch This One.

During the selection and control, I usually begin the patter by asking to have a card selected so that I may demonstrate a trick called the pyramid aces. I explain that the reason for this peculiar name will become apparent as the trick proceeds.

At this point the pack is held in the left hand and the right hand grips the back edge between the fingers on top and the thumb on the bottom. The outer end of the deck is rotated downward so that the backs are toward the audience. The left hand retakes the cards with its back toward the spectators.

Note the suit of the face card, the chosen card, as you spread the cards from the left hand into the right keeping the backs outward. The four aces are up-jogged about one-half their length as you find them. The aces must be removed from the deck so that the ace of the same suit as the selected card is innermost, i.e. facing you. If it is not the first ace located, you can simply strip it out and then come back to pick up the others behind it. As the aces are being removed from the deck, get a left little finger break above (if the deck were face down) the chosen card. The aces are then placed on the face of the deck on top of the selected card.

Patter that you must sort out the four aces so that they can assist you in finding the chosen card.

Tip the top of the deck down so that it is face up. Remove the first ace by gripping it between the right thumb at the inner end and the tip of the second finger at the outer end. The index finger is curled, touching the centre of the ace. The ace is dropped to the working surface from a height of about 2 or 3 inches. This procedure is repeated with the next two aces. The fourth ace, with the chosen card hidden behind it is removed and dropped-in the same manner. If the cards are released smoothly and parallel to the surface, they will fall as a single card. This action is most effective in convincing the spectators that only the four aces are being removed from the deck.

Place the deck aside, gathering up the aces so as not to reveal the selected card second from the face. During these actions ask the spectators if they are familiar with pyramid power of pyramidology. Indicate that they are about to see a demonstration of the mysterious forces of the pyramid using the four aces. As you relate the latter part of this, casually count off the aces, held now with the centre of this packet's left long-side pinched between the left thumb on top and index finger below, in the following manner. Pinch off the top ace between the right thumb and index finger and carry it to the right counting one; return and obtain the second ace in the same fashion, but on top of the first, counting two. Return the two cards in the right hand to a position below those in the left but above the left index finger. The left thumb now pushes all the cards but the bottom one into the right hand on the count of three and then places the final card on top of the right hand cards on the count of four. This count is a modified Jordan count, which positions the selected card in the middle of the five card packet, while seemingly showing only four cards.

Ask the spectators if they have heard of placing dull razor blades beneath a small, cardboard pyramid to sharpen them, or of placing a translucent pyramid over a house plant to focus cosmic energy thereby causing the plant to become bigger and stronger. This line of patter can be greatly elaborated on if desired.

At this stage turn the packet of aces face-up and perform the Ascanio spread. This is very well described by Fred Robinson in Pabular, Vol.2, Number 2. Briefly, the packet of five cards is held face-up between the right thumb and second finger across the right narrow ends; the left thumb on top and index finger beneath pulls the top and bottom cards to the left. These two cards are spread slightly and the third finger of the left hand contacts the new back card of the packet pulling it to the left of the first two cards. The right hand moves the final two cards as one to the back of the three card fan.

Refer to this as a pyramid formation which will impart special powers to the aces. Say that one of the aces has to be of the same suit as the chosen card. As the suit of the chosen card as you close up the fan of cards.

As the spectator answers, do another Ascanio spread which will reveal the chosen card occupying the position formerly occupied by the ace having the same suit as the selected card.

jerry⁄l. christenseη

Let us turn to another aspect of magic that could be improved — reporting.

You must excuse me if I make no distinction between this fine magazine, and the others, but I'm sure that the editor's blue pencil is not so sensitive as to eradicate criticism.

For magicians such as I, too poor for the Ramsay 'do', and too tied down by family and job to attend the various conventions, the information about these affairs is an important part of any magazine. How disappointing it is, therefore, to read a report and pick up merely a list of names who "performed in their usual immaculate manner" or "kept us in fits" and have no idea not only what they did, but how well or badly.

Recently I read in Genii a three-page report of an American convention - that was so bland it was useless. No lists of effects, no critical comment on style or quality of performance pathetic. It's not just the American mags that are prone to platitudes. Pick up half a dozen magazines from Pabular to the Magic Circular and analyse them for objective reporting. You'll be surprised how little is said.

So what can be done to improve this?

First of all, look at the brave souls that have been frank about the quality of the offering - be it performance, trick or publication.

Jeff Busby in one of his lists says about a certain book - "most effects are ripped off and can be tracked down to various originators . . . very poorly described . . . poorly produced . . . purchase at your own risk". Pretty critical reviewing considering he's stocking and selling the book.

Again look at Genii May 77, report by Bob Baker of a SAM show. He defines his terms and credentials in the first three paragraphs. This allows the reader to adjust for bias and the rest of the report is a critical and interesting review. not overloaded with compliments but neither cruel to the acts or unnecessarily harsh.

448

ANOTHER PLEA Bert Graham

What about Albright's Conjurors' Magazine. It started off being perhaps too controversial, settled down and became a little more complacent but a good try.

And remember the old reviews in the Magic Circular by Dr. Euston (the use of the nom de plume is deplorable). They were witty, honest and constructive as well as being interesting to read and highly entertaining.

The point I make is that reviews can be more pungent without becoming objectionable.

As a guide may I suggest the following:

Please get the name right and give the reader an inclination of what the act is trying to achieve. The performance could be aiming for comedy, impromptu, mentalism, drama etc. Then let's hear how he measured up to these objectives and if the reviewer felt that they were right ones. Please give us a list of effects, it's important to the reader to understand trends—is everyone doing the dancing cane or coins through table? Was the act over long? What conditions prevailed? How did the audience react? It is important to the reader to have some point of reference, was the act below or above the norm?

The same sort of approach should be used for the show as a whole, the overall presentation and conditions could be outlined and finally the ambience of the audience after the show.

Of course, the limitations of space will not permit a detailed description of all the acts but surely it's not impossible to describe the best act (in the reviewers opinion) in more detail than the rest. Whatever the approach, anything, or to be more precise — nothing would be preferable to the banal reports to which we are so often subjected.

bert graham

RED-BLACK SURPRISE

This effect is based on Bro Hamman's "Face-Up Face-Down Surprise" described in "The Card Magic of Bro. John Hamman", and while the handling has been modified considerably in order to make the trick easier to perform, the effect is similar to the original. A card is freely chosen by a spectator, noted, and returned to the pack. The performer now tries to find it, and to make his task easier he separates the cards, reds into one pile and the blacks into another. Assuming that a red card was chosen the performer announces that he thinks the chosen card was a black one. After the spectator has shuffled both the red and black cards separately, the performer looks through the black cards and places one of them face up onto the table. The spectator denies that it is the chosen card. The performer asks for another chance and putting the red cards aside, divides the black cards into two halves, and turning one half face up riffle shuffles the two halves into each other. They are now spread showing all cards to be face down excepting for two which are face up with a single face down card between them.

The performer now lifts these three cards out of the spread and requests the name of the chosen card and expresses surprise when he learns that it was a red one, saying that he had arranged for a black one to be between the two face up cards. He continues by remarking that he will have to use his magical powers to change it into the chosen card, and making a gesture over the three cards, turns them over to reveal the chosen card. Remarking that people do not always realise the extent of his magical powers the performer puts the three cards aside, makes another gesture, and turns the spread face up to show he has changed them all from red to black.

Although there are a few 'moves' Bro. Hamman so routined the working that they well covered by in-built misdirection.

The first requirement is to find out which card was selected. Personally I use the key card location explained in Vernon's 'Ultimate Card Secrets' (p.159), and give the cards a false shuffle which keeps the chosen card and the key together. The pack is then turned face up and the reds and blacks separated into two piles at the same time taking the opportunity to note the selected card.

Assuming that it is the Jack of Hearts, give the red cards, which naturally contain the selection, to the spectator for shuffling. You look through the black cards announcing that you think the chosen card was a black one. Reclaim the red cards from the spectator and give him the black portion to shuffle. While he is so occupied spread out the red packet, and cut it bringing the Jack of Hearts to the middle of the spread, and turn all the cards above it face down. This takes only an instant and the impression should be that you have merely turned the packet face down. Cover for the move in the form of misdirection is provided by addressing some relevant remark to the person shuffling the black cards.

Keeping the red portion squared up in the left hand, take the black portion back from the spectator and spread it face up above the squared red cards so that the faces are visible to the spectators and yourself, and act as though you are seeking the chosen card. Actually you are noting the bottom black card of the face up spread, the one immediately above the squared portion. Assuming this card is the Seven of Spades bring its sister card, the Seven of Clubs to the face of the black portion. This is all done openly as though you are considering the various possibilities. You now angle the cards preventing the spectators from seeing the faces and remove either the Six or Eight of Spades and place it face downwards onto the table. Square up the spread taking a break with the left little finger agove the Seven of Spades. The pack is now in the following condition: ———

Seven of Clubs	Face up
24 black cards	Face up
Seven of Spades	Face up
Some red cards	Face down
Jack of Hearts	Face up
Remaining red cards	Face up

Draw the attention of the spectator who chose the card to the Seven of Clubs, saying that you think he took a black card and that the one face down on the table is his. All attention is now on this tabled card and you invite the spectator to turn it over, and as he does so and all eyes are on the card, perform a half-pass bringing the cards above the Seven of Spades faces down to the bottom of the pack taking a break between the two halves. When the spectator denies that the tabled card, let us say the Six of Spades, was the one chosen his attention to the Seven of Spades now at the face of the pack and ask if it is the chosen card. He will reply in the negative. You now ask for another chance as you put the cards below the break, which the audience believe to be the red portion aside. You are left holding what the audience believe to be all black but in reality only the top face card, the Seven of Spades is black which is followed by a number of red cards face down, the Jack of Hearts face up and the remaining red cards face up.

Turn this portion face down and push the tabled card (Six of Spades) face down into the natural break diagonally so that it projects on the right side of the pack near the inner corner. The left little finger tip pulls down this card obtaining a break above it. Cut off the cards above the break and place them on the table with the long side parallel with the edge of the table, and put the remaining half to the right of them in preparation for a riffle shuffle.

Turn the right hand packet face up and riffle both halves together as follows. Let the bottom card of the left hand half (Jack of Hearts) fall first, then the bottom card of right half next (Six of Spades), mixing the rest of the cards ad lib but letting the Seven of Spades fall last. Cut the cards and complete the cut. You are now ready for three surprises.

Spread out the packet of what the audience believe to be black cards across the table. All are seen to be face down with the exception of the Six and Seven of Spades which are face up with a face down card between them. Remarking that it is significant that one of the cards is between two face up cards. Now, after the byplay described earlier, the chosen card is revealed and the black cards changed to red.

kevin davie

QASIS

Many years ago Francis Bacon observed that writing maketh an exact man. Had he been alive today and a reader of magical magazines, especially this one, those words may never have been written. Beginning with the David Carre issue Harry Lorayne takes us to task for wrongly crediting Frank Garcia with the vanishing aces effect and the ambitious card move from his book Close-up Card Magic. Furthermore, we credited Derek Dingle with describing a coin move in Dingles Deceptions when, as we all know, it was Harry who wrote the book. Sorry.

The past month has been a busy one magically. Starting with the I.B.M. Convention at Harrogate which attracted a dozen competitors for the close-up competition. The standard was comparatively high and for the record Peter Duffie and Wayne Dobson tied for first place with Christopher Pratt the runner-up. The unsuccessful performers all gave creditable performances which was something of a relief to me having to see them all, being one of the judges. Four rooms were allocated to the event, the performers moving from room to room with a judge in each. This arrangement is undoubtedly the answer to the problem of presenting close-up magic where the potential audience runs into several hundreds, and it is hoped that this and other societies will adopt this practice in future events. Mike Gancia, in addition to being responsible for the above also arranged the Saturday midnight show, which had started before I managed to find the location which was in the basement. The acts I remember seeing were those of Glen, Doug Alker, Paul Diamond (USA), Walt Lees and Bob Read.

In the week that followed Juan Tamarix lectured in Manchester, Leeds, Birmingham and London, and being personally responsible for arranging this tour would like to thank everyone of the many who helped to make this possible.

One of the effects performed during the lecture which caused much favourable comment was Oil and Water and although it was explained in detail was not included in the lecture notes (a few copies of which are left and available at Ken Brooke's — personal shoppers only). A full description of the effect including the presentation will appear in this magazine. Thanks Juan.

Two more lectures both arranged by Ken Brooke, the venue being Vic Pinto's studio. The first, on Oct. 4 was by Finn Jon who began, not unexpectedly, with threads. The information he imparted on their use and handling, with special reference to the problems of lighting and background on how to ensure that the thread remained invisible, must have been of incalculable value to anyone comtemplating using effects requiring thread. It is not possible to fully report this, or any other lecture, but an exception must be made in respect of the closing item which must be one of the greatest close-up effects of all time. A tie is borrowed and a knot tied in the narrow end and then coiled up on the open palm. Simulating the movements of a snake, the knot representing the head of the reptile sways from side to side. The tie is then allowed to fall onto the seat of a chair where it continues its snakelike movements. Finally, it is 'shot' and falls onto the seat. The tie was immediately handed back to its owner. This was performed with Finn completely surrounded.

Three days later David Roth repeated the lecture he gave at the Ramsay Reunion. Flawless coin magic which a second viewing failed to lessen the impact it created initially. His continued statement that it was not difficult was received with obvious disbelief, but I believe it to be substantially true. The effects, which are all explained in his lecture notes, are mostly achieved by the use of sleights within the range of most coin workers. It is not suggested that facility with the necessary sleights one could become a performer in the same class as David, but considering that the only difficult sleight, in a technical sense, is a one-handed exchange of two coins, the others being the retention of vision move, the shuttle pass, finger palm, classic palm, the thumb palm plus a few moves which require no particular skill does suggest that these fine coin routines should not be passed up by the average coin man.

One of the most effective visible illusions possible with a pack of cards is to change the face card of the pack. Many methods for producing this effect have been published but apart from changing the face card into one previously selected, and Nate Leipsig's Slap Aces, it has found few uses. One trick which could well be improved is the Cards up the Sleeve where the effect created would be that the cards vanish from the face of the pack one at a time and appear in the pocket. Using a small number of cards - say five - and with a combination of colour change sleights and false counts plus double facers, a solution should not be too difficult to find for what could be a worthwhile small packet trick. Just something to think about. Til next month,

Fred Robinson

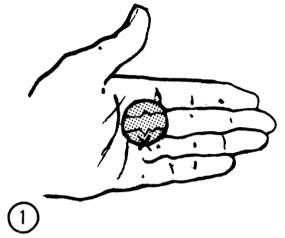

HALF THROUGH

In the June issue of Pavutar, Pat Page relates Dai Vernon's quest for a perfect method of doing the effect "in which a coin is pushed into the back of the performer's fist, and when the hand is opened the coin rests on the palm". Vernon's stated desire was for a method involving one coin only. The following method was stimulated by that article. As it happens, two coins are used, and one of them is gimmicked. However, the gaffed coin allows you to present an unusually visual version of the effect.

You will need two matching coins. One may be borrowed; the other is a folding coin. The folding coin will facilitate the illusion at one point in the routine that the coin is visibly penetrating the flesh. The basic concept was shown to Dorion Sagan by Harry Anderson. The handling and application are Sagan's.

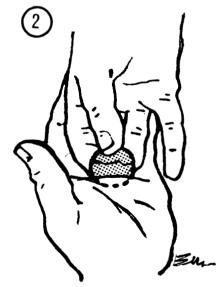

At the start of the routine, the folding coin is finger-palmed in the left hand. The cuts in the folding coin must run in the same direction as the fingers (refer to figure one). The left hand, with the palmed coin, rests at your side as you receive the spectator's (matching) coin in your right hand. Hold that coin in your right fingertips, and apparently transfer it to the left hand. In fact, by way of a Retention Pass, the borrowed coin is pulled back behind the right fingers as the left hand's coin is brought into view. Done in a natural and casual manner, it will appear as if you have simply placed the coin from the right hand into the left. This action, independently developed, is part of a backwards version of a true utility move designated by David Roth as a Shuttle-Pass. In addition to switching the coin, it serves to tell the spectators that both hands are otherwise empty.

The normal coin is now finger-palmed by the right hand. With the right thumb and fore-At the same time, the right thumb pushes the finger-palmed normal coin into the right fingertips as the right hand comes away from the left. The appearance is that the coin has simply been taken from the left hand by the right fingers.

Bring the visible coin over the back of the left hand, and apparently press it into the back of that hand. Actually, the right fingers are allowed to slide down the coin, so that it is hidden once again behind the right fingers. At that same moment, release the palmed folding coin, allowing it to drop onto the table. The coin has instantly penetrated the back of the left hand.

The coin on the table is the folding coin. The normal coin is in your right hand. Use any standard coin switch to exchange the tabled coin for the normal one, and give the fair coin back to the spectator. The spectator's immediate impulse to examine the returned coin gives you ample opportunity to get rid of the gaff. finger, pick up the folding coin from the left hand. The coin is gripped at point "X" in figure one. Place the coin vertically against your open left palm, so that the edge of the coin lines up with a major crease in the palm.

At this moment, the left fingers curl up slightly for just a second, to cover the following action: the right hand presses down on the folding coin, causing the lower third to flip back horizontally (refer to figure two — performer's view). The fold of the coin presses into the crease in the palm. From the spectator's viewpoint, the coin is seen in the act of penetrating the palm!

This illusion is displayed just long enough for the impact to register. Now turn the left hand inwards. Simultaneously, the folding coin is dropped into the left palm, held in place by pressure with the fleshy base of the left thumb. (For all intents and purposes, you are taking the coin into a Classic Palm grip, but this need not be perfect as long as the coin is held securely).

donion sagan

Described by Phil Goldstein

The line-up for the International Day of Magic on Sunday 18 December include Doug Alker, Al Goshman, Bob Gill, Fred Kaps, Bob Read and Juan Tamarix, in close-up. Not to be missed.

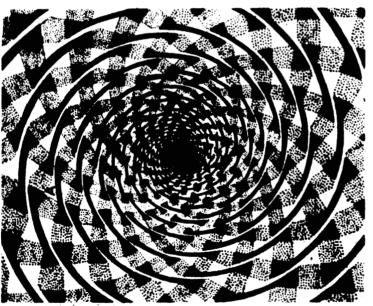

THE INTERNATIONAL MAGAZINE Now in its 5th year.

MAKE SURE EACH ISSUE IS SENT TO YOU REGULARLY. SEND TODAY ONLY £2.50 UK, £3.00 OVERSEAS AND US $6.00 FOR ONE YEAR (SIX) ISSUES SENT POST FREE TO ANYWHERE IN THE WORLD.

32 glossy pages in each issue.

THE INTERNATIONAL MAGIC STUDIO (RON MACMILLAN)
89 CLERKENWELL ROAD, HOLBORN, LONDON, E.C.1.

٠

IF YOU'VE NEVER HEARD A MAGICASSETTE YOU DON'T KNOW WHAT YOU ARE MISSING -

MAGICASSETTES BY MARTIN BREESE ARE CASSETTE RECORDINGS OF FAMOUS MAGICIANS — moderately priced at $11.00 each (£4.80) and professionally recorded

There are now 18 Martin Breese Magicassettes available and another 30 in production at the moment. Sid Lorraine said: "I am happy to see what you are doing to preserve the words and wisdom of the wizards of today". Genii July 1977 said: "I recommend you buy the Magicassettes being sold by Martin Breese of England . . . they are great to listen to and will become even more valuable in the years to come. We have ordered a complete set for the Magic Castle."

Available now: Goodliffe Vol One & Two/Terry Seabrooke/ Magicomedian George Schindler Vol One & Two/Faucett Ross Remembers/Alan Alan Vol One & Two/Lewis Ganson Vol One & Two/Bobby Bernard/David Berglas/Francis White/ Robert Harbin/James Randi on Uri Geller Secrets/Val Andrews on his Life Story. Each VOLUME £4.80 or $11.00 airmail post free or send for Magicassettes Highlights Recording with extracts from quite a few of the above at just £3.80 or $10.00 airmail. List for 10p stamp.

MARTIN P. BREESE — Creator of the Original Magicassettes — 77 Bolingbroke Road, Hammersmith, London W14 0AA, ENGLAND

MAGICASSETTES

TWICE TWO

EFFECT:

A predicted card and a selected card are found in a reasonably fair manner. Whilst the method is based on simple maths, this is not too obvious to the audience. It is ideal to do with a borrowed pack as there is no set-up, and no difficult sleights. Also the pack does not need to be a complete one.

WORKING:

State you will make a prediction before commencing the trick. Run through the pack with the faces towards yourself and look for the mate of the bottom card of the face up pack. For example if this card is the five of hearts, look for the five of diamonds. As you are looking for the prediction card count twenty cards from the face of the pack, and mark the position of these off by holding a break with the left little finger. If you should reach your prediction card before completing your count from the face, just upjog it slightly, and continue your count as if uncertain whether the jogged card is suitable for your prediction. Do NOT include the prediction card in your count.

Remove your prediction card and place it face downwards onto the table. Close up the remainder of the pack into the left hand retaining the little finger break below the face twenty cards.

Cut off the face twenty cards with the right hand and give them to a spectator, requesting him to give them a good shuffle. Whilst he is doing this, quietly turn the remainder of the pack face down in the left hand and get a little finger break below the top card.

When he has completed his shuffling, request him to retain just under half the cards and return the remainder to you. Take the returned cards into the right hand and position them so that they are being held face down, in a casually squared state.

roy walton

Request the assisting spectator to cut the packet of cards he has into two groups, and place one of these groups into his pocket. Point out that it is impossible for you to know how many cards he is left with. Ask him to count these cards whilst you look away. As he counts them bring the cards in your right hand above those in your left and add the card on top of the left hand cards to the face of the right hand ones. The excuse for bringing the packets together is to apparently square the right hand cards with the assistance of the left hand. After you have added the card, quietly place the left hand cards on the table, as they are no longer required.

Show the faces of the cards in the remaining packet to the spectator one at a time counting from the top and asking him to remember the card that occupies the same position as the quantity of cards he has just counted. To prevent errors it is advisable to count out aloud as you show him the face of each card. When you reach ten, stop and replace these cards BELOW the ones remaining. DO NOT alter the order of the ten cards shown, simply show the face of each card to the spectator as you count, taking one below the other into the right hand.

Give the complete packet a simple overhand shuffle as follows:- run nine cards singly thus reversing their order, injog the tenth card and then shuffle off the remainder on top of the jogged card. Give the packet a single cut, cutting at the jogged card so that it becomes the top card of the packet.

Point out how impossible it would be, and especially for you, to know the quantity of cards he placed in his pocket, as even he does not know this yet. Have him remove the cards from his pocket and count, and let's say the quantity is three. Count down to the third card in your packet, ask for the name of the noted card and slowly turn it face up. The noted card has appeared at the exact position of the quantity of cards pocketed earlier.

Pause for a moment, and then ask the spectator the original position at which he noted the card. Count down in your packet to this position, after having placed the previously counted cards aside, and hold the card arrived at face down in the right hand.

Ask a spectator to turn face up the prediction card placed aside at the beginning of the trick and say, "There is only one card in the whole pack that matches the prediction in both colour and value." Slowly turn the card in the right hand face up.

I can't remember where or when, but some time in the distant past I once read that the more names you mention in a column, particularly a magical column, the more friends you will make. OK, David Roth, Finn Jon, John Calvert, Jay Marshall, Albert Goshman. Is that enough names to make friends? Actually, with the exception of Albert Goshman, they all have one thing in common; they have all been recent visitors to London, and even Goshman, though not being around at the same time as the others, had his ugly face appearing on our television screens just the other week. The TV show was taped some months ago and Albert was not quite his usual self, I thought perhaps he was a little reserved, but as always he delivered the goods as no-one else in the world can. Albert, come again, any time. Please. David Roth and Finn Jon both did lectures within a few days of each other under the auspices of Ken Brooke. Finn Jon surprised me particularly. He didn't do many tricks but one that he did do knocked most of those present sideways. This was a version of the Al Koran Medallion effect where a number is predicted and is revealed by being 'inscribed' on the back of a gold medallion. Finn Jon had a variation on this where a girl's name actually was 'engraved' It was marvellous.

David Roth, the young man who specialises in coin tricks. He came, we saw, he conquered. One thing was unique about the Roth lecture: for the first time ever the lecture could be purchased afterwards not only as lecture notes, but in the form of a cassette recording of the complete lecture. Several people took advantage of this and no doubt they will be sitting at home at this very moment listening as David Roth's voice on tape recreate for them the miracles he performed for them that evening.

John Calvert is one of my favourite people. He is one of a vanishing breed. He leads the kind of life we would all like to lead. Most performing magicians have dreamt of living the free-life of a travelling mountebank-cum-charlatan and I mean that in the nicest possible sense. John Calvert does just that, but in a grander manner. Not for him the living wagon or a caravan or the sleazy lodging houses of days gone by. He has for many years travelled the world by boat. His own boat, no less. In fact a yacht. I don't know the difference.

Looking and behaving like a character played by the late Errol Flynn he really is larger than life. There should be more like him but alas it requires guts and a tremendous amount of performing experience.

I first saw him around the middle fifties when he was touring the variety theatres in England, and last saw him perform in Spain a few months ago. Like whisky he improved with age, but I am quite sure that at least half his success is due to the everpresent Tammy, the most beautiful, gorgeous, effervescent, exciting assistant in the world. We have learned your secret at last John Calvert — without Tammy you're nothing, so there.

Now take Jay Marshall. He is the opposite to John Calvert. He carries his act around in a towel he stole from a hotel. He will sleep wherever any one will offer him a bed and a bar of soap. His hair is thinning, his shoulders stoop, his eyesight is failing, and for at least half of his act he talks to himself. His left hand is called Lefty and his right hand is called Frances. How can this man possibly be successful? But he is. There must be a reason. There is. Frances is her name. She does all the work whilst he gallivants around the world visiting theatres and plays and puppet shows etc. Like Calvert he is lucky. He has found a female who will tolerate him.

