Deathstalker Scorpion

Assembling your Deathstalker Scorpion

First, follow the instructions found in the free Pathfinder Paper Miniatures instruction PDF, which can be found on Paizo.com.

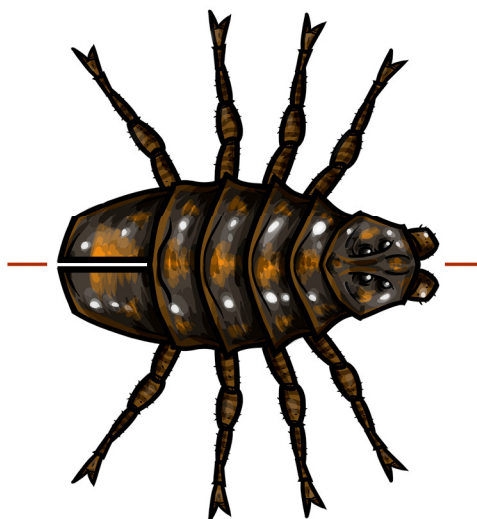

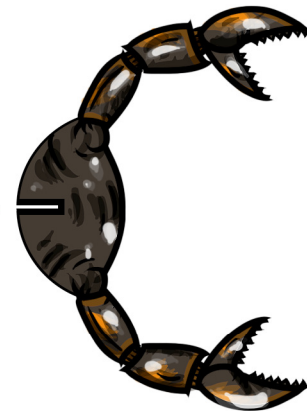

While gluing the main body portion and base, make sure not to glue the white tabs on the top and front of the body together; these tabs are used to hold the carapace. Once the body's glue has set, fold the tabs away from each other.

Score the carapace along the red line. Glue the carapace and legs onto the top white tabs on the base. Hold until set, as per your glue's instructions.

Insert the pincers into the slot in front of the base. Daub with glue if Desired for added stability.

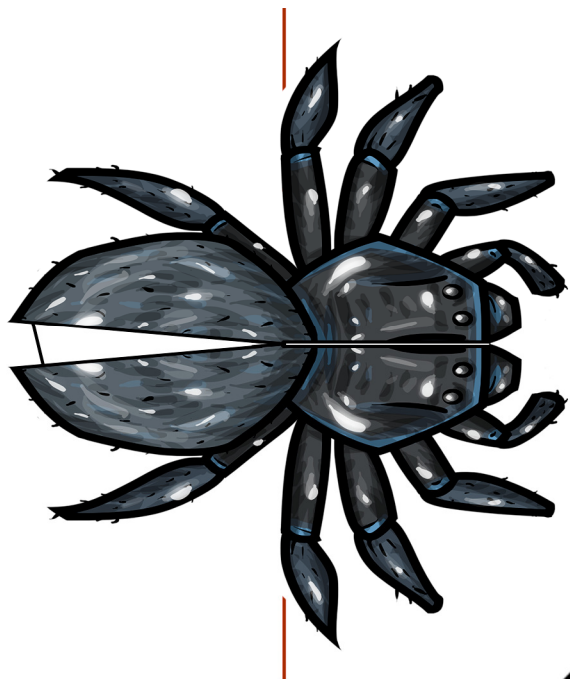

Bend and fold the legs, claws and tail into whatever positions you desire.

Congratulations! You now have a deathstalker scorpion to grab and sting your players!

