

Gesture Drawing

check list:

1. marker
2. paper

Gesture drawing is a quick sketch of the body. This is a warm-up for artists to loosen their artistic muscles and get their creativity flowing.

Here's how to do gesture drawing.

Strike a pose with your arm above your head.

1

Use your marker to quickly draw what you're doing. Just sketch whatever you think your gesture would look like.

2

Now try making waves with your arms.

4

Feel the motion in your arms? Try to imitate that on paper using your marker. Don't forget to add your head and body.

5

Now jump into a bodybuilder pose with one arm up and the other arm down. Look where your arms are. Look where your feet are placed.

6

Grab your marker and sketch your body's gesture.

7

Now if you're daring, try balancing on one foot with your arms out. Focus on what your arms and legs are doing...

8

And then SKETCH!

These drawings are not meant to be perfect. They are just really fun and fast warm-ups to help get you started! Another way to get moving the Artzooka way!