It has been said a million times before that behind every successful man there is a woman. With Calvert it is true. With Marshall it is true.

Is it true in your case?

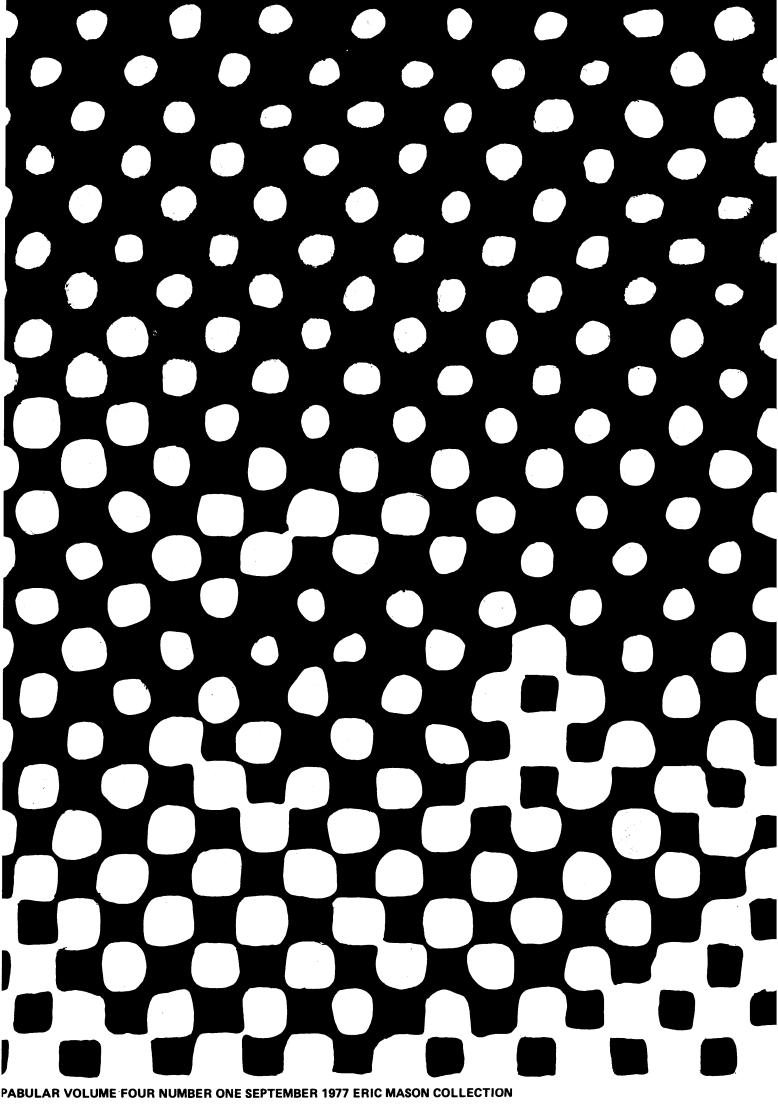

Goodbye

Patrick Page

Yesterday, two friends turned up from Paris. We had a good day, went to the Circle and finished up with a good tuck in at the Piccadilly Restaurant. Today things have been a bit easier. Today things have been a bit easier. TWISH EVERY PERSON WHO READS THIS HAD BEEN PRESENT I WISH EVERY PERSON WHO READS THIS HAD BEEN PRESENT A few people could share the feelings of Mr Prescoti, a man in his UVIVIER A few people could share the feelings of Mr Prescoti, a man in his UVIVIER A few people could share the feelings of Mr Prescoti, a man in his UVIVIER I wish who was there and who loves magic. He saards is something which TERRY Perform. His tremendous skill with a pack of cards is started again with TERRY I cannot believe. right at this moment he's started again with Teres. His man is unbelievable. I cannot believe. This man is unbelievable. ROGERS. This man is unbelievable. ROGERS. This man I wish you had been there. Every magician Both Frank and I started and I wish you had been have seen ROGERS. This man is unbelievable. GAETON BLOOM PERFORM THE GREATEST COMEDY CARD EFFECT GAETON BLOOM PERFORM THE GREATEST COMEDY CARD EFFECT HAVE EVER SEEN IN A LIFETIME OF MAGIC I offered £1000 for it. I know someone will only end to the provide of the provide of Lists 75p. . . . U.S.A. $3.00 cheque. $2.00 cash

There's No Place Like
KEN BROOKE'S MAGIC PLACE - 145 WARDOUR STREET
LONDON. W.1. - ENGLAND
Tel: 01-734 9240

an eric mason collection

A few moons and high waters ago Rick Johnsson, in his Linking Ring series of articles 'Come a Little Closer' described a fantastic routine using a flash cube — this very funny and clever magician called it 'A Flash in the Pan' or, 'Many Men Smoke but Fu Manchu'—well worth the subscription. Others have been seriously thinking about flash cubes with the result that an effect called 'Camera Bug' has appeared on the magical scene and very good it is too — get one.

Also get yourself a mini Flash Cube and practise firing it off. Then take it apart carefully you will find that the top can be removed with a sharp knife. Should you crack the plastic get another one and pay particular attention to the way the corners are stuck together. Having removed the top prise out the foil, and wriggle out one of the spent bulbs — it will come out in one piece. Next, cut out an index from a playing card, fray the edges and scorch it making it appear as burnt as possible as is consistant with readability. Replace the foil on the base of the cube, and put the prepared index in the side from which the bulb was removed. Complete the preparation by putting back the top sealing it with that very dangerous ten-second glue. It should now appear as in the sketch, with three sides looking normal and your piece of prepared card in the remaining window. You will also require another flash cube.

Force the card corresponding to the index in the cube and in attempting to name it you call some other card. Remarking that you are somewhat in the dark regarding what they are thinking produce the regular cube with the fake finger-palmed in the same hand, and continue by offering to get a little more light on the subject. Flash off the cube — and whilst they are temporarily blind switch the cubes, and when their sight returns call attention to the burnt portion of the card in the cube.

CUBIS

If you take the front cover of this Pabular down the garden and prop it up against the wall and then walk back from it keeping your eyes fixed on it, you will notice that at a distance varying from fifteen to twenty feet that I will have MY EYE on you. Intrigued? Then do it now O.K.? This suggests an effect that may have not been used before in Mentallism.

Let's adapt the principle to our interest. For example, when performing before a large audience, force the letter 'I' from a pack of alphabet or Lexicon cards on someone who looks friendly, and saying you have made a prediction remove Pabular from its envelope and show him the cover design. He will look puzzled when you ask him if your prediction is correct or not. Smile, and ask him to point to someone he doesn't know. Show the 'dots' to the nominated person and ask him to name what he sees, and should he not reply within a few seconds ask if anyone else can see anything.

With a bit of luck the whole audience will shout 'I'. I will leave it to progressive dealers to develop the idea further — like a Brainwave pack with adapted backs, Or, Or, Or.....?

I SAY, DOTS IMPOSSIBLE!

A few people may know that a spin-off from the Space Age was a material capable of taking impressions from newsprint known to magicians as Potty Putty. A malleable adhesive known as Blu-Tack, and generally available from stationers everywhere also has this special quality.

In addition to a small lump of this material you will also require a newspaper, a double sided handbag mirror, a marker which will write on glass and a ballpoint pen. Using these properties you are able to divine a word or two haphazardly chosen from the paper.

Hand the paper to a spectator requesting that he chooses a page and removed it discarding the rest of the paper. Give him the pen and ask him to draw a large cross on one side of the sheet keeping the other side out of your view. During this time secretly get the blob of Blu-Tack in your right fingers.

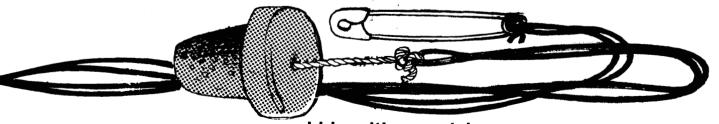

You now invite him to pierce the paper with the pen where the two lines of the cross bisect each other. You demonstrate what is required by taking the paper from him and putting the tip of the left index finger on the paper at the point of intersection. In order to do this the right hand moves under the paper ostensibly to hold the paper steady but in reality to take an impression of the words in the area where the pen will penetrate the paper, by pressing the Blu-Tack up against the left fore-finger.

Allow spectator to take the paper from you and move away as he follows your instructions. Reach for your mirror and press the Blu-Tack onto the side of it in such a manner that when it is in place the impression obtained will be reflected in it. A few moments experimentation in obtaining the impression and sticking the Blu-Tack to the mirror surface will quickly make it clear that the operation is a simple one and does not require detailed instructions. It only needs to be said, that when getting the impression the 'lump' is brought to the tips of the right thumb and fingers which do not move position until it is stuck onto the mirror. There is no need for furtive movements when stealing away the Blu-Tack from under the paper — all eyes will be on the spectator and the surface of the paper with the cross on it.

REFLECTION

As the spectator pierces the paper you remark that the words on the other side of the paper at which it is split is a totally random choice and could not possibly be known to you. Invite two or three others to concentrate on the words immediately adjacent to the split in the paper. During the foregoing business you have kept at some distance and contrived to position yourself under, or near, some source of light for two reasons. It enables the words in the mirror to be easily read, and also makes it possible to reflect some light into the eyes of those who are participating by concentrating on the words as they gaze into the mirror. At your request they are attempting to project mentally a word, or words into the mirror, and when you succeed in capturing? their thoughts write them on the mirror with your marker. Conclude by stealing the Blu-Tack and collecting your pen.

schhh....it's a vanish....

As a mentalist it is vital at times to have a simple plot — themes with colour in them are thin on the ground. This is precognitive in effect — and as a close-up presentation to prove your ability in this direction will be hard to beat.

A packet of cards with coloured faces — some of which are in duplicate — are spread out and a spectator is invited to choose a colour by touching one of the cards. The cards are laid aside and from an envelope you are holding a similar coloured card is removed. If desired the effect can be immediately repeated.

It's all an apparency—the card taken from the envelope is the actual one touched by the spectator when making his choice of colour.

You will of course require a packet of different coloured cards and if it is to be a sizeable one it will be necessary for the colours to be repeated.

The envelope required is shown in (Fig. 1). It has no flap and is made from thin card. There is a cut-out at the open end to facilitate the removal of the card, and one long side is open. The exact dimensions in relation to the cards used are important. It should be of such a size that when a card is inside its edges should be flush with the open end and sides of the envelope. When completed cover it with transparent adhesive film such as Transpaseal and it will last forever.

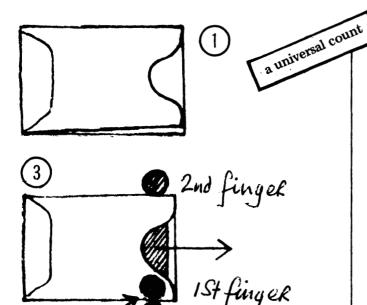

Put the empty envelope on the bottom of the pack with its open corner at the right inner corner of the stack of colour cards, so that when held in the left hand in the normal dealing position its little finger tip is close to the open corner of the envelope, where it can pull down the corner of the lower side of the envelope. If the corner is given a downward crimp beforehand this pulldown action becomes a simple matter. You are now ready to perform.

Spread out the cards between the hands, thumbs above and fingers below, and invite someone to choose a colour by pointing to a card. Retaining the cards in the spread condition, the left hand holds all the cards whilst the right hand changes its grip and holds the right side of the spread between its thumb on the inner ends of the cards and fingers curled over the outer ends (Fig. 2). You are now in a position to close up the spread and get the actual chosen card into the envelope in the process of so doing. Here's how.

The right second and third fingertips press on the back of the chosen card and swivel it towards the right — part the spread slightly below this card sufficiently to allow it to clear the cards below it and immediately close up the spread at the same time angling the chosen card and with the left little fingertip pull down the crimped corner of the envelope. What really happens is a variation of the Kelly replacement sleight. Instead of card going to the bottom of the pack it goes directly into the envelope through the open side in a surprisingly easy action.

Square up the cards and at the same time make sure that the card is right inside the envelope. Respread the cards disclosing the envelope, the left little fingertip keeping the open corners and side closed, as the cards are placed aside.

The right hand now takes the open corners of the envelope between the thumb and fingers keeping them closed turns it over. The envelope is retaken with the left hand between the thumb and second finger, the first finger resting on top next to the thumb (Fig. 3). With the left fingers in this position the card is kept in perfect alignment as the right hand pulls it from the envelope.

PRESS

If so desired the effect can be repeated immediately. Just turn your back to prevent anyone seeing the colour of the card you put? in the envelope. It will be accepted that a card is in the envelope before the colour is chosen because of the directness of the method used, the absence of unnatural moves, and the fact that within seconds of the card being chosen the performer is removing what the audience believe to be its duplicate from the envelope. All these factors precludes the audience from even suspecting the real method used, which leaves them completely without a solution.

CABOODL'E

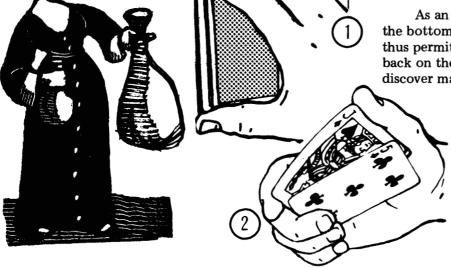

For the purpose of describing the sleight assume that it is required to show four normal cards as double backers. Take any five cards and turn the bottom one face up and hold the packet in the right hand between the fingers at the outer end and the thumb at the inner end, with the top card pushed over towards the right (Fig. 1). Note that the fingers should be well over the end of the packet enabling them to be curled over the end press on the back of the bottom card and swivel it towards the right (Fig. 2). This will be recognised as the first part of the Kelly replacement sleight.

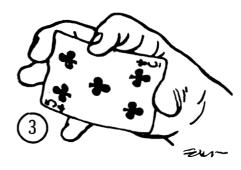

To commence showing the five cards as four double backers swivel the bottom card clear as explained as the left hand takes the middle three cards between the thumb and fingers. Immediately the packet of three is clear the right index and little fingers move from their position at the end of the two cards now remaining to the sides squaring them (Fig. 3). The right hand turns over to show that the card(s) has a back on both sides, and then turns back to its original position.

The left thumb now pushes the top card of the left hand packet forward and the right hand comes in and takes this card beneath the card? it is holding. Actually the bottom card is Kelly swivelled and the card from the top of the left hand packet goes between the two cards and again the right index and little fingers move to the sides squaring them up before turning the packet over to show that the second card is also a double backer. The third and last cards are shown to have backs on both sides by repeating the previous move.

The sleight works just as well for a larger number of cards, and subject to plot eliminates forever the need to Hindu shuffle to achieve the same effect.

As an Ambitious Card move it will transfer the bottom card to the second down position thus permitting a double lift to show the card back on the top. No doubt cardicians will discover many other uses for this universal count.

Fred Robinson

QASIS

All the tricks in this issue are from the fertile and imaginative brain of Pabular's Art Editor, Eric Mason. He is a professional artist whose work can be seen from time to time in almost every place in and around London where pictures are sold.

It is not, therefore, surprising that the art work in this magazine is regarded by many who understand these matters as being unequalled in the field of magical periodicals, either past or present. Eric was also responsible for the illustrations in the Pageboy's controversial Big Book of Magic (now in paperback) and the new cover design of the I.B.M. (British Ring) Budget. It is hardly necessary to mention that he is the inventor of the secret writing gimmick 'BOON' which he has recently improved making it even easier to handle.

The tricks which appear in this issue are indicative of where his chief interest lies in matters magical — cards and mental effects. It is probably the latter which exercises his mind most, and when holding one man exhibitions of his paintings he uses contact mindreading to find a hidden picture as a publicity stunt. This he does with great speed and accuracy using a technique of his own which has not as yet appeared in print. Perhaps some day he will be persuaded to share the secret with us, but meanwhile readers will find the tricks explained herein and which I have seen performed on numerous occasions under the toughest of conditions to be effective and above all practical. This latter quality is the chief concern when considering effects for publication in this magazine and to know that they are actually being performed regularly by the contributors, as these tricks are, is something we would like to achieve with every issue.

A quote from a letter just received from Mike Caveney whose stand-up comedy magic act registered so strongly at Harrogate — "One of the real treats was meeting you and the rest of the Pabular gang along with Bob Read in the pub by the Magic Circle. It's easier for me now to understand how Pabular maintains its high standards." Similar remarks have been made by others including John Holland whose excellent book reviews appear in the Magic Circular. Seeing magic performed under these conditions for ordinary people keeps ones feet somewhere near the ground and helps gauge the kind of magic that appeals to the general public, and thus reduces the possibility of the magazine becoming overloaded with the kind of magic that is only performed to other magicians - if at News comes from Andy Galloway that his ook on John Ramsay should be out early November. Consisting of 112 pages, 7½ by 10 inches, printed on art paper, there are 10 chapters describing 17 tricks and routines with 300 illustrations by Gordon Bruce plus 8 pages of photographs. Cloth bound with gold titled spine and a two-colour dust jacket with a photograph of John on the cover. 'Professor' Dai Vernon has written the introduction. Much of the material has appeared on print, most of it either incorrectly or inadequately described, making it almost impossible to obtain an understanding of what was required to achieve satisfactory results. This deficiency has been remedied by one who is qualified to give a definitive explanation of what is required to create magic in the style of his mentor.

'I must say that this was one of the most pleasant and entertaining conventions I have ever attended just hospitality, cordiality and excellent performers'. That is how the 'Professor' reported the atmosphere of the Ramsay Reunion in his column in the Genii. I am sure he would have said much the same had he been at the Hotel Victoria-Palace in El Escorial a small village some 40 miles from Madrid for the IV Jornadas de Cartomagia organised by the Escuela Magica de Madrid.

Starting at 8.00pm Friday October 28th and continuing until 4.00pm Sunday breaking only for meals and sleep we had card magic on films (really excellent), lectures on, performances of, and a workshop session — all on card magic.

Pepe Regueira lectured on the Three Card Trick. Starting with his own routine and a brief history he continued by demonstrating some 26 sleights and bits of business appertaining to this particular effect.

Reinhard Muller dealt with the Ambitious Card in much the same way, seemingly missing out nothing of importance regarding this classic close-up card effect.

Luis Garcia and Gabriel Moreno assisted by lecture notes running into ten pages dealt with false deals. Here again nothing appeared to be missed out. Seconds, thirds, fourths, bottoms and seconds from the bottom etc.

There was also a workshop and many individual performances. Next month I will tell more of this satisfying and enjoyable event which will indicate why the Spanish boys are likely to lead in the field of close-up magic.

BRATNWAVE

BILLET DOUX'D and CABOODLED

During a 'session' borrow a pack with a different coloured back design from your own, and secretly add one of the cards to the top of your own pack and put the borrowed pack into your own case placing it aside. This may seem rather a tall order and would most certainly be difficult to accomplish unsuspected without some kind of misdirection. Here is one solution.

The situation is that your own pack is face down on the table together with its case and someone else is the centre of attraction. Another member of the group seated near you has a pack with the necessary contrasting backs. Reach out for this person's pack and say quietly "May I?", and immediately appear to take an interest in the other man performing. By your manner you convey to the lender that you will perform a trick with his pack when the present performer has finished.

Immediately you are aware that the lender's attention has moved away from you allow the bottom card of his pack, which you are holding face down, to fall on top of your own pack and casually place the borrowed pack face up onto the table a few inches from your own.

You now wait until the interest in the other action subsides and when it does, catch the eye of the lender and remark, "I was going to show you a trick with your pack", and as you say this pick up the face up pack and put it in your own card case. The lender will wrongly assume that you are putting your own cards away because he believes, also wrongly, that your pack with one of his cards atop is his own pack.

Leave the cased cards on the table and pick up the other pack and turn it face up and put a prepared envelope (see Billet Doux) on the bottom. Spread out the face up cards and have someone say the first card that comes into their mind — quickly sight this card and using the move explained in Billet Doux slide it into the envelope. Carefully turn everything over and disclose the envelope on top of the now face down pack, but slightly separated so that the stranger card is visible 'proving' that the pack is the one 'borrowed'. Using the Billet Doux extraction technique take the card from the envelope and show you have a duplicate of the freely named card with a different coloured back.

Continue with the pack face up using the 'Caboodle' move go through the pack removing a small packet at a time and showing the back card of each packet (actually the same card, the stranger). Ask that you be stopped somewhere, and when you are, turn the stranger over and have it noted. Turn it over and as you close the two halves take a break above this stranger card the only face down card in the face up pack.

Reverse pass all the cards below the break, and still holding a break between the two halves turn the whole pack over bringing the stranger card to the top. Divide the pack at the break and openly turn the bottom half over. Weave shuffle the two halves together retaining the stranger at the top.

At this point you are talking about the cards being mixed, some face up, the others face down, and that you cannot go very far through the pack without seeing a face down card. During these remarks you have raised the inner ends of the top two cards in readiness for the Marlo Tilt move and proceed to remove the top card, the face down stranger, and push it into the pack below the new top card. The use of the Tilt principle makes it appear that it was pushed somewhere into the middle of the pack.

The face up top card is now removed and pushed into the pack somewhere near the bottom. The stranger, again face down on top of the pack is removed and pushed into the pack, but is pulled out again under cover of taking the face up card now on top of the pack. Quickly place both cards on top and immediately retake the face up top card and push it somewhere into the centre of the pack. Finally, to complete these 'proving' moves take the face down stranger, which is on top of the pack, together with four or five under it and push them into the middle of the pack holding a break above the stranger card. Using an undercover pass bring all the cards under the top one and above the break to the bottom of the pack. The cards are now all face up with the exception of the stranger card which is face down second from the top. Put the top face up card somewhere in the pack face up.

At this point in the routine the onlookers are convinced that the pack is a mixture of face up and face down cards and also that it is the borrowed one, having seen? the backs freely during the Billet Doux effect and when showing the face up/face down condition of the pack. You now move rapidly into the final effects.

Do any pass or move which sends the top face down stranger into the middle of the pack, and immediately spread the pack to reveal all the cards face up with the exception of one face down card which on being turned face up is seen to be the one chosen.

BRAINWAVE

Place it face up on the bottom of the face up pack, square up, and turn face down taking a break under the top card. Pick up your card case and call attention to its closed condition at the same time adding the stranger card to the bottom of the case and put both on the table. The removal of the stranger card exposes a different coloured back but the audience are prevented from seeing this by angling the pack as the stranger is stolen. Put the back face up onto the table and ribbon spread it, and ask if anyone remembers the colour of the backs. On receiving a reply turn the spread over in the approved manner which you all know to reveal the change of colour.

You now pick up the card case together with the hidden stranger which you add to the pack as you tip the cards out of the case. Give the borrowed pack back to its owner, and put your own cards in the case.

The impact of this double climax is considerable, especially on the person whose cards you borrowed, and as it would be difficult to top it, it would be advisable to leave your cards where they are, in the case.

KINETO

Talk turns to the unusual — how is dematerialisation possible? — if you could duplicate something exactly, would the original disappear? You offer to attempt the impossible — an experiment in the art of Telekinisis — can such things be?

You ask for something personal from the pocket, perhaps a lighter, a coin — better still a bunch of keys, perhaps! Perfect — would you kindly cup your hands, so, and totally enclose the keys within — that's fine, sir — I will come back to you. May I approach you madam? would you allow me to borrow your ring - I promise to take care with it. Thank you - it's beautiful - it looks good - it feels good and right to use — it must mean a lot to you. Would you further help me with your best thoughts? I shall cup my hands gently with your ring inside, see — there it is — please help. I shall mentally count up to ten - and slowly open my hands - it has vanished - has it gone? Unbelievably it has completely disappeared.

Sir, did you feel anything — with your mind — your hands? — look at your keys — has a ring appeared with them? Yes — incredible. Do not move — stay where you are and throw them to me please — thank you. Madam here are the keys — how is it possible? Is this your ring — is it fastened to the gentleman's keys? Here is your ring — I return it to you — and sir, your keys — please catch. Thank you both very much.

Can this be TeleKEYnisis?

To perform this plot you will require three magnets. One is attached to a split ring which also has a nice looking ladies finger ring on it as sketch (1).

The other two magnets are glued, one on each side of a small reliable pull. Sketch 2. To the end of pull thread is attached a split ring, the ends of which have been bent open slightly enabling the borrowed ring to be attached without fumbling. See sketch 3. The arrangement of the pull is the 'standard one — the reel is in the back trouser pocket on the right side and the thread is taken round behind the split ring and hooked onto a ring on the ring finger of the left hand. The split ring being bent open facilitates this. Sketch 4. Make certain that the reel is secure in the pocket and will not fly out when under pressure.

With the pull set, and the linked magnet, finger ring and split ring concealed in the right hand and having succeeded in finding someone with a bunch of keys instruct him to hold them in his cupped hands. Do not handle the keys yourself, but as you close his cupped hands casually add the load.

The borrowed ring is hooked onto the pull and brought to the fingertips as you admire and comment on it, at the same time move it slightly round the split ring to prevent any jingling sound when you release the pull. Allow the ring to sink into your cupped hands and close them, re-open them slowly and ask the lady if she can still see her ring, and then have her help to re-close your hands over the ring by closing her hands over yours.

Look now at the person who has the keys and ask him to duplicate your actions (he should not have moved). Make a slight backwards movement towards your body with your hands and then extend them towards your helper and under cover of this action secretly open your hands sufficiently to allow the pull to take the ring away. Build up the effect — and slowly open your cupped hands — the ring has vanished.

Turn your attention to the person holding the keys in his cupped hands, and ask him to open his hands, confirm that there is a ring on them, and then throw them to you. In the meantime you have secretly obtained the pull with the lady's ring on it and add them to the bunch as you catch it in the right hand.