Giant Trapdoor Spider

Assembling your Deathstalker Scorpion

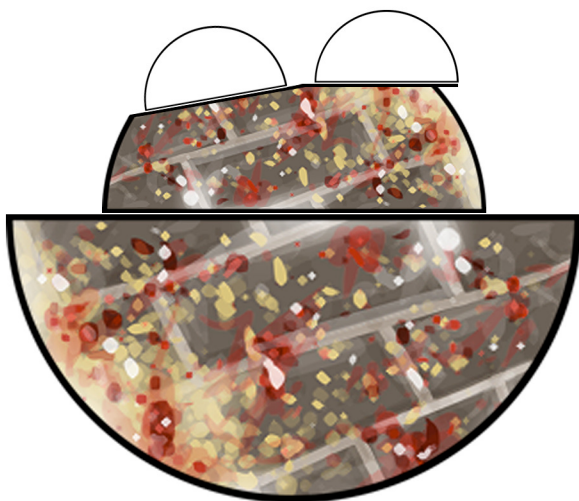

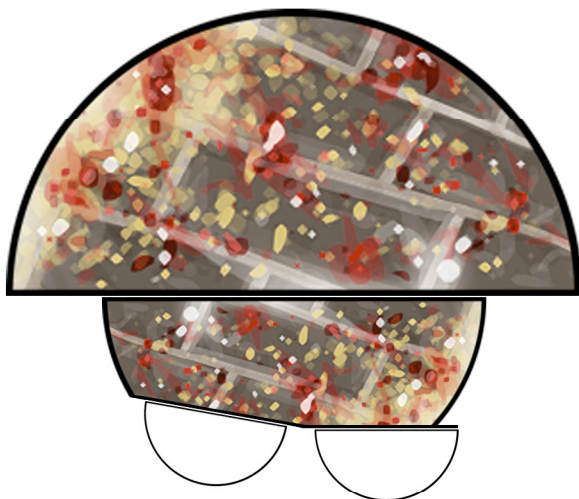

First, follow the instructions found in the free Pathfinder Paper Miniatures instruction PDF, which can be found on Paizo.com.

While gluing the base, make sure not to glue the white tabs on the top and back of the base together; these tabs are used to hold the carapace. Once the base's glue has set, fold the tabs away from each other.

