

Superhero comic Book

check list:

1. camera
2. paper
3. markers

Prep this!

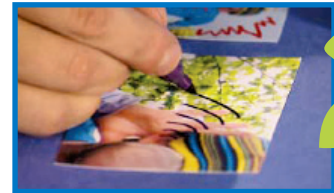

Have a friend take photos of you wearing a superhero costume! Print them off and paste them onto paper in the order you would like to tell a story. Got a booklet? Let's go!

Need help?

Watch the video:
www.cbc.ca/kidscbc/artzooka

1

Comic book art is fun because you don't need to use words to tell the story. Squiggly lines, sound effects and simple pictures say it all. Grab your marker because you are going to draw right on each picture.

2

Your superhero hears a sound? Then show a close-up of an ear and add sound waves.

3

Your superhero is confused? Draw a bunch of question marks.

4

Want to have your superhero bolt into action!? Add motion lines to show movement. You can also draw a cape that looks like it's flapping in the wind.

5

Your superhero is hungry. Draw lines to show his stomach rumbling!

You get the idea! Use your imagination and have fun.

For other storytelling ideas, have a close look at your favourite comic books.

Once your comic book is finished, you can photocopy it and give it to your friends.

Print out more makes from Kids' CBC's Artzooka: <http://www.cbc.ca/kidscbc/artzooka>