With the left hand, steal the dummy ring and magnet and show the lady her ring fastened to the bunch of keys belonging to the gentleman. Have her acknowledge that the ring is hers allowing her to watch you closely as you carefully remove it from the split ring. Hand her ring back and pass the keys to the left hand allowing the magnetic dummy to attach itself to the reel magnets, and throw the keys back to their owner.

I have found in performance that the split ring is superior to the standard clip that comes with most reels as it is too small to take some of the rings offered especially those chunky styles of modern fashionable jewelery. No such problem will arise with a split ring if bent as shown in the sketch. Also, it looks more natural to see such a ring attached to a bunch of keys — if it is seen at all. Furthermore, being hooked to your own ring enables you to move your arm freely and naturally as you perform the initial moves before making the 'hook' up. The way in which the borrowed ring is affixed to the pull ring enables the right fingers holding the borrowed ring to take the pull off your ring finger and move it to the tips of the left hand fingers in one movement. This idea was triggered off by seeing a remarkable treatment of this effect by Pat Conway who has improved the Flying Ring beyond recognition. I hope he will market his method, or publish it for Pabular readers.

The magnet used must be circular ferrites technically known as anisotropics. These will not easily shake off a surface, and will, indeed, creep further into a collection. Some keys in a bunch offered may be of brass, therefore non-magnetic, but these magnets are powerful enough to reach through a non-magnetic thickness and attach themselves beyond and round an obstacle. You will be extremely unlucky for them not to hold to any bunch of keys offered. If you are unable to obtain them, write in.

One further point — you can use your watch as a holdout by clipping the ring pull to the strap. This will enable effects to be performed prior to this one. It can be transferred to your ring finger when required with little attention having to be paid to the movement.

N.C.R.

Suggest that some lady in your audience has won a large sum of money, or has been left a legacy — ask her what she would choose if she could really have anything she wanted — wait — there will be a pause here — perhaps too long — as some ladies want so many things they have difficulty in making a decision — hurry them up — A new house —fine O.K. — What colour would you like it to be? — white O.K. — How much would you like (expect) to pay for it? — £60,000 — you'll be lucky — when would you like it?

As you receive a reply to each question you write it down on a card and when the last question has been answered you recap reading from the card as you remove a wallet from your inside pocket. Put the check card away, zip open the wallet and remove an envelope which you tear open. The contents, a folded piece of paper, is tipped out onto the lady's hand who is invited to open it out. As she does so you explain that you have previously been in touch with a company called Dreamawhile Ltd. and what she is holding is their personal invoice to say that all the good wishes she has for herself will come true in the future. Have her read out aloud what is written on the invoice and give her the the greatest little gummic in the world

N.C.R.

You will require for this effect a printed invoice as shown and to call yourself a company — mine is Dreamawhile Ltd. Get your tame printer to use a paper which duplicates a carbon copy. With a ballpoint pen write as follows leaving a space at the end of the first three lines.

After COLOUR — As requested

 ${\bf After\ COLOUR-As\ requested.....}$

After PRICE — Less 10 per cent.....

After DELIVERY — Immediate, subject to contract.

After REMARKS — With many thanks for your co-operation.

Fill in the appropriate date, and sign your own name at the bottom.

It is now necessary to fold the invoice leaving the space left at the end of the lines exposed. With the invoice, printed side towards you fold back the top third of the sheet. Do likewise with the bottom third and finally the fold in half, the left side going to the rear. It is on the lines visible that you 'fill' in your subjects wishes when pretending to write on your check card.

You will also require two blank pieces of card fractionally larger than the folded invoice. _On one of these you scribble, reading downwards, item, colour, price, and delivery. In addition to acting as a memory jog you can let it be seen that you have been writing? on the card. You will also need a wallet with envelopes set up as described by Le Paul or any other suitable arrangement with which you may be acquainted that allows the folded invoice to be loaded into an envelope that is inside a wallet. A version of Le Paul's method is explained in 'Expert Card Mysteries' by Alton Sharpe.

With the wallet set up and in the pocket, a ballpoint pen to hand the only other preparation needed is the arrangement of the two cards and the folded invoice.

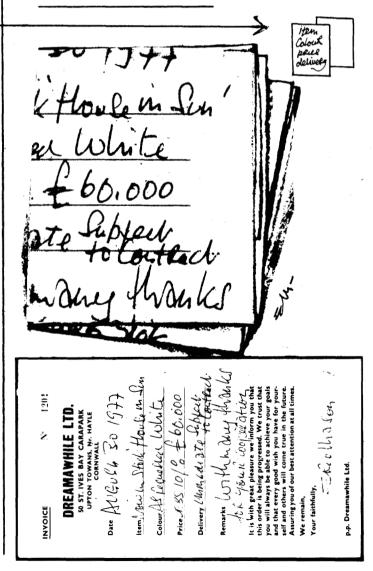

First put the card on which you have written, writing side uppermost, on your left palm, and on top of this card the invoice with the space on which you are going to write uppermost, and on top of all the blank card.

You will also require a 'Boon' writer, which like the blank card has very little to do with the N.C.R. routine. Prior to performing this routine it is necessary to perform some effect which requires that something to be secretly written on the blank card with the Boon. When that effect is concluded this card is scaled out to the audience to verify your prediction, or whatever. You are now ready for N.C.R.

No doubt most readers could manage to work out what happens next without any explanation, but a few pointers gathered during many performances of this effect may prove helpful.

After peforming the previous effect the invoice is exposed (not to the audience) and you write the lady's wishes directly onto the invoice on the appropriate lines. Make certain beforehand that the ink in your ballpoint matches what you have prewritten. Nothing is written when the lady answers the last question, "When would you like it?" You immediately take the card into the right hand, leaving the invoice hidden in the left. As you hold up the card in the right hand to recap the left dives under the coat and loads the invoice into the envelope and comes out with the wallet before you have finished recapping. This is very important. When you ask the lady to step up to receive the invoice assist her to unfold it, recreasing it slightly to aid her reading it, at the same time preventing the liklihood of it being refolded as before and possibly giving a partial clue to the secret.

The subject of this effect is not important — what is important, is that you have not left them with a CARBON copy.

Any person is asked to name the first playing card that comes to mind then write it down on a piece of paper. You crumple it into a ball then ask him to drop it into your drink. Shortly the paper vanishes and the name of the card rises to the top of the glass papier

Available soon

Still the greatest little gimmick in the world

boon

Now Queen size £2.50 US $5.00

Eric Mason, 39 Dennis Park Crescent, Wimbledon, London SW 20 England

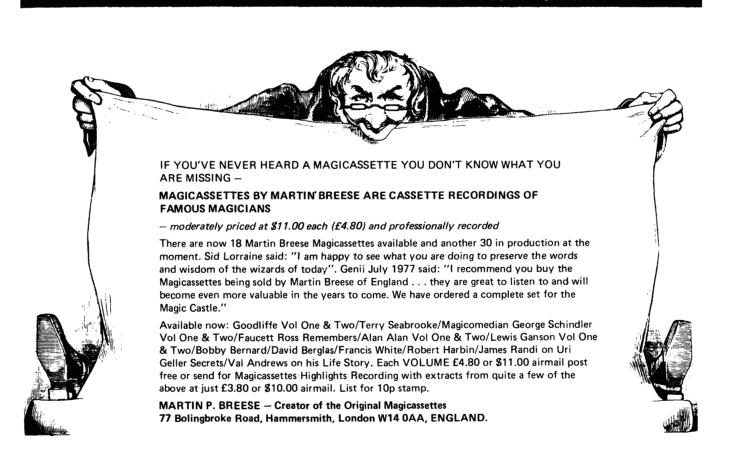

THE INTERNATIONAL MAGAZINE

Now in its 6th year

MAKE SURE EACH ISSUE IS SENT TO YOU REGULARLY. SEND TODAY ONLY £2.50 UK, £3.00 OVERSEAS AND US $6.00 FOR ONE YEAR (SIX) ISSUES SENT POST FREE TO ANYWHERE IN THE WORLD 32 glossy pages in each issue

THE INTERNATIONAL MAGIC STUDIO
(RON MACMILLAN)
89 CLERKENWELL ROAD, HOLBORN
LONDON E.C.1

Here is something for United States readers; the Pageboy is to visit your shores again next year, 1978, that is. Some magical organisation intends to hold their annual shindig at the Waldorf Astoria in New York City during July and the Pageboy has been invited to make his presence felt one way or the other and being in a benevolent mood I have agreed. Prior to this I shall be doing one or two or three (or maybe four, five or six) lectures, sometime, somewhere, but so far nothing has been planned. It seems to me that in recent years I have been to the U.S. so often that so many people must have seen most, or all, of the things that I do reasonably well (if there are such things). So if I do these lectures it means I am going to have to sit down and put my thinking cap on — which isn't too difficult as I do have one or two things up my sleeve that I have not yet shown to magicians. What would happen if someone was to do a lecture that consisted entirely of new things? When I say 'new things' I don't mean a bunch of new inventions, effects or principles. What I mean is supposing someone got up and did a lecture consisting entirely of things that were untested before audiences. What would the be the reaction of the average magic club? Would they think it was sensational? Would they be disappointed? Would they think anything? Probably not. If the lecturer was to do them with complete aplomb ninety-five percent of his audience would accept them as being great and the other five percent couldn't use them anyway, but they would enjoy the entertainment that evening and everyone would go home happy.

But this would not be the point of such a lecture. Would the audience respond with suggestions? Could the lecture become an open forum for debate as to whether the sleights effects or ideas were practical or not — in effect it would not really be a lecture but a presentation of something new. The problem is that to understand something that is new you have to understand the older things and as we all know too well many magic club members are strictly hobbyists who come along to the club once a month or whatever it is and that is their night out. Perhaps on other nights they will indulge in some other practice, should the wife permit, and that is it. They have very little to offer and they are strictly hobbyists. They enjoy the magic club. So what is to be done with new ideas whether they be in the form of invention, presentation or whatever? Are we to rely on the guy who makes his living from magic coming up with his own little presentations, used before paying audiences, experimenting with the timing, methods etc and when it is all finished everyone else sits back, looks at it, smiles, then steals it? It seems to me that the man who is a hobbyist should be able to offer something other to the fraternity rather than just his presence. There are many intelligent people in the magic fraternity who are not involved in showbusiness and know nothing about it, but I am sure that somehow, sometime, somewhere they have a gem of an idea that could be contributed to a meaningful discussion on our great hobby, magic. I ask you again, would a lecture of ideas be a practical proposition? Would magic club members be entertained?

In this particular issue of Pabular all of the tricks have been contributed by Mr Eric Mason. I have known him for upwards of twenty years. He is an artist by profession which means he draws and paints for money. In all these years that I have known him he has been interested in two things (more than two actually, but two as far as we are concerned), one is mentalism the other close-up magic; during all these years I have never been sure if he knows which he prefers, which one he likes better than the other. He has been in a dilemma as to whether he should be a close-up magician or a mentalist. Maybe he should be a close-up mentalist. Are there such things? Yes, I think so. Didn't Dr Jaks do close-up mentalism? I know he did other things but I do recall his close-up mental magic effects.

Being a professional artist and a magic nut means that he does lots of illustration work for magicians and magic magazines, particularly this one, and he has been known to illustrate the odd book. The very odd magic book — for an artist who is interested in magic Eric's output is very high but his expulsion rate is very low.

Goodbye, Patrick Page

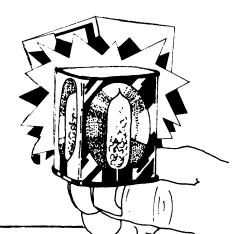

photo-call

EFFECT: Spectator signs a blank piece of photographic pape which is placed into an envelope. Spectator then selects a card and mixes it face down on table with any four other cards. At this point even the spectator does not know the position of his chosen card.

Performer now displays an ordinary Flash Cube. Holding the envelope of photographic paper above the cards, the spectator passes along the line. Suddenly, as if of its own accord, the cube flashes above a card. This card is turned over and seen to be the selected card. Envelope is opened and photographic paper is seen to still bear the spectator's signature, BUT ALSO IT BEARS A BLACK AND WHITE print of THE CHOSEN CARD.

NOTE: Effect may be repeated and a different card be photographed each time. Any deck of cards can be used. No connections, wires or batteries. Completely self contained. Flash Cube may be passed for examination. Very easy to do. No sleights, moves or difficult handling to learn. Generous supply of "Photographic paper" supplied. Sufficient for dozens and dozens of performances.

Gimmick is capable of dozens of applications, both close-up and stage. Many alternative ideas and applications supplied.

Send now for this exciting new effect. Guaranteed to be a sensation every time it is performed. Send today on our Money back Guarantee. You have nothing to lose and everything to gain.

Price £3.00

$6.00

GEOFF MALTBY'S

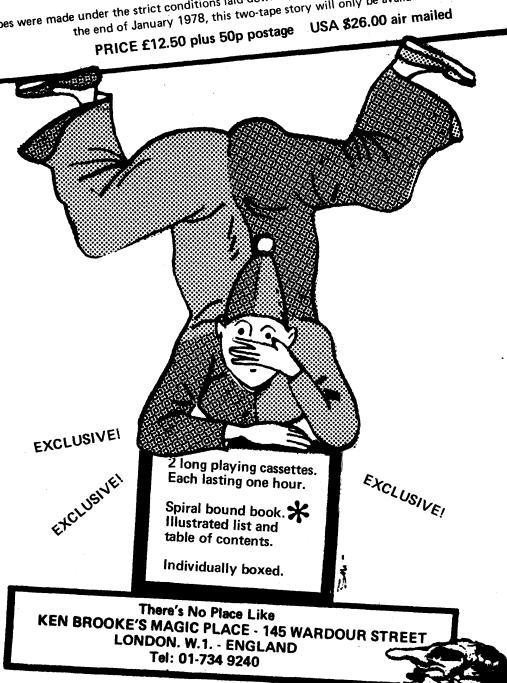

48 EMU ROAD, LONDON S.W.8 ENGLAND 01 724 6257 Manufacturers of Flying Carpet Magic Catalogue - Import Brochure - Latest Lists 75p

* "THE KEN BROOKE STORY" or "IT'S BETTER THAN DIGGING ROADS"

Tells the story of how I became interested in magic to the days I worked for Sydney Lipton & Henry Hall. Gives several

It is a tribute to the men who have given me a living, a very happy one, along this magical road. So I can speak to you personally will you be good enough to put your full name on the order before I take you on —

*The tapes were made under the strict conditions laid down by 'The Sound of Magic' studio. For a while at least, until the end of January 1978, this two-tape story will only be available from us.

Pabular is published after the second week in every month and is printed by Instance Printers, Paddock Wood, Kent, England. Subscriptions may be obtained direct from the publishers, Pabular, P.O. Box 180, London SE12 8JJ or through many magic dealers. Price 60 pence per copy (or US $1.25) surface post included. Air Mail extra (US $0.50) per copy or (US $6.00) per year. Editorial or content copy should be per word (US 10 cents). Dealer enquiries welcomed. Reproductions of old prints and historical magical items by kind permission of Tony Faro.

This is the first of a series of articles which will be devoted to stunts, gags, jokes, bits of business puzzles and simple magical items which knowledgeable and sophisticated magicians tend to disregard completely because they fail to realise the potential value of such material when performed for laymen.

Such items are useful as 'ice breakers' enabling the performer to assess the mood of whatever group he happens to be part of, and to decide whether or not to proceed further. Using this approach when you feel the urge to do a few tricks enables you to retire gracefully should you find the prospective audience unreceptive. Those readers who have not previously used this kind of material on laymen may be surprised to find more entertainment can often be obtained from these simple items than from more pretentious effects.

The material in this series will have more appeal to readers who desire to entertain lay persons than those who perform for other magicians. The latter will probably regard most of the items as 'old hat' but even they must almost certainly be asked to show a trick outside the magic scene on occasions, when a wellknown (to magicians) simple stunt will be more appropriate to the situation than the more sophisticated material in their repertoires. Some of the items may be considered 'kids stuff' but it should be remembered that children are people and like to see tricks furthermore they can be used as 'icebreakers' enabling you to arouse the interest of any adults who may be around and thus providing an opportunity to 'entertain' them also. For the commercially minded the possibilities of paid engagements arising from such a situation are obvious.

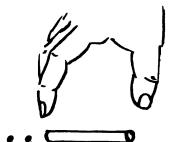

As the title vaguely implies this article deals with objects used by smokers and what better to start with than a favourite of Ken Brooke's who probably knows, and performs more of this type of material than anyone we know. This knowledge and experience together with his approach and attitude towards magic enables him to extract the maximum amount of entertainment from material which the average magician tends to regard as being of little worth. Why this is so could form the basis for another article, so to the effect.

A cigarette is placed onto the table and the tips of the thumb and forefinger are positioned near the ends of the cigarette. Keeping the tips of the two digits on the surface of table move them away from the cigarette, which, after a few failures follows the hand as if drawn by magnetic attraction. The secret is one you all know. You merely blow on the table just in front of the cigarette. Without the proper 'build up' this stunt is hardly worth a mention. It is the business prior to the effect taking place that intrigues the spectators and keeps their attention on the hand and cigarette and away from the performers face.

Place the cigarette on the table, rub the tips of the thumb and forefinger on your coat sleeve as you patter to the effect that you are generating 'magnetism'. Place the hand in the position as shown in the sketch and move it away a few inches - nothing happens. Repeat the rubbing. this time more briskly, and again nothing happens. Remarking that the cause of failure is probably due to the suit not being of the right kind of material so you try on the sleeve of someone else or a nylon stocking if a ladies leg is handy. Finally the 'magnetism' works and the cigarette follows the hand. The tips of the thumb and forefinger of the other hand are next rubbed on the successful material and the cigarette again follows the fingers, this time in the opposite direction — towards the performer, a stooge supplies the motive force.

The foregoing presentation indicates an approach towards performing impromptu close-up magic wherein the spectators are involved in the action. The performer instead of performing 'at' or 'to' his audience performs with them. The mere act of touching someones coat gives that person a feeling of involvement which spreads around the group as tests are being made on the clothes of others as he searches for the right kind of material. Having created a favourable intimate rapport with the audience one is then able to proceed to show further tricks if, and only if, it is evident that they would like you to continue.

It will not be possible to 'build up' all the items appearing in this series to provide the amount of entertainment obtainable from the above, but as it is intended to list all known stunts etc as well as some new ones in order to make the project a valuable reference work for close-up performers who can often utilise even the most insignificant bit of business into something which they will regularly use either as a part of a routine or just to break the ice.

Vic Allen who frequently works the Icebreaker which appeared in Pabular Vol. One, No. Two (one of the few impromptu mental type effects possible with cigarettes) follows with the not unknown bending cigarette. When writing 'I Know' on the packet moisten the lips so that when the cigarette is placed in the mouth a small amount of saliva goes on the wrong end. After showing the prediction correctly put the cigarette in the mouth, right end this time, light it and after taking a couple of puffs hold it with both hands, fingers at the ends, and bend it U shaped. Anyone else trying will assuredly snap the cigarette in two. It is possible to bend a cigarette in similar manner by rolling thin tissue paper around it and twisting the ends.

Vic also sent the following which would effectively bring the routine to a close especially if the cigarette used is a borrowed one. Perform any sleight in which the cigarette is apparently put into the left hand but retained in the right. This latter goes to jacket for woofle dust and comes out with cigarette in closed fist, and holding it over the left hand crumples up the cigarette letting the tobacco trickle out as woofle dust. Finally show the left hand empty and wait for the audience to catch on.

More next issue, still with cigarettes.

fred robinson

CARDS AS WEAPONS by Ricky Jay. A Darien House book published in New York. Price Five Dollars. Some ninety-five large pages 10 by 7 inches with an arresting front cover in colour showing the author in characteristic pose.

The contents prove to be an entertainingly written medley of fact and fantasy. The factual part deals with the basic techniques of throwing, or scaling cards and explains the grips used by Herrmann and Thurston before proceeding to detail his own method which gained him a place in the Guinness Book of Records. The text supplemented by excellent photographs ensures that the reader is fully equipped with the necessary knowledge required to throw cards. Only practice is needed to bring success. The above is explained in the chapter headed "Technique" which also explains how to throw cards when seated plus some succinct observations on the literature of magic and its prostitution by certain performers.

Under the caption 'Advanced Technique' instructions are given for boomeranging cards and two methods for catching the returning card in the pack. The Martin Lewis method of spinning a card and catching it in the pack using one hand only, the long distance spinner of Audley Walsh first described in Tarbell, Finn Jon's double boomerang, the Finger Flick, and throwing out two cards as one catching one in each hand as they return. Finally, juggling three cards using the Cascade and Shower effects, and one line and a photograph on throwing cards with the feet.

The remaining seven chapters include a brief account of the origins of cards and speculation as to when they were first thrown — cards and the martial arts — references to past and present magicians using card scaling in their acts — how to practise and stay fit — self-defence — mechanical means of card throwing — stunts to impress one's friends — personal anecdotes — and an after word.

It is within these non-technical pages one becomes aware that he has been gradually led from fact into outrageous fantasy, which only those completely devoid of a sense of humour will fail to enjoy reading. The many pictures complete a worthwhile contribution to magical literature.

BOOK REVIEWS

JOS BEMA'S LECTURE NOTES available from Jos Bema, Valkstraat 19, Lisse ZH, Holland. Four dollars.

The sixteen pages describe adequately eleven tricks of a varied nature that the author used on his U.S. tour. In addition to 'Splitting the Money' which is described in this issue there is a method for the 'Broken and Restored Wrist-watch' which can be performed surrounded - a sleight for the continuous production of billiards or other balls which is not difficult - a 'Rope & Ring' routine where the ring penetrates a rope and changes colour twice - a novel torn and restored paper — a rising card effect wherein a rabbit in hat card pulls out the chosen card with its feet — a lighter which fails to work changes into a matchbox — a piece of thread magically becomes several lines through a needle's eye - a nail penetrates a playing card card symbols palmed on blocks which move under cover of a silk to simulate a chosen card a very direct method for the card through the handkerchief and finally the Cups & Balls using two cups in a routine which sets itself after performance and dispenses with body loads. Most magicians will find something to interest them.

Shigeo Takagi's ONE CUP ROUTINE.
12 Dollars 50 which includes cup, text and illustrations.

This is not a book but typeset instructions protected with a transparent plastic cover held with an edge binder which allow the pages to be removed, and a separate booklet containing 35 excellent line drawings by Ton Onosaki. The cup is similar in style to the Paul Fox Cup is lathe turned hardwood and polished.

The effect consists of producing a small ball from a wand which vanished and reappears under the wooden cup only to vanish again and reappear in the performers pocket. It then penetrates the cup. Again the ball is placed in the pocket and again appears under the cup. Finally, it is placed in the pocket and to the performers surprise fails to appear under the cup. Holding the cup above the working surface and slapping it, a large ball falls from within the cup. The cup is then shown to be a solid block of wood providing a fine climax.

No exceptional skill is required but it is not for the duffer.

Shigeo Takagi's COIN ASSEMBLY. Four dollars fifty.

Illustrations provided similar to those describing the ONE CUP ROUTINE, with 46 line drawings by the same artist. This version of the classic is done in slow motion. The coins are caused to assemble beneath one card using moves and sequences that are unique.

To sum up. These effects are beautifully routined as would be expected of a recognised master in this particular field of close-up magic. The business of learning the routines has been simplified. Each move in the text being given a number corresponding to that in the relevant sketch. For those having the usual skills common to the performance of this type of effect, these routines are certain to appeal.

Both routines are distributed exclusively Busby Enterprises, 133 - 17th Street, Oakland, California 94612, U.S.A.

Fred Robinson

Tarot 1810

SPLITTING THE MONEY

A bill is borrowed and split in half making two bills. Both are given to the lender, but they fuse together in his hands leaving him with only one bill.

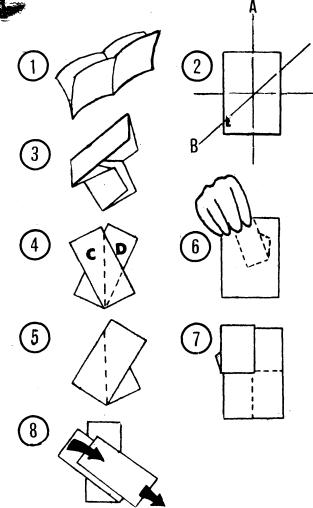

Prepare a bill by folding it in half lengthwise and crease the fold. Open it out and fold in half widthwise again creasing the fold (Fig.1). Open out and fold and crease along line B, (Fig.2), but this time in the opposite direction. The first two folds are indicated by the lines AA in (Fig.2).

The bill can now be folded as shown in (Figs.3 and 4), the wellknown method of folding a bill to make it appear as two. The part indicated by C is now folded over onto D, see (Fig.4), and the bill will now appear as in (Fig.5). Palm the bill in the right hand and you are ready to perform.

Borrow a bill of the same denomination and using both hands smooth it out. Using this action for cover get the prepared bill behind it holding it in position with the right thumb (Fig.6). The bills are now taken into the left hand, its thumb pushing the hidden folded bill to the top left hand corner of the borrowed bill. (Fig.7) gives the performer's view.

The bill is now folded in half by bringing the lower end up and outwards leaving the prepared bill still hidden from the audience behind the borrowed one. This latter is now folded in half again bringing the right side back and around the prepared one enclosing it within. The resultant packet is now taken with the right hand which covers the projecting corner and the bill is split into two, the left hand taking the borrowed one and the right retaining the prepared one.

The following moves should be made smoothly and without hesitation. Place the bill in the left hand beneath the one in the right and in exact alignment with the projecting corner of the latter. The two bills are then taken into the left hand and then returned to the right turning them over in the process, and as they are turned flap C is folded back, see (Fig. 4). The position of bills in the right hand are now as in (Fig.8) and the right thumb pulls back the borrowed bill in the direction of the arrows and fingerpalms it as the lender takes the two? bills. The fingerpalmed bill is spirited away as the lender unfolds the bill and finds to his surprise there is only one.