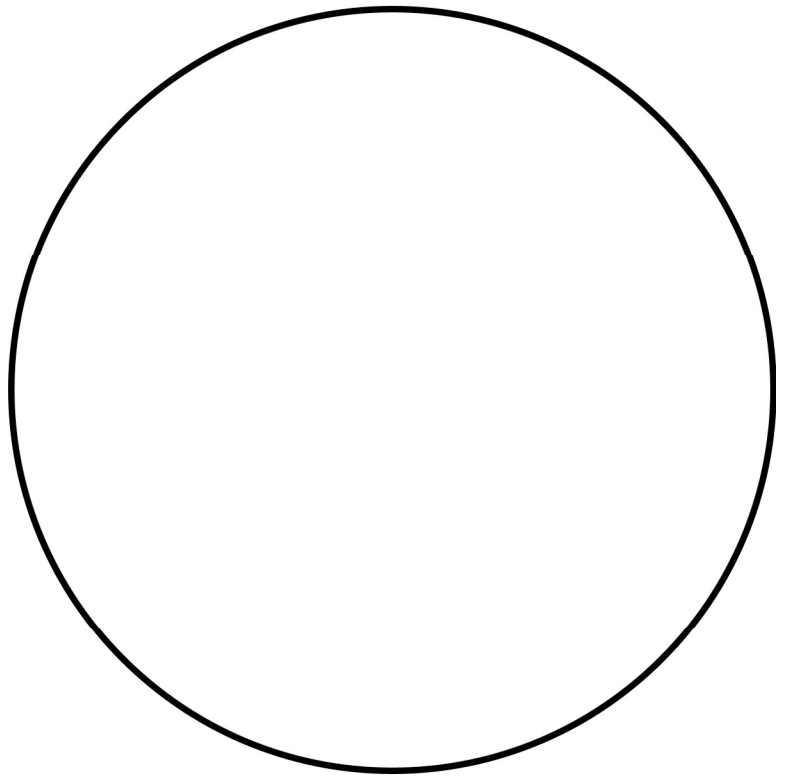

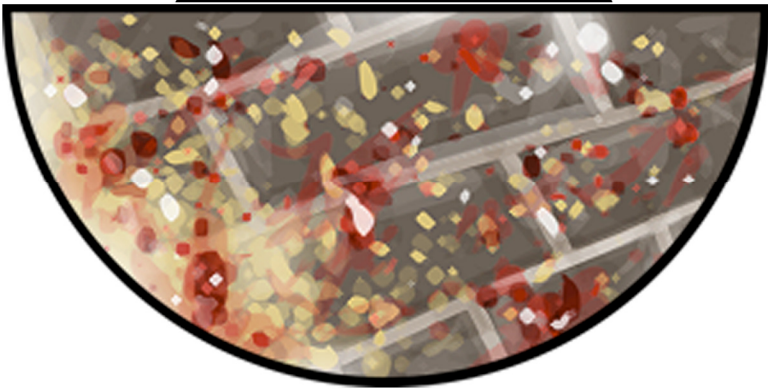

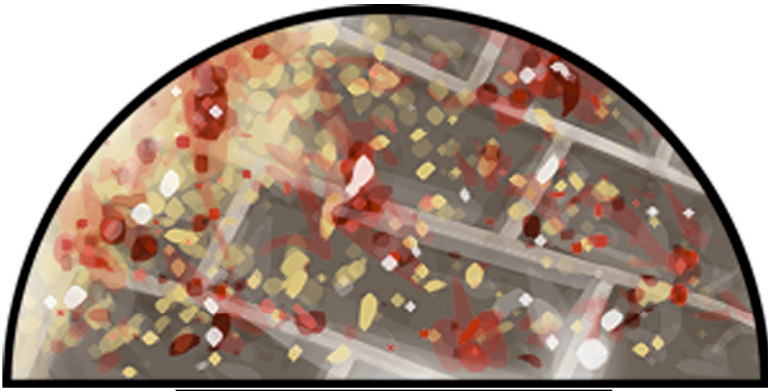

Score the carapace along the red line, and the line through the middle of the body. Then, cut the thorax along the bottom line, and score the top line so you have a functional tab to glue the two parts together. Hold until set, as per your glue's instructions

Glue the body onto the white tabs on the base. The body may fold a bit; this is normal. Hold until set as above. Once the glue has set, bend and fold the legs into whatever positions you desire.

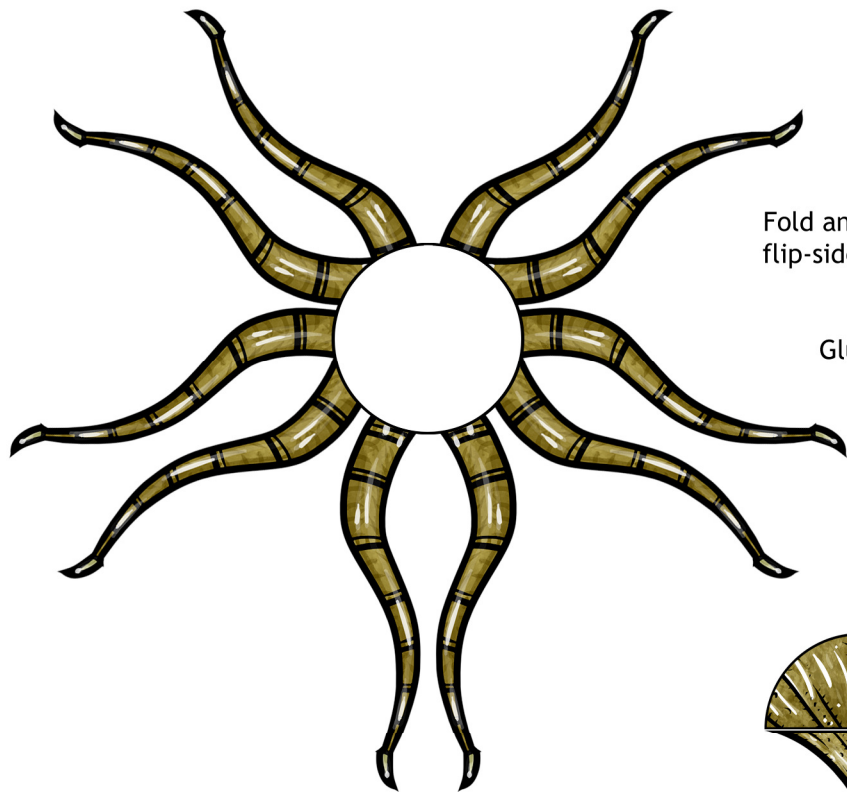

Congratulations! You now have a giant trapdoor spider to munch on your players!