Note: The above effect is from the lecture notes of Jos Bema and appears here with the permission of the author.

jos bema

It was a sad moment when Sam Sharpe 'phoned the news of Wilf Huggins' death on 3rd November at the age of 84. Pabular readers more than most appreciate how close-up magic derived from performances of the street conjurer who, with the crowd around him, performed his miracles at close range. Furthermore, he had to be commercial or he starved! The literature of magic has had little to say on the artifices of the street performer and so Wilf Huggins' booklet, from which this article takes its title, was a landmark when George Johnson first published it in 1939. Therein could be found many useful tips and a variety of effects with cards, coins, cap and pence, billiard balls, magnetic walking stick, ropes and rings and that classic of the street performer, the guinea pig production from under the hat - progenitor of blocks of ice, bricks and rocks beloved of the close-up worker.

Wilf also authored The C-N-H System published by Harry Leat in 1937. This system combined the Nikola Card System with Charlier's needle-marking, and the small booklet carried in a rear pocket two templates for the marking of poker and whist cards respectively.

However, we venture to believe that Wilf Huggins' principal contribution to the literature of our art will be remembered by posterity for neither of these titles. Rather he will be revered for the delightful little magazine The Midget Magician which he edited, printed and published between 1951 and 1960. It originated because Bert Pratt had once said to Wilf that he would be much intrigued by a magic magazine that he could carry in his vest (i.e. waistcoat) pocket. Wilf thereupon proceeded to translate fantasy into fact. Each issue was limited to 50 copies, numbered and signed by the publisher and complete files of this charming periodical, which carried regular articles by Wilf, Bert Pratt, Stanley

Collins, Dick Ritson, Sam Sharpe, Robert Lund and several others, are now eagerly and despairingly sought by collectors.

We met Wilf Huggins but once, thirteen years ago at the home of Sam and June Sharpe, and the memory of his warm personality and twinkling eyes vividly remain. For those Pabular readers who did not have the pleasure of knowing Wilf, we suggest that if your bookshelf does not already hold Secrets of the Street Conjurer you look out for a copy and thus make posthumous contact with one of the grandest characters in magic, and one who contributed significantly to the art of close-up magic.

eddie dawes

This is a routine in three phases. Each part is more amazing than the preceding part and thus a very strong small packet effect is achieved. In addition the unusual cards used add a dimension of interest to the effect which ordinary cards do not add. The initial effect is an adaption of Bert Allerton's "Two Card Trick" (described at page 22 of The Close-Up Magician). The second phase is an early Marlo oil and water routine which I have welded to the third phase, Peter Kane's "Jazz Aces". In addition I have used ideas from Jerry Mentzer and Roger Divella. My particular contribution has been to work out a sequence of actions which will allow a smooth transition from phase to phase, however this routine is more than a mere collocation of parts: I have worked out a set of moves which allow the Elmsley Count to be used in a very deceptive context.

EFFECT:

Part 1

The performer displays two giant cards. One card is the four of clubs while the other is the four of diamonds. Each card has been cut into four pieces. The cards are laid out on the table as in figure 1.

The performer gathers three of the black pieces in a pile on the left side of his table. Three of the red pieces are similarly gathered and placed on the right side of the table. The situation is now as depicted in Figure 1.1

The black piece is turned face-down on the table. The red piece is placed in the performer's pocket. Instantly the pieces change places.

Part 2

The cards are mixed so that the colours alternate. This is done while the cards are face-up. The colours separate magically: all the blacks are now on top and all the reds are on the bottom.

Part 3

One of the red cards is placed face-up in the centre of the table. A black card is placed face-down next to it. One of the remaining red cards is placed amongst the remaining black cards. A magical pass is made and the black cards are counted: they are all black — the red is not among them. The face-down black card on the table is turned over and is now seen to be a red card. This is repeated twice and at the end all the black pieces are on the left forming the four of clubs and all the red pieces are on the right forming the four of diamonds.

METHOD:

The first part of the routine is an adaption of Bert Allerton's "Two Card Trick". The second and third phases are products of the Elmsley Count.

To prepare: Obtain four jumbo cards (I use Bicycles). The cards must consist of two four of clubs cards and two four of diamonds cards. Take a club card and a diamond card and construct a double-face card. Cut this card into four pieces: the card is cut in half lengthwise, and then each piece is cut in half width wise.

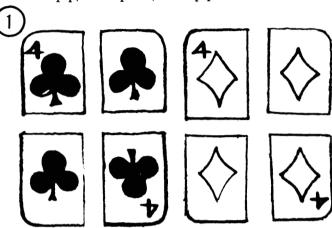

After this operation you will have four rectangular pieces of card as shown in Figure 2. Discard pieces 2, 3 & 4 in Figure 2. These pieces are not used on the routine but will be spares for replacement purposes. If you examine the piece that remains you will find it consists of a four of clubs index piece on one side and a diamond pip piece on the other side.

The two remaining cards (a jumbo 4C and a 4D) are now cut in four pieces each. All pieces should match in size.

Part 2

Part 2 of the routine utilizes a conception of Marlo's which appeared in Kabbala, Volume 3, Number 4. This entire Volume was reprinted by Louis Tannen Inc. in 1976. Jon Racherbaumer refers to the series of moves as the "Criss-Cross Subtley" and gives a full description on page 47 (ibid). For the purposes of this routine the moves proceed as follows:

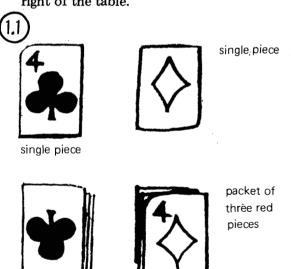

(a) Pick up the black pieces by stacking one piece upon another. The black pieces are held in the left hand face-up. The order from the face of the packet to the back is as follows: Index piece/black pip/index piece/black pip.

(b) Pick up the red pieces by stacking one piece on another. The red pieces are held in the right hand face-up. The order from the face of the packet to the back is as follows: index piece/red pip/index piece/red pip.

For the purposes of clarity diagram 2 sets out the legend for the terms index piece/pip.

- (c) Both hands now simultaneously thumb-off the cards on the face of their respective packets. The black index piece goes on the left of the table and the red index piece goes on the right of the table.
- (d) The hands now cross at the wrist: the right hand thumbs the face-card of its packet (a red pip) onto the black index piece laying on the table (the cards are face-up). Simultaneously the left hand thumbs the face card of its packet (a black pip) onto the red index card laying to the right of the table.

packet of three

JAZZ PIECES/BODY AND SOUL Bob Farmer

- (e) The hands now un-cross. The left hand thumbs the face card of its packet onto the cards on the left. The right hand thumbs the face card of its packet (a red index piece) onto the cards on the right.
- (f) Each hand now holds one card. The left hand holds a black pip piece and the right hand holds a red pip piece. The hands are crossed once again: the right hand places its card on the left hand pile: the left hand places its cards on the right hand pile.

At the conclusion of the above series of actions there will be two piles of cards on the table. On the left will be a packet of cards face-up. The order of this packet from the face to the back will be: red pip/black index/red pip/black index.

On the right there will be a pile of cards face-up. The order from the face to the back of this packet will be: black pip/red index/black pip/red index.

The packets can be spread slightly to display the mixed condition. The left hand packet is now placed on the right packet. The single packet is now picked up and held face-down in the left hand. The order of this packet from the top down (that is, from the back to the face) as as follows: red index/black pip/red index/black pip/black index/red pip.

The top card of the face-down packet is a red index piece and the bottom card is a red pip piece. The top card is now openly moved to the bottom of the packet. The four top cards are now removed without reversing their order and dropped on the left. The remaining cards in the left hand are turned face up and Elmsley counted as four red cards (two red index and two red pips). This packet is placed face up on the table.

The left hand packet is picked up and Elmsley counted face-up to reveal four black cards (two index cards and two black pips).

To check whether the directions have been followed correctly to this point please note the order of the packet left in the hands after the top four cards of the stack have been placed aside. If the packet in the hands is turned face-up the cards will run from the face to the back of the packet as follows: red index/red pip/black index/red pip.

An Elmsley count will reveal a red index, followed by a red pip, followed by a red pip, followed by a red index. If the cards are in the wrong order either a black card will show up or three indexes.

Similarly the black packet just previous to counting will be in the following order: black index/black pip/red index/black pip.

Subsequent to the display of the packets by Elmsley counting there will be a face-up packet on the left and a face-up packet on the right.

The audience believes the packet on the left to consist of all black cards. In fact the order of the cards from the face to the back of the packet is as follows: black index/black pip/black pip/red index.

The audience believes the packet on the right to contain all red cards. In fact the order of the cards from the face to the back of the packet is as follows: red index/red pip/red pip/black index.

The packets are now set for the third part of the routine which is a version of Peter Kane's "Jazz Aces".

Part 3

In Jerry Mentzer's book Card Cavalcade II (Jerry Mentzer 1974) there is an excellent effect entitled "Jazz Aces". The description and variations of the effect are contained at pages 123 to 131. The idea of suing the pieces of a giant card for the routine is set out at page 125, and the idea of combining the effect with an oil and water theme is found at page 131.

At the end of part 2 the performer picks up the right hand red packet and thumbs the face card of the packet (red index piece) onto the centre of the table. This piece is face-up. The three card packet remaining in the hands is turned face-down and the three pieces are counted onto the table: the order of the pieces is thus reversed. This packet will be face-down to the performer's right and will be in the following order from the top down (back to face): red pip/red pip/black index.

The left hand packet is then picked up and held face-down in the left hand. The top card of the packet (red index) is thumbed face-down onto the red index card which is sitting face-up in the middle of the table.

At this point the audience believes a black card has been placed face-down on the red index card.

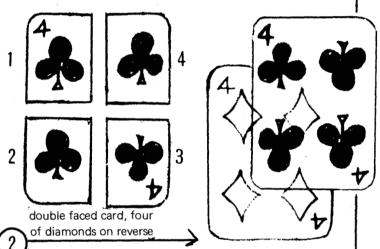

The top card of the right hand pile (red pip) is picked up and placed face-down in the face-down packet held in the left hand. It is placed second from the top.

The left hand packet is now turned face-up and Elmsley counted to display four black cards.

The card on the face-up red index card is turned face-up to reveal a red index card. The two red cards are positioned diagonally opposite each other (so as the effect proceeds the card takes shape).

The cards in the left hand are turned face down and the top card (red pip) is thumbed face-down onto the two red index cards. The audience believes this to be a black card. Now comes a very sneaky part of the routine (this part is also contained in the Roger Divella version of "Jazz Aces": see "A Different Sound" page 129, step 10, in Card Cavalcade II). The right hand picks up the top card of the right hand packet and turns it face-up: this card is a red pip. The left hand turns its three card packet face-up and the red pip is placed third from the top of the face-up packet.

The left hand packet can now be counted as four black cards and when the face-down piece on the table is turned over it is revealed to be a red pip: this is a real convincing part of the routine and seems to occur at a particularly strong point for the purposes of deception.

The left hand packet is held face-down and the top card thumbed onto the three face-up red pieces on the table. This card is a red pip, although the audience believes it to be a black piece.

The last piece on the right which the audience believes to be red (but which is in fact, black) is now added face-down to the left hand packet. This card is placed second from the top of the packet.

Now, instead of counting the cards face-up, turn them over one by one and arrange them on the table to form the complete card. Finally turn over the face-down card to complete the red card. This approach makes for a more dramatic ending.

REFERENCES:

JAZZ ACES: see CARD CAVALCADE TWO at page 123. The original routine by Peter Kane is set out as well as an additional routine by Roger Divella using spot cards. The idea of using pieces of cards is set out at page 131 as is the suggestion the effect could be combined with an oil and water routine. However no routine is set out; as well the diagram at page 125 depicts cards which "leak" to the edge as mentioned above.

OIL AND WATER: see KABBALA, Volume 3, 4 at page 47 (reprinted by Louis Tannen). This is a much longer Oil And Water routine. I have used only the introductory portion.

For a discussion of the Jazz Aces effect and alternate ways in which it can be accomplished, see Phil Goldstein's Linking Ring Parade in Vol.55, 8 (August 1975) at page 55, "Jazz Lamas".

bob farmer

MAGIC H H

THE INTERNATIONAL MAGAZINE
Now in its 6th year

MAKE SURE EACH ISSUE IS SENT TO YOU REGULARLY. SEND TODAY ONLY £2.50 UK, £3.00 OVERSEAS AND US $6.00 FOR ONE YEAR (SIX) ISSUES SENT POST FREE TO ANYWHERE IN THE WORLD 32 glossy pages in each issue

THE INTERNATIONAL MAGIC STUDIO (RON MACMILLAN) 89 CLERKENWELL ROAD, HOLBORN LONDON E.C.1

OK. So what's new? Not a lot. By the time you read this I shall probably be in France somewhere, under the auspices of Mr Philippe Fialho who lives in Nice, the Southend of France. He has arranged for me to do three lectures, one in Nice, one in Marseilles and (I think though noone has told me yet), in Paris. It must be two or three years since I was last in France, and it will be nice to go back there and meet one or two old friends. Gaeton Bloom, Alain Noel, hold on I am trying to think of someone else who has a beautiful wife. . . .yes I remember and I had better not say otherwise they will punch me on the nose when I get of the plane. Alain Noel I can handle because he is fat and slow and has flat feet. Gaeton Bloom I can handle because he is fat and slow and has a flat head. . . but if you take someone like Danny Ray who is tall strong strong and muscular -I think he is beautiful and I won't mention his wife, but it will be nice to meet them again and perhaps make a few new friends.

The Page boy speaks....

Well that takes care of my travels for the next few weeks so where do we go from there? At the moment there is a new show in London called 'The Magic Man' starring John Wade I had intended to go and see this yesterday which was right after the opening night but I sat down in an armchair and fell fast asleep. So it will have to wait for a week or two until I have another night off. You see I'm busy. I perform magic in the evenings for money, and there is no better reason for a Scotsman to do anything than for money. Apart from the show, the next big item for English, or at least London's magic buffs, has been Ron Macmillan's International Day of Magic. I can remember a few years back when Ron first started his 'Day of Magic', holding it in the back room of a pub in the Clerkenwell area of London, and since those days it has blossomed out into what really amounts to a one day magic convention, complete with dealers, close acts, lectures and a gala show, in the evening which is fast becoming second to none anywhere in the world. How Ron manages to convince some of the people to come to London for one day to perform one show I cannot imagine. But he does, and he does it very very successfully. In fact it has got to such a stage now that one or two well known performers actually beg him to allow them to appear on his shows now which makes a change from the old days when he had a struggle persuading anyone to do anything at all. Mind you there have been one or two who have appeared there, the beggars I mean, who just should never have been there so be careful Ron and keep up that very high standard.

In the past years he has had well known acts like the Morettis - oh why should I bother to name them all as probably most of you know them by now. This year he has had people like Fred Kaps, Dinardi, Milbourne Christopher, all coming from abroad and there are others, many many others. For the readers of this magazine of course the main event will have been the close up during the afternoon with some of the really great performers. And of course particularly this year anyway, Albert Goshman from the United States. I have been spending a little time with Albert during the last couple of days and although I have known him for many years he just doesn't change and neither does his act. But this is exactly how it should be. The only way to polish anything is to keep rubbing it, and Albert's act is just about as polished as they come. He must do a lot of rubbing.

Surprise, surprise, Patrick Page, The Pageboy, that's me, has been elected to the Fellowship of the Flying Sorcerors. Wow. The Godfather of this movement is one Goodliffe, Publisher of that well known weekly magic magazine 'Abracadabra' I have a letter in front of me now and see that there are no officers, no meetings, and no subscriptions. Goodliffe is the acting Honorary Secretary and if one suggests a name to him he submits it to two of the founder members and if they approve you're in. So there. Follow that. The fact that there are no meetings or comittees etc.etc. only means one thing to me. I cannot be expelled. In case you do not know the Flying Sorcerors is an organisation for which membership qualification is that one must have been invited to fly the Atlantic in either direction, to entertain with Magic. As this is something I have done several times I therefore qualify for membership.

One question Goodliffe: what took you so long?

Goodbye Patrick Page A must for every connoisseur of fine magic books

Available from the Author and Publisher

ANDREW GALLOWAY

14 Bellevue Crescent,
AYR,
SCOTLAND.

A Book that is destined to become a Collector's Item

The Ramsay Classics

ANDREW GALLOWAY

The Collected Works of JOHN RAMSAY With an Introduction by DAI VERNON

For the first time everything that Ramsay published in his long and illustrious career is now available in one volume.

MASTER ROUTINES like—THE CUPS AND BALLS; THE CYLINDER AND COINS; THE TRIPLE RESTORATION; THE FOUR LITTLE BEANS.

Also

RAMSAY ON THIMBLES — COINS — THE THUMB TIP THE WATCH WINDER

All re-written and re-lilustrated

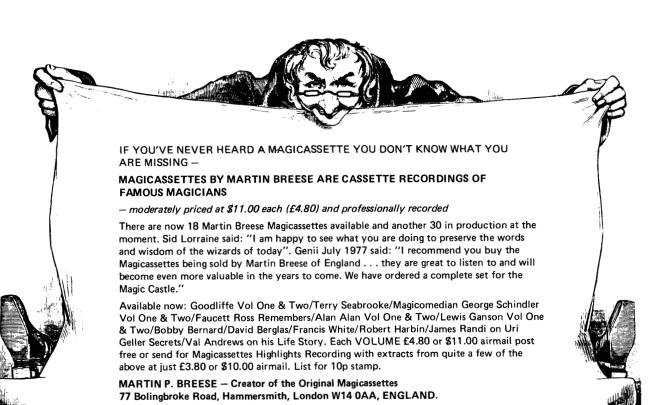

PLUS

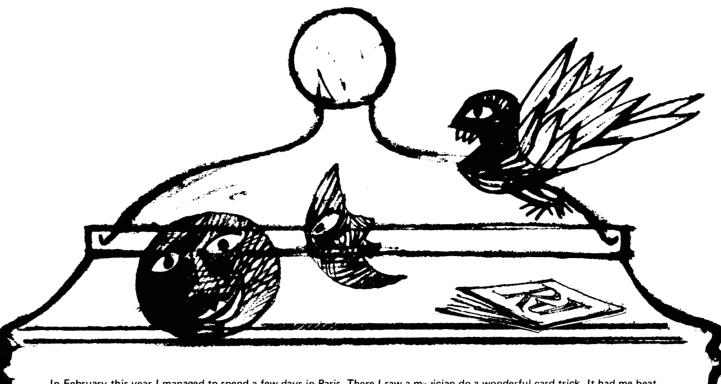

RAMSAY ON MISDIRECTION AND RAMSAY THE ARTIST

Beautifully printed on art paper. 112 large $8'' \times 10''$ pages, with almost 300 superb line drawings, and 8 pages of photographs, most of them published for the first time.

Cloth bound with gold titled spine and attractive two-coloured illustrated dust jacket. Limited number of de-luxe Leather Bound copies available.

£9.50 U.K., £10 Europe, $25 U.S. Airmail. Price includes post and package.

In February this year I managed to spend a few days in Paris. There I saw a magician do a wonderful card trick. It had me beat completely. Since that time I have not been well and had to take things a bit easy.

Three weeks ago the magician, Gaetan Bloom from Paris, came here and we've had a wonderful time. It is always a pleasure to get something new, something interesting and above all ENTERTAINING. Bloom told me I could have that trick, the one he showed me in Paris, THE ONE THAT HAD ME COMPLETELY BAFFLED.

Here it is then. Not got a name for it yet, that does not matter. It is GAETAN BLOOM'S TRICK. It's a close-up trick and is not suitable for stage. But if you are looking for SOMETHING OF HIGH ENTERTAINMENT VALUE — DONE UNDER THE PERFECT EXCUSE — TRY THIS ONE — IT IS SOLD ON A MONEY BACK GUARANTEE TO THOSE KNOWN TO US.

ENGLAND ONLY £3.25. EUROPE £3.50. U.S.A. $10.00 Air Mailed.

DO YOU REALISE WHAT THIS MEANS?

Some weeks ago we bought the stock of ROY JOHNSON'S book 'LECTURE EXTRA'. We have been selling it to a number of callers during that time. We advertised it, not many sent for it. WE AGAIN ADVERTISE IT HERE.

In all, some seven tricks are described. Each is a brilliant bit of Roy's magic. Each is simple and to the point. One thing is for sure, a brilliant trick called CREDIT TRANSFER, which is simple to make, simple in execution. IT HAS A MIRACLE FINISH THAT EVEN YOU WON'T BELIEVE... CAN I TEMPT YOU?... Yes, it is a booklet and to those known to us... IT IS ON A MONEY BACK GUARANTEE.

ENGLAND £1.75. EUROPE £2.00. U.S.A. $5.00 AIR MAILED

Lists cost 75p, U.S.A. $2.00 or $3.00 cheque. We do not send lists out for free. Postage and the printing of them cost money. No money, no stamp, no reply.

Pabular is published after the second week in every month and is printed by Instance Printers, Paddock Wood, Kent, England. Subscriptions may be obtained direct from the publishers, Pabular, P.O. Box 180, London SE12 8JJ or through many magic dealers. Price 60 pence per copy (or US $1.25) surface post included. Air Mail extra (US $0.50) per copy or (US $6.00) per year. Editorial or content copy should be sent to Fred Robinson, 1 Crescent Court, 24 Crescent Road, New Barnet, Herts, England. Advertising rates sent on request — smalls 3 pence per word (US 10 cents). Dealer enquiries welcomed. Reproductions of old prints and historical magical items by kind permission of Tony Faro.

THE OIL AND WATER OF TAMARIX Described by Fred Robinson

The Oil and Water theme is undoubtedly a good one. A simple plot easily understood by audiences, not technically difficult to perform has made it a popular item with cardmen. Inevitably this has resulted in numerous variations of methods being devised, many of which have appeared in print, and so providing valuable study material for those wishing to present this effect.

Finding a method which fulfils ones own requirements is only the first step. There still remains the more important one, an entertaining presentation to lift it out of the puzzle class into an effect having a strong magical impact.

Those who have seen Juan Tamarix perform this effect will have seen it presented in a manner which creates the impression that one has seen something truly magical. On reading the explanation they will probably be surprised to find nothing particularly new in the methods used and therefore conclude that the originator's success with this particular effect is due to his particular style of performance which is lively and slightly more theatrical than that of the average performer. This is obviously true to some extent and applies to any trick with which a performer is successful, but underlying the particular style of Tamarix there is the real secret which enables him to make the Oil and Water seem to be really magical. More regarding this after the explanation.

The effect is performed standing and letters on sketch (1) refer to the positions in which the cards are placed during the routine as indicated in the text.

Run through the pack and seek out any four red spot cards of differing values from six to ten inclusive and not all of one suit. These should be dropped singly, face up onto the table to the right of centre at position 'C' narrow ends towards the audience.

Assuming that the values chosen are 6, 7, 9 and 10 run through the pack until a red eight appears. Cut the pack bringing it to the face.

Next find four black spot cards, again not all of one suit and from six to ten inclusive placing one on top of the red eight at the face of the pack and drop the other three one at a time face up onto the table at 'A'. Take a break with the left little finger tip below the second card — the red eight as you square up the pack. Should one of the required black spot cards be immediately to the right of the red eight by cutting the pack and bringing this black spot to the face a move will be eliminated.

Keeping the pack in the left hand still holding the break call attention to the four? black and four red cards apparently unaware that there are only three black cards. At least one spectator will usually call your attention to the discrepancy, if not you notice? it yourself. In either case you apologise and with the right thumb at the inner end and fingers at the outer take the two cards above the break from the top of the pack and drop them as one on top of the black pile as the left hand puts the pack on the table at position 'X'.

Should the two cards separate as they fall onto the pile the right hand remains over — not on — the pile providing cover until the left hand having placed the pack on the table comes back and squares up the four cards. Should the two cards fall perfectly square both hands should be brought completely away from the cards for a few seconds allowing the spectators time to see all is fair before squaring up the two piles, which must be done without removing the cards from the table, the right hand squaring the red cards using the tips of the thumb and fingers only, as the left hand does likewise with the black cards.

With the left hand pick up the face up black cards by the edges using the tips of the thumb and fingers. The hand is now turned palm up and the fingers opened wide allowing the cards to fall face down onto the palm (2). Next pick up the red cards with the right hand and drop them from a distance of three or four inches face down on top of the four? black ones in the left hand, still keeping it flat with the fingers spread apart.

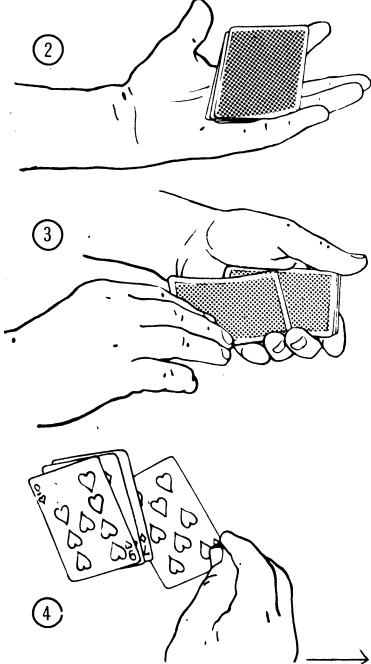

The right hand now takes the top card from the left hand by pulling it back towards you with the fingers (3). Show it to be a red one and drop it face up onto the table at 'C'. Repeat the same procedure with the next two red cards. Take the fourth red card and show its face but instead of dropping it on top of the others push it under the right side of these three cards (4) scooping them up without allowing the fingers to come into contact with them. Cause the three cards to 'bounce' a little on the supporting card, which can best be described by likening it to the action used when bouncing a ball on a racquet. Do not make it into a juggling feat, just a couple of slight up and down movements and then let all four cards drop back on position 'C'.

As each card is removed from the left hand it will be necessary to close the fingers momentarily, but as soon as the card is clear the hand should be opened out flat with fingers apart.

 $\begin{bmatrix} x & b \\ a & c \end{bmatrix}$ performer

Take the next three black cards one at a time and drop them face up in position 'A'. Do not open the fingers when taking the third one (it being necessary to keep the last two cards squared as one card). Take these last two cards and keep them squared up as one. Use this double card to scoop up the three from 'A' bouncing them a couple of times duplicating the procedure used with the red cards, but this time instead of dropping the cards onto the table they are tossed onto the open left palm again with the fingers of this hand spread open. Should the red card show when the cards fall onto the hand close the fingers immediately squaring the cards, but should it remain hidden allow the cards to remain for a moment before squaring them using only the left hand.

The packet of cards in the left hand, which the spectators believe to consist of four black cards, being unaware of the extra red at the bottom, is now positioned with the outer phalanx of the second finger at the outer right corner of the packet and the inner left corner in contact with the palm (5). It is now possible to move the third and fourth fingers away leaving the cards held between second finger and palm, enabling the right fingers to pull out the bottom card with ease and without fumbling.

The cards are now formed into a single heap of alternating red and black cards as follows.

Pick up the top red card with the right hand, thumb going on face and the fingers underneath the right edge and turning it back to spectators places it face down at 'B' long side parallel with the far edge of the table. During this action the left hand has moved bringing the cards it is holding from a position which the spectators could see the face of the top card to one in which they see only the edges of the cards (6). This angle makes it possible for the right fingers to pull out the bottom card in a perfectly natural manner and place it face down on top of the red card at 'B' without showing its face which the audience believe to be black, is actually a red spot.

The right hand now takes the second red card and places it face down on top of the two cards at 'B'. Meanwhile the left hand has turned so that the face of the black spot at the top of its packet can be seen by the audience. The right hand now pulls out the bottom card which the spectators can see is a black spot, and places it face down on the cards at 'B'.

As the third red card is taken and placed on 'B' the left thumb pushes the top card of its packet fractionally to left as in (7). This leaves the two black cards beneath it in alignment. These two cards are taken with the right hand and placed as one on 'B' by first bringing their long side edge into contact with the top card of that heap let the two cards fall as one without separating.

The remaining red card is picked up with the right hand and held above the cards at 'B' for a moment whilst attention is called to the remaining black card by moving the left hand and looking at the card and remarking, "This is a very important card." The red card is now allowed to fall on the heap and the left hand held palm down some twelve inches above the heap releases its black to complete the pile which the spectators believe to consist of eight alternating black and red cards. At no time when forming the heap should any reference be made regarding the colour of any particular card.

Remarking that the cards are now "like this" interlace the tips of the fingers as shown in (8). Note the thumbs are held down behind the fingers and not visible to the spectators.

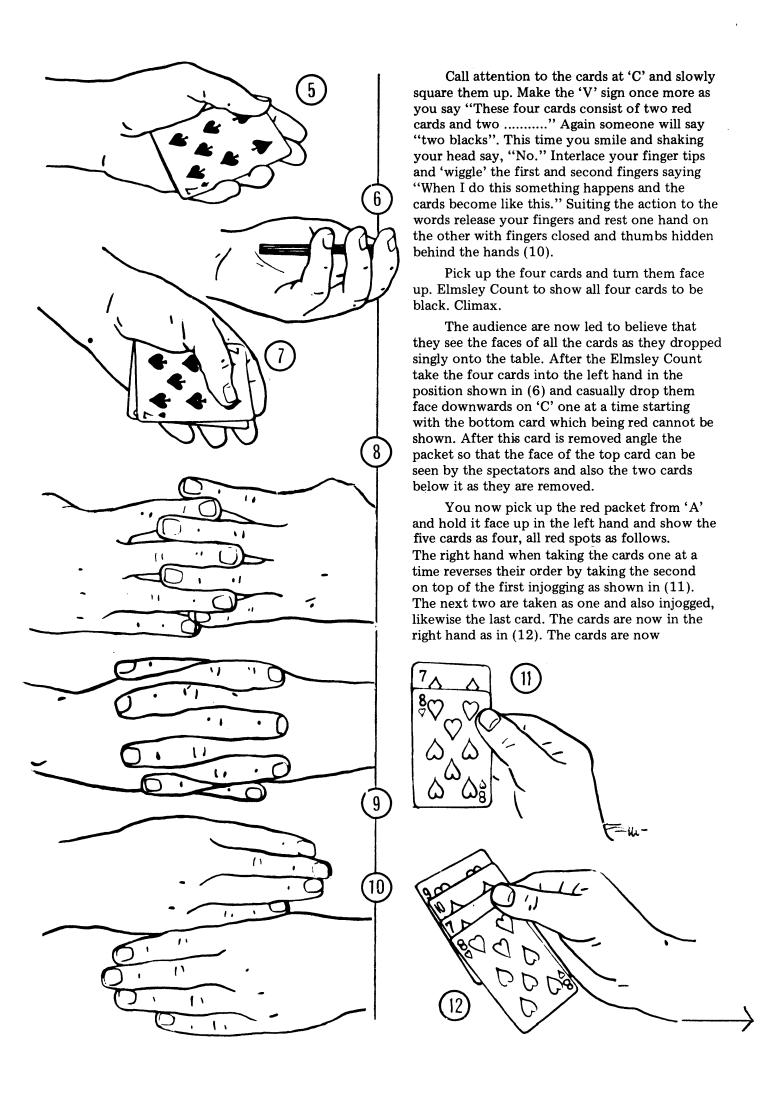

Part the fingers and say "I will square up the cards." Focus your whole attention on the cards as both hands move slowly, very slowly towards the cards, and using only the tips of the thumbs and fingers slowly and meticulously square up the cards making the action seem to be of the greatest possible importance.

Once again interlace the fingers, this time deeply as (9) saying "The cards are now really squared like this, really and truly squared." Pull the hands slightly apart so only the finger tips are interlaced and 'wiggle' the first and second fingers of both hands referring to them as representing the top four cards.

Completely separate the hands and hold up the right extending the first and second fingers (the 'V' sign) saying "In the top four cards there are two red and two" Look at the spectators in a questioning manner and someone is certain to reply "black". Using this magical ploy is far more convincing than any manipulation could possibly be, to 'prove' that the four top cards are two red and two blacks.

Next pick up the cards and hold them in the normal dealing position in the left hand. Say "I am going to take the four cards from the top of the pack — and I really mean from the top.' Push the top card over the side of the packet with the left thumb and the right in taking it snaps it up against the tip of the left thumb as you say "Really from the top." The next three cards are taken in the same way each going under the previous one keeping them in the original order, snapping and repeating "Really from the top." No attempt should be made either as they are being taken or before dropping them on the table at 'C' to square the cards. Such an action would not be in keeping with the presentation of the effect as a whole and may look a little suspicious at a time when you are stressing the fairness of every movement.

The right hand now takes the remaining cards in the same way retaining the original order but only really 'snapping' the first three. The last card being two taken as one the snapping is more of a gesture. Drop the cards on the table at 'A' and square. It is important to appreciate the difference in emphasis between taking the top four cards which is done very slowly and the bottom four/five which should be taken more casually and at a quicker tempo.

transferred to the left hand and held as in (13). Without assistance from the right hand the left squares them by pushing with the index finger on the end of outer card until it is square with the card above it, and continues to push these two until they are square with the double. The outer end of the packet is now tilted allowing the top cards to slide square with the others.

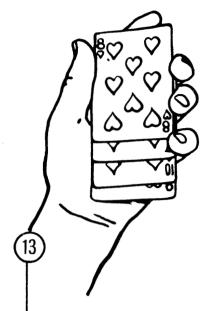

Remarking that they might like to see it again show the red cards once more using the Ascanio Spread, which hides the black card, and in closing the spread move the double card bringing the black card to the fourth position from the top of the face up packet, and hold the packet as before between the second finger tip and palm (6).

Commence to make the alternating pile by taking the top card from 'C'. This time the cards from this heap are picked up by placing the fingers on the back of the card and the thumb beneath. Show it to be black and drop it face down at 'B' long side parallel to edge of table. Right hand pulls out the bottom card from left hand packet, not allowing its face to be seen at this stage hold it over the card at 'B' say, "This card goes on top — and when I say on top — I really mean on top — not here — here — or here." Coinciding with each time you say 'here' a corner of the red card is pushed under the edge of the face down black one for a fraction of an inch — first under the near side long edge — then under each end, and without pause after the last 'here' bring the card up over the black card again, show it to be a red one and place face down on top of the other as you say "Really on top." A second card is taken from 'C', shown and placed on 'B'

The right hand now pulls out the bottom card of the left hand red packet. This card being a black one cannot be shown so the packet is held edge on to the audience as it is being removed. As the card is being placed face down on the two at 'B' say "Really on top SURE." By the intonation in your voice indicate that you expect an answer and someone to agree. This is an important piece of misdirection — the spectators minds being occupied as they watch to make sure that the card does really go on top, fail to realise that the face of the card has not been shown.

Next, take another black card from 'C', show its face, and drop it face down on 'B' saying again "Really on top." During the above action the left thumb has pushed the face card of its packet to the left, see (7) and relevant text.

The right hand pulls out the two bottom cards of the left hand packet as one, show the face and place it on the others at 'B', as you say "Really on top."

Right hand now picks up the last card from 'C', a red one which the spectators believe to be black and therefore cannot be shown. As the right hand comes away from the table call attention to the card in the left hand by looking at it and saying "This card is very important." This is emphasised by making a gesture towards the spectators with the right hand, holding the card at an angle which almost, but not quite, allows the spectators to see its face. This casual, apparently careless, gesture is part of a piece of calculated misdirection. The minds of the onlookers have been conditioned into watching the cards being placed down in alternating colours without ever hearing the words 'red' or 'black'. They have been directed to making sure that each succeeding card goes on top of the preceding one thus causing them to pay a little less regard to the colour. Furthermore, having already seen three black cards removed from a heap of four previously shown to be all black it will not occur to them that the card held so carelessly in the right hand is other than black. Drop this card from the right onto pile and then hold the card in the left hand face down about a foot above the table and drop it on top of pile.

Remarking that the cards are now like this (interlace fingers as in (8) and not like this (as in (9). Disengage the fingers and move the hands towards the packet as though to square it, stopping within a few inches of it and slap the back of the left hand with the right suggesting that it is misbehaving by attempting to touch the cards.

Moving the hands completely away say, "If I touch the cards you will think I do something, So perhaps you will help me." The invitation is extended to a nearby spectator or your right. He is requested to square up the cards, slowly—very slowly as you mime how it should be done using only the tips of the thumbs and forefingers.

This piece of business if extremely important psychologically and should not be hurried. It is part of the build-up which will cause the spectators to believe when reflecting later that the assisting spectator actually mixed the cards. Therefore express dissatisfaction at the spectators first attempt saying "I mean PERFECTLY square."

When the squaring has been completed to your satisfaction say to the spectator "You did it yourself — Yes?" Next interlace your fingers tightly (9) saying "The cards are now like this—perfectly square." As you disengage the fingers to bring them into position shown in (10) you appear to have some difficulty in releasing the right little finger — just a little byplay. Saying "I will now show you the top four cards" move your left hand towards the cards and as it nears the cards repeat the hand slapping business and remark "No, it is better I do not touch the cards because you mixed and squared the cards -YOURSELF." The words 'you mixed' are not enunciated too clearly and 'squared the cards - yourself' spoken loud and clearly and is designed to misdirect the spectators into thinking that the assistant did more than just square the cards.

You now move away three paces to the left of the assistant leaving him the centre of attraction (more build-up). Ask him to turn over the top card using only one hand. It is important to specify 'one hand' to prevent him from picking up the pack which would spoil the approach to the climax. As he turns the card "A red one?" you query. Request him to let the spectators see its face and place it face up onto the table.

You now say "Please turn over the next - a black one." He will deny that it is a black one. It is at this point that the build-up towards the climax accelerates. Your attitude and expression is one of disbelief and bewilderment as you move two paces forward to look more closely at the card. Ask him to turn over the next card — a red one, "and the last one" you say. Immediately its face is seen to be red grasp the hand still holding the card between both your own to congratulate him saying "wonderful, wonderful, etc." Turn your face towards the audience requesting "Applause for the gentleman please — loud applause!" This 'business' having taken your assistant's attention away from the remaining cards it is safe to release his hand and join in the applause. As it dies down usher him gently in the direction of his seat.

That is, of course the climax of the routine. Pick up the remaining four cards and let the audience see that they are the four black ones as you hold them face up in the left hand and pull out the first three singly from the bottom of the packet and drop them face up onto the four red spots — finally drop the last two as one. Although the spectators see the faces of the cards it should appear that you are just reassuring yourself.

A promise was made to say something about the real secret but if you have studied closely what has been written in the explanation there is little more to add — the effect is made magical by the use of misdirection using both speech and action and can be applied by anyone regardless of their style of presentation.

It has been left to the reader to fill in the patter, only the 'lines' which are an integral part of the presentation have been given.

WHERE THERE'S SMOKE Fred Robinson

Some variations on the 'magnetised' cigarette theme described in the October issue. It is possible to cause the cigarette to return without the help of a stooge. After blowing it away from you - not too far - leave the hand close to the cigarette as depicted in cover sketch last month, and by directing the air current onto the hand it will get behind the cigarette and propel it back. The hand should follow it giving the effect of the hand repelling it. This effect can be achieved in yet another way - not entirely impromptu - but worth the little trouble if you enjoy fooling fellow magicians. Fix a plate-lifter up your sleeve with the ball part under your forearm and pass the free end of the tube - you will only need a short piece under your watch strap. Just squeeze the ball between your forearm and the table surface to provide the necessary current of air. By replacing the flexible tube usually provided with this gimmick, with a metal tube about six inches long, it will be easier to control, set up and get ready for action. To set up push it up the sleeve, ball end first and bring the free end of the tube under the watch strap with about one inch protruding. When required for use grasp this free end — with fingers belonging to the other hand, it's easier — and pull it into the palm.

To get the most out of this method it is best to wait until the interest — which you have started — begins to wane. Then do it — ONCE only. Magicians will be puzzled at the speed with which the cigarette moves and to repeat it would increase the chances of being detected. So do it once only and leave them guessing — there's always another day.

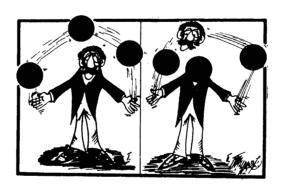

Another variation is to blow down onto the cigarette from above, and by blowing slightly to the right of the cigarette it will move to the left, and vice versa.

Now for something entirely different, an amusing stunt from Jan Heins. Take out a match and place it in your mouth. Remove a cigarette from its packet and strike it - as you would a match on the side of the packet. A flame appears on the end of it from which you light your match and smoke as you would a cigarette.

The preparation, which only takes a moment or two is quite simple. Cut a cigarette paper in half crosswise, and using one half make a miniature cigarette about the size of a match, and into one end push a small piece of liquorice cigarette paper (or similar coloured paper) to represent the head of the match, and put it in the box. On the cigarette packet stick the striking surface from the matchbox in the appropriate place and push a match into one end of a cigarette and replace in the packet.

An idea to give this stunt a magical finish. As the group watch you smoking the match — (which they will) secretly obtain the pull you have previously fixed, and direct attention to the real cigarette, cause it to vanish, meanwhile 'tongue' the miniature which leaves you clean. Continue by taking a cigarette and lighting up in the normal way.

Finally, for this month a couple of stunts which are included mainly to make the list as complete as possible. A needle pushed down a cigarette enables it to be smoked through without any ash falling off. Can be interesting if you lean over something liable to be damaged by falling ash when there is about an inch or so of ash on the end. Also slightly sadistic — when offering to light someone's cigarette let the lighter close on the end trapping it. Not only does he lose the cigarette but very often some skin from his lip, when you take the lighter away.

tom crave

PYRAMID VARIATION

I really liked the Pyramid Aces routine in the August 1977 issue of Pabular by Jerry Christensen. In working it out however, I find that the Ascanio Spread does not look like a pyramid even though the patter refers to it as such. I devised the following handling which makes the "Pyramid Patter" more logical.

Follow the Christensen handling up to and including the point where the aces are to be stripped out. The ace whose suit matches the selected card is taken last, so it is the rearmost ace. The selected card will be added to the rear of this ace. Now follow the JC moves of dropping the aces to the table. This leaves you with the selected card 2nd from the face. Now instead of turning the packet over, you call out the suit of the face ace. The right hand goes to the outer edge of the packet and withdraws the lowermost ace calling its suit, and places it to the face of the packet face up and then repeats this two more times. This leaves you with (reading from the face of the packet) three aces, the ace matching the selection and finally at the rear is the selection. Now you patter about the power of the Pyramid. The talon on the table is cut into three packets and placed as shown in A, B, and C.

The right hand lifts the face ace off the packet and holding it with thumb on top and index finger below, it lays the left edge of the card on the table lined up with and at the right edge of A. The thumb is released and the index finger flips the card over onto A. Immediately the right thumb and fingers pick this card off face down and place it at D.

The procedure is repeated twice more, placing the aces at E and F. You are now left with a double card. The ace visible to the audience and the selection beneath. The flip over move is repeated and the right thumb and fingers pick off the top face down card (the selection) and places it at G. You have now constructed a Pyramid. You patter about the power of a Pyramid and how the power starts at the top and works its way to the bottom. As this is said, you pick up the packet at A and get a break under the top card and perform the Braue reversal. The packet at B is put below this packet, and C is put on top. Now have the spectator name his selected card. Show aces at D, E and F. Snap the card at G and reveal it to have changed to the selection. Now ribbon spread the talon face down revealing the remaining ace face up in the deck. If you merely wish to have the ace change to the selection, you eliminate the Braue reversal.

Fred Robinson

The RAMSAY CLASSICS by Andrew Galloway

Available from the author and publisher Andrew Galloway, 14 Bellevue Avenue, AYR, Scotland. £9.50 UK, £10 Europe, 25 Dollars US Airmail.

In the preface the author informs us that the purpose of the book is not only to bring all the published material of John Ramsay within the covers of one book, but to stand as a tribute to his memory in the year that marks the centenary of his birth.

Present day lovers of close-up magic, and especially those who make a serious study of the methods used by masters in this particular field of magic are fortunate indeed that Andrew Galloway should pay tribute to his mentor in this manner.

Those who were not priviledged to see John Ramsay perform now have available a precise explanation of the methods used to obtain the effects with which this master of magicians' magic baffled his contemporaries for so many years. Furthermore these are described with commendable clarity by the only person ever to perform these tricks with the skill and deceptiveness approaching that of his tutor. Some 300 excellent illustrations by F. Gordon Bruce supplementing the text minimise the time required to obtain an understanding of the working of each effect.

Whilst the descriptions of the routines, in which almost every sleight and move is accompanied with a sketch leaves nothing to be desired regarding the understanding of the necessary technical requirements, there is far more that requires to be understood before the magic of Ramsay, of which technical skill was only a part, can be really appreciated.

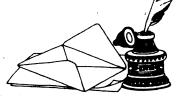

It was for information other than the mere technical 'know how' of the tricks that I first sought when opening the book — what had the author to say about the real secret of John Ramsay. It was there in the chapter headed 'Ramsay on Misdirection'. Having already explained these principles in 'The Ramsay Legend', it was, as expected a restatement. There were however, a few additional words, and I quote 'and of this book (The Ramsay Legend) Dai Vernon said, "Only six people in the world would really appreciate it". I would go as far as to say that probably even less tried out the principles explained'. End of quote.

I believe this to be substantially true, and one reason may be that many had difficulty in applying these principles to a particular trick, and needed a specific detailed example in order to grasp the essentials of this all-important facility.

This is provided for in chapter 6 'On Thimbles' with a seemingly simple vanish of a thimble under the heading 'A lesson in misdirection'. If the reader MASTERS this one effect — which is not technically difficult — he will have progressed to a point enabling him, not only to understand, but to get a 'feeling' of what the real secret of what the magic of Ramsay is all about. The successful presentation of this one effect depends almost entirely on misdirection and the explanation deals with this in detail, and is undoubtedly the most valuable item in a book of fine close-up magic.

Containing the finest creations of a man regarded as the greatest close-up magician of his era the book requires no recommendation either from me, or anyone else. For true lovers of close-up magic all that is really necessary to know is that it is now available.

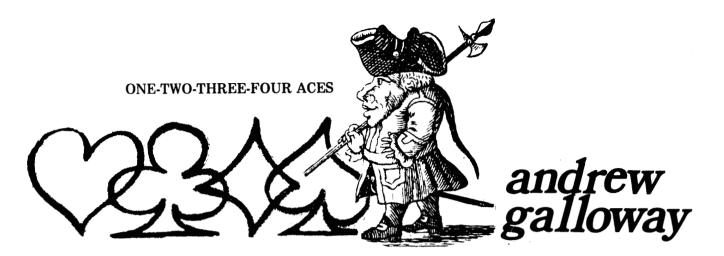

OPEN LETTER TO PABULAR

In Frank Garcia's new book of "Wild Card" tricks my name is mentioned both in the table of contents and the text.

I have never been asked for, nor have I granted permission for the use of my name. In fact I have never performed or even seen the effect with which my name is linked.

I wish to categorically state that I in no way condone these actions and do not in any way want my name associated with a man whose ethics, I feel, are below those necessary for the advancement of the Art of Magic.

Sincerely Ricky Jay

This version of Larry Jenning's NUMERICAL ACES is a simplified one devised to bring the handling within my own capabilities. The effect remains the same.

Look through the pack for the Four of Diamonds and cut the pack immediately to the left of it bringing it to the bottom of the face up pack. Next locate the Three of Spades and slip it below the Four of Diamonds. Repeat with the Two of Hearts and then the four Aces which may be in any order.

Holding the pack face down in the left hand turn the top four cards face up revealing them to be the Aces. Openly arrange them in the following order — Diamonds, Spades, Hearts, Clubs, the Ace of Diamonds being the top card of the packet of four face up cards.

Square up the Aces, and in so doing get a left little finger break below the top eight cards i.e. four face up Aces and the four face down cards immediately beneath them. Pick up the cards above the break with the right hand, thumb at the inner end and the fingers at the outer end. With the left thumb pull the face up Ace of Diamonds onto the top of the remainder of the pack in the left hand leaving it jogged half way over the right hand side. Name this Ace, and then with the left edge of the right hand packet flip it over face down on top of the pack. Repeat these moves with the next two Aces naming them as you do so, and then put the Ace of Clubs with the four face down cards on top of the pack holding them squared as one card naming it as you do and then turn it face down. It is important that each Ace is named before turning it face down as you want to impress their order on the audience.

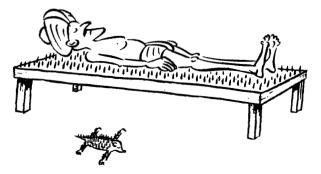

You now inform the audience that if the Aces were dealt in a row from left to right they would be in reverse order, namely — Clubs, Hearts, Spades and Diamonds. This you proceed to do and ask, "Would it make it easier if I named them one, two, three and four?" Without waiting for an answer turn the cards face up starting with the one on the extreme left to reveal the Ace of Clubs, Two of Hearts, Three of Spades and the Four of Diamonds.

Remarking that you intended to show some magic with the four Aces as you give the pack any false shuffle which retains the top four cards and continue by pointing to the Two of Hearts saying, "This is where the Ace of Hearts should have been." Pull it towards you saying, "As it is a two we will count to the second card in the pack." Take the top card of the pack counting "One" and as you count "Two" flip the next card face up to reveal the Ace of Hearts. Slip the card in the right hand under the Ace of Hearts which you then deal onto the table on the spot vacated by the Two of Hearts which you put face down on top of the pack.

Next pull back the Three of Spades naming its suit and value and count off two cards and on the count of "Three" flip over the next card (using the two cards in the right hand for this purpose) to reveal the Ace of Spades. Slip the two cards in the right hand under the face up Ace and deal it onto the table next to the Ace of Hearts and pick up the Three of Spades and put it on top of the pack.

Finally, pull back the Four of Diamonds naming its suit and value and count off three cards from the top of the pack using them to turn over the fourth card which proves to be the Ace of Diamonds. Put this Ace in the position vacated by the Four of Diamonds which is put on top of the pack. You may now continue with your favourite Four Ace trick.

THE DAVID ROTH LECTURE

YES, THIS REALLY IS A SPECIAL. IT'S DAVID ROTH LIVE ON CASSETTE TAPE. LISTEN AND LEARN IN THE COMFORT OF YOUR OWN HOME FROM THE WORLD'S NUMBER ONE COIN MAN. THERE IS NO ONE MORE QUALIFIED TO TEACH YOU COIN MAGIC, PARTICULARLY CLOSE UP COIN MAGIC.

ORIGINAL ROUTINES ORIGINAL MOVES

THE ROTH APPROACH IS AN ORIGINAL APPROACH TO CLOSE-UP COIN MAGIC

PLUS AN INTERVIEW WITH DAVID ROTH IN WHICH PATRICK PAGE ASKS THE QUESTIONS AND DAVID FILLS IN A FEW DETAILS ABOUT HIMSELF AND HIS APPROACH TO HIS MAGIC.