Thkot-Tal

The Wailing Beast

Assembling your Waiting Beast (Elite Variant Sand Kraken)

First, follow the instructions found in the free Pathfinder Paper Miniatures instruction PDF, which can be found on Paizo.com.

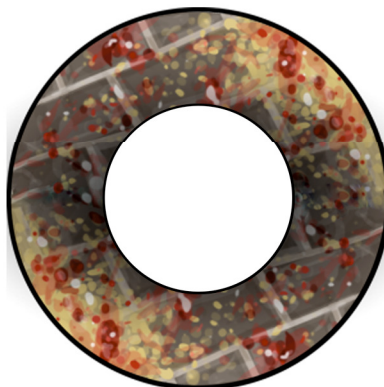

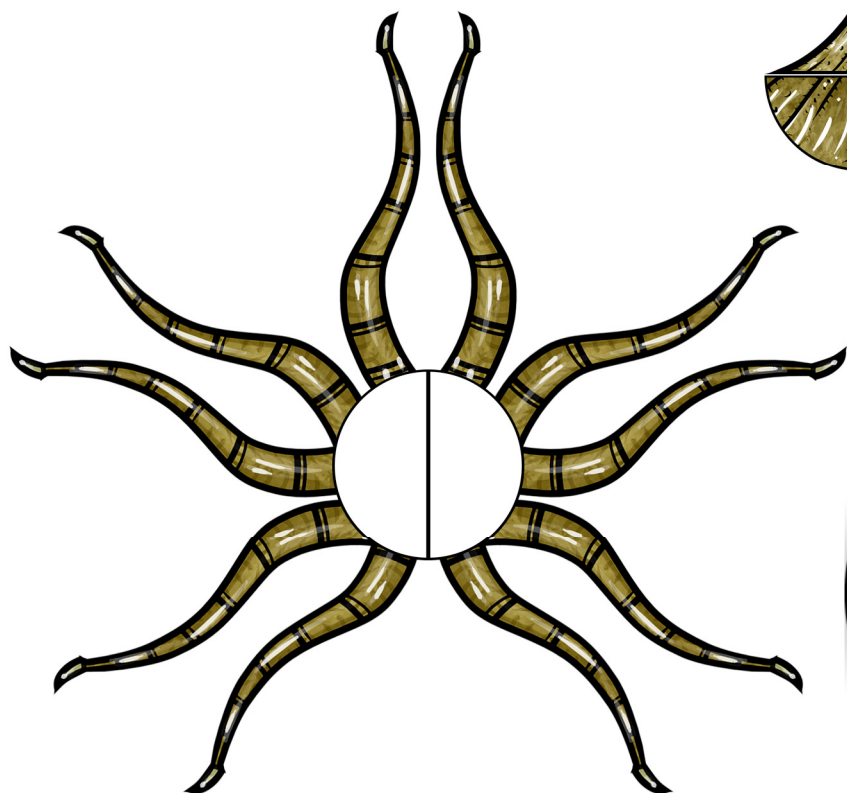

Fold and glue the tentacle and body portions to their respective flip-sides; be certain not to glue the head's base flaps together.

Glue the tentacles onto the flat base. Hold until set, as per your glue's instructions.

Glue the head onto the base, following your glue's instructions as above.

Bend and fold the tentacles into whatever positions you desire.

Congratulations! You now have your own Waiting Beast to to surprise your players!