*WINGED SILVER
*THREE COIN VANISH

*CHINK A CHINK

*COPPER AND SILVER

*THE OPTICAL PASS
*PURSE & GLASS

*COIN BOX ROUTINE

*ONE HAND COIN CHANGE

 PLUS ***

THE DAVID ROTH CHOP CUP ROUTINE IN DETAIL

 A SOUND OF MAGIC EXCLUSIVE ***

THEY ARE ALL THERE ON THIS AUDIO-MAGIC TAPE CASSETTE. EVERY MOVE, EVERY SLEIGHT, and EFFECT IS DESCRIBED IN GREAT DETAIL BY THIS MODERN YOUNG MASTER.

PRICE: £5.00 POSTPAID $10.00 AIR MAIL

ORDER NOW

8 Herbal Hill London EC1

A must for every connoisseur of fine magic books

Available from the Author and Publisher

ANDREW GALLOWAY

14 Believue Crescent,

AYR,

SCOTLAND.

A Book that is destined to become a Collector's Item

The Ramsay Classics

by

ANDREW GALLOWAY

The Collected Works of JOHN RAMSAY With an Introduction by DAI VERNON

For the first time everything that Ramsay published in his long and illustrious career is now available in one volume.

MASTER ROUTINES like—THE CUPS AND BALLS; THE CYLINDER AND COINS; THE TRIPLE RESTORATION; THE FOUR LITTLE BEANS.

Also

RAMSAY ON THIMBLES — COINS — THE THUMB TIP THE WATCH WINDER

All re-written and re-illustrated

PLUS

RAMSAY ON MISDIRECTION AND RAMSAY THE ARTIST

Beautifully printed on art paper. 112 large $8'' \times 10''$ pages, with almost 300 superb line drawings, and 8 pages of photographs, most of them published for the first time.

Cloth bound with gold titled spine and attractive two-coloured illustrated dust jacket. Limited number of de-luxe Leather Bound copies available.

£9.50 U.K., £10 Europe, $25 U.S. Airmail. Price includes post and package.

It's travel time again. I have never been quite sure who the newspapers are talking about when they talk about the jet set — or is it 'jetsetter'? No, it can't be jetsetters that sounds like a dog with a blazing exhaust. You will never believe this but a couple of weeks back I arrived at London Airport to check in (be patient, I'll tell you where in a moment) and the girl at the desk said "Hello — off again?" Honest, it's true, it was at that moment that for the first time in my life I felt like a dog with a blazing exhaust.

The Page boy speaks....

The south of France was my destination. You know the place don't you? Nice, Cannes, Brigitte Bardot, topless sun-bathing and all those other mundane things which we hot-dogs specialise in. I was to be the guest for a few days of Philippe Fialho and his lovely wife Anne. They have a son Philippe junior but he is an odd-ball. He must be an odd-ball. He isn't interested in magic. Can you imagine that? He has a father who eats, sleeps and drinks magic, and a mother who likes magic and neither of them have forced him to learn even one single card trick. And as you will know, dear reader, this is no way to bring up a child. All magicians' offspring should be made to practice 100 doublelifts a day and if they can't do it cut their fingers off. Come to think of it, it's a pity someone hadn't cut off some of their parents fingers when they were young, then maybe they would have become tap-dancers. I digress. I apologise.

Back to the Fialho's. They live just outside Nice in an almost mountain-top home with a stunning view in almost any direction you wish. Anne is an excellent cook and if chef is a better word then she is an excellent chef too. What more could a Flying Sorceror (that's me, remember) ask for. Great digs, great grub and Fialho, the greatest magic nut of all time, for a host.

Philippe is a Brother Hammon afficionado and with justification. Brother John has spent several holidays in Nice and has shown Philippe many or probably all, of his routines, and some of them would give the uninitiated brain damage just trying to find a starting point from which to work them out. Philippe Fialho can do them all, perfectly. If you take my advice you will brush up on your Brother Hammon routines because there is a lot more to come that have not as yet seen the light of day.

My reason for being in this part of the world was to present what I refer to as 'my lecture' in Nice and Marseille and despite the language problem (theirs, not mine) I think they were successful. Come to think of it they were successful — I got paid. And although I am not a particularly mercenary type of person that, as they say, is the name of the game amongst the roasting canines.

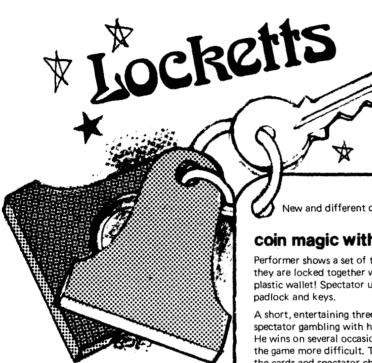

I also spent one day in Cannes in the company of a young lady called Zena Noel. Zena is blond and beautiful and hails from Blackpool, England. She showed me some of the sights in Cannes and we took a trip to St Tropez to look at the wash-house, and if you want to understand that line you'll have to fly jet baby. Zena has a husband, Alain Noel, profession: magician. He tagged along with us to drive the car and pick up restaurant tabs. Alain started selling books in France, magic books that is. There appears to be a shortage and that is probably due to the fact that most Frenchmen are too lazy to speak English. That is not a criticism but a statement of fact; in the same way the average Englishman is too lazy to speak French. Perhaps some author will come up with a scheme whereby magic tricks can be taught exclusively with illustrations and absolutely no text at all. It could probably be done with various props but sleight of hand would be the problem. Alain isn't quite sure at the moment whether he wants to become a millionaire overnight or not. He says maybe he'll become a magic dealer and do it the slow way.

One thing I noticed in France as well as in other countries, is the tremendous interest there is in platform and stage magic. But all is not as it appears because as far as I can see the average semi-pro or amateur rarely does a stage or platform show, it's probably all close-up. Somehow, although many would like to, the opportunities are just not there. There are probably few countries in the world with the amount of venues that we have here in Britain especially when you take in all the working men's clubs, factory clubs etc. In the old days they said you have to have somewhere to be bad in. That rule still applies fortunately here in this country. Let's hope it stays that way for a long time to come.

Goodbye

Patrick Page

One last line — Robert Harbin Rest In Peace.

New and different close-up magic coin magic with a gambling flavour

Performer shows a set of three "Find the Lady" cards, but they are locked together with a padlock in a transparent plastic wallet! Spectator unlocks cards and takes charge of

A short, entertaining three card monte effect follows, the spectator gambling with his own marked and initialled coin. He wins on several occasions so performer decides to make the game more difficult. The coin is hidden under one of the cards and spectator challenged to find both the "Lady" and his coin. This time he fails. His coin has completely vanished. Card is turned over, it now bears an illustrated message. Spectator removes keys from his pocket and finds his own marked coin sealed within the key-fob and he himself may remove it.

Everything may be examined. Comes complete with everything needed to work right away, specially printed and regular cards. Key fob and ring. Keys padlock and punched plastic wallet.

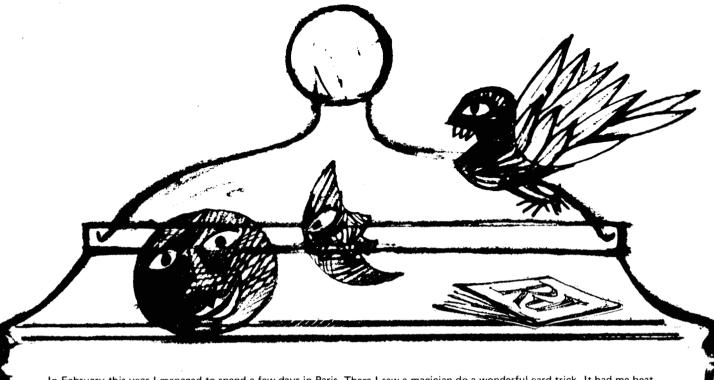

Very easy to do, your audience is guaranteed to be dumbfounded.

Send today while present stocks last at this low, low price.

£3.25 $6.50

Devised and routined by Geoff Maltby

GEOFF MALTBY'S 48 EMU ROAD, LONDON S.W.8 ENGLAND 01 720 6257 Manufacturers of Flying Carpet Magic Catalogue - Import Brochure - Latest Lists 75p

In February this year I managed to spend a few days in Paris. There I saw a magician do a wonderful card trick. It had me beat completely. Since that time I have not been well and had to take things a bit easy.

Three weeks ago the magician, Gaetan Bloom from Paris, came here and we've had a wonderful time. It is always a pleasure to get something new, something interesting and above all ENTERTAINING. Bloom told me I could have that trick, the one he showed me in Paris, THE ONE THAT HAD ME COMPLETELY BAFFLED.

Here it is then. Not got a name for it yet, that does not matter. It is GAETAN BLOOM'S TRICK. It's a close-up trick and is not suitable for stage. But if you are looking for SOMETHING OF HIGH ENTERTAINMENT VALUE — DONE UNDER THE PERFECT EXCUSE — TRY THIS ONE — IT IS SOLD ON A MONEY BACK GUARANTEE TO THOSE KNOWN TO US.

ENGLAND ONLY £3.25. EUROPE £3.50. U.S.A. $10.00 Air Mailed.

DO YOU REALISE WHAT THIS MEANS?

Some weeks ago we bought the stock of ROY JOHNSON'S book 'LECTURE EXTRA'. We have been selling it to a number of callers during that time. We advertised it, not many sent for it. WE AGAIN ADVERTISE IT HERE.

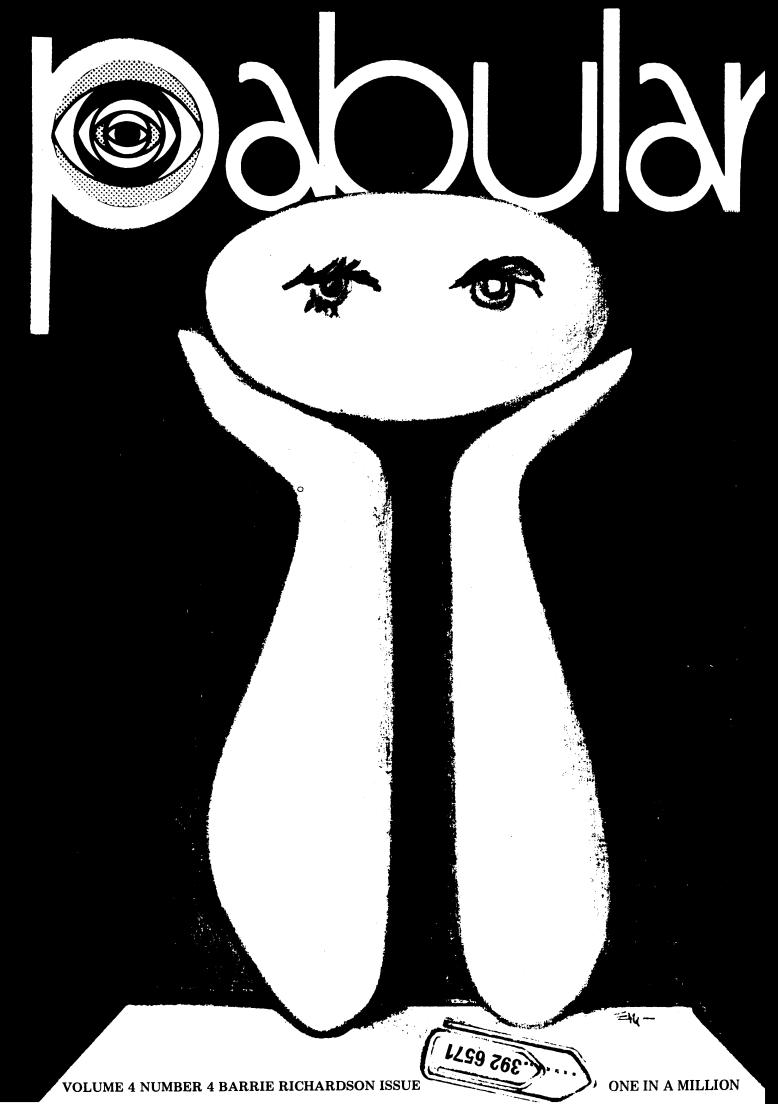

In all, some seven tricks are described. Each is a brilliant bit of Roy's magic. Each is simple and to the point. One thing is for sure, a brilliant trick called CREDIT TRANSFER, which is simple to make, simple in execution. IT HAS A MIRACLE FINISH THAT EVEN YOU WON'T BELIEVE... CAN I TEMPT YOU? ... Yes, it is a booklet and to those known to us ... IT IS ON A MONEY BACK GUARANTEE.

ENGLAND £1.75. EUROPE £2.00. U.S.A. $5.00 AIR MAILED

Lists cost 75p, U.S.A. $2.00 or $3.00 cheque. We do not send lists out for free. Postage and the printing of them cost money. No money, no stamp, no reply.

Pabular is published after the second week in every month and is printed by Instance Printers, Paddock Wood, Kent, England. Subscriptions may be obtained direct from the publishers, Pabular, P.O. Box 180, London SE12 8JJ or through many magic dealers. Price 60 pence per copy (or US $1.25) surface post included. Air Mail extra (US $0.50) per copy or (US $6.00) per year. Editorial or content copy should be sent to Fred Robinson, 1 Crescent Court, 24 Crescent Road, New Barnet, Herts, England. Advertising rates sent on request — smalls 3 pence per word (US 10 cents). Dealer enquiries welcomed. Reproductions of old prints and historical magical items by kind permission of Tony Faro.

one in a million

Barrie Richardson

This is a telephone test particularly suitable to entertain a small group at a party or for a publicity demonstration.

A large city telephone directory is handed to a spectator, preferably a lady. She is asked to run her thumb over the edges of the pages and stop whenever she pleases. The performer takes the directory and announces the page number so randomly arrived at as 261. The book is closed and handed to a second spectator to whom you say, "Will you please open the book at page 261 and hold it open on your lap." The performer helps during this procedure and takes a paper clip from the back cover and fastens it over a few pages ostensibly to mark the page selected.

Performer now says to spectator, "Will you please close your eyes and move your index finger slowly down the page until you wish to stop right there, if you wish you can move your position one up or one down, or begin afresh you are going to stay with your choice. This is where you stopped — one household out of a million — will you please read out aloud the name — "John F. Schilling" — and the address please — 130E, 25th Street". You have selected a Mr John Schilling of 25th Street. What is Mr Schilling's telephone number — 392 6571 — please repeat the number 392 6571."

A copy of yesterday's newspaper is opened and there is a personal advert which reads — Schilling 392 6571.

The revelation can be made on a tape recorder, in a locked box or written on a large sign. It has a stunning effect on a lay audience and offers considerable scope for showmanship.

To achieve the effect both the page and telephone number are forced. Find a page in the directory which has all the same surnames in the right hand column of a right hand page choosing a fairly uncommon name.

The number is forced by the use of an old principle in a new setting. Cut out a telephone number from a similar directory and provide yourself with a paper clip of larger than average size. To the edges of the inner part of this clip affix the cut out number using white glue and when dry trim off the surplus paper (see sketch). Push this gimmicked clip onto the back cover of the directory and prepare your revelation by placing your advert, taping the prediction or making any other preparation necessary according to how you intend to reveal the name and phone number. You are then ready to perform the experiment.

Modus Operandi:

First, the page is forced using the old Walter G. Gibson-Dunninger method. When the spectator stops running his thumb over the edges of the pages take the directory from him. Hold up the book with page facing the audience and giving them your most honest look point to the number and miscall it as 261. There are numerous alternative methods of forcing a page but I have found that the 'miscall' to be the cleanest approach.

The placing of the clip on the pages appears to the audience to be quite innocuous and arouses no suspicions in the minds of the spectators. I merely pull the clip off the back cover and clip it to the top right hand corner of four or five pages without comment. Previously I used to announce what I was doing but for some reason it looks quite normal and makes any observation unnecessary.

A big thing is made of the spectator moving her finger down the page. The spectator is generally nervous and the slow movement seems like an eternity. If for some reason she does not stop before reaching the bottom of the page ask her to move her finger slowly back up the page.

At the point where she stops ask her to call out the name, which you repeat. Now boldly move the clip down to the selection covering the true phone number with the one stuck onto the paper clip. You now ask for the address as you look to make certain that the clip is properly aligned. Repeat the address and point to the telephone number encircled in the clip i.e. 392 6571 asking her to read it out, and repeat it. Take away the directory and conclude by dramatically revealing your prediction.

In this presentation the approach is bold and direct. When this trick is done with flair and apparent candour the results are outstanding. This is one stunt I personally regard so highly that I reserve it for special occasions.

This issue is devoted almost entirely to the mental type magic of Barrie Richardson, a disciple of the school of Annemann who believes that the effect is everything using the simplest possible method and relying upon achieving the greatest possible impact by using showmanship to dramatise the situation.

The following are some personal perceptions of himself. What he is not—a technical expert—complicated—user of fancy equipment—mechanical—extremely serious—considered a conjurer or magician by his audiences—a magician's magician.

What he is — simple — direct — dramatic — believable — entertaining — perplexing and sometimes inspiring.

His professional routine consists of lecture demonstrations on 'Magic of the Mind'—demonstrations of mnemonics, contact telepathy, lateral and creative thinking. It is material under these headings that he performs professionally for business groups, professional associations, marketing and management sessions and for private functions.

No doubt some may consider the methods 'old hat' and fail to appreciate the value of the material for use when performing for lay persons. For instance there are more 'ingenious' ways of forcing two cards than the simple business of having the pack cut and the bottom half crossed over the original top half, (the method used in 'The Undisturbed Deck Prediction) but they would be less direct. Even the classic force would be less effective due to the fact that the performer is in possession of the cards when they are being chosen, whereas in the 'crossed halves' method the cards are out of the hands of the performer leaving the spectator free to cut the pack wherever he wishes for the selection. When reflecting on this trick later spectators will be under the impression that the performer 'never touched the cards' — a strong point in any card effect.

The object of the above preamble is to indicate the approach to magic adopted by Barrie Richardson and to give some idea of the aspect from which the material he has generously given to us should be studied. That all the material is practical is unquestioned and as the technical requirements are not excessive most readers will find at least one effect they can use. They will, of course, require to be acted out with showmanship in order to obtain the greatest impact, which is the point I am trying to make.

Still with mentalism and the like, and to assure anyone who may be reading this far down the column that it is not too difficult to impress the uninitiated with your 'powers' provided people are unaware that you are a conjurer. One has only to review what has appeared in the media over the past months.

Since the psychic surgeons of the Fiji Islands we have had among others the Bermuda Triangle, an area from which ships and aeroplanes disappear never to be seen again. We now have a Welsh Triangle in which a U.F.O. has been sighted -along cigar shaped object was witnessed by people of unimpeachable character whose word could not be doubted - Walt Lees has suggested it may have been a modelling balloon which had escaped from Trevor Lewis who hails from that area. This was beaten by the lady in Staffordshire who had one of these objects land near her home and actually saw two beings inside who smiled sympathetically at her — no wonder. More recently we have 'Biorhythms' a numerical system which plots our intellectual, emotional and physical 'highs' and 'lows'. What is a rational minded person to think when in Japan over 5,000 companies uses this information to plot bad days for their employees when they are accident prone with the object of reducing accidents. On television we have seen a dignatory of a world wide religious organisation waving an object resembling an old fashioned cart lamp supposedly containing the dried blood of a long dead saint. If the blood liquified it would indicate that a certain potential disaster would not occur - needless to say it did to great effect without the apparatus being passed for examination. Only last week as I write the World Service of the BBC relayed a paranormal halfhour which brought forth one down to earth remark when one panellist said "Inanimate objects can't cheat" which about sums up most of the baloney. Maurice Fogel appeared and predicted the amount of small change in one of the pannelist's pocket. When questioned as to how it was done Maurice replied "It's all in the mind" which was probably the most complete answer possible to the problems of psychical phenomena which were exercising the minds of those taking part.

Whatever one's belief may be in these matters one thing is certain. It does provide a wealth of material for mentalists to exploit when seeking alternative pseudo explanations to account for their 'powers' enabling them to vary their presentation in a field of magic which is very limited in the number of effects possible.

"Please call out any number between 5 and 45. Higher numbers are the most interesting but I will, if you wish, attempt the demonstration with any number you care to call." Someone calls 27.

The performer pauses (for effect) and then announces in a dramatic manner that the 27th card is the seven of spades and that it is sandwiched between the three of clubs and the Jack of hearts.

The cards and dealt and counted onto the table face downwards and on arriving at the 26th card it turns face up — it is the three of clubs — the next card, the 27th and chosen numbers is dealt face down (suspense) and the next card the Jack of hearts is turned face up. The spectator's memory is now tested by asking "What did I say was the 27th card?" When he replies "Seven of spades" invite him to turn the card face up.

Obviously you do not memorise the whole pack but you do memorise the 4th, 5th and 6th cards reading from the bottom of the face up pack, in this example the three of clubs, seven of spades and the Jack of hearts respectively. A break is also taken eight or nine cards up from the bottom of the pack as you square it up.

memorable memory stunt

Barrie Richardson

Two types of magical demonstrations appear to have a lasting impression on spectators. The first being a minor miracle which occurs in the spectators own hands such as the Sponge Ball trick and Out of this World.

The second type of memorable demonstration is one which apparently requires great manipulative or mental skill. Poker deals, dice stacking, Mental feats such as memorising the entire contents of Time magazine and contact mindreading have stood the test of time. The one about to be described falls into the latter category.

PSEUDO-MEMORISED DECK

A borrowed pack is thoroughly shuffled and handed to the performer who patters about mnemonics — the science of memory, and offers to give a demonstration.

Inviting someone to watch the second hand of his watch to time him, the performer asks for silence and proceeds to thumb through the entire pack and then enquires of the timekeeper "How long?" Fifty-five seconds in the response. "That is my new record" announces the performer. "Let us see how accurate I am."

When you ask the timekeeper for the time taken all eyes including your own, will be directed towards him. At this moment turn over all the cards above the break face down. Should anyone be watching, which they will not, it would appear that you only turned the pack over, face downwards. The misdirection is perfect.

You now have eight or nine cards face up on the bottom of the pack with the memorised cards still 4th, 5th and 6th from the bottom.

When the number is called -27 in this case and you have announced the card at that number and the cards either side of it deal the cards face downwards onto the table counting as you go until you reach five less than the chosen number, in this case 22. The extended forefinger of the left hand, which is holding the pack, points to this card and as the right hand turns it face up the left hand places the pack onto the table with the faced bottom cards containing the three memorised cards uppermost. This manoeuvre to secretly turn the pack over is simple and undetectable — it is already half over as the finger points to the face down card and strong misdirection is provided as the right hand turns the card face for the turn to be completed as the pack is placed onto the table.

The 23rd, 24th and 25th cards are now counted off and the 26th card shown to be the three of spades one of the sandwich cards. The 27th card is pushed forward keeping it face down (suspense) and the 28th card shown to be the other sandwich card, the Jack of hearts. Finally, pick up the 27th card keeping it face down as you ask spectators if they remember what you said was the 27th card and as they say "Seven of spades" look directly at them and slowly turn it face up.

The effect achieved is out of all proportion to simple moves used to produce it, which are both well covered by misdirection. A shorter version is possible wherein it is only necessary to remember the fifth card. Again subtract five from the number called, and eliminate calling the sandwich cards.

inspection and get possession of a genuine coin of the same denomination which you have previously marked and put in some place from where it can easily be obtained with the right hand. You now apparently take the coin marked by the spectator from the left hand and give it to another spectator some distance away to examine — you have of course switched the coins by leaving the gimmicked one in the left hand and handing the stolen one out. Both the bottle and the marked? coin are with the spectators. All is fair.

Regain possession of the bottle and hold it by the neck in the left — blow into the mouth of the bottle and load the coin, which you have folded, into the neck and take the coin back from the spectator. Let the spectator who marked the coin hold the bottle by the neck as you knock the visible coin on the bottom of the bottle and then palm or sleeve it. The action of hitting the bottom of the bottle causes the folded coin in bottle molecules

Barrie Richardson

The performance begins with the following preamble. "Have you ever seen 'Magic Putty' the putty-like material which bounces. I recently learned that this material is actually a slow flowing liquid. This information caused me to think about the differences between solids, liquids and gases. In fact all matter is merely molecules in motion. I read, for example, that there are viruses able to pass freely through granite one foot thick. That these small specks of matter are able to pass cleanly through a sol J object suggests that if one is able to line up the molecules of two 'solid' objects, one could easily flow through the other. Let me give you a demonstration of this phenomena - may I borrow a few solid metal objects - keys, rings and coins. Miss, will you help me - please put a mark on one of these objects with this felt marking pen. Make sure that you will recognise it later.'

What I do, is to add a folding coin to the objects, and force this coin by covering the other objects with my fingers as I point to the folding coin with the pen. It never fails if done casually and without mentioning anything about having a free choice.

Now the bold part of the presentation — I allow the spectator to mark the gimmicked coin. Keep it flat and there is no problem. Pick up the coin and hold it on your left palm. Pass out the bottle (which should be transparent) for careful coin to fall from the neck into the bottle (see Bobo's COIN MAGIC for details).

Now for the fun. Shake the bottle causing the coin within to rattle and request the spectator to examine the mark on the coin through the glass and ask "Is that your marked coin?"

To get the coin out place the bottle on a sheet of newspaper or better still inside a paper bag. Hand a small hammer to the spectator requesting that she breaks the bottle — this is good drama as you say "Stand back Miss, I want no-one to touch this coin until you identify it as the one you marked." When she has ascertained that it really is the one she marked pick it up and switch for the genuine coin as you clean off the marking ink with a clean white handkerchief. All can now be examined.

My modest contribution is not in the handling of the mechanics of the trick, but in the perplexing enigma which comes from marking the coin and the drama of breaking the bottle. In any case, this is one close-up miracle that can be performed before hundreds of spectators — at least that has been my spectators — at least that has been my experience. Good luck.

think hot —— think cold El

Barrie Richardson

The effect is direct. The presentation appeals to me because the attention of the audience is directed to the performer's powers and also because you apparently explain to the participant what you are doing.

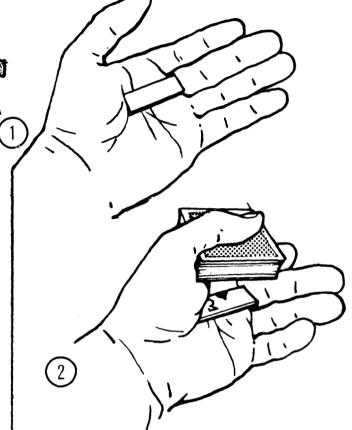

The bare bones sound extremely simple—even dull, but believe me, if this demonstration is performed properly it is a memorable stunt.

When performing I explain the essence of contact telepathy — which I insist is not mental telepathy, but an involuntary physical way of communicating much like the lie detector. I sometimes review the nature of the pendulum — the wellknown weighted thread which supposedly enables one to detect the sex of a chicken before it is hatched etc. The mood is set.

A pack of cards is borrowed, or your own offered to be shuffled. With the spectator on your left and holding the pack face down in your left hand say, "I have not looked at these cards and cannot possibly know the order — please watch carefully." Turn your face away from the cards which you hold face towards the spectator and with the thumb near the upper left corner allow the cards to escape very slowly (as when thumb counting) requesting the spectator to call 'Stop'. When he does so, ask him if he would like you to proceed, or is he satisfied, keeping your face still turned away. Right hand lifts up the cards above the division asking the spectator to note the card at the face and replace the cards on the pack.

Now you say, "If your card was a red card please think of fire, and if it was a black card think of something cold like ice. You are thinking — good."

Holding the pack loosely and casually on your open left hand ask the spectator to keep thinking hot or cold as the case may be and to place his hand palm downwards on top of the pack. Place your right hand on top of his and repeat hot, cold, hot, cold a few times and finally say "You are thinking 'hot'." If you have performed with authority and in a convincing manner up to this point, there will be a nervous smile on the face of the spectator.

When he agrees say "If your card is a heart please think of something smooth — a smooth stone — if it is a diamond think of something sharp." Again you request him to keep thinking as you repeat smooth, sharp a few times, before saying "You are thinking sharp — your card is a diamond. Continue by repeating picture card — spot card and eventually say "Please do not try to fool me, it is a picture card — Jack, Queen — King — it is a man — the King of Diamonds."

Others will certainly wish to try — you can repeat it immediately.

How is it done? I have performed this effect for many sophisticated card men both in the States and Great Britain and many have been puzzled, but fooling magicians is not the purpose. Having fun and entertaining others is what this trick is all about. The secret if a piece of mirror about one and a half inches long by half an inch wide. This is about the same size as the billets I use and is finger palmed between the base of the left second finger and the palm (1). It is important that this hand be held in a natural position throughout the trick.

With the mirror comfortably finger palmed you are ready to begin. After the pack has been shuffled it is taken in the left hand which holds it high up in the hand (2).

"You have thoroughly mixed the cards. I ask you to watch very closely because we must randomise your selection. Please do not allow me to influence your choice in any way." Now turn your head and holding the pack up almost at eyelevel and thumb through the cards slowly as you say "Please tell me to stop anytime you wish." When 'Stop' is called (still with your head turned away) ask "Shall I move on, or start again?", make sure the choice is perfectly fair. It is, of course.

Still keeping the head turned away lift up the top half of the pack at the point stopped at, in a deliberate and in a way that is obviously fair and show the face card of this top half to the spectator asking him to concentrate on it and remember it.

The timing of what now follows is of the utmost importance because you are now about to glimpse the card through the mirror.

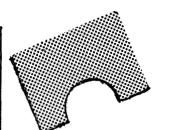

Still keeping the left hand at chest height bring down the packet in the right replacing it on the bottom half in the left hand. During this action you say "Will you please concentrate on the colour of your card." As you say "your card" turn your head — at this point the two halves of the pack should be coming together with the selection clearly visible in the mirror. The sequence of movements appears perfectly normal, and after glimpsing the card, which takes a split second, the cards are squared and pulled deeper into the hand completely covering the mirror.

What could be fairer? The card is freely selected with your head turned. Everything looks perfectly natural — no fancy moves, it is clean, direct and after some practice indetectable

The co-ordination of the hands and the proper position of the mirror to ensure that the image of the selected card is reflected in the mirror as you turn to face the spectator. Each person must find the correct angle for himself.

Once the card is glimpsed the rest is pure acting and the most should be made of it. Please, please do not just say "Your card is the King of Diamonds."

The method is simple — but believe me — I know of few card tricks which can be presented in a manner which makes them appear as genuine mindreading.

the clean second-card force concept

Barrie Richardson

The legendary Ted Annemann believed that the effect was everything — the method being of little consequence. The effect is based on an idea I heard John Scarne present some 25 years ago. The idea may have appeared in print, but in any case, the approach in terms of method is new to me and may be applied in a variety of ways.

The essence of the effect being an envelope containing a prediction is handed to a spectator. Another spectator is invited to stop the performer any time he wishes as the cards are dealt singly from the top of the pack. The envelope is opened and is found to contain a card matching the one on top of the pack when stopped by the other spectator. Great room for drama, if this is your cup of tea.

All the cards are different, and there are no psychological forces, rough and smooth cards or any sleight of hand. The trick is dependent on a gimmicked card — the one to be forced, has a semi-circular piece cut from the right hand side as shown in sketch. This card is placed on top of the pack and with a matching card sealed in an envelope you are ready to present the effect.

The gimmicked card is forced by dealing seconds until requested by the spectators to stop, and keeping the cut out section covered with the fingers when displaying the selection to the audience. Dealing seconds is as easy as dealing from the top the thumb contacts the second card at the point where it is exposed due to the cut out and pulls it free.

As the cards are being taken keep the pack angled to prevent the possibility of exposure, though if a Bee back designed pack is used certain liberties can be taken. It is very important that you concentrate your vision on the cards as they are being shown — do not look at the pack.

When the spectator calls 'stop' it makes the selection look fair and free from guile if you ask if he is satisfied or if you should proceed to deal further. Your demeanour, actions and patter should be directed to convincing the spectator that he has an absolutely free choice and that you could not have influenced his choice in any way.

The same concept can be used with children's cards, alphabet and number cards etc. It may also be possible to use 'the clean second' for a torn newspaper prediction a la Nelson thus obviating the use of any extra pieces, though I have not worked this out as yet.

the magnetice force

Barrie Richardson

Performing mentalists, if they are to stay in character, are quite limited in their approach to close-up entertainment. Magical props, sleight of hand demonstrations and comedy stunts are in disharmony with the basic premise of mentalism.

I usually fall back on the centre tear, billet reading, contact telepathy and cold readings. Here is a ruse which has served me well. The patter and presentation sell the effect which should not be done as a quick joke or bar stunt.

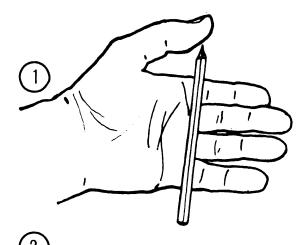

"Do you know there is a life force within each one of us — this is not a sexual force because it is found in all of us before puberty. This life force is similar to a magnetic force — it can be directed by our minds."

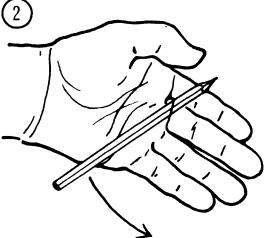

"Try this — clasp your hands together with your fingers interwoven. Imagine this magnetic force is between your fingers and palms. You have the power to direct this force. Do it — I will you to be successful. Now try and pull your hands apart — do you sense the force?" Now comes the fun.

Pick up a ball point pen or pencil and place it across your open left hand (1). Ask a lady to take hold of the pen between her right fingers and thumb. Now hold her wrist with your right hand as though taking her pulse.

"Now please direct your magnetic force through your fingers — can you imagine this? your force gives immense weight to the pen. It now weighs several pounds. It has a strong downwards pull — can you imagine this? Good."

"Now try and lift the pen. Easy — you cannot do it." Both the woman and the audience believe you are inhibiting her by the pressure you are putting on her wrist which you are still holding.

Lift your right hand away. "I will you to be successful — your magnetic force is growing in intensity. Try and lift the pen." She tries and fails. You release her force and she easily lifts the pen.

The method is simple and somewhat bold. It is a piece of thread tied around the middle finger of the left hand about as tight as a wedding ring. When placing the pen on the hand it is pushed under the thread and twisted towards right (2) so that it rests naturally across the palm. To release it you obviously move it back which loosens the thread enabling it to be pulled clear and replaced on hand.

The thread I use is freely available in the U.S. and is known as 'invisible sewing thread'. No doubt similar thread is available in other countries. I have not tried the hair-like thread used for floating small objects — it is doubtful if it would be sufficiently strong. My thread has been on for months — it is not affected by showers or physical activity.

Sometimes I use a spoon and after the lifting business it slowly grows soft and bent finally breaking off at the bowl.

the undisturbed deck prediction

Barrie Richardson

The method is old and simple but very effective. The presentation creates a stunning effect especially variation No.3.

You ask your host for a pencil, a piece of paper and a pack of cards. Ask several persons questions relative to finding a suitable subject. Finally point to one person saying "Please shuffle the cards on the table."

Pick up the cards from the table and continue "You would testify that I have no idea of the order of these cards and I have not disturbed them." As you patter on glimpse the top card by pushing it forward sighting it as you turn the pack towards you (or use your favourite method) and then glimpse the bottom card and place the pack onto the table. If the pack is held with the thumb on the face card and the fingers on the back of the top card with the arm at full stretch as the pack is placed down this second glimpse can be obtained by angling the pack very slightly. Remember both cards.

Request the spectator to hold out his hands and grasp them in yours saying "I am going to influence you. I will you to be successful." Release his hands and pick up the paper and pencil and write 'The cards selected in the undisturbed pack on July 15 (current date) will be the eight of hearts and the two of spades (the cards glimpsed).' Fold the paper and give it to someone to hold or simply put it on the table blank side uppermost.

The spectator is now asked to cut the pack into two fairly equal heaps. Pick up the bottom half and put it on the original top half 'crossed'.

The patter continues about precognition and the prediction read. The top half of the pack is lifted and the face card shown to be one of the cards predicted and the top card of bottom half is turned face up and seen to be the other.

This method of forcing two cards, a favourite with Blackstone is very old and being direct makes it possibly the best in the context of this effect. It is important that there is a time lapse between the cards being cut and the eventual revelation, to prevent it being realised that the predicted were originally the top and bottom cards of the pack. Given this lapse, which is occupied with patter, it will be accepted by the spectators that the two halves were merely crossed to mark the cut which is logical.

Variations

- (1) It will be found effective to miss out on one card. For instance, by predicting the two of spades as the two of clubs. IN MENTALISM A NEAR HIT IS VERY IMPRESSIVE.
- (2) At the start hand out an envelope containing the prediction in which the names of the cards has been omitted leaving spaces for their insertion later.

After the cut take back the envelope, open it and read the prediction including the names of the forced cards. Then when all eyes are on the pack as the spectator checks your prediction fill in the spaces with names of the cards 7C and 8H using a Swami gimmick.

(3) This variation I have used on television and follows the first method up to the point when the two cards have been glimpsed and the pack is on the table. I then write the following prediction, 'On July 15th Stan Steele will cut off cards. He will cut to the eight of hearts and the two of spades. I am sure of this. Barrie Richardson'.

The cards are then cut as before and the spectator asked to count the cards in the top half without disturbing their order. You then open the prediction and read it out aloud including the number of cards counted by the spectator. Fill this number in with your Swami or Boon after the cards are announced by the spectator when you are repeating the names of these cards. This presentation is very strong and easy to perform, and the misdirection provided by the spectator looking at the cards to check your prediction makes it possible for the secret writing to be done without haste.

where there's smoke

Fred Robinson

The mere mention of the name Percy Hird to Ken Brooke is sure to bring a smile to his face, which, if he is not busy, will be followed with a story about this character who was a tram driver in the city of Leeds.

In addition to his stage manipulative act which consisted primarily of producing fans of cards a la Cardini he had a close-up speciality which he made all his own. It was a good example of the Professor's dictum of taking one effect and really going to work on it. Almost everyone knows of it and many have tried it — the old effect of vanishing a cigarette by leaving it behind the ear.

The starting position is as in sketch, the cigarette being held by one end between fingers of the right hand letting it rest on the open palm of the left hand which is held waist high. Raise the right hand above the shoulder bringing the cigarette close to the right ear and bring it immediately back to its original position as you count one. Repeat the action as you count two. Count three and repeat the action this time leaving the cigarette behind the right ear. Complete deception is dependent on an even rhythmic count and eliminating any pause on the third count when the cigarette is left behind the ear. It will be found helpful when practising to almost put the cigarette behind the ear when making the first two counts. The cigarette will then automatically be in the right position as you count three.

For readers who like building up short routines the following ideas may be welcomed.

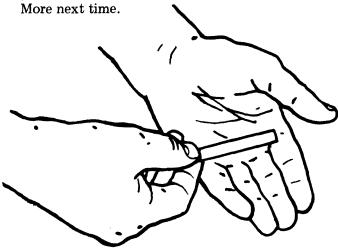

To the cigarette you are going to use for the above stunt attach a piece of invisible thread — the kind everyone can see but you can't find — to one end of the cigarette and the other to front of the coat on the right side. The length of the thread and the precise point where it is attached to the coat should be such that when the cigarette is pushed into its packet, the end to which the thread is attached first, the thread should be just long enough to allow the packet to be put in the right coat pocket. You will also require a false ear with an imitation cigarette glued to the back of it. This must be hidden from where it can easily be obtained with the left hand, either up the left sleeve or under the edge of the coat.

Commence the routine by taking the packet of cigarettes from the right coat pocket and cause the cigarette to rise by moving the hand forward tightening the thread. Remove the cigarette with the left hand and replace the packet back into the right coat pocket, and perform the vanish behind the ear as explained above.

Repeat this until someone catches on treating the business more as a gag than a magical effect at this point and finally do it once more, this time instead of leaving it behind the ear, toss it over the shoulder. It will then hang on the thread behind the back.

As the spectators look towards your right ear get possession of the gimmick with your left hand and produce it from the region of the left ear remarking "Sometimes it goes behind my left ear." The cigarette hanging down behind your back can be produced from the air by pushing your right thumb under the thread at the front of the coat and extending the right hand sharply forward.

If it is desired to eliminate the 'exposure' dispense with vanish behind the ear. This way you will catch those knowing the old method.

book review

Fred Robinson

VERBAL CONTROL. Phil Goldstein. Two dollars. Obtainable from the author -121 Charles Street, Apt 4a, Boston Mass. 02114.

This eight page booklet is a treatise on the under-explored art of equivoque, its technique and applications — for equivoque read Magicians Choice.

First written in 1976 this publication is the results of the authors experimentation into the possibilities of utilising the forcing principle, and goes far beyond the old 'your right or mine' when forcing the choice of one of two objects.

Claiming that equivoque is the mentalists perfect solution when suddenly confronted by someone who demands that you read his mind — now. Just grab a handful of change and successfully predict the coin that the spectator will choose — using Verbal Control.

It is the forcing of one particular coin from five all different that is used as an example. All the psychological factors necessary for success are dealt with in detail from the important opening spiel to how to condition the mind of the spectator by emphasising the importance of the correct phrasing of sentences, together with naming certain words which have an adverse effect if used as you steer the spectator towards choosing the coin you have predicted.

Suggestions for using the principle is other such as Seven Keys to Baldpate, Bank Night etc are given, and will be a welcome addition to the library of readers who are interested in psychological magic and wish to add further to their knowledge on the subject.

What is it about magic acts that makes them seem slow? When I say slow, I don't mean physically slow, although I can think of one or two who could stand a whipping, but, slow thinkers. Let's put it another way. Think back, those of you who can, over the last twenty or thirty years, and try and remember all the fads and fashions which were popular with the public. Things like Rock and Roll music, Teddy boy suits, the D.A. haircut, the Beetle haircut, the black leather, blue denim and Lord knows what else. All of these things were at one time or other, popular with large sections of the public, but how many of them ever became popular with magicians?

I well remember the first time I saw Johnny Hart sporting shoulder length hair and a Zapata style moustache, a style in which everyone in showbusiness was following the Beatles in their post haircut period, and all the magicians held up their hands and cried into their pretty silk handkerchiefs. Why? It was the trend at the time. The same thinking applies to some of the clothes that the pop stars were wearing, all gold and silver lurex. I can only think of a few magicians who ever ventured into this field and they were about five or six years too late!

Let's try Rock and Roll music? How many magic acts used this type of music in their acts? There were probably a few who used some of the Lennon and McCartney stuff after it became respectable, but how many actually used the heavy material in its early stages. I can only think of one magic act who came close and that was Paul Daniels, yes, the same Paul Daniels who is currently hitting it big on television and other places with a fast talking aggressive style which compares very favourably with the comedic style of today. I recall seeing him many years ago performing a silent manipulative act, called, I think, The Eldanis, with billiard balls, card fans etc. to taped Rock and Roll style music.

Shall we go on? O.K. I will. Just how many magic acts have you seen wearing the high heeled platform soled shoes or boots which have been so popular in recent years? Go on, count them on the fingers of one hand. How about the aforementioned blue denim? Jay Marshall, that very old showbusiness veteran from Chicago had a crack at it three or four years ago when he came over here to do a Magic Circle show at the Collegiate Theatre. He actually went to the trouble of having a tail suit made in blue denim and all the magicians laughed at him. . . why? He had the guts to have a go at something different. At least it was different as far as the magic acts go, and strangely enough he was in the one field in show business where fads and fashions are less necessary...the field of humour. If you really know how to make people laugh, and it can take a lifetime to find out, you don't have to be fashionable. Come to think of it there are many magic acts who can make the public laugh but not in the way they intended.

Are we going to have a punk rock magic act? I doubt it. There is not one magician around with either the guts or the know-how to put this kind of act together, and while we are discussing punk rock I can only think of one magician who wore an ear-ring and that was Jack Chanin, and with Jack it was O.K. because he comes under the heading of "magical characters", so the fraternity smiled benevolently and dismissed it as a gimmick.

Now what brought all this on? Yes, something has happened recently which sparked off the Pageboy on his "let's get with it" jaunt, and that was an annoucement in the current issue of Abracadabra, the world's only weekly magazine, that Goodliffe, the Godfather of Birmingham is about to launch a new magazine called Abracassetta, which, if you haven't already guessed from the name, is to be a magic magazine on tape. For years, cassette recordings have been marketed containing all kinds of information from teaching languages to business promotion. Several people have been involved in producing cassette recordings related to magic for some time. In this country we have Martin Breese and the Sound of Magic people (that's really me and Vic Pinto — plug) and in Mexico there is Craig Snader and there are a few others no doubt, but it is left to dear old stick-in-the-mud Goodliffe to be the first to produce a monthly magazine of magic on tape.

Congratulations Goodliffe.

Goodbye,

Patrick Page

WE GET LETTERS!

'Thank you for coming up with such gems.' Doug Henning. New York City.

WE GET MORE LETTERS!

'Last week I was working in Las Vegas and I happened to see a young man by the name of John Bialek work. He has a very pleasant act. He performed your LOCKED PREDICTION. I don't know what you charge for it. . .JUST SEND IT!' Bud Dietrich, III, U.S.A.

WE GET PHONECALLS!

One came through from San Francisco. My pupil Nick Lewin, now resident and doing very well in the states, had shown this same trick during his shows at the Magic Cellar. Three visitors wanted it — Air Mail.

WHAT IS IT?

The Locked Prediction is the work out of four magicians.

JOHNNY THOMPSON

alias THE GREAT TOMSONI, America's top comedy magic star as well as a brilliant all round ideas man in magic sowed the first seed. Magical genius.

ROY JOHNSON

Twisted it around and improved it in the process. I played my own small part. Then young French magic enthusiast added a climax beyond words.

GAETON BLOOM

Launched at the Blackpool One Day Convention, we sold out in two demonstrations.

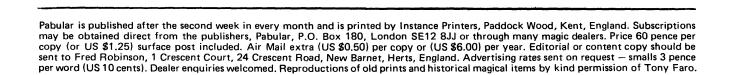

The signed, sealed and locked prediction is handed to a member of the audience. A treasury note is on the bottom. You tell him that he can keep it if the prediction is wrong. The prediction is left with the spectator. Shuffling some cards the performer asks the spectator to think of a name, any name, living, dead, or imaginary. He then deals the cards until he comes to the card of his choice and puts this card in his pocket. The prediction is called for. The lock is opened and the key dropped into a bag. The prediction is read: 'You are reading the wrong side of this card'. So you turn it over. Now they read, 'You have just lost the cash. If you do not believe me, open the key fob.' The bag is opened. Out falls the fob together with a mass of playing card corners. The key fob is opened. Inside is the corner of a card. The spectator brings out his card. The key fob is turned over.

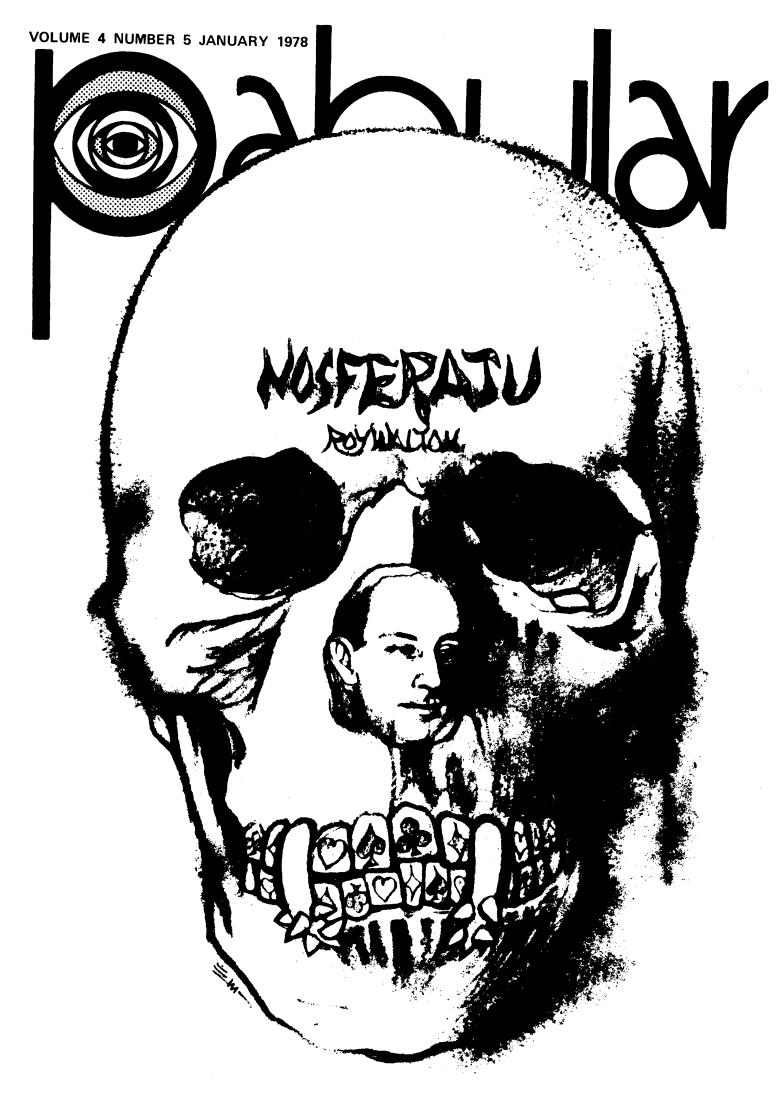

BOTH CARDS ARE THE SAME

Two methods are given, neither of which require other than presentation. We prefer the one mentioned above. The cards are a full genuine pack. All apparatus supplied. The type you would expect from us — built to last a lifetime.

There's No Place Like
KEN BROOKE'S MAGIC PLACE - 145 WARDOUR STREET
LONDON. W.1. - ENGLAND

Tel: 01-734 9240

Whilst reading Andrew Galloway's handling on Larry Jenning's Numerical Aces, I recalled discussing variations on this trick with Larry several years ago. The original Jenning's version was sent to me on tape and whilst I liked the countdown idea, I felt that the spectators anticipated the reappearance of the aces, and therefore changed this part of the effect. Another interesting aspect is that you count down to the values in any order nominated by the spectator. Credit for the naming of the aces as 1, 2, 3, 4 goes to John Howie and was originally published in Ibidem.

PRIOR ARRANGEMENT:

Reading from the top of the face down pack — two spot, three spot, four spot, seven spot, any card, King of Spades, Queen of Spades, Jack of Spades, any two cards, Ten of Spades, rest of the pack. Note that the four spades can be in any order.

PERFORMANCE:

Run through the face up pack looking for the Ace of Spades which you remove, turn face down, and place below the face up pack. Now look for the other three Aces and as you find them, turn them face down and place them below the pack. When removing the last Ace take the opportunity of getting a break between the four and seven spot near the top, and keep this break as you turn the pack face down. You should now have a break under the top seven cards of the pack, the uppermost four cards being the face up Aces.

Lift off the top seven cards with the right hand, thumb at inner end and fingers at the outer end, in preparation for the standard switch move i.e. draw off the top Ace with the left thumb onto the top of the main pack, slightly jogging it to the right. Flip this Ace over face down onto the pack using the cards in the right hand to do so. Repeat with the next Ace. Repeat with the next and as you flip it face down drop all the cards remaining in the right hand on top of it. Push the Ace of Spades to the right slightly with the left thumb and flip it over face down onto the pack with the assistance of the right hand.

Deal the apparent aces face down in a line onto the table, and say, "four Aces, remember one, two, three, four," as you say the last four words, turn the cards face up at the appropriate time to show Ace, two spot, three spot and four spot instead of the expected four Aces. Push the Ace of Spades towards a spectator and ask him to hold it for a moment.

Give the main pack an overhand shuffle as follows: undercut, injog the first card pulled off and then shuffle off. Undercut at the injog, run three cards and throw the balance of the pack on top of them.

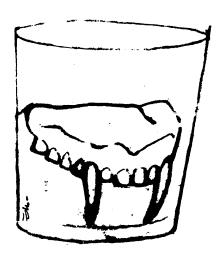

Turn the top card of the pack face up (a seven spot) and place it onto the table with the two, three and four already there. Patter about testing the four cards to see if they are lucky.

Have a spectator nominate ANY one and draw it towards you with your right hand, let us say it is the four spot. Count down to the numeric position four by thumbing the cards over with the left thumb, and taking them one by one BELOW each other into the right hand. When you reach four, stop with this card ON TOP of the main pack. Move the left hand forward and thumb this fourth card off face down onto the table. As you bring the left hand back twist it so that the pack is face up, and scoop up the face up four spot below the pack. Once this card has been added turn the complete pack back face down and add the three in the right hand to the top of the pack face down.

This action can be carried out rapidly and smoothly and replaces the card removed with one of the face up numeric ones. This simple procedure allows you to count down in ANY order nominated.

Repeat the handling explained in the previous paragraphs for the remaining three face up cards. Arrange the cards counted to in a face down packet.

Say, "Let's see how lucky they were, you have the Ace of Spades, what other cards have they found?" Turn the four face down cards over to reveal the Ten, Jack, Queen and King of Spades, which, together with the Ace of Spades held by the spectator makes a Royal Flush.

CABUNGLE

This is an alternate technique for Eric Mason's Caboodle count as described in Pabular Volume Four, 1 Sept 77, at page 461. Reference to the sketch shows how the five cards are held and by exerting an upward and inwards pressure with the index finger tip on the bottom card causes it to buckle enabling the left little finger tip to obtain and maintain a break.

The right hand comes over and grips the packet in Biddle position: that is, the right second finger is at the outer end of the packet, the right palm is arched over the packet and the right thumb is at inner end of the packet.

During the following actions the right hand does not move from its position: it is the left hand that moves off to the left. The particular actions are as follows:

- 1. The left hand thumb presses down on the top card of the packet and moves off to the left. At the same time the bottom card of the packet moves off to the left in perfect alignment with the top card. This bottom card moves off because of the grip of the little finger of the left hand.
- 2. Once the cards clear the packet the left hand turns palm down to show the other side of the (apparent) single card. The left hand then returns to a palm up position and places the card (s) on the bottom of the packet.
- 3. Step 1 is immediately repeated with the new top card. Step 2 is repeated. The actions are repeated as often as the context requires.

POSSIBLE APPLICATIONS

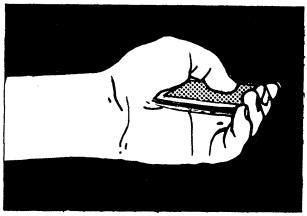

If the five cards are stacked so that the bottom card is face-up the packet can be shown to be four (or five) double-backed cards.

For a small packet ambitious card sequence consider the following:

- Remove five cards from a deck. One of the cards should be the ace of spades. Place the ace of spades face-down on top of the facedown packet.
- 2. Hold the packet face-down in the left hand. Using the right hand flip the top card of the packet over face-up onto the packet. The spectators will see the Ace.
- 3. Supposedly place the ace on the bottom of the packet, but by using CABUNGLE place the ace second from the bottom.
- 4. Do a triple turnover by buckling the bottom card. The Ace will appear to be back on top. Turn down the ace. The packet will now consist of five cards with the ace still second from the bottom.
- 5. Spread the cards in a slight fan. Very slowly take the top card (supposedly the ace) into the right hand. Pull off one card in the fan onto the "ace". Pull off the next card onto the "ace". Finally place the last two cards onto the cards in the right hand. The ace is once more on top.

In a wild routine the double cards could be shown to have regular construction.

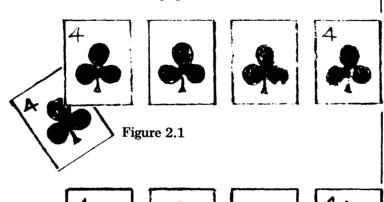

bob farmer

An excellent and effective routine appeared in Vol.4, No.2 under the above title. We apologise to Bob Farmer and our readers for the omission of an important part of the text and two sets of illustrations. The following should have appeared immediately after the last paragraph under the heading 'METHOD' in the left hand column on page 477.

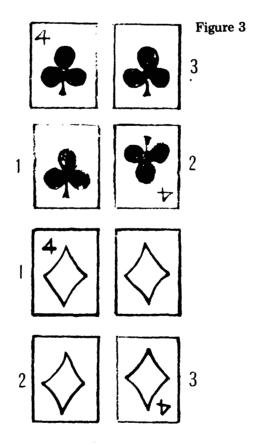

Thus the apparatus used is one double-face piece, four black pieces, and four red pieces. See figure 2.1.

Fours are used as there is a considerable white border around both the index piece pip and the pip piece, thus allowing an easier handling of the Elmsley count. If other cards are used the face design extends on a piece to at least one edge: this marked edge may flash during the counts ruining the effect. Fours eliminate this problem.

SET-UP:

Put the real black index piece in your pocket, and place the double-faced piece showing as a black index piece on top of the three black pieces. Place the four red pieces in a stack below these black pieces.

In performing the effect remove the stack of pieces and arrange them on the table as in figure 3. Note that the double-face piece is at the upper left corner.

Part 1

Starting with the black pieces stack piece 1 on 2 on 3. Place this stack at the lower left corner of the table. Stack the red pieces by placing 1 on 2 on 3. Place this stack at the lower right. Figure 3 indicates the order of stacking, while Figure 1.1 (page 477) depicts the situation after the stacking. The double-face piece is the black piece at the upper left.

Now using the red pip piece at the upper right you apparently flip the black piece facedown on the table. In fact the double face-card is switched for the red piece card using either the actions Bert Allerton suggests (see reference above) or by using the turnover used by Hans Trixer in the "Wild Man Wild" routine put out by Ken Brooke. I use the latter.

Place the double-face piece showing as a red pip piece in the same pocket as contains the real black index piece. Turn the piece on the table face-up to reveal a red pip piece. Remove the real black index piece from your pocket to complete part 1.

This completes the part omitted and if the reader continues forward with Part 2 in the same column all should be clear.

Jeff Busby presents

THE MAGIC OF SHIGEO TAKAGI

In keeping with our reputation for producing only the finest in quality close-up magic, Jeff Busby Enterprises proudly presents two fine routines by Japan's master sleight of hand artist — Shigeo Takagi. Personal demonstration by Takagi and movies of both routines detailed below were used in the writing of the manuscripts to ensure that none of the fine details were omitted.

Shigeo Takagi's One Cup Routine

This extremely novel one cup and ball routine created a sensation when performed by Takagi in public and private sessions at the Washington I.B.M. convention.

A ball is magically produced from the tip of a wand. It immediately vanishes and reappears beneath a beautiful wooden cup. The ball vanishes again and is reproduced from the performer's pocket. After a penetration sequence and more transpositions, the ball refuses to return to the cup. The cup is slapped and a large load ball drops out! But wait...For the stunning climax, the cup is displayed and shown to be a solid block of wood with no interior at all!

This is not "push button" magic. You will need some sleight of hand ability to perform this topflight routine and it does require practice. If you master this, it will be an effect that your audience will always remember.

To help you learn this routine, over 35 fine line drawings have been prepared. A separate typeset booklet containing comprehensive instructions will help you to master this with ease.

The cup is lathe turned from hardwood in the style of the popular "Paul Fox" cup. Beautifully made and well worth the price. $12.50 for the cup, instructions and illustrations. Please add $1.50 for Parcel Post delivery in the U.S., $2.50 for Surface Mail to any other part of the world. $4.00 for Air Mail delivery to any part of the world. 40¢ extra for insurance in the U.S. only. California residents include sales tax.

Shigeo Takagi's Coin Assembly

There have been many coin assemblies, but none this unique! Here is magic in the classical style, incorporating many ingenious moves and sequences never before used in this type of effect.

In brief, four coins cleanly assemble to under one of four covering cards. This version is done in "slow-motion" with fresh ideas raved over by the experts. No rapid actions as are evident in most current versions of this effect.

This routine does take sleight of hand ability and is not for the novice. Over 45 fine line drawings help to make this easy to learn. A separate booklet of text, keyed to the illustrations, clearly worded to help to understand this outstanding routine is included. The price is $4.50 for the illustrations and text in a plastic strip binder. Please include $1.00 extra for postage and packing in the U.S., $1.50 for Surface Mail to any part of the world. $2.50 for Air Mail delivery to any part of the world. 40¢ extra for insurance in the U.S. only. California residents include sales tax. Purchase this routine in conjunction with the ONE CUP ROUTINE and the COIN ASSEMBLY will be sent post free.

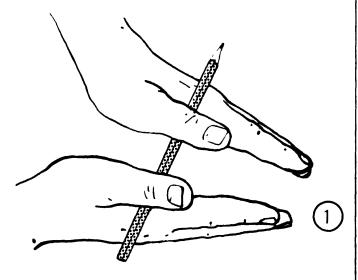

133-17th Street Oakland, California, 94612 U.S.A.

Most magicians turn to JEFF BUSBY ENTERPRISES for the BEST in quality close-up books and magic. Why not find out WHY? Send $1.00 for our current catalog of close-up books and props. Many exclusives. All catalogs shipped First Class or Air Mail for $3.00.

Mark Weston sends the following gags for use with the magnetic attraction routine which appeared in the October issue, the only extra item required being a propelling pencil.

First have a spectator on your left at the table. Have him hold out his hands and place your propelling pencil so that it rests across his hands (1). Ask him to call aloud "WING WING" . . . then pick up the pencil, holding it to your left ear like a telephone — poker faced speak into the opposite end of the pencil as you would with a 'phone and say "Hello".

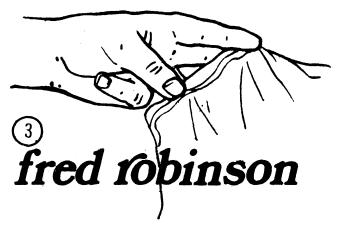

Next take the pencil and perform the 'magnetic' business using the pencil instead of the fingers. Repeat once or twice before explaining that the reason this happens is because you are using a PROPELLING PENCIL.

It occurred to me when reading the above that it should be possible to switch in a gimmicked pencil which was hollow with plate lifter bulb affixed to one end. With the bulb concealed in palm it should be a simple matter to provide the necessary current of air by squeezing the bulb.

Jos Bema sends the following which is going the rounds in Holland. It uses a lighter and a handkerchief, tablecloth or ladies dress or whatever. The lighter is set as high as possible which results in a gap between the lighter and the flame (2).

One edge of the handkerchief is held taut between the first and second fingers and the thumb and third finger (3) of the left hand. Holding the lighter in the left thumb crotch, ignite it, and take it with the right hand moving it to the right beneath the handkerchief, the edge of which passes between the lighter and the flame. The right hand continues to move under the handkerchief until it comes clear at the side opposite that held with the left hand. The flame will keep alight creating an effect similar to that of Colombi's which uses a lighted candle. It works with most kinds of cloth except nylon which melts.

I have a variation which adds a little more to the effect. When the flame arrives at the far edge of the handkerchief the flames disappear and when the right hand emerges from underneath it is empty — the lighter has disappeared. The lighter is attached to a pull which is adjusted so that the lighter hangs above and a little to the rear of the left trouser pocket enabling it to be obtained from that position when appearing to take it from the pocket. The vanish is well covered by the handkerchief.

- gas 2

Since Mr Bema sent the above effect it has been seen in the Blenheim bar but worked rather differently. A spectator holds two adjacent corners of the handkerchief and the performer the side opposite with his left hand. He then puts the lighter unlit underneath the handkerchief and has someone light it from above. The flame can then be caused to move back and forth and to any part of the surface of the handkerchief which is stretched taut.

It is also possible to vanish the lighter by sleeving it, up either sleeve. Take your pick.

SIMON LOVELL WRITES

I read with interest the article in Pabular about close-up magic in Tunbridge Wells. I thought it might be of interest to know that I have had a similar contract for over fifteen months with the AMY'S BISTRO in Chelmsford where I perform every Saturday at the tables. The tables are very small so I have to perform standing up with only sufficient space for a small close-up mat. As you can probably guess the accent is on comedy and entertainment as opposed to a long drawn out boring display of finger flinging.

The routines I regularly use include such items as Dotty Spots, Nemo mini card castle, Chop Cup, a very silly version of the Wild Card, Sponge Balls with the Goshman Ding Dong finish (if I feel the table can take it) and a few of my own originals. Obviously I don't use the whole lot at any one time, only two or three per table, which with patter and chat normally last from seven to ten minutes. The old adage of leaving them wanting more really works in this case as many patrons make return bookings to see more. This is not only nice for me but also keeps the owners happy, which is very important. It was smashing to hear of other establishments engaging magicians as I was beginning to feel a bit alone in that field. As a young professional of twenty years it is encouraging to see magic breaking new ground.

I am particularly interested in making contact with other magicians having similar interests and experience and would welcome correspondence addressed to me at -145 Hillside Grove, Chelmsford, Essex.

The following is an effect I regularly use, and is one of the most requested items from clients on return visits to the restaurant. It is only a short item and I regard it more as a 'magical one liner' than a routine. It is very easy to do, which means I can concentrate wholly on the presentation — the really important part of any trick. Try it out and I think you will be surprised at the response, which is out of all proportion to its difficulty. I have entitled it, jack catch

The effect having the appearance of being a juggling feat should be 'hammed' up as such.

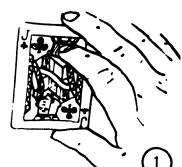

Run through a pack of cards face up and remove the two black Jacks dropping them onto the table. During this action I get a few laughs by using odd gags such as — what is to follow has taken years of practise and self denial — notice my hands never leave the ends of my arms. I know they are old and magicians may squirm, but so long as audiences continue to be amused by them they stay in the act.

Next have a card chosen — any card. Again you can get laughs using the wellknown business of having a card sticking out of the fan and causing it to travel back and forth outside the edge of the fan by using the fingers hidden below the fan which is held in the left hand.

Eventually a card is taken and the person having looked at it, and shown it around (in case he forgets it) have it returned to the pack taking a break above it and control it to the top of the pack. I do not make a big thing of this — I simply cut at the break and riffle shuffle the two halves into each other letting the chosen card fall last on top of the pack.

Next pick up the two Jacks, square them up and place them face up on top of the face down pack. Take a break under the top three cards (the two Jacks and the chosen card). All three are taken with the right hand in the Biddle grip, fingers at the outer and thumb at the inner. It is now necessary to get the chosen card between the two Jacks.

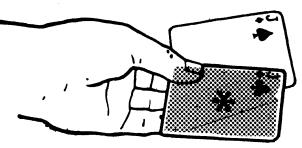

Hold the pack face down in the left hand with its thumb across the back of the top card. The hands now move together and the left thumb is brought into contact with the face of the Jack on top of the three held squared in the right hand. The thumb retains this Jack as the right moves away to the right with the other two cards held squared as one. (1) shows the position at this stage. Name these two Jacks as the above action takes place.

You now have a Jack face up on the pack in the left hand and the other face up in the right hand with the chosen card hidden face down beneath it. The right hand now picks off the Jack from the top of the pack beneath the two it already holds in such a manner as to leave half its length visible as shown in (2). The pack is now handed to spectator and the three cards taken into the left hand and held as in (3). The chosen card is now face down between the two face up Jacks hidden beneath the uppermost one.

The spectator is now instructed how to hold the pack and riffle the outer end in the way used by us all when having a spectator call 'stop' during the riffle for the purpose of having a card freely selected. A big thing is made of this by having him hold the pack exactly right and riffling the cards slowly. Again laughs can be obtained by saying "not too fast" then "not too slow" etc.

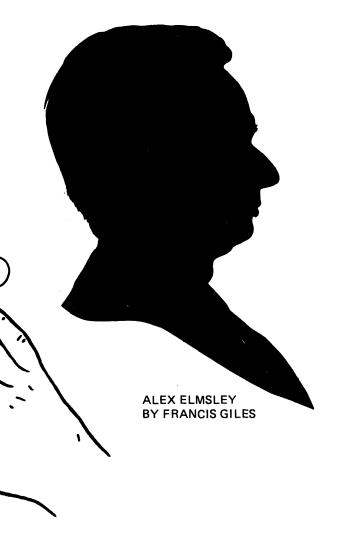

What now follows is for the spectators -afantastic piece of visual magic. As the spectator riffles the pack plunge your two Jacks into the pack and immediately withdraw them at the same time spreading the two Jacks bringing the face down card into view. Properly performed it will appear that you have caught a card between the two Jacks. This face down card is then revealed and seen to be the one previously selected. Though it has taken ages to explain, its performance takes about a minute and a half. I am aware that the gags are corny but they get the laughs, and that's what counts. It is also amazing how many people really believe that the card is actually caught between the Jacks as they are plunged into the pack.

No originality is claimed for anything other than the presentation. Simon lovell

A COIN EFFECT

A silver coin vanishes, changes into a copper coin, this in turn vanishes leaving the silver coin only.

Both coins are unprepared and though the copper coin is not apparent at the beginning of the effect, the silver coin may be borrowed.

This is best performed standing and the audience may be seated or standing. I detail an 'easy' way and the method I use; both have some advantages and disadvantages.

1) Copper coin, an old penny is classic palmed in the right hand. A silver coin, I use a half dollar, is held at the right finger tips between the thumb on the performer's aspect and the first and second fingers on the spectators side. The hand is half closed and the back of the hand is towards the spectators.

The silver coin is loosely tossed onto the left palm. As the left hand closes and turns palm downwards the coin (silver) is worked to the heel of the left hand in preparation for a steal.

The right forefinger taps the back of the left hand and as the spectator(s) is asked "What colour was the coin" the left hand rotates clockwise to a palm upward position and the right hand, still with forefinger extended steals the silver coin. During this steal the silver coin is gripped and then stolen between the thumb above and the incurled second finger underneath.

The right forefinger again touches the back of the left hand as the performer asks "Could it change colour?" As the coin has already been stolen this can be done very lightly and cleanly.

The left hand, palm upwards is opened wide showing the coin to have vanished.

The left fingers close, feint towards the right elbow and the coin is produced at the right finger tips from behind the left elbow.

The silver coin is rolled over the back of the right fingers. If the performer can do this with an empty hand he will find it no more difficult with the copper coin classic palmed.

If possible it should be included as it enhances the already achieved effect that the right hand is otherwise empty. It can however be omitted.

The silver coin is placed at the tips of the left thumb and first two fingers and the right hand moves across the left hand performing the classical 'spellbound' change. (SEE OTHER VERSION).

The right hand takes the copper coin and performs the roll down flourish. This demonstratates that it is clearly a different colour on both sides.

The right hand makes a pass with the copper coin apparently being placed in the left hand. Care must be taken to avoid the silver coin being seen or the coins from talking as the right hand withdraws palming the copper coin. The left hand closes tightly around the silver (supposed copper coin).

The right forefinger again rubs the back of the left hand which revolves and opens to display the silver coin. As it is picked up by the right fingers and thumb to be handed to the spectator the copper coin is secretly left in the left hand loosely finger palmed and the hand drops to the side.

*VARIATIONS

- 1) The copper coin may at the start be back palmed or clipped so that the silver coin can initially be displayed on a palm up empty hand.
- 2) As the silver coin is thrown from the right to left hand the copper coin is moved to the classic palm.

First steal of silver coin and production, as above.

- 3) When the silver coin is displayed at the left finger tips ready for 'spellbound' the right hand comes past the silver coin which the right thumb presses against the right second and third fingers the side of the coin can be held firm by pressure from the first and fourth finger, as if about to back palm. At the same time the left thumb and fingers steal the copper coin from the right palm and display. As the copper coin is displayed the left fingers turn it over whilst the right hand drops down to the side classic palming the silver coin.
- 4) The right hand takes the copper coin and performs the roll down. The left hand opens and the right hand takes the copper coin and makes a bluff pass to the left hand. The copper coin is secretly carried under the right palm on the tips of the right middle two fingers and a palm for palm change occurs. (I have a move for this but no space to explain it here).

The left hand opens empty and the right hand drops the silver coin to the left hand.

The finish is as in the simpler version.

Do at least try the simple version — it's neat, complete and fun to perform.

EFFECT:

Three cards are selected from an ordinary pack. They are then returned to the pack and the usual Triumph shuffle made in which the two halves of the pack are riffled shuffled into each other, one half face-up and the other half being face-down. Upon ribbon spreading the pack all the cards are seen to be face-up, with the exception of three face-down cards which are shown to be ones selected. The knockout comes when the ribbon spread pack is turned over to reveal that the backs are each of a different design — a Rainbow Pack.

REQUIREMENTS AND SETUP:

Two packs are required. A normal one having say, a red back design and the other in which every batch has a different design — a Rainbow pack. On the face of the latter put any card from the red backed pack face-down and push this prepared pack halfway down the waist band of your trousers on the left side with the odd red backer facing outwards.

PRESENTATION:

It would be possible to do a trick beforehand with the red backed pack, but I go straight into the trick by ribbon spreading the pack facedown across the table requesting that three people each select a card by pushing it clear of the spread. After the selections have been made gather up the remainder of the pack and ask each person to write their name across the face of their chosen card or to show their cards to the rest of the audience. As this is being done turn your back to them — so that you cannot see the faces of the chosen cards.

Immediately your back is turned you switch the red backed pack for the Rainbow one in your waistband in the following manner. Before turning the red pack should be in your left hand which is chest high and near the opening of your coat, which should be unbuttoned. The right hand should be held waist high. With the hands so positioned when you turn your back to the audience the red backed pack can be popped into the inside coat pocket on the right side, and the Rainbow pack taken with the right hand, without any elbow movement being visible to the audience which might suggest that something underhand is taking place. When you face front again the Rainbow pack should be in the left hand with the red backed card showing on top.

Lift the inner end of the top card and hold a break beneath it in readiness for the tilt move, and take card No.1 and insert it into the break beneath the top card. Close the break as you square up the pack.

Card No.2 is taken and also inserted from the rear into the pack but this time about halfway down and taking a little finger break above it. As you square up the pack make a half pass revolving the bottom half and keeping a break between the two halves with the left little finger. Actually it is possible to manage without this break using instead the natural one created by the two halves being back to back.

Card No.3 is now taken and pushed into the pack from the rear, this time going into the break taking a fresh break above it with the left little finger as you square the pack.

The order of the cards reading from the top is now — red backer face-down — Card No.1 face-down — half the Rainbow pack face-up — little finger break — card No.3 face-down — half the Rainbow pack face-down — and finally card No.2 face-up on the bottom of the pack.

Holding the pack in the left hand take a break at the inner and below the top card with the right thumb and cut the pack at the little finger break. When completing the cut transfer the break held by the right thumb to the left little finger. Cut the cards above the break to the bottom and keep a left little finger break between the two halves.

Reading from the top of the pack the setup is now — card No.1 face-down — half Rainbow pack face-up — little finger break — Card No.3 face-down — half Rainbow pack face-down — card No.2 face up and finally the odd red backer face-down.

Cut the pack at the break and turn the bottom half held in the left hand over (carefully). Riffle shuffle the two halves together on the table ensuring that card No.3 at the bottom of the left hand falls first and the top face-up card of the same half (odd red backer) is the last to fall. Square up the pack at the same time under cover of this action turn the bottom card over using the half pass or any other suitable move.

Proceed to 'show' the cards to be mixed face-up — face-down as follows. Take the face-up card (odd red backer) from the top of the pack and push it into the pack halfway down taking a left little finger break BELOW it. Somewhere within the top two or three face-up cards will be one face-down, card No.2. Push all the face-up cards above card No.2 into the pack below the break and card No.2 into the pack above the break. Cut the pack at the break and complete the cut.

The position is now that the Rainbow pack is face up with the selected cards face-down evenly separated and the odd red backer face-down on the bottom of the pack. Palm off the bottom card and ribbon spread the cards across the table revealing three face down cards in a face-up pack which prove to be the ones chosen. The palm can be eliminated by cutting the odd backer to the top and fanning out the cards instead of ribbon spreading them. Care must be taken not to expose the red backer.

Finish by turning the cards over to reveal the Rainbow backs.

"Come on now, speak up—tell the nice man where it hurts!"

johnson products

Pabular readers are not ordinary magicians. They are more serious students or professionals performers who are interested in fine quality magic and commercial routines. That's fine with us because that's all Johnson Products deals in. We let our reputation speak for us: Makers of the finest quality close up magic in the world.

"Absolutely the finest precision-made merchandise manufactured for our industry."

> Johnny Thompson Las Vegas, Nevada

"It's the best in the world . . ."

Fred Kaps Utrech, Holland

INTERLUDE II

Word of this brand new effect preceded us to Europe. When we finally did arrive, the first question asked was, "Let's see Interlude II." All agreed that it was even better than the description. A yellow poker chip is shown on both sides and the hands are empty. With a wave of the hand the chip is red. Then just as quickly it's yellow again. Hands and chips are constantly shown front and back. All is fair. Each change becomes more amazing than the last. One more pass and the chip becomes a half dollar. Here is a spellbound routine with a knock out climax. Chips are made from a space age plastic complete with a detailed routine. $15.00

ELLIS RING

Made from gleaming brass this ring can be feely shown from all sides because of the precision workmanship. All of the classic penetrations and transpositions are possible with this beautiful prop. Treat yourself to the best. Complete with routine. $7.50

Our new Catalog No. 4 is now available with all the latest prices and trick descriptions. 50¢

California residents add 6% Sales Tax. Foreign orders add 10% Air Mail Postage.

Post Office Box 734 Arcadia, Ca. 91006

